17 And Azariah the Prieſt went in after him, and with him fourſcore prieſts of the LORD, that were valiant men:

18 And they withſtood Uzziah l the King, and ſaid unto him, It * appertaineth not unto thee, Uzziah, to burn incenſe unto the LORD, but to the * prieſts, the ſons of Aaron, that are conſecrated to burn incenſe: go out of the ſanctuary, for thou haſt treſpaſſed, neither ſhall it be for thine honour from the LORD God m.

But this they expreſs modeſtly, and by a figure called Meioſis, where more is meant than is expreſſed, becauſe they conſidered that he to whom they ſpake, though an Offender, was their Lord and Soveraign.

19 Then Uzziah was wroth n, and had a cenſor in his hand, to burn incenſe: and while he was wroth with the prieſts, the leproſie even roſe up in his forehead o, before the prieſts in the houſe of the LORD, from beſide the incenſe altar p.

q Not by force, as was noted on v. 18. which needed not, for he voluntarily haſted away, as it follows; but by vehement perſwaſions and denunciations of God's further Judgments upon him, if he did not depart. Some ſuppoſe that the Earth-quake mentioned Amos 1. 1. Zech. 14. 5. happened upon this occaſion, as another token of God's diſpleaſure againſt this unparallel'd arrogancy.

Or, and therefore, as the Hebrew Chi oft ſignifies; and the Particle and is oft underſtood. So it is an inference from the next fore-going words, He was a Leper, and therefore he was cut off, &c. He who could not content himſelf with God's allowance, but uſurped the Prieſt's place and office, is now deprived of the priviledge of the meaneſt of his People. A juſt and moſt ſuitable Judgment.

22 Now the reſt of the acts of Uzziah, firſt and laſt, did Iſaiah the prophet the ſon of Amoz write.

12 Then the Levites aroſe, Mahath the ſon of Amaſai, and Joel the ſon of Azariah, of the ſons of the Kohathites: and of the ſons of Merari; Kiſh the ſon of Abdi, and Azariah the ſon of Jehalelel: and of the Gerſhonites; Joah the ſon of Zimmah, and Eden the ſon of Joah:

13 And of the ſons of Elizaphan; Shimri, and Jehiel: and of the ſons of Aſaph; Zechariah, and Mattaniah:

14 And of the ſons of Heman; Jehiel and Shimei: and of the ſons of Jeduthun; Shemajah, and Uzziel.

15 And they gathered their brethren and ſanctified themſelves, and came, according to the commandment of the king, ‖ by the words of the LORD, to cleanſe the houſe of the LORD.

‖ Or, in the buſineſs of the LORD.

16 And the prieſts went into the inner part of the houſe of the LORD k, to cleanſe it, and brought out all the uncleanneſs that they found in the temple of the LORD, into the court l of the houſe of the LORD. And the Levites took it to carry it out abroad into the brook Kidron.

k Not the Holy of Holies, into which onely the High-prieſt might enter, and that but once in a year, but the Holy Place. l To wit, the Prieſts Court, called here the Court, by way of Eminency.

17 Now they began on the firſt day of the firſt month to ſanctifie, and on the eighth day of the month came they to the porch of the LORD; ſo they ſanctified the houſe of the LORD in eight days, and in the ſixteenth day of the firſt month they made an end m.

m In 16 Days purging the Houſe, and Porch, and Courts, and all the Chambers belonging to the Temple. This is noted to imply partly the Univerſal Abuſe and Defilement of all the parts of it by Ahaz, which required ſo much time to remove; and partly the diligence of the Prieſts in this Work.

18 Then they went in to Hezekiah the king, and ſaid, We have cleanſed all the houſe of the LORD, and the altar of burnt-offering, with all the veſſels thereof, and the ſhew-bread table, with all the veſſels thereof.

19 Moreover, all the veſſels which king Ahaz in his reign did caſt away in his tranſgreſſion, have we prepared and ſanctified, and behold, they are before the altar of the LORD.

20 Then Hezekiah the king aroſe early, and gathered the rulers of the city, and went up to the houſe of the LORD.

21 And they brought ſeven bullocks, and ſeven rams, and ſeven lambs, and ſeven he-goats n for a * ſin-offering for the kingdom o, and for the ſanctuary p, and for Judah q: and he commanded the prieſts the ſons of Aaron to offer them on the altar of the LORD.

* Lev. 4. 3, 14.

n The Number of ſeven is famous and cuſtomary in Sacred Matters, and is here uſed in regard of the vaſt numbers and various kinds of Sins, the Guilt whereof yet lay upon the Kingdom, which was now to be expiated. Indeed, in caſe of one particular Sin of Ignorance done by the People, there was but one bullock to be offered, Levit. 4. 13, 14. but here the Sins were many and preſumptuous, &c. o To make Atonement for the Sins of the King and the Royal Family, and the Court. p For all the Idolatry and Uncleanneſs wherewith the Temple had been polluted, which, as it had been cleanſed naturally by the Prieſts Hands, ſo now was to be purged morally by Sacrifices. q For the Sins of all the People of Judah.

22 So they killed the bullocks, and the prieſts received the blood, and * ſprinkled it on the altar: likewiſe when they had killed the rams, they ſprinkled the blood upon the altar: they killed alſo the lambs, and they ſprinkled the blood upon the altar.

* Lev. 8. 14, 15. Heb. 9. 21.

23 And they brought † forth the he-goats for the ſin-offering, before the king and the congregation, and they r laid their * hands upon them.

* Lev. 4. 15, 24.

r i. e. The King and the Elders of the Congregation in the Name of the whole Congregation.

24 And the prieſts killed them, and they made reconciliation with their blood upon the altar, to make an atonement for all Iſrael s: for the king commanded that the burnt-offering and the ſin-offering ſhould be made for all Iſrael.

s i.e. For Judah and Benjamin, and all the reſt of the Tribes, whereof a conſiderable number were now in his Dominions.

25 * And he ſet the Levites in the houſe of the LORD, with cymbals, with pſalteries, and with harps, * according to the commandment of David, and of Gad the kings ſeer, and Nathan the prophet: for ſo was the commandment † of the LORD † by his prophets.

26 And the Levites ſtood with the inſtruments * of David, and the prieſts with * the trumpets.

* 1 Chron. 23. 5. Amos 6. 5.
* Numb. 10. 10.

27 And Hezekiah commanded to offer the burnt-offering upon the altar: and † when the burnt-offering began, the ſong of the LORD began alſo, with the trumpets, and with the † inſtruments ordained by David king of Iſrael.

28 And all the congregation worſhipped, and the † ſingers ſang, and the trumpets ſounded: and all this continued until the burnt-offering was finiſhed.

29 And when they had made an end of offering, the king and all that were † preſent with him, bowed themſelves and worſhipped.

30 Moreover, Hezekiah the king, and the princes commanded the Levites to ſing praiſe to the LORD, with the words of David, and of Aſaph the ſeer: and they ſang praiſes with gladneſs, and they bowed their heads and worſhipped.

31 Then Hezekiah anſwered and ſaid, Now ye have ‖ conſecrated your ſelves unto the LORD t, come near, and bring ſacrifices, and † * thank-offerings into the houſe of the LORD. And the congregation brought in ſacrifices, and † thank-offerings, and as many as were of a free heart, burnt-offerings u.

* Lev. 7. 12

t Now that you have reconciled your ſelves and the Houſe to Gods Favour, and that he is willing and ready to accept your Sacrifices. u Wherein there was more generoſity than in the other Sacrifices, becauſe they were wholly burnt and offered to God, and the People had no ſhare in them as they had in the reſt.

32 And the number of the burnt-offerings which the congregation brought, was threeſcore and ten bullocks, an hundred rams, and two hundred lambs: all theſe were for a burnt-offering unto the LORD.

33 And the conſecrated things x were ſix hundred oxen, and three thouſand ſheep.

x i. e. All the Offerings conſecrated to God beſides the Burnt-offerings already mentioned.

34 But the prieſts y were too few, ſo that they could not flay all the burnt-offerings z: wherefore their brethren the Levites † did help them ‖ till the work was ended, and until the other prieſts had ſanctified themſelves: for the Levites were more upright in heart, to ſanctifie themſelves, than the prieſts.

y To wit, ſuch as were ſanctified and fit for their Work, as the following words ſhew: for otherwiſe the number of the Prieſts was more than ſufficient for this Employment. z And much leſs all the other Sacrifices, which were more numerous; the flaying whereof was the Prieſts proper work, Levit. 1. 5, 6. ‖ Neceſſity excuſing their deviation from the Rule, as it hath excuſed others in like Caſes.

35 And alſo the burnt-offerings were in abundance *, with the fat of the peace-offerings, and the drink-offerings for every burnt-offering. So the ſervice of the houſe of the LORD was ſet in order.

* Or, For the Burnt-Offerings were to be offered alſo in abundance. So it is a reaſon why the Prieſts could not flay all the burnt-offerings, as was ſaid v. 34. Becauſe there was ſo much other work for them, for the Burnt-offerings were not only to be flayed, but alſo to be offered, to wit, wholly, and with them the Fat of Peace-offerings, &c.

36 And Hezekiah rejoyced, and all the people, that God had * prepared the people: for the thing was done ſuddenly.

* 1 Chron. 29. 18.

† It was, as a very great, ſo a ſudden Change, that the People, who but the other day were ſo ready to comply with wicked Ahaz in his Idolatrous and Impious Preſcriptions, were now ſo free and forward in Gods Service: whereby it plainly appeared to be the Work of the Almighty God changing their Hearts by his Holy Spirit.

CHAP. XXX.

Hezekiah proclaimeth a ſolemn Paſſover for Judah and Iſrael, 1——12. They having deſtroyed the Altars of Idolatry, keep the feaſt 14 days; 13——26. The Prieſts and Levites bleſs the people, 27.

AND Hezekiah ſent to all Iſrael a and Judah, and wrote letters alſo to Ephraim and Manaſſeh b, that they ſhould come to the houſe of the LORD at Jeruſalem c, to keep the paſſover unto the LORD God of Iſrael.

a Whereby he underſtands all the Perſons of the Ten Tribes, who were now ſettled in his Kingdom; as appears by their contradiſtinction to Ephraim and Manaſſeh here following. b i. e. To all the remainders of the Ten Tribes, v. 5. who are here Synedochically expreſſed by the names of Ephraim and Manaſſeh, as elſewhere by the name of Ephraim only. But he names theſe two Tribes, becauſe they were neareſt to his Kingdom; and a great number of them had long ſince, and from time to time joyned themſelves to the Kingdom of Judah, 2 Chron. 15. 8,9. and therefore had moſt hopes of ſucceſs amongſt them. c Admoniſhing them of their Duty to God, and perſwading them to comply with it.

* Numb.9. 10,11. 2 For the king had taken counſel, and his princes and all the congregation in Jeruſalem, to keep the paſſover in the ſecond * month d.

d Which was againſt the common Rule and Practiſe, but was juſtified by that Supreme Law of Neceſſity, and by a juſt Impediment, which made the doing of this in its proper time, to wit, the fourteenth day of the firſt Month, impoſſible,becauſe the Temple was not cleanſed nor they prepared till that time was paſt, *ch.*29.3,17. Compare *Numb.*9.10,11.

3 For they could not keep it at that time e, becauſe the prieſts had not ſanctified themſelves ſufficiently f, neither had the people gathered themſelves together to Jeruſalem g.

e Which God had appointed for it, Exod. 12. 6. One Reaſon whereof was evident in it ſelf, becauſe the Temple was not then purified and prepared; to which he adds two other Reaſons. f To wit, in ſuch manner and degree as was fit, nor in ſuch numbers as were neceſſary for the ſlaying and offering of ſo many thouſands of Paſchal-offerings, as appears, becauſe they were not ſufficient for thoſe Offerings, which were comparatively few, ch. 29. v. 32, 33, 34. g As they uſed and ought to do at that time from all places: which now they could not do, becauſe neither the thing was agreed upon, nor the People ſummoned thither till the proper time was paſt.

† Heb. was right in the eyes of the King. 4 And the thing † pleaſed the king,and all the congregation.

5 So they eſtabliſhed a decree b, to make proclamation throughout all Iſrael, from Beer-ſheba even to Dan, that they ſhould come to keep the paſſover unto the LORD God of Iſrael at Jeruſalem: for they had not done it † of a long time in ſuch ſort as it was written i.

b They fixed this Reſolution. i i. e. So as God had commanded them to do it, to wit, That all the Males in Iſrael ſhould do it: Which expreſs Command of God they ought to have obeyed, rather than the wicked Commands or Edicts of Men to the contrary: which was both the Judgment and Practiſe of the Prieſts and Levites, and other godly Iſraelites, as is manifeſt from 2 Chron. 15. 8, &c.

† Heb. from the hand. 6 So the poſts went with the letters † from the king, and his princes throughout all Iſrael, and Judah, and according to the commandment of the king, ſaying, Ye children of Iſrael,turn again unto the LORD God of Abraham, Iſaac, and Iſrael, and he will return to the remnant of you,that are eſcaped out of the hands of the kings of Aſſyria k.

k To wit, Pul and Tilgath-pilneſar, who had carried their Brethren away Captives, 2 Kings 15. 19, 29. 1 Chron. 5. 26. 2 Chron. 28.20.

7 And be not ye like your fathers, and like your brethren, which treſpaſſed againſt the LORD God of their fathers,who therefore gave them up to deſolation, as ye ſee.

† Heb. harden not your necks. † Heb. give the hand. 8 Now † be ye not ſtiff-necked as your fathers were, but † yield your ſelves l unto the LORD, and enter into his ſanctuary which he hath ſanctified for ever m: and ſerve the LORD your God, that the fierceneſs of his wrath may turn away from you.

l Heb. Give the Hand to him; i. e. ſubmit your ſelves to him by obeying his Command, and renew your Covenant with him: both which things were done amongſt Men by this Ceremony of giving the Hand. See 1 Chron. 29. 24. Ezra 10. 19. Ezek. 17. 18. m Not for a tranſient and temporary uſe; but as long as the State and Church of Iſrael had a being, whatſoever Alterations ſhould happen therein.

9 For if ye turn again unto the LORD, your brethren and your children ſhall find compaſſion before them that lead them captive, ſo that they ſhall come again into this land: for the LORD your God is * gracious and merciful, and will not turn away his face from you, if ye return unto him. * Exod. 34. 6.

10 So the poſts paſſed from city to city, through the country of Ephraim and Manaſſeh, even unto Zebulun: but they n laughed them to ſcorn, and mocked them.

n i. e. The Generality of the ten Tribes; who by long want of Meat had now loſt all their Appetite to Gods Ordinances, and from a neglect were now fallen into a Contempt and Deriſion of them; for which they paid dear. For about ſix years after their Refuſal of this Offer of Grace they were all carried Captive, 2 Kings 18. 1, 10.

* Ch. 11. 16 11 Neverthéleſs, * divers of Aſher, and Manaſſeh, and of Zebulun, humbled themſelves and came to Jeruſalem.

12 Alſo in Judah the hand of God was to give them one heart to do the commandment of the king, and of the princes, by the word of the LORD o.

o i. e. God by the Power of his Grace inclined their Hearts to an unanimous compliance with Gods and the Kings Will. And this is mentioned as the Reaſon of this wonderful Change wrought in theſe Men, who had lately been utterly averſe from Gods Worſhip, and wholly given up to Idolatry; as was noted before on ch. 29. 36.

13 And there aſſembled at Jeruſalem much people, to keep the feaſt of unleavened bread in the ſecond month, a very great congregation.

14 And they aroſe, and took away the * altars p that were in Jeruſalem, and all the altars for incenſe took they away, and caſt them into the brook Kidron. * Ch. 28. 24.

p To wit, of Burnt-offerings; becauſe they are diſtinguiſhed from the Altars of Incenſe here following; both which were removed and deſtroyed, partly becauſe all the Iſraelites were confined to the Altars of the Temple; and partly becauſe theſe Altars were erected to Idols.

15 Then they killed the paſſover on the fourteenth day of the ſecond month: and the Prieſts and the Levites were aſhamed q, and ſanctified themſelves, and brought in the burnt offerings into the houſe of the LORD.

q Their Negligence and Remiſneſs being upbraided by the great and general Alacrity and Forwardneſs of the People.

16 And they ſtood in † their place, after their manner, according to the law of Moſes the man of God: the prieſts ſprinkled the blood r, which they received of the hand of the Levites s. † Heb. their ſtanding.

r Of the Sacrifices upon the Altar, *Levit.*1.5. s Who flayed and killed the Sacrifices which the Prieſts, if they had been ſanctified, ſhould have done, as it was obſerved before, *ch.*29.34.

17 For there were many in the congregation that were not ſanctified t: therefore the Levites had the charge of the killing u of the paſſovers x, for every one that was not clean y, to ſanctifie them unto the LORD.

t That had more deſire to come to the Paſſover, than care and diligence to cleanſe and prepare themſelves for it. Now theſe perſons were either 1. The Prieſts, who were before taxed with Uncleanneſs and Unpreparedneſs. Or rather 2. the People, as is implied in the word Congregation, and expreſſed in the next verſe, and confirmed by the Reaſon here following. u Becauſe many of the People were unclean, and therefore many more Sacrifices were to be offered for their Purification than the Prieſts could kill. x i. e. Either 1. the Paſchal Lambs; which the Levites here offered, becauſe of the Impurity of many of the Maſters of Families, who otherwiſe, as ſome think, ſhould have killed the Paſchal Lambs in their own Houſes, Exod. 12. 3. Or, 2. The other Sacrifices which accompanied the Paſſover, which alſo are called by the ſame Name, as is evident from *Deut.*16.2,3. where ſee my Notes: which the Levites here killed, for the Reaſon now mentioned. y So far as they could make any diſcovery of their uncleanneſs, either by their own Confeſſion, or otherwiſe. But there were many whoſe Uncleanneſſes were not known, and therefore did not cleanſe themſelves, as is ſaid, v. 18. as they ought to have done.

18 For a multitude of the people, even many of Ephraim and Manaſſeh, Iſſachar, and Zebulun, had not cleanſed themſelves, yet did they eat the paſſover, otherwiſe than it was written z: but Hezekiah prayed for them, ſaying, † The good LORD pardon every one, † Heb. the LORD the good pardon.

z They had ſo eager a deſire to partake of this Ordinance,that rather than neglect it, they would venture upon it with ſome Ceremonial Uncleanneſs upon them.

19 That prepareth his heart to ſeek God,the LORD God of his fathers, though he be not cleanſed according to the purification of the ſanctuary a.

a i. e. With that Ceremonial Purification which was required of them that came into Gods Sanctuary. So he calls it to diſtinguiſh from that Moral and Internal Purity which they are here acknowledged to have.

20 And the LORD hearkened to Hezekiah, and healed the people b.

b From their Uncleanneſs; which it ſelf was a Spiritual Diſeaſe, and which probably produced a Diſeaſe, or Diſtemper, or Trouble in their Minds and Conſciences; which alſo had formerly brought, and might juſtly now bring even outward Diſeaſes upon the Body,or, at leaſt, Guilt, which is a Diſeaſe upon the Soul: From all which the Lord was pleaſed now to heal them, by pardoning this their Sin, and accepting them and their Services, as if they had been clean. Which it is likely God was pleaſed to manifeſt by ſome outward Sign, poſſibly by fire from Heaven conſuming the Sacrifices; which was the uſual Token of Gods Approbation, as hath been formerly noted more than once.

21 And the children of Iſrael that were † preſent at Jeruſalem, kept the feaſt of unleavened bread ſeven days with great gladneſs: and the Levites, and the prieſts praiſed the LORD day by day, ſinging with † loud inſtruments unto the LORD. † Heb. found. † Heb. inſtruments of ſtrength.

22 And Hezekiah ſpake † comfortably unto all the Levites c that taught the good knowledge of the LORD d: and they did eat throughout the feaſt ſeven days, offering peace-offerings, and making confeſſion e unto the Lord God of their fathers. † Heb. to the heart of all, &c.

c Encouraged them to a chearful and diligent attendance upon their Holy Miniſtrations by the promiſe of his Favour and utmoſt Care for them, which he faithfully performed, ch. 31. 4,&c. d Who by their Office were to inſtruct and build up the people in the Knowledge and Fear of God: which is mentioned as the Cauſe of his Reſpect and Kindneſs to them, which was for their works ſake, as it is ſaid, 1 Theſſ. 5. 13. e Either 1. Confeſſing their Sins: which Work was to accompany many of their Sacrifices: of which ſee Levit. 5. 5. and 16. 21. Or rather, 2. Confeſſing Gods Goodneſs, or praiſing of God, which oft goes under this Name, as 1 Chron. 16. 8, 24. which alſo ſeems to be more proper work for this Seaſon of Joy.

23 And the whole aſſembly took counſel to keep * other ſeven days: and they kept other ſeven days with gladneſs f. * 1 Kings 8.65.

f Not in the ſame manner as they had done the former, which offering new Paſchal Lambs, and eating only Unleavened Bread, (of which there is not the leaſt intimation in the Text) but only in the Solemn Worſhip of God, by Sacrifices, and Prayers, and Praiſes, and publick Inſtruction of that great Congregation in the good Knowledge of the Lord; which was ſo dear to Hezekiah, v. 22. and at this time moſt ſeaſonable and neceſſary for the people after ſo long and diſmal a Night of Ignorance, Superſtition and Idolatry, as both Iſrael and Judah had been involved in.

24 For Hezekiah king of Judah † did give to the congregation g a thouſand bullocks, and ſeven thouſand ſheep h; and the princes gave to the congregation a thouſand bullocks, and ten thouſand ſheep: and a great number of prieſts ſanctified themſelves i. † Heb. lifted up, or offered.

g Firſt to God, to whom the parts appointed were offered in way of Thankſgiving; and then to the People, who feaſted upon the Relicks, as the Offerer uſed to do in Peace-offerings: and Hezekiah, who was the Offerer, gave away his Right in the Remains of the Sacrifices to the People. h Which Generoſity is the more conſiderable, becauſe it was in the beginning of his Reign, when he found the Royal Exchequer exhauſted and empty; and when he had been at great Expence about the cleanſing and refitting of the Temple, and making Preparations for this great Feaſt. i Having now both more Time and further Need of ſanctifying themſelves to offer theſe numerous Sacrifices.

25 And all the congregation of Judah, with the prieſts and the Levites, and all the congregation that came out of Iſrael, and the ſtrangers that came out of the land of Iſrael, and that dwelt in Judah, rejoyced.

26 So there was great joy in Jeruſalem: for ſince the time of Solomon the ſon of David king of Iſrael, there was not the like in Jeruſalem.

27 Then the prieſts the Levites k aroſe, and * bleſſed the people l: and their voice was heard, and their prayer came up to † his holy dwelling place, even unto heaven. * Numb. 6.23. † Heb. the habitation of his holineſs.

k Thoſe of the Levites who were Prieſts alſo; for to them only this Work belonged, 1 Chron. 23. 13. Or, the Prieſts and the Levites: For as the Levites did ſome other part of the Prieſts Work at this time, it is not ſtrange if they did this alſo. Or the Prieſts might bleſs by ſolemn pronunciation of the Bleſſing, and the Levites by their Acclamations, or with their Muſical Inſtruments. l Either commended them for their great Zeal and Diligence in Gods Service. Or rather, ſolemnly prayed to God to bleſs them; and their Prayer was not in vain, as the following words ſhew.

CHAP. XXXI.

The People forward in deſtroying Idolatry: Hezekiah ordereth the Courſes of the Prieſts and Levites: and provideth for their work and maintenance, 1——4. The People forward in Offerings and Tithes, 5——10. Hezekiah appointeth Officers to diſpoſe of the Tithes, 11——19. his ſincerity, 20, 21.

NOw when all this was finiſhed, all Iſrael that were † preſent, went out to the cities of Judah, and * brake the † images in pieces, and cut down the groves, and threw down the high places, and the altars out of all Judah and Benjamin, in Ephraim alſo and Manaſſeh a, † until they had utterly deſtroyed them all. Then all the children of Iſrael returned every man to his poſſeſſion into their own cities. † Heb. found. * 2 Kings 18.4. † Heb. ſtatutes. † Heb. until to make an end.

a Either 1. In thoſe Cities belonging to Ephraim and Manaſſeh, which the Kings of Judah had formerly taken from the Kings of Iſrael. Or, 2. In the Tribes of Ephraim and Manaſſeh. For although theſe were a part of Hoſhea's Kingdom, yet Hezekiah preſumed to do this, partly by virtue of the Law of God, to which both Iſrael and Judah owed Subjection, which commanded the extirpation of theſe things out of the whole Land of Canaan: Partly by the ſpecial Impulſe and Direction of Gods Spirit, which ſometimes did put perſons upon Heroical and Extraordinary Actions, not to be drawn into Imitation: And partly becauſe he knew that Hoſhea contented himſelf with the Worſhip of the Calves, and did not practiſe that great Idolatry which his Predeceſſors had uſed, and therefore would patiently ſuffer the breaking of theſe Images of Baal, and the things belonging to them; which is all that was done at this time.

2 And Hezekiah appointed the courſes of the prieſts and the Levites, after their courſes, every man according to his ſervice, the prieſts and Levites for burnt-offerings, and for peace-offerings to miniſter, and to give thanks, and to praiſe in the gates of the tents of the LORD b.

b i.e. Within the Gates of the Houſe of the Lord: which is here called Tents, partly becauſe all Houſes are oft ſo called, as Judges 19. 9. and 20. 8. Pſal. 69.25. And partly becauſe the Hoſt of the Lord, to wit, the Prieſts and Levites, frequently ſo called, encamped there, and kept their Stations and Orders there by courſe.

3 He appointed alſo the kings portion of his ſubſtance, for the burnt-offerings c, to wit, for the morning and evening burnt-offerings, and the burnt-offerings of the ſabbaths, and for the new moons, and for the ſet-feaſts, as it is written in the * law of the LORD. * Numb. 28.& 29.

c Which had hitherto been, and were to be taken out of the Treaſures of the Temple which were collected from the People, 1 Chron. 26.20. Nehem. 10.32,33. but that he might eaſe them in their preſent poverty, which his Predeceſſor had brought upon them, and engage them to a more chearful attendance upon Gods Service, he took the Burden upon himſelf.

4 Moreover, he commanded the people that dwelt in Jeruſalem, to give the portion of the prieſts, and the Levites, that they might be encouraged in the law of the LORD d.

d i.e. Freed from worldly Cares and Diſtractions, and enabled to give up themſelves entirely to the ſerious Study of Gods Law, in which many of them were ignorant, and to the Inſtruction, and Direction, and quickning of the People in their ſeveral Duties.

5 And as ſoon as the commandment † came abroad e, the children of Iſrael brought in abundance the firſt-fruits of corn, wine, and oil, and ‖ honey f, and of all the increaſe of the field, and the tithe of all things brought they in abundantly. † Heb. brake forth ‖ Or, Dates.

e Either 1. as ſoon as the Report of this Command of the King, v. 4. was got abroad into other parts. Or, 2. as ſoon as the King enlarged and extended that Command to all the parts of his Kingdom, which v. 4. was confined to them that dwell in Jeruſalem. f Or, Dates, as the Hebrew Writers generally, and many other learned Hebrecians underſtand this word, which is given to them, becauſe of the Sweetneſs of their Taſte in ſome ſort reſembling Honey. For the Law requires no Tithes but of the Fruits of Trees, or of the Earth, or of Beaſts.

6 And concerning the children of Iſrael and Judah, that dwelt in the cities of Judah, they alſo brought in the tithe of oxen and ſheep g, and the * tithe of holy things, which were conſecrated unto the LORD their God h, and laid them † by heaps. * Lev. 27. 30. Deut. 14. 28. † Heb. heaps, heaps.

g They brought in not only the ſame Tithes which the Dwellers in Jeruſalem did, to wit, of corn, and wine, and oil, &c. which they had in their own Storehouſes in that City; but alſo Oxen and Sheep, which were more proper to the Country: For under the Cities of Judah, are comprehended the Suburbs and Territories adjacent and belonging to them, as is evident from the Nature of the Thing, and the Law of God. h This may be taken either 1. by way of Explication, even the Tithe of Holy things, &c. 10 Thus ſaith Sennacherib king of Aſſyria, Whereon do ye truſt, that ye abide ‖ in the ſiege in Jeruſalem? ‖ Or, in the ſtrong hold.

11 Doth not Hezekiah perſwade you to give over your ſelves to die by famine and by thirſt, ſaying, The LORD our God ſhall deliver us out of the hand of the king of Aſſyria?

12 Hath not the ſame Hezekiah taken away his high places, and his altars, and commanded Judah and Jeruſalem, ſaying, Ye ſhall worſhip before one altar, and burn incenſe upon it.

13 Know ye not what I and my fathers have done unto all the people of other lands? were the gods of the nations of thoſe lands any ways able to deliver their lands out of mine hand?

14 Who was there among all the gods of thoſe nations, that my fathers utterly deſtroyed, that could deliver his people out of mine hand, that your God ſhould be able to deliver you out of mine hand?

15 Now therefore let not Hezekiah deceive you, nor perſwade you on this manner, neither yet believe him: for no god of any nation or kingdom was able to deliver his people out of mine hand, and out of the hand of my fathers: how much leſs ſhall your God deliver you i out of mine hand.

i Seeing I have deſtroyed ſo many Nations, and ſome of them ſtronger than you, in ſpight of all their gods, it is not probable that your God ſhould defend you, which none of the reſt could do for their People.

16 And his ſervants ſpake yet more againſt the LORD God, and againſt his ſervant Hezekiah.

19 And they ſpake againſt the God of Jeruſalem, as againſt the gods of the people of the 20 * And for this cauſe Hezekiah the king, and the prophet Iſaiah the ſon of Amoz, prayed and cried to heaven.

21 * And the LORD ſent an angel which cut off all the mighty men of valour, and the leaders and the captains in the camp of the king of Aſſyria: ſo he returned with ſhame of face to his own land. And when he was come into the houſe of his God, they that came forth of his own bowels, † ſlew him there with the ſword.

22 Thus the LORD ſaved Hezekiah, and the inhabitants of Jeruſalem from the hand of Sennacherib the king of Aſſyria, and from the hand of all other, and guided them on every ſide.

23 And many brought gifts unto the LORD to Jeruſalem, and † preſents to Hezekiah king of Judah: ſo that he was magnified in the ſight of all nations k, from thenceforth.

25 But Hezekiah rendred not again, according to the benefit done unto him: for his heart was lifted up m; therefore there was wrath upon him, and upon Judah and Jeruſalem n.

m For that prodigious Victory over the Aſſyrians, above v. 21. and for his miraculous Reſtauration from Sickneſs, and the confirmation of that Work by a ſtrange and ſupernatural Motion of the Sun, and by the Honour ſince done him by an Embaſſy from the great and potent King of Babylon. All which probably raiſed in him too great an Opinion of himſelf, as if theſe things were done, if not by his Power, yet, at leaſt, for his Piety and Virtues. And inſtead of walking humbly with God, and giving the Glory of all entirely to him, he took the Honour to himſelf, and vaingloriouſly ſhewed his Riches and Precious Treaſures to the Babyloniſh Ambaſſadors, 2 Kings 20. 12. &c. n Who might juſtly be puniſhed for Hezekiah's Sin, becauſe they followed him in it, as they confeſs in the next verſe.

7 And when he had broken down the altars and the groves, and had beaten the graven images † into † Heb. to make powder. powder, and cut down all the idols throughout all the land of Iſrael, he returned to Jeruſalem.

8 Now in the * eighteenth year of his reign, * 2 Kings 22. 3. when he had purged the land, and the houſe d, he ſent Shaphan the ſon of Azaliah, and Maaſejah the governour of the city, and Joah the ſon of Joahaz the recorder, to repair the houſe of the LORD his God.

d The Houſe of God, called the Houſe by way of Eminency.

9 And when they came to Hilkiah the high-prieſt, they delivered the money that was brought into the houſe of God, which the Levites that kept the doors, had gathered of the hand of Manaſſeh and Ephraim, and of all the remnant of Iſrael, and of all Judah and Benjamin, and they e returned to Jeruſalem.

e i. e. The Levites who had gone abroad through all Joſiah's Kingdom to gather Money for this good Uſe, and now came with it to Jeruſalem to lodge it in the Treaſuries of the Lords Houſe.

10 And they put it in the hand of the work-men, that had the over-ſight of the houſe of the LORD, and they gave it to the work-men that wrought in the houſe of the LORD, to repair and mend the houſe:

11 Even to the artificers and builders gave they it, to buy hewen ſtone, and timber for couplings, and || to floor the houſes f which the kings of Judah had || Or, to rafter. deſtroyed.

12 And the men did the work faithfully: and the overſeers of them were Jehath and Obadiah, the Levites, of the ſons of Merari; and Zechariah, and Meſhullam, of the ſons of the Kohathites, to ſet it forward; and other of the Levites, all that could skill of inſtruments of muſick g.

g Or, all theſe here named, were skilful in Inſtruments of Muſick. Which may be here mentioned, either to their Commendation, that they were fit for, and careful and diligent in this Employment wherewith they were now entruſted, no leſs than in their own proper Work: Or, to intimate, that as they were skilful, ſo they were exerciſed in both their Employments, and did ſucceſſively overſee the Work, and praiſed God with their Voices and Inſtruments for his Gracious and Powerful Help in carrying on the Work.

13 Alſo they were over the bearers of burdens, and were overſeers of all that wrought the work in any manner of ſervice: and of the Levites there were ſcribes, and officers, and porters.

14 And when they brought out the money that was brought into the houſe of the LORD, Hilkiah the prieſt * found the book of the law of the LORD, * 2 Kings 22. 8, &c. given † by Moſes. † Heb. by the hand of.

15 And Hilkiah anſwered and ſaid to Shaphan the ſcribe, I have found the book of the law in the houſe of the LORD. And Hilkiah delivered the book to Shaphan.

16 And Shaphan carried the book to the king, and brought the king word back again, ſaying, All that was committed † to thy ſervants, they do it. † Heb. to the hand of.

17 And they have † gathered together the money † Heb. poured out, or, melted. that was found in the houſe of the LORD, and have delivered it into the hand of the overſeers, and to the hand of the workmen.

18 Then Shaphan the ſcribe told the king, ſaying, Hilkiah the prieſt hath given me a book. And Shaphan read † it before the king. † Heb. in it.

19 And it came to paſs when the king had heard the words of the law, that he rent his clothes.

20 And the king commanded Hilkiah, and Ahikam the ſon of Shaphan, and || Abdon the ſon of Micah, and Shaphan the ſcribe, and Aſajah a ſervant of the kings, ſaying,
|| Or, Achbor. 2 Kings, 22. 12.

21 Go, enquire of the LORD for me, and for them that are left in Iſrael, and in Judah, concerning the words of the book that is found: for great is the wrath of the LORD that is poured out upon us, becauſe our fathers have not kept the word of the LORD, to do after all that is written in this book.

22 And Hilkiah and they that the king had appointed, went to Huldah the propheteſs, the wife of Shallum the ſon of Tikvah, the ſon of || Haſrah, keeper of the † wardrobe; (now ſhe dwelt in Jeruſalem || in the colledg) and they ſpake to her to that effect.

23 And ſhe anſwered them, Thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael, Tell ye the man that ſent you to me,

24 Thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, I will bring evil upon this place, and upon the inhabitants thereof, even all the curſes that are written in the book which they have read before the king of Judah:

25 Becauſe they have forſaken me, and have burnt incenſe unto other gods, that they might provoke me to anger with all the works of their hands; therefore my wrath ſhall be poured out upon this place, and ſhall not be quenched.

26 And as for the king of Judah, who ſent you to enquire of the LORD, ſo ſhall ye ſay unto him, Thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael concerning the words which thou haſt heard, 27 Becauſe thine heart was tender, and thou didſt humble thy ſelf before God when thou heardeſt his words againſt this place, and againſt the inhabitants thereof, and humbledſt thy ſelf before me, and didſt rend thy clothes, and weep before me; I have even heard thee alſo, ſaith the LORD.

28 Behold, I will gather thee to thy fathers, and thou ſhalt be gathered to thy grave in peace, neither ſhall thine eyes ſee all the evil that I will bring upon this place, and upon the inhabitants of the ſame. So they brought the king word again.

29 * Then the king ſent, and gathered together all the elders of Judah and Jeruſalem.
* 2 Kings, 23. 1.

30 And the king went up into the houſe of the LORD, and all the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, and the prieſts, and the Levites, and all the people † great and ſmall: and he read in their ears all the words of the book of the covenant, that was found in the houſe of the LORD.

31 And the king ſtood in his place, and made a covenant before the LORD, to walk after the LORD, and to keep his commandments, and his teſtimonies, and his ſtatutes, with all his heart, and with all his ſoul, to perform the words of the covenant which are written in this book.

32 And he cauſed all that were † preſent in Jeruſalem and Benjamin * to ſtand to it b. And the inhabitants of Jeruſalem did according to the covenant of God i, the God of their fathers.
† Heb. found. * Deut. 25. 8.

He cauſed them to engage themſelves by an Oath or Covenant, That they would obſerve and obey the Laws of God, as his godly Predeceſſors had formerly done, and which indeed they were before obliged to do. i They complied with God's, and the King's Command, as to the outward Acts of God's Worſhip, though not with an upright heart, as appears by the Hiſtory.

33 And Joſiah took away all the abominations out of all the countreys that pertained to the children of Iſrael, and made all that were preſent in Iſrael to ſerve, even to ſerve the LORD their God. And all his days they departed not † from following the LORD, the God of their fathers.

Joſiah keepeth a ſolemn paſſover, 1——19. He provoketh Pharaoh-Necho, and is ſlain at Megiddo, 20——24. Lamentations for Joſiah, 25——27.

MOreover, * Joſiah kept a paſſover unto the LORD in Jeruſalem: and they killed the paſſover on the * fourteenth day of the firſt month.
* 2 Kings, 23. 21, 22. * Exo. 12. 6

2 And he ſet the prieſts in their charges, and encouraged them to the ſervice of the houſe of the LORD.

3 And ſaid unto the Levites that taught all Iſrael, which were holy a unto the LORD, Put the holy ark in the houſe b which Solomon the ſon of David king of Iſrael did build: * it ſhall not be a burden upon your ſhoulders c: ſerve now the LORD your God, and his people Iſrael.
* 1 Chron. 23. 26.

a Or, and which were holy. b In the Temple: Or, in the Holy of Holies. Whence, it may ſeem, it had been removed, either 1. by ſome of the Wicked and Idolatrous Kings of Judah, poſſibly by Joſiah's Father Amon; which peradventure may be implied by that expreſſion, ch. 33. 23. Amon treſpaſſed more and more, i. e. more than he or his Father Manaſſeh had done, which ſeems to point at ſome very enormous Crime committed by him. Or, 2. By Joſiah's Order, That the Temple might be throughly repaired, both in the Holy place, and in the Moſt Holy place, which ſome of the Idolatrous Kings of Judah, it may be, had defaced or defiled; and therefore it was to be ſearched in order to its Reparation; and to that end it might ſeem fit to remove the Ark: And upon this occaſion Hilkiah might find the Original Book of the Law, which was written by the hands of Moſes, and by God's Command was laid beſide the Ark, and upon the removal of the Ark was eaſily diſcovered. c Or, that it might not be a burden, &c. So theſe words are to be joyned with the former, as the Reaſon why Solomon built this Houſe, that the Ark might have a conſtant and fixed Habitation, and not need to be carried from place to place upon their Shoulders, as it had been done whilſt it was in the Tabernacle. And withal, this is mentioned as an Argument to quicken them to the more diligent Service of God in their preſent work, becauſe they were freed from that troubleſome part of their Office which lay upon their Fore-fathers.

4 And prepare your ſelves by the * houſes of your fathers, after your courſes, according to the * writing of David king of Iſrael, and according to the * writing of Solomon his ſon.
* 1 Chron. 9. 10. * 1 Chr. 23. & 24. & 25. & 26. * Ch. 8. 14.

5 And ſtand d in the place e, according to the diviſions of † the families of the fathers || of your brethren † the people, and after the diviſion of the families of the Levites f.
† Heb. the houſe of the fathers. || Or, for your brethren. † Heb. the ſons of the people.

d Or, miniſter, as that word is frequently uſed. e i. e. In the Court of the Prieſts, which is ſo called elſewhere, as hath been noted before. f i. e. According to the ſeveral Families both of the People, whom he calls their Brethren, leſt they ſhould deſpiſe them, or grudge to ſerve them, and of the Levites. For the Paſſover was to be eaten by the ſeveral Families according to their numbers, Exod. 12. 3. And therefore he commands theſe perſons, that when the Paſchal Lambs were brought to them to be killed, as they were, v. 7, 8, 9. they might ſo order the matter, that they might be diſtributed to the ſeveral Families, whether of the Levitical or other Tribes.

6 So kill the paſſover, and * ſanctifie your ſelves, and prepare your brethren g, that they may do according to the word of the LORD, by the hand of Moſes.
* Ch. 29. 5, 15. & 30. 3, 15. Ezr. 6. 20.

g By purifying them and quickning them to fit themſelves for ſo great and ſolemn a Work.

7 And Joſiah † gave to the people of the flock, lambs and kids h, all for the paſſover-offerings, for all that were preſent, to the number of thirty thouſand, and three thouſand bullocks i: theſe were of the kings ſubſtance.

h For either of theſe might be uſed for the Paſchal-offering, Exod. 12. 5. i Which were to be offered after the Lambs, upon the ſeveral days of the Feaſt of Unleavened Bread.

8 And his princes k † gave willingly unto the people, to the prieſts and to the Levites l: Hilkiah, and Zechariah, and Jehiel, rulers of the houſe of God m, gave unto the prieſts for the paſſover-offerings, two thouſand and ſix hundred ſmall cattel, and five hundred oxen.

k Not the Political, but Eccleſiaſtical Princes, or the Chief of the Prieſts and Levites, whoſe Names here follow. l For the uſe of any of the Families of any of them, as need ſhould be. For they ſuppoſed the 30000 which the King had given were not ſufficient for all the Families. Or, the King gave his Cattel to the People only, or principally, for they only are mentioned for that Gift, v. 7. And therefore theſe perſons here named give their Cattel not only to the People, but alſo to the Prieſts and to the Levites, as it is here expreſſed. And the Levites being not yet ſufficiently provided for, ſome of their Brethren, named v. 9. gave 5000 more peculiarly unto the Levites, as is there ſaid. m For ſo they were; Hilkiah being the High-Prieſt, and the other the two Chief Prieſts, of the two Lines of Eleazar and Ithamar, who many times were to officiate in the High-Prieſt's ſtead, and were in Power and Dignity next to him; and were in ſome ſort Joint-Commiſſioners with him in Ruling the Affairs of the Temple.

9 Conaniah alſo, and Shemajah, and Nethaneel his brethren, and Haſhabiah, and Jehiel, and Jozabad, chief of the Levites, † gave unto the Levites for paſſover-offerings, five thouſand ſmall cattel, and five hundred oxen.

10 So the ſervice was prepared, and the prieſts ſtood in their places, and the Levites in their courſes, according to the kings commandment.

11 And they killed the paſſover, and the prieſts

* See Ch. 29. 34. ſprinkled the blood from their hand, and the Levites * flayed them n.

n Which they did, though properly it belonged to the Prieſts, becauſe the Prieſts, who were Sanctified, were not ſufficient for that Work, there being ſo many thouſands of the Cattel; and they were fully employed in the killing of the Sacrifices and the ſprinkling of the Blood, which was more properly the Prieſt's work than the other.

12 And they removed the burnt-offerings o, that they might give according to the diviſions of the families of the people, to offer unto the LORD p, as it is written * in the book of Moſes: and ſo did they with the oxen q. *Lev. 3. 3.

o i. e. Thoſe Cattel which were to be offered for Burnt-offerings, to wit, ſome of the leſſer Cattel; for theſe alſo might be offered as Burnt-offerings, Levit. 1. 10. And hence it may ſeem that all theſe ſmall Cattel were not given to the People to be eaten by them for their Paſchal-Lambs, but that ſome of them were to be offered as burnt-offerings for the People. And theſe they put apart by themſelves, partly leſt they ſhould be confounded with them which were for another uſe; and partly, that they might not be hindred from that which was their preſent and more immediate work, as it follows, that they might give, to wit, the Paſchal-lambs or Kids. p Theſe words may belong either 1. to the more remote words, the burnt-offerings, the other words being to be put within a Parentheſis, or there being a trajection in the words, which is frequent in Scripture, and which is here obſerved by ſome learned Interpreters. Or, 2. to the laſt words, and to the Paſchal-lambs, which they were firſt to offer to the Lord, by killing them and ſprinkling the Blood, as was noted before, and then to be given to the People; though the giving be here mentioned before the offering, ſuch Tranſpoſitions being uſual in Scripture and other Authors. q To wit, as they did with the leſſer Cattel, of which ſee the firſt Note on this Verſe. They removed thoſe Oxen which were to be offered as Burnt-offerings, from thoſe which were to be offered as Peace-offerings.

*Exod. 12. 8, 9. 13 And they * roſted the paſſover with fire, according to the ordinance: but the other holy offerings r ſod they in pots, and in caldrons, and in pans, and † divided them ſpeedily among all the people. † Heb. made them run.

r Thoſe from which the Burnt-offerings were removed, v. 12. to wit, the Peace-offerings, part of which fell to the ſhare of the Offerer, who was Joſiah, and by his Gift to the People.

14 And afterward they made ready s for themſelves, and for the prieſts: becauſe the prieſts the ſons of Aaron were buſied in offering of burnt-offerings, and the fat until night: therefore the Levites prepared for themſelves, and for the prieſts the ſons of Aaron.

s To wit, the Paſchal-lambs, and their part of the Peace-offerings.

15 And the ſingers the ſons of Aſaph, were in their † place, according to the * commandment of David, and Aſaph, and Heman, and Jeduthun, the kings ſeer: and the porters * waited at every gate; they might not depart from their ſervice; for their brethren the Levites prepared for them. † Heb. ſtation. *1 Chr. 25. 1, &c. *1 Chr. 9. 17, 18. & 26. 14, &c.

16 So all the ſervice of the LORD was prepared the ſame day, to keep the paſſover, and to offer burnt-offerings upon the altar of the LORD, according to the commandment of king Joſiah.

† Heb. found. 17 And the children of Iſrael, that were † preſent, kept the paſſover at that time, and the feaſt of unleavened bread, ſeven days.

* 2 Kings, 23. 22. 18 And * there was no paſſover like to that, kept in Iſrael, from the days of Samuel the prophet: neither did all the kings of Iſrael keep ſuch a paſſover as Joſiah kept, and the prieſts and the Levites, and all Judah and Iſrael that were preſent, and the inhabitants of Jeruſalem.

19 In the eighteenth year of the reign of Joſiah was this paſſover kept.

20 * After all this, when Joſiah had prepared the † temple t, Necho king of Egypt came up to fight againſt Carchemiſh u by Euphrates, and Joſiah went out againſt him. * 2 Kings, 23. 29. Jer. 46. 2. † Heb. houſe.

t When he and his People hoped that God was reconciled, and the Foundation of a ſolid and laſting Happineſs was laid, their hopes were quickly blaſted. So much are Men oft miſtaken in their Judgments about the Deſigns of God's Counſel and Providence. u Which the Aſſyrian had lately taken from the King of Egypt; of which he boaſts, Iſa. 10. 9.

21 But he ſent Embaſſadors to him, ſaying, What have I to do with thee, thou king of Judah? I come not againſt thee this day, but againſt the † houſe wherewith I have war x: for God y commanded me to make haſt: forbear thee from meddling with God, who is with me, that he deſtroy thee not. † Heb. the houſe of my war.

x Heb. againſt the houſe or family of my war; i. e. Againſt the Houſe of the King of Aſſyria, between whom and me there is War. y Either his Falſe God by their lying Prieſts: Or, the True God either, 1. by ſome Prophet: For God's Prophets uſed ſometimes to deliver or ſend Commands from God to Heathen Kings. Though it is not probable either that Pharaoh would regard the Command of the true God: Or, that a Prophet of the Lord would not acquaint Joſiah with this Meſſage: or that Joſiah would oppoſe Pharaoh in a War undertaken by God's Command. Or, rather 2. by a Dream, as God ſpoke to another Heathen King, Abimilech, Gen. 20. 3. Though it is not impoſſible that he pretended this for his own Advantage, that Joſiah might not aſſiſt his Enemies.

22 Neverthele ſs, Joſiah would not turn his face from him z, but * diſguiſed himſelf a, that he might fight with him, and hearkened not unto the words of Necho, from the mouth of God b, and came to fight in the valley of Megiddo. *So 1 Kin. 22. 30.

z Being peradventure incouraged to do ſo by a Miſinterpretation of that Promiſe made to him, ch. 34. 28. Thou ſhalt be gathered to thy grave in peace. Thus God over-rules the Errors and Miſcarriages of Men to the Accompliſhment of his own Counſels. a Changed his Habit, that he might not give his Enemies the Advantage of aiming at his Perſon, which he wiſely thought they would do, that being a likely courſe to end their trouble, as indeed it proved. b Either 1. which Pharaoh ſent to him in the Name of God, or as coming from God's Mouth. Or, rather 2. which Pharaoh received from the Mouth of God, who was pleaſed ſome way or other to impart his Mind to him; and which Pharaoh acquainted him with by the Command of God. And therefore Joſiah is here blamed for not hearkening to this Meſſage. Although, if he ſinned herein, it was only a ſin of Ignorance, for he did not know that God had ſpoken this to Pharaoh, and was not bound to believe his Teſtimony, which he had good reaſon to ſuſpect in this matter. Yet, methinks, he ought ſo far to have regarded it, as to have enquired the Mind of God about it; which he neglected to do, and therefore he cannot be wholly excuſed, and is here taxed for it.

23 And the archers ſhot at king Joſiah: and the king ſaid to his ſervants, Have me away: for I am ſore † wounded. † Heb. made ſick.

24 His ſervants therefore took him out of that chariot, and put him in the ſecond chariot that he had: and they brought him to Jeruſalem, and he died, and was buried ‖ in one of the ſepulchres of his fathers. And * all Judah and Jeruſalem mourned for Joſiah. ‖Or, among the ſepulchres. *Zech. 12. 11.

25 And Jeremiah lamented for Joſiah, and all the ſinging men, and the ſinging women ſpake to Joſiah in their lamentations to this day c, and made an ordinance in Iſrael, and behold, they are written in the lamentations d.

c In all their ſucceeding Lamentations for their publick Calamities, and for the ruine of their City, and Temple, and State, and Church, they remembred Joſiah's death as their firſt and moſt fatal Blow, and as that which opened the Flood-Gates to all their following Miſeries, and it was ordained that they ſhould do ſo, as the next words intimate. d Either in that Canonical Book of Jeremiah's Lamentations, or in ſome other Volume of mournful Ditties, made by divers Perſons upon occaſion of their following Calamities, which is ſince loſt.

26 Now the reſt of the acts of Joſiah, and his † goodneſs e, according to that which was written in the law of the LORD, † Heb. kindneſſes. Ch. 32. 32.

e Either 1. his Piety towards God and his Houſe. Or, 2. his Benignity, Clemency, and Kindneſs towards all his Subjects, being of a moſt tender Diſpoſition and Carriage both towards God, ch. 34. 27. and towards Men. But the former ſeems principally intended, becauſe it beſt agrees both with the Hiſtory of Joſiah, which is wholly taken up with the former, and ſpeaks little or nothing of the latter, and with the following words; and it doth not diſagree with the Hebrew word heſed, which though it doth moſt frequently expreſs kindneſs to Men, yet ſometimes it notes a Man's Piety to God and his Houſe, as is manifeſt from Nehem. 13. 14.

27 And his deeds firſt and laſt, behold, they are written in the book of the kings of Iſrael and Judah.

g Who had required and forced him to ſwear Fealty and conſtant Obedience to him by the True God, whom he had ſerved, and whom he called upon to be a Witneſs againſt him if he broke his Oath. So his Rebellion was aggravated with Perjury, and horrid Contempt of God. Compare Ezek. 17. 18. h i. e. He added Obſtinacy and Incorrigibleneſs to his Sins.

14 Moreover, all the chief of the prieſts, and the people tranſgreſſed very much i, after all the abominations of the heathen, and polluted the houſe of the LORD which he had hallowed in Jeruſalem.

i They were univerſally corrupt; and therefore God juſtly brought upon them a general Deſtruction.

15 * And the LORD God of their fathers ſent to them † by his meſſengers, riſing up || betimes, and ſending k; becauſe he had compaſſion on his people, and on his dwelling place:

* Jer. 25. 3, 4. & 35. 15.
† Heb. by the hand of his meſſengers.
|| that is, continually and carefully.

k i. e. Sending them early and diligently, as a careful Houſeholder, who riſeth betimes about his Buſineſs, and purſues it till Night come. God ſent them many Prophets and Meſſages, ſome at the very beginning of their Apoſtacy, and others afterward, as they proceeded in their Impiety, until the very day of their Captivity.

16 But they mocked the meſſengers of God l, and deſpiſed his words, and miſuſed his prophets m, until the wrath of the LORD aroſe againſt his people, till there was no † remedy n.

l Of which ſee Inſtances, Ezek. 11. 3. & 20. 49. m Impriſoning and Perſecuting them as they did Jeremy. Or, ſeduced themſelves by his Prophets, i. e. By their Prophecies, which they perverted or miſconſtrued. An Eminent Inſtance we have in this, That becauſe Jeremy propheſied that Zedekiah ſhould be led to Babylon, Jer. 32. 5. and Ezekiel, That he ſhould not ſee Babylon, Ezek. 12. 13. Therefore they believed neither, as the Hebrew Writers relate. n Becauſe the People would not repent, and God would not pardon them.

17 * Therefore he brought upon them the king of the Chaldees, who ſlew their young men with the ſword, in the houſe of their ſanctuary o, and had no compaſſion upon young man or maiden, old man, or him that ſtooped for age: he gave them all into his hand.

* 2 Kings, 25. 1, &c.

o Either in Jeruſalem, which was the dwelling place of God's Sanctuary: Or, in the houſe which was their Sanctuary; as the River of Euphrates, Gen. 15. 18. is the River which is Euphrates. It is probable they killed them in the very Courts and Houſe of God, to which ſome of them fled for Refuge, ſuch places being eſteemed Sacred and Inviolable by the Heathens themſelves.

18 And all the veſſels of the houſe of God, great and ſmall, and the treaſures of the houſe of the LORD, and the treaſures of the king, and of his princes: all theſe he brought to Babylon.

19 And they burnt the houſe of God, and brake down the wall of Jeruſalem, and burnt all the palaces thereof with fire, and deſtroyed all the goodly veſſels thereof.

20 And † them that had eſcaped from the ſword, carried he away to Babylon: where they were ſervants to him and his ſons, until the reign of the kingdom of Perſia.

21 To fulfil the word of the LORD by the mouth of * Jeremiah, until the land * || had enjoyed her ſabbaths p: for as long as ſhe lay deſolate ſhe kept ſabbath, to fulfill threeſcore and ten years q.

22 * Now, in the firſt year of Cyrus king of Perſia r, (that the word of the LORD ſpoken by the mouth of * Jeremiah might be accompliſhed) the LORD ſtirred up the ſpirit of Cyrus king of Perſia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdoms, and put it alſo in writing, ſaying,

* Ezr. 1. 1.
* Jer. 25. 12, 13. & 29, 10.

r This, and the next verſe, are repeated in the beginning of the next Book, where they will be more fitly explained.

23 Thus ſaith Cyrus king of Perſia, All the kingdoms of the earth hath the LORD God of heaven given me, and He hath charged me to build him an houſe in Jeruſalem, which is in Judah; who is there among you of all his people? the LORD his God be with him, and let him go up.

EZRA.

THat this Book of Ezra is part of the Canonical Scripture is evident, partly from the Teſtimony of the Jewiſh Church, to which were committed the Oracles of GOD, Rom. 3. 2. who alſo did carefully keep them, and faithfully tranſmit them to us, and are not once charged either by Chriſt or his Apoſtles with breach of that Truſt; and partly by the unanimous conſent of all, both Jews and Chriſtians, at this day. And that Ezra was the Writer of this Book, is alſo, and ever was, the opinion of the Jews, who had the beſt means of knowing this, and is moſt agreeable to his quality; for he was the Son, or Grand-Son (as the word is elſewhere uſed) of Seraiah, Ezra 7. 1. who was the High Prieſt, 2 Kings, 25. 18. 1 Chron. 6. 14. and he was a ready Scribe in the Law of Moſes, Ezra 7. 6. and endowed with a more than ordinary meaſure of God's Spirit, as is evident from this Book; and was himſelf an Eye-witneſs of theſe Tranſactions. In his time alſo there lived divers other holy Men of GOD, as Daniel, and Nehemiah, and Mordecai, and Zorobabel, and Joſhuah. Which makes that probable which the Jews report, That theſe Prophets, and other Holy and Learned Men, did review the Canonical Books of the Old-Teſtament, and added here and there ſome few Paſſages in the Hiſtorical Books, and digeſted them into that Order in which now we have them in our Hebrew-Bibles: This being a Work moſt ſuitable to the Prudence and Piety, and ſacred Function of theſe Perſons, and to the preſent Eſtate of the Jewiſh Nation, who had been long in Captivity in Babylon, where it was to be feared that many of them were ignorant or corrupt in the Principles of Religion, and who were yet in a broken condition, and likely to be expoſed to farther calamities and diſperſions; which alſo might be ſignified to ſome of them; and it was ſuitable alſo to that care which the wiſe and gracious God hath ever uſed for the guidance of his Church, according to their ſeveral occaſions and neceſſities.

CHAP. I.

Cyrus's Proclamation to Iſrael for building the Lord's Temple at Jeruſalem, 1——4. The chief of the People prepare for their return, 5, 6. Cyrus reſtores the Veſſels of the Temple to Sheſhbazzar Prince of Judah, 7, 8. Their number, 9——11.

* 2 Chron. 36. 22. Jer. 25. 12. & 29. 10.

1 NOW in the firſt year of Cyrus king of Perſia a, (that the word of the LORD * by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled) the LORD ſtirred up the ſpirit of Cyrus b king of Perſia, that he † made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it alſo in writing, ſaying, a To wit, Of his Empire or Reign in Babylon: For he had now been King of Perſia for many Years. b i. e. Put into him a Mind and Will to this work.

2 Thus ſaith Cyrus king of Perſia, The LORD God of Heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth c, and he hath * charged me d to build him an houſe at Jeruſalem, which is in Judah.

c To wit, in thoſe parts of the World; all that vaſt Empire formerly under the Aſſyrians and Babylonians. The Gift of which he aſcribes to the great God, either by virtue of thoſe common Notions which were in the Minds of the Heathens, who though they worſhipped Idols, yet many of them did acknowledge a true and ſupream God: Or by that clear and expreſs Prophecy of Iſaiah concerning him, Iſa. 44. 28. & 45. 1, 13. ſo long before he was born; which Prophecy the Jews had doubtleſly ſhewed him, which alſo carried a great evidence with it, eſpecially to him who was ſo highly gratified and incouraged by it: or by a ſpecial Illumination which God vouchſafed to him, as he did to Nebuchadnezzar and Darius, and ſome others of the Heathen Princes. d Either by his Prophets, Iſaiah formerly, or Daniel now: or by an inward ſuggeſtion to his Mind.

3 Who is there among you of all his People d? his God be with him e, and let him go up to Jeruſalem, which is in Judah, and build the houſe of the LORD God of Iſrael, (he is the God) which is in Jeruſalem f.

d To wit, of Iſrael. A material clauſe; by vertue of which they juſtly refuſed the help of thoſe Aliens who pretended to joyn with them in the building, ch. 4. 2, 3. e Let his God help him, as I alſo ſhall do. f Or only, in Jeruſalem, as it is in the Hebrew. So it notes the place where he allows and requires them to build it.

4 And whoſoever remaineth g, in any place where he ſojourneth, let the men of his place † help him h with ſilver, and with gold i, and with goods, and with beaſts, beſides the free-will-offering for the houſe of his God that is in Jeruſalem.

g Who, when his Brethren were gone up, was deſirous to go with them, but forced to tarry there for want of neceſſaries for his Journey. h I require my Officers to take care that they may be ſupplied, either by the voluntary Contributions of the People; or by a moderate Tax to be laid either only upon thoſe Jews who were reſolved to ſtay, or upon the Gentiles alſo; which the Perſian Monarchs being abſolute, had a Power to do; and which was the more reaſonable, becauſe the King himſelf ſubmitted to it, and bore a great part of the burden; and becauſe it was for the Houſe of that great God to whom they all owed their preſent Peace and great Felicity. i Which upon this occaſion I give you leave to tranſport.

5 Then roſe up the chief of the fathers of Judah and Benjamin i, and the prieſts and the Levites, with all them whoſe ſpirit God had raiſed to go up k, to build the houſe of the LORD which is in Jeruſalem.

i And with them ſome of other Tribes, as appears from 1 Chron. 9. 3. but theſe only are named, becauſe they were moſt conſiderable for number and quality. k To whom God had given that pious Diſpoſition, and that Fortitude and Reſolution which it required to break through their difficulties, which were great and many, ſuch as their preſent penury, the length, and hazards, and coſtlineſs of the Journey, their Settlements in comfortable Habitations, their diſperſion in ſeveral and diſtant places, which hindred the Conjunction of their Counſels and Actions, the multitude of their Enemies, the actual poſſeſſion of their Country by others, the great backwardneſs of many of their own Brethren to go with them, and many other diſcouragements.

6 And all they that were about them, || ſtrengthened their hands l with veſſels of ſilver, with gold, with goods, and with beaſts, and with precious things, beſides all that was willingly offered.

l Either becauſe they had embraced, or at leaſt favoured the Jewiſh Religion, concerning which they were inſtructed by the Iſraelites that had now for a long time dwelt among them: or rather, that they might hereby gratifie the King's humour, and purchaſe his favour: for they perceived him to be hearty and forward in the work.

* 2 Kings 24. 13. 2 Chr. 36. 7.

7 Alſo Cyrus the king brought forth the veſſels of the houſe of the LORD, * which Nebuchad-nezzar had brought forth out of Jeruſalem m, and had put them in the houſe of his gods:

m Obj. Theſe are ſaid to have been cut in pieces, 2 Kings, 24. 13. how then are they here returned? Anſw. That Hebrew word uſed 2 Kings, 24. 13. ſignifies not ſo properly to cut in pieces, as to cut off, as from the uſe of the word, Deut. 25. 12. 2 Sam. 4. 12. 2 Kin. 18. 16. Jer. 9. 26. And theſe veſſels when they were taken away from the Temple, might very well be ſaid to be cut off from it, becauſe they had for ſo long time been ſo conſtantly, and as it were, inſeparably united to it, and kept in it. In like manner, the meat-offering, and drink-offering are ſaid to be cut off from the houſe of the Lord, Joel 1. 9. And it is very improbable, that they ſhould deface and cut in pieces theſe magnificent Veſſels which they could ſo eaſily tranſport whole to Babylon. Although, if ſome of the larger of them had been cut into two or more parts, yet the parts of them might be delivered to the Jews, who could, without great difficulty, reſtore them to their former Unity and Form.

8 Even thoſe did Cyrus king of Perſia bring forth by the hand of Mithredath the treaſurer, and numbered them n unto * Sheſhbazzar o the prince of Judah p.

* See Chap. 5. 14.

n i. e. He cauſed them to be delivered to the Jews by number. o i. e. Zorobabel, as appears by comparing ch. 3. 8. with 5. 16. to whom the Perſians, or rather the Chaldeans, had given this name of Sheſhbazzar, as they gave other names to Daniel, and his companions, Dan. 1. 7. p And the Captain and Governour of theſe returning Jews, chap. 2. 2. So the Scepter is not yet departed from Judah.

9 And this is the number of them: thirty chargers of gold, a thouſand chargers of ſilver, nine and twenty knives q:

q Large Knives uſed in the killing of the Sacrifices, which are here mentioned, becauſe the Hafts of them were made of, or covered with Gold or Silver.

10 Thirty baſons of gold, ſilver baſons of a ſecond ſort r, four hundred and ten: and other veſſels a thouſand s.

r The firſt or chief were of Gold, and theſe of Silver are called the ſecond, or next to them of worth and uſe. s He ſpeaks of Veſſels of a middle ſize; for great and ſmall were 5400, as it follows here. Or, as ſome render it, other Veſſels by thouſands: they were not diſtinctly numbered according to their various forms and uſes, but were promiſcuouſly put together by thouſands.

11 All the veſſels of gold, and of ſilver, were five thouſand and four hundred. All theſe did Sheſhbazzar bring up with them of † the captivity, that were brought up from Babylon unto Jeruſalem.

CHAP. II.

The number of the People that returned, 1——35. and of the Prieſts, 36——39. of the Levites, 40. of the ſingers, 41. of the Porters, 42. of the Nethinims, 43——54. and of Solomons Servants, 55--60. Concerning the Prieſts that could not ſhew their Pedigree, 61——63. The whole number of them and their Subſtance, 64——67. Their Oblations, 68——70.

* Neh. 7. 6. &c.

NOW * theſe are the children of the province a that went up out of the captivity, of thoſe which had been carried away, whom Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon had carried away unto Babylon, and came again unto Jeruſalem and Judah, every one unto his city b; a i. e. The Iſraelites, called the Children of the Province, either 1. Of Babylon, of which Province we oft read, as ch. 7. 16. Dan. 2. 48. & 3. 1, 12, 30. called the Province by way of eminency; of which they are called Children, becauſe of their Birth and Habitation in it for a long time, it being uſual to call the Inhabitants of any City or place its Children. Or rather 2. Of Judæa, called a Province, ch. 5. 8. And he calls it thus emphatically to mind himſelf and his Brethren of that ſad Change which their Sins had made among them, that from an illuſtrious, independent, and formidable Kingdom, were fallen to be an obſcure, ſervile, and contemptible Province, firſt under the Chaldeans, and now under the Perſians. b Either unto thoſe Cities or Towns which belonged to their ſeveral Anceſtors. Or rather, to thoſe which were now allotted to them, and from this time poſſeſſed by them. For their former Cities were either demoliſhed, or poſſeſſed by other Perſons, which they were not now in a capacity of diſturbing.

c As for this Catalogue, it differs in ſome names and numbers from that Neh. 7. which might be from divers cauſes, partly becauſe ſeveral names were given to one and the ſame Perſon; and partly becauſe of the many Changes which might happen in the ſame Families between the time of the firſt making of this Catalogue by Ezra, and the making of it anew ſo many Years as that Catalogue Nehem. 7. was made after the former.

3 The children d of Paroſh e, two thouſand an hundred ſeventy and two.

d i. e. The Poſterity, as that word is for the moſt part, if not conſtantly taken in this Catalogue. e That deſcended either from Paroſh, or from that Family whereof Paroſh was the chief. And ſo for the reſt.

4 The children of Shephaliah, three hundred ſeventy and two.

5 The children of Arah, ſeven hundred ſeventy and five f.

f In Nehem. 7. 10. they were only 652. It ſeems 775 marched out of Babylon, or gave in their names that they would go; but ſome of them died, others changed their Minds, others were hindred by Sickneſs, or other Caſualties, happening to themſelves or near Relations; and ſo there came only 652 to Jeruſalem. And the like is to be ſaid in the like differences: which it ſuffices to hint once for all.

r To wit, Barzillai. Which name he preferred before that of his own Family, accounting it, as it ſeems, a greater Honour to be allied to ſo noble a Family, than to be a Prieſt of the Lord. But by this ambition he deprived himſelf of the honour and advantage of the Prieſthood, as it is here noted, v.62.

62 Theſe ſought their regiſter among thoſe that were reckoned by genealogy s, but they were not found: therefore † were they as polluted, put from the prieſthood. † Heb. they were polluted from the prieſthood.

s The Jews were generally very exact and careful in their Genealogies, partly from their own Choice and Intereſt, that they might preſerve the diſtinctions of the ſeveral Tribes and Families, which was neceſſary both to make out their Claims or Titles to Offices or Inheritances, which might belong to them by death, or otherwiſe, as here we ſee, and to govern themſelves thereby in the matter of Marriages, and ſome other things wherein the practice of ſome Laws required the knowledge of theſe things: and partly by the ſpecial Providence of God, that ſo it might be certainly known of what Tribe and Family the Meſſiah was born. For as they took care of all their Families, ſo doubtleſs they took a more punctual and ſingular care about the Royal Family, upon which all their hopes depended.

63 And the || Tirſhatha t ſaid unto them, that they ſhould not eat of the moſt holy things, till there ſtood up a prieſt with * Urim and with Thummim u. || Or, governor. * Exod.28.30.

t i. e. The Governour, to wit, Zerubbabel. Whence Nehemiah alſo is ſo called, Neh. 8.9. and 10.2. u That this point which could not be found out by any human ſkill or induſtry, might be determined by divine direction. Hereby it appears that the Urim and Thummim were loſt in the deſtruction of the City and Temple, tho' the Jews fed themſelves with hopes of recovering them, but in vain. Of the Urim and Thummim, ſee Exod. 28.30. Numb. 27. 21. 1 Sam. 23. 9.

Which either were of the other Tribes beſide Judah and Benjamin: or were ſuch as were ſuppoſed by themſelves and others to be Iſraelites, but could not prove their pedigree by their genealogies, and therefore could not be ſo punctually and particularly deſcribed, as the former.

And the Parents of theſe Perſons had taken care to inſtruct and exerciſe them as far as they could in this Art,both for Gods ſervice, and for their own benefit, when Jeruſalem and the Temple ſhould be rebuilt; which they knew would be done after Jeremiahs 70 years were expired.

66 Their horſes were ſeven hundred thirty and ſix: their mules two hundred forty and five:

67 Their camels four hundred thirty and five: their aſſes ſix thouſand and ſeven hundred and twenty.

68 And ſome of the chief of the fathers, when they came to the houſe of the LORD z that is at Jeruſalem, offered freely for the houſe of God to ſet it up in his place.

z i. e. To the ruins of the houſe; or to the place where that houſe ſtood.

*1 Chron. 26. 2.

69 They gave after their ability unto the * treaſure of the work, threeſcore and one thouſand drams of gold ‖, and five thouſand pound of ſilver, and one hundred prieſts garments.

‖ A dram of gold is ſuppoſed to be of the weight of the fourth part of a ſhekel, and of the value of a French Crown.

70 So the prieſts and the Levites, and ſome of the people, and the ſingers, and the porters, and the Nethinims, dwelt in their cities, and all Iſrael in their cities.

The Altar ſet up, 1——3. The Feaſt of the Tabernacle kept, 4. Their continual offerings, 5, 6. Workmen hired, 7. Prieſts and Levites are appointed to ſet forward the work, 8, 9. The foundation of the Temple is laid, with great joy and mourning, 12, 13.

AND when the ſeventh month was come a, and the children of Iſrael were in the cities, the people gathered themſelves together, as one man to Jeruſalem.

a Or rather, was coming, or drew near. For the Altar was ſet up after this time, v. 3. which yet was employed the firſt day of this month, v.6. This was a ſacred kind of month wherein there were divers Feſtivals, as appears from Lev. 23. for which the People had been preparing themſelves, and now came to Jeruſalem to the celebration of them.

‖ Or, Joſhua Hag.1.1. Zech.3.1. ‖ Called Zorobabel, Mat. 1. 12. Luke 3.27. called Salathiel. * Deut.12. 5.

2 Then ſtood up ‖ Jeſhua the ſon of Jozadak b, and his brethren the prieſts, and ‖ Zerubbabel, the ſon c of * Shealtiel, and his brethren, and built the altar d of the God of Iſrael, to offer burnt offerings thereon, as it is * written in the law of Moſes the man of God

b The High-Prieſt, c i. e. The grandſon: for he was the ſon of Pedaiah, 1 *Chron.*3.17, 18, 19. d Which was of more preſent and urgent neceſſity than the Temple, both to make atonement to God for all their ſins, and to obtain Gods aſſiſtance for the building of the Temple, and to ſtrengthen their own Hearts and Hands in that great work wherein they ſaw they ſhould have many Enemies.

3 And they ſet the altar upon his baſes, (for fear was upon them, becauſe of the people of thoſe countries) and they offered burnt-offerings thereon unto the LORD, even burnt-offerings morning and evening.

* Exod. 23.16. Numb. 29. 12,&c. † Heb. the matter of the day in his day.

4 They kept alſo the feaſt of tabernacles e, * as it is written,and * offered the daily burnt offerings f by number, according to the cuſtom,† as the duty of every day required;

e This ſeems to be mentioned Synecdochically for all the Solemnities of this Month, whereof this was the moſt eminent and moſt laſting. Otherwiſe it is not probable, that they would neglect the Day of Atonement which was ſo ſeverely enjoyned, Lev. 23. 27, 28, 29. and was ſo exceeding ſuitable to their preſent condition; ſee on v. 6. f Heb. Burnt-offerings day by day, i. e. Every day of that Feaſt they offered as many Sacrifices as were preſcribed; of which ſee *Numb.*29.13,&c.

5 And afterward offered the continual burnt-offering g, both of the new-moons, and of all the ſet-feaſts of the LORD, that were conſecrated h, and of every one that willingly offered a free-will offering unto the LORD.

g The Morning and Evening Sacrifice: of which ſee on Numb. 28.6. h i.e. Set apart for the ſolemn and holy Service of God.

† Heb. the temple of the Lord was not yet founded.

6 From the firſt day of the ſeventh month began they to offer burnt-offerings i unto the LORD: but † the foundation of the temple of the LORD was not yet laid.

i And the other Sacrifices which were to be offered with them upon that day, being the Feaſt of Trumpets, Numb. 29. 1, &c. Burnt-offerings are oft put for all Sacrifices, as hath been obſerved once and again. k Though it is probable they had done ſomething towards the removing of the rubbiſh, and preparing the way for it.

7 They gave money alſo unto the maſons, and to the ‖ carpenters, and meat, and drink, and oil, unto them of Zidon, and to them of Tyre, to bring cedar-trees from Lebanon to the ſea of * Joppa, according to the grant that they had of Cyrus king of Perſia.

8 Now in the ſecond year of their coming unto the houſe of God at Jeruſalem, in the ſecond month, began Zerubbabel the ſon of Shealtiel, and Jeſhua the ſon of Jozadak, and the remnant of their brethren the prieſts and the Levites and all they that were come out of the captivity unto Jeruſalem, and appointed the Levites from twenty years old and upward, to ſet forward the work of the houſe of the LORD.

9 Then ſtood Jeſhua l with his ſons, and his brethren, Kadmiel and his ſons, the ſons of ‖ Judah † together, to ſet forward the workmen m in the houſe of God: the ſons of Henadad, with their ſons and their brethren the Levites.

10 And when the builders laid the foundation of the temple of the LORD, they ſet the prieſts in their apparel with trumpets, and the Levites the ſons of Aſaph, with cymbals to praiſe the LORD, after † the * ordinance of David n king of Iſrael.

n Heb. By, or According to the hands of David, i. e. in ſuch manner, and with ſuch Pſalms, or Songs, and Inſtruments as God hath appointed by the Hands or Miniſtry of David.

* Exod. 15.21. 2 Chron. 7. 3.

11 And they * ſang together by courſe, in praiſing and giving thanks unto the LORD; becauſe he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever towards Iſrael: And all the people ſhouted with a great ſhout,when they praiſed the LORD, becauſe the foundation of the houſe of the LORD was laid.

12 But many of the prieſts and Levites, and chief of the fathers, who were ancient men,that had ſeen the firſt houſe o, when the foundation of this houſe was laid before their eyes, wept with a loud voice p; and many ſhouted for joy:

o Which divers of them might very well do; becauſe it was deſtroyed not quite Sixty years ago, as is manifeſt from 2 Kings 25. 2 Chron. 36. & Ezek. 40.1. p Partly becauſe of the poor and ſmall preparations made for this in compariſon of what was made for the other Temple: partly becauſe this Temple was diveſted and deſtitute of thoſe things which were the principal Glory of the former Temple, to wit, the Ark, and the Urim and Thummim, &c. partly becauſe theſe foundation-ſtones were far inferiour to the former, both for quantity and price, 1 Kings 7.9,10. and partly becauſe theſe foundations were of a far narrower compaſs than the former: for although the foundations of this Houſe of the Lord, ſtrictly ſo called, were at leaſt of equal largeneſs with thoſe of the former, by comparing 1 Kings 6.2. and Ezra.6.1,2,3. yet the foundations of the whole building belong to the firſt Temple, and adjoyning to it, or in the courts of it, were far larger than theſe.

13 So that the people could not diſcern the noiſe of the ſhout of joy, from the noiſe of the weeping of the people: for the people ſhouted with a loud ſhout, and the noiſe was heard afar off.

NOw when the adverſaries of Judah and Benjamin a, heard that † the children of the captivity built the temple unto the LORD God of Iſrael:

a The Samaritans, as appears from *v.*2,10.

2 Then they came to Zerubbabel, and to the chief of the fathers, and ſaid unto them, let us build with you b; for we ſeek your God, as ye do c, and we do ſacrifice unto him, ſince the days of Eſarhaddon king of Aſſur d, which brought us up hither.

b This they ſpake not ſincerely, as appears from their diſpoſition and deſigns diſcovered in the following Hiſtory, but that by this conjunction with them they might pry into their counſels, and thereby get an opportunity to find ſome matter or pretences of Accuſation againſt them. c For ſo they did, though in a mungrel way: ſee 2 Kings 17. 26, &c. d Son of Sennacherib, and after him King of Aſſyria, 2 Kings 19.37. Who brought or ſent theſe perſons hither, Either 1. in the days of Salmanaſar, who lived and reigned in Aſſyria but eight years before Eſarhaddons Reign; and ſo Eſarhaddon might be one of his moſt eminent Commanders, and the Man by whom that Colony was ſent. Or, 2. in the Reign of Eſarhaddon, who ſent this ſecond Colony to ſupply and ſtrengthen the firſt.

3 But Zerubbabel, and Jeſhua, and the reſt of the chief of the fathers of Iſrael,ſaid unto them,† Ye have nothing to do with us e, to build an houſe unto our God, but we our ſelves together f will build unto the LORD God of Iſrael, as king Cyrus the king of Perſia hath commanded us.

e As being of another Nation and Religion,and therefore not concerned in Cyrus his Grant, which was confined to the Iſraelites and to the worſhippers of the true God. f i. e. Who are united together by Cyrus his Grant in this Work. Or, alone, as this word is ſometimes uſed, as Job 34.29. Pſal.33.15. Hoſ.11.7.

4 Then the people of the land g weakned the hands of the people of Judah, and troubled them in building h:

5 And hired counſellers againſt them i, to fruſtrate their purpoſe, all the days of Cyrus king of Perſia k, even until the reign of Darius king of Perſia l.

i Who by their Artifices and Intereſts in the Perſian Court, ſhould give ſome ſtop to their Work. k For though Cyrus ſtill favoured the Jews, yet he was then diverted by his Wars, and his Son Cambyſes was left his Vice-Roy, who was a very wicked Prince, and an Enemy to the Jews and their Religion. l Heb. and until, &c. i. e. Not only in the Reign of Cyrus, but alſo of Cambyſes, and of the Magician, after whom was this Darius: of whom ſee chap. 5, & 6.

6 And in the reign of † Ahaſuerus m, in the beginning of his reign, wrote they unto him an accuſation againſt the inhabitants of Judah and Jeruſalem.

m Which is ſuppoſed by divers learned men to be from this time a common Name to divers ſucceeding Kings of Perſia. And this makes it ſeem doubtful who this was. This was either 1. Xerxes the fourth and rich King of Perſia, as he is called Dan. 11. 2. Or rather 2. Cambyſes the Son and Succeſſor of Cyrus, as may appear 1. Becauſe none but he and Smerdis were between Cyrus and this Darius. 2. Becauſe Cambyſes was known to be no friend to the Jewiſh Nation nor Religion; and therefore it is very improbable that theſe crafty, and malicious, and induſtrious Enemies of the Jews would omit ſo great an opportunity when it was put into the their hands.

7 And in the days of Artaxerxes n wrote ‖ Biſhlam, Mithridah, Tabeel, and the reſt of their † companies, unto Artaxerxes king of Perſia; and the writing of the letter was written in the Syrian tongue, and interpreted o in the Syrian tongue.

n Either 1. Artaxerxes, the Son of Xerxes. Or, 2. Smerdis the Magician. Or rather, 3. the ſame Cambyſes, called by his Chaldee Name Ahaſhuerus, v. 6. and here by his Perſian name Artaxerxes: By which name he is here called in the Inſcription of this Letter, becauſe ſo he was called by himſelf and others in the Letters written either by him, or to him. o Or, expoſed or declared. The ſenſe is, It was written in the Chaldee or Syrian Language, and in the Syrian Character: for ſometimes the Chaldee or Syrian words are written in the Hebrew Character, as Hebrew words are oft written in an Engliſh Character.

8 Rehum the chancellour,and Shimſhai the ‖ ſcribe, wrote a letter againſt Jeruſalem to Artaxerxes the king in this ſort.

9 Then wrote Rehum the chancellour, and Shimſhai the ſcribe,and the reſt of their † companions; the Dinaites, the Apharſathchites, the Tarpelites, the Apharſites, the Archevites, the Babylonians, the Suſanchites, the Dehavites, and the Elamites p.

p Several People thus called from the ſeveral places of that vaſt Aſſyrian Empire, from whence they were fetched, and who were united together into one Body, and ſent as one Colony by the Aſſyrian Monarchs into theſe parts.

10 And the reſt of the nations, whom the great and noble Aſnappar q brought over, and ſet in the cities of Samaria: and the reſt that are on this ſide the river r, † and at ſuch a time s.

11 This is the copy of the letter that they ſent unto him, even unto Artaxerxes the king; Thy ſervants,the men on this ſide the river, and at ſuch a time.

12 Be it known unto the king, that the Jews which came up from thee to us, are come unto Jeruſalem, building the rebellious and the bad city, and have ‖ ſet up the walls thereof t, and † joined the foundations.

t Either 1. The Jews had begun to build or repair ſome part of the Walls which Nebuchadnezzar had left, which they aggravate in this manner. Or, 2. This is a meer fiction, which being confidently affirmed, they thought would eaſily find belief with a King whoſe Heart and Ears they poſſeſſed by their hired Counſellours, and others of their Friends, or the Enemies of the Jews.

13 Be it known now unto the king, that if this city be built, and the walls ſet up again, then will they not † pay toll, tribute, and cuſtom, and ſo thou ſhalt endamage the ‖ revenue of the kings.

16 We certifie the king, that if this city be built again, and the walls thereof ſet up: by this means thou ſhalt have no portion on this ſide the river.

17 Then ſent the king an anſwer unto Rehum the chancellor, and to Shimſhai the ſcribe, and to the reſt of their † companions that dwell in Samaria,and unto the reſt beyond the river, Peace, and at ſuch a time.

18 The letter which ye ſent unto us hath been plainly read before me.

19 And † I commanded,and ſearch hath been made, and it is found, that this city of old time hath † made inſurrection againſt kings, and that rebellion and ſedition have been made therein.

† Chald. by me a decree is ſet.

21 † Give ye now commandment to cauſe theſe men to ceaſe, and that this city be not built, until another commandment ſhall be given from me.

22 Take heed now that ye fail not to do this: why ſhould damage grow to the hurt of the kings?

23 Now when the copy of king Artaxerxes letter was read before Rehum, and Shimſhai the ſcribe, and their companions, they went up in haſte to Jeruſalem unto the Jews,and made them to ceaſe † by force and power.

† Chald. by arm and power.

24 Then ceaſed the work of the houſe of God y, which is at Jeruſalem. So it ceaſed unto the ſecond year of the reign of Darius king of Perſia z.

That the ſame Zerubbabel did both lay the Foundations and finiſh the work, Zech. 4. 9. 2. 3 In the firſt year of Cyrus the king, the ſame Cyrus the king made a decree concerning the houſe of God at Jeruſalem, Let the houſe be built, the place where they offered Sacrifices, and let the foundations thereof be ſtrongly laid, the height thereof threeſcore cubits, and the breadth thereof threeſcore cubits e:

e He did not command them to make it ſo large, for he left the ordering of the proportions of the Building to their skill and choice, but he reſtrained them that they ſhould make it no larger; leſt they ſhould hereafter make uſe of it to other purpoſes againſt himſelf: But thoſe proportions differ much from thoſe of Solomon's Temple, which was but Thirty Cubits high, only the Porch was 120 Cubits high, and but 20 Cubits in breadth. Either therefore Solomons Cubits were ſacred Cubits, which were larger than the other, and theſe were but common Cubits. Or, the 60 Cubits of heighth are meant only of the Porch, which he would not have to be ſo high and magnificent as that of Solomons was, leſt they ſhould be puffed up with it, and by degrees arrive at their former heighth and inſolence. And the word rendred breadth, may be, and is by ſome rendred more generally, the extenſion, or amplitude, or the length of it; it being improbable that the King ſhould give orders about the breadth, and none about the length of it.

4 With three rows of great ſtones, and a row of new timber f: and let the expences be given out of the kings houſe.

h i. e. From hindering or diſcouraging the work.

7 Let the work of this houſe of God alone: let the governour of the Jews, and the elders of the Jews, build this houſe of God in this place.

8 Moreover, † I make a decree, what ye ſhall do to the elders of the Jews, for the building of this houſe of God: that of the kings goods, even of the tribute beyond the river, forthwith expences be given unto theſe men, that they be not † hindred i.

i From proceeding in their work for want of money.

9 And that which they have need of, both young bullocks, and rams, and lambs, for the burnt-offerings of the God of heaven, wheat, ſalt, wine, and oil, according to the appointment of the prieſts which are at Jeruſalem, let it be given them day by day without fail.

10 That they may offer † ſacrifices of ſweet ſavours unto the God of heaven, and pray for the life of the king, and of his ſons.

† Chald. ſweets ſavours, or, reſts.

11 Alſo I have made a decree, that whoſoever ſhall alter this word, let timber be pulled down from his houſe, and being ſet up, † let him be hanged thereon, and let his houſe be made a dunghil for this.

12 And the God that hath cauſed his name to dwell there, deſtroy all kings and people that ſhall put to their hand, to alter and to deſtroy this houſe of God which is at Jeruſalem: I Darius have made a decree, let it be done with ſpeed.

13 Then Tatnai, governour on this ſide the river, Shethar-boznai, and their companions, according to that which Darius the king had ſent, ſo they did ſpeedily.

14 And the elders of the Jews built, and they proſpered through the prophecying of Haggai the prophet, and Zechariah the ſon of Iddo k; and they built and finiſhed it, according to the commandment of the God of Iſrael, and according to the † commandment of Cyrus, and Darius, and Artaxerxes l, kings of Perſia.

k This is a ſeaſonable intimation that this great and unexpected ſucceſs was not to be aſcribed to chance, nor to the kindneſs or good humour of Darius, but unto God only, who by his Prophets had required and encouraged them to proceed in the work, and by his mighty power diſpoſed Darius Heart to ſuch kind and noble

Or 2. Artaxerxes Longimanus, the Son of Xerxes, who was beſt known by the name of Artaxerxes; who is here joyned with Cyrus and Darius, becauſe though the Temple was finiſhed, as to the ſubſtance of the work, in Darius's Reign, v. 15. yet it was afterwards more fully compleated and adorned by Artaxerxes, as is evident from ch. 7. v. 20, 27. by whom Nehemiah was ſent to Jeruſalem with a large Commiſſion and full Power to take care about the Building of the City, and all other things concerning the Jewiſh Nation and Religion.

Ezra's Genealogy, 1——5. The Prieſts, Levites and Ezra go up to Jeruſalem, 6——10. The gracious Commiſſion of Artaxerxes to Ezra, 11——26. Ezra bleſſeth God for his favour to his People, 27, 28.

NOW after theſe things, in the reign of * Artaxerxes a king of Perſia, Ezra * the ſon of Serajah b, the ſon of Azariah, the ſon of Hilkiah.

* Neh. 2. 1. * 1 Chron. 6. 14.

a The ſame of whom he ſpeaks ch. 6. 14. b i. e. His Grandſon. Here are divers Perſons omitted for brevity ſake, which may be ſupplied out of 1 Chron. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11.

2 The ſon of Shallum, the ſon of Zadok, the ſon of Ahitub,

3 The ſon of Amariah, the ſon of Azariah, the ſon of Merajoth,

4 The ſon of Zerajah, the ſon of Uzzi, the ſon of Bukki,

5 The ſon of Abiſhua, the ſon of Phinehas, the ſon of Eleazar, the ſon of Aaron the chief prieſt:

6 This Ezra went up from Babylon c, and he was a ready ſcribe d in the law of Moſes, which the LORD God of Iſrael had given, and the king granted him all his requeſt, according to the hand of the LORD his God upon him e.

c With the King's Conſent and Commiſſion. d i. e. A learned and expert Doctor: for in that ſenſe the word Scribe is oft uſed, as Jer. 8. 8. Matt. 7. 29. & 17. 10. & 23. 2, 13. Mark 12. 28. compare with Matt. 22. 35, 36. e i. e. By the Grace and Favour of God ſo diſpoſing the Heart of the King.

7 And there went up ſome of the children of Iſrael, and of the prieſts, and the Levites, and the ſingers, and the porters, and * the Nethinims unto Jeruſalem f, in the ſeventh year of Artaxerxes the king.

f This is here related in the general, but how he procured this is particularly related hereafter.

8 And he came to Jeruſalem in the fifth month, which was in the ſeventh year of the king.

9 For upon the firſt day of the firſt month † began he to go up from Babylon, and on the firſt day of the fifth month came he to Jeruſalem, according to the good hand of his God upon him.

10 For Ezra had prepared his heart g to ſeek h the law of the LORD, and to do it, and to teach in Iſrael i ſtatutes and judgments.

g Or, directed, &c. i. e. He had ſet his Mind and Affections upon it, and made it his chief deſign and buſineſs. h i. e. To ſearch and find out the true ſenſe and meaning of it, and thence to learn what Sins or Errors were to be reformed, and what Duties were to be performed. i The order of things in this Verſe is very obſervable: firſt he endeavours to underſtand God's Law and Word, and that not for Curioſity or Oſtentation, but in order to Practice: Next he conſcientiouſly practiſeth what he did underſtand, which made his Doctrine much more effectual: And then he earneſtly deſires and labours to inſtruct and edifie others, that they alſo might know and do it.

11 Now this is the copy of the letter that the king Artaxerxes gave unto Ezra the prieſt, the ſcribe, even a ſcribe of the words of the commandments k of the LORD, and of his ſtatutes to Iſrael.

k The Phraſe ſeems emphatical, noting that he explained both the words and the things: For the Jews in the Land of their Captivity had in a great meaſure loſt both their Language, and the Knowledge of Gods Commands, and therefore Ezra and his Companions inſtruct them in both. Of which ſee more on Nehem. 8. 8.

12 Artaxerxes king of kings, ‖ unto Ezra the prieſt, a ſcribe of the law of the God of heaven, perfect peace, and at ſuch a time.

13 I make a decree, that all they of the people of Iſrael, and of his prieſts, and Levites in my realm, which are minded of their own free will to go up to Jeruſalem, go with thee.

14 Foraſmuch as thou art ſent † of the king, and of his * ſeven counſellers l to enquire concerning Judah and Jeruſalem, according to the law of thy God m which is in thine hand n:

† Chal. from before the king. * Eſth. 1. 14

l His chief Nobles and Officers of State; of whom ſee alſo Eſth. 1. 10, 14. m i. e. To make enquiry into all Abuſes and Deviations from your Law, and to redreſs them. n Which is now and always in thy hand, being the matter of thy daily ſtudy and exerciſe; which thou now carrieſt along with thee, the Interpretation whereof belongeth unto thee.

15 And to carry the ſilver and the gold which the king and his counſellors have freely offered unto the God of Iſrael, whoſe habitation is in Jeruſalem;

16 * And all the ſilver and gold that thou canſt find o in all the province of Babylon, with the free-will-offering of the people p, and of the prieſts offering willingly for the houſe of their God, which is in Jeruſalem:

* Ch. 8. 25.

o i. e. Procure, as that word is uſed, Gen. 6. 8. & 26. 12. Pſal. 84. 3. & 119. 162. Prov. 1. 13. & 2. 5. & 3. 13. Whatſoever thou canſt get of my Subjects by way of free gift. p To wit, of Iſrael.

17 That thou maiſt buy ſpeedily with this money, bullocks, rams, lambs, with their meat-offerings, and their drink-offerings, and offer them upon the altar of the houſe of your God, which is in Jeruſalem:

18 And whatſoever ſhall ſeem good to thee, and to thy brethren, to do with the reſt of the ſilver, and gold, that do after the will of your God.

19 The veſſels alſo that are given thee for the ſervice of the houſe of thy God, thoſe deliver thou before the God of Jeruſalem.

20 And whatſoever more ſhall be needful for the houſe of thy God q, which thou ſhalt have occaſion to beſtow, beſtow it out of the kings treaſure houſe.

q Towards the Reparation, or adorning, or compleating of it. See the Notes on ch. 6. 14.

21 And I, even I Artaxerxes the king, do make a decree to all the treaſures which are beyond the river, that whatſoever Ezra the prieſt, the ſcribe of the law of the God of heaven, ſhall require of you, it be done ſpeedily.

22 Unto an hundred talents of ſilver, and to an hundred meaſures of wheat, and to an hundred baths † of wine, and to an hundred baths of oil, and ſalt without preſcribing how much r:

r Becauſe it was but of mean price, and of very common and neceſſary uſe in all their Sacrifices, Lev. 2. 13. Mark 9. 49.

23 † Whatſoever is commanded by the God of heaven, let it be diligently done for the houſe of the God of heaven: for why ſhould there be wrath againſt the realm of the king and his ſon s?

[s] For the omiſſion of any part of his Worſhip occaſioned by my neglect. This danger and duty he diſcerned, partly by natural light, and principally by the Information of Ezra, ch. 8. 22. who had the King's Ear and Heart.

24 Alſo we certifie unto you, that touching any of the prieſts and Levites, ſingers, porters, Nethinims, or miniſters of this houſe of God, it ſhall not be lawful to impoſe toll, tribute or cuſtom upon them.

25 And thou, Ezra, after the wiſdom of thy God this is in thine hand [t], ſet magiſtrates and judges which may judge all the people that are beyond the river, all ſuch as know the laws of thy God, and teach ye them that know them not.

[t] i. e. Which God hath put into thy Heart, and which appears in the works of thy hand. Wiſdom is ſometimes aſcribed to the hands, as Pſal. 78. 72. See my Latin Synopſis on Gen. 48. 14. Or, by the Wiſdom of God, he means the Law of God, which was ſaid to be in his hand, v. 14.

† Chal. to rooting out. 26 And whoſoever will not do the law of thy God, and the law of the king [u], let judgment be executed ſpeedily upon him, whether it be unto death, or † to baniſhment, or to confiſcation of goods, or to impriſonment.

[u] To wit, concerning theſe matters. Or, which Law of God is by this my ſanction now become my Law alſo, to which I expect their punctual and ready obedience. For as for the Civil Laws of the Empire, Ezra neither was skilful in them, nor was intruſted with the Execution of them, which was committed to other hands.

27 Bleſſed be the LORD God of our Fathers, which hath put ſuch a thing as this in the kings heart, to beautifie the houſe of the LORD, which is in Jeruſalem:

28 And hath extended mercy unto me before the king and his counſellors, and before all the kings mighty princes: and I was ſtrengthened as the hand of the LORD my God was upon me, and I gathered together out of Iſrael chief men to go up with me.

CHAP. VIII.

Ezra's Companions who returned from Babylon, 1—14. He ſendeth to Iddo for Levites to be Miniſters for the Temple, 15—20. He keepeth a Faſt at Ahava, 21—23. He committeth the Treaſures to the Cuſtody of the Prieſts, 24—30. From Ahava they come to Jeruſalem, 31, 32. The Treaſure is weighed in the Temple, 33—35. The Commiſſion is delivered to the Adverſaries, and they further the Houſe of God, 36.

THeſe are now the chief of their fathers, and this is the genealogy of them that went up with me from Babylon, in the reign of Artaxerxes the king.

2 Of the ſons of Phineas; Gerſhom: of the ſons of Ithamar: Daniel: of the ſons of David; Hattuſh.

* Ch. 2. 3. 3 Of the ſons of Shechaniah; of the ſons of * Pharoſh [a]; Zecharia: and with him were reckoned by genealogy of the males [b], an hundred and fifty.

[a] i. e. One of the Sons of Pharoſh: whereby he is differenced from the other Shechaniah, v. 5. [b] Though the Males only be expreſſed here, and in the ſucceeding Verſes, yet it is more than probable they carried the Women along with them, as they did carry little ones, as it is expreſſed here, v. 21.

4 Of the ſons of Pahath-moab; Elihoenai, the ſon of Zerahiah, and with him two hundred males.

5 Of the ſons of Shechaniah; the ſon of Jahaziel [c], and with him three hundred males.

[c] Either his only Son, or the moſt eminent of his Sons, and therefore ſo called here.

6 Of the ſons alſo of Adin; Ebed the ſon of Jonathan, and with him fifty males.

7 And of the ſons of Elam; Jeſhajah the ſon of Athaliah, and with him ſeventy males.

8 And of the ſons of Shephatiah; Zebadiah the ſon of Michael, and with him fourſcore males.

9 Of the ſons of Joab; Obadiah the ſon of Jehiel, and with him two hundred and eighteen males.

10 And of the ſons of Shelomith; the ſon of Joſiphiah, and with him an hundred and threeſcore males.

11 And of the ſons of Bebai; Zechariah the ſon of Bebai, and with him twenty and eight males.

‖ Or, the youngeſt ſon. 12 And of the ſons of Azgad; Johanan ‖ the ſon of Hakkatan, and with him an hundred and ten males.

13 And of the laſt ſons of Adonikam, whoſe names are theſe, Eliphelet, Jeiel, and Shemajah, and with him threeſcore males.

‖ Or, Zaccur as ſome read. 14 Of the ſons alſo of Bigvai; Uthai, and ‖ Zabbud, and with them ſeventy males.

‖ Or, pitched. 15 And I gathered them together to the river that runneth to Ahava [d]; and there ‖ abode we in tents three days: and I viewed the people, and the prieſts, and found there none of the ſons of Levi [e].

[d] Or, the river of Ahava; as it is called v. 21, 31. By comparing of theſe places, it ſeems that Ahava was the name both of the River, and of the Town or place by which it ran. Either this was that River which other Writers call Adiava, which runs to Aſſyria, which thence is called Adiabene: or ſome other River running into Euphrates. [e] To wit, who were ſimple Levites, and not Prieſts. And therefore the Levites mentioned, chap. 7. 7. by anticipation were not yet come to him.

16 Then ſent I for Eliezer [f], for Ariel, for Shemajah, and for Elnathan, and for Jarib, and for Elnathan, and for Nathan, and for Zecharia, and for Meſhullam, chief men: alſo for Jojarib, and for Elnathan, men of underſtanding [g].

[f] To come to me, and go along with me to Jeruſalem. [g] Who ſeem to have had more knowledge than pious Zeal for God, and his Houſe and ſolemn Worſhip, which was confined to Jeruſalem.

17 And I ſent them with commandment [g] unto Iddo the chief [h], at the place Caſiphia [i], and † I told them what they ſhould ſay unto Iddo, and to his brethren the Nethinims, at the place Caſiphia, that they ſhould bring unto us miniſters for the houſe of our God. † Heb. I put words in their mouth.

[g] Which he might do, partly by virtue of that Authority which he had over them by his Prieſthood; and partly by that Authority which he either had received, or could eaſily procure from the King to that purpoſe. [h] The Head of the reſt, either by Eccleſiaſtical Order or Government, which the Perſian Kings allowed to the Jews; or by ſome Grant or Commiſſion from the King. [i] Not a place near the Caſpian Lake, as ſome gueſs from the likeneſs of the names; for that was at too great a diſtance for his preſent purpoſe, but ſome other place not far from Ahava; where he knew that there was a College, or conſiderable company of Levites together.

18 And by the good hand of our God upon us, they brought us a man of underſtanding, of the ſons of Mahli, the ſon of Levi, the ſon of Iſrael and Sherebiah, with his ſons, and with his brethren, eighteen:

19 And Haſhabiah, and with him Jeſhajah of the ſons of Merari, his brethren and their ſons, twenty.

20 * Alſo of the Nethinims, whom David and the princes had appointed for the ſervice of the Levites [k], two hundred and twenty Nethinims: all of them were expreſſed by name. * See ch. 2. 43.

[k] The Gibeonites who were devoted to this Service by Joſhua and the Princes of his time, Joſ. 9. 21. and are ſaid to be appointed by David and his Princes, becauſe they were confirmed by them in their former Office, and more particularly applied to the ſeveral Services of the Temple: Though this be not diſtinctly related in 1 Chr. 24. & 25, & 26. becauſe his buſineſs there was to give an account only of the new Conſtitutions and Alterations made by David in thoſe matters.

21 Then I proclaimed a faſt there, at the river Ahava, that we might afflict our ſelves before our God, to ſeek of him a right way [l] for us, and for our little ones, and for all our ſubſtance.

[l] i. e. A ſafe and proſperous Journey; or ſuch a way and courſe as might be beſt for us.

22 For I was aſhamed to require of the king a band of Soldiers and Horſemen, to help us againſt the enemy in the way: becauſe we had ſpoken unto the king, ſaying, The hand of our God is upon all them for good, that ſeek him, but his power and his wrath is againſt all them that forſake him.

23 So we faſted and beſought our God for this, and he was entreated of us [m].

[m] He gave us ſome Aſſurance of his gracious Anſwer to our Requeſt.

24 Then I ſeparated twelve of the chief of the prieſts, Sherebiah, Haſhabiah; and ten of their brethren with them [n]:

[n] Or, and Sherebiah, &c. who were the Levites mentioned v. 18. who were joyntly intruſted together with the Prieſts with the charge of carrying theſe things carefully and ſafely. The Particle and, is oft underſtood.

25 And weighed unto them the ſilver and the gold, and the veſſels, even the offering of the houſe of our God, which the king, and his counſellors, and his lords, and all Iſrael there preſent, had offered.

26 I even weighed unto their hand, ſix hundred and fifty talents of ſilver, and ſilver veſſels an hundred talents, and of gold an hundred talents:

27 Alſo twenty baſons of gold, of a thouſand drams, and two veſſels of † fine copper, † precious as gold [o]. † Heb. yellow, or ſhining braſs. † Heb. deſirable.

[o] Heb. deſirable as gold, not that it was of equal price and worth with it, but for its incomparable Excellency in its kind, and for its great Rarity, for which cauſe there were only two Veſſels of that ſort.

28 And I ſaid unto them, Ye are † holy unto the LORD, the veſſels are † holy alſo, and the ſilver and the gold are a free-will-offering unto the LORD God of your fathers.

29 Watch ye, and keep them, until ye weigh them before the chief of the prieſts, and the Levites, and chief of the fathers of Iſrael at Jeruſalem, in the chambers of the houſe of the LORD.

30 So took the prieſts and the Levites, the weight of the ſilver, and the gold, and the veſſels, to bring them to Jeruſalem unto the houſe of our God.

31 Then we departed from the river of Ahava, on the twelfth day of the firſt month, to go unto Jeruſalem, and the hand of our God was upon us, and he delivered us from the hand of the enemy, and of ſuch as lay in wait by the way p.

p To wit, in the direct way. Whereby it may be conjectured, that God directed them to fetch a little compaſs, and to go a more uncouth and unſuſpected way, as they had begged of God, v. 21.

32 And we came to Jeruſalem, and abode there three days.

33 Now on the fourth day was the ſilver, and the gold, and the veſſels weighed in the houſe of our God by the hand of Meremoth the ſon of Uriah the prieſt, and with him was Eleazar the ſon of Phinehas, and with them was Jozabad the ſon of Jeſhua, and Noadiah the ſon of Binnui, Levites:

34 By number and by weight of every one: and all the weight was written at that time.

35 † Alſo the children of thoſe that had been carried away, which were come out of the captivity q, offered burnt offerings unto the God of Iſrael, twelve bullocks for all Iſrael, ninety and ſix rams, ſeventy and ſeven lambs, twelve he-goats for a ſin offering: all this was a burnt-offering unto the LORD.

Ezra and others, bearing of the unlawful Marriage of the People with Strangers, mourn for it, 1——4. He prayeth unto God, and confeſſeth their Sins, and particularly this, 5——15.

NOW when theſe things were done, the princes a came to me, ſaying, The people of Iſrael, and the prieſts, and the Levites have not ſeparated themſelves from the people of the lands b, doing according to their abominations c, even of the Canaanite, the Hittite, the Perizzite, the Jebuſite, the Ammonite, the Moabite, the Egyptian, and the Amorite.

a Who feared God, and underſtood that Ezra was come with large Commiſſion from the King, and with this deſign, to reform all Diſorders, whereof this was not the leaſt. b i. e. From the Heathen Nations round about them, which God had expreſly commanded them to do, Deut. 7. 2, 3. c To wit, either, 1. Marrying promiſcuouſly whomſoever they liked, as the Heathens uſed to do; Or, 2. Imitating them in their Idolatrous or other wicked Practices, into which they were drawn by their Heatheniſh Affinities. Although they are not charged with any other Crime beſides their Marriage in the following account of it.

2 For they have taken of their daughters for themſelves, and for their ſons: ſo that the holy ſeed have mingled themſelves with the people of thoſe lands d: yea, the hand of the princes and rulers e hath been chief in this treſpaſs.

d This they had done, either, 1. In the Land of their Captivity, into which theſe People were carried as well as others, as appears from Jer. 25. 9, &c. Or rather, 2. Since their return, as may be gathered from v. 8, 9, 10, 14. e Who ſhould have reſtrained the People from this Sin, by their Authority and Example; and by doing otherwiſe, made the Sin more general, and involved themſelves and the Nation in the Guilt of it.

3 And when I heard this thing, I rent my garment, and my mantle, f and pluckt off the hair of my head, and of my beard g, and ſat down aſtonied h.

f Both my inner and my upper Garment. g In teſtimony of my great Grief and Indignation; which was uſual among all thoſe Eaſtern and Ancient People, wherein he did not tranſgreſs that Law, Lev. 19. 27. Deut. 14. 1. becauſe he did not ſhave off all the Hair, but only plucked off ſome hairs. h Partly for Grief and Shame at the Sin; and partly for fear of ſome great and dreadful Judgment which he expected and feared for it.

4 Then were aſſembled unto me i every one that trembled at the words of the God of Iſrael k, becauſe of the tranſgreſſion of thoſe that had been carried away l, and I ſat aſtonied until the evening ſacrifice m.

i To joyn with me both in lamenting the Sin, and in indeavouring the redreſs of it. k i. e. Who ſtood in awe of God, and of his Word, and durſt not violate his Commands; or who feared his Threatnings againſt thoſe that did ſo, and trembled for fear of God's Judgments upon them, and upon the whole Land for their ſakes, as the following words imply. Compare Iſa. 66. 2, 5. l To wit, into Captivity, and were ſafely returned from it, and yet were not reformed either by their former Affliction, or by their latter Deliverance. m When the People uſed to Aſſemble together. See Pſal. 141. 2. Acts 3. 1.

5 And at the evening ſacrifice I aroſe from my || heavineſs, n and having rent my garment and my mantle, I fell upon my knees, and ſpread out my hands unto the LORD my God,

n i. e. From that mournful poſture, v. 4. and put my ſelf into the poſture of a Petitioner. Or, by reaſon of my heavineſs, or affliction. Having mourned for the Sin, I conſidered that was not ſufficient, and that God expected the Confeſſion and Amendment of it, and therefore I fell to prayer.

6 And ſaid, O my God, I am aſhamed and bluſh to lift up my face to thee, my God: for our iniquities o are increaſed over our head, p and our || treſpaſſes grown up unto the heavens.

o He includes himſelf in the number of the Tranſgreſſors, not only by a Rhetorical Figure called Communication, but partly becauſe he himſelf was guilty of many Sins; and partly becauſe the Princes and Prieſts, and ſo many of the People having done this, the Guilt was now become National. p Like deep Waters, in which we are as it were drowned, and ready to periſh. Compare Pſal. 38. 4.

7 Since the days of our fathers, have we been in a great treſpaſs unto this day q; and for our iniquities have we, our kings, and our prieſts been delivered into the hand of the kings of the lands, to the ſword, to captivity, and to a ſpoil, and to confuſion of face, as it is this day.

q We are not purged from the Guilt and Filth of our Fathers Sins, but we are ſtill feeling the ſad Effects of their Sins in the continuing Captivity of a great number of our Brethren; and we are ſtill repeating the ſame Sins.

8 And now for a † little ſpace r grace hath been ſhewed from the LORD our God, to leave us a remnant to eſcape s, and to give us a || nail t in his holy place u, that our God may lighten our Eyes x, and give us a little reviving in our bondage y:

r It is but a little while ſince God hath delivered and reſtored us, and yet we are already returned to our former Sin and Folly. Or thus, we have enjoyed this Favour but a little while, and now we are ſinning it away, and ſhortening our own Happineſs. s That by his Favour many of us ſhould eſcape out of Captivity; whom he calls but a remnant, becauſe the far greateſt part of the Iſraelitiſh Nation were yet in Captivity. t i. e. Either 1. A juſt and merciful Prince of our own Nation and Religion; ſuch being compared to Nails or Pins, as Iſa. 22. 23. Or rather 2. Some kind of Settlement; whereas before we were toſſed and removed from place to place as our Maſters pleaſed. It is is a Metaphor from Tents, which are faſtened by Cords and Nails, or Pins. u i. e. In this holy Land, as the Land of Judah is called, Zech. 2. 12. Or, in Jeruſalem, which is called The holy City, Neh. 11. 1, 18. Dan. 9. 24. which is peculiarly mentioned, becauſe of the Temple, which was the Nail which faſtened their Tents, and gave them ſome ground of hopes to continue in their Land. x i. e. That he might revive and comfort our hearts. For as darkneſs is oft put for a State of Sorrow and Affliction, ſo light is put for Joy and Comfort. y For we are not quite delivered, but ſtill wear our Fetters upon us, being even here in ſubjection to our former Lords.

9 For we were bond-men z, yet our God hath not forſaken us in our bondage, but hath extended mercy unto us in the ſight of the kings of Perſia a, to give us a reviving b, to ſet up the houſe of our God, and † to repair the deſolations thereof, c and to give us † a wall d in Judah and in Jeruſalem.

z i. e. In greater Bondage than that in which we now are. a i. e. Hath given us to find Favour in their Eyes. b To recover us from the Grave of dreadful Calamities in which we lay like dead Men and dry Bones, Ezek. 37. 1, &c. c To wit, of the Temple; either to build the Houſe where there was only an heap of the Ruins of the old Temple. Or rather, 2. To frequent and celebrate the Worſhip of God in that place, which hath long lain like a deſolate and neglected place. For the Building of the Houſe was mentioned in the next foregoing words. d Heb. an hedge, or a fence; either 1. The Wall built about Jeruſalem. But it is probable that was not yet built, as we ſhall ſee by the following Hiſtory. Beſides, this fence is intimated to be as much a fence to the reſt of Judah, as to Jeruſalem: Or 2. The Favour and Protection of the Kings of Perſia, whoſe Edicts on their behalf were under God their Security againſt all thoſe Enemies wherewith they were encompaſſed. Or, 3. The powerful and gracious Providence of God, which had brought them together, and planted them in their own Land, and watched over them from time to time.

10 And now, O our God, what ſhall we ſay after this e? for we have forſaken thy commandments, e What Apology can we make for our ſelves after thou haſt conferred ſuch great and high favours upon us, and we have ſo groſly abuſed them?

11 Which thou haſt commanded † by thy ſervants the prophets, ſaying, The land unto which ye go to poſſeſs, it is an unclean land with the filthineſs of the people f of the lands, g with their abominations, which have filled it † from one end to another, with their uncleanneſs.

f This notes the cauſe or matter of this uncleanneſs. The Land was not unclean in it ſelf, but only polluted by the filthineſs of its Inhabitants. g Or, of theſe Lands, which are round about it. This Land is as corrupt as any of the reſt of the Heathen Nations.

* Exod. 23.32. Deut. 7.3.

12 Now therefore * give not your daughters unto their ſons, neither take their daughters unto your ſons, nor ſeek their peace, or their wealth for ever : h that ye may be ſtrong i and eat the good of the land, and leave it for an inheritance to your children for ever.

h But root them out, as I have commanded you to do ; which alſo they have abundantly deſerved, both of mine, and of your hands. See *Deut.*7.2. i Although you may fancy that this way of making Leagues and Marriages with them, is the only way to eſtabliſh and ſettle you, yet I aſſure you, it will weaken and ruin you, and the contrary courſe will make you ſtronger.

13 And after all that is come upon us for our evil deeds, and for our great treſpaſs k, ſeeing that thou our God † haſt puniſhed us leſs than our iniquities deſerve l, and haſt given us ſuch deliverance as this m, k After all our ſore ſufferings for our ſins. l And after all thy favour ſhewed to us in the mitigation of thy Judgments. m So full, ſo ſudden, and unexpected, and amazing, not only to our enemies, but alſo to our ſelves.

14 Should we again break thy commandments, n and joyn in affinity with the people of theſe abominations ! wouldeſt not thou be angry with us till thou hadſt conſumed us, ſo that there ſhould be no remnant nor eſcaping o ?

n Was this a fit and juſt requital of all thy kindeſſes ? or was this thy end and deſign in theſe actions ? or wilſt thou take this well from our hands ? o Can we reaſonably expect any thing from thee leſs than utter ruine ?

15 O LORD God of Iſrael, thou art righteous p, for we remain yet eſcaped q, as it is this day : behold, we are before thee in our treſpaſſes r : for we cannot ſtand before thee s, becauſe of this t.

p A juſt and holy God, who doſt hate, and wilſt infallibly puniſh ſin and ſinners. Or, thou art merciful, as appears from hence, that notwithſtanding all our ſins, thou haſt not utterly deſtroyed us, but left a remnant of us. The Hebrew word here rendred righteous, is oft uſed for merciful ; as is well known to all the Learned. q Or, though we remain, &c. i. e. Though thou haſt yet ſpared us in part, yet thou art righteous, and therefore wilt certainly puniſh and deſtroy us according to our deſerts, if we do not repent us, and reform this great wickedneſs. r We are here in thy preſence, and ſo are all our ſins ; we are arraigning our ſelves before thy Tribunal, acknowledging our ſelves to be vile offenders, and thee to be juſt, if thou deſtroy us. s To wit, in Judgment, as that word is oft uſed, as Pſal. 130. 3. Compare Pſal. 1. 5. we muſt needs fall and periſh at thy preſence, as the phraſe is, *Pſal.*9.3. t Becauſe of this our great guilt, and the aggravations of it.

CHAP. X.

Shecaniah encourageth Ezra to reform the ſtrange Marriages, 1——4. All Iſrael ſwear to do accordingly, 5. Ezra mourning, aſſembleth the people, 6--8. The people at the exhortation of Ezra repent, and promiſe amendment, 9——14. Their care to perform it, 15,16. The names of them that married ſtrange wives, 15——44.

NOw when Ezra had prayed, and when he had confeſſed, weeping and caſting himſelf down before the houſe of God, there aſſembled unto him out of Iſrael, a very great congregation of men, and women, and children a : for the people † wept very ſore b.

a Awakened by the words and example of this holy Prieſt, and great Potentate. So inexpreſſible is the good, which is done by the good example, and the evil, which is done by the bad example of a great Perſon, or of a Miniſter. The fame of his great paſſion of grief, and of his many and publick expreſſions thereof in the Court before the Temple, being in an inſtant diſperſed over all the City, brought a great company together. b Being greatly affected with Ezra's prayer, and with the common ſin.

2 And Shechaniah the ſon of Jehiel, one of the ſons of Elam, anſwered and ſaid unto Ezra, We have treſpaſſed c againſt our God, and have taken d ſtrange wives of the people of the land : yet now there is hope in Iſrael concerning this thing e.

c He ſaith, we, either, 1. Becauſe he was guilty in this matter. Or rather, 2. In the name of the People, and their ſeveral Families, and his own amongſt the reſt. For this mans name is not in the following Catalogue, but there we have his Father, Jehiel, and his Fathers Brethren, five other ſons of his Grandfather Elam, v. 26. It was therefore an evidence of his great Courage, and good Conſcience, that he durſt ſo freely and fully diſcharge his duty, whereby he ſhewed, that he honoured God more than his neareſt and deareſt Relations. d To wit, into conjugal ſociety with our ſelves. e In caſe of our repentance, and reformation. Therefore let us not ſorrow like perſons without hope, nor ſit down in deſpair, but let us fall upon action, and amend our errours, and then truſt to Gods mercy.

3 Now therefore let us make a covenant with our God, † to put away all the wives f, and ſuch as are born of them g, according to the counſel of my lord h, and of thoſe that tremble at the * commandment of our God i, and let it be done according to the law k.

* Deut. 7. 2,3.

f Which though it may ſeem harſh, yet is not unjuſt, if it be conſidered, 1. That Marriages made between ſome prohibited Perſons ; as ſuppoſe, between a Father, and his Daughter, a Brother, and a Siſter, are not only unlawful, but void Marriages, and ipſo facto, null, by the Political Laws of Civil Nations. And therefore theſe Marriages with Idolatrous and Heathen Women, being expreſly and ſeverely forbidden by God, might well be diſannulled. And it was one of good Theodoſius his Laws, that thoſe actions which were done againſt law, ſhould be accounted not only unlawful, but null. 2. That there were many peculiar laws given to the Jews concerning the marrying, and putting away of Wives, as hath been obſerved before in their proper places, and therefore it is not ſtrange, if there be ſomething more in this caſe, then is now uſual with us. 3. Suppoſing the Matrimonial Tye had continued, yet they might be excluded from co-habitation with them, as a juſt puniſhment upon them for the wilful breach of a known and poſitive Law of God. g This may ſeem harder than the former, but many things may be ſaid : 1. Whatſoever evil befel either them or their Children, they had all reaſon to accept it as the juſt and deſerved fruit of their own ſin. 2. That Children may, and ſometimes do ſuffer, at leaſt temporal evils, for their Parents ſins, or upon occaſion of them, is moſt evident, both by the Scripture inſtances, and by the Laws and Uſages of Nations in ſome caſes. 3. This may ſeem to have been a neceſſary part of ſeverity, partly as a proper puniſhment of the Parents ſin herein, and to deter others more effectually from the like practices : partly to prevent the corruption of their other Children by the Converſation and Society of this ungodly and idolatrous Brood : and partly, leſt ſuch Children, being continually preſent with them, and ſtealing into their affections, might at laſt prevail with them to take their ejected Wives again. 4. Theſe Children were only caſt out of the Families and Commonwealth of Iſrael, but were not utterly forſaken and ruined, but due care was probably taken by Authority, that they ſhould have ſome proviſion made for them, and ſome care taken about their Education in the Jewiſh Religion, &c. h Either 1. As thou counſelleſt and deſireſt us to do. Or, 2. Let us do it in ſuch manner as thou ſhalt think fit and agreeable to the Law, as it follows : for it requires great caution, as being a matter of no ſmall difficulty. i And of other ſerious and religious perſons who may with thee conſider and regulate the buſineſs. k This is meant, either 1. Of the matter of the buſineſs, let that be done which the Law requires ; let them be put away. Or, 2. Of the manner of it, which muſt be according to the Rules of Gods Law.

4 Ariſe, for this matter belongeth unto thee l ; we alſo will be with thee ; be of good courage, and do it.

l Becauſe thou haſt both skill to manage it, and authority both from God, and from the Perſian King to do it.

5 Then aroſe Ezra, and made the chief prieſts, the Levites, and all Iſrael to ſwear, that they ſhould do according to this word. And they ſware.

6 Then Ezra roſe up before the houſe of God, and went into the chamber m of Johanan the ſon of Eliaſhib : and when he came thither, he did eat no bread, nor drink water : for he mourned becauſe of the tranſgreſſion of them that had been carried away.

m That he with the Princes and Elders, as it follows v. 8. might conſult about the execution of their Reſolution.

7 And they made proclamation throughout Judah and Jeruſalem, unto all the children of the captivity, that they ſhould gather themſelves together unto Jeruſalem ;

8 And that whoſoever would not come within three days, according to the counſel of the princes and the elders, all his ſubſtance ſhould be † forfeited, and himſelf ſeparated from the congregation n of thoſe that had been carried away.

n Either by Baniſhment : Or rather by Excommunication from the Church, and People, and Houſe, and Publick Worſhip of God.

9 Then all the men of Judah, and Benjamin o, gathered themſelves together unto Jeruſalem within three days : (it was the ninth month, on the twentieth day of the month) and all the people ſat in the ſtreet of the houſe of God p, trembling becauſe of this matter, and for † the great rain q.

o Not only of theſe two Tribes, as appears from the following Catalogue, where there are Prieſts and Levites ; but all the Iſraelites, v. 25. who are thus deſcribed, partly becauſe the greateſt part of them were of theſe Tribes, though others were mixed with them : and partly becauſe they all now dwelt in that Land which formerly was appropriated to thoſe Tribes. p In that ſtreet of the City, which was next to the Temple, and within the view of it, that ſo they might be as in Gods preſence, whereby they might be awed to a more faithful and vigorous proſecution of their work. And this place they might chuſe rather than the Court of the People, becauſe they thought it might be polluted by the delinquents, who were all to come thither. q Which they took for a token of Gods diſpleaſure againſt them.

10 And Ezra the prieſt ſtood up, and ſaid unto them, Ye have tranſgreſſed, and † have taken ſtrange wives to encreaſe the treſpaſs of Iſrael.

† Heb. have cauſed to dwell, or have brought back.

11 Now therefore make confeſſion unto the LORD

God of your fathers, and do his pleaſure[r], and ſeparate your ſelves from the people of the land, and from the ſtrange wives.

[r] You have ſinfully pleaſed your ſelves, now pleaſe God by your Obedience to his Command.

12 Then all the congregation anſwered, and ſaid with a loud voice, As thou haſt ſaid, ſo muſt we do.

‖ Or, we have greatly offended in this thing.

14 Let now our rulers of all the congregation ſtand[s], and let all them which have taken ſtrange wives[t] in our cities, come at appointed times, and with them the elders of every city, and the Judges thereof[u], until the fierce wrath of our God ‖ for this matter, be turned from us[x].

‖ Or, till this matter be diſpatched.

[s] Let the great Council, called the Sanhedrim, be ſettled, and meet to judge and determine of all particular Cauſes. [t] To wit, of theſe heathen Nations ſuch as were not proſelyted to the Jewiſh Religion before their Marriage; or ſince revolted from it. [u] Who are beſt able to inform the great Council of the quality of the perſons, and of all Matters of Fact and Circumſtances. [x] i.e. Until the thing be done, and Gods wrath thereby removed.

15 Only Jonathan the ſon of Aſahel, and Jahaziah the ſon of Tikvah, † were employed about this matter[y]: and Meſhullam, and Shabbethai the Levite helped them.

† Heb. ſtood, or were appointed over.

[y] To wit, to take due care that the buſineſs ſhould be executed in the manner propoſed, that the Officers and Delinquents of every City ſhould come ſucceſſively in convenient time and order, as theſe ſhould appoint, and to take and keep an exact account of the whole tranſaction, and of the names of the Cities and Perſons whoſe Cauſes were diſpatched, and to give notice to others to come in their turns, and to prepare the buſineſs for the hearing of the Judges. And theſe two were Prieſts, as their Coadjutors or Helpers were Levites; that ſo they might inform the perſons concerned, if any matter of doubt did ariſe.

16 And the children of the captivity did ſo: and Ezra the prieſt, with certain chief of the fathers, after the houſe of their fathers, and all of them by their names were ſeparated[z], and ſate down in the firſt day of the tenth month to examine the matter.

[z] i.e. Sequeſtred themſelves from all other buſineſs, and gave themſelves wholly to this.

17 And they made an end with all the men that had taken ſtrange wives, by the firſt day of the firſt month.

18 And among the ſons of the prieſts, there were found that had taken ſtrange wives: namely, of the ſons of Jeſhua, the ſon of Jozadak, and his brethren; Maaſejah, and Eliezer, and Jarib, and Gedaliah.

19 And they gave their hand[a] that they would put away their wives: and being guilty, they offered a ram of the flock for their treſpaſs.

[a] i.e. They covenanted or ſwore by giving their hand; which was the uſual geſture in thoſe caſes. Of which ſee Levit. 6. 2. Ezek. 17. 18.

20 And of the ſons of Immer; Hanani, and Zebadiah.

21 And of the ſons of Harim; Maaſejah, and Elijah, and Shemajah, and Jehiel, and Uzziah.

22 And of the ſons of Paſhur; Elioenai, Maaſejah, Iſhmael, Nethaneel, Jozabad, and Elaſah.

23 Alſo of the Levites; Jozabad, and Shimei, and Kelajah, (the ſame is Kelita) Pethahiah, Judah, and Eliezer.

24 Of the ſingers alſo, Eliaſhib: and of the porters; Shallum, and Telem, and Uri.

25 Moreover of Iſrael[b]: of the ſons of Paroſh, Ramiah, and Jeziah, and Malchia, and Miamin, and Eleazar, and Malchijah, and Benajah.

[b] i.e. Of the People of Iſrael, diſtinguiſhed from the Prieſts and the Levites hitherto named, who before were called Judah and Benjamin, v. 9. where ſee the notes.

26 And of the ſons of Elam; Mattaniah, Zechariah, and Jehiel, and Abdi, and Jeremoth, and Eliah.

27 And of the ſons of Zattu; Elioenai, Eliaſhib, Mattaniah, and Jeremoth, and Zabad, and Aziza.

28 Of the ſons alſo of Bebai, Jehohanan, Hananiah, Zabbai, and Athlai.

29 And of the ſons of Bani; Meſhullam, Malluch, and Adajah, Jaſhub, and Sheal, and Ramoth.

30 And of the ſons of Pahath-moab, Adna, and Chelal, Benajah, Maaſejah, Mattaniah, Bezaleel, and Binnui, and Manaſſeh.

31 And of the ſons of Harim; Eliezer, Iſhijah, Malchiah, Shemajah, Shimeon, 32 Benjamin, Malluch, and Shemariah.

34 Of the ſons of Bani; Maadi, Amram, and Uel.

37 Mattaniah, Mattenai, and Jaaſau,

38 And Bani, and Binnui, Shemei,

39 And Shelemiah, and Nathan, and Adajah,

40 ‖ Machnadebai, Shaſhai, Sharai,

‖ Or, Mabnadebai, according to ſome copies.

41 Azareel, and Shelemiah, Shemariah, 42 Shallum, Amariah, and Joſeph.

43 Of the ſons of Nebo; Jehiel, Mattithiah, Zabad, Zebina, Jadau, and Joel, Benajah.

44 All theſe had taken ſtrange wives: and ſome of them had wives by whom they had children[c].

[c] Whereby he implies that moſt of their Wives were barren. Which came to paſs by Gods ſpecial Providence, partly to manifeſt his diſpleaſure againſt ſuch matches, and partly that the practice of this great and neceſſary duty might not be encumbred with too many difficulties.

NEHEMIAH.

THis Book ſeems not to have been written by Ezra, becauſe it is written in a quite differing, and more plain and eaſy ſtile, and without that mixture of Chaldee, or Syriack words, which is in the Book of Ezra, but by Nehemiah, ch. 1. 1. who writ an account of his own Tranſactions, as Ezra did of his. But whether this be the ſame Nehemiah, who came up with Zerubbabel, Ezra 2. 2. and Nehemiah 7. 7. may be queſtioned, the ſame name being oft given to divers perſons. And for the name of Tirſhatha, which is uſed both Ezra 2. 63. and Nehemiah 7. 65, 70. that ſeems to be the Title of his Office, and ſo belongs to any Governour, whether it was Zerubbabel, or Nehemiah, or any other.

And this made their enemies ſcorn them; who alſo would have ruined them, but for fear of offending the Perſian King.

4 And it came to paſs when I heard theſe words, that I ſate down and wept, and mourned certain days, and prayed before the God of heaven,

5 And ſaid, I beſeech thee, * O LORD God of heaven, the great and terrible God, * that keepeth covenant, and mercy for them that love him, and obſerve his commandments,

thee: both I, and my fathers houſe have ſinned,

7 We have dealt very corruptly l againſt thee, and have not kept the commandments, nor the ſtatutes, nor the judgments which thou commandedſt thy ſervant Moſes.

l Or we have wholly corrupted, to wit, our ſelves, and our ways, and thy Worſhip.

AND it came to paſs in the month * Niſan a, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes b the King, that wine was before him: and I took up the wine, and gave it unto the king. Now I had not been before-time ſad in his preſence.

a Which was four months after he had heard thoſe ſad tidings. The reaſon of this long ſilence and delay might be manifold; either becauſe he thought fit that ſome time ſhould be ſpent by himſelf and poſſibly others of his breathren in ſeeking God by ſolemn Prayer and Faſting, for Gods bleſſing and the good ſucceſs of this great affair: or becauſe he could not take ſo long and dangerous a journey in the depth of Winter: or becauſe his turn of attending upon the King did not come to him till that time: or becauſe till then he wanted a fit opportunity to move it to the King, by reaſon of the Kings indiſpoſition, or occaſions, or multitude of attendants, among whom there probably were divers enemies to the Jews, who, he feared, might hinder his deſign and deſire. b Artaxerxes Longimanus, the Son of the great Xerxes, who reigned both with his father, and after his death alone: whence the years of his reign are computed two ways, one from the death of Xerxes; and the other from his firſt entrance upon the adminiſtration of the Kingdom, which was committed to him in the fifth year of Xerxes, when he began the Grecian War, and left his Son King or Viceroy in his ſtead, as the manner of the Perſians was. It may ſeem doubtful, and is not much material which way of computation is here uſed. Others underſtand this of Artaxerxes Mnemon.

2 Wherefore the king ſaid unto me, Why is thy countenance ſad c, ſeeing thou art not ſick? this is nothing elſe but ſorrow of heart. Then I was very ſore afraid d, c His faſting joyned with inward grief had made a ſenſible change in his very countenance. d Partly being daunted by the Majeſty of the King, and the ſuddenneſs and ſharpneſs of his queſtion: partly fearing leſt there was ariſing ſome jealouſie or ill opinion in the King concerning him; partly becauſe it was an unuſual and ungrateful thing to come into the King of Perſia's preſence with any badges or tokens of ſorrow, Eſth. 4. 2. and principally from his doubts or fears of diſappointment, becauſe his requeſt was great and invidious, and odious to the moſt of the Perſian Courtiers, and might be repreſented as dangerous, and might ſeem improper for a time of feaſting and jollity.

* 1 Kings 1.31. Dan.2.4. & 6.21.

3 And ſaid unto the King, * Let the King live for ever e. Why ſhould not my countenance be ſad, when the city, the † place of my fathers ſepulchres f, lieth waſt, and the gates thereof are conſumed with fire?

4 Then the King ſaid unto me, For what doſt thou make requeſt? ſo I prayed to the God of heaven g?

e My ſadneſs comes not from any diſcontent with my own condition, or any diſaffection to the King, for whom my hearty Prayers are that he may live for ever; but from another cauſe. f Which by all Nations are eſteemed ſacred and inviolable and honourable. He ſaith not a word of the Temple or of Religion, for he wiſely conſidered that he ſpake before a heathen King and Court who cared for none of thoſe things. g To direct my thoughts and words, and to incline the Kings heart to grant my requeſt.

5 And I ſaid unto the king, If it pleaſe the king h, and if thy ſervant have found favour in thy ſight i, that thou wouldeſt ſend me unto Judah, unto the city of my fathers ſepulchres, that I may build it.

h My requeſt, whatſoever it is, I humbly and wholly ſubmit it to the King's good pleaſure, being reſolved to acquieſce in it. i I pretend no merit, but am an humble Suppliant for thy Grace and Favour, whereof having received ſome tokens, I am thereby emboldened to make this farther requeſt.

6 And the king ſaid unto me, (the † queen alſo ſitting by him k) For how long ſhall thy journey be! and when wilt thou return l? So it pleaſed the king to ſend me, and I ſet him a time m.

k Which is here noted, partly as an unuſual thing; for commonly the Kings of Perſia dined alone, and their Queens ſeldom dined with them, as Hiſtorians note: and peradventure, becauſe the Queen expreſſed ſome kindneſs to him, and promoted his requeſt with the King. l This queſtion ſhewed the King's reſpect and affection to him, and that he was not willing to want his attendance longer than was neceſſary. m Either that 12 years mentioned, ch. 5. 14. & 13. 6. or rather a far ſhorter time: for which cauſe, among others, he built the walls with ſuch diſpatch, even in 52 days, *ch.*6.15. and probably not very long after that returned to the King, by whom he was ſent a ſecond time with more ample Commiſſion, and for the King's ſervice, and the Government of that part of his Dominions.

7 Moreover, I ſaid unto the king, If it pleaſe the king, let letters be given me to the governours beyond the river, that they may convey me over n till I come into Judah.

n That they may ſafely conduct me through their ſeveral Territories.

8 And a letter unto Aſaph the keeper † of the kings forreſt, o that he may give me timber to make beams for the gates of the palace, which appertained to the houſe p, and for the wall of the city, and for the houſe that I ſhall enter into q. And the King granted me, * according to the good hand of my God upon me.

* Ezra 7.6.

o Of the Foreſt of Libanus, famous for pleaſure and for plenty of choice Trees. p To wit, of the Kings Palace, which was adjoyning to the houſe of God. Or, of the Tower or Fence belonging to the Houſe of God, to wit, for the Gates of the Courts of the Temple: for though the Temple was built, the Courts and other Buildings belonging to the Temple might yet be unfiniſhed. q Wherewith I may build an houſe in which I may dwell whilſt I am there, and which I may diſpoſe of as I ſee fit.

9 Then I came to the governours beyond the river, and gave them the kings letters. (Now the king had ſent captains of the army, and horſemen with me.)

10 When Sanballat the Horonite r, and Tobiah the ſervant s the Ammonite, heard of it, it grieved them exceedingly that there was come a man to ſeek the welfare of the children of Iſrael.

r So called, either from his Family, or from the place of his birth or rule, which is ſuppoſed to be Horonaim, an Eminent City of Moab, Iſa. 15. 5. Jer. 48. 3. s So called probably from his ſervile original, or condition from which he was advanced to his preſent power and dignity: which alſo may be mentioned as one reaſon why he now carried himſelf ſo inſolently and perverſly towards the Jews; it being uſual for Perſons ſuddenly raiſed from a mean to an high eſtate, ſo to demean themſelves.

11 So I came to Jeruſalem, and was there three days t.

t Reſting my ſelf after my long Journey, and enquiring into the ſtate of the City.

12 And I aroſe in the night u, I and ſome few men with me, neither told I any man what God had put in my heart to do at Jeruſalem: neither was there any beaſt with me, ſave the beaſt that I rode upon x.

u Concealing both his intentions and actions as far and as long as he could, as knowing that the life of his buſineſs lay in ſecrecy and expedition. x To prevent noiſe, and the notice of what I did.

13 And I went out by night y, by the gate of the valley z, even before the dragon-well a, and to the dung-port b, and viewed the walls of Jeruſalem, which were broken down, and the gates thereof were conſumed with fire.

y The Footmen which accompanied him directing and leading him in the way. His deſign was to go round about the City, to obſerve the compaſs and condition of the Walls and Gates, that he might make ſufficient proviſions for the work. z Of which ſee ch. 3. 13. a A fountain or water ſo called, either from ſome figure of a Dragon or Serpent which was by it; or from ſome living Dragon which abode there when the City was deſolate: for Dragons delight to be in deſolate places, and nigh to Springs of Water, as divers have obſerved. b Through which they uſed to carry the dung out of the City.

14 Then I went on to the gate of the fountain c, and to the kings pool d: but there was no place for the beaſt that was under me to paſs e.

c i. e. Which led to the Fountain, to wit, of Siloah or Gihon. d That which King Hezekiah had made: of which ſee 2 Chron. 32. 3, 30. e The way being obſtructed with heaps of rubbiſh.

15 Then went I up in the night by the brook f, and viewed the wall, and turned back, and entred by the gate of the valley, and ſo returned g.

[f] Of Kidron; of which ſee on 2 Sam. 15. 23. [g] Having gone round about the City.

16 And the rulers knew not whither I went, or what I did, neither had I as yet told it to the Jews nor to the prieſts, nor to the nobles, nor to the rulers, nor to the reſt that did [h] the work [i].

[h] Or, were to do, or ſhould do, i. e. Whom he intended to imploy in it. [i] Here following, of building the Walls.

17 Then ſaid I unto them, Ye ſee the diſtreſs that we are in, how Jeruſalem lieth waſte, and the gates thereof are burnt with fire: come, and let us build up the wall of Jeruſalem, that we be no more a reproach.

18 Then I told them of the hand of my God which was good upon me; as alſo the kings words that he had ſpoken unto me. And they ſaid, Let us riſe up and build. So they ſtrengthened their hands for this good work.

19 But when Sanballat the Horonite, and Tobiah the ſervant the Ammonite, and Geſhem the Arabian [k] heard it, they laughed us to ſcorn, and deſpiſed us, and ſaid, What is this thing that ye do? Will ye rebel againſt the king [l]?

[k] Either the King's Lieutenant in Arabia, as Tobiah was among the Ammonites, and Sanballat among the Moabites: Or, rather an Arabian by his birth. And it ſeems probable that both he, and Sanballat, and Tobiah, were chief Men or Governours among the Samaritans, or in their Army. See ch. 4. 1, 2, 3. [l] Do you deſign to fortifie this City againſt the King.

20 Then anſwered I them, and ſaid unto them, The God of heaven, he will proſper us; therefore we his ſervants will ariſe and build: but * ye have no portion, nor right [m], nor memorial [n] in Jeruſalem. *Ezra 4. 3.

[m] You have no authority over us, nor intereſt in our Church or State, or City, but are meer Aliens from the Common-wealth of Iſrael. We diſown and deteſt that mungrel-Worſhip and Religion which you have ſet up. We deſire not your favour, or friendſhip, or help in this matter. And you have nothing to do to enquire into, or meddle with our concerns, or to hinder us in our preſent undertaking. [n] No Teſtimony, or Monument, either of your Relation to us by Birth or Religion, or of your kindneſs to us or to this place. But we have many memorials of your Malice and Enmity againſt us.

CHAP. III.

The Names of the ſeveral Families that builded; their Order wherein, and the Proportion, how much they builded, 1——32.

*Ch. 12. 10. THen * Eliaſhib the high prieſt [a] roſe up [b] with his brethren the prieſts, and they built the ſheepgate [c]; they ſanctified it [d], and ſet up the doors of it; even unto the tower of Meah [e] they ſanctified it, unto the tower of * Hananeel. *Jer. 31. 38.

[a] Grand-child of Joſhua, the firſt High-Prieſt after their return from Babylon. [b] Began the work. [c] Which was next to the Temple; ſo called, either from the Sheep-Market, or the Sheep-pool of Betheſda, John 5. 2. where the Sheep were waſhed, and then brought to the Temple to be ſacrificed. [d] Or, they prepared or repaired it: for ſo the word ſometimes ſignifies. But our tranſlation ſeems beſt, both becauſe that uſe of the word is moſt common, and becauſe this is ſpoken only of this gate, which being built by the Prieſts, and nigheſt to the Temple, and with a ſpecial Eye to the ſervice of the Temple, for which both Men and Things were moſt commonly brought in this way, and being alſo the firſt part of the building, might be in a peculiar manner ſanctified by ſolemn Prayer and Sacrifice, whereby it was dedicated to God's Service, and this either, 1. As it was conſidered in it ſelf, or with reſpect to the reſt of the building, of which this was the beginning, and in a manner the firſt-fruits, and therefore in the ſanctification of it the whole lump and building was ſanctified. And ſeeing the whole City is oft called the holy City, it is not ſtrange if the Walls and Gates of it be alſo holy, and ſaid to be ſanctified, and eſpecially this Gate. Compare Deut. 20. 5. [e] Or, of an hundred; ſo called, either becauſe it was an hundred Cubits high, or ſo far diſtant from the Sheep-Gate.

[f] The Poſterity of the ancient Inhabitants of Jericho. See Ezra 2. 34.

*2 Chron. 33. 14. Zeph. 1. 10. 3 But the * fiſh-gate [g] did the ſons of Haſſenaah build, who alſo laid the beams thereof, and ſet up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof [h].

[g] Of which mention is made, 2 Chron. 33. 14. Neh. 12. 39. Zeph. 1. 10. ſo called, either from the Fiſh-market which was near it; or, becauſe the Fiſh was brought in by it from the Sea, Neh. 13. 16. this Gate being North-Weſtward from Jeruſalem. [h] This is either here related by anticipation, the whole work being here mentioned together, though this part was not done till afterwards, ch. 6. 1. & 7. 1. Or this was done to ſome of the Gates, but not to all; and therefore this is ſaid to be done more compleatly and univerſally afterwards.

4 And next unto them repaired [i] Meremoth the ſon of Urijah, the ſon of Koz: and next unto them repaired Meſhullam the ſon of Berechiah, the ſon of Meſhezabeel: and next unto them repaired Zadok the ſon of Baana.

[i] To wit, the demoliſhed or decayed Wall, there being no gate in this part. And ſo in the reſt which follow.

5 And next unto them the Tekoites repaired; but their nobles put not their neck [k] to * the work of their Lord [l]. *Judg. 5. 23.

[k] i. e. Did not ſubmit to it, would not further it, either through Pride, or Sloth, and Careleſneſs, or Covetouſneſs, or ſecret Compliance with the Enemies of the Jews. [l] Either, 1. Of Nehemiah, who was their Lord and Governour, and had given a general command for the carrying on of this work. Or, 2. Of God, whom they owned for their Lord, whoſe work this was, partly becauſe it had proceeded thus far by God's ſingular Providence and Bleſſing: and partly becauſe it was done for the defence of the City, and People, and Temple of God. And therefore they are branded to all poſterity for the neglect of ſo great and pious a work.

6 Moreover the old gate repaired Jehojada the ſon of Paſeah, and Meſhullam the ſon of Beſodejah; they laid the beams thereof, and ſet up the doors thereof, and the locks thereof, and the bars thereof.

7 And next unto them repaired Melatiah the Gibeonite, and Jadon the Meronothite, the men of Gibean, and of Mizpah, unto the throne of the governour on this ſide the river [l].

[l] i. e. Unto the place where the Governour of the Country on this ſide Euphrates, for, and under the Perſian Kings, ſometimes had a Palace or Throne, to which all perſons living in the adjacent parts, were to reſort for Judgment.

8 Next unto him repaired Uzziel the ſon of Harhajah, of the goldſmiths; next unto him alſo repaired Hananiah, the ſon of one of the apothecaries, and they ‖ fortified [m] Jeruſalem unto the broad wall. ‖ Or, left Jeruſalem unto the broad wall.

[m] It is not ſaid, they repaired, as was ſaid of the reſt, but they fortified it, either becauſe this part of the Wall was leſs demoliſhed than the other, and therefore they needed not to repair it, but only to make it ſtronger by ſome additions; or, to note their extraordinary care and diligence, that they would not only repair it, and reſtore it to its former ſtate, but make it ſtronger than ever it was; which alſo might be fit to be done in that part of the City. Others render it, they left, as this word commonly ſignifies: and ſo the meaning is, They omitted the building of that part of the Wall, becauſe it remained ſtanding; this being that ſpace of 400 Cubits which was pulled down by Joaſh King of Iſrael, and rebuilt by Uzziah, who made it ſo ſtrong, that the Chaldeans could not pull it down without more trouble than they thought fit to imploy about it. But this Chapter gives us an account of what they did in the Building, not of what they did not, but left as they found it.

[n] As Rome was anciently divided into ſeveral Quarters or Regions, ſo was Jeruſalem, and eſpecially this was divided into two parts, whereof one was in the Tribe of Benjamin, and neareſt to the Temple, the other in the Tribe of Judah, and more remote from it: which accordingly had two ſeveral Rulers, this Man and the other, verſe 12. but both under the chief Governour of the City.

10 And next unto them repaired Jedajah the ſon of Harumaph, even over againſt his houſe [o]: and next unto him repaired Hattuſh the ſon of Haſhabniah.

[o] That part of the Wall which was next to him, which his own Intereſt obliged him to do with care.

11 Malchijah the ſon of Harim, and Haſhub the ſon of Pahath-moab, repaired the † other piece, and the tower of the furnaces. † Heb. ſecond meaſure.

12 And next unto him repaired Shallum the ſon of Halloheſh, the ruler of the half part of Jeruſalem [p], he and his daughters [q].

[p] i. e. Of the other half, &c. ſee on v. 9. [q] Who were either Heireſſes, or rich Widows, and cauſed part to be done at their charges.

13 * The valley-gate repaired Hanun, and the inhabitants of Zanoah, they built it, and ſet up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof, and a thouſand cubits on the wall unto * the dung gate. *Ch. 2. 13. *Ch. 2. 13.

14 But the dung-gate repaired Malchiah the ſon of Rechab, the ruler of part of Beth haccerem [r]: he built it, and ſet up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof.

[r] A Town or Territory, the Government whereof was divided between two perſons.

15 But * the gate of the fountain repaired Shallum the ſon of Col-hozeh, the ruler of part of Mizpah, he built it, and covered it, and ſet up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof, and the wall of the pool of * † Siloah [s] by the kings garden, and unto the ſtairs that go down from the city of David. *Ch. 2. 14. * Joh. 9. 7. †Heb. Shelah.

16 After him repaired Nehemiah the ſon of Azbuk, the ruler of the half part of Beth-zur unto the place over againſt the ſepulchres of David [t], and to the * pool that was made [u], and unto the houſe of the mighty [x]. *2 Kings, 20. 20.

[t] i. e. The place which David appointed for his own Sepulchres, and the Sepulchres of his Succeſſors the Kings of Iſrael and Judah. [u] To wit, by Hezekiah, 2 Kings, 20. 20. Whereby it is diſtinguiſhed from that Pool which was natural. [x] Or, of the valiant: which poſſibly was formerly appointed for the receipt of thoſe chief Captains that ſhould attend upon the King in their courſes, or of ſome other valiant Commanders, who ſhould upon occaſion reſort to Jeruſalem.

17 After him repaired the Levites, Rehum the ſon of Bani: next unto him repaired Haſhabiah, the ruler of the half part of Keilah, in his part.

18 After him repaired Bavai the ſon of Henadad, the ruler of the half part of Keilah.

19 And next to him repaired Ezer the ſon of Jeſhua, the ruler of Mizpah, another piece over againſt the going up to the armory y at the turning of the wall z.

y Either to the houſe of the Forreſt of Lebanon, which was their Armory from Solomon's days, Iſa. 22. 8. or to ſome other place, which either before or ſince that time had been uſed as another, and leſs Armory for common occaſions. z Or, at the corner: or, which is in the corner.

‖ Or, Zaccai.

20 After him Baruch the ſon of ‖ Zabbai, earneſtly repaired a the other piece, from the turning of the wall b, unto the door of the houſe c of Eliaſhib the high prieſt.

a Did his work with eminent diligence and fervency: which is here noted to his commendation. b Or, from the corner, as v. 19. c Unto that part of the Wall which was over againſt, or next to this door.

21 After him repaired Meremoth the ſon of Urijah, the ſon of Koz, another piece, from the door of the houſe of Eliaſhib, even to the end of the houſe of Eliaſhib d.

d Therefore the door was not in the middle of the Houſe, as now they commonly are, but at one end of it.

22 After him repaired the prieſts, the men of the plain e.

e Either of the plains of Jordan; or of the plain Country round about Jeruſalem, as it is called, ch. 12. 28. And they are thus called, becauſe they, or their Parents, either were born, or now did, or formerly had dwelt in thoſe parts; whence they came to Jeruſalem, when the ſervice of the Temple required it.

23 After him repaired Benjamin, and Haſhub, over againſt their houſe: after him repaired Azariah the ſon of Maaſejah, the ſon of Ananiah by his houſe.

24 After him repaired Binnui the ſon of Henadad, another piece, from the houſe of Azariah, unto the turning of the wall, even unto the corner.

* Jer. 32. 2. & 33. 1. & 37. 21.

25 Palal the ſon of Uzai, over againſt the turning of the wall f, and the tower g which lieth out from the kings high houſe h, that was by the * court of the priſon i: after him, Pedajah the ſon of Paroſh.

f In a part of the Wall, which jutted out as the tower here following did, and therefore was oppoſite to, or over againſt that turning. g Or, even the tower. h Either from the Royal Palace: or from ſome other ſmaller houſe which the King formerly built there, either for proſpect or for defence. i A place oft mentioned: of which ſee Jer. 32, 2. & 38. 7, 13.

* 2 Chron. 27. 3.
* Ch. 8. 3. & 12. 37.

26 Moreover the Nethinims dwell in * ‖ Ophel k, unto the place over againſt * the water-gate l toward the eaſt, and the tower that lieth out.

k Or, who dwelt in Ophel: for this ſeems to be only a deſcription of the perſons, whoſe work follows. l So called, becauſe by that Gate Water was brought in, either by the People for the uſe of that part of the City, or rather by theſe Nethinims, who were Gibeonites, for the uſes of the Temple, for which they were drawers of Water, Joſ. 9. 21.

27 After them the Tekoits m repaired another piece, over againſt the great tower that lieth out, even unto the wall of Ophel.

m The ſame ſpoken of before, v. 5. who having diſpatched their firſt ſhare ſooner than their Brethren had done theirs, freely offered their help to ſupply the defects of others, who, as it ſeems, neglected that part of the work which had been committed to them. And this their double diligence is noted both for the greater ſhame of their Nobles, who would not do any part of it, v. 5. and for their own greater honour, who were ſo far from being corrupted by the bad Example of their Nobles, that they were rather quickened and enflamed to greater Zeal and Induſtry in this publick and pious work.

* 2 Kings, 11. 16. Jer. 31. 40.

28 From above * the horſe-gate n repaired the prieſts, every one over againſt his houſe.

n Not that belonging to the King's Palace, 2 Chron. 23. 15. but one of the Gates of the City ſo called, either becauſe nigh unto that were many Stables for Horſes: or becauſe the Horſes commonly went out that way to their watering place.

29 After them repaired Zadock the ſon of Immer, over againſt his houſe: after him repaired alſo Shemajah the ſon of Shechaniah, the keeper of the eaſt-gate o.

o To wit, of the City, or of the Temple: which being the chief Gate, was committed to his particular Care and Cuſtody.

30 After him repaired Hananiah the ſon of Shelemiah, and Hanun the ſixth ſon of Zalaph, another piece: after him repaired Meſhullam the ſon of Berechiah, over againſt his chamber p.

p Or, chambers, the ſingular Number for the plural.

31 After him repaired Malchiah, the gold-ſmiths ſon, unto the place of the Nethinims, and of the merchants, over againſt the gate Miphkad, and to the ‖ going up of the corner.

32 And between the going up of the corner unto the ſheep-gate, repaired the goldſmiths and the merchants.

CHAP. IV.

The Enemies ſcoff and are angry, 1——3. Nehemiah prayeth againſt 'em, and continueth the work, 4, 5. Underſtanding the wrath and deſign of their Enemies, he ſetteth a watch, 7——12. He armeth and encourageth the Labourers, 13——18. And giveth military precepts, 19——23.

* Ch. 2. 10.

BUt it came to paſs, that when * Sanballat heard that we built the wall, he was wroth, and took great indignation, and mocked the Jews a.

a Pretending contempt in his words when he had grief in his Heart.

2 And he ſpake before his brethren b and the army of Samaria c, and ſaid, What do theſe feeble Jews? will they † fortifie themſelves? will they ſacrifice? will they make an end in a day d? will they revive the ſtones out of the heaps of the rubbiſh e which are burnt f?

b Tobiah, v. 3. and Geſhem, ch. 2. 19. and others, whom he calls his Brethren, becauſe of their conjunction with him in office and intereſt. c Whom he deſigned hereby to incenſe againſt them, or at leaſt to underſtand their minds herein. d Do they intend to begin, and finiſh the work, and keep the Feaſt of Dedication by Sacrifice all in one day? for if they ſpend any long time about it, they cannot think that we, and the reſt of their Neighbours, will ſuffer them to do it. Thus he perſuaded himſelf and his Companions, that their attempt was ridiculous; and this miſtake kept him from giving them any diſturbance, till it was too late. So God infatuated him to his own grief and ſhame, and to the advantage of his people. e Will they pick up their broken ſtones out of the Ruines, and patch them together, for other Materials they want. f i. e. Which Stones were burnt, and broken, or conſumed to powder, to wit, by the Chaldeans when they took the City. See on ch. 1. 3.

3 Now Tobiah the Ammonite was by him, and he ſaid, Even that which they build, if a fox go up g, he ſhall even break down their ſtone-wall h.

g He mentions the Foxes, becauſe they were very numerous in thoſe parts, and becauſe in the late Deſolations the Foxes did walk in the Mount and City of Zion, Lamen. 5. 18. wherewith he ſeems to upbraid them. h It is ſo low, that a Fox can eaſily get to the top of it, and ſo weak, and done ſo haſtily and careleſly, that the leaſt thruſt will tumble it down.

4 Hear, O our God, for we are † deſpiſed: and turn their reproach upon their own head i, and give them for a prey in the land of captivity k:

i Let them be really as contemptible as they repreſent us to be. This, and the following requeſts, may ſeem harſh, but they were both juſt, as being directed againſt ſuch malicious, inveterate, and implacable Enemies to God, and to his People, and neceſſary for the vindication, and defence of God's Honour, and Worſhip, and People. k Let them be removed from our Neighbourhood, and carried into Captivity; and there let them find no favour, but further ſeverity. Or, give them for a prey to their Enemies, and let theſe carry them into the land of captivity.

* Pſal. 109. 14, 15.

5 And * cover not their iniquity, and let not their ſin be blotted out from before thee l; for they have provoked thee to anger before the builders m.

l Let their wickedneſs be in thy ſight, ſo as to bring down deſerved judgments upon them, that either they may be convinced and reformed, or others may be warned by their example. God is ſaid to cover or hide ſin when he forbears to puniſh it. m i. e. They have not only provoked us Builders, but Thee alſo. Or, they have provoked or derided the builders to their face. i. e. openly and impudently, in contempt of God, and of this work, which is done by his direction and encouragement.

6 So built we the wall: and all the wall was joyned together unto the half thereof n: for the people had a mind to work.

n Either, 1. in length, or rather, 2. in heighth: for the whole circumference of the Wall was diſtributed among the Builders, who alſo had carried on the work, beginning at the ſheep-gate, and ending there alſo, as appears from ch. 3. 1, 32. and the walls of Jeruſalem are ſaid to be made up, here v. 7.

7 But it came to paſs that when Sanballat, and Tobiah, and the Arabians, and the Ammonites, and the Aſhdodites, heard that † the walls of Jeruſalem were made up, and that the breaches began to be ſtopped o, then they were very wroth, † Heb. healing went up to the wall.

2 Chr. 24. 13.

o i. e. That the breaches which the Chaldeans had made, and left in the walls, were well-nigh ſtopped up.

8 And conſpired all of them together, to come and to fight againſt Jeruſalem, and † to hinder it.

† Heb. to make an error to it.

9 Nevertheleſs, we made our prayer unto our God, and ſet a watch againſt them day and night, becauſe of them.

10 And Judah p ſaid, The ſtrength of the bearers of burdens is decayed, and there is much rubbiſh q, ſo that we are not able to build the wall r.

p i. e. The Jews now dwelling in Judah, to wit, ſome of them being partly terrified by their Enemies, and partly wearied with hard and continual labours. q More than we are able ſuddenly to remove. r Being forced to ſpend our time in removing the rubbiſh, and other works impoſed upon us; and therefore we muſt deſiſt, at leaſt for a ſeaſon.

11 And our adverſaries ſaid, They ſhall not know, neither ſee, till we come in the midſt among them, and ſlay them s, and cauſe the work to ceaſe.

s We will come ſecretly, and unexpectedly upon them, ſo as they ſhall neither foreſee their danger, nor be able to prevent it.

12 And it came to paſs that when the Jews which dwelt by them t, came, they ſaid unto us ten times u, || From all places, whence ye ſhall return unto us, they will be upon you x.

t Or, among them: whereby they came to the knowledge of their Counſels. u i. e. Very often. A certain number for an uncertain. x i. e. They will invade you every way, by which we can come to you, or you to us; and therefore do you keep Watches on every ſide. But theſe words may be otherwiſe rendred thus, On all parts where you ſhall be quiet, or at reſt. (i. e. ſecure: for the Hebrew Schub ſignifies not only to return, but alſo to be quiet, or at eaſe, as Hebricians know) they will be upon us, i. e. upon our people, and City Jeruſalem, where you are. And they rather ſay upon us than upon you, to manifeſt their affection to them, and conjunction with them, and that they looked upon themſelves as Members of the ſame Body and Church with them, and took what was deſigned or done againſt them, as if it were againſt themſelves, and therefore gave them this friendly notice. Or the place may be rendred thus, They told this (to wit, the Enemies intentions) to us ten times, coming from all places where they dwelt, or reſted (Heb. you reſted. The ſecond perſon being put for the third, as it is both in the Hebrew Language, as Gen. 10. 19, 30. & 25. 18. and in the Hebrew Text, Pſal. 22. 9. and in other Languages and Authors: of which ſee my Latine Synopſis upon Gen. 10. 19. and that it is ſo here, we have the conſent of the Seventy, and Arabick, and of ſome modern and accurate Interpreters, who render it by a Verb of the third perſon) about us; whence they came purpoſely to inform and warn us. Or thus, They told this to us ten times from all places whence they did return to us. Which phraſe of returning to us, i. e. to Jeruſalem, ſuits very well with thoſe perſons who came up with their Brethren from Babylon to Jeruſalem, and went thence into ſeveral parts of the Country to dwell, where they thought meet, and returned now, and at other times, as they had occaſion, to their brethren at Jeruſalem.

13 Therefore ſet I † in the lower places behind the wall y, and on the higher places z, I even ſet the people after their families, with their ſwords, their ſpears, and their bows.

y To ſtand by, and within the Walls where they were loweſt and not yet raiſed to their due heighth, and therefore moſt liable to the Enemies aſſault. z Upon the the tops of the Walls where they were finiſhed, and the Towers which were built here and there upon the Wall; whence they might ſhoot arrows, or throw ſtones againſt their Enemies, when they made their Approaches.

14 And I looked, and roſe up, and ſaid unto the nobles, and to the rulers, and to the reſt of the people, Be not ye afraid of them: remember the LORD which is great and terrible, and fight for your brethren, your ſons and your daughters, your wives, and your houſes.

15 And it came to paſs when our enemies heard that it was known unto us, and God had brought their counſel to nought, that we returned all of us to the wall, every one unto his work a.

a Our Enemies being fruſtrated in their hopes, which were wholly built upon the ſecrecy, and ſuddenneſs of their attempt, we knowing this, returned to our buſineſs.

16 And it came to paſs from that time forth b, that the half of my ſervants c wrought in the work, and the other half of them held both the ſpears, the ſhields, and the bows, and the habergeons d; and the rulers were behind all e the houſe of Judah f.

b Leſt our Enemies ſhould repeat their enterprize. c Of my domeſtick Servants, and of my Guards, who ſhould have attended upon my own perſon. d i. e. All their weapons: they ſtood in their Arms prepared for Battel. e Partly to encourage them in their work, and ſometimes to aſſiſt with their own hands: and partly to direct and command them in caſe of an aſſault. f i. e. The Jews who were upon the wall.

17 They which built on the wall, and they that bare burdens, with thoſe that laded, every one with one of his hands wrought in the work, and with the other hand held a weapon g.

g This is not to be taken properly, for they could never have done their work with one hand; and the next Verſe tells us the Sword was not in their hands, but by their ſides; but figuratively; this being a proverbial ſpeech, ſuch as is frequent amongſt the Latines, as when they ſay of a man pretending kindneſs with evil deſign, He carries bread in one hand, and a ſtone in another.

18 For the builders, every one had his ſword girded † by his ſide, and ſo built: and he that ſounded the trumpet h was by me.

h To call the People together, when, and where it was fit and neceſſary.

19 And I ſaid unto the nobles, and to the rulers, and to the reſt of the people, The work is great and large, and we are ſeparated upon the wall, one far from another.

20 In what place therefore ye hear the ſound of the trumpet; reſort ye thither unto us: our God ſhall fight for us.

21 So we laboured in the work: and half of them held the Spears, from the riſing of the morning, till the ſtars † appeared i.

i Working very early, and very late.

22 Likewiſe at the ſame time ſaid I unto the people, Let every one with his ſervant lodge within Jeruſalem k, that in the night they may be a guard to us, and labour on the day.

k Not in the Suburbs, or adjoining Villages, as probably many of them did, returning thence to their work in the morning.

23 So neither I, nor my brethren, nor my ſervants, nor the men of the guard which followed me, none of us put off our cloths l, || ſaving that every one put them off for waſhing m.

l Neither by day, nor by night, as the manner is when we go to Bed; they conſtantly kept themſelves in a readineſs for fighting. m When they were to waſh and cleanſe themſelves from ſome natural or moral impurity, which might befal them or their Garments.

CHAP. V.

The People complain of their Brethren, by reaſon of their Debts, Mortgages, and Bondage, 1——5. Nehemiah rebuketh the Uſurers, and cauſeth them to make a Covenant of Reſtitution, 6——13. He forbeareth his own Allowance, and keepeth Hoſpitality, 14——17. The quantity of his Preparations, and his Prayer, 18, 19.

AND there was a great cry of the people, and of their wives, againſt their brethren the Jews a.

a To wit, the great and rich ones who had oppreſſed their Brethren.

2 For there were that ſaid, We, our ſons, and our daughters are many b: therefore we take up corn for them c, that we may eat, and live.

b Which is in it ſelf a Bleſſing, but to us is turned into a Curſe. c i. e. We are forced by our and their Neceſſities to take up Corn, to wit, upon their own unreaſonable terms, as is here implied, and plainly expreſſed in the following Relation. Others, Let us take up, &c. i. e. ſeeing we do the publick Work, let Proviſion be made for us and our Children out of the publick Stock. But this is no Petition, but a Complaint, as will appear.

3 Some alſo there were that ſaid, We have morgaged our lands, vineyards, and houſes, that we might buy corn, becauſe of the dearth d.

d Which might eaſily happen, both from the multitude of the People now in and near Jeruſalem, and from their building work, which wholly took them up, and kept them from taking care of their own Families, and from the Expectation and Dread of their Enemies Invaſion, which hindred them from going abroad to fetch in Proviſion, and the People round about from bringing it in to them; or from divers other cauſes.

4 There were alſo that ſaid, We have borrowed money for the kings tribute e, and that upon our lands and vineyards.

e Which was laid upon them all. See Ezra 4. 13. & 7. 24.

5 Yet now our fleſh is as the fleſh of our brethren f, our children as their children: and lo, we bring into bondage g our ſons and our daughters h to be ſervants, and ſome of our daughters are brought into bondage already, neither is it in our power to redeem them i: for other men have our lands and vineyards.

f We are of the ſame Nature, and Nation, and Religion with them, although they treat us as if we were Beaſts or Heathens, forgetting both Humanity and God's Law, Deut. 15. 7. g We are compelled to ſell them for our Subſiſtence. h Which was an evidence of their great Neceſſity, becauſe their Daughters were more tender, and weak, and unfit for Bond-ſervice, and more expoſed to Injuries than their Sons. i Which we are allowed to do, Exod. 21. 7. but have not wherewith to do it.

6 And I was very angry when I heard their cry, and theſe words.

7 Then † I conſulted with my ſelf, and I rebuked the nobles, and the rulers, and ſaid unto them, Ye exact uſury every one of his brother k. And I ſet a great aſſembly againſt them l, k Which was againſt the plain and poſitive Law of God, Deut. 23. 19, 20. eſpecially in this time of publick Calamity and Dearth. l I called a publick Congregation, both of the Rulers and People, the greateſt part whereof were free from this Guilt, and therefore more impartial Judges of the matter, and repreſented it to them, that the Offenders might be convinced, and reform this Abuſe; if not for Fear of God, or Love of their Brethren, yet at leaſt for the publick Shame, and the Cries of the Poor.

8 And I ſaid unto them, We, after our ability, have * redeemed our brethren the Jews, which were ſold unto the heathen m; and will ye even ſell your brethren? or ſhall they be ſold unto us n? Then held they their peace, and found nothing to anſwer.

* Lev. 25. 48.

m I, and my Brethren, and Predeceſſors, have uſed our utmoſt Intereſt and Power, both with the Kings of Perſia, that our Brethren might be redeemed from that Bondage into which God had ſold them for their Sins; and with particular Perſons in Babylon, and Perſia, and the adjacent parts, whoſe Bond-ſlaves the Jews were, and who would not part with them without a Price, which we paid for them. n Do you expect that we ſhould pay you a Price for them, as we did to the Babylonians? Or, muſt we uſe as much importunity to ſolicite you for their Redemption, as we did to their Enemies?

9 Alſo I ſaid, It is not good o that ye do: ought *Lev. 25. 36. ye not to walk * in the fear of our God, becauſe of the reproach of the heathen our enemies p?

o i.e. It is a very bad and wicked thing; as this ſame Phraſe is uſed, *Prov.*16.29. & 17.26.& 18.5.& 19.2. A common Figure, called Meioſis, where more is underſtood than is expreſſed. p Who are round about you, and obſerve all your Actions, and will loath and reproach both you for ſuch barbarous uſage of your Brethren, and Religion for your ſakes: Which if you have any Love or Reſpect either to God, or to your ſelves, you will prevent.

10 I likewiſe, and my brethren q, and my ſerpray you let us leave off this uſury.

q To wit, in Office; thoſe who are employed with me in the Government of this People. r In my name, and for my uſe. s As a juſt Recompence for our Pains and Care for the Publick Good, to which we wholly devote our ſelves, even to the neglect of all our private Concerns. But I will not rigorouſly exact, but do freely remit my own right, which, in thoſe Circumſtances, it is my duty to do; and therefore you alſo ought to do ſo, ſeeing I lay no burden upon you, but what I am willing to bear a part of upon my own Shoulders.

11 Reſtore, I pray you, to them, even this day, their lands, their vineyards, their olive-yards, and their houſes, alſo t the hundredth part u of the money, and of the corn, the wine, and the oil, that ye exact of them.

t Alſo require not: which is to be ſupplied out of the next Verſe, where it is expreſſed in their anſwer to, and grant of this deſire. u Which they required every Month for the uſe of their Monies or Goods, according to the Cuſtom then uſed, and afterwards by the Romans.

12 Then ſaid they, We will reſtore them x, and will require nothing of them y, ſo will we do as thou * Jer. 34. 8, 9. ſayeſt. Then I called the prieſts z, and * took an oath of them a, that they ſhould do according to this promiſe.

x To wit, the Lands and Houſes. y For the hundredth part. z Either 1. As Delinquents in that kind; or rather as Witneſſes; that the Oath being taken before the Prieſts, who acted in God's Name and ſtead, the Oath might make the more deep and durable Impreſſion upon their Conſciences. See *Numb.*5.19. 1 Kings 1.8,31,32. a Not of the Prieſts laſt mentioned, for it doth not appear that any of them were guilty, and it is abſurd to think that they only were guilty of this Extortion, as they muſt be, if this them belongs to them only; but of all the Perſons who were before charged with this Crime, *v.*3,4. whether Prieſts or others, as is evident from the Text, and from the nature of the thing.

13 Alſo I ſhook my lap b, and ſaid, So God ſhake out every man from his houſe, and from his labour c, that performeth not this promiſe; even thus be he † Heb. empty or void. ſhaken out, and † emptied. And all the congregation ſaid, Amen, and praiſed the LORD. And the people did according to this promiſe.

b i.e. The Lap or extream parts of my Garment, which I firſt folded together, and then ſhook it and ſcattered it aſunder. This was a Form of Swearing then in uſe. c i.e. From enjoying what he hath got by his labour.

14 Moreover from the time that I was appointed to be their governour in the land of Judah, from the twentieth year, even unto the two and thirtieth year of Artaxerxes the king, that is, twelve years d, I and my brethren e have not eaten the bread of the governour f.

d Not that he continued ſo long together at Jeruſalem, of which ſee ch. 2. 6. but that he ſo long governed Jeruſalem by himſelf when he was preſent, and in his abſence, by a Deputy. e Either my Fellow-officers, or they whom I left in my ſtead, who as they were to do my work, ſo might have required my rights. f i.e. That allowance which by the Laws of God and Nations, and of the King of Perſia, the Governours might require for the Maintenance of their own Dignity and Office, and of the publick Service.

15 But the former governours g that had been before me, were chargeable unto the people, and had taken of them bread and wine, beſide forty ſhekels of ſilver h; yea even their ſervants bare rule over the people i: but ſo did not I, becauſe of the fear of God k.

g Not Ezra, who was no Governour, but only a Prieſt ſent to teach them, and to rectifie Church-abuſes, nor Zerubbabel, but others between him and Nehemiah, whom he forbears to name, becauſe he deſigned not to diſgrace any Perſon, but only to reform the Abuſes. h Which they required of the People for every day to defray their other Expences. i i.e. Ruled them with Rigor and Cruelty; which fault of the Servants is charged upon their Maſters, the former Governours, becauſe they did not reſtrain nor puniſh them. k Becauſe I feared to break Gods Commands, or to incur his Diſpleaſure by ſuch immoderate and unſeaſonable Oppreſſions of the People. This he ſpeaks not to commend himſelf, but rather to diminiſh his Praiſe, and to ſhew that this was no heroical Action, nor work of Supererogation, to be admired rather than imitated; but only his Duty in that caſe, which for his own ſake he durſt not decline; and conſequently that it was their Duty alſo now to relinquiſh even thoſe Rights which in other Times and Conditions they might lawfully require.

16 Yea, alſo I continued in the work of this wall l, neither bought we any land m: and all my ſervants were gathered thither unto the work.

l Overſeeing, directing, and encouraging the Workmen, which was my whole buſineſs; and this at my own Coſt. m Of our poor Brethren, whoſe Neceſſities gave me abundant opportunity of enriching my ſelf with good Bargains. But I durſt not build my Houſe upon other Mens Ruins.

17 Moreover, there were † at my table an hundred † Commonly, or very frequently.
and fifty † of the Jews and Rulers n, beſides thoſe that came unto us from among the heathen that are † Or thereabouts.
about us.

n Not only Jews of the inferior ſort, for whom meaner Proviſions might ſuffice, but alſo their Rulers, ſuch as there were in many places, for whom better Proviſion was fit; who reſorted to him upon all occaſions, either to pour out their Complaints, as here they did; or to give him notice of the Enemies deſigns; or to receive his orders and directions.

18 Now that which was prepared for me daily, was one ox, and ſix choice ſheep; alſo fowls were prepared for me, and once in ten days, ſtore of all ſorts of wine: yet for all this required not I the bread of the governour o, becauſe the bondage was heavy upon this people.

o But bore it out of my own Eſtate: Which was very conſiderable, his Office in the Perſian Court being a place of very great Profit as well as Honour, and that Profit no doubt continued to him in this his abſence from the King. From this great and daily Expence, it ſeems more than probable, that Nehemiah did not continue here for twelve years together, as ſome would think, or at leaſt that he did not this all that time, but only during the great and preſent Exigences and Diſtreſſes of the Jews, which ceaſed in good part after the Walls were built, and the Hearts of all the Jews revived, and their Enemies diſpirited thereby.

19 * Think upon me, my God, for good, according *Ch.13.22 to all that I have done for this people p.

p As I have done thy People good for thy ſake, ſo do me good for thine own ſake; for thou art pleaſed, and haſt promiſed graciouſly to reward us according to our works, and to meet to Men the ſame meaſure which they meet to others.

CHAP. VI.

Sanballat and Tobiah ſending to Nehemiah to meet them, intend to do him miſchief, 1, 2. Nehemiah's anſwer, 3. They charge him with Rebellion, 4——7. his anſwer to it, 8, 9. Shemajah's falſe Prophecies to diſcourage Nehemiah, 10. his reply, 11——13. The work is finiſhed to the terror of the Enemies, 15, 16. Secret Correſpondence between the Nobles of Judah and Tobiah, 17, 18.

NOW it came to paſs, when Sanballat, and Tobiah, and Geſhem the Arabian, and the reſt of our enemies heard that I had built the wall, and that there was no breach left therein; (though at that time I had not ſet up the doors a upon the gates.)

a Not all of them. See on ch. 3. 1, 2, 3.

2 Then Sanballat, and Geſhem ſent unto me, ſaying, Come, let us meet together b in ſome one of the villages in the plain of Ono c. But they thought to do me miſchief.

b To conſult about the common Service of our Maſter the King of Perſia; or to make a friendly Accommodation. c A City in the Tribe of Benjamin: Of which ſee chap. 11. 35. and 1 Chron. 8. 12.

3 And I ſent meſſengers unto them, ſaying, I am doing a great work d, ſo that I cannot come down: why ſhould the work ceaſe, whilſt I leave it, and come down to you.

d He tells them one, but not the only, nor the principal reaſon of his refuſal, becauſe his coming might cauſe the work to ceaſe, not only by the neglect of it during his abſence, but by his death, which they by this means might compaſs; though he thought it not fit to expreſs ſo much to them.

4 Yet they ſent unto me four times after this ſort, and I anſwered them after the ſame manner.

5 Then ſent Sanballat his ſervant unto me, in like manner the fifth time, with an open letter e in his hand:

e Thereby bidding open Defiance to him, as before he had uſed ſecret Practices; and intimating that he would do that by manifeſt force, which he had intended to do by ſudden ſurprize.

6 Wherein was written, It is reported among the heathen f, and ‖ Gaſhmu g ſaith it, that thou and the ‖ Or, Geſhem ver. 2.
Jews think to rebel: for which cauſe thou buildeſt the wall, that thou maiſt be their king, according to theſe words h.

f The neighbouring People whom you proudly and diſdainfully call Heathens or Gentiles. g Called Geſhem, v. 1. Who affirmed it and would prove it. h i. e. According to theſe reports; or, that thou maiſt juſtifie and verifie theſe Rumours. Others according to theſe things, i. e. When theſe things which thou art now doing ſhall be finiſhed. But the firſt ſenſe ſeems moſt agreeable to the uſe of the ſame words in the next verſe.

7 And thou haſt alſo appointed prophets to preach of thee at Jeruſalem, ſaying, There is a king in Judah i: and now ſhall it be reported to the king, according to theſe words, Come now therefore, and let us take counſel together k.

i We have now a King of our own Nation, and are free from the Bondage of a Forreign Yoke. k That we may impartially examine the matter, that either thy Innocency may be cleared, and falſe Accuſations may be prevented; or if thou art guilty, the King may be informed.

8 Then I ſent unto him, ſaying, There are no ſuch things done as thou ſaiſt, but thou feigneſt them out of thine own heart.

9 For they all made us afraid l, ſaying, Their hands ſhall be weakned from the work, that it be not done. Now therefore, O God, ſtrengthen my hands.

l i. e. They endeavoured to do ſo, and actually did terrifie ſome Perſons.

10 Afterward I came unto the houſe of Shemajah, the ſon of Delajah m, the ſon of Mehetabel, who was ſhut up n; and he ſaid, Let us meet together in the houſe of God, within the Temple o; and let us ſhut the doors of the temple; for they will come to ſlay thee; yea, in the night will they come to ſlay thee.

m Probably one of the chief of the Prieſts, 1 Chron. 24. 26. n In his Chamber adjoyning to the Temple, upon pretence of ſingular Devotion, Sequeſtration from the World, and ſpecial Acquaintance, and much Communion with God in his Retirements, after the manner of the Prophets; and withal upon pretence of certain knowledge, which he had by the Spirit of God and of Prophecy, concerning their approaching Danger, from which they could be ſafe no where but in the Temple, which the very Heathens owned for a Sanctuary, which they might not violate. o For the danger is ſo near, that we cannot ſafely tarry here ſo long as to conſult what to do in this juncture. His deſign herein was partly to diſcourage and diſgrace Nehemiah, and thereby to ſtrike a Dread into all the People, and give a ſpeedy and full ſtop to the work; partly to prepare the way for the Enemies to aſſault and take the City, whileſt Nehemiah was ſhut up, and unable to give them any oppoſition; partly to juſtifie their Accuſation of Nehemiah to the King by his flight upon it; and partly, that there by the help of other Prieſts, who were conſcious of his Plot, he might either deſtroy him, or ſecure his Perſon till the City by ſome of his Complices were betrayed into the Enemies hands.

11 And I ſaid, Should ſuch a man as I p flee? and who is there that being as I am, would go into the temple to ſave his life q? I will not go in.

p I the chief Governour, upon whoſe Preſence, and Counſel, and Conduct, the very Life and Being of the whole City and Nation in a great meaſure depends: I who have profeſſed ſuch Reſolution, and Courage, and Confidence in God. I who have had ſuch eminent Experience of God's gracious and powerful Aſſiſtances, of his calling me to this Employment, and carrying me through it when our Danger was greater than now it is. Shall I now diſhonour God and Religion, and betray the People and City of God by my Cowardiſe? God forbid. This is not the counſel of God, nor of a Friend, but a Plot of mine Enemies, as it here follows. q As if I had an evil Cauſe or Conſcience; as if I were a Malefactor, who fled thither for Refuge; as if I durſt not truſt God with my Preſervation, except I went into the Temple, which it is not lawful for me, being no Prieſt, to do.

12 And lo, I perceived r that God had not ſent him, but that he pronounced this prophecy againſt me: for Tobiah and Sanballat had hired him.

r Partly by conſidering the ſinful Nature and pernicious Conſequence of this Counſel; partly by the Suggeſtion of God's Spirit, whoſe Counſel and Help I ſought in this matter; and partly by the Event which diſcovered that there was no ſuch Danger from the Approach of the Enemy, as was pretended.

13 Therefore was he hired, that I ſhould be afraid, and do ſo, and ſin s, and that they might have matter for an evil report, that they might reproach me t.

s By going into a place forbidden to me, and that in ſuch a time, and manner, and upon ſuch an occaſion; which would have been both Sinful and Shameful. See on v. 11. t As a Coward, and conſcious of my own guilt, that ſo they might make me contemptible and odious, both to my own People, and to the King of Perſia.

14 My God, think thou upon Tobiah and Sanballat according to theſe their works, and on the propheteſs Noadiah u, and the reſt of the prophets that would have put me in fear.

u One that falſly pretended to the Spirit of Prophecy, to deceive and deſtroy Nehemiah. He prays to God to remember and puniſh theſe Falſe Prophets, becauſe he was not yet in a capacity to do it, having ſuch powerful Enemies round about him, and ſo many rich and potent Jews highly diſcontented for their great loſs by his means, ch. 5.

15 So the wall was finiſhed in the twenty and fifth day of the month Elul x, in fifty and two days y.

x Anſwering part to our Auguſt, and part to September. y To be computed either 1. From the time of Sanballat's ſending this Letter to him: Or, as moſt judge, from the beginning of the Work: Which though a great thing, yet it is not at all incredible, conſidering 1. That the Walls and Gates were not wholly pulled down by the Chaldeans: For to what purpoſe ſhould they make that waſte of time and labour. 2. That where the Walls were thrown down, yet the Materials remained, which they now uſed. 3. That in the building of the Walls they minded not Curioſity, but only Strength and Safety. 4. The great numbers of the Builders, and the prudent Diſtribution of the Work among them, and their admirable Zeal and Diligence in the Work. 5. That there want not parallel Inſtances even in Heathen Authors; for both Curtius and Arian report, that Alexander the Great built the Walls of new Alexandria, which contained above ſeven Miles in length, within twenty days ſpace. 6. That there was an eminent hand of God in carrying on this Work, which their very Enemies here acknowledge.

z i. e. In their Opinion, or themſelves being Judges. For though ordinarily Men are very prone to judge partially, and ſtill to flatter themſelves with vain Hopes and Fancies, yet this caſe was ſo clear and remarkable, that they began to deſpair. Now they ſaw that all was loſt, that their Deſigns were broken, and that their Miſchief was now likely to fall upon their own heads. a By that admirable Courage, and Conſtancy, and quickneſs wherewith this Work was managed, notwithſtanding all their Difficulties and Diſcouragements. b That it was the Work of that mighty God of Iſrael, whom they had great reaſon to fear; and withal they took it for an ill Omen to them, and a ſure Preſage that God would ſtill watch over that City and People, and cruſh thoſe who ſhould oppoſe or diſturb them.

17 Moreover, in thoſe days the nobles of Judah † ſent many letters unto Tobiah c, and the letters of Tobiah came unto them.

c Correſponding with him againſt Nehemiah, and againſt their own City and Nation.

18 For there were many in Judah ſworn unto him d, becauſe he was the ſon in law of Shechaniah the ſon of Arah; and his ſon Ichanan had taken the daughter of Meſhullam, the ſon of Berechiah e.

d To be true to him in the proſecution of his wicked deſigns. e This is noted to ſhew the miſchief of ſuch unequal and forbidden Marriages; and how reaſonable and neceſſary Ezra's Action was in the diſſolution of them.

19 Alſo they reported his good deeds before me, and uttered my ‖ words to him: and Tobiah ſent letters to put me in fear.

CHAP. VII.

Nehemiah committeth the Charge of Jeruſalem to Hanani and Hananiah, 1, 2. His Advice to them, 3, 4. He finds out a Regiſter of the Genealogy of them that came at firſt out of Babylon, 5—65. The whole number of them, 66, 67. Their Subſtance, 68, 69. Their Offerings, 70—73.

NOW it came to paſs when the wall was built, and I had ſet up the doors, and the porters, and the ſingers, and the Levites were appointed a.

a i. e. When I had taken order that the Levites ſhould be ſummoned from all places to celebrate the Dedication of the Wall, as it was done, ch. 12. 27.

2 That I gave my brother Hanani b, and Hananiah the ruler of the palace c, charge over Jeruſalem d: (for he e was a faithful man f, and feared God g above many h.)

h Of whom ſee ch. 1. 1, 2. c i. e. Of Nehemiah's Court, juſtly ſo called, becauſe he lived in great Splendor, and like a Vice-Roy, though it was wholly at his own charge. d To preſerve its Peace and Safety, and to take particular care of the ſhutting the Gates of the City. e To wit, Hananiah laſt mentioned; for it was needleſs to ſay any thing in commendation of Hanani, who had ſhewn his Piety and Zeal for God and his Country, in taking a tedious Journey from Jeruſalem to Shuſhan, to inform Nehemiah of the ſad Eſtate of Jeruſalem, and to implore his helping hand to relieve it, chap. 1. f He choſe not Magiſtrates and Officers out of any partial or carnal Reſpects to his own Kindred, ar Acquaintance, or Favourites, but from true Piety and Prudence, ſuch as were fitteſt for, and would be moſt Faithful in their Employments. g This is added as the Ground and Reaſon, both why he was Faithful, and why Nehemiah put ſuch Truſt and Confidence in him, becauſe he knew that the Fear of God would keep him from yielding to thoſe Temptations to Perfidiouſneſs, which he was likely to meet with when Nehemiah was gone, and againſt which a Man deſtitute of God's fear hath no ſufficient fence. h More than moſt Men did, or, above the common pitch of Piety.

3 And I ſaid unto them, Let not the gates of Jeruſalem be opened, until the ſon be hot i; and while the k ſtand by, let them ſhut the doors, and bar them, and appoint watches of the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, every one in his watch, and every one to be over againſt his houſe l.

i i.e. Till it be clear and broad day; when Enemies approaching may be diſcovered, and the People of the City will be ready for the Defence in caſe of an Aſſault. k i. e. The Watches appointed to that end, as is manifeſt from the following words. l i.e. Every one in his turn, keeping watch with others in that watching-place which is next to his houſe.

4 Now the city was † large and great: but the people were few therein, and the houſes were not built m.

m i. e. Not all, nor compleatly built; but only ſome ſlight Buildings of Boards or Stones were made for the preſent uſe of the generality of the People.

5 And my God put into mine heart n, to gather together the nobles and the rulers, and the people o, that they might be reckoned by genealogy p, and I found a regiſter of the genealogy of them which came up at the firſt q, and found written therein;

n This Action, though meerly prudential, he doth not aſcribe to himſelf, or his own Wit, but to the Gift, and Grace of God directing and inclining him to it. o Not only for the particular end here mentioned, but for divers other weighty purpoſes and matters, of which the following Chapters treat. p That ſo it might appear to what Families each perſon belonged, and where their ancient Habitations lay, which for a great number of them were in the City, the repleniſhing of which was now his deſign. q To wit, with Zerubbabel, as it follows, v. 7. But this following Catalogue differs in ſome particulars from that Ezra 2. of which ſee the Notes there.

* Ezra 2. 1,&c.

6 * Theſe are the children of the province, that went up out of the captivity, of thoſe that had been carried away, whom Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon had carried away, and came again to Jeruſalem, and to Judah, every one to his city;

‖ Or, Seraiah.

7 Who came with Zerubbabel: Jeſhua, Nehemia, ‖ Azariah, Raamiah, Nahamani, Mordecai, Bilſhan, Miſpereth, Bigvai, Nahum, Baanah: the number, I ſay, of the men of the people of Iſrael was this:

8 The children of Paroſh, two thouſand an hundred ſeventy and two.

9 The children of Shephatieth, three hundred ſeventy and two.

10 The children of Arah, ſix hundred fifty and two.

11 The children of Pahath-Moab, of the children of Jeſhua, and Joab, two thouſand and eight hundred and eighteen.

12 The children of Elam, a thouſand two hundred fifty and four.

13 The children of Zattu, eight hundred forty and five.

14 The children of Zaccai, ſeven hundred and threeſcore.

‖ Or, Bani.

15 The children of ‖ Binnui, ſix hundred forty and eight.

16 The children of Bebai, ſix hundred twenty and eight.

17 The children of Azgad, two thouſand three hundred twenty and two.

18 The children of Adonikam, ſix hundred threeſcore and ſeven.

19 The children of Bigvai, two thouſand threeſcore and ſeven.

20 The children of Adin, ſix hundred fifty and five.

21 The children of Ater of Hezekiah, ninety and eight.

22 The children of Haſhum, three hundred twenty and eight.

23 The children of Bezai, three hundred twenty and four.

‖ Or, Jora.

24 The children of ‖ Hariph, an hundred and twelve.

25 The children of ‖ Gibbeon, ninety and five.

26 The men of Bethlehem, and Netophah, an hundred fourſcore and eight.

27 The men of Anathoth, an hundred twenty and eight.

28 The men of ‖ Beth-azmaveth, forty and two.

29 The men of ‖ Kirjath-jearim, Chephirah, and Beeroth, ſeven hundred forty and three.

30 The men of Ramah, and Geba, ſix hundred twenty and one.

31 The men of Michmaſh, an hundred and twenty and two.

32 The men of Beth-el and Ai, an hundred twenty and three.

33 The men of the other Nebo, fifty and two.

* See v. 12.

34 The children of the other * Elam, a thouſand two hundred fifty and four.

35 The children of Harim three hundred and twenty.

36 The children of Jericho, three hundred forty and five.

37 The children of Lod, Hadid, and Ono, ſeven hundred twenty and one.

38 The children of Sanaah, three thouſand nine hundred and thirty.

* 1 Chron. 24.7.

39 The prieſts: the children of * Jedajah of the houſe of Jeſhua, nine hundred ſeventy and three.

40 The children of Immer, a thouſand fifty and two.

41 The children of Paſhur, a thouſand two hundred forty and ſeven.

42 The children of Harim, a thouſand and ſeventeen.

‖ Or, Hodaviah, Ezra 2.40. or, Judah, Ezra 3.9.

43 The Levites: the children of Jeſhua, of Kadmiel, and of the children of ‖ Hodevah, ſeventy and four.

44 The ſingers: the children of Aſaph, an hundred forty and eight.

56 The children of Neziah, the children of Hatipha.

60 All the Nethinims, and the children of Solomons ſervants, were three hundred ninety and two.

61 * And theſe were they which went up alſo from Tel-melah, Tel-hareſha, Cherub, Addon and Immer: but they could not ſhew their fathers houſe, nor their ‖ ſeed, whether they were of Iſrael.

62 The children of Delajah, the children of Tobiah, the children of Nekoda, ſix hundred forty and two.

63 And of the prieſts: the children of Habajah, the children of Koz, the children of Barzillai, which took one of the daughters of Barzillai the Gileadite to wife, and was called after their name.

64 Theſe ſought their regiſter among thoſe that were reckoned by genealogy, but it was not found: therefore were they as polluted put from the prieſthood.

65 And ‖ the Tirſhatha ſaid unto them, that they ſhould not eat of the moſt holy things, till there ſtood up a prieſt with Urim and Thummim.

66 The whole congregation together, was forty and two thouſand, three hundred and threeſcore.

67 Beſide their man-ſervants and their maid-ſervants, of whom there were ſeven thouſand three hundred thirty and ſeven: and they had two hundred forty and five ſinging-men, and ſinging-women.

68 Their horſes ſeven hundred thirty and ſix: their mules two hundred forty and five:

70 And † ſome of the chief of the fathers gave unto the work: the Tirſhatha r gave to the treaſure a thouſand drams of gold, fifty baſons, five hundred and thirty prieſts garments.

r i. e. The Governour, to wit, Nehemiah. So it is no wonder that the number of the moneys, and other things here contributed, differ from that Ezra 2. becauſe this is another collection; that was made in Zorobabel's time, and this in Ezra's.

71 And ſome of the chief of the fathers gave to the treaſure of the work, twenty thouſand drams of gold, and two thouſand and two hundred pound of ſilver.

72 And that which the reſt of the people gave, was twenty thouſand drams of Gold, and two thouſand pound of ſilver, and threeſcore and ſeven prieſts garments.

73 So the prieſts, and the Levites, and the porters, and the ſingers, and ſome of the people, and the Nethinims, and all Iſrael, dwelt in their cities; and when the ſeventh month came, the children of Iſrael were in their cities.

CHAP. VIII.

Ezra bringeth, and expoundeth the Law of Moſes, and bleſſeth God with the people, 1——8. Nehemiah and Ezra comfort the people, 9---12. The peoples forwardneſs to hear, and to be inſtructed in the Law, 13——15. They make themſelves booths, 16, 17. and keep a faſt ſeven days, 18.

AND all * the people gathered themſelves together as one man, into the ſtreet that was before the water-gate a, and they ſpake unto Ezra * the ſcribe, to bring the book of the law of Moſes, which the LORD had commanded to Iſrael.

* Ezra 3.1.
* Ezra 7.6.

a Of which, ſee Nehem. 3. 26.

2 And Ezra the prieſt b brought the law before the congregation, both of men and women, and all † that could hear with underſtanding c, upon the firſt day of the ſeventh month.

† Heb. that underſtood in hearing.

b Who came 12 or 13 years before Nehemiah to Jeruſalem; and either tarried there, or went back to Babylon, being forced to do ſo by the Kings command, or indiſpenſible occaſions, and then returned again with Nehemiah. c i. e. And ſuch children as were come to years of underſtanding.

3 And he read therein before the ſtreet that was before the water-gate, † from the morning until mid-day, before the men and the women, and thoſe that could underſtand: and the ears of all the people were attentive unto the book of the law.

4 And Ezra the ſcribe ſtood upon a † pulpit of wood, which they had made for the purpoſe, and beſide him ſtood Mattithiah, and Shema, and Anajah, and Urijah, and Hilkiah, and Maaſeiah on his right hand, and on his left hand, Pedajah, and Miſhael, and Malchiah, and Haſhum, and Haſhbadana, Zechariah, and Meſhullam d.

d Partly to declare their conſent and concurrence with Ezra in what he ſaid and did: and partly that they, or ſome of them might bear a part in the work.

5 And Ezra opened the book in the † ſight of all the people (for he was above all the people) and when he opened it, all the people ſtood up e.

e Either in reference to God's Word; of which ſee Numb. 11. 32. Judges 3. 20. Or that they might hear his words the more diſtinctly: or rather, becauſe they obſerved that Ezra compoſed himſelf to prayer or thankſgiving; which is here generally declared, but doubtleſs was more particularly and largely expreſſed in that Aſſembly, as appears by their anſwering Amen, Amen, to his prayer.

6 And Ezra bleſſed the LORD the great God: and all the people anſwered, Amen, amen, with lifting up their hands: and they bowed their heads, and worſhipped the LORD with their faces to the ground.

7 Alſo Jeſhua, and Bani and Sherebiah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethar, Hodijah, Maaſeiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan, Pelaiah, and the Levites cauſed the people to underſtand the law f: and the people ſtood in their place g.

f As well the words, which being Hebrew, now needed to be tranſlated into the Chaldee or Syriack Language, which was now, and henceforth the common language of that people, who together with their Religion, had alſo in a great part loſt their language; as alſo the ſenſe and meaning of them: they expounded the mind and will of God in what they read, and applied it to the peoples preſent condition, as they ſaw fit, as the manner of the Prophets generally was. And hence the people were ſo deeply affected with it. g i. e. In their ſeveral places and ſtations into which the company ſeems to have been diſtributed for conveniency of hearing; it not being likely that ſo vaſt a Congregation could diſtinctly hear one mans voice. Or, by their ſtations, i. e. by the ſeveral ſtations of the Levites, and perſons laſt named; who ſeem to have had ſeveral ſcaffolds, by comparing this with ch. 9. 4. upon which they ſtood, as Ezra did upon his Pulpit, v. 4.

8 So they read h in the book, in the law of God diſtinctly, and gave the ſenſe i, and cauſed them to underſtand the reading k.

h To wit, Ezra and his Companions ſucceſſively or ſeverally: i. e. The meaning of the Hebrew words, which they expounded in the common language. k i. e. That which they read, to wit, the holy Scripture: the action being put for the object, as viſion is oft put for the thing ſeen, and hearing for the thing heard, and fear for the thing feared. So they gave them both a tranſlation of the Hebrew words into the Chaldee, and an expoſition of the things contained in them, and of the duty incumbent upon the people by virtue of them, the declaration whereof was a great part of the Prieſts work, Mal. 2. 7.

9 And Nehemiah, which is ‖ the Tirſhatha, and Ezra the prieſt, the ſcribe, and the Levites that taught the people, ſaid unto all the people, * This day is holy unto the LORD your God l, mourn not nor weep: for all the people wept m, when they heard the words of the law.

‖ Or, the governour. Ezra 2. 63.
* Num. 29. 1. Deut. 16. 14, 15.

l To wit, as a day of feaſting and thankſgiving to God, and rejoycing in his mercies: for otherwiſe even faſting days were holy to God in the general, though not in the ſenſe here meant. m Out of a deep ſenſe of their great guilt, and of their extream danger by reaſon of it.

10 Then he ſaid unto them, Go your way, eat the fat, and drink the ſweet n, and ſend portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared o: for this day is holy unto our LORD p, neither be ye ſorry, for the joy of the LORD is your ſtrength q.

n Feaſt before the Lord, as the duty of the day obligeth you to do. o For the relief of your poor brethren, who elſe muſt mourn whilſt you rejoyce. See of this duty and practice, Deut. 16. 11, 14. Eſth. 9. 19. p Being the Feaſt of Trumpets, Levit. 23. 24. and the beginning of this joyful month, wherein ſo many days of feaſting and thankſgiving were to be obſerved. q i. e. Rejoycing in God in the manner preſcribed in his word, or ſerving him with cheerfulneſs, and thankfulneſs, which is your duty always, but now eſpecially, will give you that ſtrength both of mind and body, which you greatly need, both to perform all the duties required of you, and to indure and oppoſe all the crafty counſels and malicious deſigns of your enemies againſt you; whereas this dejection of mind, and exceſſive grief, if you indulge it, will both offend God, and damp your ſpirits, and weaken your very bodies, and make you unfit for Gods ſervice, or for your own neceſſary occaſions, and ſo an eaſie prey to your enemies.

11 So the Levites ſtilled all the people r, ſaying, Hold your peace s, for the day is holy, neither be ye grieved.

r Whoſe paſſions being once raiſed, could not ſuddenly be compoſed. s Ceaſe from weeping and mournful cries, and turn your lamentations into thankſgivings.

12 And all the people went their way to eat, and to drink, and to ſend portions, and to make great mirth, becauſe they had underſtood the words that were declared unto them t.

t Becauſe they now knew God's mind, and their own duty, which they were reſolved to practiſe; which gave them ground of hope and truſt in God's mercy, and conſequently of great and juſt joy.

13 And on the ſecond day were gathered together the chief of the fathers of all the people, the prieſts and the Levites u, unto Ezra the ſcribe, even ‖ to underſtand the words of the law x.

u Chuſing rather to confeſs their ignorance for their edification, then vainly to pretend to more knowledge than they had: wherein they ſhew both true humility, and ſerious godlineſs, that they were more careful to learn and practice their duty than to preſerve their reputation with the people. x That they might more exactly underſtand the meaning of ſome things which they had heard before, and ſo inſtruct the people in them.

14 And they found y written in the law which the LORD had commanded † by Moſes, that the children of Iſrael ſhould dwell in * booths in the feaſt of the ſeventh month.

* Lev. 23. 34. Deut. 16. 13.

y Upon Ezra's information, and their diſcourſe with him.

15 And that they ſhould publiſh z and proclaim in all their cities, and in Jeruſalem, ſaying, Go forth unto the mount a, and fetch olive-branches, and pine-brances, and myrtle-branches, and palm-branches, and branches of thick trees b, to make booths, as it is written.

z i. e. And they found this alſo written, which is to be ſupplyed out of the former verſe, that they ſhould, &c. which, though it be not particularly required, ſo as is expreſſed in the words here following, yet in the general is required by virtue of that Precept, Lev. 23. 4. Numb. 10. 10. And according to this tranſlation, it muſt be underſtood in the cloſe of this verſe, that they did accordingly publiſh and proolaim, &c. But theſe words may be rendred, which (as this Hebrew word is rendred here, v. 14. and moſt commonly) alſo (ſo the Particle Vau is uſed, Iſa. 6. 1. Jer. 1. 3.) they did publiſh, &c. For ſo they did, as is evident and acknowledged; and it ſeems fit that ſo much ſhould be expreſſed; and theſe words being ſo particular and proper to this ſpecial occaſion, ſeem to intimate, that this is rather an hiſtorical relation of what they now did, than a declaration of that which the law required them to do, which was but in very general terms, and ſo exact and not particular as this following precept is ſaid to be. a The mount of Olives, which was next Jeruſalem, and ſtored with Olive-branches, and probably with the reſt here mentioned: for theſe Trees may ſeem to have been planted hereabouts principally, for the uſe of this Capital City in this very Feaſt, which, though, long neglected, ſhould have been celebrated once every year. And therefore this place ſeems to be here deſigned as the moſt eminent place, but with an uſual Synecdoche, this place being put for any place neareſt to the ſeveral Cities of Judah, where theſe branches were to be procured. b Of which ſee on Lev. 23. 34. Deut. 16. 13.

16 So the people went forth, and brought them, and made themſelves booths, every one upon the roof of his houſe c, and in their courts d, and in the courts of the houſe of God, and in the ſtreet of the water-gate, and in the ſtreet of the gate of Ephraim e.

c For the houſes there were made flat; of which ſee Deut. 22. 8. d Belonging to their own Houſes: for theſe might be any where in the open air. e That Gate of the city which led to the Tribe of Ephraim.

17 And all the congregation of them that were come again out of the captivity, made booths, and ſate under the booths: for f ſince the days of Jeſhua the ſon of Nun, unto that day, had not the children of Iſrael done ſo g: and there was very great gladneſs.

f Or, ſurely, as the Hebrew Chi is oft uſed, as hath been noted before. For the following words ſeem not ſo much to give a reaſon of what was laſt ſaid or done concerning their dwelling in booths; as to contain the holy Writers reflection upon the preſent celebration of this Feaſt. g Either 1. So as to the matter or ſubſtance of the thing. So it implies that all this while the Feaſt of Tabernacles was not obſerved. Which ſeems altogether improbable, conſidering how expreſly this was commanded to be celebrated, Lev. 23. &c. and what excellent Kings and Prieſts, and Prophets there had been within that time, ſuch as were perſons of great underſtanding, and moſt expert and ſtudious in God's Word, and therefore could not be ignorant of ſo plain a duty; and withal ſo throughly pious, and careful, and zealous for God, and the obſervation of his Law and Worſhip, and ſome of them commended for their univerſal Obedience to all God's Commands; and therefore would not be guilty of ſo groſs a neglect. Beſides that this Feaſt was obſerved, is ſufficiently implied in 1 Kings 8. 2, 65. and 2 Chron. 7. 9. and is particularly expreſſed Ezra 3. 4. Or rather, 2. So, as to the manner and circumſtances. They never kept this feaſt ſo joyfully, as the next words declare, having not only the ſame cauſes of rejoycing which they formerly had, but ſome ſpecial cauſes to increaſe their joy, to wit, the remembrance of their ſtupendious deliverance both out of the Land of their Captivity, and out of the hands of their wicked and malicious Neighbours ever ſince their return, and eſpecially now when they were new building the Walls of Jeruſalem; they never kept it ſo ſolemnly and religiouſly: for whereas at other times, only the firſt and laſt day of that Feaſt were celebrated with an holy convocation, Levit. 23. 35, 36. John 7. 37. now there was an holy convocation, and the People aſſembled, and attended upon the reading of the Law every day of this Feaſt, as is noted in the next verſe.

18 Alſo day by day, from the firſt day unto the laſt day, he read in the book of the law of God b: and they kept the feaſt ſeven days, and on the eighth day was † a ſolemn aſſembly, * according unto the manner. † Heb. a reſtraint. * Lev. 23. 36.

b Which was commanded to be done at this Feaſt, Deut. 31. 10, 11, 12. though not enjoyned to be done every day, as now out of a ſingular zeal they did.

CHAP. IX.

The ſolemn faſt and repentance of the people, 1, 2. and the manner of it, 3. The Levites confeſs and bleſs God for his goodneſs to them, and their fathers, 4——8. in Egypt. 9, 10. in their journey out of it, 11, 12. upon Mount Sinai, 13, 14. in their journey towards Canaan, 15--18. in the Wilderneſs, 19——21. in driving out the Nations before them, 22——26. in hearing their prayer when in trouble, and ſaving them, 27——31. They confeſs their ſins, 32——37. and ſeal a Covenant, 38.

NOw in the twenty and fourth day of this month a, the children of Iſrael were aſſembled with faſting, and with ſackcloths, and with earth upon them.

a The next day but one after the Feaſt of Tabernacles, which begun on the 14th day, and ended on the 22th day, Levit. 23. for their conſciences having then been fully awakened by the Law read to them, and their hearts being full of grief for their great ſins, which they were not allowed to expreſs in that time of Publick Joy and Triumph; now when that was paſt, they reſume their former thoughts and paſſions, and recalling their ſins to mind, ſet apart a day for ſolemn faſting and humiliation.

* Ezra 10. 11. Ch. 13. 30. 2 And * the ſeed of Iſrael ſeparated themſelves from all † ſtrangers b, and ſtood and confeſſed their ſins, and the iniquities of their fathers c. † Heb. children of a ſtranger.

b From all familiar and unneceſſary ſociety with the heathens, and particularly from thoſe ſtrange Women whom ſome of them had married. For though Ezra had done this formerly, Ezra 10. as far as he had knowledge of the perſons faulty, and power to redreſs their faults, yet, it ſeems, there were ſome Criminals, who were either without his knowledge, or out of his power: or, theſe were ſome new Delinquents, that ſince that time had fallen into the ſame errour, and ſhewed the truth of their repentance, by the forſaking of their beloved ſins, and deareſt relations. See again Nehem. 13. 3. c Which they confeſs partly as one cauſe of their preſent ſufferings: and partly becauſe they by their practiſes had juſtified their fathers ſins, and made them their own.

3 And they ſtood up in their places, and read in the book of the law d of the LORD their God, one fourth part of the day e, and another fourth part they confeſſed f, and worſhipped the LORD their God g.

d So as they did before, giving them the ſenſe of what they read, of which ſee on chap. 8. 7, 8. e To wit, for three hours; for there were accounted twelve hours in their day, John 11. 9. Probably they began after the Morning Sacrifice, at which divers religious People uſed to be preſent, but now they were all aſſembled together upon this great occaſion: and they continued their work from that time till the Evening Sacrifice, with which they cloſed the work of the day. f Both God's mercies, as appears from the matter of the following Prayer, and their own Sins, as is expreſſed, v. 2. this day being chiefly ſet apart for that work. g Partly by the acknowledgment and adoration of his wonderful mercy in forgiving their ſins, and ſaving them from the deſerved Judgments, which they either felt or feared, and giving them his Law, and the knowledge thereof: and partly by imploring his further grace and mercy to them.

4 Then ſtood up upon the ‖ ſtairs of the Levites b, Jeſhua, and Bani, Kadmiel, Shebaniah, Bunni, Sherebiah, Bani, and Chenani, and cried with a loud voice i unto the LORD their God. ‖ Or, ſcaffold

b Or, upon the ſcaffold, &c. i. e. Upon ſuch ſtairs, or rather ſcaffolds, or pulpits, as the Levites uſed to ſtand upon, when they taught the People. But you muſt not think that all the perſons here named ſtood in one place, and uttered the following words together; which would have cauſed great confuſion in their ſpeeches, by which means but few of the People could have diſtinctly heard, or underſtood them, but that they ſtood upon ſeveral Pulpits, each of them either teaching of that part of the Congregation which was allotted to him, or praying, or bleſſing God with them. i Thereby teſtifying their deep ſenſe of their ſins and miſeries, and their fervent, and importunate deſire of God's mercy.

5 Then the Levites, Jeſhua and Kadmiel, Bani, Haſhabniah, Sherebiah, Hodijah, Shebaniah, and Pethahiah, ſaid k, Stand up and bleſs the LORD your God for ever and ever l; and bleſſed be thy glorious name, which is exalted above all bleſſing and praiſe.

k All the following words. Either therefore they all uſed the ſame words, being compoſed and agreed upon by Ezra and themſelves; or they all prayed in the ſame manner, and to the ſame purpoſe, having agreed among themſelves concerning the matter of their Confeſſions and Prayers. And theſe are the words which one of them uſed; and it is implied that the reſt of their Prayers were of the ſame nature. l From day to day, as long as you live, and to all eternity.

6 Thou, even thou art LORD alone, * thou haſt made heaven, the * heaven of heavens, with all their hoſt, the earth and all things that are therein, the ſeas and all that is therein, and thou preſerveſt them all, and * the hoſt of heaven m worſhippeth thee. *Gen. 1. 1. *Deut. 10. 14. *Gen. 2. 1.

m Either 1. The Stars, which after their manner worſhip and praiſe God, as all the Creatures do after their manner, of which ſee Pſal. 148. or rather, 2. The Angels, who are ſo called, as 1 Kings, 22. 19. Luke 2. 13. who do worſhip God truly and properly. And it is moſt uſual, and reaſonable to underſtand all words properly, where there is no need of a figurative interpretation. And if this were underſtood of metaphorical, and objective worſhipping of God, there ſeems to be no reaſon to appropriate that to the hoſt of Heaven, to wit, the Stars, ſeeing the Hoſts of Sea and Earth do in that ſenſe worſhip God no leſs than the Stars do, namely, in giving Angels and Men matter and occaſion of worſhipping and praiſing of God.

7 Thou art the LORD the God, who didſt chooſe * Abram n, and broughteſt him forth out of Ur of the Chaldees, and gaveſt him the name of * Abraham. * Gen. 11. 31. & 12. 1. *Gen. 17. 5.

n Out of the midſt of all his Nation and Family. When thou didſt paſs by, and neglect the reſt of them, ſuffering them to walk on in their idolatrous and deſtructive courſes; thou didſt chuſe, and ſingle out him to ſerve and glorifie thee, to be Father of all the Faithful, the Progenitor of the Meſſias, and the perſon in whom, not we only, but all Nations ſhould be bleſſed, and to enjoy thee to all eternity.

8 And foundeſt his heart * faithful before thee o, and madeſt a * covenant with him, to give the land of the Canaanite, the Hittite, the Amorite, and the Perizzite, and the Jebuſite, and the Girgaſhite, to give it, I ſay, to his ſeed, and haſt performed thy words, for thou art righteous. *Gen. 15. 6. *Gen. 12. 7. & 15. 18. & 17. 7, 8.

o When thou madeſt that admirable trial of his Faith and Obedience, in requiring him to offer up his onely Son Iſaac, thou didſt find out, and diſcover his faithfulneſs, which was well known to thee before, and alſo was wrought in him by thy Grace.

9 * And didſt ſee the affliction of our fathers in Egypt, and heardeſt their cry by the red ſea: * Exod. 2. 25. & 3. 7. *Exod. 14. 10.

10 And * ſhewedſt ſigns and wonders upon Pharaoh, and on all his ſervants, and on all the people of his land: for thou kneweſt that they dealt proudly againſt them p: ſo didſt thou get thee a name, as it is this day. * Exo. 7. 8, 9, 10. 12. & 14 chap.

11 * And thou didſt divide the ſea before them, ſo that they went through the midſt of the ſea on the dry land, and their perſecutors thou threweſt into the deeps, as a ſtone into the * mighty waters q. *Exod. 14. 21, 22. *Exod. 15. 10.

p Treating thy People with great ſcorn and contempt, like Slaves and Beaſts. q i. e. The deep Waters, ſuch as theſe were, into which, when a Stone is thrown, there is no hopes of ſeeing it again.

12 Moreover, thou * leddeſt them in the day by a cloudy pillar, and in the night by a pillar of fire, to give them light in the way wherein they ſhould go. *Exod. 13. 21.

13 * Thou cameſt down alſo upon mount Sinai, and ſpakeſt with them from heaven, and gaveſt them right *Exod. 19. 20. & 20. 1.

14 And madeſt known unto them thy holy ſabbath t, and commandeſt them precepts, ſtatutes, and laws, by the hand of Moſes thy ſervant:

t That holy and bleſſed Sabbath-day which thou didſt bleſs and ſanctifie to Adam in Paradiſe, Gen. 2. 3. commanding him, and in him, all his Poſterity to obſerve it, which yet almoſt all People and Nations have quite forgotten, yea ſo far, as to mock at them, Lam. 1. 7. thou didſt graciouſly reveal unto thy people, reviving that ancient Law by another particular Law about it given to us in the wilderneſs.

16 But u they and our fathers dealt proudly x, and hardned their neck, and hearkned not to thy commandments, u Notwithſtanding all theſe ſingular and wonderful Mercies: which he hitherto recounted to aggravate their ſins, which he now comes to confeſs, and to lead them to a ſincere and ingenuous grief and repentance for their ſins, not only for the miſchief which they brought upon themſelves, but for the injury and indignity which they offered to God. x i. e. Sinned preſumptuouſly, and with contempt of God, as ſcorning to ſubmit their wills to Gods.

22 Moreover, thou gaveſt them kingdoms, and nations, and didſt divide them into corners d: ſo they poſſeſſed the land of Sihon * and the land of the king of Heſhbon, and the land of Og king of Baſhan.

d Or, into a corner. But the ſingular number is very commonly put for the plural. This is underſtood, either, 1. Of the Iſraelites, to whom God divided by lot the Kingdoms and Nations laſt mentioned, and gave them all the corners, or ſides, or quarters, (for all theſe the word ſignifies) of their Land. Or, rather, 2. Of the Heathen Nations, whom God in a great meaſure deſtroyed, and the remainders of them be diſperſed into corners; that whereas before the Iſraelites came, they had large habitations and dominions, now they were cooped up into corners, ſome of them into one Town or City, and ſome into another, in the ſeveral corners of their Land, as indeed we find them afterward; whileſt the Iſraelites dwelt in a large place, and had the poſſeſſion of their whole land, ſome few and ſmall parcels excepted. Compare Deut. 31. 26. where the like phraſe is uſed in the ſame ſenſe.

23 Their children alſo multipliedſt thou as the ſtars of heaven, and broughteſt them into the land, concerning which, thou hadſt promiſed to their fathers that they ſhould go in to poſſeſs it.

24 So the children went in and poſſeſſed the land, and thou ſubdueſt before them the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, and gaveſt them into their hand, with their kings, and the people of the land, that they might do with them † as they would.

† Heb. according to their will.

25 And they took ſtrong cities, and a fat land, and poſſeſſed houſes full of all goods, ‖ wells digged, vineyards, and olive-yards, and † fruit-trees in abundance: ſo they did eat, and were filled, and * became fat, and delighted them in thy great goodneſs e.

* 1 Kings, 14. 9.
* 1 Kings, 19. 10.

f i. e. Neglected and deſpiſed thy Laws, would not regard nor obſerve them; whereas they ſhould have had them continually before their eyes, to direct and govern them. Compare Pſal. 50. 17. Ezek. 23. 35.

27 * Therefore thou deliveredſt them into the hand of their enemies, who vexed them, and in the time of their trouble, when they cried unto thee, thou heardeſt them from heaven: and according to thy manifold mercies thou gaveſt them favours, who ſaved them out of the hand of their enemies.

* Judg. 2. 14. & 3. 8. &c.

28 But after they had reſt, † they did evil again before thee: therefore lefteſt thou them in the hand of their enemies, ſo that they had the dominion over them: yet when they returned and cried unto thee, thou heardeſt them from heaven, and many times didſt thou deliver them, according to thy mercies.

† Heb. they returned to do evil.

29 And teſtifiedſt againſt them, that thou mighteſt bring them again into thy law: yet they dealt proudly, and hearkned not unto thy commandments, but ſinned againſt thy judgments (which if a man do, he ſhall live in them f) and † with-drew the ſhoulder, and hardened their neck g, and would not hear.

† Heb. they gave a withdrawing ſhoulder.

30 Yet many years didſt thou † forbear them h, and teſtifiedſt * againſt them by thy ſpirit † in thy prophets i; yet would they not give ear k: therefore gaveſt thou them into the hand of the people of the lands.

31 Nevertheleſs for thy great mercies ſake thou didſt not utterly conſume them, nor forſake them, for thou art a gracious and merciful God.

32 Now therefore our God, the great, * the mighty, and the terrible God, who keepeſt covenant and mercy l, let not all the † trouble ſeem little before thee m † that hath come upon us, on our kings, on our princes, and on our prieſts, and on our prophets, and on our fathers, and on all thy people ſince the time of the kings of Aſſyria n, unto this day.

l i. e. Covenanted Mercy, or thy Covenant of Mercy, and Peace. Or, he adds Mercy, becauſe the Covenant in it ſelf was not a ſufficient ground of hope, becauſe they having ſo baſely broken it, God was diſcharged from keeping it, and therefore they fly to God's free and rich Mercy for relief. m Do not thou account it ſmall and inſufficient for our puniſhment, and that it is fit to continue and encreaſe it. n Strictly and properly ſo called; for from them was the beginning of all the calamities both of Judah and of Iſrael, as appears from 2 Kings 15. 19. and 18. 13. Or, the Kings of Babylon, ſo called, 2 Chron. 33. 11.

33 Howbeit, thou art juſt in all that is brought upon us: for thou haſt done right, but we have done wickedly.

34 Neither have our kings, our princes, our prieſts, nor our fathers kept thy law, nor hearkened unto thy commandments, and thy teſtimonies, wherewith thou didſt teſtifie againſt them.

35 For they have not ſerved thee in their kingdom, and in thy great goodneſs that thou gaveſt them, and in the large and fat land which thou gaveſt before them o, neither turned they from their wicked works.

o i. e. Which thou didſt lay open to their view and poſſeſſion, removing their Enemies, and all Impediments out of the way.

36 Behold, we are ſervants this day, and for the land that thou gaveſt unto our fathers, to eat the fruit thereof, and the good thereof, behold, we are ſervants in it p.

p In that Land wherein heretofore, under thee, and by thy favour, we were rightful Lords and Owners.

37 And it yieldeth much increaſe unto the kings whom thou haſt ſet over us q becauſe of our ſins: alſo they have dominion over our bodies, and over our cattel r at their pleaſure, and we are in great diſtreſs.

q We plow, and ſow, and labour, and thou giveſt thy bleſſing to our endeavours; and yet in a great meaſure this is not for our ſelves, as formerly it was, but for our kings, to whom we pay great and heavy tributes for theſe things; of which ſee Ezra 6. 8. and 7. 24. r Preſſing or forcing both us and our Beaſts to go and do what they pleaſe.

38 And becauſe of all this s, we make a ſure covenant t, and write it, and our princes, Levites, and prieſts † ſeal unto it.

s Becauſe all this miſery lies upon us for our ſins, we do heartily repent of them, and reſolve to forſake them. t Or, we fathfully promiſe and engage our ſelves to future obedience.

s i. e. Of the fruits of our ground. All the particulars of the firſt-fruits are exactly and diſtinctly mentioned, that none might pretend ignorance when they withheld any part of the Prieſt's dues; which at that time eſpecially the People were very prone to do, through Poverty or Covetouſneſs or Profaneneſs, and that the Prieſts rights might be firmly aſſured to them.

36 Alſo the firſt born of our ſons, and of our cattle, (as it is written * in the law) and the firſtlings of our herds, and of our flocks, to bring to the houſe of our God, unto the prieſts that miniſter in the houſe of our God:

*Exod. 13. 2, 12, 13. Lev. 27. 26. Numb. 18. 15, 16.

* Lev. 23. 17. Numb. 15. 19. & 18. 12. &c. Deut. 18. 4. & 26. 2. * Lev. 27. 30. Numb. 18. 21.

t i. e. The tithes of all the fruits of the ground belonging to our ſeveral Cities.

38 And the prieſt the ſon of Aaron u ſhall be with the Levites, * when the Levites take tithes: and the Levites ſhall bring up x the tithes of the tithes unto the houſe of our God, to the chambers, into the treaſure-houſe y.

* Num. 18. 26.

u i. e. Some Prieſt or Prieſts appointed to this Work, that ſo neither the People might wrong the Levites, nor the Levites defraud the Prieſts, of their dues. x At their own charges. y To wit, of the Temple; where it was laid up for the uſe of the Prieſts.

39 For the children of Iſrael, and the children of Levi, * ſhall bring the offering of the corn, of the new wine, and the oil, unto the chambers where are the veſſels of the Sanctuary z, and the prieſts that miniſter, and the porters, and the ſingers ||, and we will not forſake the houſe of our God †.

* Deut. 12. 6, 11.

z Where other things belonging to the Temple are laid up, and therefore theſe things alſo ſhall be put there. || i. e. Where alſo are the Prieſts and others that miniſter in their courſes, for whoſe uſe theſe proviſions are made. † i. e. We do here ſolemnly declare and engage our ſelves that we will take care from time to time, that the houſe and ſervice of God be not neglected or forſaken, for want of neceſſary proviſions to ſupport it.

CHAP. XI.

The Rulers and the tenth Man choſen by Lot, dwell at Jeruſalem, 1, 2. A Catalogue of their Names, Numbers and Families, 3——19. The reſidue of the People dwell in other Cities, 20——36.

AND the rulers of the people dwelt at Jeruſalem a: the reſt of the people alſo caſt lots, to bring one of ten to dwell in Jeruſalem b the holy city, and nine parts to dwell in other cities.

a Which their very Office in ſome ſort obliged them to do. b That the Buildings of the City might be compleated, and the Honour and Safety of it better provided for.

2 And the people bleſſed all the men that willingly offered themſelves to dwell at Jeruſalem c.

c Becauſe they denied themſelves, and their own Safety and Profit for the Publick Good; for this City was the Butt of all the malicious Plots of their Enemies; and for the preſent it was rather chargeable than beneficial to its Inhabitants; whereas the Country did more eaſily and certainly afford them Supplies.

3 Now theſe are the chief of the province d that dwelt in Jeruſalem: but in the cities of Judah, dwelt every one in his poſſeſſion in their cities, to wit, Iſrael e, the prieſts, and the Levites, and the * Nethinims, and the * children of Solomons ſervants.

* Ezr. 2.43.
* Ezr. 2.55.

d i. e. Of Judea, which was now made a Province. e i. e. The generality of the People of Iſrael, whether of Judah, or Benjamin, or any other Tribe; as appears by this general Enumeration of all the Inhabitants of the Land, in which either the People of Judah and Benjamin are included under the Title of Iſrael, or they are not here mentioned; which is abſurd to think, becauſe they made up the greateſt number of them. And theſe he calls Iſrael rather than Judah, partly becauſe there were many of the other Tribes now joyned and incorporated with them; and partly becauſe none of the Tribes of Iſrael, except Judah and Benjamin, dwelt in Jeruſalem, as appears from the ſequel.

4 And at Jeruſalem dwelt certain of the children of Judah, and of the children of Benjamin f: of the children of Judah; Athajah g the ſon of Uzziah, the ſon of Zechariah, the ſon of Amariah, the ſon of Shephatiah, the ſon of Mahalaleel, † of the children of Perez:

f For to theſe two Tribes this City anciently and moſt properly belonged, although ſome alſo of other Tribes dwelt in it. Of which, and other things relating to this Catalogue, ſee 1 Chron. 9.3, &c. g And his Family and Relations with him, and under him as their head, as appears from v. 6.

5 And Maaſejah the ſon of Baruch, the ſon of Colhozeh, the ſon of Hazaiah, the ſon of Adajah, the ſon of Jojarib, the ſon of Zechariah, the ſon of Shiloni.

6 All the ſons of Perez that dwelt at Jeruſalem, were four hundred threeſcore and eight valiant men h.

h Such were moſt proper for this place and time, becauſe of its many Enemies round about it.

7 And theſe are the ſons of Benjamin: Sallu the ſon of Meſhullam, the ſon of Joed, the ſon of Pedajah, the ſon of Kolajah, the ſon of Maaſejah, the ſon of Ithiel the ſon of Jeſajah.

8 And after him Gabbai, Sallai, nine hundred twenty and eight i.

i So here were more of Benjamin than of Judah, becauſe the City did chiefly and moſt properly belong to that Tribe, as hath been noted before.

9 And Joel the ſon of Zichri was their overſeer k: and Judah the ſon of Senuah, was ſecond over the city.

k The Captain of their Thouſand.

10 Of the prieſts; Jedajah the ſon of Jojarib, Jachin, 11 Serajah the ſon of Hilkiah, the ſon of Meſhullam, the ſon of Zadok, the ſon of Merajoth, the ſon of Ahitub, was the ruler of the houſe of God l.

l One of the Chief Prieſts, who ruled with and under the High Prieſt, See Numb. 3. 32. 1 Chron. 9. 11. 2 Chron. 19. 11. & 31. 13.

12 And their brethren that did the work of the houſe † were eight hundred twenty and two: and Adajah the ſon of Jeroham, the ſon of Pelatiah, the ſon of Amzi, the ſon of Zechariah, the ſon of Paſhur, the ſon of Malchiah.

† of God.

13 And his brethren chief of the fathers two hundred forty and two: and Amaſhai, the ſon of Azareel, the ſon of Ahaſai, the ſon of Meſhillemoth, the ſon of Immer,

14 And their brethren mighty men of valour, an hundred twenty and eight: and their overſeer was Zabdiel, ‖ the ſon of one of the great men m.

‖ Or, the ſon of Haggedolim.

m i. e. Of a Perſon then or lately eminent in Valour, or Worth, or Dignity. Or of Gedolim, or Haggedolim, a Man ſo called.

15 Alſo of the Levites; Shemajah the ſon of Haſhub, the ſon of Azrikam, the ſon of Haſhabiah, the ſon of Bunni.

n i. e. For thoſe things belonging to the Temple and its Service, which were to be done without it, or abroad in the Country, as for the gathering in of the voluntary Contributions, or other neceſſary Proviſions out of the ſeveral parts of the Land. See 1 Chron. 26. 29.

17 And Mattaniah the ſon of Micha, the ſon of Zabdi, the ſon of Aſaph, was the principal to begin the thankſgiving in prayer o: and Bakbukiah the ſecond among his brethren, and Abda the ſon of Shammua, the ſon of Jeduthun.

o i. e. In the publick and ſolemn Prayers and Praiſes, which were conſtantly joyned with the Morning and Evening Sacrifice, at which the Singers were preſent, and praiſed God with a Pſalm or Hymn, which this Man began.

18 All the Levites in the holy city, were two hundred fourſcore and four.

19 Moreover, the porters, Akkub, Talmon, and their brethren that kept † the gates were an hundred ſeventy and two.

20 And the reſidue of Iſrael, of the prieſts and the Levites, were in all the cities of Judah, every one in his inheritance.

21 * But the Nethinims dwelt in ‖ Ophel: and Ziha, and Giſpa were over the Nethinims.

* See ch. 3. 26.

22 The overſeer alſo of the Levites at Jeruſalem was Uzzi the ſon of Bani, the ſon of Haſhabiah the ſon of Mattaniah, the ſon of Micha: of the ſons of Aſaph, the ſingers were over the buſineſs of the houſe of God p.

p i. e. Were to take care at Jeruſalem for the ſupply of ſuch things as were neceſſary for the Temple and the Service of God, from time to time, whilſt others minded the outward buſineſs, v. 16. And this Office was very proper for them, both as they were Levites, to whoſe care thoſe things belonged; and as they were Singers, who were not to come to Jeruſalem by turns, as other Levites, and as the Prieſts did, but were conſtantly to reſide there, and therefore were more capable of minding this buſineſs. Beſides their Employment was not ſo frequent, nor ſo great as ſome others were, and therefore they had more leiſure for it.

23 For q it was the kings r commandment concerning them, that ‖ a certain portion ſhould be for the ſingers, due for every day.

q Or, therefore. For the following words contain either a reaſon why they were ſet over that buſineſs; or a Recompenſe for it; or a proviſion that they might diligently attend to it. r Either 1. David's, who made this Conſtitution. Or rather 2. The Kings of Perſia, who is called ſimply the king in the next verſe alſo; who took this care at the requeſt and by the direction of Ezra or Nehemiah. Or this might be Nehemiah's Command, which is called the King's Command, becauſe it was done by the King's Deputy, or a Commiſſioner whom the King impowered to do what he ſaw fit for the Houſe and Service of God, commanding all the People to obey him therein; as he had formerly done to Ezra 7. 18, 20, 23.

24 And Pethahiah the ſon of Meſhezabeel, of the children of Zerah the ſon of Judah, was at the kings hand s in all matters concerning the people t.

s Or, on the King's part, to determine Civil Cauſes and Controverſies between Man and Man, by the Laws of that Kingdom; which peradventure he underſtood better than Nehemiah, and therefore was appointed for this work, but ſtill under Nehemiah. Or, according to the King's appointment, as the hand is uſed, as Numb. 4. 49. and elſewhere. t Either in civil Differences between them; or in things between the King and People; as in matters of Tribute, or Grievances, &c. wherein this Man poſſibly was chief Juſtitiary under Nehemiah.

25 And for the villages, with their fields, ſome of the children of Judah dwelt at Kirjath-arba u, and in the † villages thereof, and at Dibon, and in the villages thereof, and at Jekabzeel, and in the villages thereof, u This, and moſt of the other places here named, had been deſtroyed by the Chaldeans; but the Jews now repaired the beſt of the ruinated Houſes, and by degrees rebuilt others.

26 And at Jeſhua, and at Moladah, and at Bethphelet, 27 And at Hazar-ſhual, and at Beer-ſheba, and in the villages thereof, 28 And at Ziklag, and at Mekonah, and in the villages thereof,

29 And at Enrimmon, and at Zareah, and at Jarmuth,

30 Zanoah, Adullam, and in their villages, at Lachiſh, and the fields thereof, at Azekah, and in the villages thereof: And they dwelt from Beer-ſheba, unto the valley of Hinnom.

31 The children alſo of Benjamin ‖ from Geba, dwelt ‖ at Michmaſh, and Aija, and Bethel, and in their villages,

‖ Or, of Geba
‖ Or, to Michmaſh.

32 And at Anathoth, Nob, Anania,

33 Hazor, Ramah, Gittaim,

34 Hadid, Zeboim, Nebullat,

* 1 Chron. 4. 14. 35 Lod, and Ono, * the valley of crafts-men x.

x Or, in the Valley, &c. Or this is another place called Ge-haharaſim.

36 And of the Levites, were diviſions y in Judah and in Benjamin.

y Or, for the Levites (to wit, thoſe of them who were not ſettled in Jeruſalem) there were diviſions, i. e. places appointed for them, and diſtributed among them.

* Ezra 2.1. NOW theſe are the * prieſts a, and the Levites, that went up with Zerubbabel the ſon of Shealtiel, and Jeſhua: Serajah, Jeremiah, Ezra b, a i. e. The chief of the Prieſts, as they are called here, v. 7. to wit, the heads of thoſe twenty four courſes which David appointed by Divine Direction, 1 Chron. 24. And whereas there are twenty four and here but Twenty two, and v. 12, &c. only Twenty, the reaſon of this difference may poſſibly be this, becauſe Two of the Twenty four courſes were extinct in Babylon, or at leaſt none of them was then returned; and two of the Perſons here named, v. 2, 5. to wit, Hattuſh, and Macdiah, may be omitted in the account of the Poſterity of theſe Perſons, v. 12, &c. becauſe they had no Poſterity. Poſſibly theſe were not the ſame courſes which David had appointed, but others which Zerubbabel and Joſhua had conſtituted in imitation of that Order as far as they could. b Either this was another Ezra, or if it were the ſame mentioned Ezra 7. he lived to a great Age; which may well be ſuppoſed conſidering his great Sobriety, and Abſtinence from thoſe Evil Practices which ſhorten Mens Lives, and his great Piety to which God promiſed long Life, and withal the ſpecial Providence of God continuing him ſo long in ſuch a ſeaſon, wherein the Church of God did greatly need his help and counſel.

7 ‖ Sallu, Amok, Hilkiah, Jedajah: theſe were the chief of the prieſts, and of their brethren e in the days of Jeſhua.

e i. e. Of the Prieſts, who were their Brethren.

8 Moreover the Levites: Jeſhua, Binnui, Kadmiel, Sherebiah, Judah, and Mattaniah, which was over ‖ the thankſgiving, he and his brethren.

9 Alſo Bakbukiah, and Unni, their brethren were over againſt them in the watches f.

f i. e. In the places where they were appointed to ſtand, and wait, and perform their Office, one ſtanding over againſt another, as it is explained v. 24. ward over againſt ward; for the Hebrew word is the ſame there and here. Others, according to their turns or courſes, of which ſee 1 Chron. 25. 9.

10 And Jeſhua begat Jojakim g, Jojakim alſo begat Eliaſhib h, and Eliaſhib begat Jojada, g Here follows a Catalogue of the Jewiſh High Prieſts; which was the more neceſſary, becauſe their times were now to be meaſured, not by the years of their Kings as formerly, but by their High Prieſts. h Of whom ſee Neh. 3. 1. & 13. 4, 5.

11 And Jojada begat Jonathan, and Jonathan begat Jaddua i.

i Generally ſuppoſed to be the ſame Man who was High Prieſt in the days of Alexander the Great, as Joſephus mentions; whence a great Difficulty ariſeth, how Nehemiah could mention this Man, who ſeems not to have been high Prieſt till many years after Nehemiah's death. But it ſeems not neceſſary that this Jaddua ſhould be the ſame Perſon, for he might be the Father of that Jaddua, both being called by the ſame name. Or, if he were the ſame, the Bleſſing of a very long Life might be given to this great and excellent Governour, as it was to Ezra, that famous Scribe, as was noted on v. 1. and that for the very ſame reaſon. He might alſo live to ſee Jaddua, though not to ſee him High Prieſt, which might be many years after. Or this paſſage might be put into this Book by ſome ſacred or inſpired Pen-man, there being ſome, though but few, ſuch paſſages in the foregoing Books of Scripture, which were added by ſucceeding Men of God in after-times.

12 And in the days of Jojakim were prieſts k, the chief of the fathers: of Serajah, Merajah: of Jeremiah, Hananiah.

k As their Fathers were Prieſts in the days of Joſhua, ſo in the days of Jojakim the Son of Joſhua, the Sons of thoſe Perſons executed the Prieſthood in their Fathers ſteads, ſome of their Fathers probably being yet living, and many of them now dead.

13 Of Ezra, Meſhullam: of Amariah, Jehohanan:

14 Of Melicu, Jonathan: of Shebaniah, Joſeph:

15 Of Harim, Adna: of Merajath, Helkai:

16 Of Iddo, Zechariah: of Ginnethon, Meſhullam:

17 Of Abijah, Zichri: of Miniamin, of Moadiah, Piltai:

18 Of Bilgah, Shammua: of Shemajah, Jehohanan:

19 And of Jojarib, Mattenai: of Jedajah, Uzzi:

20 Of Sallai, Kallai: of Amok, Eber:

21 Of Hilkia, Haſhabiah: of Jedaja, Nathaneel.

22 The Levites in the days of Eliaſhib, Jojada, and Johanan, and Jaddua, were recorded chief of the fathers: alſo the prieſts, to the reign of Darius l the Perſian.

l Either Darius Codomanus; and then what was ſaid concerning Jaddua, v. 11. muſt be in part repeated and applied here: or, Darius Nothus; and ſo this Jaddua might be Father to him who was in the days of Darius Codomanus, and of Alexander the Great.

23 The ſons of Levi, the chief of the fathers, were written in the Book of the * Chronicles m, even until the days of Johanan the ſon of Eliaſhib. * 1 Chr. 9. 14, &c.

m i. e. In the publick Annals or Regiſters, in which the Genealogies of the ſeveral Families were ſet down by the Jews with great exactneſs, as all Perſons agree.

24 And the chief of the Levites: Haſhabiah, Sherebiah, and Jeſhua the ſon of Kadmiel, with their brethren over againſt them, to praiſe, and to give thanks, * according to the commandment of David the man of God, ward over againſt ward n. * 1 Chr. 24. & 25, & 26.

n Of which ſee on v. 9.

25 Mattaniah, and Bakbukiah, Obadiah, Meſhullam, Talmon, Akkub, were porters keeping the ward, at the ‖ threſholds of the gates o. ‖ Or, Treaſuries, or aſſemblies.

o To wit, of the Temple, their watching-place being cloſe by the Threſholds of the Gates, as it now is.

26 Theſe were in the days of Jojakim, the ſon of Jeſhua, the ſon of Jozadak, and in the days of Nehemiah the governour; and of Ezra the prieſt, the ſcribe.

27 And at the dedication of the wall p of Jeruſalem they ſought the Levites out of all their places q, to bring them to Jeruſalem, to keep the dedication with gladneſs, both with thankſgivings and with ſinging, with cymbals, pſalteries, and with harps.

p And of the Gates which are mentioned v. 30. and of the City it ſelf within the Gates; which is here dedicated to God, and to his Honour and Service, not only upon a general account, by which we ought to devote our ſelves, and all that is ours, to God; but upon a more ſpecial ground, becauſe this was a place which God himſelf had choſen, and ſanctified by his Temple and gracious Preſence, and therefore did of right belong to him; whence it is oft called the holy City, as hath been obſerved before. And they reſtored it to God by this Dedication, withal imploring the Preſence, and Favour, and Bleſſing of God to this City by ſolemn Prayers, and Praiſes, and Sacrifices, wherewith this Dedication was accompanied. See Deut. 20. 5. 1 Kings 8. 63. Ezra 6. 17. Pſal. 30. title. q To which they were now retired after that great and general Aſſembly, ch. 8. & 9. & 10.

28 And the ſons of the ſingers gathered themſelves together, both out of the plain country round about Jeruſalem, and from the villages of Netophathi.

29 Alſo from the houſe of Gilgal, and out of the fields of Geba, and Azmaveth: for the ſingers had built them villages round about Jeruſalem r.

r That they might be near at hand for the Service of God, and of his Houſe.

30 And the prieſts and the Levites purified themſelves, and purified the people, and the gates, and the wall s.

s Partly by ſprinkling the Water of Purification upon them, by which the Tabernacle and ſacred Utenſils were purified, Numb. 8. and partly by ſolemn Prayers and Sacrifices.

31 Then I brought up the princes of Judah t upon the wall u, and appointed two great companies of them that gave thanks, whereof one went on the right hand x upon the wall toward * the dung-gate: * Ch. 2. 13. & 3. 13.

t And half of the People with them, as it is expreſſed afterwards, v. 38. u For the Wall was broad and ſtrong, and ſo ordered that Men might conveniently walk upon it, as at this day it is in many Cities. x Towards the South and Eaſt.

32 And after them went Hoſhajah, and half of the princes of Judah, 33 And Azariah, Ezra y, and Meſhullam, y Not the Scribe, as is evident from v. 36. but another Ezra.

34 Judah and Benjamin, and Shemajah, and Jeremiah.

35 And certain of the prieſts ſons * with trumpets: namely, Zechariah the ſon of Jonathan, the ſon of Shemajah, the ſon of Mattaniah, the ſon of Michajah, the ſon of Zaccur, the ſon of Aſaph: * Numb. 10. 2.

36 And his brethren, Shemajah, and Azareel, Milalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nethaneel, and Judah, Hanani, with * the muſical inſtruments of David the man of God, and Ezra the ſcribe before them. * 1 Chron. 23. 5.

37 And at * the fountain-gate, which was over-against them, they went up by * the ſtairs of the city of David z, at the going up of the wall above the houſe of David, even unto * the water-gate eaſtward.

* Ch. 2.14. 3.15. * Ch. 3.15. * Ch. 3.26. & 8.1, 3, 16.

z By which they went up to the hill of Sion, and City of David.

38 And the other company of them that gave thanks, went over againſt them a, and I after them, and the half of the people upon the wall, from beyond * the tower of the furnaces, even unto the * broad wall b:

* Ch. 3.11. * Ch. 3.8.

a To wit, on the other ſide of the City, Northward and Eaſtward. b Which they made thicker and ſtronger than the reſt of the Wall, for ſome ſpecial reaſon.

39 And from above * the gate of Ephraim, and above the * old gate, and above * the fiſh-gate, and the tower of Hananeel, and * the tower of Meah, even unto the ſheep-gate: and they ſtood ſtill in the priſon gate c.

* 2 Kings 14.13. * Ch. 3.6. * Ch. 3.3. * Ch. 3.1.

c Waiting, as alſo their brethren did, that they might go together in due order into God's Houſe, there to perfect the ſolemnity.

40 So ſtood the two companies of them that gave thanks in the houſe of God d, and I, and the half of the rulers with me e:

d i. e. In the Courts of the Temple. e And Ezra, and the other half with him, as appears by comparing this with v. 31, 36.

41 And the prieſts; Eliakim, Maaſejah, Miniamin, Michajah, Elioenai, Zechariah, and Hananiah with trumpets.

42 And Maaſejah, and Shemajah, and Eleazar, and Uzzi, and Jehohanan, and Malchijah, and Elam, and Ezer: and the ſingers † ſang loud, with Jezrahiah their overſeer.

† Heb. made their voice to be heard.

43 Alſo that day they offered great ſacrifices, and rejoiced: for God had made them rejoice with great joy; the wives alſo, and the children rejoiced: ſo that the joy of Jeruſalem was heard even afar off f.

f Either their loud voices and inſtruments were heard to a great diſtance: or the fame of it was ſpread far and near.

44 And at that time were ſome appointed over the chambers for the treaſures, for the offerings g, for the firſt-fruits, and for the tithes, to gather into them out of the fields of the cities the portions || of the law h for the prieſts and Levites: † for Judah rejoiced for the prieſts, and for the Levites † that waited i.

g Such as they had lately ingaged themſelves to give, or other voluntary or preſcribed offerings. h i. e. The foreſaid firſt-fruits, and tithes, and other things which God by his Law appointed for them. i Partly for the eminent Gifts and Graces which they obſerved in many of them: and partly for the great benefiet which they had now received by their Miniſtry: and therefore for the competent proviſion which hereby was made for them, that ſo they might wholly wait upon their Office, to the Peoples Edification and Comfort.

45 And both the ſingers and the porters kept the ward of their God k, and the ward of the purification l, * according to the commandment of David, and of Solomon his ſon.

* 1 Chron. 25. & 26.

k i. e. That Ward, or Charge, or Buſineſs which God had preſcribed to them. l And in particular the charge of purification, i. e. of taking care that no unclean perſon or thing might enter into the Houſe or Courts of the Lord: which care did certainly belong to the Porters, as is expreſſed, 2 Chron. 23. 19. and at this time, and in ſome ſort, as it ſeems to the ſingers, who, beſides their proper imployment were alſo over the buſineſs of the houſe of God, as is affirmed chap. 11. 22. Which being a general expreſſion, may well comprehend, if it doth not principally deſign this, that they ſhould take care to keep the Houſe of God free from all pollution. And poſſibly as the Porters were to take care that no unclean thing might enter there, ſo if it ſhould through their inadvertency enter in, the ſingers were to remove it.

46 For in the days of David * and Aſaph m, of old, there were chief of the ſingers n, and ſongs of praiſe and thankſgiving unto God.

* 1 Chron. 25.1, &c.

n And Heman, and Jeduthun, 1 Chron. 25. 1. but Aſaph only is mentioned here, as the moſt eminent and uſeful in that work. n There were ſome overſeers, whoſe Office it was to ſee that the ſingers were fit for, and diligent in their work: and therefore they took care of it at this time.

47 And all Iſrael in the days of Zerubbabel, and in the days of Nehemiah, gave the portions of the ſingers, and the porters every day his portion, and they || ſanctified holy things o unto the Levites, * and the Levites ſanctified them unto the children of Aaron.

o i. e. They ſequeſtred or ſet apart the Firſt-fruits and Tithes from their own ſhare, and devoted them to the uſe of the Levites, to whom they belonged. And ſo did the Levites by the Tithe of the Tithes. Thus they all conſcientiouſly paid their dues to God or his Aſſigns, and did not profane thoſe things which God had ſanctified, nor take them to their own common uſe, as divers ungodly or covetous perſons had formerly uſed to do when they had opportunity.

CHAP. XIII.

Upon the reading of the Law, Separation is made between Iſrael and the mixt multitude, 1——3. Nehemiah at his return to Jeruſalem, cauſeth the chambers to be cleanſed, 4——9. He reſtoreth and reformeth the Offices of the Prieſts and Levites in the houſe of God, 10——14. and ſeeing the violation of the Sabbath, he contendeth with the Nobles of Judah, 15——18. He ſhutteth the gates, and ſetteth a watch at them, 19——22. The puniſhment of marrying with ſtrange wives, 23——28. Nehemiah's prayer, 29——31.

ON that day a † they read in the book of Moſes in the † audience of the people b; and therein was found written, * that the Ammonite and the Moabite ſhould not come into the congregation of God c for ever; a Not now preſently after the Dedication of the Wall and Gates and City, but upon a certain day, as that Phraſe is very commonly uſed in Scripture without any relation to the time or things mentioned next before it; to wit, when Nehemiah was returned again from the Perſian Court to Jeruſalem, from which he had been abſent for ſome conſiderable time, in which ſome errours and abuſes had crept in, which now he endeavours to remove. b Partly becauſe it was not only the Prieſts, but alſo the Peoples duty to ſtudy and underſtand God's Law and their own Duty: and partly that the People hearing that this was the expreſs mind and will of the great God, might the more willingly yield to the following Duties, ſome of which were attended with difficulty, and required ſelf-denial. c i. e. Not be incorporated into the Common-wealth of Iſrael, nor be joyned with any Iſraelite in Marriage relation, as appears from verſe 3. That Practice being a plain Comment upon this Law. But of this and the next verſe ſee the Notes on Deut. 23. 3, 4.

2 Becauſe they met not the children of Iſrael with bread and with water, but * hired Balaam againſt them that he ſhould curſe them: howbeit our God turned the curſe into a bleſſing.

* Numb. 22.5. Joſh. 24.9.

3 Now it came to paſs when they heard the law, that they ſeparated from Iſrael all the mixed multitude d.

d i. e. All the heatheniſh People with whom they had contracted Alliances. See ch. 9. 2. and Ezra 10.3.

4 And before † this Eliaſhib the prieſt e † having the overſight of the chamber f of the houſe of our God, was allied unto Tobiah g:

e The High-Prieſt, ch. 3. 1. or ſome other Prieſt ſo called, there being divers Eliaſhibs in or about this time, Ezra 10. 6, 24, 27, 36. though the firſt ſeems moſt probable, by comparing this verſe with v. 28. and with chap. 12. 10, 11. f i. e. Of the Chambers, as appears from the following verſe, and from v. 9. where it is called chambers, and from the nature of the thing, the High-Prieſt having the chief power over the houſe of God, and all the chambers belonging to it. The ſingular number for the plural. g The Ammonite, and a violent Enemy to God's people. So this is noted as a great blemiſh to Eliaſhib, and as the cauſe of his other miſcarriage noted v. 5.

5 And he had prepared for him a great chamber g; where aforetime they laid the meat-offerings, the frankincenſe, and the veſſels, and the tithes of the corn, the new wine, and the oil, († which was commanded to be given to the Levites, and the ſingers, and the porters) and the offerings of the prieſts.

g By removing the things which were in it, and uniting divers ſmall Chambers into one, and furniſhing it for the uſe of Tobiah when he came to Jeruſalem: whom he ſeems to have lodged there, that he might have more free and ſecret communication with him, this being in a place where the people might not come.

6 But in all this time was not I at Jeruſalem h: for in the two and thirtieth year of Artaxerxes king of Babylon, came I unto the king i, and † after certain days k || obtained I leave of the king:

h And Eliaſhib took the occaſion of my abſence to do theſe things, ſuppoſing that I would no more return thither. i To wit, from Jeruſalem; where he had been once and again. k Heb. in the end of days, or of a year, as that word oft ſignifies.

7 And I came to Jeruſalem, and underſtood of the evil that Eliaſhib did for Tobiah, in preparing him a chamber in the courts of the houſe of God.

8 And it grieved me ſore l, therefore I caſt forth all the houſhold ſtuff of Tobiah out of the chamber.

l That ſo ſacred a place ſhould be polluted by one who in many reſpects ought not to have come there, being no Prieſt, a Stranger, an Ammonite, and one of the worſt of that People; and that all this ſhould be done by the permiſſion and order of the High-Prieſt, who by his Office ſhould have puniſhed and reformed theſe things in others.

9 Then I commanded, and they cleanſed the chambers m; and thither brought I again the veſſels of the houſe of God, with the meat-offering and the frankincenſe.

m By ſuch means and rites as were then uſual in ſuch caſes. See Numb. 19.9.

10 And I perceived that * the portions of the Levites had not been given them n: for the Levites and the ſingers that did the work, were fled every one * to his field o.

* Mal. 3.8. * Numb. 35.2.

n Which might be either, 1. From this corrupt High-Prieſt Eliaſhib, who took their portions, as he did the Sacred Chambers, to his own uſe, or employed them for the entertainment of Tobiah, and his other great Allies. Or, 2. From the People, who either out of Covetouſneſs reſerved them to themſelves, contrary to their own ſolemn Agreement and Covenant, ch. 10. 37. or were ſo offended at Eliaſhib's horrid and manifeſt abuſe of ſacred things, that they abhorred the Offering and Service of God, as others did upon a like occaſion, 1 Sam. 2. 17. and therefore neglected to bring in their Tithes, &c. which they knew would be perverted to bad uſes. o To his poſſeſſion in the Country, being forced to do ſo for a livelyhood.

11 Then contended I with the rulers o, and ſaid, Why is the houſe of God forſaken p? And I gathered them together q, and ſet them in their † place r.

o I ſharply reproved thoſe Prieſts to whom the management of theſe things was committed, for neglect of their Duty, and breach of their late ſolemn Promiſe. p You have not only injured men in with-holding their dues, but you have occaſioned the neglect of God's Houſe and Service. q To Jeruſalem from their ſeveral Country Poſſeſſions, in which they were diſperſed. r Reſtored them to the exerciſe of their Office.

12 Then brought all Judah the tithe s of the corn, and the new wine, and the oil unto the || treaſuries.

s Partly out of the reſpect which they had to Nehemiah, and to his command: and partly becauſe they ſaw they would be applied to their proper uſes, and not abuſed, as they had been.

13 And I made treaſurers over the treaſuries, Shelemiah the prieſt, and Zadok the ſcribe t, and of the Levites Pedajah: and † next to them was Hanan the ſon of Zaccur, the ſon of Mattaniah: for they were counted faithful u, and † their office was to diſtribute unto their brethren x.

t The Eccleſiaſtical Scribe, who was to keep the accounts of the Receipts and Diſburſements. u By common Fame, and the conſent of thoſe who knew them. Such he now ſought out the more diligently, becauſe he had late experience of the perfidiouſneſs of the former Truſtees. x According to their ſeveral Families, as the Law had preſcribed.

14 * Remember me, O my God, concerning this y, and wipe not out my † good deeds that I have done for the houſe of my God, and for the || offices thereof.

y What I have done with an upright heart for thy Houſe and Service be pleaſed graciouſly to accept, and remember for my good, according to thy promiſe.

15 In thoſe days ſaw I in Judah ſome treading wine-preſſes on the Sabbath, and bringing in ſheaves, and lading aſſes; as alſo wine, grapes, and figs, and all manner of burdens, which they brought into Jeruſalem on the ſabbath day: and I teſtified againſt them z in the day wherein they ſold victuals.

z I proteſted againſt the action, and admoniſhed them to forbear it.

16 There dwelt men of Tyre alſo therein, which brought fiſh a, and all manner of ware, and ſold on the ſabbath unto the children of Judah, and in Jeruſalem b.

a Which they might take in the Sea near Joppa, or bring from Tyre to Joppa by Sea, and thence to Jeruſalem, which was but a ſmall Journey. b The holy City, where God's Houſe and Preſence was; and where the great Judicatories of the Nation were. So this is added as an aggravation of their ſin, that this was done with manifeſt contempt with God and Men.

17 Then I contended with the nobles of Judah c, and ſaid unto them, What evil thing is this that ye do, and prophane the ſabbath-day?

c i. e. Their chief Men and Rulers; whom he chargeth with this ſin, becauſe though others did it, it was by their countenance or connivance, and they ſhould and might have puniſhed and reſtrained it.

18 Did not your fathers thus, and did not our God bring all this evil upon us d, and upon this city? yet ye bring more wrath upon Iſrael by prophaning the ſabbath.

d Which you ſo well and ſadly remember, that I need not tell you the particulars.

* Lev. 23. 32.
* Jer. 17. 21.

19 And it came to paſs, that when the gates of Jeruſalem * began to be dark e before the ſabbath, I commanded that the gates ſhould be ſhut, and charged that they ſhould not be opened till after the ſabbath: and ſome of my ſervants ſet I at the gates f * that there ſhould no burden be brought in on the ſabbath day.

e Which was about Sun-ſetting by reaſon of the Mountains which were round about, and near Jeruſalem, Pſal. 125. 2. f Out of a diffidence in thoſe to whom the keeping of the Gates was committed.

20 So the merchants and ſellers of all kind of ware, lodged without Jeruſalem once or twice.

21 Then I teſtified againſt them, and ſaid unto them, Why lodge ye † about the wall? if ye do ſo again, I will lay hands on you g. From that time forth came they no more on the ſabbath.

g I will puniſh you and ſeize your goods. For this was a temptation to covetous or needy Jews, that lived in or near the City, to ſteal opportunities of buying their Commodities, which then they might do with more advantage.

22 And I commanded the Levites, that they ſhould cleanſe themſelves h, and that they ſhould come and keep the gates i, to ſanctifie the ſabbath-day. Remember me, O my God, concerning this alſo, and ſpare me according to the || greatneſs of thy mercy k.

h Partly becauſe the work they were now ſet upon, though common in its nature, yet was holy in deſign of it, and had reſpect unto the Sabbath: and partly, becauſe the day in which they were to do this was the Sabbath-day, for the obſervation whereof they were obliged to prepare and purifie themſelves. i Either, 1. The Gates of the Temple. But a particular command was ſuperfluous in that caſe, becauſe it was their conſtant work and charge to do this both Sabbath-days and every day. Or rather, 2. The Gates of the City; for of them he ſpake laſt, v. 19. and not daring to truſt the common Porters of thoſe Gates, not being able always to employ his men in that work, he committeth the charge of them for the preſent ſeaſon, and upon the Sabbath-days, to the Levites, to whom the care of ſanctifying the Sabbath did properly belong. k Whereby he intimates, that though he mentioned his Good-works as things wherewith God was well-pleaſed, and which he had promiſed to reward, yet he neither did, nor durſt truſt to their merit, or his own worthineſs, but, when he had done all, he judged himſelf an unprofitable ſervant, and one that needed God's infinite Mercy and Indulgence to pardon all his ſins, and particularly thoſe infirmities and corruptions which adhered to his good deeds.

* Ezra 9. 2.

23 In thoſe days alſo ſaw I Jews that † * had married wives of Aſhdod l, of Ammon, and of Moab:

l A City of the Philiſtines, 1 Sam. 5. 1, 2, &c.

† Heb. of people and people.

24 And their children ſpake half in the ſpeech of Aſhdod, and † could not ſpeak in the Jews language, but according to the language † of each people m.

m Which their Mothers inſtilled into them, together with their Principles and Manners.

25 And I contended with them, and || curſed them n, and ſmote o certain of them p, and pluckt off their hair q, and made them ſwear by God, ſaying, Ye ſhall not give your daughters unto their ſons, nor take their daughters unto your ſons, or for your ſelves.

n i. e. Cauſed them to be Excommunicated and caſt out of the Society and Priviledges of God's People. This and the following Puniſhments were juſtly inflicted upon them, becauſe this tranſgreſſion was contrary both to a very plain and expreſs Law of God, and alſo to their own late ſolemn Covenants and Promiſes, of which ſee Ezra 10. Nehem. 10. 30. o i. e. I cauſed them to be beaten with ſtripes, according to the Law, Deut. 25. 2. p Such whoſe faults were moſt aggravated by their quality or other circumſtances: to whom he added this puniſhment over and beſides the former. q Or, ſhaved them. The Hair was an Ornament and Enſign of Liberty among the Eaſtern Nations; and baldneſs was a diſgrace and token of ſlavery and ſorrow. See Iſa. 3. 24. and 15. 2. Jer. 48. 37. Ezek. 29. 18.

* 1 Kings 3. 13. 2 Chron. 1. 12.
* 2 Sam. 12. 24.
* 1 Kings 11. 1, &c.

26 Did not Solomon king of Iſrael ſin by theſe things? yet * among many nations was there no king like him, who was * beloved of his God, and God made him king over all Iſrael: * nevertheleſs even him did outlandiſh women cauſe to ſin.

27 Shall we then hearken unto you r to do all this great evil, to tranſgreſs againſt our God, in marrying ſtrange wives?

r Shall we juſtifie our action by permitting or not puniſhing it? God forbid.

28 And one of the ſons of Jojada s, the ſon of Eliaſhib the high prieſt, was ſon in law to Sanballat the Horonite: therefore I chaſed him from me t.

s Said by Joſephus to be that Manaſſes who by Sanballats intereſt procured Liberty to build the Samaritan Temple in Mount Gerizim; to which thoſe Prieſts who had married ſtrange Wives, or been otherwiſe criminal, betook themſelves, and with, or after them, others of the People in the ſame or like circumſtances. t i.e. From my Preſence and Court, and from the City and Temple, and all the Priviledgges of the Prieſthood, and from the whole Congregation and Church of Iſrael, whereof I am a Member.

* Mal. 2. 4.

29 Remember them, O my God, † becauſe they have defiled the prieſthood, and * the covenant of the prieſthood u, and of the Levites, u That Covenant made between me and his Progenitors for themſelves and their Poſterity, whereby I promiſed to give them an everlaſting Prieſthood, Numb. 25. 12, 13. and they covenanted with me that they would faithfully and holily execute that ſacred Function according to the Rules which I gave them, whereby among other things, they were enjoyned to keep themſelves pure from all unlawful marriages; and from all other things which might pollute them, or the Prieſthood.

* Ch. 12. 1.

30 Thus cleanſed I them from all ſtrangers, and * appointed the wards of the prieſts and the Levites, every one in his buſineſs:

* Ch. 10. 34.

31 And for the * wood-offerings at times appointed, and for the firſt-fruits x. Remember me, O my God, for good.

x And particularly I took care for theſe things, becauſe they had been lately neglected.

ESTHER.

THis Book was conſtantly received for a part of the Canon of the Scripture by the People of the Jews; whoſe authority herein is the more conſiderable, becauſe to them were committed the Oracles of God, *Rom.*3.2. to keep them ſafely, and tranſmit them carefully to Poſterity. And it is a very ſtrong preſumption that they were true to their truſt, that our bleſſed Lord, and his holy Apoſtles, who taxed the Jews with many faults both greater and leſs, never charged them with unfaithfulneſs herein: which, if the Jews had been guilty, they would certainly have done, and by their Office were obliged to do it for the Inſtruction and Caution of the Chriſtian Church, whoſe Faith was built no leſs upon the Writings of the Prophets, than upon the Doctrine of the Apoſtles. The Pen-man of it is both by Jewiſh and Chriſtian Interpreters, ancient and modern, thought to be Mordecai: who was both an holy man of God, and a principal Actor in this Hiſtory. And therefore who ſo fit and proper for it as himſelf?

CHAP. I.

Ahaſuerus and Vaſhti make a Royal Banquet, 1——9. He ſends for Vaſhti, 10, 11. ſhe refuſeth to come, 12. He conſulteth his wiſe men about it, 13——15. Their judgment and advice, to put her away, 16——19. He maketh the Decree of Men's Sovereignty in their own houſes, 20—22.

NOW it came to paſs in the days of Ahaſuerus a, (this is Ahaſuerus, which reigned from India even unto Ethiopia, over an hundred and ſeven and twenty provinces b.)

a Qu. Who was this King? Anſw. It is confeſſed and manifeſt that this was one of the Kings of Perſia: But which of them it was is not yet agreed, nor is it of any neceſſity for us now to know. But it is ſufficiently evident that this was either, 1. Darius Hyſtaſpis, as divers both Jewiſh and Chriſtian Writers affirm: for his Kingdom was thus vaſt, and he ſubdued India, as Herodotus reports: and one of his Wives was called Atoſſa, which differs little from Hadaſſah, which is Eſther's other name, Eſth. 2. 7. Or, 2. Xerxes, whoſe Wife, as Herodotus notes, was called Ameſtris, which is not much differing from Eſther: by whom all theſe things were tranſacted whilſt he was potent and proſperous, before his unhappy expedition againſt the Grecians. Or, 3. Artaxerxes Longimanus, to whom the Characters of Ahaſuerus repreſented in this Book do not diſagree. And whereas it is objected, that by this account Mordecai muſt be a Man of about 140 years, and conſequently Eſther, who is called his Uncles daughter, chap. 2. 7. muſt be too old to make a Wife for the King; as for Mordecai, it may be granted, there being divers inſtances of perſons of greater Age than that in ſacred and prophane Hiſtorians; and for Eſther, it may be ſaid that ſhe was his Uncles Grand-daughter, nothing being more frequent than for the names of ſons or daughters to be given to more remote Poſterity. b So ſeven new Provinces were added to thoſe 120 mentioned Dan. 6. 1.

2 That in thoſe days, when the king Ahaſuerus ſate on the throne of his kingdom c, which was in Shuſhan the ‖ palace d, c i. e. Either was lately advanced to it: or rather was ſettled in the peaceable poſſeſſion of it. d Or, the caſtle: or the chief or royal city, as both Jewiſh and Chriſtian Interpreters render it. Shuſhan might be the proper name of the Palace, which thence was given to the whole City. Here the Kings of Perſia uſed to keep their Courts chiefly in Winter, as ordinarily they were in Ecbatana in Summer.

3 In the third year of his reign, he made a feaſt unto all his Princes, and his ſervants, the power e of Perſia and Media, the nobles and princes of the provinces being before him.

e i. e. The mighty men; the chief Officers of State, and Commanders of all his Forces: whom by this ſplendid entertainment he endeavoured to oblige and aſſure to himſelf.

4 When he ſhewed the riches of his glorious Kingdom, and the honour of his excellent majeſty, many days, even an hundred and fourſcore days f.

f Making every day a magnificent Feaſt either for all his Princes, or for ſome of them, who might come to the Feaſt ſucceſſively, as the King ordered them to do. The Perſian Feaſts are much celebrated in Authors for their length and luxury.

5 And when theſe days were expired, the king made a feaſt unto all the people that were † preſent g in Shuſhan the palace, both unto great and ſmall, ſeven days, in the court of the garden h of the kings palace.

g Both ſuch as conſtantly reſided there, and ſuch as were come thither upon their occaſions, of whatſoever condition or quality. h The Perſian Gardens were exceeding large and pleaſant.

6 Where were white, green, and ‖ blue hangings faſtened with cords of fine linnen and purple, to ſilver rings, and pillars of marble: the beds i were of gold, and ſilver, upon a pavement ‖ of red, and blue, and white, and black marble.

i For in thoſe Eaſtern Countries, and ancient times, they did not ſit at Tables, as we do, but reſted or leaned upon Beds: of which we have many teſtimonies both in Scripture, as Eſth. 7. 8. Amos 2. 8. and 6. 4. John 13. 23. and in all other Authors.

7 And they gave them drink in veſſels of gold, (the veſſels being divers one from another) and † royal wine in abundance, † according to the ſtate of the king.

8 And the drinking was according to the law, none did compel k: for ſo the king had appointed to all the officers of his houſe, that they ſhould do according to every mans pleaſure.

k i. e. According to this Law, which the king had now made, that none ſhould compel another to drink more than he pleaſed: which the Perſians, and other looſe and heatheniſh Nations uſed to do; though that practice was condemned by the wiſe and ſober Heathens, and among others by this great Prince. Or, no man did compel another to drink according to the law, i. e. as by the Laws or Orders of the Perſians preſcribed and uſed in their Feaſts they might have done, if not reſtrained by this Law.

9 Alſo Vaſhti the queen made a feaſt for the women l, in the royal houſe which belonged to king Ahaſuerus.

l Whilſt the King entertained the Men. For this was the common cuſtom of the Perſians, that Men and Women did not feaſt together, but in ſeveral places.

10 On the ſeventh day, when the heart of the king was merry with wine, he commanded Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, and Abagtha, Zethar, and Carcas, the ſeven ‖ chamberlains m that ſerved in the preſence of Ahaſuerus the king,

m Or, Eunuchs, which were much in uſe, and in favour in the Eaſtern Courts, and particularly with the Perſian Emperours, as ancient Hiſtories inform us.

11 To bring Vaſhti the queen before the king, with the crown royal, to ſhew the people and the princes her beauty, for ſhe was † fair to look on.

12 But the queen Vaſhti refuſed to come n at the kings commandment † by his chamberlains: therefore was the king very wroth, and his anger burned in him.

n Being favoured in this refuſal by the Laws and Cuſtoms of Perſia, which was to keep Mens Wives, and eſpecially Queens, as much as might be, from the view of other Men.

o Either, 1. The Hiſtories of former times, what Princes have done in ſuch caſes as this was. Or, 2. Things done or to be done in time; what was juſt and fit to be done, or what was the Law and Judgment in theſe caſes, as the following words explain it, and how and when things were to be done. See my Notes on 1 Chron. 12. 32. Times are oft put in Scripture, and other Authors, for the things done in them, by a common Figure called a Metonymy of the Adjunct. p To wit, to conſult with them in all matters of moment.

14 And next unto him was Carſhena, Shethar, Admatha, Tarſhiſh, Meres, Marſena, and Memucan, the * ſeven princes of Perſia and Media, * which ſaw the kings face q, and which ſate the firſt in the kingdom r.)

* Ezr. 7. 14

* 2 Kings 25. 19.

q Which had conſtant freedom of acceſs to the King, and familiar converſe with him: which is thus expreſſed, becauſe the Perſian Kings were very ſeldom ſeen by their Subjects. r Which were his chief Counſellors and Officers, and had the precedency from all others.

15 † What ſhall we do unto the queen Vaſhti, according to law, becauſe ſhe hath not performed the commandment of the king Ahaſuerus, by the chamberlains?

16 And Memucan anſwered r before the king, and the princes, Vaſhti the queen hath not done wrong to the king onely, but alſo to all the princes, and to all the people s that are in all the provinces of the king Ahaſuerus.

r Who, though laſt named, ſpake firſt, either becauſe the king firſt asked him; or becauſe he was the chief of them all, either in Dignity, or in Reputation: or becauſe it then was, as now it is in many places, the cuſtom for the youngeſt Counſellors or Judges to deliver their opinion firſt. s By giving them an Example and Encouragement to contemn and diſobey their Husbands. It is a crime of an high nature, and therefore deſerves an exemplary puniſhment.

17 For this deed of the queen ſhall come abroad unto all women, ſo that they ſhall deſpiſe their husbands in their eyes, when it ſhall be reported, The king Ahaſuerus commanded Vaſhti the queen to be brought in before him, but ſhe came not.

18 Likewiſe ſhall the Ladies of Perſia and Media ſay this day unto all the kings princes, which have heard of the deed of the queen. Thus ſhall there ariſe too much contempt and wrath t.

t Contempt in the Wives, and thereupon Wrath in the Husbands; and conſequently Strife in Families; which may produce great and general miſchiefs.

19 † If it pleaſe the king u, let there go a royal commandment † from him, and let it be written among the laws of the Perſians, and the Medes, † that it be not altered x, that Vaſhti come no more before king Ahaſuerus, and let the king give her royal eſtate † unto another that is better than ſhe.

Chap.8.8.
† Heb. unite her companion.

u Which this cunning Politician knew it would do. x Which caution was neceſſary for his own ſecurity; for if the Queen ſhould recover her ſtate, and the kings favour, he was moſt likely to fall into his diſpleaſure.

20 And when the kings decree which he ſhall make, ſhall be publiſhed throughout all his Empire, (for it is great)all the wives ſhall give to their husbands honour, both to great and ſmall.

21 And the ſaying † pleaſed the king and the princes y, and the king did according to the word of Memucan:

y Partly becauſe their own Authority and Intereſt was concerned in it: and eſpecially by the ſingular Providence of God, who deſigned to bring about his own great Work by this ſmall occaſion.

22 For he ſent letters into all the kings provinces, into every province according to the writing thereof, and to every people after their language, that every man ſhould bear rule in his own houſe, and † that it ſhould be publiſhed according to the language of every people z.

z That all ſorts of Perſons, not Men only (who by ſtudy or travel many times underſtand divers Languages) but the Women alſo might underſtand it, and therefore be inexcuſable if they did not comply with it; for which end it was not only written in each language, for that Writing might come but to few hands, but moreover it was publiſhed in the ſeveral Cities and Towns by ſuch Perſons as uſed to publiſh the King's Edicts. Others, That he ſhould ſpeak in the language of his own People, i. e. that Men ſhould not in compliance with their Wives, who were oft of other Nations and Languages, inure themſelves to it, and bring their Wives Language into the Family; but that men ſhould uſe their own proper Language, and cauſe their Wives and Children to uſe it; this being one ſign of Dominion, and therefore frequent after this time among the Greeks and Romans, who, together with their victorious Arms, brought in their Language into other Countries, and in a great meaſure impoſed it upon them.

CHAP. II.

The Virgins of the Kingdom being gathered together, a Queen is to be choſen, 1——4. Eſther, nurſed by Mordecai, is choſen to be one of the Virgins, 8. and preferred before the reſt, 9——11. The manner of her Purification, 12——14. She pleaſeth the King, and is made Queen, 15——17. The King makes a Feaſt for his Princes and Servants, 18——20. Mordecai diſcovereth a Treaſon againſt the King, 21, 22. which is recorded in their Chronicles, 23.

AFter theſe things when the wrath of king Ahaſuerus was appeaſed, he remembred a Vaſhti, and what ſhe had done, and what was decreed againſt her.

a With grief and ſhame, that in his Wine and Rage, he had ſo ſeverely puniſhed, and ſo irrevocably rejected ſo beautiful and deſirable a Perſon, and that for ſo ſmall a provocation, to which ſhe was eaſily led by the modeſty of her Sex, and by the Laws and Cuſtoms of Perſia.

2 Then ſaid the kings ſervants b that miniſtred unto him, Let there be fair young virgins ſought for the king.

b Who for their own Intereſts were obliged to quiet the King's Mind, and procure him another amiable Conſort.

3 And let the king appoint Officers in all the provinces of his kingdom, that they may gather together all the fair young virgins unto Shuſhan the palace, to the houſe of the women, † unto the cuſtody of ‖ Hege the kings chamberlain, keeper of the women c, and let their things for purification d be given them.

‖ Or, Hegai, v. 8.

c Either, 1. Of the Virgins, who are oft called Women, as here v. 11, 12. and elſewhere. So it is a Synecdoche. Or, 2. Of all the Women, both Virgins and Concubines: only the Virgins he himſelf took care of, as requiring more care and caution, and the Concubines be committed to Shaaſhgaz, ver. 14. his Deputy. d i. e. To cleanſe them from all impurities and indecencies, to anoint, and perfume, and adorn, and every way prepare them for the King's preſence and ſervice: for the legal purifications of the Jews he never regarded.

4 And let the maiden which pleaſeth the king, be queen inſtead of Vaſhti. And the thing pleaſed the king, and he did ſo.

5 Now in Shuſhan the palace there was a certain Jew, whoſe name was Mordecai, the ſon of Jair, the ſon of Shimei, the ſon of Kiſh, a Benjamite, 6 * Who e had been carried away from Jeruſalem, with the captivity which had been carried away with Jeconiah king of Judah, whom Nebucadnezzar the king of Babylon had carried away.

* 2 Kings 24. 15. 2 Chron. 36. 10. Jer. 24. 1.

e This may be referred either, 1. To Kiſh, Mordecai's Grandfather laſt mentioned; or, 2. To Mordecai, who was then carried away, either 1. In the Loins of his Parents, in which ſenſe Levi is ſaid to be tithed in Abraham, Heb. 7. and as thoſe perſons named Ezra 2. are ſaid to have been carried away by Nebuchadnezzar, Ezra 2. 1. which is not true of the moſt of them in their own perſons, but only as in their Fathers Loins. Or, 2. In his own perſon: and then indeed he was a Man of more than ordinary years. But of that ſee the Notes on chap. 1. 1.

7 And he † brought up Hadaſſah (that is Eſther f) his uncles daughter, for ſhe had neither father nor mother, and the maid was † fair and beautiful, whom Mordecai (when her father and mother were dead) took for his own daughter.

f Hadaſſah was her Hebrew name before her marriage; and ſhe was called Eſther by the King after it.

8 So it came to paſs, when the kings commandment and his decree was heard, and when many maidens were gathered together unto Shuſhan the palace, to the cuſtody of Hegai, that Eſther was brought g alſo unto the kings houſe, to the cuſtody of Hegai, keeper of the women.

g Or, taken, and that by force, as that word oft ſignifies: So great was the power and tyranny of the Perſian Kings, that they could and did take what perſons they liked to their own uſe.

9 And the maiden pleaſed him h, and ſhe obtained kindneſs of him, and he ſpeedily gave her things for purification, with † ſuch things as belonged to her, and ſeven maidens which were meet to be given her, out of the kings houſe, and † he preferred her and her maids unto the beſt place of the houſe of the women.

h Partly becauſe ſhe was very beautiful, and therefore he ſuppoſed ſhe would be very acceptable to the King; which would be his advantage; and partly by the Divine Power, which moveth the hearts of men which way he pleaſeth.

10 Eſther had not ſhewed her people, nor her kindred: for Mordecai had charged her that ſhe ſhould not ſhew it i.

i Leſt the knowledge hereof ſhould either make her contemptible or odious; or bring ſome inconvenience to the whole Nation, as things might happen. But there was alſo an hand of God in cauſing this to be concealed, for the better accompliſhment of that which he deſigned, though Mordecai was ignorant of it.

11 And Mordecai walked every day before the court of the womans houſe, † to know how Eſther did, and what ſhould become of her.

† Heb. to know the peace.

12 Now when every maids turn was come to go in to King Ahaſuerus; after that ſhe had been twelve months, according to the manner of the women k, for ſo were the days of their purifications accompliſhed, to wit, ſix months with oil of myrrhe l, and ſix months with ſweet odours m, and with other things for the purifying of the women.

k Who were kept ſo long, partly for their better purification, as it here follows; partly out of ſtate, as that which became ſo great a King; and partly that being ſo long in ſafe cuſtody, the King might be ſure that the Child begotten upon any of them was his own. l Which is uſeful both for making the ſkin exactly clean, and ſmooth, and ſolid, and for giving ſtrength and vigour to the body. m Which was the more neceſſary, becauſe the bodies of men and women in thoſe hot Countries, did of themſelves yield very ill ſcents, if not corrected and qualified by Art.

13 Then thus n came every maiden unto the king; whatſoever ſhe deſired o was given her, to go with her out of the houſe of the women, unto the kings houſe.

n Thus purified and prepared; and thus as it follows. o For ornament, or by way of attendance.

14 In the evening ſhe went, and on the morrow ſhe returned into the ſecond houſe of the women, to the cuſtody of Shaaſhgaz, the kings chamberlain, which kept the concubines p: ſhe came in unto the king no more, except the king delighted in her, and that ſhe were called by name.

p Whereof Darius Nothus is reckoned to have had 360.

15 Now when the turn of Eſther, the daughter of Abihail, the uncle of Mordecai (who had taken her for his daughter) was come to go in unto the king, ſhe required nothing q but what Hegai the kings chamberlain, the keeper of the women appointed: and Eſther obtained favour in the ſight of all them that looked upon her r.

q To ſhew that ſhe was not deſirous to pleaſe the King, and that ſhe was brought to the King without, and againſt her own inclination and choice. r i. e. Was admired by them for her beauty.

16 So Eſther was taken unto king Ahaſuerus, into his houſe royal s, in the tenth month (which is the month Tebeth) in the ſeventh year of his reign.

s And into his bed, as is implied. To which it is not ſtrange, if ſhe, though a vertuous perſon, did in thoſe circumſtances yield, conſidering the infirmity of Human Nature, and of that Sex, and the ſtate of thoſe Times, when plurality of Wives were permitted, and Concubines were owned as Wives; and theſe Virgins were by this action made his Wives or Concubines. Beſides, it is not known to us whether Mordecai and Eſther had not direction, or a diſpenſation from God in this matter; it being certain that God can diſpenſe with his own poſitive Laws.

17 And the king loved Eſther above all the women, and ſhe obtained grace and ‖ favour † in his ſight, more then all the virgins; ſo that he ſet the royal crown upon her head, and made her queen inſtead of Vaſhti.

18 Then the king made a great feaſt unto all his princes and his ſervants, even Eſthers feaſt, and he made a † releaſe to the provinces t, and gave gifts according to the ſtate of the king.

t i. e. He took off a good part of thoſe heavy taxes which the Perſian Kings laid upon their people.

19 And when the virgins were gathered together the ſecond time u, then Mordecai ſat in the kings gate x.

u Either, 1. When Eſther, with others, were brought to the Kings houſe, as it was decreed above, v. 2, 3. which is called the ſecond time, becauſe they had taken this courſe once before when Vaſhti was choſen Queen: But there is no mention of any ſuch former uſe; and by the manner of propoſing, it ſeems to have been a new project. Or, 2. Since Eſther was declared Queen; for though that point was determined, the King's Luſt was not yet ſatisfied, and therefore being pleaſed with the former Experiment, he deſired another Collection of Virgins whom he might make his Concubines. And this ſeems beſt to agree with the following words. For it is not probable that Mordecai ſate at the King's Gate till Eſter was Queen; for till then he only walked before the court of the womens houſe, as is expreſſed v. 11. x Either 1. Voluntarily, to learn the progreſs of Affairs. Or, rather 2. By Office, as one of the King's Guard or Miniſters; being advanced to this place by Eſthers favour, though without any diſcovery of her relation to him.

20 Eſther had not yet ſhewed her kindred, nor her people, as Mordecai had charged her: for Eſther did the commandment of Mordecai, like as when ſhe was brought up with him.

21 * In thoſe days (while Mordecai ſat in the kings gate) two of the kings chamberlains, ‖ Bigthan and Tereſh, of thoſe which kept the † door y, were wroth, and ſought * to lay hand z on the king Ahaſuerus.

* See Eſth. 6. 1. ‖ Or, Bigthana, ch. 6. 2. † Heb. the threſhold. * An opportunity.

y Either 1. Of the King's Chamber. Or, 2. Of his Court; and ſo they ſate in the Gate, as Mordecai did, who by that means contracting ſome familiar Acquaintance with them, might make ſome diſcovery of their Minds and Deſign. z i. e. Violent hand; to kill him as this Phraſe is uſed, ch. 3. 6. and elſewhere.

22 And the thing was known to Mordecai, who told it unto Eſther the queen, and Eſther certified the king thereof, in Mordecai's name.

23 And when inquiſition was made of the matter, it was found out, therefore they were both hanged on a tree: and it was written in the book of the Chronicles before the king ‖.

‖ This may be referred, either 1. To the Writing, to note that this was written in the King's preſence by Scribes, who were continually preſent with the King to write all remarkable Paſſages happening in the Court from time to time. Or, 2. To the Book, which was laid up before the King, that he might more eaſily and frequently peruſe it for his own delight or direction.

CHAP. III.

Haman is advanced by the King, 1——4. being deſpiſed by Mordecai, he ſeeketh to deſtroy all the Jews, 5, 6. He caſteth Lots, 7. and accuſing the Jews to the King, obtaineth a Decree to put them to death, 8——11. Letters iſſued out to deſtroy all the Jews, 12——15.

AFter theſe things did king Ahaſuerus promote Haman the ſon of Hammedatha the * Agagite a, and advanced him, and ſet his ſeat above all the princes that were with him b.

* See Eſth. 3. 10.

a i. e. An Amalekite of the Royal Seed of that Nation, whoſe Kings were commonly and ſucceſſively called Agag, as hath been obſerved before. It is true, he is called a Macedonian in the Apocryphal Additions to this Book, and ſo he might be by his Birth or Habitation in that place, though by his original he was of another People. b Gave him the firſt Place and Seat, which was next to the King. Compare 2 Kings 25. 28.

2 And all the kings ſervants that were in the kings † gate bowed, and reverenced Haman; for the king had ſo commanded concerning him: but Mordecai * bowed not, nor did him reverence c.

† Gr. court. * See Eſth. 5. 19.

c The reaſon of which obſtinate refuſal, was either 1. The Quality of the Perſon; that he was not only an infamouſly wicked Man, and an Heathen, but of that Nation, which God had obliged the Iſraelites to abhor and oppoſe from Generation to Generation; and therefore he durſt not ſhew outward reſpect to a Man whom he did, and ought inwardly to contemn. Or, rather 2. The nature of the thing; for the Worſhip required was not only Civil, but Divine; which as the Kings of Perſia did undoubtedly arrogate to themſelves, and expect and receive from their Subjects and others who came into their preſence, as is affirmed by divers Authors, ſo they did ſometimes impart this Honour to ſome of their chief Favourites, that they ſhould be adored in like manner. And that it was ſo here, ſeems more than probable, becauſe it was wholly ſuperfluous, and almoſt ridiculous, to give an expreſs and particular command to all the King's Servants that were in the King's Gate, as here it was, to pay a civil Reſpect to ſo great a Prince, which of courſe they uſed, and were ever obliged to do; and therefore a Divine Honour muſt be here intended. And that a Jew ſhould deny this Honour, or the outward Expreſſions of it, to ſuch a Perſon, is not ſtrange, ſeeing the wiſe and ſober Grecians did poſitively refuſe to give this Honour to the Kings of Perſia themſelves, even when they were to make their Addreſſes to them; and one Timocrates was put to death by the Athenians for worſhipping Darius in that manner.

3 Then the kings ſervants which were in the kings gate, ſaid unto Mordecai, Why tranſgreſſeſt thou the kings commandment?

4 Now it came to paſs, when they ſpake daily unto him, and he hearkened not unto them, that they told Haman, to ſee whether Mordecai his matters would ſtand d; for he had told them that he was a Jew e.

d i. e. Whether he would perſiſt in his refuſal, and what the event of it would be. e And therefore did not deny this reverence to Haman out of Pride, or any perſonal Grudge againſt him, much leſs out of a rebellious Mind and Contempt of the King's Authority and Command, but meerly out of Conſcience, becauſe he was a Jew, who was obliged to give this honour to none but to God only.

5 And when Haman ſaw that Mordecai bowed not, nor did him reverence, then was Haman full of wrath.

6 And he thought ſcorn f to lay hands on Mordecai alone; for they had ſhewed him the people of Mordecai: wherefore Haman ſought to deſtroy all the Jews g that were throughout the whole kingdom of Ahaſuerus, even the people of Mordecai.

f He thought that particular Vengeance was unſuitable to his Quality, and to the Greatneſs of the Injury. g Which he attempted, partly from that implacable Hatred which, as an Amalekite, he had againſt them; partly from his Rage againſt Mordecai; and partly from Mordecai's reaſon of this Contempt, becauſe he was a Jew, which as he truly judged, extended it ſelf to all the Jews, and would equally ingage them all in the ſame neglect and hatred of his Perſon.

7 In the firſt month (that is the month Niſan) in the twelfth year of king Ahaſuerus, * they caſt Pur, that is, the lot, before Haman from day to day, and from month to month h, to the twelfth month i, that is, the month Adar.

* Ch. 9. 24.

h The Diviners caſt Lots, according to the Cuſtom of thoſe ancient and eaſtern People, what day, and what month would be moſt lucky, not for his Succeſs with the King (of whoſe compliance with his requeſt he made no doubt) but for the moſt effectual and univerſal Extirpation of the Jews. i Wherein appears both his implacable Malice, and unwearied Diligence in ſeeking Vengeance of them with ſo much, and ſo long trouble to himſelf; and God's ſingular Providence in diſpoſing the Lot to that time, that ſo the Jews might have ſufficient ſpace of time to get the Decree reverſed, as they did.

8 And Haman ſaid unto king Ahaſuerus, There is a certain people k ſcattered abroad, and diſperſed among the people l in all the provinces of thy kingdom m, and * their laws are divers from all people n, neither keep they the kings laws o; therefore it is not † for the kings profit to ſuffer them p.

* Ezr. 4. 13. Acts 16. 20 † Heb. meet, or equal.

k Mean and contemptible, not worthy to be named. l Who therefore, if tolerated, may poyſon all thy Subjects with their pernicious Principles; and whom thou mayſt eaſily cruſh without any great noiſe or difficulty. m For though many of their Brethren were returned to their own Land, yet great numbers of them ſtaid behind, either becauſe they preferred their Eaſe and worldly Commodities before their Spiritual Advantages; or becauſe they wanted Conveniency or Opportunity for a remove; which might happen from divers cauſes. n They have peculiar and fantaſtical Rites, and Cuſtoms, and Religion; and therefore are juſtly offenſive to all thy People, and may either infect them with their Conceits, or occaſion great Diſſentions and Diſtractions among them. o As is manifeſt by Mordecai's bold Contempt of thy late Edict concerning me, which being done by him as a Jew, the whole Nation are involved in his Crime, and are prepared to do ſo when they have occaſion. p To live in his Kingdom. I do not ſeek herein ſo much my own Revenge as thy Service.

9 If it pleaſe the king, let it be written q † that they may be deſtroyed: and I will † pay ten thouſand talents of ſilver r to the hands of thoſe that have the charge of the buſineſs s: to bring it into the kings treaſuries.

q Let there be a written Edict from the King. r Whether theſe were Hebrew, or Babyloniſh, or Grecian Talents we cannot certainly know. But which ſoever they were, it was a vaſt Sum to be paid out of his own Eſtate, which he was willing to ſacrifice to his Revenge. s Either 1. Of this buſineſs, to wit, of deſtroying the Jews; which as ſoon as they have procured to be done, I will pay the Mony into their hands, that by them it may be paid into the King's Exchequer. Or rather 2. Of the King's Buſineſs, or of the Treaſures, as is implied in the following words. I will pay it to the King's Receivers, that they may put it into the King's Treaſures.

‖ Or, Oppreſſor.

[t] That he might keep it as a Badge of his Supreme Authority under the King, and that he might uſe it for the Sealing of this Decree which now he deſired, or of any other as hereafter he ſhould ſee fit. Compare ch. 8. 2, 8. and Gen. 41. 42. [u] So he was both by Inclination, as he was an Amalekite, and eſpecially by this malicious and deſtructive Deſign and Reſolution.

11 And the king ſaid unto Haman, The ſilver is given to thee [x], the people alſo, to do with them as it ſeemeth good to thee.

[x] Keep it to thy own uſe, I do not deſire it, I accept thy offer for the deed.

12 Then were the kings ‖ ſcribes [y] called on the thirteenth day of the firſt month, and there was written according to all that Haman had commanded unto the kings lieutenants, and to the governours that were over every province, and to the rulers of every people of every province according to the writing thereof, and to every people after their language, in the name of king Ahaſuerus was it written, and ſealed with the kings ring.

‖ Or, Secretaries.

[y] This he did ſo ſpeedily, though it was a year before the intended Execution, leſt the King ſhould change his Mind, either by his own Clemency, or by the Perſwaſion of others.

13 And the letters were ſent by poſts into all the kings provinces, to deſtroy, to kill, and to cauſe to periſh all Jews, both young and old, * little children and women, in one day, even upon the thirteenth day of the twelfth month (which is the month Adar) and to take the ſpoil of them for a prey [z].

* Not excepting.

[z] Which was to oblige them to the greater Severity and Readineſs to execute this Edict for their own advantage.

14 The copy of the writing for a commandment to be given in every province, was publiſhed unto all people, that they ſhould be ready againſt that day.

15 The poſts went out, being haſtened by the kings commandment ‖, and the decree was given in Shuſhan the palace: and the king and Haman ſat down to drink, but the city Shuſhan † was perplexed.

‖ Either by this Decree made in the King's name, or by ſome particular and ſucceeding command, which Haman could eaſily obtain from the King. † Not only the Jews, but a great number of the Citizens, either becauſe they were related to them, or engaged with them in worldly Concerns; or out of Humanity and Compaſſion towards ſo vaſt a number of innocent People now appointed as Sheep for the Slaughter; or out of a fear either of ſome Sedition and Diſturbance which might ariſe by this means; or of ſome Damage which might accrue to themſelves or Friends, who happily under this Pretence might be expoſed to Rapine or Slaughter; or of a publick Judgment of God upon them all for ſo Bloody a Decree.

CHAP. IV.

The great Mourning of Mordecai and the Jews, 1——3. He ſheweth Eſther the Cauſe of it, and adviſeth her to Petition the King for her People, 4——7. She, excuſing her ſelf, is threatned by Mordecai, 8——14. She appoints a general Faſt, and reſolves to go into the King, 15——17.

WHen Mordecai perceived all that was done, Mordecai rent his clothes, and put on ſackcloth with aſhes, and went out into the midſt of the city, and cried with a loud and bitter cry [a],

[a] Partly to expreſs his deep Senſe of the Miſchief coming upon his People; partly to move the Pity of others to do what they could to prevent it; and partly that by this means it might come to the Queens Ear.

2 And came, even before the kings gate; for none might enter into the kings gate [b] clothed with ſackcloth [c].

[b] And therefore he might not ſit there, as he had hitherto done. [c] Leſt it ſhould give the King any occaſion of Grief or Trouble.

3 And in every province whitherſoever the kings commandment and his decree came, there was great mourning among the Jews, and faſting, and weeping and wailing, and † many lay in ſack-cloth and aſhes.

4 So Eſthers maids, and her † chamberlains came and told it her. Then was the queen exceedingly grieved, and ſhe ſent raiment to cloth Mordecai [d], and to take away his ſackcloth from him: but he received it not.

[d] That ſo he might be capable of returning to his former place, if not of coming to her to acquaint her with the cauſe of that unuſual Sorrow.

5 Then called Eſther for Hatach, one of the kings chamberlains, † whom he had appointed to attend upon her; and gave him a commandment to Mordecai, to know what it was, and why it was.

6 So Hatach went forth to Mordecai unto the ſtreet of the city, which was before the kings gate.

7 And Mordecai told him of all that had happened unto him, and of the ſum of mony that Haman had promiſed to pay to the kings treaſuries for the Jews, to deſtroy them.

8 Alſo he gave him the copy of the writing of the decree that was given at Shuſhan to deſtroy them, to ſhew it unto Eſther, and declare it unto her, and to charge her [i] that ſhe ſhould go in unto the king to make ſupplication unto him, and to make requeſt before him for her people.

[i] Not only in his own name, to whom ſhe manifeſted a ſingular reſpect, though his relation to her was yet unknown, but alſo in the name of the great God.

9 And Hatach came and told Eſther the words of Mordecai.

10 Again Eſther ſpake unto Hatach, and gave him commandment to ſay unto Mordecai;

11 All the kings ſervants, and the people of the kings provinces do know [k], that whoſoever, whether man or woman, ſhall come unto the king into the inner court [l], who is not called, there is one law of his to put him to death [m], except ſuch to whom the king ſhall hold out the golden ſcepter that he may live: but I have not been called to come in unto the king theſe thirty days [n].

[k] By common Fame of this received Cuſtom and Law. [l] Within which, the King's Reſidence and Throne was. [m] This was decreed, partly to maintain both the Majeſty, and the Safety of the King's Perſon; and partly by the Contrivance of the greater Officers of State, that few or none might have Acceſs to the King but themſelves and their Friends. And many ſuch ſevere Laws there were in the Perſian Court, which Profane Hiſtorians relate, as that if any Perſon looked upon one of the King's Concubines, or wore any of his own Clothes, or drunk of that Water which he had appropriated to himſelf, and other ſuch like things, he was puniſhed with death. [n] Which gives me juſt cauſe to ſuſpect and fear that the Kings Affections are alienated from me, and therefore that neither my Perſon nor Petition will be acceptable to him.

12 And they told to Mordecai Eſthers words.

13 Then Mordecai commanded to anſwer Eſther, Think not with thy ſelf that thou ſhalt eſcape in the kings houſe [o], more than all the Jews:

[o] i. e. Being, or becauſe thou art in the King's Houſe, and an eminent Member of his Family.

14 For if thou altogether holdeſt thy peace at this time, then ſhall there † enlargement and deliverance ariſe to the Jews from another place [p], but thou and thy fathers houſe ſhall be deſtroyed [q]: and who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for ſuch a time as this [r]?

[p] From another hand, and by another means; which God can, and I am fully perſwaded, will raiſe up. [q] By the righteous and dreadful Judgment of God, puniſhing thy Cowardiſe, and Self-ſeeking, and thy want of Love to God, and to his and thy own People. [r] It is probable God hath raiſed thee to this Honour for this very Seaſon; and therefore go on couragiouſly, and doubt not of the Succeſs.

15 Then Eſther bad them return Mordecai this anſwer, 16 Go, gather together all the Jews that are † preſent in Shuſhan, and faſt ye [s] for me, and neither eat nor drink [t] three days, night or day: I alſo and my maidens [u] will faſt likewiſe [x], and ſo will I go in unto the king, which is not according to the law [y]; and if I periſh, I periſh [z].

[s] And Pray; which was the main buſineſs, to which Faſting was only an help and an Handmaid. [t] To wit, ſo as you uſe to do, either deliciouſly or plentifully. Leave off your common Meals, Dinners by day, and Suppers at night, and eat and drink no more than meer neceſſity requires; that ſo you may give your ſelves to conſtant and fervent Prayers, for which your ordinary repaſts will unfit you. For it is not likely that ſhe would impoſe the burden of abſolute Faſting ſo long upon all the Jews, which very few of them were able to endure. And ſo the like Phraſe is taken, Acts 27. 33. where he ſaith, This is the fourteenth day that ye have continued faſting, having taken nothing. [u] Which ſhe had choſen to attend upon her perſon, and were doubtleſs either of the Jewiſh Nation, or Proſelyted by hers, or others means, to that Religion. [x] Which may belong, either 1. To the thing only, that as they did faſt, ſo ſhe would. Or, rather, 2. To the time of three days and three nights; for ſo ſhe might do, though ſhe went to the King on the third day. For the Faſt began at evening, and ſo ſhe might continue her Faſt three whole nights, and two whole days, and the greateſt part of the third; a part of a day being reputed a day in the account of Scripture, and other Authors: of which ſee on Mat. 12. 40. Yea, ſhe might faſt all that day too: for it is probable ſhe went not to the King till he had dined; when ſhe ſuppoſed ſhe might find him in the moſt mild and pleaſant humour, and then returned to her Apartment, where ſhe faſted till the Evening. [y] Which is againſt the law now mentioned. [z] Although my danger be great and evident, conſidering the expreſneſs of that Law, and the uncertainty of the King's mind, and that ſeverity which he ſhewed to my Predeceſſor Vaſhti; yet rather than neglect my duty to God, and to his People, I will go to the King, and caſt my ſelf chearfully and reſolutely upon God's Providence for my Safety and Succeſs.

17 So Mordecai † went his way, and did according to all that Eſther had commanded him.

CHAP. V.

Eſther venturing on the King's favour, hath the golden Scepter held out to her, 1——3. She inviteth the King and Haman to a banquet, 4, 5. And being encouraged by the King in her Petition, 6. Invites them to another banquet, 7, 8. Haman's joy, but angry with Mordecai for contemning him, 9——13. By the counſel of his Wiſe he builds a Gallows for him, 14.

NOW it came to paſs on the third day a, that Eſther put on her * royal apparel b, and ſtood in the inner court of the kings houſe, over againſt the kings houſe: and the king ſat upon his royal throne in the royal houſe, over againſt the gate of the houſe.

*Ch. 6. 8. & 8. 15.

a Of which ſee the Notes on ch. 4. 16. b That ſhe might render her ſelf as amiable in the King's Eyes as ſhe could; and ſo obtain her requeſt.

2 And it was ſo, when the king ſaw Eſther the queen ſtanding in the court, that ſhe * obtained favour in his ſight: and the king held out to Eſther the golden ſcepter that was in his hand c: ſo Eſther drew near, and touched the top of his ſcepter d.

*Chap. 5. 8. & 7. 3.

c In teſtimony that he pardoned her preſumption, and accepted her perſon, and was ready to grant her petition. d In token of her thankful acceptance of the King's great Favour, and of her reverence and ſubmiſſion to his Majeſty, whereof that might poſſibly be an uſual token, and it may be, at the king's call and invitation to her to come near to him.

3 Then ſaid the king unto her, What wilt thou, queen Eſther? and what it thy requeſt? * it ſhall be even given thee to the half of the kingdom.

*See Mark 6. 23.

4 And Eſther anſwered, If it ſeem good unto the king, let the king and Haman e come this day unto the banquet that I have prepared for him.

e Whom ſhe invited, partly that by ſhewing ſuch reſpect to the King's great Favourite, ſhe might inſinuate her ſelf into the King's good opinion and affection; and partly, that if ſhe ſaw fit, ſhe might then preſent her requeſt to the King.

5 Then the king ſaid, Cauſe Haman to make haſt, that he may do as Eſther hath ſaid: ſo the king and Haman came to the banquet that Eſther had prepared.

6 And the king ſaid unto Eſther at the banquet of wine f, What is thy petition? and it ſhall be granted thee: and what is thy requeſt? even to the half of the kingdom it ſhall be performed.

f Either 1. At the latter end of the Feaſt, when they uſed to drink Wine more freely, whereas in the former part, moſt of their drink was Water. Or, 2. At her Banquet; which is ſo called, becauſe it conſiſted not of Meats, which probably the King had plentifully eaten before at his own Table, but of Fruits and Wines; which Banquets were very frequent among the Perſians.

7 Then anſwered Eſther, and ſaid, My petition, and my requeſt is;

8 If I have found favour in the ſight of the king, and if it pleaſe the king to grant my petition, and † to perform my requeſt, let the king and Haman come to the banquet that I ſhall prepare for them, and I will do to morrow as the king hath ſaid g.

†Heb. to do

g I will acquaint thee with my humble requeſt. She did not preſent her petition at this time, but delayed it till the next meeting; either through modeſty, or becauſe ſhe was a little daunted with the King's preſence, and had not yet good courage to propoſe her requeſt: or, in policy, becauſe ſhe would further engage the King's affection to her by a ſecond entertainment, and would alſo intimate to him that her petition was of a more than ordinary nature: and principally by direction and diſpoſition of the divine providence, which took away her courage or utterance for this time, that ſhe might have a better opportunity for it the next time, by that great accident which happened before it.

9 Then went Haman forth that day, joyful, and with a glad heart: but when Haman ſaw Mordecai in the kings gate, that he ſtood not up, nor moved for him h, he was full of indignation againſt Mordecai.

h Partly leſt he ſhould ſeem, or be interpreted to give him that adoration which he hitherto had juſtly denied; partly becauſe by his bloody and barbarous deſign and practiſe, he had put off all humanity, and forfeited all reſpect; and partly to ſhew how little he feared him, and that he had a firm confidence in his God that he would deliver him and his people in this great exigency; which he was the more encouraged to hope, becauſe God had inclined Eſther's heart to that pious and valiant reſolution of interceding with the King, which he doubted not would meet with good ſucceſs.

10 Neverthleſs, Haman refrained himſelf i, and when he came home, he ſent and † called for his friends, and Zereſh his wife.

i From taking preſent vengeance upon Mordecai, to which he was ſtrongly inclined, and which he might eaſily have effected, either by his own, or any of his Servants hands, without any expectation, or fear of inconvenience to himſelf, who having obtained licence to deſtroy an whole Nation, could eaſily get a pardon for having killed one obſcure and infamous Member of it. Herein therefore God's wiſe and powerful Providence appeared in diſpoſing Haman's heart, contrary to his own inclination and intereſt, and making him, as it were, to put Fetters upon his own hands.

11 And Haman told them of the glory of his riches k, and the multitude of his children, and all the things wherein the king had promoted him, and how he had advanced him above the princes and ſervants of the king.

k Partly to gratifie his own vain-glorious humour, and partly to aggravate Mordecai's impudence in denying him civil reſpect, and to alleviate his own vexation cauſed by it.

12 Haman ſaid moreover, Yea, Eſther the queen did let no man come in with the king unto the banquet that ſhe had prepared, but my ſelf; and to morrow am I invited unto her alſo with the king l.

l Thus he makes that matter of glorying which was deſigned for, and the occaſion of his utter ruine. So ignorant are the wiſeſt men, and ſubject to fatal miſtakes, rejoycing when they have moſt cauſe of fear and grief, and ſorrowing for thoſe things which tend to joy and comfort.

13 Yet all this availeth me nothing m, ſo long as I ſee Mordecai the Jew ſitting at the kings gate n.

m i. e. Gives me no content. Such torment did his envy and malice bring upon upon him. n Enjoying that honour and priviledge without diſturbance, and denying me the worſhip due to me by my place, and by the King's command: though this laſt, and the chief cauſe of his rage, he was ſomewhat aſhamed to expreſs. Either Mordecai was come, having laid by his Sackcloth for this time, that he might be in a capacity of coming thither, and ſo of underſtanding how matters proceeded. Beſides, this was a private Faſt, and ſo he was not oblig'd always to wear his Sackcloth in publick, during the whole time of the Faſt, though he did once come abroad with it, that the cauſe of it might be publickly known, and ſo come to Eſther's ears.

14 Then ſaid Zereſh his wife, and all his friends unto him, Let a † gallows be made of fifty cubits high o, and to morrow ſpeak thou unto the king, that Mordecai may be hanged thereon: then go thou in merrily with the king unto the banquet. And the thing pleaſed Haman, and he cauſed * the gallows to be made.

*Chap. 7. 9.

o That it might be more conſpicuous to all, and thereby be more diſgraceful to Mordecai, and ſtrike all Haman's Enemies with the great dread of deſpiſing or oppoſing him.

CHAP. VI.

Ahaſuerus's ſleep being taken from him, commands the Chronicles to be read, 1. And reading of Mordecai's diſcovery of the Plot againſt his Life, asks what Honour had been done to him, 2, 3. Haman coming to the King to have Mordecai hanged, unawares gives counſel to honour him, 4——11. Haman telling his Friends what had befallen him, is foretold of his final ruine, 12, 13. He is call'd to Eſther's banquet, 14.

ON that night † could not the king ſleep a, and he commanded to bring the book of records of the chronicles b: and they were read before the king c.

a How vain are all the contrivances and indeavours of this fooliſh impotent Man againſt the Wiſe and Omnipotent God, who hath the hearts and hands of Kings and all men perfectly at his diſpoſe, and can by ſuch trivial accidents (as they are accounted) change their minds, and produce ſuch momentous and terrible effects! b His mind being troubled he knew not how, nor why, he chuſeth this for a divertiſement, God putting this thought and inclination to him, for otherwiſe he might have diverted himſelf, as he uſed to do at other times, with his Wives or Concubines, or Voices and Inſtruments of Muſick, which was far more agreeable to his temper. c Until the Morning, when he intended to riſe out of his Bed.

2 And it was found written, That Mordecai had told of ‖ Bigthana and Tereſh, two of the kings chamberlains, the keepers of the † door, who ſought to lay hand on the king Ahaſuerus.

3 And the king ſaid, What honour and dignity hath been done to Mordecai for this? Then ſaid the kings ſervants that miniſtred unto him, There is nothing done for him p.

p He hath had no recompence for this great and good ſervice. Which might happen either through the King's forgetfulneſs; or through the envy of the Courtiers; or becauſe he was a Jew, and therefore odious and contemptible.

4 And the king ſaid, Who is in the court? (now Haman was come q into the outward court of the kings houſe r, to ſpeak unto the king to hang Mordecai on the gallows that he had prepared for him.)

q Early in the Morning, becauſe his Malice probably would not ſuffer him to ſleep; and he was impatient till he had executed his deſired revenge; and he was reſolved to watch for the very firſt opportunity of ſpeaking to the King, before he was engaged in other matters. r Where he waited; becauſe it was dangerous to come into the inner Court without ſpecial licenſe, ch. 4. 11.

5 And the kings ſervants ſaid unto him, Behold, Haman ſtandeth in the court. And the king ſaid, Let him come in.

6 So Haman came in, and the king ſaid unto him, What ſhall be done unto the man s † whom the king delighteth to honour? (now Haman thought in his heart t, To whom would the king delight to do honour more than to my ſelf?)

s He names none, becauſe he would have the more Impartial Anſwer. And probably he knew nothing of the difference between Haman and Mordecai. t As indeed he had great reaſon to preſume becauſe he had not yet forfeited that favour which the King had ſhewed to him above all others.

7 And Haman anſwered the king, For the man † whom the king delighteth to honour, † Heb. in whoſe honor the king delighteth.

8 † Let the royal apparel u be brought † which the king uſeth to wear, and the horſe that the king rideth upon x, and the crown royal which is ſet upon his head y.

u His outward Garment which was made of Purple, interwoven with Gold, as Juſtin and Curtius relate. x Uſually: which was well known both by his excellency, and eſpecially by his peculiar Trappings and Ornaments. Comp. 1 Kings 1. 33. y Either 1. Upon the King's head. Or, 2. Upon the Horſes head; which ſeems beſt to agree. 1. With that ancient Chaldee Interpreter, and other Jews who take it thus. 2. With the ſignification and order of the Hebrew Words. 3. With the following Verſes, in which there is no further mention of this Crown, but only of the apparel, and of the horſe, to which the Crown belonged, as one of his Ornaments. 4. With the cuſtom of the Perſians, which ſome affirm to have been this, to put the Crown upon the head of that Horſe, upon which the King rode.

9 And let this apparel and horſe be delivered to the hand of one of the kings moſt noble princes, that they may array the man withal, whom the king delighteth to honour, and † bring him on horſeback through the principal ſtreets of the city, and proclaim z before him, Thus ſhall it be done unto the man whom the king delighteth to honour.

z i. e. Cauſe this to be proclaimed, to wit, by ſome publick Officer appointed for that ſervice. Compare Gen. 41. 43.

10. Then the king ſaid to Haman, Make haſt, and take the apparel, and the horſe, as thou haſt ſaid, and do even ſo to Mordecai the Jew, that ſitteth at the kings gate: † let nothing fail of all that thou haſt ſpoken.

11 Then took Haman the apparel, and the horſe, and arrayed Mordecai, and brought him on horſeback through the ſtreet of the city, and proclaimed a before him, Thus ſhall it be done unto the man whom the king delighteth to honour.

a Either himſelf, or by the Officer.

12 And Mordecai came again to the kings gate b: but Haman haſted to his houſe, mourning and having his head covered c.

b To his former place and office; ſhewing that as he was not overwhelmed by Haman's threats and malicious deſign, as appears by chap. 5. 9. So now he was not puffed up with all this honour. Beſides, he came thither to attend the iſſue of the main buſineſs, and to be at hand to aſſiſt or encourage the Queen, if need were: which now he was more capable of doing, than hitherto he had been. c In token of his ſhame and grief for his unexpected, and great diſappointment of his hope and deſire, and for the great honour done to his moſt deſpiſed and abhorred Adverſary, and this by his own hands, and with his own publick diſgrace; and for ſuch further Inconveniences as this unlucky Omen ſeemed to preſage to him.

13 And Haman told Zereſh his wife, and all his friends, every thing that had befallen him. Then ſaid his wiſe men d, and Zereſh his wife unto him, If Mordecai be of the ſeed of the Jews e, before whom thou haſt begun to fall, thou ſhalt not prevail againſt him, but ſhalt ſurely fall before him f.

d The Magicians, whom after the Perſian manner he had called together to conſult with upon this great and ſtrange emergency. e Which they were told, and was generally ſuppoſed, but they were not infallibly ſure of it. f This they concluded, either 1. By rules of policy, becauſe Haman's reputation and intereſt was hereby ſinking, and Mordecai (whom they underſtood to be a man of great wiſdom and courage, and government of himſelf) was now got into the King's favour, and thereby was likely to gain an opportunity of making his Addreſſes to the King, who being of a mild diſpoſition, might eaſily be moved to a diſlike (if not revocation) of his own bloody Decree, and conſequently to a deteſtation of that perſon who had procured it. Or, 2. By former experience, and the obſervation of God's extraordinary actions on the behalf of the Jews, and againſt their Enemies in this very Court and Kingdom. Or, 3. By inſtinct and inſpiration to their minds, either from God, who might ſuggeſt this to them, as he did other things to other wicked men, Balaam, Caiaphas, &c. for his own greater Glory, and the good of his people: or from the Devil, who, by God's permiſſion, might know this, and reveal it to them who ſought to him in their ſuperſtitious and idolatrous methods.

14 And while they were yet talking with him, came the kings chamberlains, and haſted to bring Haman g unto the banquet that Eſther had prepared.

g Who was now ſlack to go thither, by reaſon of the great dejection of his own mind, and the fear of a worſe entertainment from the King and Queen than he had formerly received.

CHAP. VII.

Eſther maketh a Petition for her own and her Peoples life, 1—3. She accuſeth Haman, who had determined to deſtroy the Jews, 4. Haman is afraid, 5. the King in his anger, 6—8. being informed of the Gallows which Haman had built for Mordecai, cauſeth him to be hanged thereon, 9, 10.

SO the king and Haman came † to banquet with Eſther the queen.

2 And the king ſaid again to Eſther, on the ſecond day, * at the banquet of wine a, What is thy petition, queen Eſther? and it ſhall be granted thee: and what is thy requeſt? and it ſhall be performed, even to the half of the kingdom.

*Ch. 5. 6.

a So it is called to note that it was not deſigned for a Feaſt to fill their bellies, but rather for a Banquet to delight and pleaſe their Palates with Wine and other Delicacies; ſee on chap. 5. 8.

3 Then Eſther the queen anſwered and ſaid, If I have found favour in thy ſight, O king, and if it pleaſe the king, let my life be given me at my petition b, and my people c at my requeſt.

b It is my humble and only requeſt, That thou wouldſt not give me up to the malice of that Man that deſigns to take away my life, and will certainly do it, if thou doſt not prevent it. c And the lives (which is eaſily ſupplied out of the fore-going branch) of my People the Jews, of whom I am deſcended.

4 For we are * ſold d, I and my people e, † to be deſtroyed, to be ſlain, and to periſh f: but if we had been ſold for bond-men, and bond-women, I had held my tongue g, although the enemy could not countervail the kings damage h.

d By the craft and cruelty of that man who offered a great Sum of Mony to purchaſe our deſtruction. e For we are all given up to his malice and rage, without any exception of my own Perſon. f She uſeth variety of expreſſions to make the deeper impreſſion upon the King's mind. g Becauſe that Calamity had neither been irrecoverable, nor intolerable, nor yet unprofitable to the King, for whoſe honour and ſervice, I ſhould willingly have ſubmitted my ſelf and People to any kind of bondage. h His ten thouſand Talents, if paid into the King's treaſury, would not repair the King's loſs in the Cuſtoms and Tributes which the King receives from the Jews within his Dominions.

5 Then the king Ahaſuerus anſwered and ſaid unto Eſther the queen, Who is he? and where is he i † that durſt preſume in his heart to do ſo k?

i The Expreſſions are ſhort and doubled, as proceeding from a diſcompoſed and enraged mind. k i. e. To circumvent me, and by ſubtilty to procure an irrevocable Decree, whereby not only my Eſtate ſhould be ſo much impaired, and ſo many of my innocent Subjects be deſtroyed without Mercy, but my Queen alſo ſhould be involved in the ſame danger and deſtruction.

6 And Eſther ſaid, † The adverſary and enemy is l † this wicked Haman. Then Haman was afraid ‖ before the king and the queen.

l Of the King, and of my Perſon and People.

7 And the king ariſing from the banquet of wine in his wrath, went into the palace-garden m: and Haman ſtood up to make requeſt for his life to Eſther the queen: for he ſaw n that there was evil determined againſt him by the king.

m Partly as diſdaining the company and ſight of ſo ungrateful and audacious a perſon: partly to cool and allay his troubled and inflamed Spirits, and partly to conſider within himſelf the hainouſneſs of Haman's crime, and the miſchief which himſelf had done by his own raſhneſs, and what puniſhment was fit to be inflicted upon ſo great a Delinquent. n By the violent commotion of the King's mind and paſſions.

8 Then the king returned out of the palace-garden, into the place of the banquet of wine, and Haman was fallen upon the bed o whereon Eſther was. Then ſaid the king, Will he force the queen alſo p † before me in the houſe q? As the word went out of the kings mouth they r covered Hamans face s.

o Or, by, or beſide the bed, on which the Queen ſat at Meat, after the manner: where he was fallen upon his Knees, and upon the ground, at her feet, as humble Suppliants uſed to do, and as the Queen did at the King's feet, ch. 8. 3. p Will he now attempt my Queens Chaſtity, as he hath already attempted her life! His preſumption and impudence I ſee will ſtick at nothing. He ſpeaks not this out of a real Jealouſie, for which there was no cauſe in thoſe circumſtances, but from an exaſperated mind which takes all occaſions to vent it ſelf againſt the perſon who gave the provocation, and makes the worſt conſtruction of all his words and actions. q In my own preſence and Palace. r i. e. The King's and Queen's Chamberlains then attending upon them. s Partly that the King might not be offended or grieved with the ſight of a Perſon whom he now loathed: and partly becauſe they looked upon him as a condemned Perſon; for the faces of ſuch uſed to be covered.

9 And * Harbonah, one of the chamberlains t, ſaid before the king, Behold alſo the † gallows fifty cubits high, which Haman had made for Mordecai, who had ſpoken good for the king u, ſtandeth in the houſe of Haman. Then the King ſaid, Hang him thereon.

t Who knew this either by his own Obſervation, or by the Information of ſome of his Brethren, who were lately ſent to Haman's Houſe, ch. 6. 14. where they might eaſily ſee it, or at leaſt hear of it. And this he ſaid, either out of a diſtaſt which he had taken againſt Haman for his great inſolency, and barbarous cruelty: or in compliance with the King's inclinations, and the Queen's deſires. u Even to the ſaving of the King's life, ch. 2. 21, 22, 23. and therefore deſerved a better requital than this even from Haman, if he had not baſely preferred the ſatisfaction of his own revenge before the preſervation of the King's life.

10 So they hanged Haman on the gallows that he had prepared x for Mordecai. Then was the kings wrath pacified y.

x Which ſtood in his own Houſe, as was now ſaid, and made the puniſhment more grievous and ignominious. y Judgment being now moſt juſtly executed upon this abominable criminal.

CHAP. VIII.

Mordecai is advanced over the houſe of Haman, 1, 2. Eſther maketh a Petition to the King to reverſe Haman's Letter, 3——5. Ahaſuerus granteth to Eſther and Mordecai, 7, to write to the Jews to defend themſelves, 8. Mordecai's Letters in the King's Name to defend themſelves, and deſtroy their Aſſailants, 9——14. Mordecai's honour, and the Jews joy, 15——17.

ON that day did the king Ahaſuerus give the houſe of Haman a the Jews enemy, unto Eſther the queen, and Mordecai came before the king b, for Eſther had told what he was unto her c.

a With all his Goods and Eſtate, which being juſtly forfeited to the King, he no leſs juſtly beſtows it upon the Queen, to compenſate the danger to which Haman had expoſed her. b i. e. Was by the Queen's deſire admitted into the King's Preſence, and Favour, and Family, and, as it ſeems, made one of the ſeven Princes. c i. e. How nearly he was related to her: which till this time ſhe had wiſely concealed; this being the fit ſeaſon to declare it.

2 And the king took off his ring d which he had taken from Haman, and gave it unto Mordecai. And Eſther ſet Mordecai over the houſe of Haman e.

d That Ring which he had formerly given to Haman for that preſent, or any further uſe, ch. 3. 10. he now gives to Mordecai, and with it that Power and Authority, whereof this Ring was a ſign, making him, as Haman had been, the Keeper of his Signet. e As her Steward, to manage that great Eſtate for her as he thought fitteſt.

3 And Eſther ſpake yet again before the king, and fell down at his feet, and † beſought him with tears, to put away the miſchief of Haman f the Agagite, and his device that he had deviſed againſt the Jews.

† Heb. and ſhe wept and beſought him

f To repeal that cruel Decree, of which ſee ch. 3. 13.

4 Then the king held out the golden ſcepter g toward Eſther. So Eſther aroſe, and ſtood before the king.

g In token that he accepted her Perſon and Petition, and that ſhe ſhould ſtand upon her feet.

5 And ſaid, If it pleaſe the king, and if I have found favour in his ſight, and the thing ſeem right before the king, and I be pleaſing in his eyes h, let it be written to reverſe † the letters deviſed by Haman i the ſon of Hammedatha the Agagite, ‖ which he wrote to deſtroy the Jews which are in all the kings provinces.

h She uſeth various Expreſſions, that ſhe might inſinuate her ſelf into the King's Favour, by ſuch a full and repeated reſignation and ſubmiſſion of her ſelf to the King's good pleaſure. i She prudently takes off all the envy and hatefulneſs of the action from the King, and lays it upon Haman, who had for his own wicked and ſelfiſh ends contrived the whole buſineſs, and circumvented the King in it: which ſhe alledgeth as a reaſon why it ſhould be repealed, becauſe it was ſurreptitiouſly and craftily procured.

6 For how can I † endure to ſee the evil k that ſhall come unto my people? or how can I endure to ſee the deſtruction of my kindred?

† Heb. be able that I may ſee.

k My heart will ſink under it, and I ſhall never be able to ſurvive it.

7 Then the king Ahaſuerus ſaid unto Eſther the queen, and unto Mordecai the Jew, Behold I have given Eſther the houſe of Haman, and him they have hanged l upon the gallows, becauſe he laid his hand upon the Jews.

l You ſee how ready I have been to grant your requeſts, and I do not repent of my Favour to you, and am ready to grant your further Deſires, as far as the Law will permit me to do.

8 Write ye alſo for the Jews m as it liketh you, in the kings name, and ſeal it with the kings ring n: for the writing which is written in the kings name, and ſealed with the kings ring, * may no man reverſe o.

* See chap. 1. 19. Dan. 6. 8, 12, 15.

m On their behalf, to the Governours and Commanders of the King's Forces, or to whom you pleaſe. n I offer you my Authority and Seal to confirm whatſoever you ſhall think fit to write. o This reaſon may belong either, 1. To the writing of theſe preſent Letters: and ſo the ſenſe is, Theſe Letters will be moſt effectual, being no leſs irrevocable than the former, and coming laſt will repeal the former. Or, 2. To the former Letters, as a reaſon why he could not grant their deſires in recalling them, becauſe they were irrevocable by the Law of the Medes and Perſians. And this ſenſe, though rejected by many, ſeems to be the trueſt, becauſe here is no mention of reverſing Haman's Letters, which Eſther had deſired v. 5. and the King denied for the reaſon here alledged; and becauſe the following Letter doth not contain one word about the reverſing of the former, nor doth it take away that power which was given to all Rulers to deſtroy all the Jews, chap. 3. 12, 13. but only gives the Jews power and authority to ſtand up in their own defence, v. 11. which, all circumſtances conſidered, was ſufficient for their preſervation.

9 Then were the kings ſcribes called at that time in the third month (that is the month Sivan) on the three and twentieth day thereof p, and it was written (according to all that Mordecai commanded) unto the Jews q, and to the lieutenants, and the deputies, rulers of the provinces r, which are from India unto Ethiopia, an hundred twenty and ſeven provinces, unto every province according to the writing thereof, and unto every people after their language, and to the Jews according to their writing, and according to their language.

p Which was above two months after the former decree. All which time God ſuffered the Jews to lye under the terrour of this dreadful day, partly that they might be more throughly humbled for, and purged from thoſe many and great ſins under which they lay; partly and particularly that they might be convinced of their great ſin and folly in neglecting the many offers and opportunities they had of returning to their native Country, and to the free and full exerciſe of the true Religion, which could be had no where but in Jeruſalem; by which means they being now diſperſed in the ſeveral parts of this vaſt Dominion, were like to be a very eaſie prey to their Enemies, whereas their Brethren in Judæa were in a better capacity to preſerve themſelves: partly that their moſt malicious and inveterate Enemies might have an opportunity of diſcovering themſelves to their ruine, as the event ſhewed: and partly for the greater illuſtration of God's glorious Power, and Wiſdom, and Goodneſs, in giving his People ſuch an admirable and unexpected deliverance. Yet God ſo ordered things, that this Letter ſhould be ſent in due time before it was too late: for there were yet near nine Months to come before that appointed day. q That they might underſtand their Liberty, and be encouraged to uſe it for their own defence. r That they ſhould publiſh and diſperſe them into all parts, that both themſelves and others might take notice of the King's pleaſure and kindneſs to the Jews.

10 And he wrote in the king Ahaſuerus name, and ſealed it with the kings ring, and ſent letters by poſts on horſe-back, and riders on mules, camels, and young dromedaries s:

s Which were not employed in the ſending of the former Letter: but this coming later required more care and ſpeed, that the Jews might be eaſed from the torment of their preſent Fears, and have time to furniſh themſelves with neceſſaries for their own defence.

11 Wherein the king granted the Jews which were in every city, † to gather themſelves together, and to ſtand for their life t, to deſtroy, to ſlay, and to cauſe to periſh all the power of the people u and province, that would aſſault them, both little ones, and women x, and to take the ſpoil of them for a prey:

t To ſtand up and fight for the defence of their Lives againſt all that ſhould ſeek to deſtroy them. u Either Governours or governed, without any exception either of Age, Dignity, or Sex, as it follows. x Which is here added, becauſe it was put into the former decree; and to ſtrike the greater terrour into their enemies; and according to the Laws and Cuſtoms of this Kingdom; whereby Children were puniſhed for their Parents offences: which alſo in ſome caſes was allowed and practiſed in ſacred ſtory. Yet we read nothing in the execution of this decree of the ſlaughter of Women or Children, nor is it probable that they would kill their innocent Children, who were ſo indulgent to their Families, as not to meddle with the ſpoil.

12 Upon one day, in all the provinces of king Ahaſuerus, namely upon the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is the month Adar.

13 The copy of the writing, for a commandment to be given in every province, was † publiſhed unto all people, and that the Jews ſhould be ready againſt that day to avenge themſelves on their enemies.

14 So the poſts that rode upon mules and camels went out, being haſtened, and preſſed on by the kings commandment y, and the decree was given at Shuſhan the palace.

y By his particular and expreſs Command to that purpoſe.

15 And Mordecai went out from the preſence of the king, in royal apparel of ‖ blue and white, and with a great crown of gold z, and with a garment of fine linen, and purple; and the city of Shuſhan a rejoiced and was glad:

z Which the chief of the Perſian Princes were permitted to wear, but with ſufficient diſtinction from the King's Crown. a Not only Jews, but the greateſt number of the Citizens, who by the Law of Nature written upon their hearts, had an abhorrency from bloody Counſels and Deſigns, and a complacency in acts of Benignity and Mercy: or for other reaſons; of which ſee on Chap. 3. 15.

16 The Jews had light b, and gladneſs, and joy c, and honour d.

b Which is oft put for gladneſs, as 2 Sam. 22. 29. Job 18. 5, 6. Pſal. 27. 1. becauſe Light is pleaſant and diſpoſeth a man to joy, whereas Darkneſs inclines a man to ſorrow. c This explains the former Metaphor by two words expreſſing the ſame thing, to note the greatneſs of the Joy. d Inſtead of that contempt under which they had lain.

17 And in every province, and in every city, whitherſoever the kings commandment and his decree came, the Jews had joy and gladneſs, a feaſt and a good day e: and many of the people of the land became Jews; for the fear of the Jews f fell upon them.

e i.e. A time of feaſting, and rejoycing, and thankſgiving. f Whom poſſibly they had irritated by their former Threatnings, and now gave this evidence of their Repentance, that they were willing to ſubmit to that ſevere precept of Circumciſion.

CHAP. IX.

The Jews ſlay their Enemies, 1——9. with the ten ſons of Haman, 11. Ahaſuerus at the requeſt of Eſther, granteth another day of ſlaughter, The days of Purim made feſtival.

NOw in the twelfth month (that is the month Adar) on the thirteenth day of the ſame, when the kings commandment and his decree drew near to be put in execution, in the day that the enemies of the Jews hoped to have power over them a, (though it was turned to the contrary, that the Jews had rule over them that hated them.)

a In that day which was ſelected by Haman with great Induſtry and Art, as the moſt lucky day, and which their Enemies had oft times formerly thought of, and no doubt threatned the Jews with it.

2 The Jews gathered themſelves together in their cities, throughout all the Provinces of the king Ahaſuerus, to lay hand on ſuch as ſought their hurt; and no man could withſtand them b: for the fear of them c fell upon all people.

b Their Enemies, though they did and were allowed to take up Arms againſt them, yet were eaſily conquered and deſtroyed by the Jews. c Who had ſuch potent Friends at Court, and ſo great a God on their ſide, who by ſuch unuſual and prodigious Methods (whereof doubtleſs they had been particularly informed) had brought about ſuch a mighty and unexpected deliverance.

3 And all the rulers of the provinces, and the lieutenants, and the deputies, and † officers of the king d ‖ helped the Jews: becauſe the fear of Mordecai fell upon them.

† Heb. those which did the buſineſs that belonged to the king. ‖ Or, extolled, Gr. honoured.

d Heb. and all them that did the King's buſineſs, i. e. Not only the chief perſons deſigned by the foregoing words, but all his other Miniſters or Officers of what quality ſoever.

4 For Mordecai was great e in the kings houſe, and his fame went out throughout all the provinces: for this man Mordecai waxed greater and greater.

e i.e. The greateſt in Place, and Power, and Favour with the King, both for his near relation to his beloved Queen, and for his good ſervice done to him in preſerving his Life, and managing his Affairs; and for thoſe excellent Abilities and Virtues which he diſcovered in him; and eſpecially by the diſpoſition of the heart-ruling God.

5 Thus the Jews ſmote all their enemies with the ſtroke of the ſword, and ſlaughter, and deſtruction, and did † what they would unto thoſe that hated them.

6 And in Shuſhan the palace f the Jews ſlew and deſtroyed five hundred men g.

f i.e. In the City ſo called, as was noted before chap. 1. 2. it not being probable either that they would make ſuch a ſlaughter in the King's Palace, or that they would be ſuffered ſo to do. g Whom by long experience they knew to be their conſtant and inveterate Enemies, and ſuch as would watch all opportunities to deſtroy them; which alſo they might poſſibly now attempt to do. Part of them alſo might be Friends and Allies of Haman, and therefore the avowed Enemies of Mordecai.

7 And Parſhandatha, and Dalphon, and Aſpatha,

8 And Poratha, and Adalia, and Aridatha,

9 And Parmaſhta, and Ariſai, and Aridai, and Vajezatha,

10 The ten ſons of Haman, the ſon of Hammedatha, the enemy of the Jews, ſlew they; but on the ſpoil laid they not their hand h.

h Either becauſe they were deſirous it ſhould come into the King's Treaſury: or becauſe they would leave it to their Children, that it might appear that what they did that day was not done out of malice to their Perſons and Families, or covetouſneſs of their Eſtates, but out of meer neceſſity, and by that great and approved Law of Self-preſervation, and that they were ready to mix Mercy with Judgment, and would not deal with their Enemies ſo ill as it was apparent that their Enemies intended to do againſt them.

11 On that day the number of thoſe that were ſlain in Shuſhan the palace, † was brought before the king h.

† Heb. came

h Poſſibly with evil deſign to incenſe the King againſt the Jews.

12 And the king ſaid unto Eſther the queen, The Jews have ſlain and deſtroyed five hundred men in Shuſhan the palace, and the ten ſons of Haman; what have they done in the reſt of the kings provinces i? now what is thy petition? and it ſhall be granted thee: or what is thy requeſt further? and it ſhall be done.

i In which doubtleſs many more were ſlain. So that I have fully granted thy Petition. And yet, if thou haſt any thing further to ask, I am here ready to grant it.

13 Then ſaid Eſther, If it pleaſe the king, let it be granted to the Jews which are in Shuſhan, to do to morrow alſo according to this days decree k, and † let Hamans tens ſons be hanged upon the gallows l.

k i. e. To kill their implacable Enemies. For it is not improbable that the greateſt and worſt of them had politickly withdrawn or hidden themſelves for that day; after which, the Commiſſion granted to the Jews being expired, they confidently returned to their homes; where they were taken and ſlain by vertue of this private and unexpected decree. l They were ſlain before; now let their Bodies be hanged upon their Father's Gallows, for their greater Infamy, and the terrour of all others who ſhall preſume to abuſe the King in like manner, or to perſwade him to execute ſuch cruelties upon his own Subjects. This cuſtom of hanging up the Bodies of Malefactors after their death, was frequent among the Jews and Perſians alſo, as is well known.

14 And the king commanded it ſo to be done; and the decree was given at Shuſhan, and they hanged Hamans ten ſons.

15 For the Jews that were in Shuſhan gathered themſelves together on the fourteenth day alſo of the month Adar, and ſlew three hundred men at Shuſhan, but on the prey they laid not their hand.

16 But the other Jews that were in the kings provinces gathered themſelves together, and ſtood for their lives, and had reſt from their enemies, and ſlew of their foes ſeventy and five thouſand; but they laid not their hand on the prey:

17 On the thirteenth day m of the month Adar, and on the fourteenth day † of the ſame, reſted they, and made it a day of feaſting and gladneſs.

† Heb. in it

m This belongs not to the Feaſt, but to the work done before it. The meaning is, This they did, i. e. they ſlew their Foes, as was now ſaid, *v.*16. upon the thirteenth day.

18 But the Jews that were at Shuſhan, aſſembled together on the thirteenth day thereof, and on the fourteenth thereof: and on the fifteenth day of the ſame they reſted, and made it a day of feaſting and gladneſs.

19 Therefore n the Jews of the villages, that dwelt in the unwalled towns o, made the fourteenth day of the month Adar, a day of gladneſs and feaſting, and a good day, and of ſending portions one to another.

n To wit, becauſe they did their whole work upon the thirteenth day, as was noted verſe 17. to which this manifeſtly relates, the 18th verſe coming in as it were by way of Parentheſis. o Heb. In the cities of the villages, i. e. in the leſſer Cities and Villages: which are here oppoſed to the great City Shuſhan, and thoſe who dwelt in it.

20 And Mordecai wrote theſe things p, and ſent letters unto all the Jews that were in all the provinces of the king Ahaſuerus, both nigh and far;

p Either, 1. The Letters here following. But that is diſtinctly mentioned in the next words. Or, 2. The Hiſtory of theſe things which was the ground of the Feaſt; which Mordecai knew very well ought to be had in remembrance, and to be told to their Children and Poſterity, through all Ages, according to the many Commands of God to that purpoſe, and the conſtant Practice of the Holy Men of God in ſuch caſes.

21 To ſtabliſh this among them, that they ſhould keep the fourteenth day of the month Adar, and the fifteenth day of the ſame q yearly:

q Becauſe both theſe days had been ſet apart this Year, the latter at Shuſhan, the former in other parts; and becauſe that great Work of God, which was the ground of this Solemnity, had been done both upon the thirteenth and the fourteenth day.

22 As the days wherein the Jews reſted from their enemies, and the month which was turned unto them from ſorrow to joy, and from mourning into a good day: that they ſhould make them days of feaſting and joy, and of ſending portions one to another, and gifts to the poor r.

r Which they uſed to give upon Days of Thankſgiving; of which ſee *Nehem.*8.10.

23 And the Jews undertook s to do as they had begun, and as Mordecai had written unto them, s Having by this means opportunity to gather themſelves together upon any occaſion, the chief of them aſſembled together, and freely and unanimouſly conſented to Mordecai's deſire in this matter, and bound it upon themſelves and Poſterity.

24 Becauſe Haman the ſon of Hammedatha the Agagite, the enemy of all the Jews, had deviſed againſt the Jews to deſtroy them, and * had caſt Pur (that is, the lot) to † conſume them; and to deſtroy them,

* Ch.3.7. † Heb. crush

25 But † when Eſther came before the king, he commanded by letters that his wicked device which he deviſed againſt the Jews, ſhould return upon his own head, and that he and his ſons ſhould be hanged on the gallows.

26 Wherefore they called theſe days Purim, after the name of ‖ Pur; therefore for all the words of this letter, and of that which they had ſeen t concerning this matter, and which had come unto them, t i.e. Both for the reſpect which they juſtly bare to Mordecai's Letter; and becauſe they themſelves had ſeen and felt this wonderful Work of God on their behalf.

27 The Jews ordained, and took upon them, and upon their ſeed, and upon all ſuch as joined themſelves unto them u, ſo as it ſhould not † fail, that they would keep theſe two days, according to their writing x, and according to their appointed time every year:

u i. e. Gentile Proſelites; who were obliged to ſubmit to other of the Jewiſh Laws, and therefore to this alſo; the rather becauſe they enjoyed the benefit of this days deliverance; without which the Jewiſh Nation and Religion had been in a great meaſure, if not wholly, extinct in the World. x i.e. According to that writing which was drawn up by Mordecai with Eſthers conſent, v. 23, 29. and afterwards confirmed by the conſent of all the Jews in the ſeveral places.

28 And that theſe days ſhould be remembred, and kept throughout every generation, every family, every province, and every city; and that theſe days of Purim ſhould not † fail from among the Jews, nor the memorial of them † periſh from their ſeed.

29 Then Eſther the queen, the daughter of Abihail, and Mordecai the Jew, wrote with † all authority y, to confirm this ſecond letter of Purim.

y The former Letter, v. 20. did only recommend, but this enjoins the obſervation of this Solemnity; becauſe this was not only Mordecai's Act, who yet had by the King's Grant a great Power and Authority over the Subjects of that Kingdom, and conſequently over the Jews, but it was the Act of all the Jews, binding themſelves and Poſterity to it, v. 27. Or, with all might or efficacy, and as that word uſually ſignifies; He preſſed it with all earneſtneſs and vehemency.

30 And he ſent the letters unto all the Jews, to the hundred twenty and ſeven provinces of the kingdom of Ahaſuerus, with words of peace and truth z; z Or, even words of peace and truth. Which may reſpect either 1. The Form of the Writing, wherein after the cuſtom he ſaluted them with hearty wiſhes of their true Peace or Proſperity, or of the continuance of thoſe two great Bleſſings of God, Truth, i. e. the true Religion; and Peace, either among themſelves, or with all men, that they might peaceably and quietly enjoy and profeſs the Truth. Or, 2. The Manner of his Writing, which was with Peace, i. e. Friendſhip and kindneſs to his Brethren, and Truth, i. e. Sincerity; which is the more noted and commended in him, becauſe it is ſo unuſual in ſuch great Courtiers as he now was. Compare chap. 10.3. or the Matter of his Writing; which was to direct and perſwade them to keep both Peace and Truth, i. e. both to live peaceably and lovingly both one with another, and with all their Neighbours, not inſulting over them upon their confidence in Mordecai's great power, or upon this late and great ſucceſs, as men naturally and commonly do, nor giving them any freſh provocations, and yet holding faſt the true Religion in ſpight of all the Artifices or Hoſtilities of the Gentiles among whom they lived.

31 To confirm theſe days of Purim in their times appointed, according as Mordecai the Jew, and Eſther the queen had enjoyned them, and as they had decreed † for themſelves and for their ſeed, the matters of the faſting and of their cry ‖.

‖ For or about thoſe great and overwhelming Calamities which were decreed to all the Jews, and for the removing of which, not only Eſther, and the Jews in Shuſhan, but all other Jews in all places, as ſoon as they heard thoſe diſmal Tidings, did doubtleſs according to the Precepts of Scripture, and the conſtant practice of their godly Predeceſſors in all Ages, fly to that laſt and only Refuge of ſeeking to God by Faſting, and earneſt Prayers, and ſtrong Cries unto God; which God was pleaſed graciouſly to hear, and in anſwer thereunto to give them this amazing Deliverance. And this was that which they were now to remember, to wit, the greatneſs of their danger, and of their reſcue from it. And accordingly the Jews uſe to obſerve the firſt of thoſe days with Faſting, and Crying, and other Expreſſions of vehement Grief and Fear, and the latter with Feaſting, and Thankſgiving, and all Demonſtrations of Joy and Triumph.

32 And the decree of Eſther † confirmed theſe matters of Purim, and it was written in the book *.

† Who had received Authority and Commiſſion from the King to impoſe this upon all the Jews. * Either in the publick Regiſters of that Kingdom: Or rather, in the Records which the Jews kept of their moſt memorable paſſages.

CHAP. X.

Ahaſuerus his greatneſs. 3. Mordecai's advancement.

AND the king Ahaſuerus laid a tribute upon the land, and upon the iſles of the ſea a.

a i.e. Upon all his Dominions, whether in the main Continent, or in the Iſlands.

2 And all the acts of his power, and of his might, and the declaration of the greatneſs of Mordecai, whereunto the king † advanced him, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Media and Perſia?

3 For Mordecai the Jew was next unto king Ahaſuerus, and great among the Jews, and accepted of the multitude of his brethren b, ſeeking the wealth of his people, and ſpeaking peace to all his ſeed c.

b Who did not envy his greatneſs, as men moſt commonly do in ſuch caſes, but rejoyced in it, and bleſſed God for it, and praiſed and loved him for his right and ſweet management of his vaſt power. c Or, for all his ſeed, to wit, the Jews, who were of the ſame Seed and root from which he was deſcended. He ſpoke and acted with great Kindneſs and Friendlineſs to them, when they reſorted to him upon any occaſion.

JOB.

Some things are to be premiſed in the General concerning this Book before I come to the Particulars. 1. That this was no Fiction or Parable, as ſome have dreamed, but a real Hiſtory, which is ſufficiently evident, both from the whole Contexture of the Book, wherein we have an exact and diſtinct account of the Places, Perſons, and Things here mentioned, with their ſeveral Circumſtances, and eſpecially the ſucceeding Penmen of Holy Scripture, who mention him as a real and eminent example of Piety and Patience, as Ezek. 14.14. James 5. 11. 2. That this is a Canonical Book of Scripture, which is manifeſt both from the Stile and Matter of it, and from the tacite Approbation given to it by Ezekiel and James, in the places now cited, and from that quotation taken from it as ſuch, 1 Cor. 3. 19. and from the unanimous conſent of the Church, both of Jews and Chriſtians in all Ages. 3. The time in which Job lived, and theſe things were ſaid and done, moſt probably was before Moſes, and in the days of the ancient Patriarchs. This may be gathered, 1. From his long Life, which by comparing Chap. 1. with 42. 16. could not want much of 200 Years; whereas, after Moſes, Mens Lives were far ſhorter, as is manifeſt. 2. From that conſiderable Knowledge of God, and of the true Religion, which then remained among divers Gentiles, which after Moſes his time was in a manner quite extinguiſhed. 3 From the Sacrifices here commonly uſed, whereas, after the giving of the Law, all Sacrifices were confined to the place of the Tabernacle or Temple, to which even the Gentiles were to repair when they would Sacrifice to God. 4 From the way of God's imparting of his Mind to the Gentiles at this time by Dreams and Viſions, agreeably to God's Method in thoſe ancient times; whereas afterward thoſe diſcoveries were withdrawn from the Gentiles, and appropriated to the People of Iſrael. 5 Becauſe there is not the leaſt mention in this Book of the Children of Iſrael, neither of their greivous Afflictions in Egypt, nor of their glorious Deliverance out of it; though nothing could have been more ſeaſonable or ſuitable to the Matter which is here diſcourſed between Job and his Friends. 4. The Pen-man of this Book is not certainly known, nor is it material for us to know: For it being agreed who is the principal Author, it is of no moment by what Hand or Pen he wrote it: But moſt probably it was either, 1. Job himſelf, who was moſt capable of giving this exact account, who, as in his Agony he wiſhed that his Words and Carriage were written in a Book, Chap. 19. 23, 24. ſo poſſibly when he was delivered from it, he ſatisfied his own and others deſires therein. Only what concerns his general Character, Chap. 1. 1. and the time of his Death, Chap. 42. 16, 17. was added by another Hand, the like ſmall Additions being made in other Books of Scripture. Or, 2. Elihu, which may ſeem to be favoured by Chap. 32. 15, 16. Or, 3. Moſes, who when he was in the Land of Midian, where he had opportunity of coming to the knowledge of this Hiſtory and Diſcourſe, and conſidering that it might be very uſeful for the Comfort and Direction of God's Iſrael, who was now oppreſſed in Egypt, did by his own Inclination, and the Direction of God's Spirit, commit it to Writing. And whereas the Stile ſeems to be unlike to that of Moſes in his other Writings, that is not ſtrange, conſidering the differing nature of the Books, this being almoſt all Poetical, and the other meerly Hiſtorical, for the moſt part, or plain Precepts or Exhortations. And for the Arabick words here uſed, it muſt be remembred that Moſes lived 40 Years in Midian, which was a part of Arabia, in which he muſt needs learn that Language.

m When each of them had had his turn, which peradventure came one ſpeedily, though not immediately after another. And there was ſome conſiderable interval before their next feaſting time. n i. e. He exhorted and commanded them to ſanctifie themſelves for the following Work, to wit, by purifying themſelves from all Ceremonial and Moral Pollution, as the manner then was, Exod. 19.10. and by preparing themſelves by true Repentance for all their ſins, and particularly ſuch as they had committed in their time of Feaſting and Jollity, and by fervent Prayers to make their Peace with God by Sacrifice. o Thereby ſhewing his ardent Zeal in God's Service, and his Impatience till God was reconciled to him, and to his Children. p His Zeal for God's Glory, and his true Love to his Children, made him jealous; for which he had cauſe enough from the Corruption of Man's Nature, the Frailty and Folly of Youth, the many Temptations which attend upon Feaſting and Jollity, and the eaſineſs of ſliding from lawful to forbidden Delights. q Not in the groſſeſt manner and higheſt degree, which it is not probable either that they ſhould do, now eſpecially when they had no provocation to do it, as being ſurrounded with Bleſſings and Comforts, which they were actually enjoying, and not yet exerciſed with any Affliction, or that Job ſhould ſuſpect it concerning them, but deſpiſed and diſhonoured God; for both Hebrew and Greek words ſignifying curſing, are ſometimes uſed to note only reviling or detracting, or ſpeaking evil, or ſetting light by a Perſon. Thus what is called curſing ones Father or Mother, Exod. 21.17. is elſewhere called ſetting light by them, as Deut. 27.16. Ezek. 22.7. See alſo 2 Pet. 2.11. Jude 8. and many other places. r By ſlight and low Thoughts of God, by neglecting or forgetting to give God the Praiſe and Glory of the Mercies which by his favour they enjoyed, by taking more hearty delight in their Feaſts and Jollity, than in the Service and fruition of God: For theſe and ſuch like Diſtempers of Heart are moſt uſual in times of Proſperity and Jollity, as appears by common Experience, and by the many Divine Cautions we have againſt them, as Deut. 6.11. Hoſ. 2.8. and elſewhere. And theſe miſcarriages, though inward and ſecret, Job calls by ſuch an hard name as uſually ſignifies curſing, by way of aggravation of their ſin, which peradventure they were too apt to ſleight as a ſmall and trivial miſcarriage. s i. e. It was his conſtant courſe at the end of every feaſting time.

6 Now there was a day t, when † the ſons of God u came to preſent themſelves before the Lord x, and * Satan came alſo || among them y.

† Gr. Angels of Go
* Heb. the adverſary.
|| Heb. in the midſt of them.

t i. e. A certain time appointed by God. u i.e. The holy Angels, ſo called, Job 38.7. Dan. 3.25,28. becauſe of their Creation by God, as Adam alſo was, Luke 3.38. and for their great reſemblance of him in Power, and Dignity, and Holineſs, and for their filial affection and Obedience to him. x i. e. Before his Throne, to receive his Commands, and to give him an account of their Negotiations. Compare 1 Kings 22.19. Zech. 4.14. Luke 1.19. But you muſt not think that theſe things were really done, and that Satan was mixed with the holy Angels, or admitted into the preſence of God in Heaven, to maintain ſuch diſcourſes as this with the bleſſed God, or that he had formal Commiſſion and leave to do what follows; but it is only a parabolical Repreſentation of that great Truth, that God by his wiſe and holy Providence doth govern all the Actions of Men and Devils to his own ends: It being uſual with the great God to condeſcend to our ſhallow Capacities, and to expreſs himſelf, as the Jews phraſe it, In the language of the ſons of men; i. e. in ſuch manner as men uſe to ſpeak and may underſtand. y Being forced to come, and give up his account.

7 And the LORD ſaid unto Satan, Whence comeſt thou z? Then Satan anſwered the LORD and ſaid, From † going to and fro in the Earth a, and from walking up and down in it.

† 1 Pet.5.8.

z God being here repreſented as Judge, rightly begins with an enquiry, as the ground of his further proceedings, as he did Gen. 3.9. and 4.9. a Where by thy permiſſion I range about, obſerving with great diligence all the Diſpoſitions and Actions of Men, and working in them and among them as far as I have liberty and opportunity.

8 And the LORD ſaid unto Satan, † Haſt thou conſidered my ſervant Job b, that there is none like him in the Earth, a perfect and an upright man, one that feareth God and eſcheweth evil?

b Haſt thou taken notice of him, and his Spirit, and Carriage? and what haſt thou to ſay againſt him?

9 Then Satan anſwered the LORD, and ſaid, Doth Job fear God for nought c?

c i. e. Sincerely and freely, and out of pure Love and Reſpect to thee? No. It is Policy, not Piety, that makes him good; he doth not ſerve thee, but ſerveth himſelf of thee, and is a meer Mercenary, ſerving thee for his own ends.

10 Haſt thou not made an hedge about him d, and about his houſe e, and about all that he hath on every ſide? thou haſt bleſſed the work of his hands, and his † ſubſtance is || increaſed in the land.

12 And the LORD ſaid unto Satan, Behold, all that he hath is in thy † power i, only upon himſelf k put not forth thine hand. So Satan went forth from the preſence of the LORD l.

m i. e. Beſide the Oxen, therefore both were taken away together.

16 While he was yet ſpeaking p, there came alſo another, and ſaid, † The fire of God q is fallen from Heaven r, and hath burnt up the ſheep and the ſervants, and conſumed them, and I only am eſcaped alone to tell thee.

u i. e. Feaſting after their manner, and, as Job generally feared and ſuſpected, ſinning againſt God, v. 5. Which was a dreadful aggravation of the Judgment.

19 And behold, there came a great wind * from the Wilderneſs x, and ſmote the four corners y of the houſe, and it fell upon the young men z, and they are dead, and I only am eſcaped alone to tell thee.

21 And ſaid, * Naked came I out of my Mothers womb f, and naked ſhall I return thither g: the LORD gave, and the LORD hath * taken away h; bleſſed be the name of the LORD i.

* Eccleſ. 5. 15. 1 Tim. 6. 7. * Iſa. 42. 24.

f I brought none of theſe things which I have now loſt, with me, when I came out of my Mother's Womb into the World, but I received them from the hand and favour of that God who hath now required his own again. I ſtill have all that Subſtance wherewith I was born, and have loſt only things without and beſide my ſelf. g I ſhall be as rich when I die as I was when I was born, and therefore have reaſon to be contented with my condition, which alſo is the common lot of all men. Thither, i. e. into my Mother's Womb, which in the former clauſe is underſtood properly, but in this figuratively, of the Earth, which is our common Mother, as it is called by many Authors, out of whoſe Belly we were taken, and into which we muſt return again, Gen. 3. 19. Eccleſ. 12. 7. And as our Mother's Womb is called the lower parts of the Earth, Pſal. 139. 15. ſo it is not harſh if reciprocally the lower parts of the Earth be called our Mother's Womb. Nor is it ſtrange that the ſame Phraſe ſhould be taken both properly and metaphorically in the ſame Verſe; for ſo it is Matth. 8. 22. Let the dead ſpiritually bury the dead corporally. See alſo Levit. 26. 21. 24. Pſal. 18. 26, &c. h He hath taken away nothing but his own, and what he ſo gave to me that he reſerved the Supreme Dominion and Diſpoſal of in his own hand. So I have no cauſe to murmure or complain of him. Nor have I reaſon to fret and rage againſt the Chaldeans and Sabeans, and other Creatures, who were only God's Inſtruments to execute his wiſe and holy Counſel. i i. e. The Lord; God's Name being often put for God himſelf, as Pſal. 44. 5. and 48. 10. and 72. 18, 19. Dan. 2. 19, 20. As Names are put for Men, Acts 1. 15. Rev. 3. 4. The Senſe is, I have no cauſe to quarrel with God, but much cauſe to bleſs and praiſe him, that he did give me ſuch bleſſings, and ſuffered me to enjoy them more and longer than I deſerved; and that he hath vouchſafed to afflict me, which I greatly needed for my Soul's good, and which I take as a Token of his Love and Faithfulneſs to me, and therefore miniſtring more matter of Comfort than Grief to me; and that he hath left me the comfort of my Wife, and yet is pleaſed to continue to me the Health of my Body, and a compoſed Mind, and an Heart to ſubmit to his good pleaſure; and that he hath reſerved and prepared ſuch a felicity for me, whom no Caldeans or Sabeans, no Men nor Devils can take away from me: Of which ſee Chap. 19. 25.

22 In all this k Job ſinned not l, nor * charged God fooliſhly m.

* Or, attributed folly to God. Or, unſavourineſs.

k i. e. Under all theſe preſſures. Or, in all that he ſaid or did upon theſe ſad occaſions. l To wit, in ſuch manner as the Devil preſaged that he would, and as is expreſſed in the following words. As Chriſt ſaith, John 9. 3. Neither hath this man ſinned, nor his parents, to wit, ſo as you imagine, in an eminent or extraordinary degree. But both here and there human Infirmities are excepted, of which Job oft acknowledgeth himſelf to be guilty. Nor was the queſtion between God and Satan, whether Job had any ſin in him, but whether he was an Hypocrite, or would Blaſpheme God; which is here denied and diſproved. m Heb. Nor imputed folly to God; i. e. ſo far was he from blaſpheming God, that he did not entertain any diſhonourable thought of God, as if he had done any thing unworthy of his infinite Wiſdom, or Juſtice, or Goodneſs, but heartily approved of, and acquieſced in his good pleaſure, and in his righteous, though ſharp Proceedings againſt him.

CHAP. II.

Satan's ſecond appearance before God: Job's character continuing the ſame, condemneth Satan, 1——3. Satan judgeth him not ſufficiently tried, unleſs his body ſuffer; and ſo obtaineth leave to hurt his body, but not touch his life, 4——6. Job ſmote with boils, ſcrapeth himſelf, and ſitteth down in aſhes, 7, 8. his Wive's folly; he reproveth her, acknowledging God's Sovereignty, and former Mercies, 9, 10. His three Friends, and their ſorrow, 11——13.

AGain there was a day a, when * the Sons of God came to preſent themſelves before the LORD, and Satan came alſo among them, to preſent himſelf before the LORD.

a Another ſet time ſome convenient ſpace after the former calamities. Of this, and the two next Verſes, ſee the Notes on Chap. 1. 6, 7, 8.

2 And the LORD ſaid unto Satan, From whence comeſt thou? And † Satan anſwered the LORD, and ſaid, From going to and fro in the Earth, and from walking up and down in it.

† Chap. 1. 7.

3 And the LORD ſaid unto Satan, Haſt thou conſidered my ſervant Job, that there is none like him in the Earth, ‖ a perfect and an upright man, one that feareth God and eſcheweth evil? and ſtill b he holdeth faſt his integrity c, although thou movedſt me d againſt him, † to deſtroy him without cauſe e.

† Heb. to ſwallow him up. Chap. 19. 10.

b Notwithſtanding all his Trials and Tribulations, and thy malicious ſuggeſtion to the contrary. c i. e. He continues to be the ſame perfect and upright Man which he was before. All thy endeavours to pull away his Integrity, have made him only to hold it the faſter. d i. e. Didſt perſuade me, and prevailed with me to do it. But this, as the reſt of this Repreſentation, is not to be underſtood properly, as if God could be moved by any of his Creatures to alter his purpoſes, which are all Eternal and Unchangeable, and eſpecially by Satan, as if God would gratifie him, by granting his deſires; but the deſign of theſe words is to ſignifie both the Devils reſtleſs Malice in promoting Man's miſery, and God's permiſſion of it for his own wiſe and holy Ends. e i. e. Without any ſpecial provocation, whereby he, more than others, deſerved ſuch heavy puniſhments. Which alſo Job himſelf oft alledgeth for his Juſtification; although he doth not deny himſelf to be a Sinner, as is apparent from Ch. 7. 20, 21. and 9. 2. and 13. 23, 26. Nor that Sin deſerves Judgements: Or, without any ſuch cauſe as thou didſt alledge, which was his Hypocriſie: Or, in vain, as this word is uſed Prov. 1. 17. Ezek. 6. 10. and elſewhere. So it is not referred to God's deſtroying him, but to Satan's moving God ſo to do. And ſo this place may be thus rendred exactly according to the Hebrew, And thou haſt moved me to deſtroy him in vain, or without effect, or to no purpoſe. i. e. Thou haſt loſt thy Deſign and Expectation therein, which was to take away his Integrity, which in ſpight of all thy Art and Malice he ſtill holdeth faſt.

4 And Satan anſwered the LORD, and ſaid, Skin for Skin, yea, all that a man hath will he give for his life f.

f The deſign of theſe words is plain, which is to detract from Job, and to diminiſh that Honour and Praiſe which God gave to Job, by pretending that he had done no more than the meaneſt Men commonly do by the Law of Self-Preſervation. And it is as clear that this was a proverbial Speech then in uſe, wherein if there be ſome difficulty to underſtand it at this diſtance of time, it is no more than the common lot of many other Proverbs, the ſenſe, and eſpecially the grounds whereof are frequently unknown to perſons of other Nations, and after times. Moreover, it is known, that in thoſe ancient Times, though they had ſome Money, yet the main of their Eſtate lay in Cattle, of which the Skins were a conſiderable part, and their chief Traffick lay in the exchange of one Commodity for another, and, among other things, it cannot be queſtioned, but that they did commonly exchange Skins of one kind for Skins of another ſort, according to their ſeveral inclinations or occaſions. So the meaning may be this, As Men willingly and commonly give one Skin in exchange for another Skin, and one Commodity for another, ſo (the Hebrew Particle Vau, being oft ſo uſed as a note of compariſon, as it is Prov. 17. 3. and 25. 3. 23, 25, 27.) all that a Man hath, his Houſe, Cattle, Children, will he give, and that moſt willingly for his Life: i. e. To redeem or ſave his own life: Or, rather thus, Skin for Skin, might then be a Proverb like that of ours, Body for Body, when one Man is ſo far obliged for another. And we have ſome ſuch Expreſſions among us; as when we ſay of a Man, who doth ſome dangerous Action, His Skin, i. e. his Body will pay for it, i. e. It may coſt him his Life. And this Proverb might be taken, 1. From Sacrifices, in which there was Skin for Skin; i. e. the Skin of a Beaſt for, or inſtead of, the Skin or Body of the Man, which deſerved to be uſed as the Beaſt was, and which was ſaved or preſerved by the ſuffering of the Beaſt, which was accepted by God inſtead of the Man, and by which the Man's ſins were expiated. Or, 2. From Hoſtages or Ranſomes, wherein one Man was given for, or inſtead of another. So now the Senſe may be this, Any Man will give Skin for Skin, i. e. the Skin, or Body, or Life, of another, whether Man or Beaſt, to ſave his own; yea, all that a man hath, whether Goods or Perſons, ſuch as Job hath loſt, will he give for his Life. Job is not much hurt nor concerned ſo long as his own Skin is whole and ſafe. Others thus: Skin upon (for ſo the Hebrew Particle Behad, is ſometimes uſed, as 2 Kings 4. 5. Amos 9. 10. As alſo the Greek Particle Anti, which anſwers to it, is underſtood John 1. 16. Grace for Grace, i. e. Grace upon Grace, or all kinds or degrees of Grace) Skin, and all that a Man hath, (ſo all theſe words belong to the price which a Man pays: now follows what he hath or expecteth to have for it:) will he give for his life, i. e. in exchange for his Life, or to ſave his Life. This alſo is a plauſible Interpretation, only it is not very probable, That the ſame Hebrew Particle Behad, ſhould be uſed in two ſo differing Senſes in the ſame verſe, in the former part to ſignifie upon, (which if this Sacred Writer had meant, he would likely have expreſſed it rather by that other Hebrew Particle, Al, which is commonly ſo uſed, than by this which is ſo ambiguous, and ſeldom ſo taken, and otherwiſe uſed in this very Verſe) and in the latter to ſignifie for, or inſtead of. However the Senſe is plainly this, This is ſo far from being an Evidence of Job's ſincere and generous Piety, that it is only an Act of deeper Hypocriſie, and meer Self-Love; he is well enough contented with the loſs of his Eſtate, and Children too, ſo long as he ſleeps in a whole Skin; and he is well pleaſed, that thou wilt accept of all theſe as a Sacrifice or Ranſom in his ſtead; and it is not true Patience and Humility which makes him ſeem to bear his Croſſes ſo ſubmiſſively, as depth of policy, that by his feigned carriage he may appeaſe thy Wrath againſt him, and prevent thoſe further Plagues which, for his Hypocriſie and other ſins, of which he is conſcious, he fears thou wiltſt otherwiſe bring upon his own Carkaſs; as will plainly appear upon further trial.

5 But put forth thine hand now, and touch his bone and his fleſh g, and he will † curſe thee to thy face. †Heb. bleſs.

g Touch, i. e. ſmite him, not ſleightly, but to the quick, and to the Bones and Marrow, ſo as he may feel Pain and Anguiſh indeed, which is oft expreſſed by reaching to the Bones, as Pſal. 6. 2. and 32. 3. and 51. 8.

6 And the LORD ſaid unto Satan, Behold he is in thine hand, * but ſave his life b. * Or, only.

b Do not attempt to take away his Life, which I will not ſuffer thee to do.

7 So went Satan forth from the preſence of the LORD, and ſmote Job with ſore boils i, from the ſole of his foot unto his crown k.

i Like thoſe inflicted upon the Egyptians, which are expreſſed by the ſame word, and threatned to Apoſtate Iſraelites, Deut. 28. 27. whereby he was made loathſom to himſelf, and to his neareſt Relations, Chap. 19. 13. 19. and a viſible monument of Divine Diſpleaſure, and filled with tiring and conſuming pains in his Body, and no leſs Torment and Anguiſh in his mind. k In all the outward parts of his Body. His Tongue he ſpared, that it might be capable of venting thoſe Blaſphemies againſt God which he expected and deſired.

8 And he took him a Potſherd l to ſcrape himſelf withal; and he ſat down among the aſhes l.

l Partly to allay the Itch which his Ulcers cauſed: and partly to ſqueeze out, or take away that purulent Matter which was under them, or flowed from them, and was the great cauſe of his Torment. And this he did not with ſoft Linnen Cloaths, either becauſe he had not now a ſufficient quantity of them for ſo much uſe; or becauſe therein he muſt have had the help of others who abhorred to come near him, Ch. 19. 13, 14, 15. Nor with his own hands or fingers, which were alſo ulcerous, and ſo unfit for that uſe; and beſides he loathed to touch himſelf, but with Potſherds, either becauſe they were next at hand, and ready for his preſent uſe; or in token of his Repentance and deep Humiliation under God's heavy hand, which made him decline all things which ſavoured of tenderneſs and delicacy. l Heb. In duſt or aſhes, as Mourners uſed to do: Of which ſee Job 42. 6. Jonah 3. 6. Mat. 11. 21.

9 Then ſaid his wife m unto him, Doſt thou ſtill retain thine integrity n? † curſe God and die o. †Heb. bleſs. 1 Kin. 21. 10. 13.

m Whom the Devil ſpared with cruel intent to be the Inſtrument of his Temptations, and the aggravation of Job's miſery by unnatural unkindneſs to him, which is declared Ch. 19. 17. and elſewhere. n Art thou yet ſo weak to perſiſt in the practice of Piety, when it is not only unprofitable to thee, but the chief occaſion of all theſe thy inſupportable miſeries, and when God himſelf not only forſakes and leaves thee in this helpleſs and hopeleſs condition, but is turned to be thy greateſt Enemy? o Seeing thy bleſſing of God availeth thee ſo little, it is time to change thy note, Curſe God and die, i. e. reproach him to his face, and tell him of his Injuſtice and Unkindneſs to thee, and that he loves his Enemies, and hates his Friends, and that will provoke him to take away thy Life, and ſo end thy Torments. Or, curſe God, though thou die for it: But although this word ſometimes ſignifies curſing, as Job 1. 11. and 1 Kings, 21. 10. yet moſt properly and generally it ſignifies bleſſing, and ſo it may very well be underſtood here as a Sarcaſtical or Ironical Expreſſion, ſuch as there are many in Scripture, as Eccleſ. 11. 9. Lam. 4. 21. and in all Authors. And ſo the Senſe may be this, Bleſs God, and die, i. e. I ſee thou art ſet upon bleſſing of God, thou bleſſeſt God for giving, and thou bleſſeſt God for taking away, and thou art ſtill bleſſing of God for thy loathſome and tormenting Diſeaſes, and he rewards thee accordingly, giving thee more and more of that kind of Mercy for which thou bleſſeſt and praiſeſt him. Go on therefore in this thy pious and generous courſe, and die as a Fool dieth, and carry this Reputation to thy Grave, that thou hadſt not common Senſe in thee to diſcern between Good and Evil, between thy Friends and thy Foes. Or, rather, awake out of this Stupidity and Lethargy, and give over this abſurd and unreaſonable practiſe, and as God gives thee no Help nor Comfort, ſo let him loſe thy Praiſes and Service. And this being her ſenſe, it is not ſtrange he reproveth her ſo ſharply for it. And yet it ſeems hard to think that Job's Wife ſhould arrive at that height of Impudence and Impiety, as in plain terms to bid him, Curſe God.

10 But he ſaid unto her, Thou ſpeakeſt as one of the fooliſh p women ſpeaketh. What? Shall we receive good at the hand of God, and ſhall we not receive evil q? In all this did not Job ſin with his lips r.

p i. e. Like a raſh, and inconſiderate, and weak perſon, that doſt not underſtand, nor mind what thou ſayeſt: Or, like a wicked and moſt prophane perſon; for ſuch are frequently called Fools in Scripture, as Pſal. 14. 1. and 74. 18. and every where in the Proverbs. q Shall we poor Worms give Laws to our Supreme Lord and Governour, and oblige him always to bleſs and favour us, and never to afflict us? And ſhall not thoſe great and manifold, and long continued Mercies, which from time to time God hath freely and graciouſly given us, compenſate for theſe ſhort afflictions? Ought we not to bleſs God for thoſe Mercies which we did not deſerve, and contentedly to bear thoſe Corrections which we deſerve, and need: and (if it be not our own fault) may get much good by. r By any Reflections upon God, by any impatient or unbecoming Expreſſions.

11 Now when Jobs three friends heard of all this evil that was come upon him, they came every one from his own place; Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite s: for they had made an appointment together, to come to mourn with him, and to comfort him.

s Which were Perſons then eminent for Birth and Quality, for Wiſdom and Knowledge, and for the Profeſſion of the true Religion, being probably of the Poſterity of Abraham, and a-kin to Job, and living in the ſame Country with him.

12 And when they lift up their eyes afar off t, and knew him not u, they lift up their voice and wept, and they rent every one his Mantle, and ſprinkled duſt upon their heads toward heaven x.

t To wit, at ſome convenient diſtance from him: whom they found ſitting upon the ground, either in the open Air, or within his own Houſe. u His Countenance being ſo fearfully changed and disfigured by his Boils. x Either upon the upper part of their heads, which looks towards Heaven: or caſt it up into the Air ſo as it ſhould fall upon their heads; as they did Acts 22. 23. See Joſ. 7. 6. Nehem. 9. 1. Lam. 2. 10.

13 So they ſat down with him upon the ground y ſeven days, and ſeven nights z, and none ſpake a word to him a: for they ſaw that his grief was very great.

y In the poſture of Mourners condoling with him. z Which was the uſual time of mourning for the Dead, Gen. 50. 10. 1 Sam. 31. 13. and therefore proper both for Job's Children, who were dead, and for Job himſelf, who was in a manner dead, whilſt he lived: But we muſt not fancy that they continued in this place and poſture ſo long together, which no Laws of Religion or Civility required of them, and the neceſſities of Nature could not bear; but only that they ſpent a great, or the greateſt part of that time in ſitting with him, and ſilent Mourning over him. And ſo ſuch general Expreſſions are frequently underſtood, as Luke 2. 37. and 24. 53. Acts 20. 31. a Either, 1. about any thing. Or, rather, 2. about his Afflictions and the cauſes of them. The reaſon of this Silence was partly the greatneſs of their grief for him, and their ſurpriſe and aſtoniſhment at his condition; partly becauſe they thought it convenient to give him ſome further time to vent his own Sorrows, and partly becauſe as yet they knew not what to ſay to him: for though they had ever eſteemed him to be a truly wiſe and godly Man, and came with full purpoſe to comfort him, yet the prodigious greatneſs of his Miſeries, and that Hand and Diſpleaſure of God which they manifeſtly perceived in them, made them at a ſtand, and to queſtion Job's Sincerity, ſo that they could not comfort him as they had intended, and yet were loth to grieve him with thoſe Convictions and Reproofs which they thought he greatly needed. And here they ſtuck till Job gave them occaſion to ſpeak their Minds.

CHAP. III.

Job curſeth the day, 1——5. Of his birth, 10——12. The eaſe and honours of death, 13——19. Life in anguiſh, matter of complaint, 20——24. What he feared is now come upon him, 25, 26.

AFter this opened Job his mouth a, and curſed his day b.

a He ſpake freely and boldly, as this Phraſe is uſed Prov. 31. 8, 9. Eph. 6. 19. and elſewhere. b To wit, his Birth-day, as is evident from verſe 3. which is called ſimply a Man's day, Hoſ. 7. 5. Which alſo ſome others, through the ſame Infirmity, and in the ſame Circumſtances, have curſed, as we ſee Jer. 20. 14. In vain do ſome men endeavour to excuſe this and the following Speeches of Job, who afterwards is reproved by God, and ſeverely accuſeth himſelf for them, Chap. 38. 2. and 40. 4. and 42. 3, 6. And yet he doth not proceed ſo far as to curſe or blaſpheme God, but makes the Devil a Lyar in his Prognoſticks: But although he doth not break forth into direct and down-right Reproaches of God, yet he makes ſecret and indirect Reflections upon God's Providence. His Curſe was ſinful, both becauſe it was vain, being applied to an unreaſonable thing, which was not capable of Bleſſing and Curſing, and to a Day that was paſt, and ſo out of the reach of all Curſes; and becauſe it was applied to one of God's Creatures, all which were and are in themſelves very good, and pronounced bleſſed by God, and ſo they are, if we do not turn them into Curſes; and becauſe it caſts a blame upon God for bringing that Day, and for giving him that Life which that day brought into the World. He pronounceth that Day an unhappy, woful, and curſed Day, not in it ſelf, but with reſpect to himſelf.

3 † Let the day periſh wherein I was born c, and the night in which it was ſaid d, There is a Man-child conceived e. † Ch. 10. 18, 19. Jer. 20. 14.

c Let the remembrance of that day be utterly loſt. Yea, I heartily wiſh that it had never been. Such Wiſhes are apparently fooliſh and impatient, and yet have been ſometimes forced from wiſe and good Men in grievous Diſtreſſes, not as if they expected any effect of them, but only to ſhew their abhorrency of Life, and to expreſs the intolerableneſs of their grief, and to give ſome vent to their paſſions. d With Joy and Triumph, as happy tidings. Compare Jer. 20. 15. e Or rather, brought forth, as this word is uſed, 1 Chron. 4. 17. For the time of Conception is unknown commonly to Women themſelves, and doth not uſe to be reported among men, as this Day is ſuppoſed to be.

4 Let that day be darkneſs f, let not God regard it from above g, neither let the Light ſhine upon it.

f I wiſh the Sun had never riſen upon that Day to make it Day, or, which is all one, that it had never been; and whenſoever that Day returns, I wiſh it may be black, and gloomy, and uncomfortable, and therefore execrable and odious to all Men. g i. e. From Heaven, either, 1. By cauſing the Light of the Sun which is in Heaven to ſhine upon it. So it agrees both with the foregoing and following Branches of this Verſe. Or, 2. By bleſſing and favouring it, or by giving his Bleſſings to Men upon it. Let it be eſteemed by all an unlucky and comfortleſs Day. Or, Let not God require it, i. e. bring it again in its courſe, as other Days return. In this Senſe God is ſaid to require that which is paſt, Eccleſ. 3. 15. Compare v. 3. 6.

‖Or, challenge it. *Or, Let them terrifie it as those who have a bitter day.

5 Let darkneſs and the ſhadow of death h ‖ ſtain it, i let a cloud dwell upon it, * let the blackneſs of the day terrifie it k.

h i. e. A black and dark ſhadow like that of the place of the dead, which is a Land of Darkneſs, and where the Light is Darkneſs, as Job explains this very Phraſe, Ch. 10. 21, 22. Or, ſo groſs and palpable Darkneſs, that by its horrors and damps may take away Mens Spirits and Lives. i i. e. Take away its beauty and glory, and make it abominable as a filthy thing. Or, challenge it, i. e. take and keep the entire poſſeſſion of it, ſo as the Light may not have the leaſt ſhare in it. k To wit, the Day, i. e. Men in it. Let it be always obſerved as a frightful and diſmal day.

6 As for that night, let darkneſs l ſeize upon it; † let it not be joined unto the days of the year m; let it not come into the number of the months n.

l i. e. Conſtant and extraordinary Darkneſs, without the leaſt glimmering of Light from the Moon or Stars. m i. e. Reckoned as one, or a part of one of them. The night is diſtinguiſhed from the artificial day, but it is a part of the natural day, which conſiſts of 24 hours. Or rather, let it not rejoice among the days, &c. Joy here, and terror, v. 5. are poetically and figuratively aſcribed to the day or night, with reſpect to men, who either rejoice or are affrighted in it. Let it be a ſad, and as it were a funeral Day. n i. e. To be one of thoſe Nights which go to the making up of the Months.

7 Lo, let that night be ſolitary o; let no joyful voice p come therein:

o i. e. Deſtitute of all ſociety of Men meeting and feaſting together, which commonly was done at night, Suppers being the moſt ſolemn Meals among divers ancient Nations. See Mark 6. 21. Luke 14. 16. John 12. 2. Rev. 19. 9. 17. p Neither of the Bride and Bridegroom, nor any that celebrate their Nuptials, or any other merry Solemnity.

‖Or, A Leviathan.

8 Let them curſe it that curſe the day q, who are ready to raiſe up ‖ their mourning r.

q i. e. Their Day, to wit, their Birth-day: For the Pronoun is here omitted for the Meeters ſake: For this and the following Chapters are written in Verſe, as all grant. So the Senſe is, when their Afflictions move them to curſe their own Birth-day, let them remember mine alſo, and beſtow ſome Curſes upon it. Or, the day of their diſtreſs and trouble, which ſometimes is called ſimply the day, as Obad. 12. Or, the Day of the Birth or Death of that perſon whoſe Funerals are celebrated by the hired Mourners, who in their ſolemn Lamentations uſed to curſe the Day that gave them ſuch a Perſon, whom they ſhould ſo ſuddenly loſe, and therefore it had been better never to have enjoyed him, and to curſe the Day in which he died as an unlucky and execrable Day. Or, the day, i. e. the Day-light: which to ſome perſons is an hateful thing, and the Object of their Curſes, namely, to lewd Perſons and Thieves, to whom the morning light is even as the ſhadow of death, Ch. 24. 17. as alſo to perſons oppreſſed with deep Melancholy, as it is here implied, v. 20. So the Senſe is this, They who uſe to curſe the day only, but generally love and bleſs the night, yet let this night be as abominable and execrable to them as the day time generally is. r Who are brim full of ſorrow, and always ready to pour out their Cries, and Tears, and Complaints, and with them Curſes, as Men in great paſſions frequently do. Or, ſuch Mourning-Men, or Mourning-Women, whoſe common Employment it was, and who were hired to mourn, and therefore were always ready to do ſo upon Funeral occaſions; of which ſee 2 Chron. 35. 25. Jer. 9. 17, 18, 20. Ezek. 30. 2. Joel 1. 15. Amos 5. 16. Matth. 9. 23. And this Senſe ſuits with the uſe of the laſt word in Hebrew Writers, of which a plain and pertinent Inſtance is given by the Learned Mercer. But becauſe that word is commonly uſed in another Senſe for the Leviathan, both in this Book, and elſewhere in Scripture, as Pſal. 74. 14. and 104. 26. Iſa. 27. 1. And becauſe this very Phraſe of raiſing the Leviathan is uſed afterward, Ch. 41. 25. others render the words thus, Who are prepared, or ready to raiſe the Leviathan. It is evident that the Leviathan was a great and dreadful Fiſh or Sea-Monſter, though there be ſome diſagreement about its kind or quality, and that the raiſing of, or endeavouring to catch the Leviathan was a dangerous and terrible work, as is plain from Job 41. And therefore thoſe Sea-Men, who have been generally noted for great Swearers and Curſers, eſpecially when their Paſſions of Rage or Fear are raiſed, being now labouring to catch this Sea-Monſter, and finding themſelves and their Veſſel in great danger from him, they fall to their old trade of Swearing and Curſing, and curſe the day wherein they were born, and the day in which they ventured upon this moſt hazardous and terrible work. Others underſtand this Leviathan myſtically, as it is uſed, Iſa. 27. 1. for the great Enemy of God's Church and People, called there alſo the Dragon, to wit, the Devil, whom the Magicians both now do, and formerly did uſe to raiſe with fearful Curſes and Imprecations. Not as if Job did juſtifie this practice, but only it is a raſh and paſſionate wiſh, that they who pour forth ſo many Curſes undeſervedly, would beſtow their deſerved Curſes upon this Day.

9 Let the ſtars of the twilight thereof be dark s, let it look for light but have none t, neither let it ſee * the dawning of the day u:

* Heb. the Eye-lids of the morning Chap. 41: 18:

s Let the Stars, which are the Glory and Beauty of the Night, to render it amiable and delightful to Men, be covered with thick darkneſs, and that both in the Evening Twilight, as is here expreſſed, when the Stars begin to ariſe and ſhine forth; and alſo in the further progreſs of the Night, even till the Morning begins to dawn, as the following words imply. t Let its darkneſs be aggravated with the diſappointment of its Hopes and Expectations of Light. He aſcribes Senſe or Reaſoning to the Night, by a Poëtical Fiction uſual in all Writers. u Heb. The Eye-lids of the day, i. e. the Morning-Star which uſhers in the Day, and the beginning, and conſequently the progreſs of the Morning-Light, and the Day following. Let this whole natural Day, conſiſting of Night and Day, be blotted out of the Catalogue of Days, as he wiſhed before.

10 Becauſe it x ſhut not up the doors x of my Mothers y Womb, nor hid ſorrow from mine eyes z.

x To wit, the night or the day: to which thoſe things are aſcribed which were done by others in them, as is frequent in Poetical Writings, ſuch as this is. Or, he, i. e. God: whom in modeſty and reverence he forbears to name. Yet he doth not curſe God for his Birth, as the Devil preſaged, but only wiſheth that the day of his Birth might have manifeſt Characters of a Curſe impreſſed upon it. x That it might either never have conceived me, or at leaſt never have brought me forth. y Which word is here fitly ſupplied, both out of Ch. 1. 21. and 31. 18. where it is expreſſed; and by comparing other places where it is neceſſarily to be underſtood, though the Womb only be mentioned, as Job 10. 19. Pſal. 58. 3. Iſa. 48. 8. Jer. 1. 5. z Becauſe it did not keep me from entring into this miſerable Life, and ſeeing, i. e. feeling, or experiencing, (as that word is oft uſed) thoſe bitter ſorrows under which I now groan.

11 Why died I not from the Womb a? Why did I not give up the Ghoſt when I came out of the Belly b?

a i. e. As ſoon as ever I was born, or come out of the Womb. b The ſame thing expreſſed in other words, which is an Elegancy uſual both in the Hebrew, and in other Languages.

12 Why did the knees prevent me c? or why the breaſts that I ſhould ſuck d?

c Why did the Midwife or Nurſe receive me and lay me upon her Knees, and did not ſuffer me to fall upon the bare ground, and there to lie in a neglected and forlorn condition, till merciful Death had taken me out of this miſerable World into which the cruel kindneſs of my Mother and Midwife hath betrayed me? d Why did the Breaſts prevent me (which may be fitly underſtood out of the former Member) to wit, from periſhing through hunger, or ſupply me that I ſhould have what to ſuck? Seeing my Mother had not a miſcarrying Womb, but did unhappily bring me forth, why had ſhe not dry Breaſts? Or, why were there any Breaſts for me which I might ſuck? Thus Job moſt unthankfully and unworthily deſpiſeth and traduceth theſe wonderful and ſingular Mercies of God towards poor helpleſs Infants, becauſe of the preſent Inconveniences, which he had by means of them.

13 For now ſhould I have lien ſtill, and been quiet e, I ſhould have ſlept; then had I been at reſt, e Free from all thoſe torments of my Body and Mind which now oppreſs me.

14 With kings f and counſellors of the earth, which * built deſolate places for themſelves g: *Ch. 15.28

f I had then been as happy as the proudeſt Monarchs, who after all their great Atchievments and Enjoyments, go down into their Graves, where I alſo ſhould have been ſweetly repoſed. g Which to ſhew their great Wealth and Power, or to leave behind them a glorious Name, rebuilt ruined Cities, or built new Cities and Palaces, and other Monuments, in places where before there was meer ſolitude and waſteneſs.

15 Or with princes that had gold, who filled their houſes with ſilver.

16 Or * as an hidden h untimely birth i I had not been k; as Infants which never ſaw light l. *Pſal. 58.8.

h Undiſcerned and unregarded. i Born before the due time, and therefore extinct. k To wit, in the Land of the Living, of which he here ſpeaketh. l Being ſtifled and dead before they were born.

17 There m the wicked ceaſe from troubling n: and there the † weary be at reſt o.

m i. e. In the Grave, which though not expreſſed, yet is clearly implied in the foregoing Verſes. n The great oppreſſors and troublers of the World ceaſe from all thoſe Vexations, Rapines, and Murders, which here they procured. o Thoſe who were here moleſted and tired out with with their Tyrannies, now quietly ſleep with them, or by them.

18 There the priſoners reſt together p; they hear not the voice of the oppreſſor q.

p i. e. One as well as another, they who were kept in the ſtrongeſt Chains, and cloſeſt Priſons, and condemned to the moſt hard and miſerable ſlavery, reſt as well as thoſe who were Captives in much better Circumſtances. Or, in like manner, (as this word oft ſignifies) as thoſe Oppreſſors and Oppreſſed do. q Or, Exactor, or Taskmaſter, who urgeth and forceth them by cruel Threatnings and Stripes, to greater diligence in the Works to which they are condemned. See Exod. 3. 7. and 5. 6, 10, 13. Job meddles not here with their eternal ſtate after Death, or the ſentence and judgment of God againſt wicked men, of which he ſpeaks hereafter, but only ſpeaks of their freedom from worldly troubles, which is the only matter of his Complaint and preſent Diſcourſe.

* Or, is there the ſame.

19 The ſmall and great r * are there s, and the ſervant is free from his maſter.

r i. e. Perſons of all Qualities and Conditions, whether higher or lower. s In the ſame place and ſtate, all thoſe kinds of diſtinctions and differences being for ever aboliſhed.

20 Wherefore is light given t to him that is in miſery, and life unto the bitter in ſoul u?

t Heb. Wherefore (for what cauſe, or uſe, or good) doth he (i. e. God, though he forbear to name him, out of that holy Fear and Reverence which ſtill he retained towards him) give Light, either the Light of the Sun, which the Living only behold, Eccleſ. 6. 5. and 7. 11. Or the Light of Life, as may ſeem both by the next words, and by comparing Pſal. 56. 13. and becauſe death is oft ſet forth by the name of Darkneſs, as Life by the name of Light. Theſe are ſtrong Expoſtulations with God, and quarrelling with his Providence, and with his Bleſſings; but we muſt conſider, that Job was but a man, and a man of like Paſſions and Infirmities with other men, and now in grievous Agonies, being not only under moſt violent and yet continual torments of Body, but alſo under great diſquietments of Mind, and the deep ſenſe of God's Diſpleaſure, and was alſo left to himſelf, that he might ſee what was in his Heart, and that all ſucceeding Ages might have in him an illuſtrious Example of Man's Infirmity, and the neceſſity of God's Grace to help them in time of need. And therefore it is no wonder if his Paſſions boil up and break forth in ſome indecent and ſinful Expreſſions. u Unto ſuch to whom Life it ſelf is very bitter and burdenſom. Why doth he obtrude his Favours upon thoſe who abhor them?

Rev. 9. 6.

21 Which † long for death, but it cometh not, and dig for it x more then for hid treaſures.

x i. e. Deſire and pray for it with as much earneſtneſs as men dig for Treaſure: But it is obſervable, that Job durſt not lay violent hands upon himſelf, nor do any thing to haſten or procure his Death; but notwithſtanding all his Miſeries and Complaints, he was contented to wait all the days of his appointed time, till his change came, ch. 14. 14.

22 Which rejoice exceedingly, and are glad when they can find the grave.

* Ch. 19. 8.
Lam. 3. 7.

23 Why is light given y to a man whoſe way is hid z, * and whom God hath hedged in a?

y Theſe words are conveniently ſupplied out of v. 20. where they are, all the following words hitherto being joyned in conſtruction and ſenſe with them. z To wit, from him; who knows not his way, i. e. which way to turn himſelf, what courſe to take to comfort himſelf in his Miſeries, or to get out of them, what method to uſe to pleaſe and reconcile that God who is ſo angry with him, ſeeing his ſincere and exact Piety, to which God is witneſs, doth not ſatisfie him, or what the end of theſe Calamities will be. a Not with a Hedge of Defence, like that ch. 1. 10. but of Offence and Reſtraint; i. e. whom God hath put as it were in a Priſon or Pound, or like Cattle in Grounds incloſed with an high and ſtrong Hedge, over or through which they cannot get, ſo that he can ſee no way nor poſſibility to eſcape, but all refuge fails him.

24 For my ſighing cometh † before I eat b, and my roarings c are poured out like the waters d.

b Heb. Before the face of my bread, i. e. either when I am going to eat: or rather, all the time whilſt I am eating (for ſo this Phraſe is uſed, Pſalm 72. 5. Before the face of the Sun, &c. that is, as we tranſlate it, as long as the Sun endureth,) I fall into bitter Paſſions of ſighing and weeping, partly becauſe my Neceſſity and Duty obligeth me to eat, and ſo to ſupport this wretched Life, which I long to loſe: and principally becauſe of my uninterrupted Pains of Body and Horrors of my Mind, which mix themſelves with my very Meat, and do not afford me one quiet moment. Compare Pſal. 102. 9. c i. e. My loud outcries, more befitting a Lion than a Man, which yet extremity of grief forceth from me. Compare Pſal. 22. 1. and 32. 3. d i. e. With great abundance, and irreſiſtible violence, and inceſſant continuance, as Waters flow in a River, or when they break the Banks, and overflow the ground.

25 For e ‖ the thing which I greatly feared is come upon me f, and that which I was afraid of is come unto me.

e This is another Reaſon why he is weary of his Life, and why he repents that ever he was born, becauſe he never enjoyed any ſolid and ſecure Comfort. f Heb. I feared a fear, (i. e. a danger or miſchief in one kind or other, the Act being here put for the Object, as Joy and Love are oft put for the things rejoiced in, or loved, and here Fear for the thing feared. Or, I feared with fear, i. e. I feared greatly) and it came. Even in the time of my Peace and Proſperity, I was full of Fears, conſidering the variety of God's Providences, the courſe and changeableneſs of this vain World, the Infirmities and Contingencies of Human Nature and Life, God's Juſtice, and the ſinfulneſs of all Mankind. And theſe Fears of mine were not in vain, but are juſtified by my preſent Calamities. So that I have never enjoyed any ſound Tranquility ſince I was born; and therefore it hath not been worth my while to live, ſince all my days have been evil, and full of vexation and torment, either by the fear of Miſeries, or by the ſufferance of them.

26 I was not in ſafety, neither had I reſt, neither was I quiet g, yet trouble came h.

g Three Expreſſions noting the ſame thing, which alſo was ſignified in the next foregoing Verſe, to wit, that even in his proſperous days, he never was ſecure or at reſt from the torment of Fear and Anxiety. Others, I did not miſbehave my ſelf in Proſperity, abuſing it by Preſumption, and Security, and Voluptuouſneſs, whereby I might have provoked God thus to afflict me; but I lived ſoberly and circumſpectly, walking humbly with God, and working out my Salvation with Fear and Trembling, little expecting that God would be ſo fierce an Enemy againſt me. h Heb. And trouble came, as I feared it would. So between Fear and Calamity my whole Life hath been miſerable, and I had reaſon to repent of it.

CHAP. IV.

Eliphaz ſpeaketh though it will grieve Job, 1, 2. Job had inſtructed and ſtrengthned others in their ſorrows, but now fainted himſelf, 3—5. Eliphaz reproacheth him with his confidence in his uprightneſs, which he now ſuſpecteth: for that God's judgments were not againſt the righteous, but the wicked, 6—11. His fearful viſions, 12—16. The righteouſneſs of God: the Angels charged with folly: the vanity of man, 17—21.

THen Eliphaz the Temanite a anſwered, and ſaid, a Who ſpake firſt, becauſe poſſibly he was the eldeſt, or of greateſt Authority or Zeal.

* Heb. a word.
† Heb. who can refrain from words

2 If we aſſay * to commune with thee, wilt thou be grieved b? but † who can with-hold himſelf from ſpeaking c?

b Or, (without a Note of Interrogation) thou wilt be grieved. Our words will undoubtedly vex thee, and not comfort thee, as we intended and deſired to do. We muſt not uſe words of Comfort, but of ſharp Reproof, which will be irkſome to thee: and this makes me deſire to be ſilent, if it were poſſible. c When he hears ſuch unreaſonable and ungodly words coming from ſuch a Perſon as thou art, whereby thou doſt accuſe thy Maker, and reproach his Providence, and contemn his Bleſſings. No man who hath any reſpect to God, or love to thee, can forbear reproving thee.

3 Behold, thou haſt inſtructed many d, and thou haſt ſtrengthened the weak hands e.

d Teaching them thoſe Leſſons which thou haſt not learned and wilſt not practiſe, to wit, patiently to bear afflictions, and to ſubmit to God's Will and Providence in all things, which thou moſt ſhamefully refuſeſt to do. e By adminiſtring Supports and Comforts and Counſels to ſuch as were unable to bear their Burdens, or to do their Duty.

4 Thy words have upholden him that was falling f, and thou haſt ſtrengthened † the feeble knees g.

f Ready to ſink under their preſſures, or to fall from God, or into ſin, (as that word is uſed, 1 Cor. 10. 12. Gal. 6. 2. and elſewhere) through deſpondency and diſtruſt of God's Providence and Promiſe, or through Impatience. g Such as were weak hearted, and fainting under their Trials. See Iſa. 35. 3. Dan. 5. 6. Heb. 12. 12.

5 But now it h is come upon thee, and thou fainteſt i, it toucheth thee k and thou art troubled.

h i. e. The Evil which thou didſt fear, ch. 3. 25. and which was come upon thoſe whom thou didſt ſo comfort. i Thou alloweſt in thy ſelf what thou wouldſt not bear in others. What in them was a Vice, in thee, it ſeems, is become a Virtue. Thou art wiſe for others, but not for thy ſelf; a good Phyſician to cure others, but not thy ſelf; quick ſighted to ſee the faults of others, but blind to thine own. k It is now come to be thine own caſe.

6 Is not this thy fear, thy confidence, the uprightneſs of thy ways, and thy hope k?

k So the ſenſe is, We now plainly ſee what was the Nature and Complexion of thy Fear of God, thy Confidence in him, the uprightneſs of thy ways, and thy Hope in God's Mercy, which thou didſt make ſhew and boaſt of, and for which thou waſt become ſo famous. Thy preſent carriage diſcovereth to thy ſelf and others, that it was but meer talk and appearance, and there was nothing ſound and ſincere in it. In thy proſperity it was eaſie to make a ſplendid profeſſion of Religion; but men are beſt known by affliction, and this now ſheweth of what Metal thou art made: For now thou doſt caſt off thy Fear of God, and all thy Confidence and Hope in him, and haſt let go that Integrity of thy ways, which hitherto thou didſt ſeem to hold faſt; whereas true Piety is uniform, and conſtant, and ſtedfaſt in all varieties of Conditions, and under all Trials and Temptations. But this Tranſlation removes thee and from its proper place, and changeth the order of the Words, which is this in the Hebrew, thy Hope, and the uprightneſs of thy ways, which words may be reſtored to their own order, and with that variation our Tranſlation may ſtand, and this ſeems to be the true ſenſe. And ſo here are four diſtinct Queſtions, Is not this thy Fear? Is not this thy Confidence? Is not this thy Hope? Is not this the uprightneſs of thy ways? But others make only two Queſtions, and render the words either thus; Is not (or rather, Was not) thy Fear (of God) thy Confidence? And the uprightneſs of thy ways thy Hope? i. e. Did not thy Fear of God, and the Integrity of thy Life, of which thou didſt make ſuch eminent Profeſſion, proceed only from the love of thy ſelf, and of this preſent World? And from thy Confidence and Hope that God would bleſs and proſper thee for it? For now when God withdraws his Favour and Bleſſings from thee, thy Religion is vaniſhed, and thou haſt caſt off all Fear and Reverence of God, as thy impious Speeches ſhew. Or thus: Would not thy Fear be thy Confidence, and the Uprightneſs of thy ways thy hope? i. e. If thou hadſt indeed that Fear and Integrity to which thou pretendeſt, it would give thee good ground of Hope and Confidence in the midſt of all thy Diſtreſſes, and thou wouldſt not ſo faint and ſink under thy Calamities, as now thou doſt, for want of a ſolid foundation of true Piety. But both theſe Tranſlations, beſides other Inconveniencies, ſtumble at the ſame ſtone, and pervert the order of the words in the Hebrew Text, of which ſee before; which is not to be allowed without ſome kind of neceſſity, which is not in this caſe.

7 Remember, I pray thee l, who ever periſhed m being innocent n? or where were the righteous cut off o?

l Give me one Example hereof out of all thy Experience or Reading. m i. e. Was ſo utterly undone, as thou art, ſo miſerably afflicted by ſuch unparallel'd and various Judgments from God and Men, all conſpiring againſt thee. n Who had not by his wickedneſs provoked ſo merciful a God to do that which is ſo unuſual, and in ſome ſort unpleaſing to himſelf. Therefore thou art guilty of ſome great, though ſecret, Crimes, and thy Sin hath now found thee out, and hath brought down theſe ſtupendious Plagues upon thee. o By the Sicle of Divine Vengeance before his time, which is like to be thy caſe. His judgment herein was raſh and falſe, but not without ſome appearance of truth: For God had made many Promiſes, not only of ſpiritual and eternal, but alſo of temporal Bleſſings, to all that ſhould faithfully ſerve and obey him, which accordingly he did from time to time confer upon them, as we ſee by the Examples of Noah, Lot, Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, and doubtleſs many others which had lived in or before their days. And this was God's uſual method under all the times of the Old Teſtament, as we ſee by the People of Iſrael, who were generally either in an happy and flouriſhing, or in an afflicted and miſerable ſtate, according to their Obedience to God, or their Apoſtacy from him. And therefore it is not ſtrange that they fell into this miſtake: But allowing for this miſtake, and the conſequence of it, his uncharitable Opinion of Job, the method which he uſeth with Job is commendable, and to be imitated by others in their dealing with perſons in ſickneſs or affliction: For he doth not flatter him in his Sins, nor immediately and unſeaſonably apply Comforts to him, but endeavours to convince him of his Sins, and to bring him to Repentance, as the only regular way to his Remedy.

* Pſal. 7.14. Prov. 22.8. Hoſ. 10.13.

8 Even as I have ſeen p, * they that plough iniquity, and ſow wickedneſs q, reap the ſame r.

p As thou haſt never ſeen any Example of a righteous man cut off, ſo on the contrary I have ſeen many Examples of wicked men cut off for their wickedneſs. Or, As far as I have obſerved: Or, But as I have ſeen or experienced. q They that deſignedly and induſtriouſly work wickedneſs, firſt plotting and preparing themſelves for it, and then continuing to purſue and execute it, as Husbandmen firſt plow up and prepare the ground, and then caſt in the Seed. Compare Prov. 22. 8. Hoſ. 10. 13. r i. e. Iniquity, or ſuch Trouble or Injury (for ſo alſo the Hebrew word, Aven, ſignifies) as they cauſe to others. Or, the fruit of their Iniquity, the juſt Recompence and Puniſhment of it, which is oft called Sin or Iniquity, as Gen. 4. 7. Numb. 12. 11. and 16. 26. and 32. 23. Compare Gal. 6. 7, 8.

† That is, by his anger, as Iſa. 30.33. Exod. 15.8. Ch. 1.19. & 15.30. Iſa. 11.4.

9 By the blaſt of God s they periſh, and † by the breath of his noſtrils are they conſumed.

s To wit, Of his Noſtrils, as it here follows; i. e. by his Anger, which in Men ſhews it ſelf, in the Noſtrils, by hot and frequent Breathings there, and therefore by an Anthropopathy is aſcribed to God: by a ſecret and oft undiſcerned, but mighty and powerful Judgment of God, by which they are blaſted and blown away as Chaff by the Wind, as the Phraſe is, Pſal. 1.

* Pſal. 34.10. & 35.17. † Pſal. 58.6.

10 The roaring of * the Lion, and the voice of the fierce Lion t, and † the teeth of the young Lions are broken u.

t Underſtand vaniſheth, or periſheth, out of v. 9. or, is reſtrained, or ſuppreſſed, as may be gathered out of the following branch of this Verſe. u Which is true literally; the Lions when taken having moſt commonly their Teeth broken, as ancient and modern Writers relate. But this is here myſtically meant of wicked and powerful Tyrants, who are oft and fitly compared to Lions, Ezek. 32. 2. and 38. 13. 2 Tim. 4. 17. who though for a time they perſecute and oppreſs other men, yet in due time they are reſtrained, and broken, and cruſhed in pieces by the mighty Power of God appearing againſt them in ſome eminent Judgments. Poſſibly he may ſecretly accuſe Job, or his Children, or both, that being perſons of great wealth and power in thoſe parts, they had wickedly abuſed it to ruin their Neighbours, and therefore were juſtly cut off.

11 The old lion periſheth for lack of prey x, and the ſtout lions whelps are ſcattered abroad y.

x Becauſe they cannot go abroad to ſeek it, and their young ones either cannot find, or do not bring it to them. See Pſal. 59. 14, 15. and 109. 10. y Gone from their Dens ſeveral ways to hunt for prey, and can find none.

12 Now z a thing a was || ſecretly brought to me b, and mine ear received c a little thereof d.

z Heb. And, or, Moreover, I will further convince thee by a Viſion which I had relating to ſuch matters as theſe. That here follows a Relation of a Viſion is apparent from the punctual deſcription of all its Circumſtances. To think as ſome do, that this was but a Fiction and Artifice which Eliphaz uſed, that his words might have more authority with Job; or that this was a Diabolical Deluſion ſeems to be both uncharitable and unreaſonable, partly becauſe Eliphaz, though under a miſtake concerning Job's caſe, was doubtleſs a wiſe and good man, and therefore would not needleſly make himſelf a Lyar for Job's Conviction; and partly from the matter of this Viſion, which is no way ſuitable to the Nature or Deſigns of the Devil, but holy and agreeable to the Divine Majeſty and Purity, and uſeful for mens Inſtruction, and Humiliation, and Reformation. It was therefore a Divine Viſion, which in that Age and State of the Church, before the holy Scriptures were written, was the uſual way of God's diſcovery of his Mind to thoſe that ſought to him. a Heb. A word, to wit, from God, as Prov. 13. 13. a Doctrine or Meſſage. b Heb. was ſtoln, or brought by ſtealth into me, i. e. privately and ſecretly, as the Word of God uſed to come to the Prophets, being ſpoken in their Ear, as it was to Samuel, 1 Sam. 9. 15. and the like to Moſes, ſo as Pharaoh, though preſent, could not hear nor obſerve it, Exod. 11. 1. with a low and ſtill voice, a ſecret Whiſper. This is oppoſed to the more publick delivery of God's Word by the Prophets to the People, which was done by crying aloud, Iſa 58. 1. c i. e. I heard. d Or, a parcel thereof, i. e. of God's Word, not of that particular Word which God had now delivered to Eliphaz, which doubtleſs God would ſo ſpeak, that he to whom he directed his Speech, might hear it all, and Eliphaz certainly would be as careful not to loſe a Syllable of it; but a parcel of God's Word in general, which this indeed was. And withal, this may be a modeſt and humble expreſſion, ariſing from a deep ſenſe of his own infirmity, and the ſmall meaſure of his knowledge of Divine things, whereof he knew only ſome little fragments and parcels, as Paul ſaid, We know but in part, 1 Cor. 13. 9. As if he had ſaid, Many I doubt have more familiar acquaintance with God, and more full Revelations from God than I can pretend to, but a little of that Treaſure God hath been pleaſed to impart to me.

13 * In thoughts e from the viſions of the night f, when deep ſleep falleth on men ff, * Ch. 33.15

e In the midſt of my Thoughts, or, by reaſon of my Thoughts, my perplexing Thoughts. The word properly ſignifies a branch, and thence a Thought, as 1 Kings 18. 21. which proceeds from the Mind, as Branches from a Tree, and a perplexing Thought, which is entangled like the Branches of a Tree. Theſe Thoughts were the occaſion of the following Fear. f This may belong either to the Thoughts laſt mentioned, or to the Fear following; both which did ariſe from the Viſions of the Night, i. e. from the great importance and the terribleneſs of ſuch Viſions, whereof probably he had had former Experience, and now had an expectation of another of them which God had raiſed and wrought in him, to prepare him the better for the reception of it. Viſions differed from Dreams herein, that God imparted his Mind to a Man in Dreams when he was aſleep, but in Viſions, when they were awake. And theſe Viſions ſometimes happened by day, as Luke 1. 22. Acts 10. 17. and 26. 19. but moſt frequently by night, whence we read of Viſion, or Viſions of the Night, as Gen. 46. 2. Job 20. 8. and 33. 15. And ſuch this was which made it the more terrible. ff In the dead of the Night, when Men uſually are in a deep ſleep; though Eliphaz was not now aſleep, as appears from the nature of a Viſion, and from the following words.

14 Fear † came upon me g, and trembling, which made || all my bones to ſhake.

† Heb. met me. || Heb. the multitude of my bones.

g Either cauſed by the apparition following: or ſent by God to humble him, and to prepare him for the more diligent attention to, reverent reception of, and ready compliance with the Divine Meſſage.

15 Then h a ſpirit i paſſed before my face, the hair of my fleſh k ſtood up l.

h Heb. And, or, For, as this Particle is oft uſed. So this was the reaſon of the foregoing Thoughts and Fear. i An Angel in ſome viſible ſhape, otherwiſe he could not have diſcerned it, nor would have been affrighted at it. k i. e. Of my Body, as Fleſh is taken, Gen. 2. 24. Pſal. 16. 9. and 119. 120. l Through that exceſſive horrour cauſed by ſo glorious, unuſual, and terrible a Preſence. Which God uſed to excite in Men upon ſuch occaſions to convince them, that it was not a vain Imagination or Illuſion, but a real Viſion and Revelation, and that from God.

16 It ſtood ſtill m, but I could not diſcern the form thereof n: an image was before mine eyes o; † there was ſilence p, and I heard a voice, ſaying,

m Having paſſed by him too and again he made a ſtand, as one that had ſome buſineſs with him, and addreſſed himſelf to ſpeak to him. n To wit, exactly and diſtinctly, ſo as to know what or who it was. o I ſaw ſome corporal or viſible Reſemblance, though in a confuſed manner. p The Spirit, which poſſibly had made ſome noiſe with his motion, now ſtanding ſtill made no noiſe; all other perſons and things about me were ſilent, and I alſo kept in my Voice and Breath, as much as I could, that I might diſtinctly hear what I perceived the Spirit was ſpeaking to me. In the Hebrew, the words run thus, Silence and a Voice, (i. e. a ſilent, or ſtill, or low voice, by a very common figure, called Hendiadis) I heard.

17 Shall mortal man be more juſt than God q? ſhall a man r be more pure than his maker s?

q The ſenſe is, Thou, O Job, doſt preſumptuouſly accuſe God for dealing harſhly and unrighteouſly with thee, in ſending thee into the World upon ſuch hard terms, and puniſhing an innocent and righteous man with ſuch unparallel'd ſeverity, but conſider things calmly within thy ſelf, If God and thou come to a Trial before any equal Judge, canſt thou think that thou wilſt go away juſtified, and the great God ſhall be condemned. No righteous man will puniſh another without cauſe, or more than he deſerves; and therefore if God do ſo with thee, as thy words imply, he is leſs juſt than a man: which is blaſphemous and abſurd to imagine. r A great and mighty man, as this word ſignifies, a man eminent for Wiſdom, or Juſtice, or Power, or any other Perfections, ſuch as thou art thought by thy ſelf or others to be; who therefore might expect more favour than a poor miſerable and contemptible man, which the word, enoſch, uſed in the former Branch, ſignifies. So he anticipates this Objection which Job might make. s An unanſwerable Argument againſt Job, He made thee, and that for himſelf and his own Glory, and therefore hath an unqueſtionable right to deal with thee, and diſpoſe of thee, the Work of his Hands, as he ſees fit. Wo to him that ſtriveth with his maker, Iſa. 45. 9. Beſides, he made man juſt and pure, if any man have any thing of Juſtice or Purity in him, it is derived from God the undoubted and only Fountain of it, and therefore it muſt neceſſarily be in God in a far more eminent degree.

18 Behold t, he * put no truſt in his ſervants u; || and his angels he charged with folly x:

* Ch. 15.15 and 25. 4. 2 Pet. 2.4. || Or, not in his Angels, in whom he put light

t This deſerves thy ſerious conſideration. Theſe and the following words ſeem to be the words of Eliphaz, explaining the former Viſion, and applying it to Job's Caſe, and enforcing it by further Arguments. u i. e. In his Angels, as appears both by the next words of this Verſe, where they are called by way of Explication and Reſtriction, his Angels; and by the next Verſe where men are oppoſed to them. They are called his Servants by way of Eminency, that general Name being here appropriated to the chief of the kind, as is very uſual in all Authors in like caſes; and withal to intimate that Soveraign Dominion which the great God hath over the glorious Angels, and much more over Men, by virtue whereof he hath an unqueſtionable Authority to treat them according to his good pleaſure. And theſe God is ſaid to put no truſt in, becauſe he could not be confident that they, if left to themſelves, and deſtitute of the Succours of his Power and Grace, would continue to be loyal, and faithful, and ſerviceable to him, and would not revolt from him, as ſome of their Brethren had done. And for this cauſe God was pleaſed, after ſome time of Trial, to give ſome ſpecial and further Grace, either by Chriſt or otherwiſe, whereby they ſhould be infallibly confirmed in the ſtate of Grace and Felicity. x Or, with Vanity : i. e. He diſcerned Folly and Vanity in the Angelical Natures, when he had firſt made them; which although he ſaw and pronounced them, no leſs than the viſible Creatures, Gen. 1. to be very good in themſelves, and free from the leaſt degree or tincture of ſin; yet comparing them with himſelf, and conſidering them in themſelves alone, he ſaw ſomething of Folly and Vanity in their very Natures, becauſe they were Creatures, and therefore ſubject to manifold changes, and, among others, to fall from God, or into ſin; as it appeared by the ſad experience of ſome of them. Seeing therefore the Angels, which ſo far exceed Mankind in Wiſdom, and Strength, and Purity, and Juſtice, and all other Perfections, do fall incomparably ſhort of God in theſe things, it is moſt abſurd as well as impious, to think that Man is more juſt or pure than God, as was ſaid, v. 17. and as thou, O Job, ſeemeſt to ſurmiſe. Others, Nor (Heb. And not; the negative Particle being repeated out of the former branch of the Verſe, as it is Pſal. 9. 18. Prov. 17. 26. and elſewhere,) in his Angels, in whom (both which Particles are frequently underſtood, as hath been proved before) he put Light, or Splendor, to wit, ſingular Wiſdom, and Purity, beyond what he put in Man.

y Underſtand, doth he put truſt in them, &c. Or, How much more, underſtand, doth he charge folly on them, &c. Either of theſe ſupplements are natural and eaſie, being fetched out of the former Verſe, and neceſſary to make the ſenſe compleat. The ſenſe is, what ſtrange preſumption then is it for a fooliſh and mortal man to pretend to an higher Priviledge than the Angels do, to make himſelf more juſt than God, or to exalt himſelf above or againſt God, as thou doſt? z i. e. On men, as it follows, who though they have immortal Spirits, yet thoſe Spirits dwell in mortal Bodies, which are great Debaſements, and Clogs, and Encumbrances, and Snares to them; and which are here called Houſes, (becauſe they are the Receptacles of the Soul, and the places of its ſettled and continual abode) and Houſes of Clay, and Earthly Houſes, 2 Cor. 5. 1. partly becauſe they were made of Clay, or Earth, Gen. 2. 7. 1 Cor. 15. 47. and partly to note their great frailty and mutability; whereas the Angels are free Spirits, unconfined to ſuch Carkaſſes, and dwell in celeſtial, and glorious, and everlaſting Manſions. b Whoſe very Foundation, no leſs than the reſt of the Building, is in the duſt; who as they dwell in Duſt and Clay, ſo they had their Foundation or Original from it, and they muſt return to it, Eccleſ. 12. 7. And, as to their Bodies, lye down and ſleep in it, Dan. 12. 2. as in his long home, Eccleſ. 12. 5. and the only continuing City which he hath in this World. c Heb. they cruſh them, i.e. they are or will be cruſhed. The Active Verb uſed imperſonally, as it is chap. 7. 3. and 34. 20. Prov. 6. 30. Luke 12. 20. d i. e. Sooner than a Moth is cruſhed, which is eaſily done by a gentle touch of the Finger. An Hyperbolical Expreſſion. So the Hebrew word, liphne, commonly ſignifying place, doth here note time, as it is uſed, Gen. 27. 7. and 29. 26. and 36. 31. Or, At the face, or appearance of a Moth. No Creature is ſo weak and contemptible, but one time or other it may have the Body of Man in its power, as the Worms, the Moths Couſin-Germans, have in the Grave. But he inſtanceth in a Moth rather than a Worm, becauſe it is the weaker of the two, and becauſe it better agrees with the ſimilitude of an Houſe, in which Moths commonly are more frequent, and powerful, and miſchievous, than Worms. How then canſt thou think, O Job, to contend with thy Maker, that muſt become a Prey to ſuch ſmall and impotent Creatures?

† Heb. beaten in pieces. † Heb. putting the heart. 20 They are † deſtroyed from morning to evening e; they periſh for ever f without any ‖ regarding it g.

e Either, 1. Speedily, between Morning and Evening, like the Graſs; they flouriſh in the Morning, and in the Evening are cut off, Pſal. 90. 5, 6. Or rather, 2. All the day long, as the Phraſe is, 2 Cor. 11. 25. There is not a moment wherein Man is not ſinking and drawing on towards Death and Corruption. f As to human appearance and the courſe of Nature, as many ſuch like paſſages are to be underſtood in this Book; or in Reference to this preſent and worldly Life, which when once loſt is never recovered, Job 16. 22. Pſal. 39. 13. g Heb. without putting the Heart to it, the word Heart being underſtood here, as alſo chap. 23. 6. and 34. 23. Iſa. 41. 20. as may appear by comparing 1 Sam. 9. 20. 2 Sam. 18. 3. Iſa. 41. 22. and 57. 1. where the ſame Phraſe is uſed, and the word Heart expreſſed. The meaning is either, 1. Yet few or no men that ſurvive them lay it to Heart as they ſhould do. Or, 2. They periſh beſide the Expectation of all men, when both themſelves and others thought their Mountain was ſo ſtrong, that it could not be removed. Or rather, 3. This is ſo common a thing for all men, though never ſo high and great, to periſh in this manner, that no man heeds it, but paſſeth it by as a general accident not worthy of obſervation. Oth. No man procuring or furthering it; Heb. without any mans putting the hand to it, i. e. They periſh of themſelves without any violent hand.

* Pſ. 39. 11. & 49. 14. * Ch. 36. 12 21 * Doth not their excellency h which is in them, go away i? they * dye even without wiſdom k.

h Whatſoever is really or by common eſtimation excellent in Men, all their Natural, and Moral, and Civil Accompliſhments, as high Birth, great Riches, Power and Wiſdom, &c. Theſe are ſo far from preſerving men from periſhing, as one would think they ſhould do, that they periſh themſelves, together with thoſe Houſes of Clay in which they are lodged. i Or, go away (i. e. die and periſh as that Phraſe is oft uſed, as Gen. 15. 15. Joſ. 23. 14. Job 10. 21, Pſal. 58. 9. Eccleſ. 12. 5. Matth. 26. 24.) with (as Beth is oft uſed) them: it doth not ſurvive them. k Either, 1 Like Fools. Wiſe men and fools die alike, Eccleſ. 2. 16. Or, 2. They never attain to perfect Wiſdom, to that Wiſdom which Man once had, much leſs to that Wiſdom which is in God, which Job conceiveth he hath; otherwiſe he would not ſo boldly cenſure the Counſels and Works of God as unrighteous or unreaſonable, becauſe his human and narrow Capacity cannot fully underſtand them. Moreover, as folly is oft put for unrighteouſneſs and wickedneſs; ſo is wiſdom for juſtice and goodneſs; which is ſo known, that it is needleſs to prove it; and ſo by wiſdom here may be meant that perfect juſtice and purity, which Job arrogated to himſelf, and which Eliphaz here denies to all men, v. 17, &c.

CHAP. V.

Wrath fooliſh: the wicked miſerable, 1——5. Evil cometh not by chance. It is natural to our condition, 6, 7. This is our motive to prayer and truſt in God, 8. whoſe unſearchable power and wiſdom are againſt the high and crafty for the relief of the poor, 9——16. Their happineſs, whom God correcteth, and God's gracious care of ſuch, 17——27.

CAll now a, if there be any b that will anſwer thee c, and to which of † the Saints d wilt thou ‖ turn e? † Gr. the Angels. ‖ Or, look.

a i. e. Invite, or make Proclamation; as this word is oft uſed, as Deut. 20. 10. Judges 12. 1. Jer. 2. 2. and 3. 12. and 7. 2. Call them all as it were by their names: conſult the whole Catalogue of them all, which thou didſt ever know or hear of. b To wit, of the Saints, as it follows. c i. e. Comply with thee, anſwer thy deſires or expectations: Try if there be any one Saint that will defend or allow thee in theſe bold expoſtulations with God, Or, as it is in the Hebrew, If there be any that doth anſwer thee, i. e. whoſe Opinion or Diſpoſition and Carriage is anſwerable, or like to thine. So anſwering is ſometimes uſed, as Prov. 27. 19. Eccleſ. 10. 19. Thou wilt find many fools or wicked men, as it follows verſe 2. to anſwer or imitate thee in their ſpeeches and carriages, but not one of the Saints like thee; which deſerves thy ſerious conſideration, and gives thee juſt cauſe to queſtion thine integrity. d Either, 1. The Angels, who are ſometimes called Saints, as Job 15. 15. Dan. 8. 13. Zech. 14. 5. becauſe they are eminently and perfectly holy; or rather, 2. Holy men; as appears both from the Word, which moſt commonly is ſo uſed; and from the oppoſition of the fooliſh man to theſe, v. 2. and becauſe the example of men was more proper and effectual for Job's Conviction than of Angels. e Or, look, look about thee, view them all, and ſee if thou canſt find one like thee.

2 For wrath f killeth the fooliſh man g, and ‖ envy h ſlayeth the ſilly one i. ‖ Or, indignation.

f Either 1. The Wrath of God; or rather 2. A Man's own Wrath, fretting, and impatience, and indignation; which kills men, partly naturally, as it preys upon a Man's ſpirit, and waſteth him inwardly, and ſo haſtens his death; of which ſee Prov. 14. 30. and 17. 22. partly morally, as it prompts him to thoſe raſh, and furious, and wicked actions which may procure his death: and partly meritoriouſly, as it provoketh God to cut him off, and to bring upon him thoſe further and ſevere ſtrokes, which he mentions in the following words. g Either, 1. The raſh and inconſiderate man, who doth not ponder things impartially; but like a man mad, rageth againſt God, and torments himſelf and all that hear him. Or, 2. The ungodly Man, who is frequently called a fool in Scripture language, and who is here oppoſed to the Saints, v. 1. h He taxeth Job, who ſpoke with great envy at thoſe that were never born, or were in their Graves, chap. 3. 10, 12, &c. i Properly, the Man, who for want of true Wiſdom, is ſoon deceived with falſe Opinions and Appearances, and preſent Things; which is thy caſe, O Job! The ſenſe of the Verſe may be this; I perceive, O Job! that thou art full of envy at wicked men, who at preſent are, or ſeem to be in an happier condition than thou, and of wrath againſt God, who denies thee that Mercy, and loads thee with Afflictions; and this ſhews thee to be a fooliſh and weak man. For thoſe Men, notwithſtanding their preſent Proſperity, are doomed to great and certain miſery, as it here follows. And ſo this Verſe coheres with the following, as well as the foregoing Verſes.

3 * I have ſeen k the fooliſh l taking root m; but ſuddenly n I curſed o his habitation p. * Pſ. 37. 35.

k I have oft obſerved it in my experience. Having ſeverely rebuked Job for his tranſports of Paſſion, and intemperate Speeches againſt God, he now returns to his former Argument, and proves that ſuch dreadful and deſtructive Judgments of God do not befall the righteous, but the wicked, as he obſerved, chap. 4. 7, 8. Withal he anſwers an Objection concerning the preſent and ſeeming proſperity of the wicked, which he confeſſeth that he himſelf had ſometimes obſerved. l i. e. The wicked man, who is quite deſtitute of true, i. e. of ſpiritual and heavenly wiſdom. m Not only proſperous for the preſent, but, as it ſeemed, firm and ſecure for the future, being ſtrongly fortified with Power and Riches, and Children too, ſo as there was no appearance nor danger of a change. n In a moment, beſides and before mine, and his own, and all other mens expectation. o Either, 1. I judged that he was a curſed Creature, notwithſtanding all his Proſperity, and I foreſaw and foretold it, by the Rules of Scripture, or the Direction of God's Spirit, that he would certainly ſooner or later be ſtript of all his Bleſſings, and have God's Curſe fall heavily upon him. Or rather, 2. I ſaw and perceived by the event which followed his Proſperity, that he was a Man accurſed of God. For he ſpeaks not in theſe words of what his eſtate conſtantly was even in the midſt of his happineſs, though even then he was really accurſed; but of what it was by a ſudden change. p Or, as the Hebrew word ſignifies, his pleaſant or commodious habitation, perſons or things in it, or belonging to it, being comprehended in that word by an uſual Metonymy.

4 * His children q are far from ſafety r, and they are cruſhed in the gate s; neither is there any to deliver them t. * Pſal. 119. 155.

q Whoſe greatneſs and happineſs he deſigned in all his enterpriſes, ſuppoſing that his Family was and would be eſtabliſhed for ever. r i. e. Are expoſed to great dangers and calamities in this life, and can neither preſerve themſelves, nor the great inheritance which their Fathers got and left for them. Thus to be far from peace, Lam. 3. 17. Is to be involved in deſperate troubles. s i. e. In the place of Judicature; to which they are brought for their offences, and where they will find ſevere Judges, and few or no Friends; partly becauſe being wickedly Educated, and truſting to their own greatneſs, they were inſolent and injurious to all their Neighbours: and partly becauſe thoſe many perſons whom their powerful Fathers defrauded or oppreſſed, do ſeek for Juſtice, and the recovery of their Rights, which they eaſily obtain againſt ſuch perſons as plainly declared by their Actions that they neither feared God, nor reverenced Man, and therefore were hated by all ſorts of men. t They can find no Advocates nor Aſſiſtants, who are either able or willing to help them: But like Iſhmael, as their hand was formerly againſt every man, ſo now every Man's hand is againſt them.

5 Whoſe harveſt u the hungry x eateth up, and taketh it even out of the thorns y, and the * robbers z ſwalloweth up a their ſubſtance.

u Which they now juſtly and confidently expect to reap after all their coſt and labour for that end, but are ſadly and ſuddenly diſappointed; Which is a great aggravation of their miſery. x i. e. The Poor, whoſe neceſſities make them greedy and ravenous to eat it all up; and from whom he can never recover it, nor any thing in recompence of it. y i. e. Out of the Fields, notwithſtanding the ſtrong thorn Hedges, wherewith it is incloſed and fortified, and all other dangers or difficulties which may be in their way. They will take it, though they be ſcratched and wounded by the Thorns about it. z So called from their long Hair, which ſuch perſons nouriſhed, either becauſe of their wild and ſavage kind of life, which made them neglect the trimming of their hair and body: Or, that they might look more terribly, and ſo affright all thoſe who ſhould indeavour to oppoſe them: Or, the thirſty, as the word may ſignifie from another root. And ſo it anſwers well to the hungry, in the former branch a, Greedily, and ſo as there is no Hope of Recovering it.

6 Although b || affliction c cometh not forth of the duſt d, neither doth trouble ſpring out of the ground;

b Or, For, or rather, Becauſe. So the following words may contain a reaſon why he ſhould ſeek unto God, as he exhorts him, v. 8. Or, Surely, as that Particle is oft uſed. And ſo it is a note of his proceeding to another Argument. c Or, Iniquity; as this word oft ſignifies, and of this the following Sentence is true. And ſo this firſt branch ſpeaks of ſin, and the next branch of trouble, which is the fruit of ſin: And both ſin and trouble are ſaid to come from the ſame Spring. But this word ſignifies alſo, affliction, or miſery, or trouble, as Pſal. 90. 10. Prov. 12. 21. Which ſeems moſt proper here, both becauſe it is ſo explained by the following words trouble; and again trouble, v. 7. the ſame thing being repeated in ſeveral words, as is uſual in holy Scripture, and becauſe the great thing which troubled Job, and the chief matter of theſe Diſcourſes was Job's Afflictions, not his Sins. d It ſprings not up by chance, as Herbs which grow of their own accord out of the Earth: Or, it comes not from Men or Creatures here below, but it comes from a certain and an higher cauſe, even from God, and that for man's ſins, and therefore thou ſhouldeſt ſeek to him for redreſs, as it follows, v. 8.

7 Yet man is born unto || trouble e, as † the ſparks fly upward f.

e i. e. He is ſo commonly expoſed to many and various troubles, as if he were born to no other end: Affliction is become in ſome ſort natural and proper to man, and it is, together with ſin, tranſmitted from Parents to Children, as their moſt certain and conſtant Inheritance; God having allotted this Portion to Mankind for their ſins. And therefore thou takeſt a wrong courſe in complaining ſo bitterly of that which thou ſhouldeſt patiently bear, as the common lot of Mankind, and thy right method is to ſeek unto God who inflicts it, and who onely can remove it. f i. e. As naturally, and as generally, as the ſparks of fire fly upward, which do ſo univerſally and conſtantly. Heb. and the ſparks, &c. But the Particle and is oft uſed comparatively for as, as Ch. 12. 11. & 14. 12. & 34. 3. Prov. 25. 24. Mark 9. 49.

8 I would g ſeek unto God h, and unto God would I commit my cauſe i.

g If I were in thy condition; And therefore I would adviſe thee to the ſame courſe. h To wit, by Prayer, and Humiliation, and Submiſſion, imploring his Pardon, and Favour, and Help, and not repine at him, and accuſe his Providence, as thou doeſt. i i. e. Commend my afflicted condition to him by fervent Prayer, and reſign my ſelf, and all my concerns to him, and humbly hope for relief from him. Or, propound my matters, i. e. Make known my afflictions and requeſts to him; or, put or diſpoſe my words, i. e. Pray to him, and pour out my complaints before him.

*Ch.9.10. Pſal.72.18. & 40.5.& 145.3. Rom.11.33. †Heb. and there is no ſearch. †Heb. till there be no number.

9 * Which doth great things † k and unſearchable; l marvellous things m † without number.

k Here Eliphaz enters upon a Diſcourſe of the Infinite Perfection and Greatneſs of God's Nature and Works; which he doth partly as an Argument to enforce the Exhortation to ſeek and commit his cauſe to God, v. 8. becauſe God was infinitely able either to puniſh him yet far worſe, if he continued to provoke him, or to raiſe him from the duſt, if he humbly addreſſed himſelf to him: and partly that by a true repreſentation of God's Excellency and Glory, and of that vaſt diſproportion which was between God and Job, he might both convince Job of his great ſin in ſpeaking ſo boldly and irreverently of him, and prevent his relapſe into the ſame miſcarriage. l Either ſuch things as we may not boldly and curiouſly ſearch into, Deut. 29. 29. Rom. 11. 33. Col. 2. 18. Or ſuch as by ſearching we cannot find out, Job 11. 7. ſuch as we cannot thoroughly underſtand either the works themſelves, or God's way and manner of doing them; or God's deſigns or ends in doing them. And therefore, O Job! thou art guilty of great impiety and folly to cenſure the ways and works of God as unreaſonable, Chap. 3. v. 11. 20. becauſe thou doſt not fully underſtand the nature and uſe of them. m Which (though common, as the following works are, and therefore neglected and deſpiſed, yet) are juſt matter of wonder even to the wiſeſt Men.

10 Who giveth rain n upon the earth, and ſendeth waters o upon the † fields p.

n He begineth with this ordinary and obvious work of God, in which he implies that there is ſomething unſearchable and wonderful, as indeed there is in the riſe of it from the Earth, in the ſtrange hanging of that heavy Body in the Air, and in the diſtribution of it as God ſees fit, Amos 4. 7. and how much more in the ſecret Counſels and hidden paths of Divine Providence, which Job took the liberty to cenſure. o Either Fountains and Rivers, which is another great and wonderful work of God: Or rather Rain-water, as the following words imply: the ſame thing being repeated in other words after the manner. p Or, upon all places abroad, i. e. which have no covering to keep out the Rain.

11 * To ſet up on high thoſe that be low q; that thoſe which mourn may be exalted to ſafety r.

*1 Sam.2.7. Pſal.113.7.

q Theſe words contain either 1. A Declaration of God's end in giving Rain, which is to enrich thoſe who were poor, or mourning for the drought, by ſending Rain, and making their Lands fruitful: Or, rather, 2. another example of God's great and wonderful Works. And the Infinitive Verb is here put for the Indicative; He ſetteth up, &c. which is very frequent in the Hebrew, as Pſal. 56. 13. Zech. 3. 4. & 12. 10. He giveth this inſtance to comfort and encourage Job to ſeek to God, becauſe he can raiſe him out of his greateſt depths, and uſeth to raiſe others in the like condition. r Notwithſtanding all the craft and power of their Enemies.

12 * He diſappointeth the devices of the crafty s, ſo that their hands || cannot perform their enterpriſe t.

*Ne.4.15. Pſal.33.10. Iſa.8.10. ||Or, cannot perform any thing.

s Such as are cunning to work evil, and to cover it with fair pretences, as Hypocrites uſe to do, and as Job's Friends charged him with doing; God breaks the hopes and deſigns of ſuch Men, as he hath now blaſted thy expectation, and taken away thy outward happineſs, which was the thing thou didſt deſign in taking up the Profeſſion of Religion. t Or, any thing: or, what is ſolid or ſubſtantial: or, wiſdom, i. e. their wiſe counſel, or crafty deſign. They cannot execute their cunning contrivances.

13 * He taketh the wiſe in their own craftineſs u; and the counſel of the froward x is carried headlong y.

u Wicked Men, who are wiſe to do evil, and wiſe in the opinion of the World, he not only deceiveth in their hopes and counſels, but turns them againſt themſelves; as we ſee in Achitophel, Haman, &c. x Or perverſe, or wreſtlers: ſuch as wind and turn every way, as wreſtlers do, and will leave no means untried to accompliſh their counſels. y i. e. Is tumbled down and broken, and that by their own precipitation and haſt. Their malice cannot have the patience to proceed wiſely and leiſurely againſt God's Church and People, but makes them eager and venturous, and ſo to make more haſte than good ſpeed in their wicked deſigns.

14 * They || meet with darkneſs in the day time z, and grope a in the noon day as in the night.

*Deut.28.29. ch.12.25. Amos 8.9. ||Or, run into.

z i. e. In plain things they run into groſs miſtakes and errors, and commonly chuſe thoſe counſels and courſes which are worſt for themſelves. Darkneſs oft notes miſery, but here ignorance or error, as it is alſo uſed, Ch. 12. 25. & 37. 19. and elſewhere. a Like blind Men to find their way, not knowing what to do.

15 But he ſaveth the poor b from the ſword, from their mouth c, and from the hand of the mighty.

b Or helpleſs; who therefore flee to God for refuge. c Or from the Sword which cometh out of their mouth; i. e. from all their cenſures, ſlanders, threatnings, deceitful inſinuations, falſe ſwearings of witneſſes, unrighteous ſentences of corrupt Judges; whereby their good names, or eſtates, or lives, may be expoſed to the utmoſt hazards. And this is fitly oppoſed to the Sword of the hand, implied in the next branch of the Verſe. Or, from the Sword by their mouths, i. e. by thoſe wicked mens own words againſt the godly, which God wonderfully over-ruleth to the working out of their deliverance.

*Pſal.107.42.

d So this poor man obtaineth what he in ſome meaſure hoped or expected from God, to whom he committed his cauſe; and other poor Men will be encouraged by his example to place their hope in God; e i. e. wicked Men. The abſtract for the concrete, as pride, deceit, injuſtice, are put for proud, deceitful and unrighteous Men, Jer. 13. 9. 2 Pet. 3. 13. f i. e. They are ſilenced and confounded, being convicted of their own wickedneſs and folly, and finding that not only the poor are got out of their Nets and Snares, in which they thought that they had them faſt, but alſo the Oppreſſors themſelves are inſnared in them; and all this by ſudden and unexpected means.

17 * Behold g. happy is the man whom God correcteth h; therefore deſpiſe not thou i the chaſtening of the Almighty k.

*Pro.3.12. Heb.12.5. James 1.12 Rev.3.19.

g For what I am ſaying, though moſt true, will not be believed without ſerious conſideration. h Heb. Bleſſedneſſes (i. e. various and great happineſs, as the plural Number implies) belong to that Man whom God rebukes, to wit, with ſtrokes, Ch. 33. 16, 19. Thoſe afflictions are ſo far from making thee miſerable, as thou complaineſt, that they are, and will be, if thou doſt thy Duty, the means of thy Happineſs: Which though a Paradox to the World, is frequently affirmed in holy Scripture; and the reaſon of it is plain, becauſe they are pledges of God's love, which no man can buy too dear; and though bitter, yet neceſſary Phyſick to purge out that ſin which is deeply fixed in all Mens Natures, and thereby to prevent far greater, even infinite and eternal Miſeries. Without reſpect to which this Propoſition could not be true or tolerable. And therefore it plainly ſhews, that good Men in thoſe ancient times of the Old Teſtament, had the proſpect, and belief, and hope of Everlaſting Bleſſedneſs in Heaven after this life. i i. e. Do not abhor it as a thing pernicious and intolerable, nor refuſe it as a thing uſeleſs and unprofitable, nor ſlight it as a mean and unneceſſary thing; but on the contrary, prize it highly, as a favour and vouchſafement of God: for ſuch negative expreſſions oft imply the contrary, as 1 Theſ. 5. 20. 1 Tim. 4. 12. See Prov. 16. 2. & 17. 21. k Or, of the all-ſufficient God, who is able to ſupport and comfort thee in thy troubles, and to deliver thee out of them, and to add more calamities to them, if thou art obſtinate and incorrigible.

*Deut. 32. 39. 1 Sam. 2. 6. Iſa. 30. 26. Hoſ. 6. 1.

18 * For he maketh ſore, and bindeth up l: he woundeth, and his hands make whole.

l To wit, the Wounds, as good Surgeons uſe to do when they have dreſſed them, in order to their healing. Comp. Pſal. 147. 3. Eze. 34. 4. The Senſe is, Though he hath ſeen it fit to wound thee, yet he will not always grieve thee, but will in due time releaſe thee from all thy Miſeries. Therefore deſpair not.

19 * He ſhall deliver thee m in ſix n troubles: Yea, in ſeven there ſhall no evil touch thee o.

m To wit, if thou ſeekeſt to him by Prayer and Repentance. n i. e. Manifold or repeated; as Six is uſed for many, Prov. 6. 16. o To wit, ſo as to undo or deſtroy thee, as touching is uſed, Joſ. 9. 19. Heb. 11. 28. 1 John 5. 18. See alſo Gen. 26. 11. 29. 2 Sam. 14. 10. Pſal. 105. 15. Zech. 2. 8. Thou ſhalt have a good iſſue out of all thy troubles, though they are both great and many.

20 In famin p he ſhall redeem thee from death q, and in war † from the power of the Sword r.

p Which Job might be thought to fear, as being ſo poor that he needed his Friends Contributions for his relief. q From that terrible kind of death. r Theſe things he utters with more confidence, partly becauſe the rewards or puniſhments of this life were more conſtantly diſtributed to Men in the Old Teſtament according to their good or bad behaviour than now they are: And partly, becauſe it was his particular Opinion, That great Afflictions were the conſtant fruits and certain evidences of a Man's wickedneſs; and conſequently that great Mercies and Deliverances ſhould infallibly follow upon true Repentance and Godlineſs.

21 Thou ſhall be hid s ‖ from the ſcourge of the tongue, t neither ſhalt thou be afraid u of deſtruction when it cometh x.

s i. e. Protected as in ſome ſecret and ſafe place. t i. e. From falſe accuſations and virulent ſlanders and reproaches, either by diverting their Tongues to other perſons or things; Or, by clearing thy integrity. u Thou ſhalt have no cauſe to fear it, becauſe God will ſecure thee in it and from it. x To wit, upon others, near thee, or round about thee.

*Iſa. 11. 9. & 35. 9. & 65. 25. Ezek. 34. 25. Hoſ. 2. 18.

22 At deſtruction and famine thou ſhalt laugh y: * neither ſhalt thou be afraid of the beaſts y of the earth.

y Thou ſhalt not onely be redeemed from famine, verſe 20. and not fear deſtruction, v. 21. but thou ſhalt laugh at them, not with a laughter of ſcorn and contempt, as this word is uſed, Ch. 39. 18. Pſal. 2. 4. & 37. 13. (for God's judgments are to be entertained with reverence and godly fear) but with a laughter of joy and triumph, ariſing from his juſt ſecurity and confidence in God's watchful and gracious Providence which will either keep him from it, or in it, or do him much good by it. y i. e. The wild beaſts which were numerous and miſchievous in thoſe parts. See Deut. 28. 26. 1 Sam. 17. 34. Jer. 7. 33.

* Pſal. 91. 13.

23 * For thou ſhalt be in league with the ſtones of the field z. And the beaſts of the field a ſhall be at peace with thee.

z Thou ſhalt be free from any annoyance by Stones, either in thy walking, or other poſtures, or in thy Plowing, as if they had made an inviolable league with thee. Stones may be, and in theſe ſtony Countries were, hurtful to Men many ways; either by bruiſing or hurting their feet, when they walked barefoot, as the manner then was; or, by giving them occaſion of ſtumbling, or ſlipping, and falling: Or by falling upon a Man from a Rock, or higher ground, as ſometimes it hath happened: Or filling his grounds, ſo as to hinder his plowing, and make his Lands unfruitful. Nay, the Stones ſhall not only ceaſe to be hurtful, but they ſhall be uſeful, and beneficial to thee; they ſhall, as it were, preſent themſelves to thee when thou haſt occaſion either to ſling them at thine Enemies, as then was uſual, Judg. 20. 16. 2 Chron. 26. 14. or to make Fences to thy ground: Or to build an houſe. This is a bold Metaphor, but ſuch are frequent, as in other Authors, ſo alſo in Scripture, as Iſa. 28. 15. Hoſ. 2. 18. a Either 1. the wild Beaſts; and then this is an addition to the former priviledge; they ſhall not hurt thee, v. 22. nay, they ſhall befriend thee, as being at peace with thee, here v. 23. Or, 2. the tame Beaſts, who otherwiſe may be refractory and hurtful to a Man, many having been killed by them.

24 And thou ſhalt know b ‖ that thy tabernacle c ſhall be in peace d, and thou ſhalt viſit thy habitation e, and ſhalt not ‖ ſin f.

‖ Or, erre.

b By certain and conſtant experience. c i. e. Thy habitation, as it follows, including alſo the Inhabitants, Children, or Friends and Servants. d Shall enjoy great ſafety from all their Enemies, and concord among themſelves, and proſperity in all their concerns: all which are comprehended under the ſweet name of Peace. e i. e. Manage and order thy Family, and all thy domeſtick Affairs, and worldly Concerns, with care and diligence. Viſiting is oft uſed for regarding or taking care of, as Gen. 21. Ruth 1. 6. Pſal. 8. 4. & 80. 14. f Either by unrighteouſneſs in thy dealings with thy Family or others; or by neglecting God and his Service in thy Family; or by winking at any ſin in thy Domeſticks which thou canſt hinder. But becauſe he ſpeaks not here of Job's Duty, but of his priviledge, and that in outward and worldly things, it ſeems better rendred by others, and thou ſhalt not err, or miſcarry, or miſs thy way or mark, as this very word is uſed below, Ch. 34. 19. & 14. 16. & Judg. 20. 16. Thou ſhalt not be diſappointed of thy hopes, or blaſted in thy endeavours, but ſhalt ſucceed in them. Or, and thou ſhalt not wander, or be a wanderer, having no houſe in which to put his head, which Job might have ſome ground to fear: but thou ſhalt have an habitation of thy own, which thou ſhalt viſit, and manage as thou didſt before.

25 Thou ſhalt know g alſo that thy ſeed ſhall be ‖ great h, and thine off-ſpring i as the graſs of the earth k.

g Partly by aſſurance from God's Promiſes, and the Impreſſions of his Spirit; and partly by experience in due time. h Thy poſterity, which God will give thee inſtead of thoſe which thou haſt loſt, ſhall be high and honourable, and powerful. Or, ſhall be many. i Which ſhall come out of thy own Loins, as Branches out of a Tree, as the word ſignifies. And this word ſeems added to the former, to reſtrain and explain it, by ſhewing that he did not ſpeak of his ſpiritual Seed, as Abraham's Seed is in part underſtood, but of the fruit of his own body. k Both for its plentiful increaſe, and for its flouriſhing greenneſs.

26 Thou ſhalt come to thy grave in a full age l, like as a ſhock of corn † cometh in m, in his ſeaſon n.

l In a mature and old, but vigorous age, as the word implies. Thou ſhalt not be cut off by an hand of violence before thy time, as thy Sons and other wicked Men have been, but ſhalt die in a good old age, as did Abraham, Gen. 25. 8. and Moſes, Deut. 34. 7. m As an heap or ſtack of corn is brought in, to wit, to the barn: Heb. aſcendeth, or riſeth: which word is very proper and uſual in this caſe: for a ſtack of Corn is ſaid to riſe, when by the addition of new heaps and handfuls it is raiſed to an higher pitch: Or, is cut off, as this ſame word is uſed, Pſal. 102. 25. Cut me not off, &c. Heb. Make me not to aſcend: And thus it is fitly uſed both of the Corn, which, when it is cut up, aſcends, or is lifted up from the Earth, on which it lay, and is advanced into Stacks, and high heaps, either in the Barn, or in the Field; and of Man, who when he dies, his Spirit goeth upward to Heaven, as is implied even there where in the perſon of an Epicure it is queſtioned, Eccleſ. 3. 21. n In Harveſt, when the Corn is ripe.

27 Lo this, we o have ſearched it p, ſo it is; hear it, and know thou it q † for thy good r.

o It is not my ſingle Opinion, but my Brethren concur with me, as thou wilt hear from their own mouths. p This is no raſh or haſty conceit, but what we have learned by deep conſideration and hard ſtudy, long experience, and diligent obſervation, both of God's word, ſo far as he hath been pleaſed to reveal himſelf, and of the courſe and methods of his Providence, and dealing with Men in the World. q For to us thou ſeemeſt by thy words and carriage to be wholly, or in a great part ignorant of theſe things. r Let the advantage which will come unto thee by following this counſel, remove thy prejudice againſt it.

CHAP. VI.

Job's anſwer. He wiſheth his troubles were duly weighed, for then would his complaints appear juſt, 1——7. Prayeth for death; his hope in it, 8——10. He is unable to bear up under his burthen, 11, 12. He vindicateth himſelf againſt his friends, and reproveth them, 13——30.

BUt Job anſwered and ſaid,

2 Oh that my grief a were throughly weighed b, and my calamity ‖ laid in the ballances together c!

a Either 1. my calamity, as it follows, or the cauſe or matter of my grief: The act being put for the object, as is uſual, fear for the thing feared, &c. and the ſame thing being here repeated in differing words. Or 2. My Sorrow: or my wrath, or rage, as thou didſt call it, Chap. 5. 2. So his wiſh is, that his ſorrow or wrath, were laid in one Scale of the Ballances, and his calamity in the other, that ſo it might be known whether his ſorrow or wrath was greater than his miſery, as was pretended. b Were fully underſtood, and duly conſidered. Thy harſh rebukes and cenſures of my impatience, and hypocriſie, and wickedneſs, proceedeth from thy ignorance, or unſenſibleneſs of my inſupportable calamities. I deſire no favour from thee: But O that I had a juſt and equal Judge that would underſtand my Caſe, and conſider whether I have not juſt cauſe for ſuch bitter complaints. Or, at leaſt, whether the greatneſs of my Burden ſhould not procure ſome allowance to my infirmity, if I ſhould ſpeak ſomething indecently and unadviſedly, and protect me from ſuch ſevere cenſures. c Either 1. together with my grief; or, rather, 2. together with any the moſt heavy thing to be put into the other Scale, as with the Sand, &c. as is expreſſed in the next verſe; where alſo the Particle it, being of the ſingular number, ſheweth that there was but one thing to be weighed with the Sand.

3 For now it d would be heavier than the Sand of the Sea e; therefore † my words are ſwallowed up f.

†That is, I want words to expreſs my grief.

d i. e. My grief or Calamity; e which is heavier than dry Sand. f As this Verb is uſed, Prov. 20. 25. Obad. v. 16. My Voice and Spirit faileth me. So far am I from ſpeaking too liberally of it, for which I am now accuſed, that I cannot find, nor utter words ſufficient to expreſs my ſorrow or miſery; but my groanings are ſuch as cannot be uttered; as is ſaid in another caſe, Rom. 8. 26. When I would expreſs it, the words ſtick in my throat, and I am forced, as it were, to ſwallow them up.

4 * For the arrows g of the Almighty h are within me i; the poiſon whereof k drinketh up my ſpirit l: * the terrours of God m do ſet themſelves in array n againſt me.

*Pſal. 38. 2. Ch. 16. 12, 13.
*Pſal. 88. 15, 16.

g So he fitly calls his Afflictions, becauſe, like Arrows, they came upon him ſwiftly and ſuddenly one after another, and that from on high, and they wounded him deeply and deadlily. h So he calls them either generally, becauſe all afflictions come from him, or particularly, becauſe God's hand was in a ſingular manner eminent and viſible in his miſeries, Ch. 1. or yet more eſpecially, becauſe they were immediately ſhot by God into his Spirit, as it follows. i Beſides thoſe Evils which are paſt, Chap. 1. there are other miſeries that are conſtant and fixed in me, the ſharp pains of my Body, and diſmal horrours of my mind. k Implying that theſe Arrows were more keen and pernicious than ordinary, as being dipped in God's wrath, as the barbarous Nations then and ſince uſed to dip their Arrows in Poiſon, that they might not only pierce, but burn up and conſume the vital parts. l i. e. Exhauſteth and conſumeth, either 1. my vital Spirits, together with my Blood, the ſeat of them, and my heart, the ſpring of them, as Poiſon uſeth to do. But I doubt the Hebrew Word ruach, is never uſed in that ſenſe. Or, 2. my Soul, which is commonly the Spirit, my Mind and Conſcience. So he tells them, that beſides the miſeries which they ſaw, he felt others, and far greater, though inviſible torments in his Soul, which if they could ſee, they would have more pity for him. And in this ſenſe this place is, and may very well be otherwiſe rendred, whoſe Poiſon my Spirit drinketh up, i. e. my Soul ſucks in the venom of thoſe Calamities, by apprehending and applying to it ſelf the wrath of God manifeſted and conveyed by them. m Either 1. great Terrors; or 2. God's terrible Judgments; or, rather 3. theſe terrors which God immediately works in my Soul, either from the Senſe of his wrath accompanying my outward troubles; or from the ſad expectation of longer and greater torments. n They are like a numerous and well-ordered Army, under the conduct of an irreſiſtable General, who deſigns and directs them to invade me on every ſide.

5 Doth the wild Aſs bray † when he hath graſs? or loweth the Ox over his fodder o?

o Thou wondreſt that my diſpoſition and carriage is ſo greatly altered from what it was, Ch. 4. 3, 4, 5. but thou mayeſt eaſily learn the reaſon of it from the brute Beaſts, the Aſs and Ox, who when they have convenient and common Food, are quiet and contented; but when they want that, they will reſent it, and complain in their way by braying or lowing: See Jer. 14. 6. And therefore my carriage is agreeable to thoſe common principles of nature, which are both in Men and Beaſts, by which their diſpoſition and deportment is generally ſuitable to their condition. It is no wonder that you complain not, who live in eaſe and proſperity, nor did I, when it was ſo with me; but if you felt what I feel, you would be as full of complaints as I am.

6 Can that which is unſavoury be eaten without ſalt p? or is there any taſt in the white of an egg q?

p Can, or do Men uſe to eat unſavoury Meats with delight, or without complaint? This is either 1. a reflection upon Eliphaz his diſcourſe as unſavoury, which could not give him any conviction or ſatisfaction. But his cenſure of Eliphaz his Speech begins not till v. 14. and then it proceeds: Or, rather 2. A Juſtification of Job's complaints (of which both the foregoing and following Verſes treat) by another Argument. Men do commonly complain of their Meat when it is but unſavoury, how much more when it is ſo bitter as mine is? which is implied here, and expreſſed in the next Verſe; where the Senſe here begun is compleated, and this general Propoſition is accommodated to Job's condition. q Heb. in the white of a yolk, i. e. which encompaſſeth the yolk of an Egg.

7 The things that my ſoul refuſed to touch, are as † my ſorrowful meat r.

r Heb. As the ſickneſſes or ſorrows of my meat, i. e. as my ſorrowful Meat, which I am conſtrained to eat with grief of heart. The Particle as, either 1. notes not the ſimilitude, but the truth of the thing, as it is oft uſed, as hath been formerly noted and proved. So the Senſe is, That ſuch Meat as formerly he ſhould have abhorred to touch, either for the quality of it, or for his tears or ulcerous Matter, which mixed themſelves with it, he was now forced by the neceſſities of Nature, and his own Poverty, to eat: Or, 2. implies that the following words are not to be underſtood properly, but metaphorically. And ſo the Senſe may be this, Thoſe grievous afflictions, which according to the principles and common inclinations of humane nature, I dreaded the very touch and thought of, they are now my daily, though ſorrowful bread; I am forced conſtantly to feed upon them; as other Perſons in great afflictions are ſaid to be fed with bread of tears, Pſal. 80. 5. and to eat aſhes like bread, Pſal. 102. 9. Others make this a cenſure of Eliphaz his words, as ungrateful and loathſom to him. But that Senſe ſeems neither to agree with the words of this verſe, nor with its ſcope and coherence with the former, of which ſee the Notes on v. 6.

8 O that I might have my requeſt s! and that God would grant me † the thing that I long for!

s i. e. The thing which I have ſo paſſionately deſired; and notwithſtanding all your vain words, and weak arguments, do ſtill juſtly continue to deſire, to wit, death, as is expreſſed v. 9. and more largely Ch. 3.

9 Even that it would pleaſe God to deſtroy me t; that he would let looſe his hand u, and cut me off.

t To end my Days and Calamities together. u Which is now as it were bound up, or reſtrained from giving me that deadly blow which I deſire. O that he would reſtrain himſelf and his hand no longer, but let it fall upon me with all its might, ſo as to cut me off, as it follows.

10 Then ſhould I yet have comfort x, yea, I would harden my ſelf in ſorrow y: let him not ſpare z, for I have not concealed the words of the holy One a.

x The thoughts of my approaching death would comfort me in all my ſorrows. This would ſolace me more than life, with all that worldly ſafety, and glory, and happineſs which thou haſt adviſed me to ſeek unto God for. y i. e. I would bear up my ſelf with more courage and patience under all my torments, with the hopes of my death, and that bleſſedneſs into which I know I ſhall after death be admitted, as he more fully ſpeaks, Ch. 19. 26, 27. whereas now I pine away in lingring, and hopeleſs miſeries. Or, I would burn, (i. e. I am content to burn) in ſorrow. Or, I would pray (as this word ſignifies in Hebrew Writers; and praying may be here put for praiſing or worſhipping of God, as it is frequently uſed in Scripture) in, or for my ſorrow or pain; Then I would worſhip God, and ſay, Bleſſed be the Lord's Name for theſe afflictions; as I did for the former, Ch. 1. 20, 21. z But let him uſe all ſeverity againſt me, ſo far as to cut me off, and not ſuffer me to live any longer; which will ſeem to me a cruel kind of patience towards me. a i. e. Of God, who is frequently called the Holy One in Scripture, as Iſa. 40. 25. & 57. 15. Hab. 3. 3. and is ſo in a moſt eminent and peculiar manner. The Senſe is, Therefore I do not fear death, but deſire it; and that not only to be freed from my preſent troubles, but alſo and eſpecially to put me into the poſſeſſion of the happineſs of the next life; of which I am aſſured, becauſe I have in good meaſure performed the conditions of that Covenant upon which he hath promiſed it; for, as for the Words of God, i. e. That Light of Sacred Truths and Precepts which he hath been pleaſed to impart to me, I have not concealed them, neither from my ſelf, by ſhutting mine eyes againſt them, or ſuffering my prejudices, or paſſions, or worldly Intereſts to blind my Mind, leſt I ſhould ſee them as you think I have done; nor from others; but as I my ſelf have ſtedfaſtly believed them, and not wilfully and wickedly departed from them, ſo I have endeavoured to teach and commend them to others, and have not been aſhamed, nor afraid, boldly to profeſs and preach the true Religion in the midſt of Heathens who are round about me. And therefore I know that if God doth cut me off, it will be in Mercy, and I ſhall be a gainer by it. Some tranſlate and diſtinguiſh the Verſe thus; Yet this is my comfort (though, or when I ſcorch with pain, and He, i. e. God doth not ſpare me, but afflicts me moſt ſeverely) that I have not concealed the words of God, but have profeſſed and practiſed them.

11 What is my ſtrength that I ſhould hope b? and what is mine end c, that I ſhould prolong my † life d?

b My Strength is ſo ſmall and ſpent, that although I may linger a while in my torments, yet I cannot live long, and therefore it is vain and abſurd for me to hope for ſuch a reſtitution of my ſtrength and proſperity as thou haſt promiſed to me, Chap. 5. 22, &c. And therefore I juſtly pray that God would take away my life. c Either 1. What is the end or period of my Miſeries? When may I expect it? I ſee no end of them; I know not how long I may pine and linger in them. Therefore, Lord take me ſpeedily away. Or, 2. What is the end of my life? Or, what is death to me? It is not terrible, but comfortable, as he ſaid v. 10. I need not thoſe vain conſolations which thou giveſt me of being kept from Death, v. 20. or having Life continued and Health reſtored. Death is not the matter of my fear, but of my deſire. d To wit, by my ſeeking to God for it, as thou adviſeſt me, Ch. 5. 8. Why ſhould I deſire or endeavour the prolonging of my life. Or, that I ſhould lengthen out my deſire, to wit, of life, and thoſe comforts of life which thou haſt propounded to me. I deſire not to live longer, though in the greateſt ſplendour and proſperity, but to be diſſolved, and to be with my God and Redeemer, Ch. 19. 25. The Hebrew word nepheſh, here rendred ſoul or life, oft ſignifies deſire, as Gen. 23. 8. Deut. 23. 24. Prov. 23. 2. Eccleſ. 6. 9.

e I am not made of ſtone or braſs, but of fleſh and blood, as others are, and therefore I am utterly unable to endure theſe miſeries longer, and can neither hope for, nor deſire any continuance of my life, or reſtauration of my former happineſs, but only wiſh for that death, which is the common refuge of all miſerable perſons, as I ſaid, Ch. 3. 17, 18.

13 Is not my help in me f, and is wiſdom driven quite from me g?

f Though I have no ſtrength in my Body, or outward Man, yet I have ſome help and ſupport within me, or in my inward Man, even the Conſcience of my own Innocency and Piety, notwithſtanding all your bitter accuſations and cenſures, as if I had no Integrity, Ch. 4. 6. g If I have no ſtrength in my body, have I therefore no wiſdom or judgment left in my Soul? Am I therefore unable to judge of the vanity of thy diſcourſe, and of the truth of my own caſe? Have I not common ſenſe and diſcretion? do not I know my own condition, and the nature and degree of my ſufferings better than thou doeſt. Am not I a better Judge whether I have integrity or no, than thou art? But this verſe is rendred otherwiſe, and that very agreeably to the Hebrew Words, What if I have no help in me, (i. e. If I cannot help my ſelf, if my outward condition be helpleſs and hopeleſs, as I confeſs it is) is wiſdom driven quite from me? Have I therefore loſt my underſtanding and common reaſon? Cannot I judge whether it is more deſirable for me to live or to die, whether I am an Hypocrite or no, whether your words have truth and weight in them or no; whether you take the right method in dealing with me, whether you deal mercifully and ſincerely with me, or no. Yet again (becauſe the conſtruction and ſenſe of theſe words is judged very difficult) this verſe may be joyned with the following, and rendred thus, What if there be no help in me (or, if I be not able to bear my miſeries) and if counſel be driven from me, ſo that I know not what to do, or how to help or eaſe my ſelf? Or, and ſubſiſtence, or power of ſubſiſting be driven, or taken away from me, ſo that I can neither help my ſelf out of my troubles, nor ſubſiſt under them, yet to the afflicted pity ſhould be ſhewed, &c.

14 † To him that is afflicted h pity ſhould be ſhewed from his friend i, but he forſaketh the fear of the Almighty k.

h Heb. To him that is melted or diſſolved with afflictions, or in the Furnace of Afflictions; that is, in extreme miſeries; for ſuch perſons are ſaid to be melted, as Pſal. 22. 14. & 107. 26. & 119. 28. Nah. 2. 10. i His friend, ſuch as thou, O Eliphaz pretendeſt to be to me, ſhould ſhew kindneſs, benignity, and compaſſion, in his Judgment of him, and carriage towards him, and not paſs ſuch unmerciful and heavy cenſures upon him, nor load him with reproaches. k But thou haſt no love or pity for thy neighbour and friend; which is a plain evidence that thou art guilty of that which thou didſt charge me with, even of the want of the Fear of GOD; for, didſt thou truly Fear GOD, thou couldeſt not, and durſt not be ſo unmerciful to thy Brother, both becauſe God hath ſeverely forbidden and condemned that Diſpoſition and Carriage, and becauſe God is able to puniſh thee for it, and meet unto thee the ſame hard meaſure which thou meeteſt to me. But this Verſe is, and may be otherwiſe rendred, Should a reproach (for ſo the Hebrew cheſed oft ſignifies) be laid upon him that is afflicted by his Friend, even that he forſaketh the fear of the Almighty? Should my Friend have faſtened ſuch a reproach upon me, than which none is worſe, that I am an impious Man, and deſtitute of the fear of God, Chap. 4. 6, 7, 8. This he mentions, as that which was moſt grievous and intolerable to him.

15 My brethren l have dealt deceitfully m as a brook, and as the ſtream of brooks n they paſs away:

l i. e. My Kinſmen or three Friends; for though Eliphaz only had ſpoken, the other two ſhewed their approbation of his Diſcourſe, or, at leaſt, of that part of it which contained his Cenſure of Job's Perſon and State. m Under a pretence of Friendſhip and Kindneſs, dealing unrighteouſly and unmercifully with me, and adding to theſe Afflictions which they ſaid they came to remove. n Which quickly vaniſh, and deceive the hopes of the thirſty Traveller.

16 Which are blackiſh by reaſon of the ice o, and wherein the ſnow is hid p.

o Which in Winter, when the Traveller neither needs nor deſires it, are full of Water then congealed by the Froſt. p Either 1. Under which the Water made of Snow, which formerly fell, and afterward was diſſolved, lies hid. So he implies that he ſpeaks not of thoſe Brooks which are fed by a conſtant Spring, but of them which are filled by accidental and extraordinary falls of Water or Snow melted, which run into them. Or 2. Wherein there is abundance of Snow mixed with or covered by the Ice: Or, In which the Snow covers it ſelf, i. e. Where is Snow upon Snow. Which gives the Traveller hopes, that when he comes that way in Summer, he ſhall find good ſtore of Water here for his Refreſhment.

17 * What time they wax warm q, † they vaniſh: † when it is hot, r they are † conſumed out of their place s.

q When the Weather grows milder, and the Froſt and Snow is diſſolved. r In the hot Seaſon of the year, when Waters are moſt refreſhing and neceſſary. s In which the Traveller expected to find them to his comfort: But they are gone he knows not whither.

18 The paths of their way are turned aſide; t they go to nothing and periſh.

t i. e. The courſe of thoſe Waters is changed; they are gone out of their Channel, flowing hither and thither, till they be quite conſumed; as it here follows.

19 The troops u of Tema x looked, the companies y of Sheba waited for them.

u As this word is uſed, Gen. 37. 25. Iſa. 21. 13. Heb. The wayes, put for the travellers in the wayes, by an uſual Metonymy. And ſo it muſt needs be meant here, and in the next clauſe, becauſe the following Verſe, they were confounded, &c. plainly ſheweth, that he here ſpeaks of Perſons, not of ſenſleſs things. x This place and Sheba were both parts of the hot and dry Country of Arabia, in which Waters were very ſcarce, and therefore precious and deſirable, eſpecially to Travellers, who by their Motion, and the heat to which they were expoſed, were more hot and thirſty than other Men. y As before the troops. And thus he ſpeaks, becauſe Men did not there travel ſingly, as here we do, but in Troops and Companies, for their greater ſecurity againſt wild Beaſts and Robbers, of which they had great ſtore.

20 They z were confounded becauſe they had hoped a; they came thither, and were aſhamed b.

z i. e. The Troops and Companies. a They comforted themſelves with the Expectation of Water there to quench their thirſt. b As having deceived themſelves and others with vain and falſe hopes.

‖ Or, for now ye are like to them.

21 ‖ For c now ye are † nothing d; ye ſee my caſting down, and are afraid e.

c He gives the reaſon why he charged them with Deceitfulneſs, and compared them to theſe deceitful Brooks. d Or, as nothing, the note of ſimilitude being oft underſtood, Heb. as not. i. e. you are to me as if you had not been, or as if you had never come to me; for I have no benefit nor comfort from you and your Diſcourſe, but only an increaſe of my Miſery. e When you come near to me and perceive my great and manifold Calamities, you ſtand as it were at a diſtance; you are ſhy of me, and afraid for your ſelves, either leſt my Sores or Breath ſhould infect you; or leſt ſome further Plagues ſhould come upon me, wherein your ſelves for my ſake, or becauſe you are in my company, ſhould be involved: or, leſt I ſhould be burdenſom to you, and need and call for your charitable Contribution to ſupport my ſelf, and the ſmall remainders of my poor Family, or for your helping hand to aſſiſt and ſave me from mine Enemies, who may poſſibly fall upon me in this place, as the Chaldæans and Sabæans did upon my Servants and Cattle elſewhere; which is implied in the next Verſes. So far are you from being true Friends and Comforts to me, as you would ſeem to be.

22 Did I ſay f, Bring unto me g? or, give a reward for me h of your ſubſtance?

f Or, Is it becauſe I ſaid, Is this, or what elſe is the reaſon why you are afraid of me, or alienated from me. g Give me ſomething for my Support or Relief. Did either my former Covetouſneſs or my preſent Neceſſity make me troubleſome or chargeable to you? h Either to the Judge before whom I am brought and accuſed, that he may give a favourable Sentence in my behalf: Or to the Enemy who hath taken me Captive. Or give a gift for me, i. e. for my uſe or need. Did I ſend for you to come and viſit me for this end! Nay, Did you not come of your own accord? Why then are you thus unmerciful to me! Methinks you might at leaſt have given me good and comfortable words, which is the eaſieſt and cheapeſt part of a Friends work, when I deſire and expected nothing elſe from you.

23 Or deliver me i from the enemies hand! or redeem me k from the hand of the mighty?

i By power and the force of your Arms, as Abraham delivered Lot. k by Price, or Ranſom.

24 Teach me l and I will hold my tongue m; and cauſe me to underſtand wherein I have erred n.

l Inſtead of cenſuring and reproaching, inſtruct and convince me by ſolid Arguments. m I will patiently hear and gladly receive your counſels. Or I will be ſilent, I will neither contradict you, nor complain of my own Griefs. Compare Job 40. 4, 5. Prov. 30. 32. n i. e. My Miſtakes and Miſcarriages.

25 How forcible are right words o? but what doth your arguing reprove p?

o i. e. The words of Truth or ſolid Arguments have a marvellous power to convince and perſwade a Man; and if yours were ſuch I ſhould readily yield to them. p Or, your arguing argue. There is no truth in your Aſſertions, nor weight in your Arguments, and therefore are they of no account or power with me.

26 Do ye imagin to reprove words q, and to reprove the ſpeeches of one that is deſperate r, which are as wind s?

q i. e. Do you think that all your Arguments are ſolid and unanſwerable, and all my Anſwers are but idle and empty words? Or, do you think it is ſufficient to cavil and quarrel with ſome of my words and expreſſions, without conſidering the Merits of the cauſe, and the Truth of my Condition, or giving an allowance for Humane Infirmity, or for my extream Miſery, which may eaſily force from me ſome indecent Expreſſions? r Of a poor miſerable, hopeleſs and helpleſs Man; for the words of ſuch Perſons are commonly neglected and deſpiſed, although there be truth and great weight in them. See Eccleſ. 9. 16. And ſuch are generally thought to ſpeak from deep Paſſions and Prejudices more than from Reaſon and Judgment. s i. e. Which you eſteem to be like the Wind, vain and light, without ſolid ſubſtance, making a great noiſe with little ſenſe, and to little purpoſe. But this laſt branch of the Verſe may be, and by many is rendred otherwiſe: And, do ye imagine (which is to be repeated out of the former clauſe, as is very uſual in Scripture) the words of one that is deſperate to be but wind? i. e. empty and vain. Do you take me for a deſperate and diſtracted Man, that knows not, or cares not what he ſaith, but only ſpeaks what comes firſt into his Mind and Mouth? The Wind is oft uſed to expreſs vain words, as Chap. 15. 2. Jer. 5. 13. and vain things, Job 7. 7. Prov. 11. 29. Some render the whole Verſe thus, Do you in your arguings think, or ought you to think the diſcourſes of a dejected, or deſponding, or ſorely afflicted Man (ſuch as I am) to be but words and wind? i. e. vain and empty, as indeed the Diſcourſes of ſuch Perſons uſe to be eſteemed by ſuch as are in an higher and more proſperous condition. But you ſhould judge more impartially, and more mercifully. Poſſibly the Verſe may be rendred thus, Do you think to reprove the ſpeeches of a deſperate, or dejected, or miſerable Man (ſuch as I am, and you uſe me accordingly) with (the Prepoſition being very frequently omitted and underſtood in the Hebrew Tongue) words and with (for the Hebrew prefix, Lamed, oft ſignifies with, as hath been formerly proved) wind. You think any words or Arguments will be ſtrong enough againſt one in my Circumſtances. So it agrees with the foregoing Verſe.

27 Yea †, ye overwhelm t the fatherleſs u, and ye dig a pit for your friend x.

t Your words are not only vain and uſeleſs and uncomfortable to me, but alſo grievous and pernicious. u Heb. You ruſh or throw your ſelves upon him. For words in Hiphil are oft put reciprocally, as Hebricians know. You fall upon him with all your might, and ſay all that you can deviſe to charge and grieve him. A Metaphor from wild Beaſts that fall upon their Prey to hold it faſt and devour it. You load him with Cenſures and Calumnies. u Or the deſolate, i. e. me who am deprived of all my dear Children, and of all my Eſtate, forſaken by my Friends, and by my heavenly Father; which ſhould have procured me your Pity rather than your Cenſure. x Or, you feed or feaſt (for ſo this Hebrew word is oft uſed, as 2 Sam. 3. 35. 2 Kings 6. 23. Job 40. 15.) upon your friend, i. e. You inſult and triumph over me, whom ſometimes you owned for your Friend.

28 Now therefore be content, look upon me, y for it is † evident unto you, z if I lie.

y Be pleaſed either 1. To look upon my Countenance, if it betrays any Fear or Guilt, as if I ſpoke contrary to my own Conſcience. Or rather 2. To conſider me and my cauſe further and better than you have done, that you may give a more true and righteous judgment concerning it. z You will plainly diſcover it. A little further conſideration and diſcourſe will make it manifeſt, and I ſhall readily acknowledge it.

29 * Return, a I pray you, let it not be iniquity b; yea, return again, my righteouſneſs is ‖ in it c.

‖ That is, in this matter

a Turn from your former courſe of perverſe Judgment, lay aſide Paſſion and Prejudice againſt me, let me beg your ſecond thoughts, and a ſerious review of my caſe. b To wit, in your Thoughts or Debates; I beg not your Favour, but your Juſtice; judge according to right, and do not conclude me to be wicked, becauſe you ſee me to be miſerable, as you have falſly and unjuſtly done. Or, there ſhall be no iniquity, to wit, in my words which I have ſpoken, and which I am further about to ſpeak: Which you will find upon the review. c i. e. In this cauſe or matter between you and me; the Relative without the Antecedent, which is frequent in the Hebrew Language. You will find the right to be on my ſide.

30 Is there iniquity in my tongue d? cannot † my taſt e diſcern perverſe things f?

d Conſider again, and more throughly examine, if there be any Untruth or Iniquity in what I have already ſaid, or ſhall further ſpeak to you. e i. e. My Judgment which diſcerns and judgeth of Words and Actions, as the Taſt or Palate doth of Meats. f i. e. Falſe Opinions or ſinful Expreſſions. I am not ſo bereft of common Underſtanding, as not to be able to diſtinguiſh between good and evil. And therefore if I have uttered, or ſhould utter any perverſe words, I ſhould apprehend them to be ſo as well as you do.

2 As a Servant † earneſtly deſireth the ſhadow c, and as an Hireling looketh for the reward of his work d:

c i. e. The Sun-ſet, or the Night, the time allotted for his reſt and repoſe, Pſal. 104. 23. And why may not I alſo deſire the time of my reſt? d Heb. his work; which is oft put for the reward of it, as Lev. 19. 13. Iſa. 40. 10. & 49. 4. Or, the end of his work.

3 So e am I made to poſſeſs f months g of vanity h, and weariſom nights i are appointed to me.

e This ſo reſpects not ſo much the deſire and expectation of an hired Servant, which is expreſſed v. 2. as the ground and reaſon of it, which is plainly implied there, to wit, his hard Toil and Service, which makes him thirſt after reſt. f God, by his ſoveraign Power and Providence, hath given me this as my Lot and Inheritance. g So he calls them rather than days, to note either the irkſomneſs and tedioufneſs of his Affliction, whereby every day ſeemed a month to him, or their length and continuance, which, as ſome infer from hence, had now been upon him ſome months. h Empty and unſatisfying, or falſe and deceitful, not giving me that eaſe and reſt which they promiſed me, and I expected. i He mentions nights, becauſe that is the ſaddeſt time for ſick and miſerable Perſons; the darkneſs and ſolitude of the night being of themſelves uncomfortable, and giving them more opportunity for ſolemn and ſorrowful Thoughts and Reflections upon their own Miſeries.

* Deut. 28. 67. Chap. 17. 12. † Heb. the evening be meaſured.

So that Phraſe is uſed, Gen. 5. 24. & 42. 13. & 44. 20. Pſal. 103. 16. Jer. 31. 15. Or, 2. When thine Eyes ſhall be upon me, (i. e. when thou ſhalt look for me to do me good, thou wilt find that) I am not, that I am dead and gone, and uncapable of that Bounty and Goodneſs which thou giveſt to Men in this World. 11 Therefore h I will not refrain my mouth, I will ſpeak in the anguiſh of my ſpirit; I will complain in the bitterneſs of my ſoul i.

h Since my Life is by the common Condition of Mankind ſo vain and ſhort, and when once loſt, without all hopes of recovery, and withal extreamly miſerable, I will plead with God for pity and relief before I die; knowing that I muſt now ſpeak, or elſe for ever after hold my peace, as to requeſts of this nature. i I will not ſmother my bitter Anguiſh within my own Breaſt, which will make it intolerable, but I will give it vent, and eaſe my ſelf by pouring forth Complaints, and expoſtulating with my God, who, as I hope, will hear and help me one way or other.

12 Am I a Sea, or a Whale k, that thou ſetteſt a watch over me l?

k Am I ſo great, and powerful, and dangerous a Creature, that thou neededſt to uſe extraordinary Power and Violence to rule and ſubdue me? Am I as fierce and unruly as the Sea, which, if thou didſt not ſet a Watch over it, and Bounds to it, would overwhelm the Earth, and deſtroy Mankind upon it? Or, am I a vaſt and ungovernable Sea-monſter, which, if thou didſt not reſtrain it by thy powerful Providence, would overturn Ships, and deſtroy Men in it, and devour all the leſſer Fiſhes? Have I behaved my ſelf towards thee, or towards Men, with ſuch Rage and Violence, as to need ſuch Chains to be put upon me? Or, is my Strength ſo great as that of the Sea, which can endure ſo many and long Storms one after another, and yet can ſubſiſt under them, and after them? Or, of a Whale, that can laugh at Darts and Spears? as is ſaid Chap. 41. 29. No Lord, thou knoweſt that I am but a poor weak Creature, which thou canſt cruſh with the leaſt touch of thy Finger, without theſe violent and unſupportable Pains and Miſeries; and that I have not been ſo fierce and boiſterous in my carriage, as to need or deſerve theſe extraordinary Calamities. l That thou ſhouldeſt guard and reſtrain me with ſuch heavy and unexampled Miſeries, leſt I ſhould break into Rebellion againſt thee, or into Cruelty towards Men.

* Chap. 9. 27, 28.

13 * When I ſay, my Bed ſhall comfort me, my Couch ſhall eaſe my complaint m:

m By giving me ſweet and quiet Sleep, which may take off the ſenſe of my Torments for that while.

14 Then thou ſcareſt me with dreams n, and terrifieſt me through viſions o.

n With ſad and dreadful Dreams ariſing either from that Melancholy Humour which is now ſo fixed in me, and predominant over me, or from the Devil's Malice, who by thy Permiſſion diſturbs me in this manner; ſo that I am afraid to go to ſleep, and my Remedy proves as bad as my Diſeaſe. o The ſame thing with Dreams; for there were not only Day-viſions, which were offered to Mens ſight, when they were awake; but alſo Night-viſions, which were preſented to Mens Fancy in their Sleep and Dreams. See Gen. 28. 12. & 41. 1, 2. Dan. 2. 1, 31. & 4, 5, 10.

16 * I loath it, s I would not live alway t: * let me alone, u for my days are vanity x.

s To wit, my Life laſt mentioned. t In this World, if I might, no not in Proſperity; for even ſuch a Life is but Vanity, much leſs in this extremity of Miſery. Or, Let me not live for ever, lingring in this miſerable manner, as if thou wouldeſt not ſuffer me to die, but hadſt a deſign to perpetuate my Torments. Or, let me not live out mine age, or the full time of my Life, which by the courſe of Nature, I might do; for ſo the Hebrew word Olam is oft uſed; but cut me off, and that ſpeedily. u i.e. Withdraw thy hand from me, either 1. thy ſupporting hand which preſerves my Life, and ſuffer me to die: Or rather 2. thy correcting hand, as this ſame Phraſe is uſed, v. 19. x Either 1. my Life is in it ſelf, and in its beſt Eſtate a moſt vain, unſatisfying, uncertain thing; do not add this evil to it to make it miſerable. Or, 2. My Life is a vain, decaying, and periſhing thing, it will of it ſelf quickly vaniſh and depart, and doth not need to be forced from me by ſuch exquiſite Torments.

* Pſal. 8. 4. & 144. 3. Heb. 2. 6.

17 * What is man that thou ſhouldeſt magnifie him y? and that thou ſhouldeſt ſet thine heart upon him z?

y What is there in that poor, mean, contemptible Creature called Man, miſerable man, as this word ſignifies, which can induce or incline thee to take any notice of him, to ſhew him ſuch reſpect, or to make ſuch account of him? Man is not worthy of thy Favour, and he is below thy Anger. It is too great a condeſcention to thee, and too great an honour for man that thou wiltſt contend with him, and draw forth all thy forces againſt him, as if he were a fit match for thee; whereas men uſe to neglect and ſlight mean Adverſaries, and will not do them the honour to fight with them. Compare 1 Sam. 24. 14. Therefore do not, O Lord, thus diſhonour thy ſelf, nor magnifie me. I acknowledge that even thy Corrections are Mercies and Honours, but, Lord, let me be no more ſo honoured. z i. e. Have any regard to him, ſo far as to afflict him, which though it be grievous in it ſelf, eſpecially when it is aggravated as mine is, yet unto thy people it is a great mercy and bleſſing, as being highly neceſſary and uſeful to humble them, and purge them from ſin, and prepare them for glory: as on the contrary, thoſe wicked men whom thou doeſt deſpiſe and hate, and deſign to deſtroy, thou doeſt forbear to puniſh or afflict them.

18 And that thou ſhouldeſt viſit him a every morning b, and try him c every moment?

a To wit, puniſh or chaſten him, as the Word is oft uſed, as viſiting is oft uſed, as Exod. 20. 5. and 32. 34. and 34. 7. b i. e. Every day. But he mentions the morning, either becauſe that is the beginning of the day, and ſo is put ſynecdochically for the whole day, as the evening, v. 4. is put for the whole night: Or he ſpeaks of God after the manner of men, who reſt and ſleep in the night, but in the morning riſe and go about their buſineſs, and viſit or inſpect thoſe perſons and things which they have a reſpect for, or care of. c i. e. Afflict him, which is oft called trying, becauſe it doth indeed try a man's faith and patience, and perſeverance. But this and the former Verſe may poſſibly be otherwiſe underſtood, not of Afflictions, but of Mercies. Having declared his loathing of life, and his paſſionate deſire of death, and urged it with this conſideration, that the days of his life were meer vanity; he now purſues it with this expoſtulation. What is man, that vain, fooliſh Creature, that thou ſhouldſt magnifie or regard, or viſit him, (to wit, with thy Mercy and Bleſſings, of which thoſe words are commoly uſed, i. e. that thou ſhouldſt ſo far honour and regard him, as by thy viſitation to preſerve his Spirit, or hold his Soul in life) and try him, which God doth not only by Afflictions, but alſo by Proſperity and outward Bleſſings, which commonly detect a man's Hypocriſie, and diſcover that Corruption which before lay hid in his Heart? Therefore, O Lord, do not thus magnifie, and viſit me with thy Mercy, but take away my life.

19 How long wilt thou not depart from me d, nor let me alone till I ſwallow down my ſpittle e?

d How long will it be e're thou withdraw thy afflicting hand from me? e i.e. For a little time; or that I may have a breathing time: A Proverbial Expreſſion, like that Spaniſh Proverb, I have not time or liberty to ſpit out my ſpittle. Or this expreſſion may have reſpect to Job's diſtempered and calamitous condition wherewith he was ſo overwhelmed, that he either had not ſtrength, or could not take heed to ſpit out his ſpittle as he ſhould have done, but ſwallowed it down, as ſick and melancholy Perſons often do.

20 I have ſinned f, what ſhall I do unto thee g, O f Although I am innocent and free from thoſe crying ſins, for which my Friends ſuppoſe thou haſt ſent this uncommon Judgment upon me, yet if thou beeſt ſtrict to mark what is amiſs, I freely confeſs that I am a ſinner, and therefore obnoxious to thy Juſtice. and I humbly beg thy pardon for it; as it follows, verſe 21. And therefore accept of this Confeſſion. g To ſatisfie thy Juſtice, or regain thy Favour. I can do nothing to purchaſe or deſerve it, and therefore implore thy Mercy to pardon my ſins. h O thou who, as thou waſt the Creator of Man, delighteſt to be, and to be called the Preſerver and Saviour of Men; and that waiteſt to be kind and gracious to Men from day to day, as occaſion requires; do not deal with me in a way contrary to thy own Nature and Name, and to the manner of thy dealing with all the reſt of Mankind. Oth. O thou Obſerver of Men; thou who doſt exactly know and diligently obſerve all mens inward motions, and outward actions; and therefore if thou ſhalt be ſevere to mark mine iniquities, as thou ſeemeſt to be, I have not what to ſay or do unto thee. Compare Job 9. 3, 15, 29. and 14. 4. Into which thou wilſt ſhoot all the Arrows of thy Indignation. i i. e. I am weary of my ſelf, and of my life, being no way able to reſiſt or endure the aſſaults of ſo potent an Adverſary.
*Ch.16.12 thou preſerver of men h? why * haſt thou ſet me as Lam.3.12. ſelf i?

21 And why doſt thou not pardon my tranſgreſſion, and take away mine iniquity k? for now ſhall I ſleep in the duſt l; and thou ſhalt ſeek me in the morning, but I ſhall not be m.

k Seeing thou art ſo gracious to others, ſo ready to preſerve and pardon them, why may not I hope for the ſame favour from thee? l If thou doeſt not ſpeedily help me, it will be too late, I ſhall be dead, and ſo uncapable of thoſe Bleſſings which thou uſeſt to give to men in the land of the living. m i. e. When thou ſhalt diligently ſeek for me, that thou mayeſt ſhew favour to me, thou wilt find that I am dead and gone, and ſo wilt loſe thy opportunity: Help therefore ſpeedily.

But becauſe thou didſt regard iniquity in thy heart, therefore God would not hear, and did not anſwer thy prayers, but anſwered thee with a Curſe inſtead of a Bleſſing, as he uſeth to deal with Hypocrites.

6 If thou wert pure and upright h, ſurely now he would awake for thee i, and make the habitation k of thy righteouſneſs l proſperous.

h If thou wert in truth what thou pretendeſt, and haſt been thought by others to be, pure and upright, i. e. of a ſincere heart, and blameleſs life towards God and Men. But God's ſevere dealing with thee is an evident token, that notwithſtanding all thy fair ſhews, thou art but an Hypocrite and ſecret Sinner. 14 † Whoſe hope ſhall be cut off c, and whoſe truſt ſhall be † a ſpiders web d.

c i. e. Whoſe Wealth and outward Glory, which is the matter of his hope, and truſt, ſhall be cut off, i. e. ſuddenly and violently taken away from him. Whoſe hope ſhall be irkſome or tedious to him, by the ſucceſſion of earneſt expectation and great diſappointment. d Which though it be formed with great Art and Induſtry, and may do much miſchief to others, yet is moſt ſlender and feeble, and eaſily ſwept down, or pulled in pieces, and unable to defend the Spider that made it. The application is obvious.

15 * He e ſhall lean upon his houſe f, but it ſhall not ſtand g: he ſhall hold it faſt h, but it ſhall not endure.

e Either the Spider: Or rather the wicked man ſignified by it. f i. e. He ſhall truſt to the multitude and ſtrength of his Children and Servants, and to his Wealth, all which come under the name of a man's houſe in Scripture uſe. g i. e. Not be able to uphold it ſelf, nor him that truſted to it. h Or, he ſhall take faſt hold of it, not to uphold it, but to ſtrengthen and uphold himſelf by it, as it is in the former branch.

16 * He i is green k before the ſun l, and his branch m ſhooteth forth in his garden n.

i Either, 1. The perfect man here underſtood out of v. 20. where it is expreſſed: Or rather, 2. The Hypocrite, of whom he hath hitherto treated, to whom this and the following verſes very well agree; Whom he before compared to a Ruſh, and then to a Spider's Web, and now to a Tree, which is of a more ſolid Subſtance, and more durable; as if he ſaid, as ſome wicked men are quickly cut off in the very beginnings of their Proſperity; ſo there are others who ſeem to be more firmly grounded, and yet they alſo at laſt come to ruin. k i. e. Flouriſheth in the World. l Either, 1. Publickly and in the view of all men, who obſerve it with admiration, and applauſe, and envy. Compare 2 Sam. 12. 12. Or rather, 2. Notwithſtanding all the ſcorching heat of the Sun, which quickly withers the Ruſhes and Herbs of which he ſpake before, but doth only cheriſh and refreſh the Tree. And ſo doth many a wicked man ſecure himſelf, and thrive and proſper even in times of great danger and trouble, and in ſpight of all oppoſition. m Or, His branches, the ſingular number for the plural; either, 1. Properly, and ſo this belongs to the deſcription of a flouriſhing Tree, by the ſpreading of its branches here, as by the depth of its Root, v. 17. Or, 2. Metaphorically, to wit, his Children, which are here mentioned as additions not only to his comfort, but alſo to his ſtrength and ſafety. n A place where it is defended from thoſe injuries to which the Trees of the field are ſubject from Men and Beaſts, and where, beſides the natural advantages common to all Trees, it hath peculiar helps from the Art and Induſtry of Men, by whom it is watered and aſſiſted, as need requires. So he ſuppoſeth this Man to be placed in the moſt deſirable Circumſtances.

17 His roots were wrapped about the heap o, and ſeeth p the place q of ſtones.

o To wit, of Stones, which word may be here underſtood out of the latter Branch of the Verſe, as is very uſual in Scripture uſe. This Circumſtance of the Tree is added, to ſignifie, either, 1. Its firmneſs and ſtrength, that it was not in loſe and ſandy Ground, which a violent Wind might overthrow, but in ſolid and hard Ground, within which were many Stones, which its numerous and ſpreading Roots embrace, folding and interweaving themſelves ſeverally about ſeveral Stones. Or, 2. Its ſingular and extraordinary growth in ſpight of all diſadvantages and oppoſitions; that even Stony-ground, which is very prejudicial to Trees, Matth. 13. 5. doth not hinder its growth, but only add to its ſtrength. So God and Man ſeem to conſpire, and all things concur to ſecure and perpetuate this Man's happineſs. Some render the words, His roots are wrapped, or folded, or ſpread about, or beſide a ſpring, as the Hebrew gal ſometime ſignifies; as Joſhua 15. 19. Cant. 4. 12. i. e. A moiſt ground, which is much to its advantage: See Pſal. 1. 3. Jer. 17. 8. p He, i. e. The Tree whoſe Roots he laſt mentioneth, reacheth thither, ſpreadeth himſelf ſo far, takes the advantage of that place for the ſtrengthning of its ſelf. Seeing is oft put for enjoying, and is frequently attributed to lifeleſs things, by a known Figure, called Proſopopeia. q Heb. The houſe, which is oft uſed for a place; as 2 Sam. 6. 17. 1 Kings 8. 6. Others renders the words thus, He looketh upon the houſe of ſtones; i. e. made of Stones for greater beauty and ſtrength. He ſtandeth proudly, and looketh boldly upon its Owners houſe, nigh unto which it is placed, even in his Garden, as was ſaid before.

18 If he r deſtroy him from his place s, then it t ſhall deny him, ſaying, I have not ſeen thee u.

r Either God, who is the Saviour of good men, and the Deſtroyer of the wicked: Or, the Owner: or any other Man; for this is an indefinite ſpeech, and may be taken paſſively and imperſonally; which is very common in the holy Text and Language. s In which he was planted. t i. e. The place; to which denying him, and ſeeing him, are here aſcribed figuratively, as we have oft ſeen. u i. e. I do not know, nor remember that ever thou waſt planted here. He ſhall be ſo utterly extirpated and deſtroyed, that there ſhall be no Footſtep nor Name, nor Memorial of him left there.

19 Behold, this is the joy of his way x, and out of the earth ſhall others grow y.

x This is the joyful and happy iſſue of the flouriſhing courſe, ſtate, and condition (which is frequently called a way) of this Tree, or of the Hypocrite manifeſtly repreſented by it, and expreſſed v. 13. It is a Sarcaſm or Irony, and is to be underſtood contrariwiſe of his ſad and unhappy end. y i. e. Out of the ſame earth or place ſhall another Tree grow; which could not be, if there had been but a ſtump of it left though under Ground. So it notes the total extirpation of the Tree, and of the Hypocrite, that his Perſon and all his Children and Family ſhall be utterly extinct, and ſo a ſtranger ſhall come into his place, and enjoy the fruit of his labours. But the words are and may be otherwiſe rendred very agreeably to the Hebrew Text, And out of other ground they (i. e. Plants or Trees, of which he is here ſpeaking) ſhall grow, or, others ſhall grow, or plants ſhall grow; the Noun being contained in the Verb: So the ſenſe is, This Tree ſhall be rooted up, and the very Ground of it ſo curſed, that nothing ſhall grow or thrive in it; but other ground ſhall be fruitful, and other Trees that ſtood round about it ſhall ſtand ſtill and flouriſh in their places. His deſign in all this is to prove Job to be an Hypocrite, becauſe he meets with their lot, which is total deſtruction.

20 Behold, God will not caſt away z a perfect man, neither will he † help a the evil doers:

† Heb. take the ungodly by the hand

z Heb. Not deſpiſe or reject; i. e. He will not deny them his help, as appears by the oppoſite and following Branch of the Verſe: He will not ſuffer them to be utterly loſt. a i. e. Deliver them out of their Troubles: Hence it may ſeem that thou, O Job, art not a perfect or upright man, but an evil-doer: But this is certain, if for the future thy heart and way be not perfect, and thou doeſt not ceaſe to do evil, thou wilt be utterly and irrecoverably loſt; as on the contrary, if thou doeſt repent and reform, he will help and deliver thee, and reſtore thee to thy former glory and happineſs; which Promiſe, though it be not here expreſſed, is ſufficiently implyed in the contrary threatning, as is evident from the following words which plainly ſuppoſe it, and have a reference to it: ſuch Ellipſes of Contraries being not unuſual in Scripture, as we ſhall ſee hereafter, eſpecially in the Book of the Proverbs.

21 Till he fill thy mouth with laughing b, and thy lips with † rejoycing.

b And what I have ſaid in general of all perfect men, ſhall be made good to thee, if thou beeſt ſuch an one; God will not forſake thee, nor deſiſt from doing thee good, till he fill, &c. i. e. God will give thee ſuch abundant matter of rejoycing, that thy heart ſhall not be able to hold it, but it ſhall break out at thy mouth and lips.

22 They that hate thee c ſhall be cloathed with ſhame d, and the dwelling-place of the wicked e † ſhall come to nought.

c That rejoyce in thy Calamities. d i. e. Shall be wholly covered with it, ſhall be utterly confounded, when they ſhall obſerve thee whom they have deſpiſed and inſulted over, to be ſo wonderfully and ſurprizingly reſtored to thy former, or a greater felicity. e Either particularly of thy Enemies, who dealt ſo unworthily and wickedly with thee: or, more generally of all wicked men. Having ſhewed what good God would do to the perfect man, he now declares the contrary portion of the wicked; and as he ſaid, that God would not help them, v. 20. ſo here he adds, that God will bring not only them, but their Houſe, i. e. their Family and Eſtate to nought.

CHAP. IX.

Job's Anſwer: Man cannot ſtand in Judgment with God; becauſe of his Juſtice, Wiſdom, and Power, which are unſearchable, 1——11. All help or reaſon againſt God is vain: nor can we anſwer him; but muſt ſupplicate to our Judge, 12——15. God's ſovereignty and our vileneſs before him, 16——21. The godly are puniſhed as well as the wicked, by general calamities, and wicked oppreſſion, 22——24. His time ſwift; his ſorrows bitter: if wicked, he could not clear himſelf; nor would God hold him innocent, 25——31. yet wiſheth for a days-man, and a removal of divine terror; then would he, before God, maintain his innocency, 32——35.

THen Job anſwered and ſaid,

2 I know it is ſo a of a truth: but how ſhould * man be juſt b ‖ with God c?

* Pſal.143.2. ‖ Or, before God.

a To wit, as you ſay, that God is juſt in all his ways, that he doth ordinarily bleſs the Righteous, and puniſh the Wicked. b Heb. and how, &c. i. e. And I know that no man is abſolutely juſt, or can defend his righteouſneſs, if God be ſevere to mark what is amiſs in him. c Either, 1. being compared with God: Or, 2. before God, as the ſame Phraſe is taken, 1 Sam. 2. 26. Pſal. 130. 3. if he be brought before God's Tribunal to debate the matter with him.

3 If he will contend with him d, he cannot anſwer him one of a thouſand e.

d If God be pleaſed to contend, (to wit, in judgment; debate, or plead; for ſo this word is oft uſed, as Hoſ. 2. 2. and 4. 1. Mich. 6.1. Compare Iſa. 45. 9.) with man. e Either to one Accuſation or Argument among a thouſand which God ſhall produce againſt him: Or, one time of a thouſand. So far will he be from being able to maintain his own innocency againſt God, if God ſet himſelf againſt him as his Adverſary.

* Ch.36.5. 4 * He is wiſe in heart f, and mighty in ſtrength g: who hath hardned himſelf againſt him h, and hath proſpered i?

f Either, 1. really and profoundly wiſe; or, 2. wiſe in his mind or underſtanding, which in Hebrew is oft called the heart, as Prov. 2. 10. and 6. 32. Hoſ. 4. 11. becauſe the Hebrews make the heart the Seat of the Underſtanding, or of the reaſonable Soul. The ſenſe is, He is infinitely wiſe, and ſo knows all things, and ſearcheth all mens hearts and ways, and diſcovers a multitude of ſins which mens ſhort-ſighted eyes cannot ſee; and therefore can charge them with innumerable evils, where they thought themſelves innocent, and ſees far more malignity than men could diſcern in their ſins: and men cannot conceal any of their ſins from him, nor cheat him, as they may other men, with crafty devices and evaſions: So that there is no contending with him. g i. e. Omnipotent, and therefore if men contumaciouſly perſiſt in contending with him after they are convicted and condemned, he can eaſily cruſh them. So that whether Men contend with God by wiſdom or by ſtrength (which are the two ways of one mans contending with another) God will be Conquerour. h i. e. Obſtinately contended with him. Or, ſpoken hard things towards him, quarrelling with him, oppoſing and reproaching God's Providence towards him as hard and unjuſt. Compare Jude v. 15. i Heb. Hath been at peace; i. e. hath not provoked God to his own deſtruction. A common Figure, called Meioſis, whereby more is underſtood than is expreſſed.

5 Which removeth the Mountains k, and they know not l: which overturneth them in his anger m:

k He proceedeth to give particular Evidences of the Divine Power and Wiſdom, which he mentioned v. 4. l i. e. Suddenly and unexpectedly, e're they were aware of it. They, i. e. the Mountains, to which he aſcribes Senſe and Knowledge figuratively, as hath been oft noted. m In token of his diſpleaſure with men that lived upon them, or near them.

6 Which ſhaketh the earth n out of her place, and the pillars o thereof tremble.

n i. e. Great portions of it, by Earthquakes, or by removing Iſlands, which ſometimes hath been done. o i. e. The ſtrength or the ſtrongeſt parts of it, the Mountains, yea the deep and inward parts of it, which like Pillars ſupported thoſe parts which appear to our view, and yet have been diſcovered and overturned by Earthquakes.

7 Which commandeth the Sun, and it riſeth not p, and ſealeth up the ſtars q.

p He ſpeaks either, 1. Of that which God can do; or rather (as he doth in the foregoing and following Inſtances. 2. Of what God actually doth, and that either, 1. Ordinarily; and ſo he gives Laws to the Sun that it ſhall not riſe, but at ſuch times, and to ſuch places, and in ſuch manner as he hath appointed; as that it ſhall riſe conſtantly at its ſet time, and never diſorderly; that it ſhall not riſe for divers Months together in ſome parts of the World, &c. Or rather, 2. Extraordinarily, (for of ſuch Works of God he diſcourſeth in this place) and ſo it may note either ſome ſtop given to the Sun for a ſmall ſeaſon, like that in Joſhua's time; which might have been, though it be not recorded, or ſome extraordinary tempeſt or dark ſeaſon, wherein the morning is made darkneſs, as the Phraſe is, Amos 4. 13. Compare 5. 8. wherein the Sun doth not at all appear (as it was for many days together, Acts 27. 20.) and conſequently is to thoſe places and perſons, as if he were not riſen. For things in Scripture are oft ſaid to be, or not to be, when they appear, or diſappear; of which ſome Inſtances have been formerly given, and more we ſhall have hereafter, in their proper places. q i. e. As it were, covereth and ſhutteth them up that they may not ſhine, as in dark and diſmal Tempeſts, like that now mentioned, Acts 27. 20. when neither ſun nor ſtars appeared for many days.

* Gen. 1.6. † Heb. heights. 8 * Which alone r ſpreadeth out the heavens s, and treadeth upon the † waves of the ſea t:

r i. e. By his own ſingle power, without any other help. s He ſpread them out like a curtain, Pſal. 104. 1, 2. and he in a manner ſpreads them again every day; i. e. keeps them ſpread for the comfort and benefit of this lower World, and doth not roll and fold them up, as he will do in due time: See Iſa. 34. 4. 2 Pet. 3. 10. Rev. 6. 14. Or, boweth down the heavens, as the ſame Hebrew Verb is rendred, Pſal. 18. 9. So it is a further deſcription of a black and tempeſtuous ſeaſon, wherein the Heavens ſeem to be brought down and nearer to the Earth. t i. e. Repreſſeth and ruleth them when they rage and are tempeſtuous: for treading upon any thing, ſignifies in Scripture uſe Power and Dominion over it; as Deut. 33. 29. Job 40. 12. Pſal. 60. 12. and 91. 13. Luke 10. 19.

* Chap. 38. 31. &c. Amos 5.8. † Heb. Aſh, Ceſil, & Cimah. 9 * Which maketh u † Arcturus, Orion, and Pleiades, and the chambers of the ſouth x.

u Either 1. created them; or rather, 2. ordereth and diſpoſeth them, as the word making is ſometimes uſed in Scripture; governeth their riſing and ſetting, and all their Influences. x Theſe he names as Stars or Conſtellations of greateſt note and eminency; for, ſo they are both in Scripture and other Authors, and ſuch as have or are thought to have a ſpecial influence in raiſing Storms and Tempeſts; but under them he ſeems to comprehend all the Stars, which as they were created by God, ſo are under his Government. Arcturus is a Northern Conſtellation, near that called the Bear, which riſeth to us about the beginning of September, and by its riſing produceth (as Pliny affirms) horrible Storms and Tempeſts. Orion is a more Southerly Conſtellation, that ariſeth to us in December, and is noted by Aſtronomers for raiſing fearful Winds and Tempeſts both by Sea and Land. The Pleiades is a Conſtellation not far from Orion, and near that called the Bull, which we call the Seven Stars: To us it riſeth at the beginning of the Spring, and by its riſing cauſeth Rains and Tempeſts, and therefore is unwelcome to Mariners at Sea. By the chambers, (or inmoſt and ſecret chambers, as the word ſignifies) of the South, he ſeems to underſtand thoſe Stars and Conſtellations which are towards the Southern Pole, which are fitly called inward chambers, becauſe they are for the moſt part hid and ſhut up (as chambers commonly are) from theſe parts of the World, and do not riſe or appear to us till the beginning of Summer, when they alſo raiſe Southerly Winds and Tempeſts, as Aſtronomers obſerve.

10 Which doth great things paſt finding out, yea and wonders without number y.

y Which words were produced by Eliphaz, Chap. 5. 9. (where they are explained) and are here repeated by Job, to ſhew his agreement with him therein.

11 Lo, he goeth z by me a, and I ſee him not b: he paſſeth on alſo c, but I perceive him not.

z i. e. He worketh by his Providence in ways of Mercy or Judgment. a Or, beſides, or before me, in my Preſence. b I ſee the Effects, but I cannot underſtand the Cauſes or Grounds of his Actions, for they are incomprehenſible by me, or by any other men: for though he ſpeaks only in his own perſon, yet he means it of all men; that ſuch is the weakneſs of mens Underſtandings, that they cannot ſearch out God's Counſels and Ways: See Acts 17. 27. Rom. 11. 33. c He goeth from place to place, from one action to another: He ſpeaks of God after the manner of men.

12 * Behold, he taketh away d, † who can hinder him: who will ſay unto him, what doeſt thou e? * Iſa.45.9. Jer.18.6. Rom.9.20. † Heb. who can turn him away? Ch.11.10.

d If he determine to take away from any man his Children or Servants, or Eſtate, as he hath done from me, e who is able to reſtrain him from doing it? Or who dare preſume to reprove him for it? And therefore far be it from me to quarrel with God, whereof you untruly accuſe me.

13 If God will not withdraw his anger f, the † proud helpers g, do ſtoop under him h. † Heb. helpers of pride or strength.

f i. e. If God reſolve not to withdraw his Rod and Stroak, the Effect of his Anger. Or, without if, which is not in the Hebrew, God will not withdraw his anger, i. e. not forbear to puniſh, neither becauſe any man can over-power and reſtrain him; nor for fear leſt he ſhould rebuke him for proceeding to puniſh, as is implied by comparing this Verſe with the former. g i. e. Thoſe men who ſhall undertake to uphold and defend him whom God intends to puniſh and deſtroy; who are fitly called proud helpers, becauſe this is a moſt proud and inſolent, and preſumptuous act to oppoſe themſelves to the Lord God Almighty, and to his Counſels and Courſes; or (as it is in the Hebrew) Helpers of pride, becauſe they give aſſiſtance to that man who carries himſelf proudly and ſtoutly towards God, under his correcting hand: Or (as ſome tranſlate it) the helpers of Egypt, or the Egyptian helpers; i. e. the moſt potent helpers: for Egypt was in Job's time a powerful and flouriſhing Kingdom, and not far from Job's Country. And the word Rahab here rendred pride, is elſewhere put for Egypt, as Pſal. 87. 4. Iſa. 51. 9. and (as ſome take it) Job 26. 12. h i. e. Shall fall and be cruſhed by him; and conſequently they who are helped by him muſt fall with them.

14 How much leſs ſhall i I anſwer him k, and chooſe out my words to reaſon with him l?

i Since no Creature whatſoever can reſiſt his Power, and no man living can ſearch out or comprehend his Counſels and Ways; how can I, who am a poor, contemptible, diſpirited Creature; contend with him? k i. e. Anſwer his Allegations and Arguments, produced againſt me. l Heb. Chooſe my words with (or before, or againſt, as this Particle is uſed, Deut. 9. 7. Pſal. 94. 16. Prov. 30. 31.) him; i. e. Shall I try whether God or I can chooſe fitter Words, or ſtronger Arguments? Or ſhall I contend with him, and expect to get the better of him by uſing choice, and forcible, and elegant words, as one man doth with another?

15 Whom, though I were righteous m, yet would I not anſwer n: but I would make ſupplication to my judge o.

m Though I had a moſt juſt cauſe, and were not conſcious to my ſelf of any ſin. n i. e. I durſt not undertake to plead my Cauſe againſt him; or maintain my Integrity before him, becauſe he knows me better than I know my ſelf, and becauſe I am wholly in his hands, and at his mercy. o To wit, that he would hear me meekly, and judge favourably of me and my Cauſe, and not according to the rigours of his juſtice.

16 If I had called p, and he had anſwered me, yet would I not believe, that he had hearkned unto my voice q:

p i. e. Prayed, as this word is commonly uſed; to wit, unto my Judge, for a favourable ſentence, as he now ſaid, and therefore it was needleſs here to mention the Object of his Calling or Prayer. q I could not believe that God had indeed granted my deſire, though he had done it; becauſe I am ſo infinitely below him, and obnoxious to him, and ſtill full of the tokens of his diſpleaſure; and therefore ſhould conclude that it was but a pleaſant Dream or Fancy, and not a real thing; Compare Pſal. 126. 1.

17 For he breaketh me r with a tempeſt s, and multiplieth my wounds without cauſe t.

r This is the reaſon of his foregoing Diffidence, that even when

God

UMI

God ſeemed to anſwer him in words, yet the courſe of his actions towards him was of a quite contrary nature and tendency. s As with a Tempeſt; i. e. unexpectedly, violently, and irrecoverably. t Not ſimply without any deſert of his, or as if he had no ſin in him, for he oft declares the contrary; but without any evident or ſpecial cauſe of ſuch ſingular Afflictions; i. e. any peculiar and extraordinary guilt, ſuch as my Friends charge me with.

18 He will not ſuffer me to take my breath u, but filleth me with bitterneſs x.

u My Pains and Miſeries are continual, and I have not ſo much as a breathing time free from them. x My Afflictions are not only long and uninterrupted, but alſo exceeding ſharp and violent, contrary to the common courſe of God's Providence.

19 If I ſpeak of ſtrength y, lo, he is ſtrong z: and if of judgment a, who ſhall ſet me a time to plead b?

y If my Cauſe were to be decided by power, z i.e. ſtronger than I. a If I would contend with him in a way of right. b There is no ſuperiour Judge that can ſummon him and me together, and appoint us a time of pleading before him, and oblige us both to ſtand to his Sentence; and therefore I muſt be contented to ſit down with the loſs.

20 If I juſtifie my ſelf c, mine own mouth ſhall condemn me d: if I ſay, I am perfect e, it f ſhall alſo prove me perverſe.

c If I plead againſt God mine own Righteouſneſs and Innocency. d God is ſo infinitely wiſe and juſt, that he will find ſufficient matter of condemnation from my own words, though ſpoken with all poſſible care and circumſpection; or he will diſcover ſo much wickedneſs in me of which I was not aware, that I ſhall be forced to joyn with him in condemning my ſelf. e If I were perfect in my own opinion; If I thought my ſelf compleatly righteous and faultleſs. f i. e. My own mouth, as he now ſaid. Or, he, i. e. God, who is eaſily underſtood by comparing this with the former Verſes, where the ſame he is oft mentioned.

21 Though I were perfect, yet would I not know my ſoul: I would deſpiſe my life g.

g i. e. Though God ſhould acquit me in Judgment, and pronounce me perfect or righteous, yet would I not know; i. e. regard or value (as that word is oft uſed) my ſoul, i. e. my life; as the ſoul frequently ſignifies, as Gen. 19. 17. Job 2. 6. John 10. 15, 17. and as it is explained in the following branch, where life is put for ſoul, and deſpiſing for not knowing: and ſo the ſame thing is repeated in differing words, and the latter Clauſe explains the former, which was more dark and doubtful, according to the uſage of Sacred Scripture. So the ſenſe is, Though God ſhould give Sentence for me, yet I ſhould be ſo overwhelmed with the dread and terrour of the Divine Majeſty, that I ſhould be weary of my life. And therefore I abhor the thoughts of contending with my Maker, whereof you accuſe me; and yet I have reaſon to be weary of my life, and to deſire death. Or thus, If I ſay, I am perfect, as the very ſame Hebrew words are rendred, v. 20. i. e. If I ſhould think my ſelf perfect, yet I would not know, i.e. not acknowledge, my ſoul; I could not own nor plead before God the perfection and integrity of my Soul, but would only make Supplication to my Judge, as he ſaid, v. 16. and flee to his Grace and Mercy: I would abhor, or reject, or condemn my life, i. e. my Converſation: So the ſenſe is, I would not inſiſt upon, nor truſt to the integrity either of my Soul and Heart, or of my Life, ſo as to juſtifie my ſelf before the pure and piercing Eyes of the All-ſeeing God.

22 This is one thing h, therefore I ſaid it i, he deſtroyeth the perfect and the wicked k.

h In the other things which you have ſpoken of God's Greatneſs, Juſtice, &c. I do not contend with you, but this one thing I do, and muſt affirm againſt you. i I did not utter it raſhly, but upon deep Conſideration. k God ſends Afflictions promiſcuouſly upon good and bad men. Compare Pſal. 73. 2, &c. Eccleſ. 9. 2. Jer. 12. 1, &c.

23 If the ſcourge ſlay ſuddenly l, he will laugh at the trial of the innocent m.

l Either 1. If ſome common and deadly Judgment come upon a People, which deſtroys both good and bad. Or, 2. If God inflicts ſome grievous and unexpected ſtroke upon an innocent Perſon, as it follows. m As he doth at the deſtruction of the Wicked, Pſal. 2. 4. His outward Carriage is the ſame to both; he neglects the Innocent, and ſeems not to anſwer their Prayers, and ſuffers them to periſh with others, as if he took pleaſure in their ruin alſo. But withal, he intimates the matter and cauſe of his laughter or complacency which God takes in their Afflictions, becauſe to them they are but trials of their Faith, and Patience, and Perſeverance, which tends to God's honour, and their own eternal advantage.

24 The earth n is given o into the hand of the wicked p; he covereth the faces of the judges thereof q; if not r, where, and who is he s?

n i. e. The poſſeſſion and dominion of men and things on earth. o To wit, by God the great Lord and Diſpoſer of it by his Providence. p Into their power. As good men are ſcourged, v. 23. ſo the wicked are advanced, and proſpered in this World. q i. e. He blinds their eyes that they cannot diſcern between Truth and Falſhood, Juſtice and Unrighteouſneſs: He. Who? Either, 1. The wicked laſt mentioned, who either by power or by gifts corrupts the Officers of Juſtice. Or rather, 2. God, whom the Pronoun he, deſigned all along this Chapter: Who is oft ſaid to blind the minds of men, which he doth not poſitively by making them blind, but privately by withdrawing his own light, and leaving them to their own Miſtakes and Luſts. Or by Judges he may hear mean thoſe who are worthy of that name, and duly adminiſter that Office; Whoſe faces God may be ſaid to cover, becauſe he removeth them from their high places into obſcurity, and covers them with contempt, and in a manner paſſeth a Sentence of Condemnation and Deſtruction upon them; Covering of the face being the uſual poſture of condemned Perſons, and of men in great miſery: Of which ſee Eſth. 7. 8. Pſal. 44. 22. Iſa. 15. 17. Jer. 14. 4. So the ſenſe of this Verſe is, God commonly advanceth wicked men into Power and Honour, and caſteth down men of true Worth and Vertue from their Seats. r If it be not as I ſay, If God do not theſe things. s Either, 1. Who will confute me by ſolid Arguments? Or, 2. Who doth theſe things? Who but God doth diſpoſe of the World in this manner?

25 Now t * my days u are ſwifter than a poſt x: they flee away, they ſee no good y.

* Ch. 7. 6.

t What he had ſaid of the Calamities which God uſually inflicted upon good men, he now exemplifieth in himſelf. u The days either of my Proſperity: For the time of Affliction is commonly deſcribed by the night: or rather, 2. Of my life, as the laſt Clauſe ſheweth; For it were an abſurd and contradictious ſpeech to ſay that his proſperous days ſaw no good. x Who runs or rides upon ſwift horſes. y I enjoy no good in them. Seeing is oft put for experiencing either good or evil, Job 7. 7. Pſal. 34. 12. John 3. 36. and 8. 51.

26 They are paſſed away as the † ‖ ſwift ſhips z: * as the Eagle a that haſteth to the prey.

* Hab. 1. 8.

z Heb. Ships of deſire, which make great haſte, as if they longed for their deſired Haven, as it is called, Pſal. 107. 30. Or, ſhips of pleaſure; Which ſail more ſwiftly than ſhips of great burden. a Which generally flies moſt ſwiftly, Deut. 28. 49. Jer. 4. 13. Lam. 4. 19. eſpecially when its own hunger, and the ſight of its prey, quickens his motion.

27 * If I ſay b, I will forget my complaints c, I will leave off my † heavineſs d, and comfort my ſelf e:

* Ch. 7. 13.

b If I reſolve within my ſelf. c I will ceaſe complaining. d Heb. mine anger; wherewith Job was charged by his Friends, Chap. 18. 4. my angry expreſſions. e I will endeavour to take comfort.

28 I am afraid of all my ſorrows f: I know that thou wilt not hold me innocent g.

f Or, my pains and griefs: I find all ſuch endeavours vain; for if my griefs be ſuſpended for a little time, yet my fears continue. g I plainly perceive that my changing my note is to no purpoſe; for thou, O God (to whom he makes a ſudden Apoſtrophe, as he doth alſo v. 31.) wilt not clear my innocency by removing thoſe Afflictions which make them judge me guilty of ſome great crime. Words proceeding from great impatience and deſpair of relief.

29 If I be wicked h, why then labour I in vain i?

h Heb. I ſhall be wicked, or guilty, to wit, before thee. Whether I be holy or wicked, if I diſpute with thee, I ſhall be found guilty. Or thus, I ſhall be uſed like a wicked man, and puniſhed as ſuch. So this is oppoſed to his not being held innocent, v. 28. i. e. not being acquitted or exempt from puniſhment. i Why then ſhould I not indulge my griefs, but reſtrain them? Why ſhould I comfort my ſelf with vain hopes of deliverance, as thou adviſeſt me, Ch. 8. 6. or ſeek to God, as I was directed, Chap. 5. 8. for that eaſe which I ſee he is reſolved not to give me? Why ſhould I trouble my ſelf with clearing mine innocency, ſeeing God will ſtill hold me guilty?

30 * If I waſh my ſelf k with ſnow-water l, and make my hands never ſo clean;

* Jer. 2. 22.

k Either 1. really, by Sanctification, cleanſing my heart and life from all filthineſs; or rather 2. declaratively or judicially; i.e. If I clear my ſelf from all imputations, and fully prove my innocency before men. l i.e. As men cleanſe their Bodies, and as under the Law they purified themſelves with water, which he here calls water of Snow, either becauſe by its purity and brightneſs it reſembled Snow; or becauſe in thoſe dry Countries, where freſh and pure water was ſcarce, Snow-water was much in uſe, or becauſe that Water might be much uſed among them in ſome of their ritual Purifications, as coming down from Heaven.

31 Yet ſhalt thou plunge me in the ditch m, and mine own cloths ſhall ‖ abhor me n.

‖ Or, make me to be abhorred.

m i.e. In miry and puddle water, whereby I ſhall become moſt filthy. But as Job's waſhing, ſo God's plunging him, &c. is not underſtood really, as if God would make him filthy, but only judicially, that God would prove him to be a moſt guilty and filthy Creature, notwithſtanding all the Profeſſions and Evidences of his Purity before men. n i.e. I ſhall be ſo altogether filthy, that my own cloths, if they had any ſenſe in them, would abhor to touch me. A figure called Proſopopœia.

32 For he is not a man as I am o, that I ſhould anſwer him p, and that we ſhould come together q in judgment.

o But one infinitely ſuperiour to me in Majeſty, and Power, and Wiſdom, and Juſtice. p That I ſhould preſume to debate my Cauſe with him, or anſwer his Allegations againſt me. q Face to face, to plead upon equal terms before a Superiour and indifferent Judge.

33 * Neither is there † any ‖ days-man q betwixt us, that might lay his hand upon us both r.

* 1 Sam. 2. 25. ver. 19.
‖ Or, Umpire.

q Or, a Reprover; or, a Judge or Umpire, whoſe office was to reprove the guilty Perſon. r i. e. Uſe his Power and Authority to appoint the time and place of our Meeting; to order and govern us in pleading; and to oblige us to ſtand to his deciſion. The hand is oft put for power, and laying on the hand upon another was oft times an act and ſign of Superiority and Dominion.

34 * Let him take his rod away from me, and let not his fear s terrifie me;

* Ch. 13. 21 & 33. 7.

s Objectively ſo called, i. e The fear and dread of him, of his Majeſty and Juſtice. Let him not deal with me rigorouſly according to his Soveraign Dominion and perfect Juſtice, but according to his wonted Grace and Clemency.

35 Then would I ſpeak, and not fear him t: † but it is not ſo with me u.

t i. e. I would ſpeak freely for my ſelf, being freed from the dread of his Majeſty, which takes away my ſpirit and courage, and ſtoppeth my mouth. u i. e. I am not free from his terrour, and therefore cannot and dare not plead my Cauſe boldly with him; and ſo have nothing elſe to do but to eaſe my ſelf by renewing my Complaints, as he doth in the next words. Others thus, But I am not ſo with my ſelf, i. e. I am in a manner beſides my ſelf, diſtracted with the terrours of God upon me. Or rather thus, For I am not ſo with my ſelf, or in my own Conſcience, as I perceive I am in your eyes; to wit, an Hypocrite and ungodly man. So this is a reaſon why he could ſpeak to God without ſlaviſh fear, becauſe he was conſcious to himſelf ſelf of his own Integrity: I have a good Conſcience within my ſelf, and therefore could uſe boldneſs in ſpeaking to God, provided he would not deal with me in ſtrict juſtice, but upon the terms of grace and mercy which he hath propoſed to ſinners, and with allowance to human Infirmities.

CHAP. X.

His Life a burthen: his complaint that he could not ſee the cauſe or end of God's puniſhment: God delighteth not to oppreſs; nor was his innocence, though ſuſpected by men, hid from God, 1——7. He urgeth that being God's work, in his hands, receiving all from him, God would not deſtroy him, 8——13. His ſins expoſe him to God's wrath, which was terrible upon him, 14——17. Curſeth his birth: Death deſirable to him, 18——22.

* Ch. 7. 16. ‖ Or, cut off while I live

MY * ſoul is ‖ weary of my life a, I will leave my complaint upon my ſelf b; I will ſpeak in (or of) the bitterneſs of my ſoul c.

a So the ſenſe is: My Soul is weary of dwelling in this rotten and miſerable Carkaſs: Or, I am from my heart, or with my very Soul weary of my life; and therefore I may be excuſed if I complain. Or, My ſoul is cut off while I live; i. e. I am dead whilſt I live; I am in a manner buried alive. b So the ſenſe is, I will complain, and the burden or hazard of ſo doing I will take upon my ſelf, and be willing to bear it: I muſt give my ſorrows vent, let come on me what will, as he ſaith, Chap. 13. 13. But the words may be read interrogatively, Shall I then (or, how can I then) leave my complaint (i. e. give over complaining) within or concerning (as the Hebrew al oft ſignifies) my ſelf? Or they may be rendred thus, I will ſtrengthen (as this Verb ſignifies, Neh. 3. 8.) my complaint againſt my ſelf; whereby he implies, that he would not complain againſt God, ſo as to accuſe him of Injuſtice, but only againſt himſelf, or againſt his own life; or concerning my ſelf; i. e. I muſt renew and encreaſe my Complaints, as God renews and encreaſes my Sorrows. c My extream Miſery forceth my Complaints from me.

2 I will ſay unto God, Do not condemn me d; ſhew me wherefore e thou contendeſt with me.

d Or, pronounce me not to be a wicked man, as my Friends do, neither deal with me as ſuch, as I confeſs thou mighteſt do by thy Soveraign Power and in Rigorous Juſtice: O diſcover my Integrity by removing this ſtroke, for which my Friends ſo highly cenſure and condemn me. e i. e. For what ends and reaſons, and for what ſins; for I am not conſcious to my ſelf of any peculiar and eminent ſins by which I have deſerved to be made the moſt miſerable of all Mortals.

3 Is it good unto thee f that thou ſhouldeſt oppreſs g? that thou ſhouldeſt deſpiſe h † the work of thine hands i, and ſhine upon the counſel of the wicked k?

f Doſt thou take any pleaſure in it? Haſt thou any advantage or honour by it? Doſt thou think it right and juſt, and becoming the Ruler of the World? g By thy abſolute and irreſiſtible Power, without any regard to that Juſtice, and Equity, and Clemency, by which thou uſeſt to govern Mankind. h i. e. Shew thy contempt of them, either by denying them common favour and protection; or by deſtroying them. i Which every Workman loves and maintains. k i. e. By the Methods of thy Providence ſeem to favour the courſes and practiſes of wicked men, to whom thou giveſt proſperity and ſucceſs, whilſt thou frowneſt upon me and other good men. This may have reference, either to Job's Friends, whoſe ungodly Cenſures God ſeemed to approve, by continuing Job's Afflictions upon him: Or to the Chaldeans and Sabeans, who had ſucceeded in their wicked attempts upon Job: But it ſeems to be more generally meant of wicked men.

* 1 Sam. 16. 7.

4 Haſt thou eyes of fleſh l? or * ſeeſt thou as man ſeeth m?

l i. e. Of a man, who is called fleſh, as Gen. 6. 13. Iſa. 40. 6. m Man ſeeth outſides only, and judgeth by appearances, and is liable to many miſtakes, and cannot ſearch out ſecret faults without forcing men by cruel uſage to accuſe themſelves. But thou needeſt none of theſe Arts, thou ſeeſt mine heart and mine uprightneſs, which my Friends do not ſee, who therefore are more excuſable in charging me with hypocriſie: But thou knoweſt all things, thou needeſt not examine me by Tortures, as thou now doeſt, v. 6. For, thou knoweſt that I am not wicked, as he ſaith, v. 7. and therefore do not thou deal with me as if I were wicked.

5 Are thy days as the days of man? are thy years as mans days n?

n Man's time is ſhort and uncertain, and therefore he muſt improve his time, whilſt he hath it, and diligently ſearch out the Crimes of Malefactors, and puniſh them whilſt he may, leſt by Death he loſe the opportunity of doing Juſtice, and the Criminal get out of his power: But it is not ſo with thee, thou art eternal and unchangeable, and ſeeſt at one view all mens hearts, and all their actions preſent and to come; and therefore thou doeſt not need to proceed with me in this manner by making ſo long and ſo ſevere a ſcrutiny into my heart and life.

6 That thou * enquireſt after mine iniquity, and ſearcheſt after my ſin o?

o Keeping me ſo long as it were upon the Rack to compel me to accuſe my ſelf, as men ſometimes do.

† Heb. it is upon thy knowledge.

7 † Thou knoweſt that I am not wicked p, and there is none that can deliver out of thine hand q.

p i. e. An Hypocrite, or an ungodly man, as my Friends account me; and therefore deal not with me as ſuch. q The ſenſe is, Either 1. Thou doſt not need to keep me faſt in thy Priſon, leſt I ſhould make an eſcape, or any ſhould reſcue me out of thy hands, which none can do; Therefore take off thy hand from me. Or, 2. If thou doſt not help and deliver me, none elſe can do it; Therefore do not thou fail me: which, conſidering God's merciful nature, is a good Argument. If any man oppreſs another, he may have relief from thee, who art higher than his Oppreſſor, Ecclеſ. 5. 8. But thou art the ſupreme and uncontrollable Ruler of the World, and therefore thou muſt needs do right, Gen. 18. 25. And therefore do not thou oppreſs me. See above v. 3.

8 Thine hands † have made me, and faſhioned me together round about r; yet thou doſt deſtroy me s.

r i. e. All of me, all the Faculties of my Soul, and all the parts of my Body, which are now over-ſpread with Sores and Ulcers; I am wholly thy Creature and Workmanſhip, made by thee and for thee. s Or, ſwallow me up; to wit, without cauſe, or any eminent provocation of mine; as if thou didſt delight in doing and undoing, in making and then deſtroying thy Creatures; which doth not become thy Wiſdom or Goodneſs.

* Gen. 2. 7. & 3. 19. ‖ Or, wrought.

9 Remember, I beſeech thee, that * thou haſt ‖ made me as the clay t, and wilt thou bring me into duſt again u?

t i. e. Of the Clay, the Note of ſimilitude here expreſſing the truth of things, as it doth, John 1. 14. and elſewhere, as hath been before obſerved: Or, as a Potter maketh a Veſſel of the Clay; and ſo this may note both the frailty of man's Nature, which of it ſelf decays and periſheth, and doth not need ſuch violent ſhocks and ſtorms to overthrow it; and the excellency of the Divine Artifice commended from the meanneſs of the Materials out of which it was made; which is an Argument why God ſhould not deſtroy it. u Wiltſt thou now cauſleſly and violently deſtroy thy own Work? But the words are, and may be read without an Interrogation; And thou wilt bring me into duſt again, out of which I was made: I muſt die by the courſe of Nature, and by the Sentence of thy Law; and therefore whilſt I do live, give me ſome eaſe and comfort.

* Pſal. 139. 14, 15, 16.

10 * Haſt thou not poured me out as milk! and crudled me like cheeſe x?

x Thus he modeſtly and accurately deſcribes God's admirable Work in making Man out of a ſmall and liquid, and as it were milky ſubſtance, by degrees congealed and condenſed into that exquiſite frame of man's Body.

11 Thou haſt clothed me y with skin and fleſh, and haſt † fenced me with bones and ſinews z.

y i. e. Covered my inward and more noble parts; which, as Philoſophers and Phyſicians obſerve, are firſt formed. So he proceeds in deſcribing man's formation gradually. z Which are the ſtay and ſtrength of the Body; and ſome of them, as the Skull and Ribs, encloſe and defend its vital and moſt noble parts.

12 Thou haſt granted me life a and favour b, and thy viſitation c hath preſerved my ſpirit d.

a Thou didſt not only give me a curious Body, but alſo a living and a reaſonable Soul: Thou didſt at firſt give me life, and then maintain it in me; both when I was in the Womb (which is a marvellous Work of God) and afterward when I was unable to do any thing to preſerve my own life. b Or, benignity, or bounty, or mercy, or kindneſs; which is here, as oft elſewhere, put for its fruits or effects. Thou didſt not give a meer Life, but many other favours neceſſary, or convenient, or belonging to it, ſuch as Nouriſhment by the Breaſt, Education, Knowledge, and Inſtruction, &c. c i. e. The care of thy Providence watching over me for my good, and viſiting me in mercy; as God's viſiting is underſtood, Exod. 4. 31. Luke 1. 78. though elſewhere it is an Act of Puniſhment. d i. e. My Soul or Life, which is liable to manifold Caſualties and Dangers, if God did not watch over us and guard us every day and moment. Thou haſt hitherto done great things for me, given me Life, and the Bleſſings of Life, and daily Preſervations and Deliverances: And wiltſt thou now undo all that thou haſt done? And ſhall I who have been ſuch an eminent Monument of thy Mercy, now be made a Spectacle of thy Vengeance, and that without cauſe?

* Iſa. 59. 12

13 And theſe things haſt thou hid in thine heart e: I know that this is * with thee f.

e This place may be underſtood, either 1. Of Job's preſent Afflictions: So the ſenſe is this; Yet in the midſt of all thoſe Manifeſtations of thy Grace and Kindneſs to me, thou didſt retain a ſecret purpoſe of changing thy courſe and carriage towards me, and of bringing theſe dreadful Calamities upon me. Or, rather, 2. Of his former Mercies, theſe things, to wit, laſt mentioned; thou haſt hid them in thy heart; i. e. thou doſt exactly remember them, as this phraſe is uſed, Pſal. 119. 11. Luke 2. 51. So the Argument is this; Let the remembrance of thy former great Favours vouchſafed to me, move thee to give me further Bleſſings, and a ſpeedy Deliverance. For this is uſual both with God and Men, to chooſe and delight to do more good to thoſe to whom they have done much good already; which is the ground of that known paſſage, Matth. 13. 12. To him that hath ſhall be given. f i. e. In thy mind and heart; thou haſt not forgot it: So the ſame thing is here repeated in other words.

14 If I ſin g, then thou markeſt me h, and thou wilt not acquit me from mine iniquity i.

g If I commit the leaſt Sin; as who is there that liveth, and ſinneth not? h Thou doſt not wink at or paſs by my Sins, as thou uſually doſt other Mens, but doſt ſeverely and diligently obſerve them all, that thou mayeſt puniſh them: Compare Chap. 14. 16, & 31. 4. i I perceive thou art reſolved to puniſh me with Rigor, and that thou wilſt not pardon, and pity, and help me: Words of great impatience and diſtruſt.

15 If I be wicked k, wo unto me l; and if I be righteous m, yet will I not lift up my head n: I am full of † confuſion o, therefore ſee thou mine affliction;

k i. e. An ungodly Hypocrite, as my Friends eſteem me. l Then I am truly and extreamly, and muſt be eternally miſerable. m i. e. An upright and good Man: So whether good or bad, all comes to one; I have no relief. n Or, yet can I not, &c. The Future Tenſe being uſed potentially: Yet I have no comfort, nor confidence, or hopes of any good. Lifting up the head or face, is oft mentioned as a ſign of comfort and confidence, as Pſal. 3. 3. Luke 21. 28. As on the contrary, Grief and Shame are deſcribed by its dejection or caſting down. o Or, reproach, from my Friends, and from others, Chap. 30. 1, &c. and from God too, who caſts me off and makes me contemptible: I have abundance of Shame in the diſappointment of all my hopes, and the continuance and aggravation of my Miſery, notwithſtanding all my Prayers to God to remove or mitigate it: And I am confounded within my ſelf, not knowing what to ſay or do. Let my Extremity move thee to pity, and help me.

*Iſa.38.13. Lam.3.10.

16 For it increaſeth: thou * hunteſt me as a fierce lion p; and again thou ſheweſt thy ſelf marvellous upon me q.

p Which hunteth after his Prey with great eagerneſs, and when he overtakes it, falls upon it with great fury. q Heb. And thou returneſt and ſheweſt thy ſelf marvellous upon, or in, or againſt me. The Lion tears its Prey ſpeedily, and ſo ends its Torments; but thou reneweſt my Calamities again and again, and makeſt my Plagues wonderful both for kind and extremity, and continuance.

‖ That is, thy plagues. Ruth 1.21. Ch.16.8.

17 Thou reneweſt ‖ thy witneſſes r againſt me, and increaſeſt thy indignation s upon me; changes and war t are againſt me.

r i.e. Thy Judgments, which are the Witneſſes and Evidences both of my Sins, and of thy Wrath. s i.e. My Miſeries the effects of thine Anger. Theſe words are added to explain what he meant by renewing witneſſes. t Or, changes and an army; which may be a Figure called Hendiadis, for the changes of an army, i.e. many Miſeries ſucceeding one another, like Companies of the Soldiers of an Army in Battel: Or changes may note the various kinds, and an Army the great numbers of his Afflictions.

CHAP. XI.

Zophar's Reproof: Job's words too many and falſe even to mockery: in juſtifying himſelf, 1——4. Should God ſpeak, his Wiſdom and Juſtice, and all his Perfections would appear infinitely greater than what Job conceived of them, 5——10. God knoweth Man ſeeth Wickedneſs and conſidereth it; but Man is ignorant and fooliſh, and in vain pretendeth to Wiſdom, 11, 12. If Job would prepare his Heart, and Pray, and put away his Sin, he ſhould again lift up his Head, and forget his Miſery, and his laſt days be brighteſt; but the Wicked ſhall periſh, 13——20.

6 And that he would ſhew thee the ſecrets of wiſdom l, that they are double to that which is m: know therefore that * God exacteth of thee leſs than thine iniquity deſerveth n.

l i. e. The unknown and unſearchable depths of God's Wiſdom and Counſels, in dealing with his Creatures. m i. e. That they are far more and greater (the word double being uſed indefinitely for manifold, or plentiful, as *Iſa.*40.2. & 61.7. *Jer.*17.18. *Zech.*9.12.) then that which hath a being or exiſtence, i. e. The ſecret Wiſdom of God is infinitely greater than that which is revealed to us by his Word or Works: The greateſt part of what is known of God, is the leaſt part of thoſe Perfections that are in him. And therefore thou doſt raſhly and fooliſhly in paſſing ſuch a bold cenſure upon God's ways, and judging ſo harſhly of his proceedings with thee, becauſe thou doſt not comprehend the reaſons of them, and in judging thy ſelf innocent, becauſe thou doſt not ſee thy Sins; whereas the all-knowing God ſees innumerable Sins in thee, for which he may utterly deſtroy thee, though thou diſcerneſt them not: But the words are and muſt be rendred, either thus, that he hath double, i. e. abundant Wiſdom: For ſo this Hebrew word ſignifies, *Chap.*6.13. & 12.16. *Prov.*2.7. & 3.21. Or, that they are double to, or in that being or eſſence; to wit, to God, of whom he is here ſpeaking: Or, to the being; i.e. to God, who calls himſelf by the Name I am, Exod. 3.14. which ſignifies being, and who appropriates being to himſelf, Iſa. 45. 18. I am, and there is none elſe beſides me; as elſewhere he is ſaid to be the only wiſe, and only Potentate, and only immortal being, 1 Tim. 1. 17. & 6. 15, 16. n Heb. God lends or gives, or forgives thee part of thine iniquity, or of thy puniſhment. So far is he from dealing worſe than thou deſerveſt, as thou doſt moſt falſly and wickedly accuſe him.

10 * If he ‖ cut off t, and ſhut up u, or gather together x, then † who can hinder him y?

t To wit, a Perſon or a Family. u In a Priſon, or in the hands of an Enemy. This ſhutting up, is oppoſed to the opening of the Priſon-doors, and to that enlargement, which God is elſewhere ſaid to give to Men. x Either 1. in a way of Judgment, as a like word is uſed, *Pſal.*26.9. Gather not my ſoul with ſinners. Or, rather 2. in a way of Mercy, as this word is generally uſed in Scripture; this being every where promiſed by God to his People, as an eminent Mercy that he would gather them together. So this is oppoſed to the former actions, and the ſenſe of the place is, whether it pleaſeth God to ſcatter a Family, or to gather them together from their Diſperſions. y From doing what he pleaſeth and deſigneth with his own Creatures: Who can reſtrain him either by giving Law to him, or by force and power? Or, who can contradict or anſwer him, or object againſt him, or retort or return upon him; i. e. charge him with Injuſtice in ſuch proceedings? Which ſenſe may ſeem to agree beſt both with the ſcope of the place, and ſtate of the queſtion between him and Job; which was not whether any Man could reſiſt God's power, but whether he could queſtion his Juſtice; and with the following Verſe.

*Pſ.10.11, 14. & 35. 22.

11 For * he knoweth vain man z: he ſeeth wickedneſs alſo a; will he not then conſider it b?

z Though Men know but little of God, and therefore are very unfit Judges of all his Counſels and Actions, yet God knows Man exactly, and his vanity, or falſhood, or folly, or raſhneſs; for all theſe this word ſignifies. He knoweth that every Man in the World is guilty of much Vanity and Folly, and therefore ſeeth ſufficient reaſon for his Severity againſt the beſt Men; ſuch as thou, O Job, fancieſt thy ſelf to be; and if thou wert ſo, thou haſt no reaſon to wonder at or quarrel with his proceedings: And if thy quarrel be that he ſhuts thee up, or cuts thee off, when he gathers others under his wing and Protection, whom thou thinkeſt or knoweſt to be worſe than thy ſelf, while thou doſt impeach his Juſtice, thou doſt but betray thy own Vanity and Folly; For he knows both whom he chaſtiſeth, and whom he ſpareth, and why he doth it, though he do not acquaint thee with the reaſons of all his actions. a As he knoweth the Vanity of all Men, ſo he exactly perceiveth the Wickedneſs of evil Men, though it be covered with the Veil of Religion. He ſeeth thy evil heart which diſcovers it ſelf by ſuch wicked and ſcandalous Speeches againſt the Juſtice and Goodneſs of his Providence, which gives him juſt cauſe to continue and increaſe thy Miſeries. Though thou art partial, and flattereſt thy ſelf with a Conceit of thy own Integrity, yet he knoweth thy Hypocriſie and Wickedneſs. b Shall he only ſee it as an idle Spectator, and not obſerve it as a Judge to requite and puniſh it?

c Or, Yet (or, But vain or empty man (that fooliſh Creature that ſince the Fall is void of all true Wiſdom and ſolid Knowledge, and Judgment of the things of God) would be wiſe; i.e. pretends to be, and would be thought wiſe and able to paſs a Cenſure upon all God's ways and works. Or thus, But vain man is fooliſh, or, without heart, i. e. without Underſtanding, unable to judge aright of the ways and things of God. For a Verb very like this, and coming from the ſame Root, ſignifies to have ones heart taken away, Cant.4.9. d And man is born, i. e. he is by his Birth ſuch; this evil is now natural and hereditary, and therefore common to all Men; and therefore it is not ſtrange if Job partake of the common Diſtemper. e i. e. Ignorant, and dull, and ſtupid, as to the knowledge of divine things, and withal heady and untractable; and therefore very incompetent to judge of theſe high Affairs.

14 If iniquity be in thine hand k, put it far away l, and let not wickedneſs dwell m in thy tabernacles n.

k Either 1. If thou haſt in thine Hand or Poſſeſſion, any Goods got by Injury or Oppreſſion, as it ſeems they ſuppoſed that he had. Or 2. more generally, If thou alloweſt thy ſelf in any ſinful practiſes. The hand is put for action, whereof it is the Inſtrument. l Keep thy ſelf at a great diſtance, not only from ſuch actions, but alſo from the very Occaſions and Appearances of them. m Let it not have a quiet and ſettled abode or allowance. n i.e. In thy Habitation, i. e. either in thy ſelf, or in thy Family; whoſe ſins Job was obliged as far as he could to prevent or reform; as he had done *Chap.*1.5. He ſaith Tabernacles, becauſe anciently the Habitations of great Men conſiſted of ſeveral Tents or Tabernacles, as we ſee Gen. 24.67. & 31. 33.

15 For then ſhalt thou lift up thy face o without ſpot p, yea, thou ſhalt be ſtedfaſt q, and ſhalt not fear.

o Which notes Chearfulneſs, and holy Boldneſs and Confidence; as a dejected Countenance notes Grief and Shame. And this fitly follows as the ground of his Confidence, becauſe he ſhould in this caſe have a clear and unſpotted Conſcience, and a ſenſe of his own Innocency. Or without blemiſh, as the word properly ſignifies; i. e. without any ſenſe of guilt, or any ſhame conſequent upon it either from God or Men. The ground of the expreſſion is this, That when Mens Faces are ſpotted with Dirt, they are aſhamed to ſhew them. And Job was charged by his Friends, as having many Spots upon him, yea, ſuch as were not the Spots of God's Children. q Or, firm or fixed: Either 1. as to his outward Condition, which ſhould be conſtantly proſperous. Or rather as to his Mind, which ſhould have ſtrong and comfortable aſſurance of God's Favour, and of his own Safety and Happineſs: For this ſtedfaſtneſs is oppoſed unto that fear, which is incident to wicked Men; who, even when they are free from actual Miſeries, yet oft-times are tormented with the dread of them.

16 Becauſe thou ſhalt forget thy miſery r, and remember it as waters that paſs away s:

r Thou ſhalt be free from fear, becauſe thy great and ſettled Proſperity ſhall baniſh out of thy Mind all thoſe ſad and irkſom thoughts of thy former Calamities, which naturally ingender fears of the continuance or return of them. Perſons bleſſed with eminent Deliverances, and an happy Settlement, are frequently ſaid in Scripture to forget their former Sorrows, as *Gen.*41.51. Iſa. 54. 4. John 16. 21. not that they ſimply forget them, but becauſe they have no ſad or frightful remembrance of them: For remembring and forgetting in Scripture, do not ſimply note acts of the Mind, but alſo Affections and Practiſes ſuitable to them, as is well known. s Thou ſhalt remember them no more, than Men remember either a Land-flood, which as it comes ſo it goes away ſuddenly, and leaves few or no footſteps or memorials behind it, or the Waters of a River, which as ſoon as they are out of ſight, are out of mind, becauſe of the new Waters which immediately come in their ſtead.

CHAP. XII.

Job's Anſwer: His Friend's Self-conceit: The Miſerable always deſpiſed though Upright: The Wicked proſper, 1——6. God's Power and Providence is ſeen in his Works, 7——11. With the Ancient is Wiſdom, but eſpecially in God, and Power; Judges are Fools, Princes weak and mean, Darkneſs Light before him, 12——22. And whole Nations are over-ruled by him, 23——25.

AND Job anſwered and ſaid,

2 No doubt, but ye are the people a, and wiſdom ſhall die with you b.

a You three, and you only are the people, i.e. People of all People for eminency of Wiſdom, the only company of reaſonable Creatures; all others are but Fools or Beaſts: You have engroſſed all the Reaſon of Mankind; and each of you have as much Wiſdom as an whole People put together. It is an Ironical Expreſſion, as the next Verſe ſheweth. b All the Wiſdom and Knowledge of Divine things which is in the World, lives in you, and will die and be utterly loſt when you die. This you think of your ſelves; and this makes you ſo confidently and peremptorily deliver your Opinions, and give Laws to me and all Mankind, and even to God himſelf.

3 But * I have an † underſtanding c as well as ye, † I am not inferiour to you d: yea, † who knoweth not ſuch things as theſe e?

† Heb. with whom are not ſuch as theſe?

c Heb. an heart; which is oft put for the underſtanding, as Job 34.34. *Jer.*5.21. Acts 8. 22. i. e. God hath given me alſo the Knowledge and Ability to judge of theſe matters. d In theſe things, which he ſpeaketh, not in a way of vain-glorious Boaſting, but for the juſt and neceſſary vindication both of himſelf, and of that cauſe of God, which for the matter and ſubſtance of it he maintained rightly, as God himſelf atteſts, Job 42.7. e The truth is, neither you nor I have any reaſon to be puffed up with our Knowledge of theſe things: For the moſt fooliſh and barbarous Nations know that God is Infinite in Wiſdom, and Power, and Juſtice. But this is not the queſtion between you and me.

4 * I am as one mocked of his neighbour f, who calleth upon God, and he anſwereth him g: * the juſt upright man is laughed to ſcorn h.

* Ch. 16. 10 & 17. 6. & 21. 3. & 30. 1.

f Heb. I am a deriſion (the Infinite Being put for a Noun, as is uſual both in the Hebrew and other Languages) to my neighbour, i.e. to theſe three who have pretended and would be thought to be my Friends and Neighbours; whom therefore ſuch carriage doth very ill become: Inſtead of ſupporting and comforting me, they make a Sport and Scorn of me. g This who belongs either 1. to Job, who here declares his own Practice in this caſe; when you mock me, I go to God with my complaints and Prayers, and he hears me, though you will not. But this ſeems not to agree either with the Context, or with other paſſages of Job; in which he conſtantly complains, that God did not hear nor regard his Prayers, nor pity and help him. Or 2. to Job's Friends; and ſo this is either 1. an Aggravation of their Crime, that they ſhould mock him who made a great Profeſſion of Religion, who uſed duly to call upon God, and to receive anſwers from him, and therefore ſhould have carried themſelves more piouſly and charitably, and compaſſionately towards their miſerable Brother. Or 2. as the reaſon of their Mockage of Job, becauſe God who neglected Job's Prayers, heard theirs, and gave them thoſe Mercies for which they prayed; and therefore being themſelves well and at eaſe, they were hard-hearted towards their poor afflicted Brother, as the manner of Men is. This ſeems to ſuit well with the following Verſe. Or 3. as an Argument againſt their ſcorning or ſlighting of him; God hears you when you pray, therefore you ſhould turn your Mocks of me into Prayers for me; and you ſhould pity me, whom God doth not hear when I Pray: And as God hears you, ſo you ſhould hear and comfort me, when I pour out my Complaints to you. But theſe words may be brought in mimetically, as being ſome of their ſcoffing words: They ſay of me, Let him call upon God, and God will hear him: For ſo they had ſuggeſted to Job, Chap. 5. 8. & 8.5, &c. & 11.13. But this, ſaith Job, I take for a piece of Mockery, and inſulting over my Miſeries: For I know by ſad Experience, and they ſee the contrary, that though I call and cry again and again, yet God hath no regard to me. h i.e. I, who, notwithſtanding all their hard Cenſures and Reproaches, muſt and dare ſtill own it, that through God's Grace I am a juſt and upright Man, am derided by them. This he repeats again, becauſe it was very grievous and burdenſom to him.

5 He that is ready to ſlip with his feet i, is as a lamp deſpiſed k in the thought of him that is at eaſe l.

i i.e. The juſt Man laſt mentioned, who is upon the brink of the Pit or Grave, ready to fall into miſchief, ſo as never to riſe again in this World, which is my caſe, and the occaſion of their ſcorn and contempt. k i. e. Like a Lamp or Torch, which whilſt it ſhines clearly and in a dark Night, is very uſeful and comfortable; but when it draws towards an end, and is nigh extinct, and in the light, is neglected and deſpiſed, as that which is unneceſſary and troubleſom, and offenſive. So the ſame man, who, when his Feet ſtand faſt, in a proſperous Condition, is magnified and adored by all; when his feet ſlip or ſtumble, as the Phraſe is, *Pſal.*94.18. Jer. 13.16. when he is in miſery, is commonly forſaken and deſpiſed. l i.e. In the Opinion of a Man that lives in great Eaſe and outward Happineſs; which generally makes Perſons to forget and deſpiſe thoſe who are in Affliction. But theſe words are a little otherwiſe rendred, and that agreeably to the order of the words in the Hebrew Text, He (which is eaſily underſtood out of verſe 4. the juſt and upright man) is as a Torch deſpiſed in the opinion or thought, (as this or the like words coming from the ſame Hebrew Root are uſed, Pſal. 146.4. *Dan.*6.3. Jon. 1. 6. Or becauſe of the ſplendour; for ſo this Root and its Derivatives elſewhere ſignifie, as Cant. 5. 14. Jer 5.28. Ezek. 27. 19. And either of theſe ſignifications agree well with the place. Or, compared with the ſplendor, or greater Luſter and Glory) of him that lives in tranquility; he, (i. e. the Juſt Man) is (or, becauſe he is; for this may be the reaſon of the contempt) ready to ſlip with his foot; i. e. ready to periſh.

experience; which ſhews that the moſt wicked and injurious, and impudent Oppreſſors, Tyrants and Robbers, are ſo far from meeting with thoſe Diſappointments and Miſeries, wherewith thou didſt threaten them, that they commonly ſucceed in their curſed Enterprizes, and flouriſh in Wealth and Glory, and fill their Houſes with the Goods of others which they violently took away; whereof the Chaldeans and Sabeans, Chap. 1. 15, 17. are a preſent and pregnant Evidence. n They whoſe common practice it is to deſpiſe and provoke God, are confident and ſecure, live without Danger or Fear. o So far is God from cruſhing ſuch Perſons, that he ſeems to favour them with wonderful Succeſs, and by his ſpecial and more than common Providence, puts into their hands the Opportunities which they ſeek, and the Perſons and Goods of other more Righteous Men which they lie in wait for.

God's Providence doth order things in the like manner among the very Beaſts, and Fowls, and Fiſhes; of which the moſt Ravenous and Miſchievous fare the beſt, whilſt thoſe which are more Harmleſs and Serviceable, and Beneficial to Men, meet with the hardeſt uſage. Or 2. y As the Mouth taſteth and thereby judgeth of Meats, and as it liketh or diſliketh, ſo it receiveth or rejecteth what is put into it; ſo it is the Office of the Ear, or rather of the Mind, which hears and receives the Opinions and Diſcourſes of others by the Ear, not raſhly to approve or condemn every thing which it hears, but diligently and thoroughly to ſearch and try whether it be true, and ſo to be embraced; or falſe, and to be rejected. Interpreters are much puzzled about the Connexion and Deſign of theſe words: But they ſeem to be either 1. An Apology for himſelf, why he did not comply with their Opinion and Arguments, becauſe they did not ſuit with his Ear or Mind; and though he had conſidered and tried them, he could not diſcern any weight in them. Or, rather 2. a Reproof to his Friends, that they did ſo haſtily condemn his Perſon and his Doctrine without a ſtrict and ſerious Enquiry. Or, 3. a Preface to his following Diſcourſe; whereby he invites them to hear and judge of his Words and Arguments more candidly and impartially; and not to ſcorn all that he ſaid, becauſe of his preſent Poverty and Miſery, as Men at eaſe uſe to do; nor to caſt away the good for any mixture of bad with it; but calmly to weigh and debate things both within and among themſelves and with him, that they and he too might all agree in diſallowing whatſoever ſhould appear to be falſe, and owning of every truth.

14 Behold, he * breaketh down d, and it cannot be built again: he || ſhutteth † up e a man, and there can be no opening f.

d To wit, Houſes, Caſtles, Cities, which God deſigneth to deſtroy utterly. e If he will ſhut up a Man in Priſon, or in any ſtraits or troubles. f Without God's Permiſſion and Providence.

15 Behold, he with-holdeth the waters g, and they h dry up: alſo he ſendeth them out, and they overturn the earth.

g Which are reſerved in the Clouds, that they may not fall upon the Earth. h i. e. The Waters upon the Earth, Ponds, and Springs, and Brooks, and Rivers.

16 With him is ſtrength and Wiſdom i: the deceived and the deceiver are his k.

i He doth the things here mentioned in the foregoing and ſucceeding Verſes, and that both powerfully, ſo as no Creature can reſiſt and hinder him, and wiſely ſo as none can prevent and overreach him. The ſame thing he had ſaid before, v. 13. but he repeats it here to prepare the way for the following Events, which are eminent Inſtances, both of his Power and Wiſdom. k i. e. From or by him, and wholly ſubject to his diſpoſal. That one Man deceiveth another, and that the other is deceived by him, either in Divine, or Civil and Worldly things, (which ſeem to be principally intended here by comparing the following Verſes,) this is from God, and by the conduct of his wiſe and powerful Providence. God giveth to the Deceiver more Wit, and Knowledge, and Art, and withal Opportunity, and all favourable Circumſtances for his Deceit. He alſo gives leſs Underſtanding to the Deceived, and withdraws from him either wholly, or in part, that common Light of Diſcretion, which is his Free Gift, and he may juſtly give, or take away as he pleaſeth, and leaves him to his own Ignorance and Error, Pride and Self-conceit, and to all thoſe Prejudices, Paſſions, and Luſts, which commonly corrupt Mens Minds, and to the Power and Crafts of Satan, that grand Deceiver. He governs the Deceiver, and ſets bounds to his Deceits, to whom, and when, and how far they ſhall extend; as is manifeſt from Deut. 13. 1. 1 Kings 22. 20. Iſa. 19. 14. Ezek. 14. 9. Matt. 24. 24. 2 Theſſ. 2. 11. Rev. 20. 3, 8. He alſo over-rules all this to his own Glory, and the accompliſhment of his righteous Deſigns of trying the good, and puniſhing wicked Men, by giving them up to believe Lies. Yet God is not the Cauſe or Author of any Error or Sin, but only the wiſe and holy Governour and Diſpoſer of it.

l The wiſe Counſellors or Stateſmen, by whom the Affairs of Kings and Kingdoms are ordered, he leadeth away as Captives in triumph, being ſpoiled either of that Wiſdom which they had, or ſeemed or pretended to have; or of that Power and Dignity which they had enjoyed. m Partly by diſcovering their Folly, and partly by infatuating their Minds, and turning their own Counſels to their ruin: Of which ſee 2 Sam. 15. 31. & 17. 14, 23. Iſa. 19. 11. 1 Cor. 1. 19.

18 He looſeth the bond of kings n, and girdeth their loins with a girdle o.

n Either 1. Paſſively, whereby they are bound. He freeth them from Priſon or Reſtraint. Or rather 2. Actively, that wherewith they bind their Subjects to Obedience, to wit, their Power and Authority, and that Majeſty which God ſtamps upon Kings, to keep their People in awe: All which God can, and oft doth take away from them, and freeth the People from their Bonds, when it pleaſeth him: Of which all Hiſtories give Inſtances: See Dan. 2. 21. o Either 1. With a Girdle of Dignity and Glory, which was put upon the Loins of Men in great Honour and Authority, as Iſa. 11. 5. & 22. 21. Jer. 13. 1, 2. So this member of the Verſe is oppoſite to the former, and the ſenſe of the whole is, he either caſteth down Kings, or raiſeth them up, as he pleaſeth. But the Scripture no where mentions this Girdle as one of the Ornaments of Kings. Or rather, 2. With a ſervile Girdle: For ſeeing all, both the foregoing and ſucceeding paſſages do evidently note acts of Judgment or Puniſhments, inflicted upon them, it ſeems improper to underſtand this alone of an act of God's Favour to them. So the ſenſe is, He reduceth them into a mean and ſervile Condition; which is thus expreſſed, becauſe Servants did uſe to gird up their Garments (which after the manner of thoſe parts and time were looſe and long) that they might be fitter for attendance upon their Maſters; of which ſee Luke 12. 37. and 17. 8. And ſo this is an amplification of the former ſentence. He not only depoſeth them from their Thrones, but brings them into Bondage and Slavery.

19 He leadeth princes p away ſpoiled, and overthroweth the mighty.

p So this word, which uſually ſignifies Prieſts, is oft uſed, as Gen. 41. 45. & 47. 22, 26. Exod. 2. 16. 2 Sam. 8. 18. Compared with 1 Chron. 18. 17.

q Either 1. By taking away or reſtraining the Gift of Utterance from them, that they ſhould not be able to expreſs their Thoughts with ſuch clearneſs and Power as they uſed to do; which God oft doth to wiſe and eloquent Men. Or 2. By bringing them into ſuch ſtraits and troubles that they know not what to ſay or adviſe. Or 3. By taking away their Underſtanding which ſhould ſuggeſt and direct their Speech, as it here follows. Or 4. By permitting them to betray their Truſt, and either not to ſpeak when they ſhould, or to ſpeak otherwiſe than they ſhould, and to uſe their Wit and Rhetorick, not to direct, but to deceive, and ſo deſtroy a Prince. r i. e. Of thoſe wiſe and eloquent Counſellors, that were, and for their great Abilities might be truſted by the greateſt Princes with all their Affairs.

21 * He poureth contempt upon princes s, and || weakneth t the ſtrength of the mighty. *Pſal. 107. 40. Dan. 2. 21. || Or, looſeth the girdle of the ſtrong.

s i. e. He makes them contemptible to their Subjects and others. t Heb. He looſeth the Girdle. Which Phraſe ſignifies Weakneſs, as Iſa. 5. 27. as the girding of the Girdle notes Strength and Power, as Iſa. 22. 21. & 45. 5. Both theſe Phraſes being taken from the quality of their Garments, which being looſe and long, did diſ-inable a Man for Travel or Work.

22 He * diſcovereth deep things out of darkneſs u, and bringeth out to light the ſhadow of death. *Ch. 28. 3. Dan. 2. 22. Mat. 10. 26 1 Cor. 4. 5.

u i. e. The moſt ſecret and crafty Counſels of Princes, which are contrived and carried on in the dark.

23 * He encreaſeth the nations, and deſtroyeth them x: he enlargeth the nations y and † ſtraitneth them again z. * Pſal. 107. 38. † Heb. leadeth in.

x What hitherto he ſaid of Princes, he now applies to Nations and People, whom God doth either increaſe or diminiſh as he pleaſeth. y He multiplies them ſo that they are forced to ſend forth Colonies into other Lands. z Or, leadeth them in: or, bringeth them back into their own Land, and confineth them there.

* Pſal. 107. 40.

24 He taketh away the heart a of the † chief b of the people of the earth, and * cauſeth them to wander in a wilderneſs where there is no way c.

a Which ſignifies either, 1. Their Courage, as Pſal. 76.12. or rather, 2. Their Wiſdom and Counſel, as Job 5.13. Iſa. 3.4. as the following words ſhew. b Either for Place and Power: or for Wiſdom and Conduct. c i. e. Fills them with confuſion, and uncertainty, and perplexity of mind, ſo that they know not how to govern themſelves or their People.

25 They grope d in the dark without light e, and he maketh them to † ſtagger like a drunken man f.

d Like men that cannot ſee their way. e Two Phraſes expreſſing the ſame thing, emphatically to expreſs their profound darkneſs. f Who reels hither and thither without any certainty. So they ſometimes take one courſe, and ſometimes another, as reſolving to try all Experiments, and indeed not knowing what to do.

CHAP. XIII.

Job's friends not wiſer than he: he would reaſon with God; but they were lyars, and talked deceitfully for God, who would ſearch and reprove them for accepting perſons, 1——10. God's excellency, and they as aſhes and clay, 11, 12. He is reſolute, being in extream miſery, and having confidence in God, before whom he would ſpeak, and God ſhould ſave him; not ſo with an hypocrite, 13——16. He ordereth his cauſe to plead with God; only deſireth a removal of God's hand upon him, 17——22. His requeſt, to know his ſins and God's purpoſe, ſince God delighteth not in our miſery, 23——28.

LO, mine eye hath ſeen all this, mine ear hath heard and underſtood it a.

a All this which either you or I have diſcourſed concerning the infinite Power and Wiſdom of God, I know, both by ſeeing it, i.e. by my own Obſervation and Experience, and by hearing it from my Anceſtors; ſo that I did not need your tedious and impertinent diſcourſes concerning thoſe matters.

* Ch. 12.3. 2 * What ye know, the ſame do I know alſo: I am not inferiour unto you.

* Ch. 23.3. 3 * Surely I would ſpeak to the Almighty b, and I deſire to reaſon with God.

b According to thy wiſh, Ch. 11. 5. I had rather debate the matter with God than with you. I am not afraid of preſenting my Perſon and Cauſe before him, who is a Witneſs of my Integrity, and would not deal ſo unmercifully with me as you do.

* Ch. 6.21. & 16.2. 4 But ye are forgers of lies c; * ye are all Phyſicians of no value d.

c i. e. Authors of Falſe Doctrine, to wit, that great Afflictions are peculiar to Hypocrites and wicked Men. d Unfaithful and Unſkilful, preſcribing bad Remedies, and miſapplying good ones.

5 O that ye would altogether hold your peace, and it ſhould be your wiſdom e.

e For then your Ignorance and Folly had been concealed, which is now manifeſt. Compare Prov. 17. 28.

6 Hear f now my reaſoning, and hearken to the pleadings of my Lips g.

f i. e. Attend to it, and conſider it more ſeriouſly than you have done. g i. e. To the Arguments which I ſhall produce.

* Ch. 17.5. & 32. 21. & 36. 4. 7 * Will ye ſpeak wickedly for God h? And talk deceitfully for him?

h Will you utter Falſhoods upon pretence of pleaſing God, or of maintaining God's Honour or Juſtice? Doth he need ſuch defences?

8 Will ye accept his Perſon i? Will ye contend k for God l?

i Not judging according to the right of the Cauſe, but the quality of the Perſon, as corrupt Judges do. k i. e. Wrangle and quarrel with me, and cavil at my Speeches, and pervert my meaning. l i. e. That you may gratifie him, or defend his Rights?

9 Is it good m that he ſhould ſearch you out n? or as one mocketh another, do ye ſo mock him o?

m Will it be to your Credit and Comfort? n i. e. Narrowly examine your Hearts and Diſcourſes, whether you have uttered Truth or Falſhood, and whether your Speeches proceed from true Zeal for God, or from your own Prejudices and Paſſions, and from a deſire to curry Favour with him. o To wit, by covering your uncharitableneſs and corrupt affections with pretences of Piety, as if God could not diſcern your Artifices; or by pleading his Cauſe with weak and fooliſh Arguments, which is a kind of mockery to him, and an Injury to his Cauſe; or by ſeeking to flatter him with falſe Praiſes, as if he did diſtribute the things of this World with exact Juſtice, proſpering only the good, and ſeverely afflicting none but wicked Men.

10 He will ſurely reprove you p, if ye do ſecretly q accept Perſons.

p i. e. Puniſh you; as this word is oft uſed, as hath been once and again obſerved. q Though it be concealed in your own Breaſts, and no Eye ſee it; yea, though it be ſo cloſe that your own Minds and Conſciences, through Ignorance, or Inadvertency, or Slothfulneſs, do not perceive it, yet He, who is greater than your Conſciences, ſees and knows it.

11 Shall not his Excellency r make you afraid s? and his dread fall upon you?

r His infinite Wiſdom which ſees your ſecret Falſhoods, and his Juſtice and Power, which can and will puniſh you for it. s Of ſpeaking raſhly or falſly of his Ways and Counſels.

12 Your remembrances t are like unto aſhes; your Bodies u are like to Bodies of Clay.

t Either 1 Actively, i. e. your Memorials, or your Diſcourſes and Arguments by which you deſign to bring things to my remembrance. So he might poſſibly allude to that paſſage, Chap. 4. 7. Remember I pray thee, &c. That, and all your other Memento's are like unto aſhes, i. e. contemptible and unprofitable: Heb. are Parables, or Speeches of duſt, or aſhes. Or 2. Paſſively, all that which is moſt excellent and memorable in you; your Wealth, and Dignity, and Wit, and Reputation, or whatſoever it is for which you expect or deſire to be remembered, it is all but poor deſpicable duſt and aſhes: And therefore you have juſt reaſon to abhor your ſelves, and to dread the Divine Majeſty, as I now adviſed you. u Though they be not full of ſores and boils as mine is, yet they are but duſt, and to duſt they ſhall return as well as mine. Heb. Your backs, which, being the ſtrongeſt part of the Body, is put for the whole Body. Or, Your Eminences, or Excellencies, as this word moſt properly ſignifies, as Hebricians obſerve, ſo it anſwers to their memorables. All thoſe things wherein you do, or think that you do excel others, are but like Eminencies, or Lumps, or heaps of Clay, vain and uſeleſs things, if compared with the Excellencies of God. Or, Your heights, i. e. your lofty Diſcourſes are like Clay, i. e. without ſolidity and ſtrength.

13 † Hold your peace x, let me alone that I may ſpeak y, and let come on me what will z. † Heb. be ſilent from me.

x Do not now interrupt me in my Diſcourſe; which peradventure he obſerved by their geſtures, ſome of them were now attempting. y That I may freely utter my whole mind. z For the event of my Diſcourſe with God, wherewith you threaten me, I am willing to ſubmit my ſelf to him, to do with me as He pleaſeth: For I know He will not judge ſo ſeverely and partially of me, or my words, as you do, but will accept what is good, and paſs by any circumſtantial defects in my Perſon or Speech, as knowing that I ſpeak from an upright heart.

14 Wherefore do I take my fleſh in my teeth, and put my life in mine hand (z)?

(z) According to this Tranſlation the Senſe ſeems to be this, If you ſpeak truth, and God puniſheth none but wicked Men, why doth he bring me (whom he knows to be no Hypocrite, as you ſlander me) to that extremity of pain and miſery, that I am almoſt conſtrained to tear, and eat my own Fleſh (which is mentioned as the Character of Men in great anguiſh, Iſa. 9. 20. & 49. 26.) and am ready to lay violent hands upon my ſelf? Is it ſo great a crime to complain in this caſe, or at leaſt to enquire into the cauſe of this unwonted ſeverity: But this ſenſe ſeems not well to ſuit either with the fore-going or following Verſes, but to come in abruptly. Others therefore render the words thus; Why ſhould I take my fleſh in my teeth, &c. And ſo this may be either 1. A reaſon of his ardent deſire of liberty of Speech, becauſe he could hold his Tongue no longer, but muſt needs tear himſelf to pieces, if he had not ſome vent for his grief. So this agrees well both with v. 13. where he deſired this freedom, and with v. 19. where the ſame Senſe is expreſſed in plainer words. Or, 2. An Antidote againſt deſpair. I perceive, O my Friends, by your Diſcourſes, that you intend to drive me to utter Deſpair, if I do not turn to God in another manner than yet I have done. Which if it were true, I ſhould certainly tear my Fleſh, and violently take away my own Life: But I ſee no reaſon why I ſhould give way to any ſuch deſpair or deſperate Actions? And this alſo hath a good dependance upon the fore-going words; Let come on me what will. (q. d. But I have no reaſon to fear ſuch Conſequences as you ſuggeſt, nor to deſpair of a merciful Audience and Relief from God;) and a good connexion with thoſe which follow, v. 15. where he declares his Hope and Confidence in God. The Phraſe of having ones Life in his hand, notes a condition extreamly dangerous, and almoſt deſperate, as Judges 12.3. 1 Sam. 19.5. & 28.21. Pſal. 119.109.

15 * Though he ſlay me a, yet I will truſt in him b: but c I will † maintain mine own ways d before him e. * Pſ. 23.4. Pro. 14.32. † Heb. prove or argue.

a Though God ſhould yet more and more encreaſe my torments, ſo that I could bear them no longer, but ſhould perceive my ſelf to be at the point of Death, and without all hopes of Recovery in this World. b Or, ſhall I not truſt in him? Should I deſpair? No, I will not. I know he is a juſt, and a faithful, and merciful God, and he knows that mine Heart is upright before him, and that I am no Hypocrite. c Though I will truſt in him, yet I will humbly expoſtulate the matter with him. d I will argue, or prove, or demonſtrate my ways, i. e. I will make a full free Confeſſion of the whole courſe of my life, and I will boldly, though ſubmiſſively, aſſert mine own Integrity, which he alſo will, I doubt not, acknowledge. And what I have done amiſs I will as freely confeſs, and make ſupplication to my Judge for the pardon of it. e Before his Tribunal: for I deſire no other Judge but him.

16 He alſo ſhall be, (or is) my ſalvation f: for g an hypocrite ſhall not come before him.

f I reſt aſſured that he will ſave me out of theſe Miſeries ſooner or later, one way or other, if not with a temporal, yet with an eternal Salvation after Death; of which he ſpeaks, Chap. 19. 25, &c. g Or, but, as this Particle commonly ſignifies; for this Clauſe is put by way of oppoſition to the former; and the ſenſe is, But if I were an Hypocrite, as you alledge, I durſt not preſent my ſelf before him to plead my Cauſe with him, as now I deſire to do, nor could I hope for any Salvation from, or with him in Heaven.

17 Hear diligently my ſpeech h, and my declaration i with your ears.

h This he deſired before, v. 6. and now repeateth, either becauſe they manifeſted ſome neglect or diſlike of his Speech, and ſome deſire to interrupt him: Or, becauſe he now comes more cloſely to his buſineſs, the foregoing Verſes being moſtly in way of Preface to it. i i. e. The words whereby I declare my Mind.

18 Behold now, I have ordered my † cauſe k; I know that I ſhall be juſtified l. † Heb. judgment.

k To wit, within my ſelf. I have ſeriouſly and ſincerely conſidered the ſtate of my caſe, and what can be ſaid either for me, or againſt me, and am ready to plead my Cauſe. l i. e. Acquitted by God from that Hypocriſie and Wickedneſs wherewith you charge me, and declared a righteous and innocent Perſon, human Infirmities excepted.

19 Who is he that will plead with me m? for now if † hold my tongue, I ſhall give up the ghoſt n.

m Where is the man that will do it? Nay, O that God would do it: which here he implies, and preſently expreſſeth. n My grief for God's heavy Hand, and for your bitter Reproaches would break my Heart, if I ſhould not give it vent.

20 Only do not two things unto me o: then will I not hide my ſelf from thee p.

o Which two he expreſſeth, *v.*21. p Then ſhall I boldly preſent my ſelf and cauſe before thee.

*Ch.34. ...33.7. 21 * Withdraw thine hand far from me q: and let not thy dread make me afraid r.

q i. e. Suſpend my Torments during the time of my pleading with thee, that my Mind may be at liberty. r Do not preſent thy ſelf to me in terrible Majeſty, neither deal with me in rigorous Juſtice; but hear me meekly, as one man heareth another, and plead with me upon thoſe gracious terms, wherewith thou uſeſt to deal with Mankind.

22 Then call thou, and I will anſwer: or let me ſpeak, and anſwer thou me s.

s Then chuſe thy own Method. Either do thou charge me with Hypocriſie, or more than common Guilt, and I will defend my ſelf: Or I will argue with thee concerning thy extraordinary Severity towards me; and do thou ſhew me the Reaſons of it. This Propoſal ſavoured of too great Self-confidence, and of Irreverence towards God; for which, and ſuch like Speeches, he is reproved by God, *Chap.*38.2,3. & 40.2.

23 How many are mine iniquities and ſins t? Make me to know my tranſgreſſion and my ſin u.

t That I am a ſinner I confeſs; but that I am guilty of ſo many or ſuch heinous Crimes as my Friends ſuppoſe, I utterly deny; and if it be ſo, do thou, O Lord, diſcover it to my ſhame. u If peradventure my heart deceive me therein; for I am not conſcious to my ſelf of any enormous Crime.

*Deut.32. 20. ...th 1.21. Chap.16.9. & 19.11. & 33.10.

24 Wherefore hideſt thou thy face x, and * holdeſt me for thine Enemy y.

x i. e. Withdraweſt thy favour and help which thou didſt uſe to afford me; as this Phraſe is commonly uſed, as *Deut.*31.17. *Pſal.*13.1. & 102.2, &c. y i. e. Dealeſt as ſharply with me, as if I were thy profeſſed Enemy.

*Iſa.42.3 25 * Wilt thou break a leaf driven to and fro? and wilt thou purſue the dry ſtubble z?

z Doth it become thy infinite and excellent Majeſty to uſe all thy might to cruſh ſuch a poor, impotent, frail Creature as I am, that can no more reſiſt thy Power, than a Leaf, or a little looſe and dry Straw can reſiſt the fury of the Wind or Fire.

26 For thou writeſt a bitter things b againſt me, and

a i. e. Thou appointeſt or inflicteſt. A Metaphor from Princes or Judges, who anciently uſed to write their Sentences or Decrees, concerning Perſons, or Cauſes, brought before them. See *Pſ.*149.9. *Jer.*22.30. John 19.22. b i. e. A terrible Sentence, or moſt grievous Puniſhments. c Thou doſt now at once bring upon me the puniſhment of all my ſins, not excepting thoſe of my Youth, which, becauſe of the folly and weakneſs of that Age, are uſually excuſed or winked at, or, at leaſt, but gently puniſhed.

27 * Thou putteſt my feet alſo in the ſtocks d, and † lookeſt narrowly unto all my paths e; thou ſetteſt a print upon the † heels of my feet f.

d Thou encompaſſeſt me with thy Judgments, that I may have no way or poſſibility to eſcape. e When thou haſt me faſt in Priſon, thou makeſt a ſtrict and diligent ſearch into all the Actions of my life, that thou maiſt find matter to condemn me. f i. e. Thou followeſt me cloſe at the heels, either to obſerve my Actions, or to purſue me with thy Judgments, ſo that thou doſt oft tread upon my heels, and leave the prints of thy Footſteps upon them.

28 And he g, as a rotten thing, conſumeth; as a garment that is moth-eaten.

g Either, 1. Man, or Job, ſuppoſed to be God's Adverſary in this conteſt. So he ſpeaks of himſelf in the third Perſon, as is uſual in this and other Sacred Books. So the ſenſe is, He, i.e. this poor frail Creature, this Carkaſs or Body of mine; which poſſibly he pointed at with his Finger, conſumeth or pineth away, &c. So he mentions here the effect of God's ſevere proceedings againſt him, to wit, his Conſumption and utter Deſtruction, which was making haſte towards him. Or, 2. God, of whom he hitherto ſpoke in the ſecond Perſon, and now in the third Perſon, ſuch changes of Perſons being very frequent in Poetical Writings, ſuch as this is. So he continueth the former Diſcourſe, and as before he mentioned God's ſevere Enquiry into his ways, and Sentence againſt him, ſo here he deſcribes the Conſequence and dreadful Execution of it upon him: He, i. e. God, conſumeth (for the Verb is Active) me as rottenneſs conſumeth that in which it is, or as a rotten thing is conſumed, and as a Moth which eateth a Garment.

CHAP. XIV.

Man's natural miſery, ſin, and ſhort life, our plea with God not to diſturb us by his power, but ſuffer us to accompliſh our appointed time, 1——6. The other Creatures decay and revive; but Man once dead, returneth not, till the end of all things, 7——12. He wiſheth to be hid in the Grave in hopes of the Reſurrection, 13——15. for that here God was ſtrict in marking his iniquity, and prevailed againſt him, 16——20. Man's miſery with reſpect to his Children, 21,22.

† Heb. ſhort of days. * Eccleſ. 2.23.

MAn that is born of a Woman a, is † of few days b, and * full of trouble c.

a This expreſſion is here uſed, either, 1. To intimate the cauſe of Man's Miſery, that he was born of Woman, a weak Creature, 1 Pet. 3. 7. and withal corrupt and ſinful, and of that Sex by which ſin and all Calamity was brought into the World. See *Chap.*15.14. and Gen. 3.17. 1 *Tim.*2.13,14. Or, 2. To note the univerſality of the thing, Every Man, every Mothers Son, as we uſe to ſpeak. Mens Fathers are oft times unknown and uncertain, but their Mothers are always definite and certain. One Man was then to be born, and afterwards was born without an earthly Father, to wit, our Lord and Saviour Chriſt; but no Man was ever born without a Mother. b A ſhort liv'd Creature in himſelf, and therefore needs no violent hand to cut him off, becauſe he withereth ſo ſoon of his own accord. c And therefore a fitter object for Divine compaſſion, than for his fury or ſeverity. He chiefly intendeth himſelf, but he expreſſeth it thus generally, partly to relieve himſelf with the thoughts of the common Calamities of Mankind; and partly to move God with the conſideration of the frailty and miſery of human Nature, and conſequently of his Condition.

2 * He cometh forth d like a flower e, and is cut down: he fleeth alſo as a ſhadow f, and continueth not. * Ch. 8.9. Pſ.90.5,6. & 102.11. & 103.15. & 144.4. Iſa. 40. 6. James 1. 10,11. 1 Pet.1.24.

d Out of his Mothers Womb, *Chap.*1.21. e Which quickly groweth up and maketh a fair ſhew, but ſoon withereth, or is cut down. f Which being made by the Sun, follows its motions, and is in perpetual variation, until at laſt it quite vaniſh and diſappear.

3 And doſt thou open thine eyes upon ſuch an one g, and bringeſt me into judgment with thee h?

g Either, 1. To take thought or care about him. Or rather, 2. To obſerve all his ways, that thou maiſt find cauſe of puniſhment. He is not a fit match for thee. It is below thee to contend with him, and to uſe thy infinite Wiſdom and Power to cruſh him. This ſeems beſt to ſuit with the ſcope and context. h i.e. Pleadeſt with me by thy Judgments, and thereby, in a manner, forceſt me to plead with thee, without granting me thoſe two neceſſary and favourable Conditions, expreſſed *Chap.*13.20,21.

4 † Who * can bring a clean thing out of an unclean i? Not one k. † Heb. Who will give. * Gen.5.3. Pſal.51.5. John 3.6. Rom. 5.12. Epheſ.2.3.

i I do not ſay, I am clean, as Zophar pretendeth, Chap. 11.4. but confeſs that I am a very unclean Creature, and therefore liable to thy Juſtice, if thou wiltſt deal rigorouſly with me: but remember that this is not my peculiar caſe, but the common lot of every Man, who, coming from ſinful Parents, and being infected with original Corruption, muſt unavoidably be unclean. Why then doſt thou inflict ſuch peculiar and extraordinary Judgments upon me, for that which is common to all men? And although my original Corruption do not excuſe my actual ſins, yet I hope it may procure ſome mitigation to my puniſhments, and move thy Divine Pity, which oft ſheweth it ſelf upon ſuch occaſions. See *Gen.*8.21. k i.e. No man can cleanſe himſelf, or any other from all ſin. See 1 Kings 8.46. Pſal. 14.3. Eccleſ. 7.21. This is the Prerogative of thy Grace, which therefore I humbly implore of thee.

5 Seeing his days l are determined m, the number of his months are † with thee n, thou haſt appointed his bounds that he cannot paſs o. † Ch. 7. 1.

l The days, or (as it follows) months of his Life. m Are by thy Sentence and Decree limited to a certain period. n i. e. Exactly known to thee. Or, in thy power and diſpoſal. o Thou haſt appointed a certain end of his days, beyond which he cannot prolong his Life. And therefore let this ſhort Life, and unavoidable Death, ſuffice for Man's puniſhment, and do not add further and ſorer Calamities.

6 * Turn from him p that he may † reſt q, till he ſhall accompliſh as * an hireling his day r. * Ch.7.16, 19. † Heb. ceaſe. * Ch. 7. 1.

p Withdraw thine afflicting hand from him. q That he may have ſome preſent comfort and eaſe. Or, and let it ceaſe, to wit, the affliction, which is ſufficiently implied. Others, And let him ceaſe, to wit, to live, i. e. Take away my Life. But that ſeems not to agree with the following clauſe of this Verſe, nor with the ſucceeding Verſes. r Give him ſome reſpite, till he finiſh his Courſe, and come to the period of his Life, which thou haſt allotted to him, as a man appoints a ſet time to a mercenary ſervant.

7 For there is hope of a tree, if it be cut down, that it will ſprout again s, and that the tender branch thereof will not ceaſe.

s But Man, though a far nobler Creature, is in a much worſe condition, and when once he loſeth this preſent and wordly Life, he never recovers it: Therefore ſhew ſome pity to him, and give him ſome Comfort whilſt he lives.

8 Though the root thereof wax old t in the earth, and the ſtock thereof die u in the † ground: † Heb. duſt.

t Begin to wither and decay. u To wit, in outward appearance.

9 Yet through the ſent of water x it will bud, and bring forth boughs like a plant y. † Heb. is weakned or cut off.

x i. e. By means of Water. Sent or Smell is figuratively aſcribed to a Tree. y Like a Tree newly planted.

10 But man dieth, and † waſteth away z: yea, man giveth up the ghoſt, and where is he a?

z His Body by degrees rotting away; Or, and is cut off, as this word is uſed, *Exod.*17.13. *Iſa.*14.12. a i. e. He is no where, or, he is not, to wit, in this World, as that Phraſe is commonly uſed. See Job 3.16. & 7.8,21.

11 As the waters fail from the ſea, and the flood decayeth, and drieth up b:

b This may be underſtood, either 1. By way of oppoſition, The Waters go, or flow out of the Sea, and return thither again, Eccleſ. 1. 7. and a Lake, or River ſometimes decayeth, and drieth up; but afterwards is recruited and repleniſhed. But man lieth, &c. as it follows. Or, 2. By way of reſemblance, As Waters, i.e. ſome portion of Waters, fail from the Sea, being either exhaled or drawn up by the Sun, or received and ſunk into the dry and thirſty Earth, or overflowing its Banks; and as the Flood, or a River, or a Pond, (for the word ſignifies any conſiderable confluence of Waters) in a great drought decayeth, and is dried up: in both which caſes the ſelf ſame Waters never return to their former places. So it is with man. Or thus, as when the Waters fail from the Sea, i.e. when the Sea forſakes the place into which it uſed to flow, the River which was fed by it, Eccleſ. 1.7. decayeth and drieth up without all hopes of recovery, ſo Man, when once the Fountain of his radical moiſture is dried up, dies, and never revives again.

c To wit, in his Bed, the Grave, or to ſleep the ſleep of Death, as this Phraſe is uſed, *Gen.*46.30. *Deut.*31.16. 2 Sam. 7.12. 1 Kings 1. 21. d To wit, to this Life: For he ſpeaks not here of the Life to come, nor of the Reſurrection of the Body after Death by the Divine Power; of his belief whereof he giveth ſufficient evidences in divers places. e i. e. Either, 1. Never; becauſe the Heavens, though they ſhall be changed in their Qualities, yet ſhall never ceaſe to be as to the Subſtance of them. And therefore everlaſting and unchangeable things are expreſſed by the duration of the Heavens; of which ſee *Pſal.*72.5.7,17. & 89.30,36,37. Matth. 5. 18. & 24.35. Or, 2. not until the time of the general Reſurrection, and the Reſtitution of things, when theſe viſible Heavens ſhall paſs away, and be no more, at leaſt in the ſame form and manner as now they are: Of which ſee *Pſal.*102.26. Luke 21.33. 2 *Pet.*3.7,10. *Rev.*21.1.

† Heb. hell. 13 O that thou wouldeſt hide me in † the Grave f, that thou wouldeſt keep me ſecret g, until thy wrath be paſt h, that thou wouldeſt appoint me a ſet time i, and remember me k.

f Either, 1. In ſome dark Vault under Ground, ſuch as good men hide themſelves in in times of Perſecution, Heb. 11.38. Lord hide me in ſome hiding place from thy Wrath, and all the intolerable effects of it, which are upon me: for I cannot be hid from thee, but by thee. Or, 2. In the Grave, properly ſo called. Though I know Life once loſt is irrecoverable, yet I heartily deſire Death, rather than to continue in theſe Torments. And if the next words and wiſh ſeem to ſuppoſe the continuance of his Life, that is not ſtrange: For he ſpeaks like one almoſt diſtracted with his Miſeries, ſometimes wiſhing one thing, ſometimes another, and the quite contrary, as ſuch Perſons uſe to do. And theſe Wiſhes may be underſtood disjunctively, I wiſh either that I were dead, or that God would give me Life free from theſe torments. Or the place may be underſtood thus, I could wiſh, if it were poſſible, that I might lie in the Grave for a time, till theſe Storms be blown over, and then be reſtored to a comfortable Life. g In ſome ſecret and ſafe place, under the ſhadow of thy Wings and Favour, that I may have ſome ſupport and comfort from thee. h Whilſt I am oppreſſed with ſuch grievous and various Calamities, which he calls God's Wrath, becauſe they were, or ſeemed to be, the effects of his Wrath. i To wit, to my Sufferings, as thou haſt done to my Life, v. 5. k i. e. Wherein thou wiltſt remember me, to wit, in mercy, or ſo as to deliver me: For it is well known that God is frequently ſaid to forget thoſe whom he ſuffers to continue in Miſery, and to remember thoſe whom he delivers out of it.

† Heb. my warfare. 14 If a man die, ſhall he live again l? all the days of † my appointed time will I wait till my change come m.

l i. e. He ſhall not, namely in this World, as was ſaid before. The affirmative queſtion is equivalent to an abſolute denial, as *Gen.*18.17. *Pſal.*56.7. Jer. 5.9. and every where. m Seeing Death puts an end to all mens hopes of any comfortable being here, becauſe man once dead never returns to life; I will therefore wait on God, and hope for his favour whilſt I live, and it is poſſible to enjoy it, and will continue waiting from time to time, until my change come, i.e. either 1. Death, the great and laſt Change; which is expreſſed by the root of this word, Job 10.17. Or, 2. The change of my Condition for the better, which you upon your Terms encourage me to expect, and which I yet truſt in God I ſhall enjoy; for this word properly ſignifies Viciſſitudes or Changes in ones Condition; and this ſeems to ſuit beſt with the following Verſe. And this Change, or a comfortable Life here Job ſo heartily wiſheth, not only from that love of Life and Comfort which is naturally implanted in all men, good and bad, and is not forbidden by God, which alſo was ſtronger in thoſe Old Teſtament Saints, when the diſcoveries of God's Grace to ſinners, and of Eternal Life, were much darker than now they are; but alſo becauſe this would be an effectual vindication of his own Integrity and Good-name, and of the honour of Religion, both which did ſuffer ſome Eclipſe from Job's extream Calamities, as is evident from the Diſcourſes of his Friends.

* Ch. 40.3. 15 Thou ſhalt * call, and I will anſwer thee n: thou wilt have a deſire to the work of thine hands o n I truſt there is a time coming when thou wiltſt grant me the Mercy which now thou denieſt me, to wit, a favourable hearing, when thou wilſt call to me to ſpeak for my ſelf, and I ſhall anſwer thee; which I know will be to thy ſatisfaction and my comfort. Compare this with Chap. 13. 22. where the ſame words are uſed in this ſame ſenſe. Or, thou ſhalt call me out of the Grave of my Calamities, and I ſhall anſwer thee, and ſay, Here I am, raiſed out of the Pit in which I was buried by thy powerful and gracious Command. o i. e. To me who am thy Workmanſhip in divers reſpects, from whom thou now ſeemeſt to have an averſion and abhorrency, but I doubt not thou wiltſt have a deſire, i. e. ſhew thy Affection or Good-will to me; or a deſire to look upon me, and to deliver me. Nor is it ſtrange that Job, who lately was upon the brink of Deſpair, doth now breathe out words of Hope, ſuch Ebbings and Flowings being uſual, both with Job elſewhere, as *Chap.*13.15,16. and with David frequently in the Pſalms, and with others of God's People.

* Pſal. 139. 2,3. Ch. 13.27. Prov. 5.21. Jer. 32. 19. 16 * For now p thou numbreſt my ſteps q, doſt thou not watch over my ſin r?

p So this is a reaſon of his deſire of Death, v. 13. Or rather, But now; for this ſeems to be added by way of oppoſition. I believe thou wiltſt pitty and help me, but for the preſent it is far otherwiſe with me. q Thou makeſt a ſtrict enquiry into all my actions, that thou maiſt find out all mine Errours, and puniſh them. Compare Job 13.27. & 31.4. & 34.21. *Pſal.*56.6. r i. e. Doſt thou not watch for my Haltings, or Miſcarriages, as if thou waſt glad of an occaſion to puniſh me? Or, thou doſt not delay the puniſhment of my ſin: For the ſame Hebrew word ſignifies both ſin, and its puniſhments.

17 My tranſgreſſion is ſealed up in a bag s, and thou ſeweſt up mine iniquity t.

s As Writings or other choice things, that they may be ſafely kept, and all of them brought forth upon occaſion, and not one of them forgotten or loſt. Compare Deut. 32.34. Job 37.7. Hoſ. 13.12. t i. e. Thou keepeſt all my ſins in thy memory, and faſteneſt the guilt of them upon my Conſcience. Or, thou addeſt to my ſin, one ſin to another, the follies of my youth, Job 13.26. to thoſe of my riper years. Or, thou addeſt to my puniſhment, i. e. thou puniſheſt me more than mine Iniquities deſerve, all things conſidered. For this ſinful thought ſeems ſometimes to have riſen in Job's mind, as may be gathered from divers parts of this Book: which therefore Zophar decries, and diſproves, Job 11.6.

18 And ſurely as the mountain falling † cometh to nought u: and the rock is removed out of his place: † Heb. fadeth.

u As when a great Mountain falls, either by an Earthquake or Inundation of Waters, or from any other cauſe, it moulders away like a fading Leaf, (as the Hebrew word ſignifies) and never recovers its former height and ſtability, and as the Rock, when by the violence of Winds or Earthquake, &c. it is removed out of its place, and thrown down, is never re-advanced. And as the waters by continual droppings, or violent and frequent aſſaults, wear away, or break the ſtones to pieces, ſo as they can never be made whole again: And as thou waſheſt away, to wit, by a great and violent Inundation which thou ſendeſt, the things which grow out of the duſt of the Earth, to wit, Herbs, and Fruits and Plants, which once waſhed away are irrecoverably loſt, and, or (ſo as this Particle is oft uſed, i. e. in like manner, to wit, irrecoverably,) thou deſtroyeſt the hope of man; i. e. So when man dies, all hope of living again in this World is utterly loſt: and this ſeems to be the plain meaning of theſe two Verſes. And as before he declared the hopeleſneſs of mans reſtauration from death to this animal life, by way of oppoſition to ſuch things as did riſe in a manner from death to life, v. 7, &c. ſo now he declares it by way of ſimilitude or reſemblance to ſuch things, as being once loſt and gone, are paſt all hopes of recovery.

19 The waters were the ſtones: thou † waſheſt away the things which grow out of the duſt of the earth, and thou deſtroyeſt the hope of man. † Heb. overflowest.

20 Thou prevaileſt for ever againſt him x, and he paſſeth y: thou changeſt his countenance, z and ſendeſt him away a.

x When once thou takeſt away this life it is gone for ever: For he ſpeaks not here of Man's future and eternal life in another World. y i. e. He dieth, or is about to die: Man's death is oft called a paſſage or a going; to intimate that it is not an annihilation, but only a tranſlation of him into another place and ſtate. z Either, 1. His Viſage, which by Death and its Harbingers, is quite transformed in colour and ſhape, as we ſee by daily experience. Or, 2. The face and ſtate of his Affairs, as to worldly Riches, and Pleaſures, and Honours, all which he leaves behind him. a To his long home by death.

21 His ſons come to honour, and he knoweth it not b; and they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them.

b Either, 1. is ignorant of all ſuch events: Or, 2. is not concerned nor affected with them. A dead or dying man minds not theſe things.

22 But his fleſh upon him ſhall have pain, and his ſoul within him ſhall mourn c.

c This is man's condition; he is miſerable both when he dies, becauſe he dies without hope of returning to life, as he had diſcourſed before; and (as he now adds) whilſt he lives, whilſt his fleſh is upon him, and his ſoul within him; whilſt the ſoul is clothed with or united to the body, he feels ſharp pain in his body, and bitter grief in his ſoul. Seeing therefore the ſtate of man upon earth is ſo vain and unhappy every way, Lord give me ſome comfort to ſweeten my life, or take away my life from me.

CHAP. XV.

Eliphaz's reproof: Job's knowledge and talk vain: he feareth not God, nor prayeth to him; but his own mouth uttered his iniquity, and ſhould condemn him, 1——6. Job not the wiſeſt of men, 7, 8. nor wiſer than they, who were elder then he, 9, 10. He deſpiſed the conſolations of God, and turned away his ſpirit againſt him, 11——13. The Angels not clean in God's ſight; much leſs man, 14——16. A deſcription of the Ancients: their wiſdom and reports concerning deſtruction, and terrours on the wicked, and the cauſes of it, 17——35.

THen anſwered Eliphaz the Temanite, and ſaid,

2 Should a wiſe man a utter † vain knowledge b, and fill his belly c with the eaſt wind d! † Heb. knowledge of wind.

a Such as thou ſeemeſt and pretendedſt to be. b i. e. Empty words without any ſenſe or ſolidity in them. c i. e. Satisfie his own Mind and Conſcience, which being ſecret is compared to the Inwards of the Belly; as Chap.32.19. *Prov.*20.27. & 22.18. d i.e. With Diſcourſes which are not only flaſhy and unprofitable, and without any weight, but alſo boiſterous and pernicious both to himſelf and others; as the Eaſt-wind was in thoſe parts, Gen. 41. 6. Exod. 10. 13. *Hoſ.*12.1.

3 Should he reaſon with unprofitable talk? or with ſpeeches wherewith he can do no good e?

e Either to himſelf or others, but much hurt; which is implied by the contrary, as is uſual.

4 Yea, † thou caſteſt off fear f, and reſtraineſt ‖ prayer g before God. † Heb. thou makeſt void. ‖ Or, ſpeech.

f Heb. Thou makeſt void fear; i. e. the fear of God, as the word is oft uſed for the word of God; or Piety and Religion, which oft cometh under the name of fear. This may be underſtood, either 1. Of Job himſelf; that he caſt off all Reverence to God, by uttering ſuch bold and reproachful expreſſions concerning God and his Providence. Or, 2. with reſpect to others; that by his inſolent and unworthy ſpeeches of and carriage towards God, and by thoſe falſe and pernicious principles which he had laid down; as that God dealt with men in way of abſolute Soveraignty, not of Juſtice; and that he made no difference between good and bad in the courſe of his Providence, but did equally proſper or afflict both of them: he did that which tended to the ſubverſion of the fear and worſhip of God. g As this Hebrew word ſignifies alſo, Pſal. 102.1. Or, meditation or ſpeech; which well agrees to Prayer which is accompanied with ſerious thoughts and expreſſions. The ſenſe is, either 1. In ſtead of humble and fervent Prayer to God, which thy Condition calleth for, thou breatheſt forth falſe and blaſphemous ſpeeches againſt him. Or, 2. Thou doſt by thy words and examples, and principles, as far as in thee lies, baniſh Prayer out of the World, by making it uſeleſs and unprofitable to men.

11 Are the conſolations of God ſmall with thee r? is there any ſecret thing with thee s?

r Are thoſe Comforts, which we in the Name and according to the Mind, and by the Direction of God, have propounded to thee upon condition of thy true Repentance; Chap. 11.13,14, &c. ſmall and contemptible in thine eyes. s Haſt thou any ſecret and peculiar ground or way of Comfort which is unknown to us, and to all other men, except thy ſelf; for which, or in compariſon of which thou deſpiſeſt our Conſolations as mean and trivial? 15 * Behold, he putteth no truſt in his ſaints c; yea, the heavens d are not clean in his ſight.

c i. e. In his Angels, as appears by comparing Chap. 4.18. who are called his Saints or Holy ones, Deut. 33.2. Pſal. 103. 20. Dan. 4. 13, 23. Matth. 18.10. & 24.36. Who though they were created holy, yet he could not be confident in them, nor they be confident in themſelves that they would continue in their Integrity if they were left to themſelves, and not upheld by God's ſpecial Grace and Aſſiſtance. See the Notes on Job 4.18. d Heb. and the heavens, i. e. either, 1. The Heavens properly ſo called; which though they be free from thoſe drouſie mixtures which are and appear in heavenly bodies, yet are not abſolutely pure, but have ſome ſpots and blemiſhes in them; as Philoſophers have diſcovered, and the All-ſeeing God knoweth: Compare Chap. 25.5. where the ſtars are ſaid not to be pure: Unleſs the ſtars alſo there be metaphorically put for the Angels, as they are Job 38.7. and for other holy Miniſters of God, as Dan. 8.10. Rev. 1. 16, 20. & 12.1,4. 2. The Angels that dwell in Heaven; Heaven being oft put for its Inhabitants; either for God, as Pſa. 73.9. Dan. 4.26. Luke 15.18, 21. Or for the Angels that dwell in Heaven, as Pſal. 89.6. & 148.1, 2. So this is a repetition of the ſame thing in other words. And theſe are not pure; to wit, ſimply and perfectly, and comparatively to God; in which, and ſuch like reſpects, God only is ſaid to be good and wiſe, and immortal. The Angels are pure from corruption, but not from imperfection, nor from a poſſibility of ſinning, if God ſhould withdraw his help from them.

e Who beſides his natural proneneſs to ſin, hath contracted habits and cuſtoms of ſinning, and ſinneth as freely and eaſily, as greedily and delightfully, as frequently and abundantly as men, eſpecially in thoſe hot Countries, uſed to drink up water. But this did not Job: And therefore though the things delivered by him and the reſt be true in the general, yet they commit a great errour in miſapplying them to Job, for which therefore they are afterwards reproved.

17 I will ſhew thee f, hear me, and that which I have ſeen g, I will declare.

f I will prove what I have affirmed, that ſuch ſtrokes as thine are peculiar to Hypocrites and Wicked men. g I ſpeak not by hear-ſay, only but from my own experience.

18 Which wiſe men h have told from their fathers i, and have not hid it k:

h Who are moſt able to be Witneſſes and Judges in theſe matters. i Or Anceſtors; who diligently obſerved this, and carefully tranſmitted their own judgment and experience ſucceſſively, to their Poſterity. k They judged it to be ſo certain and important a truth, that they would not conceal it in their own breaſts, but made conſcience of publiſhing it for the inſtruction and comfort of ſucceeding Ages.

19 Unto whom alone the earth was given l, and no ſtranger m paſſed among them n.

l Either, 1. By the ſpecial and gracious gift of God: whereas wicked men invaded their parts of the Earth, and took them away by force. Or, 2. By the choice and conſent of the People, who for their great and known wiſdom and vertue conferred this power and truſt upon them. This he alledgeth partly to make their Teſtimony more conſiderable, becauſe theſe were not obſcure, and mean, and fooliſh men, whoſe words are commonly deſpiſed, but the moſt worthy and famous men in their places and ages; and partly to contradict and confute what Job had ſaid, Chap. 9. 24. That the earth was given into the hand of the wicked. By the earth he means either the dominion of the earth, to wit, of that part of the earth in or nigh which Job and his friends lived: Or rather, the poſſeſſion of the earth; i. e. of a great portion of worldly goods: Or particularly, the land, or that land (as the word properly ſignifies) to wit, the land of Canaan, which was given by ſpecial gift unto Abraham (from whom it ſeems moſt probable that both Job and his Friends were deſcended) and to Iſaac and to Jacob: who though they met with ſome common and ordinary afflictions, yet enjoyed a great meaſure of comfort and wealth, and honour, and power in the World, as the Fruits of God's Bleſſing, and of his Covenant made with good men, whilſt wicked men were expoſed to manifold Diſtreſſes and grievous Calamities. All which thoſe holy Patriarchs diligently obſerved, and induſtriouſly imparted to their Children, to encourage them to continue and proceed in the ways of true Piety. But how was the Earth or Land given to them alone, as is here ſaid? Anſwer, Either, 1. Becauſe Noah and his Sons (of whom ſome underſtand theſe words) had the ſole poſſeſſion and dominion of the Earth. Or, 2. Becauſe Canaan was given to Abraham and to his Seed alone: And ſome of Abraham's Children had the dominion of, or an ample poſſeſſion in thoſe parts where Job and his Friends lived, who alſo ſeem to be in the number of them. Or, 3. Becauſe they only had it either by God's ſpecial and gracious Providence, or by the choice and approbation of the People; whereas wicked men took it by Rapine and Violence, without asking leave either from God or Men. m i.e. The Enemy; for ſuch are called ſtrangers both in Scripture, as Prov. 5.10. Iſa. 1.7. Ezek. 11.9. & 28.10. and in other Authors. No perſon of a ſtrange Nation and Diſpoſition, or Religion. n i. e. Through their Land, as this phraſe is uſed, Numb. 20.18. to wit, ſo as to moleſt or diſturb, or ſpoil them, as the Sabeans and Caldeans did thee. God watched over thoſe wiſe and holy men ſo carefully, that no Enemy ſhould invade them; and ſo he would have done over thee, if thou hadſt been ſuch an one.

20 The wicked man travelleth with pain o all his days, and the number of his years is hidden p to the oppreſſor q.

o i. e. Lives a life of care, and fear, and grief, by reaſon of God's Wrath, and the Torments of his own Mind, and his manifold and dreadful outward Calamities. p i.e. He knows not how ſhort the time of his tyranny and life is, and therefore lives in continual fear of loſing them. The number of a good man's years are alſo hid from him as well as they are from the wicked men: But to thoſe this is a great torment and miſchief; whereas it is not ſo to him. Or, and a few years (Heb. a number of years, put by a common Hypallage, for years of number; as few years are called, Job 16. 22. becauſe they are ſoon numbred; as men of number, is put for a few men, Gen. 34.30. Deut. 4. 27. & 33.6.) are laid, or treaſured up; i. e. are allotted to him by God's ſecret Counſel; for God cuts off ſuch men in the midſt of their days, Pſal. 55.23. whereas long life is promiſed, and commonly given to righteous men. q i. e. To the wicked man: but he names this one ſort of them, the Oppreſſors, partly becauſe he ſuppoſed Job to be guilty of this ſin, Chap. 22.6. partly in oppoſition to what Job had affirmed of the ſafety and happineſs of ſuch perſons, Chap. 12. 6. and partly becauſe ſuch are moſt apt to expect and promiſe to themſelves a longer and happier life than other men, becauſe of their ſingular preſervatives and advantages of life above other men.

21 † A dreadful ſound is in his ears r: * in proſperity the deſtroyer ſhall come upon him s.

* 1 Theſſ. 5.3.

r Even when he feels no evil, he is tormented with perpetual fears and expectations of it from the ſenſe of his own guilt, and of God's all-ſeeing eye and righteous judgment. See Lev. 26.36. Deut. 28.65. s Or, ſhall invade and deſtroy him ſuddenly and unexpectedly: which is a great aggravation of it.

22 He believeth not that he ſhall return out of darkneſs t, and he is waited for of the ſword u.

t i.e. When he falls into trouble, he deſpairs of God's mercy and of deliverance, by reaſon of his guilty Conſcience: Which he ſpeaks with particular reflection upon Job, who would receive no comfort nor matter of hope. u i.e. Beſides the Calamity which is upon him, he is in conſtant expectation of further and greater miſeries; for the ſword is oft uſed fot any grievous affliction; as Luke 2.35.

* Pſ.59.15. & 109.10. * Ch.18.12

23 He * wandreth abroad for bread, ſaying, Where is it x? he knoweth y that * the day of darkneſs z is ready at his hand a.

x His Poverty is ſo great, that he is forced to wander hither and thither to ſeek for Bread, and cannot find it. A juſt puniſhment for him that took away the Bread and Subſtance of others by violence. y He is aſſured of it from his own guilty Conſcience. z i.e. The time of his total and irrecoverable and everlaſting deſtruction. a i.e. Ready to ſeize upon him, or take him by the hand or ſhoulder like a Serjeant to arreſt him. The words may well be rendred, was prepared by his hand; i.e. by his works or actions; which being moſt commonly done with the hand, are oft called by that name, as Exod. 14.31. Judges 9.16. *Prov.*10.4. & 12.24. So the ſenſe is, He is conſcious to himſelf that by his wicked life he hath prepared and ſtored up Calamities and Deſtruction for himſelf, and therefore he expected nothing leſs.

24 Trouble and anguiſh ſhall make him afraid b; they ſhall prevail againſt him, as a king ready to the battel c.

b i.e. When trouble comes, in ſtead of truſting and hoping, and comforting himſelf in God, as good men do in ſuch caſes, as 1 Sam. 30.6. he is full of torment and dread of the iſſue of it, and concludes it will end in his utter ruine, as he hath great reaſon to do. c Or, prepared or furniſhed; or diſpoſed with his army round about him, as this word ſeems to ſignifie.

25 For d he ſtretcheth out his hand againſt God e, and ſtrengthneth himſelf f againſt the Almighty g.

d Now he gives the reaſon of all the forementioned Calamities which befel him, which was his great wickedneſs in the time of his peace and proſperity. e i.e. He commonly and cuſtomarily ſinned againſt God with an high and out-ſtetched hand; i. e. boldly and preſumptuouſly, as one that neither deſired his favour, nor feared his anger. f i.e. He putteth his Forces in array, as if he would fight with him. g Which aggravates the madneſs of this poor contemptible Worm that durſt fight againſt the Omnipotent God.

26 He runneth upon him h, even on his neck i, upon the thick boſſes of his bucklers k:

h i. e. Aſſaults him, or ruſheth upon him with great ſwiftneſs and fury; as this Phraſe ſignifies, Dan. 8.6. This he, is either, 1. God, who was expreſſed twice in the laſt Verſe, and who is here produced as entring the Liſts and fighting with his daring Adverſary. Or rather, 2. The wicked man, of whom and whoſe ſin and miſery he ſpeaks in the whole Context, both before and after this; who in the laſt Verſe was introduced as preparing for the Battel, and here as actually and impudently fighting with him. i As a ſtout Warrier who cometh cloſe to his Adverſary and grapples with him, and taketh him by the Neck to throw him down. Compare 2 *Sam.*2.16. Job 16.12. Or, with his Neck. So it is a Metaphor from a mad and raging Bull, which runs upon his Enemy with an hard and ſtiff Neck. k i.e. Even where his Enemy is ſtrongeſt: He is not diſcouraged with the Enemies thick and ſtrong, and eminent Shields, but boldly ventures in upon them, and amongſt them. Or, with the thick boſſes (Heb. the thickneſs and eminency) of his ſhields, wherewith he invaded the enemy, that ſo he might both defend himſelf, and offend his enemy; for the ancient Shields were uſeful both ways, becauſe they had a ſharp Iron or Steel in the midſt of them.

27 Becauſe he covereth his face with his fatneſs l, and maketh collops of fat on his flanks m.

l This is mentioned as the reaſon of his inſolent carriage towards God, becauſe he was fat; i.e. rich and potent, and ſucceſsful, as that expreſſion ſignifies, *Deut.*32.15. *Pſal.*78.31. *Jer.*46.21. His great proſperity made him proud and ſecure, and regardleſs of God and Men. m His only care and ſtudy is to pamper and pleaſe himſelf, and obey his own mind and luſts, and in defence and purſuance of them he contends with God.

28 And he dwelleth in deſolate places n, and in houſes which no man inhabiteth, which are ready to become heaps o.

n Theſe words may note either, 1. His tyranny and cruelty, whereby he makes the places of his abode and dominion deſolate by his frequent Murders, Spoils and Oppreſſions, wherewith he deſtroyeth great numbers of his People, and forceth others to flie out of his reach. Or, 2. His Pride and Power, and Wealth; which enabled and engaged him to build deſolate Houſes and Cities for his own glory and ſafety, and conveniency: Of which ſee the Notes, or Chap. 3.14. Or, 3. His Puniſhment and Miſery, that for his Impiety towards God, and Oppreſſion of Men, he was driven out of his Dominions and Poſſeſſions, and forced to flie into deſolate places for ſafety and an habitation. This ſeems beſt to agree with the Hebrew words, which run thus; But (for ſo the Particle and, is commonly uſed, as hath been oft ſaid) he ſhall dwell, &c. And ſo this is fitly oppoſed to this laſt mentioned Proſperity, and is the beginning of the deſcription of his Miſery, which is continued in the following Verſes. o Which were ready to fall, and to be turned into an heap of Stones.

29 He ſhall not be rich p, neither ſhall his ſubſtance continue q, neither ſhall he prolong the perfection thereof r upon the earth.

p i.e. Not abide rich, but ſhall become poor. q What he had gotten ſhall be taken from him; r i.e. The perfection of his Subſtance, or that compleat Eſtate and Glory which he hath attained, ſhall not be continued to him and to his Poſterity. Or, neither ſhall their perfection (i.e. that Proſperity and Wealth, and Power wherein they placed their perfection or happineſs) ſpread it ſelf, or be propagated or ſpread abroad, but ſhall be diminiſhed and taken away: It is a Metaphor from a Tree. Compare Job 8.16.

30 He ſhall not depart out of darkneſs s, the flame t ſhall dry up his branches u, and by the breath of || his mouth x ſhall he go away y. || That is, God's mouth.

s His Miſery ſhall have no end. t God's Anger and Judgment upon him. u Either 1. his Children; or, 2. Wealth, and Power, and Glory, wherewith he was encompaſſed and adorned and ſecured, as Trees are with their Branches. x i.e. Of God's Mouth, as appears both by comparing this with v. 25. where God is expreſſed as the Adverſary with whom this wicked Wretch contendeth: and by the nature of the thing, and the whole Context, all this Man's Calamities being manifeſtly the effects of God's anger; and by other places of Scripture, where the breath of God's mouth or lips are mentioned, as that whereby he deſtroyeth wicked men; as Job 4. 9. Iſa. 11.4. 2 *Theſſ.*2.8. And this expreſſion intimates to us, with how much facility God ſubdueth his Enemies, he needs no Arms or Inſtruments; his Word, his Blaſt, one Act of his Will is more than ſufficient to do it. y Heb. go back; i. e. retreat and run away from God faſter than he did run towards and upon him, v. 26. So it is a continuation of the former Metaphor of a Battel or Conflict between two perſons.

31 Let not him that is deceived, truſt in vanity z: for vanity a ſhall be his recompence b.

z i.e. In the vain and deceitful things of this World, ſuch as Power, Riches, Honour, &c. of which, and of the loſs of them, he had been largely diſcourſing; and now he ſubjoyns a general Caution to all Men to take heed of running into the ſame Errour and Miſchief with the fore-mentioned perſons: And withal he ſecretly intimates Job's great ſin which was the cauſe of his ruine; to wit, his carnal confidence in thoſe vain things, the Wealth, and Glory, and Children which God had given him: from which Crime he therefore vindicates himſelf hereafter. a i.e. Diſappointment and diſſatisfaction, and the vaniſhing or loſs of all their imaginary felicity. The ſame word vanity, being elegantly repeated in another ſenſe, as is uſual in Scripture and all Authors. b Heb. his exchange; he ſhall exchange one vanity for another, a pleaſing vanity for a vexatious vanity. But this Verſe is and may be rendred otherwiſe; the Hebrew Particle al, being here, as it is elſewhere, taken for a ſimple Negation. Thus, He that is deceived with vanity (i.e. with the vain things of this World, wherewith moſt men are deceived and bewitched) will not believe that vanity (i.e. emptineſs and diſappointment, and miſery) ſhall be his recompence. And ſo this is an aggravation of his Calamity, that it ſurprized him when he was confident and ſecure from all fears of ſuch an event.

32 It ſhall be || accompliſhed c * before his time d, || Or, cut off * Ch.22.16 Pſal.55.23 and his branch e ſhall not be green f.

c To wit, that which was laſt mentioned, that vanity ſhould be his recompence. Or, it; i. e. his Branch mentioned in the next Clauſe of the Verſe, from which it is underſtood in this former Clauſe, as is very uſual in the holy Scripture, ſhall be conſumed, or cut off. d i. e. When by the courſe of Nature, and common Providence, it might have continued and flouriſhed much longer. e Either, 1. his Glory and Proſperity. Or rather, 2. his Children; by comparing *v.*34. where the deſolation is ſaid to fall upon all the Congregation and Tabernacles of theſe men: And ſo he reflects upon Job who loſt his Children. f i. e. Shall not continue to flouriſh, as it had done.

33 He g ſhall ſhake off h his unripe grapes i as the vine k, and ſhall caſt off his flower as the olive l.

g Either, 1. The wicked man, who by his ſins is the Author of his own ruine. Or, 2. God, who is eaſily underſtood both from the Matter and Context. h Heb. Shall take away by violence. i i. e. His Fruit, his Children, or other Comforts before their time. k i.e. As the Vine either it ſelf droppeth, or rather loſeth its tender Grapes, which are plucked off by a violent hand. l Which flouriſheth much about the ſame time with the Vine, and is commonly handled in the ſame manner.

34 For the congregation m of hypocrites ſhall be deſolate n, and fire o ſhall conſume the tabernacles of bribery p.

m i.e. Their Children, and Servants, and Friends, and Dependents. n i. e. Utterly deſtroyed. o i. e. Some eminent and terrible Judgment of God, which is oft expreſſed by fire; as *Iſa.*9.19. and 26.11. p i. e. Which were either built or maintained by extortion and bribery, and ſuch like unrighteous Courſes, whereof they thought Job guilty, *Chap.*22.8.

35 * They conceive miſchief q, and bring forth * Pſal.7.14. Iſa.59.4. Hoſ.10.13.

q i. e. They deviſe and contrive injurious and pernicious enterprizes againſt others. r Or, iniquity, or injury, or trouble; either, 1. To others: They execute what they had contrived. Or, 2. To themſelves; the miſchief they deſigned for others, falleth upon their own heads, and they reap what they ſowed. s i. e. Their inward parts, their hearts and minds. See above on v. 2. t Either, 1. for others, whom they deſign to cheat: Or, 2. for themſelves, who whilſt they ſeek to deceive others, ſhall find that they themſelves are moſt deceived, as being deprived of all their deſires and hopes wherewith they fed themſelves, and caſt into all thoſe Calamities which they thought to prevent by theſe Artifices.

CHAP. XVI.

Job's anſwer: His Friends increaſe his Miſery, 1——8. His Inſulting Enemies, 9——11. God's Power againſt him, 12——16. His Innocence ſhould cry to Heaven, where it was known: He wiſheth to plead with God, 17——21. Pleaſeth himſelf with the proſpect of Death, 22.

THen Job anſwered and ſaid,

a Both from you, who do ſo odiouſly repeat the ſame things, and from divers others: For theſe things, though you pride and pleaſe your ſelves in them, as if you had made ſome great and ſtrange Diſcoveries, are but vulgar and trivial. b Inſtead of giving me thoſe Comforts which you pretend to do, Chap. 15. 11. and which my Condition loudly calls for, you feed me with Terrors, and Cenſures, and Scoffs.

3 Shall † vain words have an end c? or what emboldneth thee that thou anſwereſt d? † Heb. ords of ind.

c When wilt thou put an end to theſe idle and impertinent Diſcourſes? He retorts upon him his Charge againſt Job, Chap. 15. 2, 3. d To wit, ſo, or in ſuch manner, ſo cenſoriouſly, and approbriouſly, and peremptorily. What ſecret grounds haſt thou for thy Confidence? Thy Arguments are flaſhy and weak; if thou haſt any ſtronger produce them.

4 I alſo could ſpeak as ye do: if your ſoul e were in my ſouls ſtead, I could heap up words againſt you f, and * ſhake mine head at you g. * Lam.2.15

e i. e. Your Perſon, as Gen. 12. 5. f i. e. I could multiply Accuſations and Reproaches againſt you, as you do againſt me. g In way of Deriſion,as this Phraſe is moſt commonly uſed; as 2 Kings 19.21. Pſal. 22. 7. Iſa. 39. 22. Matt. 27. 39.

5 But I would ſtrengthen you h with my mouth, and the moving of my lips ſhould aſſwage your grief i.

h i. e. Direct, and ſupport, and comfort you. i i. e. My Diſcourſe ſhould comfort you. The words, your grief, are here underſtood, either out of the fore-going Clauſe, where they are implied, or out of the next Verſe, where they are expreſſed. Poſſibly the words may be thus rendred without any Elipſis, which is moſt natural, if the Tranſlation be true and ſuitable; Compaſſion (for the Hebrew word nid, comes from nud, which ſignifies to condole) ſhould reſtrain or govern my lips, that they ſhould avoid all Speeches which may vex you, and ſpeak only what may be to your Comfort and Benefit; whereas you let your Tongues looſe to ſpeak whatſoever pleaſeth you, or tormenteth me.

6 Though I ſpeak k, my grief is not aſſwaged: and though I forbear, † what am I eaſed l? † Heb. what geth from me?

k To God by Prayer, or to you in way of Diſcourſe, I find no relief. Job having reproved his Friends for their unkind carriage towards him, and aggravated it by his Reſolutions to have dealt more friendlily with them, if they had been in this caſe; now he returns to his main buſineſs, to deſcribe and aggravate his Miſeries, if by any means he could move his Friends to pity and help him. l Or, what part or grain of my Grief or Miſery departeth from me? I receive not one jot of eaſe. Neither ſpeech nor ſilence do me any good.

7 But m now he n hath made me weary o: thou p haſt made deſolate all my company q.

m Or, ſurely, as this Hebrew Particle moſt commonly ſignifies. n i. e. God, as appears by the following Words and Verſes. o Either of complaining, or, of my Life. p He ſpeaks in the ſecond Perſon to God, as in the former Clauſe in the third Perſon of God: Such change of Perſons are very uſual in Scripture, and elſewhere. q Haſt turned my Society into Deſolation, by deſtroying my Children and Servants.

8 And thou haſt filled me with wrinkles r, which is a witneſs againſt me s: and my leanneſs riſing up in me t, beareth witneſs to my face u.

r By conſuming all my Fat and Fleſh. s Heb. Which is a witneſs of the Reality, and Greatneſs, and juſt cauſe of my Sorrows. Or, which is become or made a witneſs; i. e. is produced by my Friends as a Witneſs of Gods Wrath, and of my Hypocriſie and Impiety. t i.e. Which is in me. Or, riſing up againſt me, as Witneſſes uſe to riſe and ſtand up againſt a guilty Perſon to accuſe him. u As Witneſſes are to accuſe a Perſon to his Face, openly and evidently, ſo as any that look on my Face may plainly diſcern it. But this Clauſe may be rendred thus, My leanneſs in my face; (i. e. which appears in my Face, and cauſeth the Wrinkles which are viſible there) riſeth up againſt me, and beareth witneſs, as before.

9 * He teareth me in his wrath x, who hateth me y: he gnaſheth upon me with his teeth z; * mine enemy a ſharpneth his eyes upon me b. * Chap. 10. 16, 17. * Ch. 13.24

x Heb. His wrath teareth me in pieces, as a Lion doth his Prey. y Heb. And he hateth me; i.e. He purſueth me with a deadly hatred and rage. Or, And he is become mine enemy; Or, he ſets himſelf againſt me with all his might: Or, He treats me like an implacable enemy. z Which is a Geſture, and ſign of extream Anger and Fury; as Pſal. 35. 16. & 37. 12. Lament. 2. 16. as elſewhere of grievous pain; as Luke 13.28. a Either 1. God, who of a Friend is now become my implacable Enemy. Or 2. Eliphaz, who deals with me more like an Enemy than a Friend. b i. e. Looks upon me with a fierce and ſparkling Eye, as enraged Perſons uſe to do.

10 They c have gaped upon me with their mouth d, they * have ſmitten me upon the cheek reproachfully e, they have gathered themſelves together againſt me f. * Lam.3.30 Mich. 5. 1.

c The Inſtruments of God's Anger, my Friends, as they are falſly called. d Opened their Mouths wide againſt me; either 1. to devour and deſtroy me; as a Lion which falls upon his Prey with open Mouth; as this Phraſe is uſed, Pſal. 22. 13, 14. And this they did aggravating and increaſing his Sorrows, whereby he was well-nigh overwhelmed. Or 2. To Scoff and Deride me, as it follows, and as this Phraſe is moſt commonly uſed, as Pſal. 22. 8. & 35. 21. e Or, by reproach; or in way of Scorn and Contempt; whereof ſuch ſmiting was a ſign, as 1 Kings 22. 24. Lament. 3. 30. Mich. 5. 1. The ſign is here put for the thing ſignified: They deſpiſed and derided me. f i. e. They are come from ſeveral places and met together here, not for me, or to comfort me, as they pretended, but rally againſt me, or to torment and grieve me. Heb. they have filled themſelves, &c. Either 1. they have filled up their numbers, they are all come againſt me. Or 2. they have filled their Minds with evil Opinions of me, and their Hearts with Courage and Reſolution to aſſault me, and their Mouths with Words and Arguments againſt me. Compare Eccl. 8. 11. Acts 5. 3.

11 God † hath delivered me to the ungodly g, and turned me over into the hands of the wicked. † Heb. hath ſhut me up.

g Either 1. to my Friends, who act the part of the Wicked, in Cenſuring and Condemning the Righteous whom God approveth, and in pleading for a falſe and wicked Cauſe. Or rather 2. to the Chaldeans and Sabeans, who were a moſt wicked People, living in groſs Contempt of God, and Injurioufneſs to all ſorts of Men. For this beſt ſuits both with the firſt Clauſe of the next Verſe, which ſheweth that he ſpeaketh of Job's firſt Afflictions which befel him when he was at eaſe; and with Job's principal Scope, which was to prove, that both eminent Proſperity and Affliction did indifferently happen to good and bad Men; and this was evident from this example, becauſe holy Job was ruined, when theſe wicked People were moſt Victorious and Succeſsful.

12 I was at eaſe h, but he hath broken me aſunder i; he hath alſo taken me by my neck, and ſhaken me to pieces k, and * ſet me up for his mark l. * Ch. 7. 20.

h I lived in great Peace and Proſperity, which makes my preſent Miſeries more grievous to me; and therefore my Complaints are excuſable, and I deſerve pity rather than reproach from my Friends. i Broken my Spirit with the ſenſe of his Anger, and my Body with loathſom Ulcers, as alſo by deſtroying my Children, a part of my own Fleſh or Body. k As a mighty Man doth with ſome young Stripling, when he wreſtleth with him. l That he may ſhoot all his Arrows into me, and that with delight, which Archers have in that exerciſe.

13 * His archers m compaſs me round about; he cleaveth my reins aſunder n, and doth not ſpare; he poureth out my gall upon the ground. * Ch.19.12 m i.e. His Plagues or Judgments elſewhere compared to Arrows, and here to Archers. n With his Arrows i.e. he wounds me inwardly, and mortally, and incurably; which alſo is noted by pouring out the gall; ſuch Wounds being deadly.

14 He breaketh me with breach upon breach n; he runneth upon me like a giant o.

n My Calamities have no Interruption, but one immediately ſucceeds another, as it did Chap. 1. o Who falls upon his Enemy with all his might, that he may overthrow and kill him.

15 I have ſewed ſackcloth upon my ſkin p, and defiled my horn in the duſt q.

p i. e. I put on Sackcloth ſowed together, not upon my other Garments, but next to my Skin, as was done in great Calamities; as 2 Kings 6. 30. So far am I from ſtretching out my hands againſt God, whereof I am accuſed, Chap. 15. 25. that I have humbled my ſelf deeply under his hand. q I have willingly parted with all my Wealth, and Power, and Glory (as the horn oft ſignifies in Scripture, as Pſal. 75. 5. & 132. 17. Luke 1. 69.) and been contented to lie in the Duſt, and to endure the Contempt which God hath brought upon me.

16 My face is foul with weeping, and on my eyelids is the ſhadow of death r.

r i.e. A groſs and terrible Darkneſs. My ſight is very dim and dark as is uſual in caſe of ſore Diſeaſes, or exceſſive Grief and Weeping, Lament. 2. 11. and eſpecially in the approach of death: Compare Pſal. 6. 7. & 38. 10. Lament. 5. 17.

17 Not for any injuſtice in mine hands s: alſo, my prayer is pure t.

s And all this is not come upon me for any injurious Dealing with others by Oppreſſion, or Deceit, or Bribery, wherewith I am implicitely charged, Chap. 15. 16, 20, 34. but for other reaſons known to God only, for I cannot diſcover them. t I do not caſt off God's Fear and Service, as I am accuſed to do, Chap. 15.4. I do ſtill pray and worſhip God, and my Prayer is accompanied with a ſincere Heart, and undefiled Conſcience: See Pſal. 109. 7. Prov. 28. 9. 1 Tim. 2. 8. So that I have lived inoffenſively towards God and towards Men: And therefore your Aſſertion is both uncharitable and falſe, that eminent Afflictions are peculiar to ungodly Men.

18 O earth, cover not thou my bloud u, and let my cry x have no place.

u So called not actively; to wit, his own Blood, but paſſively or objectively; i. e. the Blood of others ſhed by him and lying upon his Conſcience. The Earth is ſaid to cover that Blood which lies undiſcovered and unrevenged: Of which ſee on Gen. 4. 10, 11. Iſa. 26. 21. But ſaith Job, If I be guilty of deſtroying any one Man by Murder or Oppreſſion, as I am traduced, O Lord, let the Earth diſcloſe it; let it be brought to light, that I may ſuffer condign Puniſhment for it. x Either 1. paſſively, to wit, the Cries and Groans which I have forced from others by my Oppreſſions: Let thoſe Cries have no place to hide them. Or rather 2. actively, the Cry of my Complaints to Men, or Prayers to God; let them find no place in the Ears or Hearts of God or Men, if this be true: Or, no place, i. e. no regard, or no power or ſucceſs; in which ſenſe God's Word is ſaid not to have place in evil Men, John 8. 37. And Eſau not to find place of repentance, Heb. 12. 17. i. e. All his Intreaties and Tears could not prevail with his Father to repent of and retract the Bleſſing given from him to Jacob.

19 Alſo now, behold, my witneſs is in heaven y, and my record † is on high. † Heb. in the high places.

y Beſides the Witneſs of Men, and of my own Conſcience, God is Witneſs of my Integrity.

20 My friends z † ſcorn me a: but mine eye poureth out tears unto God b. † Heb. are my ſcorners z Who ſhould defend me from the Scorns and Injuries of others. a So this word is uſed, Pſal. 119. 51. Prov. 3. 34. & 19. 28. b I pour forth my Prayers and Tears to God, that he would judge me according to my Innocency, and plead my righteous Cauſe againſt you.

21 * O that one might plead for a man * with God c, as a man pleadeth for his ‖ neighbour! * Ch.31.35 Eccl.6. 10. Iſa.45. 9. Rom.9. 20. ‖ Or, friend.

c O that either I or ſome faithful Advocate might be admitted to plead my Cauſe, either with God, or rather with you, before God's Tribunal, God being Witneſs and Judge between us. But this Verſe is, and that very agreeably to the Hebrew Text, otherwiſe tranſlated and interpreted, either 1. With reſpect to Chriſt, And he, (i. e. God laſt mentioned, to wit, God the Son, Chriſt Jeſus) will plead for a man (i. e. for me, againſt whom you plead. He modeſtly ſpeaketh of himſelf in the Third Perſon, as is uſual,) with God, (to wit, with God the Father:) and the Son of Man (as Chriſt is oft called) will plead for his Friend, or Companion, or Neighbour, i. e. For a Man whom he hath taken into that Relation to himſelf. It is plain, that the Myſtery of Mans Redemption by Chriſt was known to the ancient Patriarchs, as hath been oft noted before; and to Job among others, Chap. 19. 25. Or 2. as the matter for which he prayed, and cried to God; That (ſo the Hebrew Vau is frequently uſed) he (i.e. God) would plead, or judge, or give ſentence for a man (i. e. for me, or in my cauſe) with God, (i. e. with himſelf, the Noun being put for the Pronoun, as Gen. 2. 20. & 4. 15. Lev. 14. 15, 16. and elſewhere, or at his own Tribunal, to which I have appealed) as a man pleadeth for his Friend or Neighbour, with or before an earthly Judge and Tribunal. This ſeems moſt agreeable to the Scope of the place, which was to maintain his own Integrity againſt his Friends before God.

22 When † a few years are come, then I ſhall go the way whence I ſhall not return d.

d i.e. To the ſtate and place of the Dead, whence Men do not, and cannot return to this Life. The meaning is, my Death haſtens, and therefore I earneſtly deſire that the cauſe depending before God, between me and my Friends, may be ſearched out and determined, that if I be guilty of theſe things whereof they accuſe me, I may bear the Shame and Blame of it before all Men, and if I be innocent, that I may live to ſee my own Integrity, and the Credit of Religion, (which ſuffers upon this occaſion) vindicated, that ſo I may die in peace with God, and may leave the ſavour of a good name behind me.

CHAP. XVII.

His miſerable Life: Falſe Friends: Their Puniſhment, 1——5. His Contempt; and Sorrow, 6, 7. The Righteous ſhould be eſtabliſhed, 8, 9. But he was given over to death, 11——16.

MY ‖ breath is corrupt a, my days are extinct b, the graves c are ready for me d.

a i. e. It ſtinks, as it doth in dying Perſons. Or, my Spirit is corrupted, or ſpent, or loſt, i. e. My vital Spirits, and natural Powers are waſted; my Soul is ready to leave the Body. b The Lamp of my Life is waſted, and upon the point of going out, and that in a Snuff. c i. e. The Grave; the plural number being put for the ſingular, as Sepulchres, 2 Chron. 21. 20. Cities, Judges 12. 7. Aſſes, Zech. 9. 9. are put for one of each of theſe. d Open their mouths as ready to receive me. The ſenſe and ſcope of this Verſe is the ſame with the former.

2 Are there not mockers with me e? And doth not mine eye f † continue in their provocation?

e Do not my Friends, inſtead of comforting, mock and abuſe me, as if I had made uſe of Religion only as a Cloak to my Wickedneſs. Heb. If there be not mockers with me, underſtand, let God do ſo or ſo to me. It is a form of an Oath, which is defectively expreſſed after the manner of the Hebrews. Aſſuredly I am in the midſt of cruel Mockers, which is a ſore Aggravation of my Affliction. Thus he returns to what he had ſaid, Chap. 16. 20. and intimates the neceſſity and juſtice of his following appeal, which otherwiſe might be thought too bold. f Either 1. The Eyes of my Body. Do they not continue to provoke me to my Face? Or rather 2. The Eye of my Mind. Their provoking Scoffs and Reproaches do not only moleſt me in the day-time when they are with me, but lodge with me in the night, and are continually in my thoughts, and break my ſleep, and diſturb me in Dreams. And therefore if I be a little diſordered, I may be excuſed.

3 Lay down now, put me in a ſurety with thee g, who is he that will ſtrike hands with me h?

g He turneth his Speech either to Eliphaz, who ſpake laſt; or rather to God, as is evident from the matter and ſcope of the words, and from the next Verſe. Theſe words contain, either 1. an humble deſire to God that he would appoint him a Surety, who ſhould undertake for his Friends, that they ſhould refer the cauſe in difference between them to God, or to ſome other Perſon who ſhould determine the matter in God's Name, and according to God's Will: Or that God would be his Surety, or appoint him a Surety who ſhould maintain his righteous Cauſe againſt his Oppoſers; for ſo this Phraſe is oft uſed, as Pſal. 119. 121, 122. Iſa. 38. 14. And ſome expound this, as they did Chap. 16. 21. of Chriſt Jeſus, who was called our Surety, Heb. 7. 22. Appoint, I pray thee, my Surety (i. e. Chriſt who is now) with thee, to plead my Cauſe. Or rather 2. An Appeal from God unto God, or a kind of Challenge or Deſire of debating his Cauſe with God. Which, though it ſavoureth of too much Boldneſs and Irreverence to God, yet ſeeing Job expreſſeth the ſame deſire almoſt in the ſame manner, Chap. 9. 33, 34. and is ſharply reproved by God for contending with him, Chap. 40. 2. I know no Inconvenience of aſcribing the ſame thing to him here. So the ſenſe is, Becauſe I am not able to deal with thee immediately, conſidering the dread of thy Majeſty, my only deſire is, that thou wouldeſt deal with me upon fair and equal terms, as if thou wert a Man like my ſelf, and appoint ſome Man who ſhall in thy name and ſtead determine the time and place for the trial of my cauſe with thee. And this ſuits well enough with the two following Verſes, becauſe his Friends were without Underſtanding, v. 4. and partial, v. 5. therefore he deſires to ceaſe diſcourſing with them, and to debate his Cauſe with God, who was juſt and impartial, and alſo would be favourable to him. h i.e. Agree and promiſe, or be Surety to me; whereof that was the uſual geſture, Prov. 6. 1, 2. & 17. 18. & 22. 26.

4 For thou haſt hid their heart from underſtanding i: therefore ſhalt thou not exalt them k.

i Thou haſt blinded the Minds of my Friends, that they cannot ſee thoſe Truths which are moſt plain and evident to all Men of Senſe and Experience: Therefore I deſire a more wiſe and able Judge. k i. e. Thou wilſt not give them the Victory over me in this Conteſt, but wilſt give Sentence for me, and diſparage them, and make them aſhamed of their Confidence in affirming Falſhoods of thee, and puniſh them ſeverely for their miſcarriage. It is an uſual figure, whereby much more is underſtood than is expreſſed.

5 He that ſpeaketh flattery to his friends l, even the eyes of his children ſhall fail m.

l Hereby Job chargeth them either 1. With flattering him with vain Hopes, and Promiſes of the return of his former Proſperity, when he knew that his caſe was deſperate. Or 2. With flattering and befriending God, and giving a partial ſentence out of reſpect to him; for which he reproved and condemned them before, Chap. 13. 7, 8, 9. where ſee the Notes. Some render the words thus, He that uttereth, or declareth his mind or thoughts (as this word ſignifies, Pſal. 139. 2, 17. with flattery, or to flatter or deceive another. m He ſhall be ſeverely puniſhed, not only in his Perſon, but even in his Children, whoſe Eyes ſhall fail with vain Expectations of Relief and Deliverance out of thoſe Calamities, which ſhall come upon them for this Sin of their Parents.

6 He n hath made me alſo * a by-word o of the people, and p ‖ aforetime q I was as a † Tabret r.

n i. e. God, who is oft deſigned by this Pronoun in this Book. o Or Proverb, or common talk. My Calamities are ſo great and prodigious, that they fill all People with Diſcourſe, and are become proverbial to expreſs extream Miſeries. Compare Numb. 21. 27, 28. Deut. 28. 37. p Or, but, or although, as this Particle is oft uſed. q So he aggravateth his preſent Miſery by the mention of his former Proſperity. Or, to their faces; or openly. They do not only reproach me behind my Back, but revile and mock me, and make a Sport of my Calamities even to my Face. r i. e. I was the Peoples Delight and Darling, and matter of their Praiſe, and entertained by them with Applauſes, and as it were with Inſtruments of Muſick. Or, I am as a Tabret, i. e. matter of ſport and merriment to them.

7 Mine eye alſo is dim by reaſon of ſorrow s, and all ‖ my members are as a ſhadow t.

s Through exceſſive weeping and decay of Spirits, which cauſe a dimneſs in the ſight. t My Body is ſo conſumed, and my colour ſo wan and ghaſtly, that I look more like a Ghoſt, or a Shadow, than like a Man.

8 Upright men ſhall be aſtonied at this u, and the innocent ſhall ſtir up himſelf againſt the hypocrite.

u Wiſe and good Men, when they ſhall ſee and conſider my Calamities, will not be ſo forward to cenſure and condemn me, as you are, but will rather ſtand and wonder at the depth and myſteriouſneſs of God's Counſels and Judgments, which fall ſo heavily upon innocent Men, while the worſt of Men proſper. x But, or Yet, (notwithſtanding all theſe Sufferings of good Men, and the Aſtoniſhment which they cauſe,) innocent (or religious Perſons ſhall be ſo far from joyning their Opinions, and Counſels, and Intereſts, with Hypocrites, or prophane Men, who thence take occaſion to cenſure the afflicted Perſon, and to reproach, and condemn, and deſert the Profeſſion and Practice of Godlineſs, that they) will ſtir up themſelves againſt them in holy Indignation, and will oppoſe their wicked courſes, and will prefer afflicted Piety before proſperous Iniquity.

9 The righteous alſo ſhall hold on his way y, and he that hath clean hands z † ſhall be ſtronger and ſtronger a.

y i. e. Shall perſiſt in that good way into which he hath entred, and not be turned from it by any Afflictions, which may befal himſelf or any other good Men, nor by any contempt or reproach caſt upon them by the Ungodly, by reaſon thereof. z i. e. Whoſe Life and the courſe of his Actions is Holy and Righteous; which is a ſign that his Heart alſo is pure and perfect. a Shall not be ſhaken and diſcouraged by the grievous Afflictions of the Godly, nor by the bitter Cenſures and Reproaches of Hypocrites, or wicked Men, caſt upon them for that cauſe, but will be confirmed thereby, and made more conſtant and reſolute in cleaving to God, and his ways, and People, in ſpight of all Difficulties and Miſeries.

10 But as for you all, * do ye return, and come now b: for I cannot find one wiſe man c among you.

*Ch. 6. 29.

b i. e. Come now again (as this Phraſe is oft uſed) and renew the Debate, as I ſee you are prepared and reſolved to do; and I am ready to receive you. Or, return into your ſelves, and conſider my cauſe again; peradventure your ſecond thoughts may be wiſer. c To wit, in this matter. None of you ſpeak like wiſe or good Men, but like raſh and heady Perſons, you cenſure me as a rotten Hypocrite, and miſjudge of God's ways, and condemn the Generation of God's Children upon frivolous grounds.

11 * My days d are paſt, my purpoſes e are broken off, even † the thoughts of my heart f.

*Chap. 7. 6. & 9. 25.

d The days of my life. I am a loſt and dying man, and therefore the hopes you give me of the bettering of my condition, are vain and groundleſs. e Or, my deſigns, or thoughts, to wit, which I had in my proſperous days, concerning my ſelf and Children, and the continuance of my happineſs. f Heb. The poſſeſſions of my heart; i. e. thoſe thoughts which in a great meaſure poſſeſſed my heart, which were moſt natural, and familiar, and delightful to me. All my thoughts, and deſigns, and hopes are diſappointed and come to nothing.

12 They g change the night into day h: the light is † ſhort i, becauſe of darkneſs k.

†Heb. near.

g Either 1. my Friends. Or 2. my Sorrows, of which he is here ſpeaking. Or 3. my Thoughts laſt mentioned. Poſſibly theſe words may be joyned with them thus: The thoughts of my heart change the night into day. h They do ſo unceſſantly purſue and diſturb me, that I can no more reſt and ſleep in the dark and ſilent nights, than in the midſt of the Light and Tumults of the day. Or, they change the day into night. Heb. they put the night for, or inſtead of (as the Hebrew Lamed is elſewhere uſed) the day, i. e. They make the day as ſad and dark as the night to me. So it ſeems beſt to agree with the following branch of the Verſe. i i. e. The day-light, which oft-times gives ſome little Comfort and Refreſhment to Men in Miſery, ſeems to be gone and fled as ſoon as it is begun. k i. e. Becauſe of my grievous Pains and Torments which follow me by day as well as by night.

13 If I wait l, † the Grave is mine houſe m: I have made my bed in darkneſs n.

l If I ſhould give way to thoſe hopes of my Deliverance and Reſtauration which you ſuggeſt to me. m I ſhould be ſadly diſappointed; for I am upon the borders of the Grave, which is the only Houſe appointed for me, inſtead of that goodly Houſe which you promiſe to me here upon condition of my Repentance. n I expect no other reſt but in the dark Grave, for which therefore I prepare my ſelf.

14 I have † ſaid to corruption o, thou art my father p: to the worm, thou art my mother: and my ſiſter q. † Heb. cried, or called.

o Heb. To the pit of Corruption, the Grave. p I am near a kin to thee, as being taken out of thee, and thou wilt receive and embrace me, and keep me in thy Houſe, as Parents do their Children. q Becauſe of the ſame original, and the moſt ſtrict and intimate Union and Conjunction between me and the Worms.

15 And where is now my hope r? As for my hope s, who ſhall ſee it t?

r And what then is become of that hope which you adviſed me to entertain? s i.e. The fulfilling of my hope, or the Happineſs which you would have me expect. Hope being put for the thing hoped for, as Prov. 13. 12. 1 Cor. 9. 10. t No Man ſhall ſee it; it ſhall never be.

16 They u ſhall go down to the bars of the pit x, when our reſt together is in the duſt y.

u Either 1. They that would ſee my hope, they muſt go into the Grave to behold it. Or rather 2. My hopes of which he ſpake in the ſingular number, v. 15. which he here changeth into the plural, as is very uſual in theſe Poetical Books. x i. e. Into the cloſeſt and innermoſt parts of the Pit: My hopes are dying, and will be buried in my Grave. y So the Senſe is, when thoſe Spectators, together with my ſelf, ſhall be in our Graves. Heb. Seeing that (as this Hebrew Particle, im, oft ſignifies: or, certainly, as it is uſed Numb. 17. 13. Job 6. 13. and elſewhere,) our reſt ſhall be together in the duſt, i. e. I and my hopes ſhall be buried together.

CHAP. XVIII.

Bildad's Reproof: Job's words many: He deſpiſed his Friends: He vexed himſelf; but in vain, 1—4. The Calamity of the wicked, 5—21.

THen anſwered Bildad the Shuhite, and ſaid:

2 How long will it be ere ye a make an end of words? Mark b, and afterwards we will ſpeak.

a Either 1. You my Brethren. Why do you not give over diſcourſing with Job, who is wholly tranſported with Rage, and not fit to be diſcourſed with, at leaſt until both you and he have better conſidered what to ſay. Or rather 2. Thou, O Job, of whom he ſpeaks here, as alſo v. 3. in the plural number, either becauſe there were ſome other Perſon or Perſons preſent at this Debate, who by their Words or Geſtures ſhewed themſelves Favourers of Job's cauſe; or becauſe it was a common Idiotiſm of the Eaſtern Language, to ſpeak thus of one Perſon, eſpecially where he was one of Eminency or Authority. Job's Speeches were generally longer than his Friends, and they ſeemed very tedious to them. b Conſider the matter and our words better. Or, inform us, Heb. make us to underſtand. Seeing thou lookeſt upon us as ignorant and brutiſh Men, as it follows, do thou inſtruct and inform us. Ceaſe cavilling and railing, and produce thy ſtrong Reaſons, that we may conſider and anſwer them, or yield to them.

3 Wherefore are we counted as beaſts c, and † reputed vile d in your ſight e? † Heb. hidden. Lam. 4. 1.

c i. e. Ignorant, blockiſh and ſtupid Men, Chap. 17. 4, 10. d Heb. polluted, or unclean, i. e. not fit to be converſed or diſcourſed with; or contemptible, as ſuch things are. e Either 1. To your Faces, or in your own hearing. Or 2. In thy ſight or Judgment, O Job; ſo he ſpeaks of Job in the plural number, as he did v. 2.

4 He teareth † himſelf f in his anger: ſhall the earth be forſaken g for thee h? and ſhall the rock be removed out of his place i? † Heb. his ſoul.

f i. e. Job, of whom he ſpeaks in the third Perſon for the ſecond, as Chap. 12. 4. & 16. 7. Obad. 3. 3. Or, O thou that teareſt thy ſelf. Thou complaineſt of us for vexing thee with our Speeches, when in truth thou art thy own greateſt Tormenter by thy own Impatience and Rage. g To wit, by God. Shall God give over the Government of the Earth, and Men, and things in it, and ſuffer all things to fall out by chance, and promiſcuouſly to good and bad Men, without any regard to his Truth, or Wiſdom, or Juſtice? Shall God forbear to rule the World righteouſly, as he hath hitherto done, in favouring good Men, and deſtroying the wicked? h i. e. For thy ſake; or to prevent thy Complaints and Clamours. i Shall the Counſels of God, which are more firm and unmoveable than Rocks, and the whole courſe of his Providence be altered to comply with thy Fancies or Humours?

5 Yea, k the light of the wicked ſhall be put out l, and the ſpark of his fire m ſhall not ſhine.

k The thing is true and certain, notwithſtanding the Diſſatisfaction and Oppoſition againſt it. l All their Glory and Felicity ſhall periſh. m i. e. Their higheſt and brighteſt Glory, which he calleth the ſpark, &c. becauſe, like a Spark, it ſhines briskly for a moment, but is quickly extinct.

6 The light ſhall be dark in his tabernacle n, and his ‖ candle ſhall be put out with him o. ‖ Or, Lamp.

n i. e. In his Family. Inſtead of his former Splendor, both he and his ſhall fall into Extremity of Miſery. o i. e. His Glory ſhall die with him, and not deſcend to his Poſterity, as he hoped and deſigned. Or, his Candle, which was with him, or ſhone upon him, ſhall be put out.

7 The ſteps of his ſtrength p ſhall be ſtraitned q, and his own counſel ſhall caſt him down r.

p i. e. His ſtrong Steps, by a vulgar Hebraiſm. By ſteps he means his Counſels, as the next branch explains it, his attempts and actions; and by ſteps of ſtrength, ſuch of them as ſeem to be moſt firm and ſettled, contrived with greateſt Strength of Underſtanding, and carried on with great reſolution and might. q i. e. Shall be hindred and entangled. He ſhall be caſt into great Difficulties, and Troubles, and Perplexities, ſo that he ſhall not be able to proceed, and to accompliſh his Enterprizes, but ſhall find himſelf enſnared by his own Devices, as the next words declare it. This Phraſe is uſed alſo Prov. 4. 11, 12. and it is oppoſed to the enlarging of a Man's Way or Steps, which ſignifies Succeſs and Proſperity, as Pſal. 4. 1. & 31. 8. r He ſhall be undone by his own Contrivances, either becauſe God will give him up to dangerous and deſtructive Miſtakes of his way; or becauſe God will oppoſe him, and turn his own Devices againſt him; which he can eaſily do, by throwing in unexpected Accidents.

8 For he is caſt into a net by his own feet s, and he walketh upon a ſnare t.

s By his own choice, and deſign, and actions. t And therefore muſt needs be entangled and deſtroyed.

9 The * grin ſhall take him by the heel u, and the robber x ſhall prevail againſt him. * Chap. 5. 5.

u i. e. Take faſt hold of him, ſo as to keep him in thoſe Diſtreſſes. x When he is enſnared, the robber ſhall come upon him, and take, and ſpoil, or kill him. b Either 1. His Children, which are, and are called a Man's Strength, as Gen. 49. 3. Pſal. 127. 4, 5. Or rather 2. His Wealth, and Power, and Proſperity. c Or famiſhed, i. e. utterly conſumed. d i. e. Shall follow him at the heels, as a moſt diligent Servant, or conſtant Companion.

13 It ſhall devour the † ſtrength of his ſkin e: even the firſt-born of death f ſhall devour his ſtrength. † Heb. bars.

The firſt-born was the chief of his Brethren, and therefore this Title is given to things eminent in their kind, as Iſa. 14. 30. Col. 1. 18. Heb. 12. 23. Rev. 1. 5.

14 * His confidence g ſhall be rooted out of his tabernacle h, and it i ſhall bring him to the king of terrours k. * Ch. 8. 14. & 11. 20. Pſ. 112. 10. Pro. 10. 28.

l It, i. e. Deſtruction, expreſſed v. 12. and deſigned by this Particle, it, v. 13. ſhall not come upon him, and his for a ſeaſon, for then there might be ſome hopes of Recovery; but it ſhall fix its abode with him. m This may be added either 1. By way of Correction, did I ſay, his Tabernacle? I muſt retract the Expreſſion; for in truth, it is none of his, it is become another Man's. Or 2. As a reaſon of the ruin of his Tabernacle, becauſe it is none of his own, but got from others by Deceit or Violence. But theſe words are, and may be joyned with the former, and both thus rendred. A ſtranger, (Heb. one that is not his, that is not deſcended from him, and hath no relation to him) ſhall dwell in his Tabernacle, i. e. ſhall poſſeſs his Houſe and Goods. n It ſhall be utterly and prodigiouſly deſtroyed, as it were by Fire and Brimſtone. He ſeems to allude both to the Deſtruction of Sodom, upon which God did ſcatter Brimſtone and Fire, which happened not long before theſe times, and could not be unknown to them who lived near that place, and were diligent obſervers of God's Works; and to the Judgment which befel Job, Ch. 1. 16. when the Stranger hath taken and rifled his Dwelling, he ſhall forſake it as an accurſed place, and ſhall burn it with Fire and Brimſtone; that there may be no Monument of ſo vile a Perſon left upon the Earth.

16 His roots ſhall be dried up beneath, and above ſhall his branch be cut off o.

o i. e. He ſhall be deſtroyed both Root and Branch, i. e. both himſelf and his Poſterity. Compare Mal. 4. 1.

17 * His remembrance ſhall periſh p from the earth, and he ſhall have no name in the ſtreet. * Pſal. 109. 13. Prov. 2. 22. & 10. 7.

p Inſtead of that Honour and Renown which he deſigned to have both whilſt he lived, and after his death, he is not ſo much as remembred, unleſs it be with contempt and reproach.

18 † He ſhall be driven q from light into darkneſs r, and chaſed out of the world. † Heb. they ſhall drive him.

q Heb. They ſhall drive him, i. e. his Enemies, or thoſe whom he hath oppreſſed; or they whom God ſhall appoint to do it, whether Angels or Men. Or it is an imperſonal Speech, and to be rendred paſſively, as it is alſo Job 7. 3. Luke 12. 20. & 16. 9. r From a ſplendid and proſperous Life to Diſgrace and Miſery, and to the Grave, the Land of Darkneſs and Forgetfulneſs, as the following words explain it.

*Iſa.14.22 Jer.22.30. 19 * He ſhall neither have ſon nor nephew among his people s, nor any remaining in his dwellings.

s But if any ſuch ſurvive, they ſhall be in the hands and power of Strangers, or rather of their Enemies.

CHAP. XIX.

Job's anſwer: His Friends Strangeneſs and Reproaches vex him, 1---3. He layeth before them his great Miſery to provoke their Pity, 6----22. Wiſheth his words might be recorded, 23, 24. His hope in his Redeemer and the Reſurrection, 25——27. His Friends ſhould not reproach his Integrity, for fear of like Judgment, 28, 29.

THen Job anſwered and ſaid,

2 How long will ye vex my ſoul, and break me in pieces with words a.

a With meer empty words, void of Senſe or Argument, with your impertinent and unedifying Diſcourſes, and bitter Reproaches, as it followeth.

3 Theſe ten times b have ye reproached me: ye are not aſhamed that ye ‖ make your ſelves ſtrange to me c. ‖ Or, harden your ſelves againſt me.

b i. e. Many times. A certain number for an uncertain. So this Phraſe is oft uſed, as *Gen.*31.7. Numb. 14.22, &c. c That you carry your ſelves like Strangers to me, and are not concerned nor affected with my Calamities, and condemn me as if you had never known my former Piety and Integrity.

4 And be it indeed, that I have erred d, mine errour remaineth with my ſelf e.

d If my Opinion in this point be faulty and erroneous, as you pretend it is. Or, if I have ſinned, (for Sin is oft called Error in Scripture) and am therefore puniſhed. e Either 1. It is likely to continue, I ſee no cauſe from your reaſons to change my Judgment. Or 2. I ſuffer deeply for my Sins, and therefore deſerve your pity and help, rather than your Reproaches, whereby you add Affliction to the Afflicted.

5 If indeed ye will magnifie your ſelves againſt me f, and plead againſt me my reproach g:

f i.e. Uſe lofty, and imperious, and contemptuous Speeches againſt me: Or, ſeek Praiſe and Honour from others, by your conquering or out-reaſoning of me. g Either 1. Your Reproaches of me: If your reproachful and cenſorious Speeches muſt paſs for ſolid Arguments. Or 2. My Wickedneſs, which, if true, were juſt matter of reproach, and the cauſe of all my Miſeries. Or 3. My contemptible and calamitous Condition, for which you reproach and condemn me as an Hypocrite and wicked Man.

6 Know now h that God hath overthrown me i, and hath compaſſed me with his net k.

h Conſider what I am now ſaying. i Hath grievouſly afflicted me in all kinds: Therefore it ill becomes you to aggravate my Miſeries; and if my Paſſions, hereby raiſed, have broken forth into ſome extravagant and unmeet Expreſſions, I might expect your Pity and favourable Conſtruction, and not ſuch ſevere Cenſures and Reproaches. Heb. God hath perverted me, i.e. either my State or Condition, as was now ſaid, or my Right and Cauſe. He oppreſſeth me with power, and will not give me a fair Hearing, as it follows, *v.*7. He giveth me very hard meaſure, and dealeth worſe with me than I might in Reaſon and Juſtice expect from ſo wiſe and gracious a God. This is an harſh Reflection upon God; but ſuch paſſages have ſometimes come from good Men, when under ſore Afflictions and Temptations, which was Job's caſe. k i.e. With Afflictions on every ſide, ſo that I cannot eſcape, nor get any freedom to come to him and plead with him, as I deſire.

7 Behold, I cry out l of ‖ wrong m, but I am not heard: I cry aloud, but there is no judgment n. ‖ Or, violence.

l To wit, unto God by Prayer or Appeal. m That I am oppreſſed, either 1. by my Friends: Or rather 2. by God, who deals with me according to his Soveraign Power, and exact and rigorous Juſtice, and not with that Equity and Benignity which he ſheweth to the generality of Men, and hath promiſed to good Men, ſuch as he knoweth me to be. n God will not hear my Cauſe, nor paſs Sentence; which I might reaſonably expect from him; but he quite neglects me, and hath utterly forſaken me, and left me in the hands of the Devil and wicked Men. See the like Complaints of other good Men in the like caſe of Deſertion, Pſal. 13.2. & 22.2. & 88.15. Lament. 3.8. Habak. 1.2.

8 He hath fenced up my way that I cannot paſs o, and he hath ſet darkneſs in my paths p.

o i. e. So that I know not what to ſay or do, and can ſee no means nor poſſibility of getting out of my Troubles. p So that I cannot diſcern my way, or what courſe I ſhould take.

9 He hath ſtript me of my glory q, and taken the crown r from my head.

q i.e. Of my Eſtate, and Children, and Authority, and all my Comforts. r i.e. All my Ornaments.

10 He hath deſtroyed me on every ſide s, and I am gone t: and * mine hope u hath he removed like a tree x. *Ch.24.20 s i. e. In all Reſpects, and to all Intents and Purpoſes, my Perſon, and Family, and Eſtate. t i. e. I am a loſt and dead Man. Going is oft put for dying, as Gen. 15.2. Pſal. 39.13. u i. e. All my hopes of the preſent Life, as he oft expreſſeth it; but not of the Life to come, as appears from Job 13.15, 16. & 19.25, &c. x Which being once plucked up by the roots, never groweth again.

11 He hath alſo kindled his wrath againſt me y, and * he counteth me unto him, as one of his enemies z. *Ch.13.24 Lam.2.5.

y He hath ſtirred up his Wrath againſt me of his own accord, without any Provocation of mine, Humane Infirmity excepted. z i. e. He uſeth me as ſharply as if I were an inveterate Enemy of God and of all Goodneſs, though he knoweth I am and have ever been an hearty lover and Servant of him.

12 * His troops a come together, and raiſe up their way b againſt me, and encamp round about my tabernacle. *Chap.6.4.

a i.e. My Afflictions, which are but God's Inſtruments and Soldiers marching under his Conduct. b Either 1. caſt a Bank or Trench round about me, as an Army doth when they go to beſiege a place. Or rather 2. make a Cauſeway or raiſed Path, as Pioneers uſually do in low and wateriſh Grounds for the march of an Army: God removes all Impediments out of the way, and lays me open to all manner of Miſchief.

13 * He hath put my brethren c far from me d, and mine acquaintance verily are eſtranged from me. *Pſ.31.11. & 38.11. & 69.8. & 88.8,18.

c i. e. My Kindred and Friends, who might and ſhould have ſupported and comforted me in my Diſtreſs. d Either 1. In place; becauſe they feared or diſdained, or at leaſt neglected to viſit or ſuccor me: Or 2. in their Affections which are far from me, when their Bodies are preſent with me, as I find in you. But this alſo I aſcribe to God; he hath alienated your Hearts from me.

14 My kinsfolk have failed e, and my familiar friends have forgotten me f.

e To wit, to perform the Offices of Humanity and Friendſhip which they owe to me. f i. e. Neglect and diſregard me as much as if they had quite forgotten me.

15 They that dwell in mine houſe g, and my maids h count me for a ſtranger i: I am an alien in their ſight k.

g Heb. The ſojourners of my houſe; i. e. ſuch as had formerly ſojourned with me, whether Strangers, Widows, and Fatherleſs, whom by the Law of Charity and Hoſpitality he entertained: Or hired Servants, who had for a good while their Habitation and Subſiſtence in his Family. h Who by reaſon of their Sex, commonly have and ſhould have more tender and compaſſionate Hearts than Men. And therefore this is God's doing, who hath hardned their Hearts againſt me. i Regard my Commands and Concerns no more than a Stranger. k The ſame thing repeated through vehemency of Paſſion, becauſe this lay very heavy upon him.

16 I called my ſervant l, and he gave me no anſwer m: though I intreated him n with my mouth o.

l To do ſome ſervile Office about me for my eaſe or relief. m He paſſed by as if he had been Deaf, becauſe he loathed and feared to come near to me. n To my Commands I added humble and earneſt Deſires. o Either 1. with gentle and moving Speeches; Or rather 2. with my own Mouth and not by a Proxy.

17 My breath is ſtrange to my wife p, though I entreated for the childrens ſake of † mine own body q. † Heb. my belly.

p Who by reaſon of the Stink of my Breath and Sores denied me her company. q By theſe Pledges of our Mutual and Matrimonial Tye and Affection, the Children which came out of my Loyns, and were begotten by me upon her Body. But divers render the words thus; and I entreated the children of my own body: i. e. Either ſome of Job's younger Children, who by reaſon of their tender years were kept at home with their Father, when their elder Brethren and Siſters were gone abroad to the Feaſt; or ſome of his Grand-children by thoſe grown Sons and Daughters; for ſuch alſo oft come under the name of children. But this ſenſe ſeems not ſo proper, partly becauſe according to that Tranſlation here is mention only of Job's entreating them, but not a word of their denying his Requeſt; which is the only matter of his preſent Complaint; and partly becauſe according to the former Tranſlation, it is a great and juſt Aggravation of his Wifes Unkindneſs, and exactly anſwers to the foregoing Verſe, where the Servants Perverſeneſs is aggravated in the ſame manner, and by part of the ſame words.

18 Yea ‖ young children r deſpiſed me; I aroſe s, and they ſpake againſt me. ‖ Or, the wicked.

r Or, Fools; the moſt contemptible Perſons. s To wit, from my Seat, to ſhew my reſpect to them, though they were my Inferiors, to ſhew my readineſs to comply with that mean and low Condition, into which God had now brought me. Or, I ſtood up, for ſo this word ſometimes ſignifies. I did not diſoblige or provoke them by any uncivil and uncomely Carriage towards them, but was very courteous to them, and yet they make it their buſineſs to rail againſt me, as you alſo do.

19 * All † my inward friends t abhorred me: and they whom I loved u are turned againſt me. *Pſal.41.9. & 55.13, 14, 20. † Heb. the men of my ſecret.

t Heb. the men of my ſecret; my Intimates and Confidents, to whom I imparted all my Thoughts, and Counſels, and Concerns. u Sincerely and fervently, which they ſo ill requite. He ſaith not, they who loved me; for their love, had it been true, would have continued in his Affliction, as well as in his Proſperity.

20 * My bone x cleaveth to my skin y, ‖ and to my fleſh z, and I am eſcaped with the skin of my teeth a. *Ch.30.30 Pſ.102.5. Lam.4.8. ‖ Or, as next to the Skin being conſumed. The Senſe is, I am worn to Skin and Bone: See the ſame Phraſe Pſal. 102.5. z Or, as (the Particle and, being often ſo uſed, as hath been obſerved before) to my fleſh) i. e. either as formerly it clave to my Fleſh: Or as near and as cloſely as it doth to theſe remainders of Fleſh which are left in my inward parts. a I am ſcarce ſound and whole, and free from Sores in any part of my Skin, except that of my Jaws, which holdeth and covereth the roots of my Teeth. This being, as divers obſerve, the Devil's Policy to leave his Mouth untouched, that he might more freely expreſs his Mind, and vent his Blaſphemies againſt God, which he ſuppoſed ſharp pain would force him to do, and which he knew would be of pernicious Conſequence not only to Job, but to others alſo.

21 Have pity upon me, have pity upon me, O ye my friends b, for the hand of God hath touched c me.

b For ſuch you have been and ſtill pretend to be; and therefore fulfil that relation, and if you will not help me, yet at leaſt pity me. c i. e. Smitten or afflicted me ſorely, as this word is oft uſed; as Chap. 1. 11. Pſal. 104. 32.

22 Why do ye perſecute me as God d, and are not ſatisfied with my fleſh e?

d Either 1. as God doth; or rather 2. as if you were gods and not Men; as if you had the ſame infinite Knowledge which God hath, whereby you can ſearch my Heart and know my Hypocriſie, and the ſame ſovereign and abſolute Authority to ſay and do what you pleaſe with me, without giving any reaſon or account of it, which is indeed the Prerogative of the great God, but it belongs not to you who are Men, and therefore liable to miſtake and miſjudging, and ſuch as muſt give an account to God of all their words and carriages towards their Brethren, and particularly towards Perſons in Affliction, and withal ſubject to the ſame Diſeaſes and Calamities under which I groan; and therefore may need the pity which I expect from you. e i. e. With the Conſumption and Torment of my whole Body, but add to it the Vexation of my Spirit by grievous Reproaches and Cenſures; but are like Wolves or Lions that are not contented with devouring the Fleſh of their Prey, but alſo break their Bones.

23 † Oh that my words f were now written; oh that they were printed in a book!

f Either 1. the following and famous Confeſſion of his Faith, v. 25, &c. Or rather 2. all his foregoing Diſcourſes with his Friends, which he was ſo far from diſowning or being aſhamed of, that he was deſirous that all Ages ſhould know, that they might judge between him and them, whoſe Cauſe was better, and whoſe Arguments were ſtronger.

24 That they were graven with an iron pen g and lead h, in the rock for ever!

g Of which alſo there is mention, Jer. 17. 1. h Or, or lead; or with lead, the Particle and being oft ſo uſed; as Gen. 4.20. Exod. 1.6. Jer. 22. 7. For this Lead may be either 1. the Writing-pen which might be either of Iron or of Lead: For though Lead be of it ſelf too ſoft, yet there was an Art of tempering Lead with other Metals, to ſuch a degree of hardneſs, that it could pierce into a Rock; as they did alſo temper Braſs, ſo that they could make Bows and Swords of them. Or 2. the Writing-table; for the Ancients did uſe to write divers things in Lead, as is well known. Or 3. the Writing-Ink, as I may call it: For they uſed to grave the Letters in a Stone with an Iron Tool, and then to fill up the Cuts or Furrows made in the Stone with Lead, that the words might be more plainly ſeen and read.

25 For i I know k that my redeemer l liveth m, and that he ſhall ſtand n ‖ at the latter day o upon the earth p.

i This is the reaſon of his great Confidence in the Goodneſs of his Cauſe, and his Willingneſs to have the matter depending between him and his Friends, publiſhed and ſubmitted to any Tryal, becauſe he had a living and powerful Redeemer to plead his Cauſe, and vindicate his Perſon from all their ſevere Cenſures, and to give Sentence for him. k I have no Knowledge nor Confidence, nor hope of Reſtitution to the Proſperities of this Life; yet this one thing I know, which is more comfortable and conſiderable, and therein I rejoyce though I be now a dying Man, and in a deſperate condition for this Life. l In whom I have a particular Intereſt, and he hath a particular Care of me. Queſt. What Redeemer, and what Deliverance doth Job ſpeak of in this and the two following Verſes? Anſw. Some late Interpreters underſtand this place Metaphorically, of God's delivering Job out of his doleful and deſperate Condition, and reſtoring him to his former Splendor and Happineſs in the World; it being a very uſual thing in Scripture, to call eminent Dangers or Calamities by the name of Death; as Pſal. 22. 15. & 88. 4, 5. Ezek. 37. 11, 12. 2 Cor. 11. 23. And great and glorious Deliverances by the name of Quickning and Reſurrection; as Pſal. 71. 20. Iſa. 26. 19. Rom. 11. 15. But the moſt Interpreters, both Ancient and Modern, underſtand it of Chriſt and of his Reſurrection, and of Job's Reſurrection to Life by his Power and Favour: Which ſeems moſt probable for many reaſons. 1. From that known Rule, that a proper and literal Interpretation of Scripture, is always to be preferred before the Metaphorical, where it ſuits with the Text, and with other Scriptures. 2. From the Hebrew word Goel, here uſed; which although ſometimes it be uſed of God abſolutely or eſſentially conſidered, yet it moſt properly agrees to Jeſus Chriſt: For this word, as all Hebricians know, is primarily uſed of the next Kinſman, whoſe Office it was to redeem by a Price paid, the ſold or mortgaged Eſtate of his deceaſed Kinſman, Levit. 25. 25. and to revenge his death, Numb. 35. 12. and to maintain his Name and Honour by raiſing up Seed to him, Deut. 25. 5. All which moſt fitly agrees to Chriſt, who is our neareſt Kinſman and Brother, Heb. 2. 11. as having taken our Nature upon him by Incarnation; who alſo hath redeemed that everlaſting Inheritance which our firſt Parents had utterly loſt and ſold, by the Price of his own Blood; and hath revenged the Death of Mankind upon the great Contriver of it, the Devil, by deſtroying him and his Kingdom; and hath taken a courſe to preſerve our Name, and Honour, and Perſons to Eternity. And if the places where God is called Goel in the Old Teſtament, be examined, it will be found, that either all or moſt of them may be, and ſome of them muſt be underſtood of God the Son, or of Chriſt, as Gen. 48. 16. Iſa. 59. 20. See alſo Pſal. 74. 2. Iſa. 41. 14. & 44. 6. & 49. 7. & 52. 3. & 63. 16. 3. Becauſe Job was ſo far from ſuch a firm Confidence as he here profeſſeth, that he had not the leaſt degree of hope of any ſuch glorious temporal Reſtauration as his Friends promiſed to him, as we have oft ſeen and obſerved in the former Diſcourſes, as Chap. 16. 22. & 17. 12, 13, &c. And therefore that hope which every righteous Man hath in his death, Prov. 14. 32. and which Job oft profeſſeth that he had, muſt neceſſarily be fixed upon his Happineſs in the future Life. 4. Becauſe ſome of the following Expreſſions cannot without wreſting and violence be applied to a Metaphorical Reſurrection, as we ſhall ſee in the Sequel. 5. Becauſe this is a more lofty and ſpiritual Strain, than any in Job's former Diſcourſes, and quite contrary to them. And as they generally ſavour of Dejection and Diffidence, and do either declare or increaſe his Grief; ſo this puts him into another and much better Temper: And therefore it is well obſerved, that after this time and theſe Expreſſions, we meet not with any ſuch impatient or deſpairing paſſages, as we had before; which ſhews that they had inſpired him with new Life and Comfort. 6. Becauſe this well agrees with other paſſages in this Book; wherein Job declareth, that although he had no hope as to this Life, and the Comforts thereof, yet he had an hope beyond death, which made him profeſs, Though he ſlay me, yet will I truſt in him, Job 13. 15. Truſt in him: For what? Surely for Comfort and Happineſs. Where? Not in this Life, for that he ſuppoſeth to be loſt, therefore it muſt be in the next Life. And this was one reaſon why he ſo vehemently deſired Death, becauſe he knew it would bring him unto God and unto true Felicity. And this his hope and confidence in God, and in his Favour to him, Job oppoſeth to thoſe foul and falſe Aſperſions which his Friends had caſt upon him, as if he had forſaken God, and caſt off all fear of him, and hope in him. Object. 1. If this place had ſpoken of the Reſurrection of the Body, ſome of the Hebrew Writers or Commentators upon this place, who did believe that Doctrine, would have underſtood it ſo, and have urged it againſt the Sadduces, which they did not. Anſw. 1. All the Jewiſh Writers which are now extant, lived and wrote ſince Chriſt's time; when the Doctors of that People were very ignorant of many great Truths, and of the plain meaning of many Scriptures, and very corrupt in their Principles as well as in their Practiſes. 2. There was a manifeſt Reaſon why they could not underſtand this Text thus, becauſe they believed that Job in his Agonies did deny God's Providence, and conſequently the Reſurrection and the future Judgment, which though it was a moſt uncharitable and falſe Opinion, yet forced them to interpret this Text another way. Object. 2. How is it credible that Job, in thoſe ancient times, and in that dark State of the Church, ſhould know theſe great Myſteries of Chriſt's Incarnation, and of the Reſurrection and Life to come? Anſw. 1. The Myſtery of Chriſt's Incarnation was revealed to Adam by that firſt and famous Promiſe, that the ſeed of the woman ſhould break the Serpent's head, Gen. 3. 15. which being the only Foundation of all his Hopes, for the Recovery and Salvation of himſelf and of all his Poſterity, he would doubtleſs carefully and diligently teach and explain it, as need required, to thoſe that deſcended from him. 2. That the ancient Patriarchs and Prophets were generally acquainted with theſe Doctrines, is undeniably evident from Heb. 11. & 1 Pet. 1. 9, 10, 11, 12. 3. Particularly Abraham, from whom Job is ſuppoſed to have deſcended; had the Promiſe made to him, that Chriſt ſhould come out of his Loins, Gen. 12. 3. and is ſaid to have ſeen Chriſt's day, and rejoyce to ſee it, John 8. 56. and had his Hopes and Deſires fixed upon a divine and heavenly City and Country, Heb. 11. 10, 16. And as Abraham knew and believed theſe things himſelf, ſo it is manifeſt that he taught them to his Children and Servants, Gen. 18. 19. and to his Kindred and others, as he had occaſion: And therefore it cannot ſeem ſtrange, that Job profeſſeth his Faith and Hope in theſe things. m I am a dying Man, and my Hopes are dying, but he liveth, and that for ever; and therefore though I die, yet he both can and will make me to live again in due time, though not in this World, yet in the other, which is much better; and though I am now highly cenſured and condemned by my Friends and others, as a great Diſſembler and a ſecret Sinner, whom God's Hand hath found out; yet there is a day coming wherein my Cauſe ſhall be pleaded, and my Name and Honour vindicated from all theſe Reproaches, and my Integrity brought to light. n I am falling and dying, but he ſhall ſtand firm, and unmovable, and victorious, in full Power and Authority: All which this word ſtand ſignifies; and therefore he is able to make me to ſtand in Judgment, and to maintain my Cauſe againſt all Oppoſers. Or, he ſhall ariſe, as this Verb moſt commonly ſignifies; i. e. Either 1. he ſhall exiſt or be born, as this word is oft uſed; as Numb. 32. 14. Deut. 29. 22. Judges 2. 10. 1 Kings 3. 12. Matt. 11. 11. And it notes Chriſt's Incarnation, that although as he was God, he was now and from all Eternity in being, yet he ſhould in due time be made Man, and be born of a Woman. Or 2. he ſhall ariſe out of the Duſt; which had been more probable, if it had been in the Text from or out of, as now it is upon, the earth or duſt; for Chriſt's Reſurrection from the Dead, might be fitly mentioned here as the Cauſe of Job's Reſurrection, which followeth. o Either 1. in the days of the Meſſiah or of the Goſpel, which are oft called the latter or laſt days or times; as Iſa. 2. 2. Hoſ. 3. 5. Joel 2. 28. Compared with Acts 2. 17. 1 Tim. 4. 1. & 2 Tim. 3. 1. Heb. 1. 1. Or rather 2. at the day of the general Reſurrection and Judgment, which, as thoſe Holy Patriarchs well knew and firmly believed, was to be at the end of the World; and which is called the laſt day, John 6. 39, 40, 44, 54. & 11. 24. & 12. 48. 1 Pet. 1. 5. For this was the time when Job's Reſurrection, of which he ſpeaketh here, was to be. Heb. at the laſt: By which word he plainly intimates, that his hope was not of things preſent and of Worldly Felicities, of which his Friends had diſcourſed ſo much, but of another kind of, and a far greater Bleſſedneſs which ſhould accrue to him in after-times, long after he was dead and rotten. Or, the laſt; who is both the firſt and the laſt, Iſa. 44. 6. Rev. 1. 11. who ſhall ſubdue and ſurvive all his and his Peoples Enemies, and after others the laſt enemy, Death, 1 Cor. 15. 26. and then ſhall raiſe up his People and plead their Cauſe,and vindicate them from all the Calumnies and Injuries which are put upon them, and conduct them to Life and Glory. p The place upon which Chriſt ſhall appear and ſtand at the laſt day. Heb. upon the duſt; in which his Saints and Members lie or ſleep, whom he will raiſe out of it. And therefore he is fitly ſaid to ſtand upon the duſt, or the Grave, or Death; becauſe then he will put that among other Enemies under his feet; as it is expreſſed, 1 Cor. 15. 25, 26. Some render the words thus, and that very agreeably to the Hebrew, The laſt, or at the laſt he ſhall ariſe or ſtand up againſt (for ſo this very Phraſe is uſed, Gen.4.8. Judges 9.18. Pſal. 54. 3.) the duſt, and fight with it, and reſcue the Bodies of the Saints, which are held in it as Priſoners, from its Dominion and Territories. Some underſtand this of God, that He ſhould ſtand laſt in the field as Conqueror of all his Enemies. But this neither agrees with the words, the Hebrew Aphar, ſignifying duſt, and being never uſed of the field or place of Battel; nor with Job's ſcope, which was to defend himſelf againſt his Friends Accuſations, and to comfort himſelf with his hopes and aſſurance of God's Favour to be exhibited to him in due time. Which end the words in that ſenſe would by no means ſerve, becauſe God might and would be Conquerour of all his Enemies, though Job himſelf had been one of them, and though his Cauſe had been bad, and his Friends ſhould with God have triumphed over him.

26 ‖ And though after my skin, worms deſtroy this body q; yet r in my fleſh s ſhall I ſee God t:

q The ſtyle of this and other Poetical Books is conciſe and ſhort, and therefore many words are to be underſtood in ſome places, to compleat the ſenſe: The meaning of the place is this; Though my skin is now in a great meaſure conſumed by Sores, and the reſt of it, together with this Body, ſhall be devoured by the Worms, which may ſeem to make my Caſe quite deſperate. Heb. And though (which Particle, as it is oft elſewhere, is here to be underſtood, as the oppoſition of the next Branch ſheweth) after my skin (which either now is, or ſuddenly will be conſumed by Sores or Worms) they (i. e. the deſtroyers or devourers, as is implyed in the Verb; ſuch Impersonal Speeches being uſual in the Scripture; as, Gen.50.26. Luke 12. 20. & 16.9. where the Actions are expreſſed, but the Perſons or Things acting are underſtood. And by the Deſtroyers, he moſt probably deſigns the Worms which do this work in the Grave) deſtroy or cut off, or devour this; i. e. all this which you ſee left of me, this which I now point to, all this which is contained with in my skin, all my fleſh and bones, this which I know not what to call, whether a living Body, or a dead Carkaſs, becauſe it is between both; and therefore he did not ſay, this body, becauſe it did ſcarce deſerve that name. r For the Particle and is oft uſed adverſatively; Or, then, as it is oft rendred. s Heb. Out of my fleſh, or with (as the Particle Mem is uſed, Cant.1.2. & 3.9. Iſa.57.8.) my fleſh; i.e. with eyes of fleſh, as Job himſelf calls them Chap.10.4. Or with bodily eyes; my fleſh or body being raiſed from the Grave, and reſtored and reunited to my Soul. And this is very fitly added, to ſhew that he did not ſpeak of a mental or ſpiritual, but of a corporeal Viſion, and that after his death. t The ſame whom he called his Redeemer, v. 25. i. e. Chriſt; of which ſee the Note there, who being God-man, and having taken fleſh, and appearing in his fleſh or body with and for Job upon the Earth, as was ſaid v.25. might very well be ſeen with his bodily eyes. Nor is this underſtood of a ſimple ſeeing of him; for ſo even they that pierced him ſhall ſee him, Rev.1.7. but oft ſeeing him with delight and comfort, as that word is oft underſtood, as Gen. 48.11. Job 42. 16. Pſal. 128. 5. Iſa. 53. 11. of that glorious and beatifying Viſion of God, which is promiſed to all God's People, Pſal. 16. 11. & 17.15. Matth. 5.8. 1 Cor.13.12. 1 John 3.2.

27 Whom I ſhall ſee u for my ſelf x, and mine eyes ſhall behold, and not † another y: though my reins be conſumed † within me z.

u In manner before and after expreſſed. No wonder that he repeats it again, becauſe the meditation of it was moſt ſweet to him. x i. e. For my own comfort and benefit, as that Phraſe is oft uſed. Or, which is much of the ſame importance, on my behalf; to plead my cauſe, and vindicate me from all your reproaches. y To wit, for me or in my ſtead. I ſhall not ſee God by anothers eyes, but by my own, and by theſe ſelf ſame eyes in this ſame body which now I have. Heb. Not a ſtranger; i. e. This privilledge ſhall be granted to me and to all other ſincere Servants of God, but not to ſtrangers, i.e. to wicked men, who are oft called ſtrangers; as Pſal. 18. 44, 45. & 54.3. Prov.21.8. becauſe they are eſtranged or alienated from God, and from his Service and People. And if I were ſuch an one, as you ſuppoſe me to be, I could never hope to enjoy that happineſs. z This I do confidently expect and hope for, though at preſent my Caſe ſeems deſperate, my very inward parts being even conſumed with grief; and though, as I have ſaid, the Grave and the Worms will conſume my whole Body, not excepting the Reins which ſeem to be ſafeſt and furtheſt out of their reach. Or, without though, which is not in the Hebrew, My rains are conſumed within me. So this may be a ſudden and paſſionate Ejaculation or Exclamation (ſuch as we find Gen. 48. 18. and oft in the Book of Pſalms) ariſing from the Contemplation and confident Expectation of this his unſpeakable happineſs, wherein he expreſſeth his vehement deſire and longing for that bleſſed time and ſtate. The reins are oft put for earneſt Deſires or Affections, whereof they are ſuppoſed to be the ſeat; as Job 38.36. Prov. 23. 16. And Men are oft in Scripture ſaid to be conſumed or eaten up, or the like, by ardent Affections; as Pſal.69.19. & 84.2. & 119.81,82. John 2.17.

‖ Or, and what root of matter is found in me?

28 But a ye ſhould ſay b, Why perſecute we him c, ‖ ſeeing the root of the matter is found in me d?

a Or, Therefore, becauſe this is my Caſe, and my Faith and Hope in God. b So the Future is uſed Potentially; as it is Obad. v. 12. and the ſenſe is, It would become you, or, It is your duty upon this account to ſay. Or, you will ſay, i. e. Either, 1. I hope you will ſay ſo, and that you will be more moderate in your Cenſures and Expreſſions concerning me, as being convinced and ſweetned by this ſincere and ſolemn Profeſſion of my Faith and Hope. Or, 2. Peradventure you will ſay; to wit, by way of Excuſe for your ſelves. c So it is a correction of themſelves; ſeeing things are thus with him, we are blame-worthy that we have perſecuted him with ſuch bitter Invectives, and we will do ſo no more. Or, wherein or how (for ſo that Particle is ſometimes uſed, as the Learned obſerve) do we perſecute him, as he chargeth us, v.22. He accuſeth us falſly, and without cauſe given on our parts. So it is an Apology for their hard Speeches againſt him, which Job puts into their mouths as their Exception to his Charge which he mentioned, v.22. and upon that occaſion falls into a moſt ſerious and pathetical Exclamation, v.23,24. and into a moſt ſolemn Declaration of his Faith in God his Redeemer, v. 25,26, 27. and after that digreſſion he reſumes the former matter, and here propounds an Objection, to which he gives a ſevere Anſwer, which may ſeem to ſuit much better with this than with the former Expoſition. d Theſe words contain either, 1. A Motive or Reaſon why they ſhould correct themſelves for perſecuting him, and deſiſt from it; becauſe, ſaith Job, the root of the matter, or, word is in me. The root notes the Occaſion or the Foundation, or the Truth and Subſtance of a thing. And by this matter or word may be meant either, 1. That famous Profeſſion of his Faith and Confidence in God, v. 25, 26, 27. which, ſaith he, I have not uttered vain-gloriouſly or hypocritically, but from my very heart, wherewith I believe what I have ſpoken with my mouth, as is ſaid upon another occaſion, Rom.10.9,10. This Word or Faith is rooted in mine heart, as it ſhould be, Matth.13.21. Col.2.7. I am no Hypocrite, as you aſperſe me, but an upright perſon, having a root of true Religion in me; which therefore ſhould allay your Cenſures, and make you willing to bear with ſome circumſtantial Defects or Miſtakes in my Diſcourſes, or Miſcarriages into which my Paſſion and Pain might tranſport me, and make you repent of your cruel uſage of a truly good man. But although Job had this root in his heart, yet this was doubted of, and not diſcernable by Job's Friends, and therefore could be no argument to them. Poſſibly it might be better to underſtand by this root of the word, to wit, of God's word, which is oft called the word, by way of eminency, the foundations or fundamental Truths of Divine Doctrine which Job held; as appeared by this glorious Confeſſion; howſoever he might err in the matter of Controverſie with them; which being a difference in leſſer things, they ſhould mildly have born with it, and not aggravated it and traduced him, as if thereby he had renounced God and the very Principles of Religion, as they did. Or, 2. The word or thing under debate among them. So the ſenſe may be this, The root or truth of the thing debated by us is with me; i. e. is on my ſide. Your Diſcourſes and Arguments have no truth nor ſolidity in them, as mine have. You ſpeak whatever cometh into your minds and mouths; but my Diſcourſes are rooted and grounded upon ſound Knowledge and deep Conſideration. But this was no convincing anſwer; for they could eaſily retort the ſame thing upon him again, and their Affirmation might ſeem as good as his; for it was only a begging of the thing in queſtion. Or rather, 2. a defence of themſelves and of their former ſharp and ſevere Diſcourſes, which Job called Perſecution, v. 22. And having made a ſhort, but vehement and important digreſſion, v. 23, &c. he returns to the main queſtion between them here: And the ſenſe of this Verſe (with ſubmiſſion to better Judgments) ſeems to me to be plainly this; But ye will ſay; i. e. I know will object againſt my Charge; How or wherein, or why do we perſecute him? Why doth he charge us with ſo black a Crime; ſeeing or for (as Vau is oft uſed) the root; i. e. the Foundation or Cauſe, or occaſion of the word; i. e. of thoſe words or paſſages of ours which are ſo ill taken, or of the matter; i. e. of the thing now debated among us, is in me; i. e. Job gives the occaſion to it by his boiſterous Paſſions and wicked Expreſſions againſt God, which we neither can nor ought to endure, but are to be ſharply reproved. And ſo this Verſe contains their Objection or Apology which Job puts into their mouths, to which he makes a ſharp and ſuitable reply in the following Verſe.

29 Be ye afraid of the ſword e; for wrath bringeth the puniſhment of the ſword f, that ye may know g that there is a judgment h.

e i.e. Of ſome conſiderable Judgment to be inflicted on you which is called the ſword; as Deut.32.41. and oft elſewhere. Do not pleaſe your ſelves with ſuch pretences and crafty evaſions, as if the blame were wholly in me, not in you: God will not be mocked by you; He ſees and will puniſh your moſt unrighteous and uncharitable Judgment of me, and dealing with me. f For that wrath or fury which is in your hearts, and breaks out of your lips againſt me, doth deſerve, and will certainly bring upon you the puniſhment (Heb. puniſhments or iniquities: but iniquity is oft put for puniſhment) of the ſword; i. e. a dreadful Judgment from God. Or, without any Supplement, except that which is generally underſtood, for wrath (that ſin of Wrath or Rage againſt a Man, eſpecially againſt one in Affliction) is an iniquity (Heb. iniquities, the Plural number being uſed by way of aggravation; as Pſal.73.22. and elſewhere: Or, of the iniquities; the Hebrew prefix Mem being here underſtood, as it is in many other places) of the ſword; i. e. one of thoſe iniquities which uſe to be, or are fit to be puniſhed by the ſword; i. e. by ſome eminent Judgment; as Job 31. 19. An iniquity of the judges is an iniquity to be puniſhed by the judges, as our Tranſlation hath it. g The ſenſe is either, 1. This Admonition I now give you, that you may know it in time, and for your good, that you may ſeriouſly conſider and prevent it. Or, 2. This Judgment will come upon you, that you may be taught by your own ſad and coſtly Experience what you would not learn without it. h i. e. That there will be a time of Judgment when God will call Men to an account for all their hard Speeches and Miſcarriages, and particularly for their raſh and uncharitable Cenſures of their Brethren, Mat. 7. 1. Rom. 14. 4. James 4. 11. either in this life, or at that laſt and dreadful Day of the General Reſurrection (of which he ſpoke v.25, &c.) and Judgment. God ſees and obſerves, and will judge all your words and actions, and therefore do not flatter your ſelves with vain hopes of Impunity.

CHAP. XX.

Zophar's Anſwer: The ſtate and portion of the wicked notwithſtanding for a time he may proſper and flouriſh, 1——29.

THen anſwered Zophar the Naamathite, and ſaid,

2 Therefore a do my thoughts cauſe me to anſwer b, and for this I make haſte c.

a For this thy ſevere Sentence and Denunciation of God's Judgments againſt us, Chap.19.29. which much more juſtly belongs to thy ſelf, and is actually executed upon thee; and becauſe of thy Reproaches, c, as it followeth, v. 3. b I thought to have troubled my ſelf and thee with no further Diſcourſes, conſidering how exceptious and incorrigible thou art,but my thoughts or conſideration of thy reproachful words, force me to break ſilence, and to anſwer thee as the matter requires. c I ſpeak ſooner than I intended, becauſe I am not able to contain my ſelf longer, and fear leſt I ſhould forget what is in my mind. Poſſibly he interrupted Job, when he was proceeding further in his Diſcourſe. Or, he prevented ſome of his Brethren who made an offer to ſpeak.

3 I have heard d the check of my reproach e and the ſpirit f out of my underſtanding g causeth me to anſwer h.

d From thy mouth. Or, ſhall I hear? to wit, with patience and without a reply? Who can endure it? e i.e. Thy ſhameful and opprobrious reproofs of us, as if we and all thy Friends were void of all humanity and natural affection towards thee, and were haters and cruel perſecuters and even devourers of thee, Chap. 19.19,22. and as if we were guilty of moſt hainous Crimes, and might expect God's Vengeance upon us. f i. e. My Soul or Mind. g Or, becauſe of (for ſo the Hebrew Mem oft ſignifies) my underſtanding; i.e. Out of, or becauſe of that certain knowledge which I have of this matter from ſtudy and experience: I have not ſpoken, and I ſhall not ſpeak out of ignorance, or prejudice, or paſſion and rage againſt Job, as he aſperſeth us, but only what I evidently know, and yet hope that I can and ſhall convince thee of. h i. e. Forceth me to ſpeak. Or, anſwereth for me; i. e. either vindicates me againſt thy Calumnies: or, ſuggeſteth an anſwer to me.

4 Knoweſt thou not this i of old k, ſince man was placed upon earth l?

i i. e. This which I am now about to ſay: How canſt thou, thou I ſay, who pretendeſt to ſuch an exact and univerſal knowledge of men and things, be ignorant of ſo notorious a thing which wicked men ſenſibly feel, and good men diligently obſerve, and all men are forced to acknowledge one time or other? k i.e. From the experience of all former Ages. l i. e. Since the World was made, and there were any men to obſerve God's Government of it.

* Pſal.37.35,36. † Heb. from near.

5 * That the triumphing of the wicked is † ſhort m, and the joy of the hypocrite n but for a moment?

m Heb. Is from near; i. e. from, or for a little time: They have no long enjoyed it, and it will ſhortly vaniſh. n This he adds by way of reflection upon Job, who though he did clear himſelf from groſs wickedneſs, yet might be guilty of deep hypocriſie.

* Iſa.14.13,14. Obad.3,4. † Heb. cloud.

6 * Though his excellency mount up to the heavens o, and his head reach unto the † clouds:

o Though he be advanced to great Dignity and Authority in the World.

7 Yet he ſhall periſh for ever, like his own dung p; they which have ſeen him q ſhall ſay, where is he r?

p Which men caſt away with contempt and abhorrency. Compare 1 Kings 14.10. & 2 Kings 9.37. q With admiration at his felicity. r i. e. He is no where to be found; he is utterly loſt and gone.

* Pſal.73.20.

8 He ſhall fly away * as a dream s, and ſhall not be found t: yea, he ſhall be chaſed away as a viſion of the night u.

s Which for the preſent makes a great ſhew and noiſe,and highly affects the Fancy, but hath nothing ſolid nor permanent in it; for as ſoon as the man awakes, all vaniſheth, and the remembrance of it is quickly loſt. t The man will be utterly loſt and gone together with all his riches and glory. u Which appears to a man in the night and in his ſleep.

* Ch.7.8, 10. Pſal.37.36. & 103.16.

9 * The eye alſo which ſaw him, ſhall ſee him no more, neither ſhall his place any more behold him x.

x i. e. It ſhall not acknowledge nor contain him. A figure called Proſopopeia, as Job 7.10. Or, neither ſhall it (i. e. the Eye laſt mentioned) behold him any more in his place.

|| Or, the poor ſhall oppreſs his children.

10 || His children ſhall ſeek to pleaſe the poor y, and his hands ſhall reſtore their goods z.

y Either 1. To get ſome ſmall relief from them in their extream neceſſity. Or rather, 2. Leſt they ſhould revenge themſelves of them; for the great and many Injuries which their Father did them; or ſeek to the Magiſtrate for Reparations. z By the Sentence of the Judge, to whom the oppreſſed Poor will appeal, nothwithſtanding all their entreaties and endeavours to diſſwade them from ſo doing.

* Ch.13.26. Pſal.90.8.

11 His bones a are full of the ſin of his youth b, * which ſhall lie down with him in the duſt.

a i. e. His whole Body, even the ſtrongeſt parts of it,which may ſeem moſt remote from danger. b Heb. Of his youth; i. e. of his youthful Pleaſures and Luſts, by a Metonymy of the ſubject. And this may be underſtood either, 1. Of the ſins themſelves, that he ſhall perſevere in his youthful Luſts even in old Age, and ſhall die without Repentance. Or rather, 2. Of the puniſhment of his ſins, of which he is ſpeaking both in the foregoing and following Verſes. He ſhall feel the ſad effects of thoſe ſins in his riper years, as riotous ſinners commonly do; and, as it follows, attended him to his Grave. Or, with his ſecret ways or ſins, as others render it. Whereby he poſſibly intimates, that Job, though he appeared righteous before others, yet was guilty of ſome ſecret wickedneſs for which God was now reckoning with him.

12 Though wickedneſs be ſweet in his mouth c, though he hide it under his tongue d; c i.e. To his taſte; though it greatly pleaſe him for the preſent. d As an Epicure doth a ſweet Morſel, which he is loath to ſwallow, and therefore keeps and rolls it about his mouth that he may longer enjoy the pleaſure of it. Though he be highly pleaſed with his Luſts, and cleave to them in hearty love, and reſolve to hold them faſt, and improve them to the greateſt delight and advantage.

† Heb. in the midſt of his palate.

13 Though he ſpare it e, and forſake it not, but keep it ſtill † within his mouth f; e i. e. Will not part with it; or gratifie and obey it, in ſtead of ſubduing and mortifying it. f To ſuck out all the ſweetneſs or benefit of it; though it be very delightful to him.

14 Yet his meat in his bowels is turned g; it is the gall of aſps h within him.

g Into another nature or quality, from ſweet to bitter. h i.e. Exceeding bitter and pernicious. Gall is moſt bitter; the Gall of Serpents is full of Poyſon, which from thence is conveyed to their mouths by Veins, as Pliny obſerves; and the poyſon of Aſps is moſt dangerous, and within a few hours kills without remedy.

15 He hath ſwallowed down riches, and he ſhall vomit them up again i: God ſhall caſt them out of his belly k.

i i. e. Be forced to reſtore them with great ſhame and torment, as Gluttons ſometimes do loath, and with grief and pain caſt up that Meat which they have eaten and ſwallowed down with much greedineſs and delight. k If no Man's hand can reach him, God ſhall find him out, and puniſh him ſeverely.

16 He ſhall ſuck the poyſon of aſps l, the vipers tongue m ſhall ſlay him.

l That which he hath greedily and induſtriouſly ſucked in as pleaſant and wholſom Nouriſhment, ſhall in the iſſue be as ungrateful and deſtructive to him as the poyſon or head (for the Hebrew word ſignifies both, and the poyſon lyes in the head) of Aſps would be to one that ſucketh it. m Together with its Teeth, in which the Poyſon lurks, which it conveys by biting a Man.

17 He ſhall not ſee n the rivers, || the flouds, the brooks of honey and || butter o. || Or, ſtreaming brooks. || Or, cream.

n i. e. Not enjoy, as that word is oft uſed; as Pſalm 106.5. Eccleſ. 2.1. o That abundant ſatisfaction and comfort (oft ſignified by theſe or ſuch like Metaphors; as, Pſalm 36.8. & 46.5. Iſa. 7.15,22. & 41.18.) either which he promiſed to himſelf from that great Eſtate which he had got by deceit and oppreſſion; or which good men through God's bleſſing may and commonly do enjoy.

18 That which he laboured for p, ſhall he reſtore, and ſhall not ſwallow it down q: † according to his ſubſtance ſhall the reſtitution be r, and he ſhall not rejoyce therein s. † Heb. according to the ſubſtance of his exchange.

p Heb. Labour; i.e. the Goods which were gotten with labour, either 1. By the labour of others; or rather, 2. By his own labour: Which may relate as well to the Goods of others, which he got not without pains and difficulty; or to his own Goods honeſtly gotten by the ſweat of his Brows. And this is an aggravation of his Miſery, that he was forced to reſtore not only other mens Goods which were in his hands, but his own alſo to make reparation for their damages. q To wit, ſo as to hold it; for otherwiſe he did ſwallow it, but withal did ſpeedily vomit it up again, v. 15. which was as if he had not ſwallowed it. He ſhall not poſſeſs it long, nor to any conſiderable purpoſe. r i. e. He ſhall be forced to part with all his Eſtate to make compenſation for his Wrongs done to others. s i. e. He ſhall not enjoy what he had gotten, becauſe it ſhall be taken from him.

19 Becauſe he hath † oppreſſed, and hath forſaken the poor t; becauſe he hath violently taken away an houſe which he built not u, † Heb. cruſhed.

t By his Oppreſſion he brought men to utter Poverty, and then forſook or left them in that forlorn eſtate, affording no Mercy nor Help to them. Or, ſome he made poor by his Oppreſſion, and others that were poor he ſuffered to periſh for want of that Relief which he ſhould and might have afforded them; which is a crying ſin in God's ſight, and one of thoſe ſins for which God deſtroyed Sodom, Ezek. 16.49. and therefore fitly mentioned here as one of the ſins for which God puniſhed this wicked man. Or, He oppreſſeth and leaveth poor; as Broughton renders it. u i. e. Which was none of his. Heb. He hath violently taken away an houſe, and (or, but) did not build (or, repair, as building is oft uſed) it; to wit, that Houſe for his own uſe; i. e. he did not build or poſſeſs that Houſe as he intended to do, but was cut off by God's hand before he could enjoy the fruit of his Oppreſſions.

20 * Surely he ſhall not † feel quietneſs in his belly x; he ſhall not ſave of that which he deſired y. * Eccleſ. 5.13,15. † Heb. know.

x i.e. He ſhall have no peace nor ſatisfaction in his mind in all his Gains, partly becauſe of his perpetual fears and expectations of the Wrath of God and Man, which his guilty Conſcience knoweth that he deſerves: and partly becauſe they ſhall be ſpeedily taken away from him. He ſtill continueth the Metaphor of a Glutton, whoſe Belly is not quiet until it hath vomited up that wherewith he had oppreſſed it. y i. e. Any part of his good and deſirable things, but he ſhall forfeit and loſe them all.

z For his own future uſe; but he ſhall be ſtript of all. a It being publickly known,and obſerved that he was totally ruined, none of his Kindred or Friends ſhall trouble themſelves to ſeek for any Relicks of his Eſtate,as is uſually done after mens deaths. But this Verſe is and may be rendred otherwiſe: There ſhall none be left for his meat (i. e. he ſhall leave no Heir who ſhall poſſeſs or enjoy his Goods) becauſe (for ſo the Hebrew Particle Al-chen is oft uſed; as Gen. 38.26. Numb. 14.43. Pſalm 42.7. Jer. 48.36.) none of his goods ſhall remain, either for his Heir, or any other; all ſhall be utterly loſt.

b In the height of Proſperity and Abundance he ſhall be diſtreſſed and tormented either by the horrours of an unquiet Mind and guilty Conſcience, which makes him every moment expect Divine Vengeance to fall upon his head: Or rather, becauſe of the ſudden and unexpected Aſſault of other men combining againſt him, and ſpoiling all his Goods, as it follows. c Who lives by injury and the ſpoiling of others, and by God's Providence are directed to fall upon him. Or, of the labourer, whoſe wages poſſibly he hath detained? Or, of ſuch as are in trouble or miſery, as this word ſignifies, Job 3.20. who may joyntly invade him, either becauſe their neceſſity tempts and drives them to ſpoil others; or rather becauſe they were ſuch as had been brought into their Calamity by his Oppreſſions, and therefore now take Reparations from him.

23 When he is about to fill his belly d, God e ſhall caſt the fury of his wrath f upon him, and ſhall rain it upon him g while he is eating h.

n Either 1. a Sword, which may be underſtood out of this Hebrew Verb, which is for the moſt part uſed of that Weapon; as Numb. 22. 23, 31. Judges 8. 20, &c. and out of the following Branch of the Verſe. Or 2. the Arrow laſt mentioned, which had entred into his Body, and now was drawn out of it either by himſelf, or by ſome other perſon; as is frequent in that caſe, if peradventure he might be cured. o Or, out of his body; i.e. the body of the wounded man; as appears both by the next Clauſe of the Verſe, which is added to explain the former; where it is, out of his gall: and from the uſe of this Hebrew word, which ſignifies a man's body or carkaſs; as Judges 14. 8. 1 Sam. 31. 12. Iſa. 5. 25. Nahum. 3. 3. p The word properly ſignifies lightning, and thence a gliſtering weapon, the bright Sword or Spear; as Deut. 32. 41. Ezek. 21. 10, 15. Nah. 3. 3. Habak. 3. 11. Whereby it is implyed, that he was doubly wounded; firſt, by the Arrow, and then to make more ſure work, with the Sword or Spear thruſt into him. But the word may as well ſignifie the bright and ſharp point of an arrow, of which he ſpoke hitherto; and having in the general ſaid, that it came out of his body, now he determines the part of the body, the gall; which ſheweth that the Wound was both deep and deadly, as they are in that part. It is probable he mentions this in reference to the like expreſſion of Job, Chap. 16. 13. q Into which it had entred, and wherewith it was coloured. r To wit, the Terrours of Death; becauſe he perceived by the tincture of his Gall upon the Weapon, that his wound was incurable. Or Horrours of Conſcience, becauſe he cannot live, and dare not die.

Of God's Word, i.e. which is allotted to him by the Word or Sentence of God. Or, 2. Of the wicked man's word, the reward of his ſpeeches; which, like his actions, are and may well be preſumed to be wicked and blaſphemous, and many ways offenſive to God: And he inſtanceth in his ſpeeches rather than his actions, to meet with Job, who, tho' he had made ſome colourable excuſes for his actions, yet was manifeſtly guilty of hard and ſinful ſpeeches againſt God, which he would hereby intimate, that they were not ſuch harmleſs and excuſable things as Job pretended, as appeared by theſe ſevere Judgments which they brought upon wicked men.

CHAP. XXI.

Job's Reply; he complaineth not to man, in whoſe judgment he hath moſt reaſon to grieve; but exciteth their attention to convincing and amazing truths, 1——6. The wicked proſper till in their pride they fear not God, 7——15. yet he purgeth himſelf from their counſel, and acknowledgeth that often their deſtruction from God is manifeſt, at leaſt in their children, 16——21. God is righteous in both caſes, and both are alike in their death, 22——26. The wicked are indeed reſerved for deſtruction, but who dareth now withſtand them; and in the grave they are at reſt, whether all others follow them, 27——34.

BUt Job anſwered and ſaid,

2 Hear diligently my ſpeech, and let this be your conſolations a.

a Or, This ſhall be your conſolations; i.e. I ſhall accept of your patient and diligent attention to me in ſtead of all thoſe conſolations which you owed to me in this condition, and which I expected from you.

3 Suffer me that I may ſpeak b, and after that I have ſpoken, * mock on c. *Ch.16.10 & 17.2.

b Without ſuch interruption as you have given me, Chap. 20. 2. c If I do not defend my Cauſe with ſolid and convincing Arguments, go on in your ſcoffs if you pleaſe.

4 As for me, is my complaint to man d? and if it were ſo e, why ſhould not my ſpirit be † troubled f? † Heb. ſhortned.

d Or, of man; for the prefix Lamed commonly ſignifieth both to and of: And this queſtion implies a Denial, or that his Complaint is not to, or of man; to wit, only, but to, or of God; as is here ſufficiently implied, and oft elſewhere expreſſed by Job in this Book. So the ſenſe ſeems to be either 1. this, I do not make my moan or complaint unto, or expect relief from you, or from any men, but from God only: and therefore you have reaſon patiently to hear me when I am pouring forth my Complaints to God. Or rather 2. this, Do I only complain, or have I reaſon to complain only of you, and your unmerciful carriage to me; or of men who have dealt barbarouſly with me? Chap. 1. and 30. 1, 9, &c. Surely no: But my Complaint is of God, and of his hard and ſevere dealing with me. It is he who hath alienated my Friends affections from me, and ſtirred up mine enemies againſt me. And though it hath been my chief care and buſineſs to pleaſe and ſerve him, yet he hath alſo ſet himſelf againſt me, and ſhot all his Arrows into me. And therefore my Expoſtulations with him (which here follows, v. 7.) is the more reaſonable; and if you will hear me calmly and patiently, you will find that I have cauſe of complaining. e i.e. If my Complaint were only of Man, I have cauſe to be troubled. Or, if it be ſo, i.e. If I do not complain of Man, but of God, it is no wonder if my Spirit be greatly oppreſſed, and you ought to allow me the liberty of eaſing my troubled Mind, and modeſtly pleading my Cauſe before God. f Heb. be ſhortned or ſtraitned; i.e. either grieved, or vexed, as this word ſignifies, Exod. 6. 9. Numb. 21. 5. Judges 10. 16. & 16. 16. Tho' God be ſo gracious to them, yet they ſay and do thus to him. y Sometimes in words, but commonly in their thoughts and affections, and the language of their lives: See Pſalm 14. 1. & 36. 1, 2. Mal.3.14,15. Tit.1.16. z Much leſs the practiſe.

*Ch.35.3. Mal.3.14.

15 What is the Almighty a that we would ſerve him? and * what profit ſhould we have,if we pray unto him?

a What excellency is there in him? and what advantage have we, or can we expect from him?

16 Lo, their good is not in their hand b : the counſel of the wicked is far from me c.

b This ſeems to be an anſwer to the foregoing Queſtion,and a Confutation of that ungodly opinion and practiſe, v.14,15. Wicked men (ſaith he) have no reaſon to neglect and reject God, becauſe of their Proſperity, for their good ; i. e. all their Wealth and Felicity, is not in their hand ; i. e. it neither was obtained, nor can be kept, by their own might, but only by God's power and favour, upon whom they wholly depend for it. Or, the ſenſe is, Though they have Riches, and Power, and Glory in their hands, yet their true and proper good is not in their hand ; i.e. They are deſtitute of that in which their true happineſs lies ; to wit, in God's love and favour ; and all the Comforts which they enjoy are attended with God's wrath and curſe, and therefore not to be envied by any man in his wits. They ſay to God, depart from us, when indeed their true and only felicity conſiſts in the enjoyment of him. Compare Pſalm 4.6,7. c Therefore I am far from approving their Opinion, or following their courſe, or enjoying their Proſperity, or deſiring to partake of their Delicates upon ſuch terms.

|| Or, lamp.

17 How oft d is the || candle e of the wicked put out? and how oft cometh their deſtruction upon them? God f diſtributeth ſorrows in his anger.

d This Phraſe notes, either 1. The rarity and ſeldomneſs of it. This, I confeſs, ſometimes happens, but not oft. Or rather, 2. The frequency of it ; I grant that this happens oft,though not conſtantly, as you affirm. And this ſeems beſt to agree both with the uſe of this Phraſe in Scripture, where it notes frequency ; as Pſal.78.40.Matth. 18.21. Luke 13.34. and never ſeldomneſs ; and with the foregoing words, as a reaſon why the counſel of the wicked was far from him ; becauſe they oft-times pay dear for it in this life, and always in the next life ; and with the following Verſes, wherein he diſcourſeth largely, not of the Proſperity of the wicked (as he ſhould have done, if the ſenſe of theſe words were this, that ſuch were but ſeldom afflicted) but of their Calamities. e Or, lamp ; i. e. their glory and outward happineſs ; as Chap.18.6. 2 Sam.21.17. Pſal 132.17. f Who is manifeſtly underſtood out of the following words, this being God's work, and proceeding from God's anger.

18 * They are as ſtubble before the wind,and as chaff that the ſtorm carrieth away g ?

*g i.e.*Their deſtruction ſhall be ſpeedy,and certain,and irrecoverable.

19 God layeth up h || his iniquity i * for his children: he rewardeth him, and he ſhall know it k.

h To wit, in his Treaſures, Rom.2.5. i Or rather, the puniſhment of his iniquity ; i.e. He will puniſh him both in his Perſon and in his Poſterity. k i.e. He ſhall live to ſee the deſtruction of his Children.

20 His eyes ſhall ſee his deſtruction l, and* he ſhall drink m of the wrath of the Almighty.

l i. e. He ſhall be deſtroyed ; as to ſee death, is to die, Pſal.89.48. Heb.11.5. and to ſee affliction, or any kind of evil, is to feel it, Pſalm 90.15. Lam.3.1. and to ſee good, is to enjoy it, Chap.7.7.& 9.25.Pſal. 34.12. Or this Phraſe may be emphatical, he ſhall foreſee his ruin haſtening towards him, and not be able to prevent or avoid it ; he ſhall ſenſibly feel himſelf ſinking and periſhing : which aggravates his miſery. m Not ſip or taſte,but drink ; which word commonly notes the abundance of the thing ſpoken of.

21 For what pleaſure hath he in his houſe after him n, when the number of his months is cut off in the midſt o ?

n Or, for what deſire, or care, or ſtudy hath he for, or concerning (as Beth is oft uſed) his houſe, i. e. his Children. When he is dead and gone he cares not what becomes of his Children, as irreligion commonly makes men unnatural : he is not concerned nor affected with their felicity or miſery. See Chap. 14. 21. And therefore God doth puniſh both him and his Children whilſt he lives, v. 19,20. Or thus : What delight can he take in the thoughts of the glory and happineſs of his Poſterity, when he finds that he is dying a violent and untimely death? So this is a farther proof that this man is neither happy in himſelf, nor with reference to his Poſterity. o When that number of Months, which by his Conſtitution and the Courſe of Nature, he might have lived, is diminiſhed and cut off by the hand of Violence.

22 Shall any teach God knowledge p? ſeeing he judgeth thoſe q that are high.

p i.e. Diſcretion, or how to govern the World? For ſo you do, whilſt you tell him that he muſt not ſorely afflict the godly, nor give the wicked much and long proſperity here. q Either 1. The higheſt Perſons, whether in Earth, as the greateſt Kings ; or in Heaven ; as the Angels, he judgeth them, i. e. he exactly knows them,and accordingly gives Sentence concerning them, as he ſees fit ; and therefore it is great folly and preſumption in us to direct or correct his Judgments. Or, 2. Thoſe things that are high, and deep, and far out of our reach, as Gods ſecret Counſels and Judgments are.

|| Or, Milk-pails.

23 One r dieth † in his full ſtrength s, being wholly at eaſe and quiet.

r To wit, either 1. One of theſe wicked men, of whoſe condition he is here ſpeaking. Or, 2. Any one man, whether good or bad. s In a ſtate of perfect Health, and Strength, and Proſperity ; all which this Phraſe implies.

24 His || breaſts s are full of milk, and his bones are moiſtened with marrow t.

s The Hebrew word is not elſewhere uſed, and therefore it is diverſly tranſlated ; either 1. Breaſts. But that ſeems very improper here, becauſe mens Breaſts do not uſe to be filled with Milk. Or, 2. Milk-Pails. But their fulneſs is common, and no ſign of eminent plenty, which is here deſigned. Beſides,the following Branch, which in Job and elſewhere frequently explains the former, implies that it ſignifies ſome part of man's body, as all the ancient Interpreters render it, either the ſides, as ſome of them have it, or the bowels, as others. But for the following Milk, they read Fat ; the Hebrew Letters being exactly the ſame in both words : and the Hebrews by the name of Milk do oft underſtand Fat. t Which is oppoſed to the dryneſs of the bones, Job 30.30. Pſal. 102.3. which is cauſed by Old Age, or grievous Diſtempers or Calamities.

25 And another u dieth in the bitterneſs of his ſoul x, and never eateth with pleaſure y.

u Either 1. Another wicked man. Or, 2. Any other man promiſcuouſly conſidered, either good or bad. So hereby he ſhews how indifferently, and alike, God deals the Concerns of this Life to one and another, to good and bad. So he ſhews that there is a great variety in God's Diſpenſations ; that he diſtributes great Proſperity to one, and great Afflictions to another no worſe than he, according to his wiſe but ſecret Counſel. x i. e. With heart-breaking Pains and Sorrows. y i. e. Hath no pleaſure in his Life, no not ſo much as at Meal-time, when men uſually are moſt free and pleaſant.

26 They ſhall lie down alike in the duſt z, and the worms ſhall cover them.

27 Behold, I know your thoughts a, and the devices b which ye wrongfully imagine c againſt me d.

For they ſtrained both Job's words, and their own thoughts,which were byaſſed by their Prejudice and Paſſion againſt Job. d For I know very well that your Diſcourſes, though they be of wicked men in the general, yet are particularly levelled at me.

28 For ye ſay e, where is the houſe of the prince f ? and where are † the dwelling-places of the wicked g ?

e To wit, in your minds. f i.e. It is no where,it is loſt and gone. This is ſpoken either 1.Of Job,or his eldeſt Son,whoſe houſe God had lately overthrown. Or rather, 2. In general of wicked Princes or Potentates, as the following Anſwer ſheweth. So the meaning of the queſtion is, That it was apparent from common obſervation, that eminent Judgments, even in this Life, were ſooner or later the portion of all ungodly men. g Which is added to limit the former Expreſſion, and to ſhew that he ſpake only of wicked Princes.

29 Have ye not asked them that go by the way h ? and do ye not know their tokens i ?

h Theſe are the words, either 1. Of Job's Friends, who thus continue their former Diſcourſe by a ſecond Enquiry : Or rather, 2. Of Job himſelf,who anſwers one queſtion with another. You may learn this, which is the matter of our debate, to wit, that good men are oft afflicted, and that wicked men do commonly live and die in great Proſperity, and are not puniſhed in this World, even from them that go by the way, i. e. either from Travellers, who having ſeen and obſerved many Perſons, and Places, and Events, are more capable Judges of this matter ; or from any Perſon that paſſeth along the High-way,from every one that you meet with. It is ſo vulgar and trivial a thing, that no man of common ſenſe is ignorant of it. i i. e. The Examples, or Evidences, or Signs of this truth, which they that go by the way can produce. They will ſhew here and there in divers places the goodly Houſes and Caſtles, and other Monuments of Power and Dignity, which wicked Potentates have erected, and to this day do poſſeſs, and in which divers of them live and die. He alludes here to thoſe Tokens which are ſet up in High-ways for the direction of thoſe who travel in them.

32 Yet s ſhall he be brought t to the † Grave u, and ſhall † remain in the tomb x.

s Heb. And. The pomp of his Death ſhall be ſuitable to the glory of his Life. t With pomp and ſtate, as the word ſignifies. u Heb. to the Graves; i. e. to an honourable and eminent Grave: The plural number being oft uſed emphatically to note Eminency, as Job 40. 10. *Prov.*1.20. *Lam.*3.22. He ſhall not die a violent, but a natural Death, and ſhall lie in the Bed of Honour. x Heb. Shall watch (i.e. have a conſtant and fixed abode, as Watchmen have in the watching-place) in the heap, i.e. in his Grave, which is called an heap, either becauſe the Earth is there heaped up, or becauſe it was adorned with ſome Pyramid, or other Monument raiſed up to his Honour. His Body ſhall quietly reſt in his Grave or Monument, where he ſhall be embalmed and preſerved ſo entire and uncorrupted, that he might rather ſeem to be a living Watch-man, ſet there to guard the Body, than to be a dead Corps.

33 The clods of the valley y ſhall be ſweet unto him z, and every man ſhall draw after him ‖, as there are innumerable before him.

y i. e. Of the Grave, which is low and deep like a Valley. z He ſhall ſweetly reſt in his Grave, free from all cares, and fears, and troubles, *Chap.*3. 17, 18. ‖ Heb. He ſhall draw every man after him, to wit, into the Grave, i.e. All that live after him, whether good or bad, ſhall follow him into the Grave, i. e. ſhall die as he did. So he fares no worſe herein than all Mankind. He is figuratively ſaid to draw them, becauſe they come after him, as if they were drawn by his Example.

34 How then comfort ye me in vain, ſeeing in your anſwers there remaineth † falſhood *?

* Why then do you ſeek to comfort me with vain hopes of recovering my Proſperity if I repent, ſeeing your grounds are manifeſtly falſe, and common Experience ſheweth, that good men are very oft in great tribulation, while the vileſt of men thrive and proſper in the World.

CHAP. XXII.

Eliphaz's Anſwer: Man's righteouſneſs profiteth not God; nor can God fear man, 1——4. He chargeth Job's miſery on his ſins, 5—11. which God beheld, and knew, nor could they be hid from him, 12——14. The wicked, and their miſery, 15——17. If they proſpered he would not hold with them; but their deſtruction the righteous ſhould laugh at, 18——20. He exhorteth Job to know God and his Law, and return to him; he ſhould grow rich; God ſhall be his defence, his joy and confidence, 21——26. If he would pray God would hear; and his deſire and purpoſe ſhould ſtand, 27——30.

THen Eliphaz the Temanite anſwered and ſaid:

* Ch. 35.7. Pſal.16.2. Luk.17.10.
‖ Or, if he may be profitable, doth his good ſucceſs depend thereon?

2 * Can a man be profitable unto God a, ‖ as b he that is wiſe may be profitable to himſelf c?

a i. e. Add any thing to his Perfection or Felicity, to wit, by his Righteouſneſs, as the next Verſe ſhews. Why then doſt thou inſiſt ſo much upon thy own Righteouſneſs, as if thou didſt oblige God by it; or as if he could not without injury afflict thee, who ſuppoſeſt thy ſelf to be a righteous perſon, though indeed thou art not ſo, as he ſaith, v. 5, 6, &c. but if thou wert really ſo, God is not thy debtor for it. b Or, becauſe; or, but; or, yea rather: ſo this latter Clauſe is to be read without an Interrogation, and the former with it. c A wiſe or good man (for theſe in Scripture uſe are one and the ſame) doth much good to himſelf; he promotes his own Peace, and Honour, and Happineſs by his Goodneſs; and having ſo great a reward for his Vertue, God is not indebted to him, but he is indebted to God for it.

3 Is it any pleaſure d to the Almighty, that thou art righteous? Or is it gain to him, that thou makeſt thy ways perfect e?

d i. e. Such a pleaſure as he needs for his own eaſe and contentment, without which he could not be happy, as appears by the foregoing and following words: For otherwiſe God is oft ſaid to delight in the good actions of his People, to wit, ſo far as to approve and accept them. e That thy Life is free from blemiſh, as thou pretendeſt, but falſly, as I ſhall ſhew.

4 Will he reprove thee f for fear of thee g? Will he enter with thee into Judgment h?

f Will, or doth, or would he reprove thee? i.e. puniſh thee. For this word is frequently uſed of real Rebukes or Chaſtiſements, as hath been oft noted. g Becauſe he is afraid, leſt if he ſhould let thee alone, thou wouldſt grow too great and powerful for him, as Princes ofttimes cruſh thoſe Subjects of whom they are afraid? Surely no. As thy Righteouſneſs cannot profit him, ſo thy wickedneſs can do him no hurt. Or, for thy piety or religion, which is commonly called by the name of fear? Doth he puniſh thee becauſe thou feareſt and ſerveſt him, as thou doſt inſinuate? No ſurely, but for thy ſins, as it follows. h And condemn thee, to wit, for the reaſon laſt mentioned, as appears from the Hebrew Text, where the words lye thus, Will he for fear of thee reprove thee, or enter with thee into judgment?

5 Is not thy wickedneſs great, and † thine iniquities infinite i?

i Thy great ſins are the true and only cauſes of thy miſery. The words may very well be rendred thus, Is not thy evil (i. e. thy puniſhment or affliction, which is frequently expreſſed by this very word) great, becauſe the Particle and being oft uſed cauſally, as it is *Gen.*18. 13. & 22.12. & 24.56. *Iſa.*39.1. & 64.5.) thine iniquities are infinite? Are not thy Calamities procured by, and proportionable to thy ſins? Thy own Conſcience tells thee they are ſo. And therefore thou haſt no reaſon to accuſe God, nor any perſon but thy ſelf.

6 For thou haſt taken k a pledge from thy brother l for nought m, and † ſtripped the naked of their Cloathing n.

k Or, Surely thou haſt taken. He ſpeaks thus by way of conjecture, or ſtrong preſumption, when I conſider thy grievous and unuſual Calamities, I juſtly conclude thou art guilty of all, or ſome of theſe following Crimes; and do thou ſearch thine own Conſcience, whether it be not ſo with thee. l i. e. Either of thy Neighbour, or of thy Kinſman; which are both called by the name of Brother. This is added to aggravate the offence. m i.e. Without ſufficient and juſtifiable cauſe. Which he might do many ways, either by taking what he ought not to take, *Deut.*24. 6. or from whom he ought not, to wit, the Poor to whom he ſhould give, *Prov.*3.27. or when, and in ſuch manner as he ought not, of which ſee on Deut. 24.10,11. or by keeping it longer than he ſhould, as when the poor mans neceſſity requires it, or when the debt is ſatisfied, Ezek. 18.16. n Either by taking their Garment for a pledge, againſt the Law, Exod. 22. 26. or otherwiſe by robbing them of their Rights, all other Injuries being Synecdochically comprehended under this. Qu. How could he ſtrip the naked? Anſw. He calls them naked, either 1. Becauſe they had but very few and mean Cloaths, ſuch being oft called naked, as *Deut.*28.48. 1 *Cor.*4.11. James 2.15. Or, 2. From the effect, becauſe though he did not find them naked, yet he made them ſo. The like Phraſes we have Iſa. 47. 2. grind Meal, i. e. by grinding Corn make it Meal; Amos 8. 5. falſifying the deceitful ballances, i. e. by falſifying making true ballances deceitful: And ſo here, to ſtrip the naked, is by ſtripping them to make them naked.

7 Thou haſt not given water o to the weary p to drink, and thou haſt with-holden bread from the hungry q.

o Surely thou haſt been ſo hard hearted as to deny a Cup of cold Water to thoſe that needed and deſired it. Water was oft times ſcarce and precious in thoſe hot Countries, and was appropriated to particular Perſons, without whoſe leave other perſons might not take it. p i. e. To him, who by reaſon of hard labour or travel, is weary and thirſty. So this word is uſed, *Prov.*25.25. q To whom it was due by God's Law, *Prov.*3.27. which alſo was known to Job by the Light of Nature. Hereby he intimates the greatneſs of this Sin of Uncharitableneſs, by ranking it with heinous Crimes, whereas Job (as he thought) eſteemed it but a ſmall fault, if any.

8 But as for † the mighty man, he had the Earth r, and the † honourable man dwelt in it s.

† Heb. the man of arm
† Heb. eminent, or, accepted for countenance 2 Kin. 5.1. Iſa.3.3.

r Heb. And, or but the man of Arm, or Strength, or Power, to him was the Earth, or the Land, i.e. he had the firm poſſeſſion, or free enjoyment of it. Which is meant either, 1. Of Job, of whom he ſpeaks invidiouſly in the third perſon. The mighty man Job poſſeſſed, and enlarged, and enjoyed his Eſtate without any compaſſion to the Poor. Or rather, 2. Of other rich and potent men, who had the Earth or Land, either 1. By Job's Judicial Sentence, which was generally given in favour of the Rich, and againſt the Poor: Or, 2. By Job's kindneſs and courteſie. The Rich were always welcome to him, his Houſe was open to them, his Land was before them, when the Poor were driven away from his Houſe and Territories. s Either by thy ſentence or permiſſion, he had a peaceable and ſure poſſeſſion of it. He repeateth the ſame thing in other words.

9 Thou haſt ſent widows t away empty u, and the arms x of the fatherleſs have been broken.

t Whoſe helpleſs Eſtate called for thy pity, *Exod.*22. 22. Deut. 24. 17,19. u Either by denying them that Relief which their Poverty required, or that right which their cauſe deſerved; or by ſpoiling them of their Goods, becauſe thou kneweſt them to be unable to oppoſe thee, or to right themſelves. x i.e. All their ſupports, and comforts, and rights. An heinous ſin, but falſly charged upon Job.

10 Therefore y ſnares are round about thee z, and ſudden fear a troubleth thee;

y For theſe and the like Crimes. The cauſe of thy ruin is not ſecret from God's Soveraign Power, and unſearchable Judgments (as thou pretendeſt) but plain and manifeſt, even thy own crying ſins. z Thou art encompaſſed with Dangers and Calamities. a Beſide thy preſent Miſeries thou art tormented with the dread and expectation of further and ſorer Judgments.

11 Or darkneſs b that thou canſt not ſee, and abundance of waters c cover thee.

b Either 1. A darkneſs and confuſion of mind, ſo great that thou canſt not diſcern the true cauſe and uſe of all thy Sufferings. Or, 2. Grievous Calamities, which are oft called darkneſs, which are ſuch that thou canſt ſee no way nor poſſibility of eſcaping. Either thou art troubled with fear of further evils, as it is ſaid, v. 10. or with the groſs darkneſs of thy preſent ſtate of miſery. c i. e. Plenty and variety of ſore afflictions, which are frequently compared to Waters, as *Pſal.*18.16. & 66.12. *Iſa.*43. 2.

12 Is not God in the height of heaven d? and behold † the height of the ſtars how high they are e.

† Heb. the head of the ſtars.

d Surely he is; and from that high Tower he looketh down upon men, *Pſal.*14.2. to behold, and govern, and recompenſe all their actions, whether good or bad. And therefore, O Job, thou art groſly miſtaken, in thinking that all things in this lower World are managed by Chance, and without any regard to Juſtice, or to juſt men, and not by the wiſe and holy Providence of God: For this is the genuine Conſequence of thy great Principle, that good men ſuffer as deeply as any others, whilſt the vileſt of men are exalted and flouriſh. e. Yet God is far higher than they, and from thence can eaſily ſpy all men and things here below; as the higheſt places afford the beſt proſpects.

‖ Or, what
* Pſal.10.11. & 59.7. & 73.11. & 94.7.

13 And f thou ſayeſt g, ‖ How doth God know h? can he judge through the dark cloud i?

f Or, Therefore: From this true and certain Principle thou draw-eſt this falſe and wicked Concluſion. Or, Yet, notwithſtanding this undeniable Argument. g Thou reaſoneſt thus within thy ſelf, as it may ſeem by thy Diſcourſes. h i. e. God cannot diſcern, and therefore doth not mind things ſo far below him and diſtant from him. i i. e. Through thoſe immenſe and innumerable Clouds which lye between the Heaven and the Earth, although our eyes ſee but few of them.

14 Thick clouds are a covering to him that he ſeeth not, and he walketh in the circuit of heaven k.

k His converſation and buſineſs and delight is in the higher and heavenly World, which is worthy of his care, but he will not diſparage nor burden himſelf with the care of this contemptible ſpot of earth: which was the opinion of many Heathen Philoſophers, and, as they fancied, was Job's Opinion alſo.

† Heb. everlaſting way. So Gr.

15 Haſt thou marked the † old way l which wicked men have troden?

l Heb. The way of antiquity, i. e. of men living in ancient times, or former ages: By this way is here meant, either 1. Their courſe or common practice: Or, 2. Their end or ſucceſs; as the way is taken, 1 Sam. 9.6,8. and as death, which is, and is called the end of all men, Eccleſ. 7.2. is alſo called the way of all the earth, Joſ. 23.14. 1 Kings 2.2.

† Heb. a flud was poured upon their foundation.

16 Which were cut down out of time m, † whoſe foundation was overflown with a floud n.

m i.e. Before their time; who died a violent and untimely death. n Who, together with their foundation, to wit, the earth and all their ſupports and enjoyments in it, were deſtroyed by the general Deluge; which doubtleſs was very well known to them, becauſe they lived not long after it; and which was moſt proper for this Argument. Or, whoſe foundation, i. e. all their power, and riches, and policy, upon which they build all their hopes and happineſs, was like a floud poured forth; which made a great ſhew and noiſe for a time, but ſpeedily vaniſhed and came to nothing.

* Ch. 21.14 || Or, to them.

17 * Which ſaid unto God, Depart from us: and what can the Almighty do || for them o?

o He reports Job's words, Chap. 21. 14, 15. (where they are explained) but to a contrary purpoſe. Job alledged them to ſhew that they proſpered notwithſtanding their profeſſed wickedneſs; and Eliphaz produceth them to ſhew that they were cut off for it.

18 Yet he filled their houſes with good things p: but * the counſel of the wicked is far from me q.

p Yet it is true, that for a time God did proſper them, as he did thee; which alſo was the aggravation of their ſin, and that which haſtned their ruin: but at laſt, and in due time, God cut them off in a tremendous and exemplary manner; as he will alſo do thee, if thou doſt not repent. q He repeats Job's words, Chap. 21. 16. not without reflection and ſome kind of deriſion: Thou didſt ſay ſo, but without ſufficient reaſon, and againſt thy own principle, that God carries himſelf indifferently towards good and bad; but I who have obſerved God's terrible Judgments upon wicked men, have much more reaſon to abhor their Counſels which had ſo ſad an iſſue.

* Pſal. 107. 42.

19 * The righteous ſee it r, and are glad s: and the innocent laugh them to ſcorn t.

r Whom God oft ſpares in common Calamities, and makes them to ſurvive and ſee the deſtruction of the wicked; as Noah, Lot, &c. s Not that they inſult over, or rejoyce in the ruin of any men, but becauſe they delight in the vindication of God's Honour, and Juſtice, and Holineſs, which is conjoyned with the deſtruction of his enemies, and which is and ought to be dearer to them than all the intereſts of men. t They juſtly deride them, or their vain and yet ſtrong confidences which are now deſtroyed, and for their profane contempt of God and of his Judgments which now they feel, and for their deep and crafty counſels, which are now fruſtrated and turned againſt themſelves.

|| Or, eſtate. || Or, their excellency.

20 Whereas u our || ſubſtance is not cut down, but || the remnant x of them y the fire z conſumeth.

u Or, when; or, ſeeing that, or, becauſe: for this Hebrew Particle Im, is oft uſed for Chi. And ſo the following words may contain the reaſon of the Joy and Laughter of the Innocent mentioned, v. 19. becauſe when wicked Men are deſtroyed, they are preſerved; becauſe our ſubſtance, i. e. our Souls and Bodies, and Subſiſtence was now cut down. He ſhould have ſaid their ſubſtance; i. e. the ſubſtance of the Righteous; but he changeth the Perſon, and ſaith, our ſubſtance; either as including himſelf in the number of righteous Perſons, and thereby intimating that he pleaded the common cauſe of all ſuch, whilſt Job pleaded the cauſe of the wicked, as is elſewhere obſerved: or becauſe he would hereby thankfully acknowledge ſome eminent and particular preſervation given to him amongſt other righteous Men: or becauſe he and his Brethren were of the ſame ſubſtance with, and deſcended from the Loins of them whom God had miraculouſly preſerved, when others round about them were cut off; as God had done for Abraham and his Poſterity, of which Race theſe are conceived to have been. And a like change both of Perſon and Number we find, Hoſ. 4. 21. He found him (i. e. Jacob in Bethel) and there he ſpake with us; i. e. with him, as repreſenting us, and for all our good. x All that was left undeſtroyed in the general Calamity. Or, their excellency, all their deſirable and delectable things. y i. e. Of thoſe who are oppoſed to the righteous, and in whoſe deſtruction the Righteous rejoiced. z To wit, of God's wrath: ſome dreadful Judgment, either proper Fire, poſſibly that which deſtroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, which ſuch knowing and inquiſitive Perſons could not be ignorant of, as a thing done near their times and places; or ſome other ſore calamity; for ſuch oft come under the name of Fire. But this whole Verſe is, and may be otherwiſe rendred, and that Interrogatively. Is not, (or rather, Was not, the Hebrew Prefix, he, being here underſtood, after the manner of the Language, from v. 15. where it is expreſſed) our ſubſtance (i. e. almoſt all our nature and kind) cut off (almoſt all deſtroyed in the flood) and did not the Fire conſume a remnant of them; i. e. of Mankind, and of ungodly Men, in Sodom and Gomorrah?

|| That is, with God.

21 Acquaint now thy ſelf || with him a, and be at peace b: thereby c good ſhall come unto thee d.

a i. e. With God, as appears both from v. 23. where he is expreſſed, and from the nature of the thing, there being no other way to Happineſs. Renew thy acquaintance and converſe with God by Prayer, which thou haſt reſtrained, Chap. 15. 4. and repentance for all thy ſins, and true humiliation under his hand, and hearty compliance with all his Commands, and diligent care to ſerve and enjoy him; and be no longer eſtranged from God, as thou now art. b This is either 1. a Promiſe, the Imperative being put for the Future of the Indicative Mood, and ſo thou ſhalt have peace; i. e. Proſperity and Happineſs: Or, rather, 2. A Counſel or Command, If God be an Enemy to thee, as thou ſayſt he is, reconcile thy ſelf to Him by true Repentance, and earneſtly ſeek his Favour and Friendſhip, and do not provoke Him further by thy falſe and wicked Speeches of Him, or by thy froward carriage to Him: And whereas thou art full of unquietneſs and rage againſt God, learn to poſſeſs thy Soul in Patience, give over murmuring againſt him, and get a compoſed, and quiet, and ſubmiſſive Mind and Heart; which is called Peace, Judg. 6. 23. & 19,20. Iſa. 57. 21. Thus far is the Command or Exhortation; now followeth the Promiſe. c i. e. By following theſe Counſels. d Thou ſhalt be freed from all thy Calamities, and enjoy all the happineſs which thy heart can deſire.

22 Receive, I pray thee, the law from his mouth e, and lay up his words in thine heart f.

e Take the Law and Rule whereby thou governeſt thy thoughts, and words, and whole life, not from profane Heathens, whoſe Opinion concerning God's Providence thou haſt embraced, nor from thy own vain imaginations or violent Paſſions, which have led thee into thy preſent Errors and Miſcarriages, but from God, and from his Word, and from his Law, which is written in thy own Mind, and from the Doctrines and Inſtructions of the holy Men of God, who are all of our mind in this matter. f i. e. Do not only hear them with thine Ears, but let them ſink into thy Heart, being received there by hearty affection, and fixed by ſerious, and frequent, and practical conſideration of them, Pſalm 119. 11. Matth. 13. 9. &c. Luke 2. 19. 51.

23 * If thou return to the Almighty g, thou ſhalt be built up h; thou ſhalt put away iniquity far from thy tabernacles i. * Ch. 8.5,6. & 11.13.

g Or, home to the Almighty; or, ſo as to reach to the Almighty and be joyned to him. The Hebrew Phraſe is extraordinary, and emphatical, and implies a thorough and effectual turning not only from Sin, (which an Hypocrite may do in great part, at leaſt for a time, upon carnal Motives, and without any reſpect or love to God) but alſo unto God, ſo as to love Him, and cleave to Him, and ſincerely devote a Man's ſelf to his fear and ſervice. And he expreſſeth it in this manner, becauſe he thought Job to be an Hypocrite, and therefore counſelleth him to turn to God in another and better manner than he had done; to wit, with all his heart, and not feignedly. h God who hath pulled thee down in thy Eſtate, and Honour, and Children, will repair thy Ruines, and give thee more Children, which is oft called building; as Gen. 16. 2. Exod. 1. 21. Ruth. 4. 11. and bleſs thee with Proſperity and Happineſs, as building ſignifies, Jer. 42. 10. & 31. 4. i This may be either 1. a Condition upon which God makes the following Promiſes, If (which Particle may be repeated out of the former part of the Verſe) thou ſhalt put away, &c. i. e. If thou ſhalt effectually purge thy ſelf and Family from all ſin, and keep thy ſelf and them, as far as thou canſt from all appearances and occaſions of ſin, which is the duty of all, and the practice of true Penitents. Whereby he ſeems to reflect upon Job, as if he had been faulty and negligent in the Government of himſelf or Children, notwithſtanding his ſacrificing for them, Chap. 1. Or, rather 2. A Promiſe, becauſe the conditions required had been expreſſed together, v. 21. 22. and in the beginning of this Verſe, after which he comes to the Promiſes, and begins with this, Thou ſhalt be built up, and ſo proceeds to other Promiſes; and therefore it ſeems not probable that he ſhould return to the Conditions again, and mix the Conditions and Promiſes together, which he hath ſo carefully ſeparated in theſe Verſes. And ſo it is either 1. a Spiritual Promiſe, If thou doſt ſincerely repent, God will give thee more Grace effectually to reform thy ſelf and family, according to that rule, To him that hath, ſhall be given. Or, 2. a temporal Promiſe, Thou ſhalt put away iniquity or injury, or perverſeneſs (i. e. either perverſe and injurious Men: Or, God's Judgments, or the puniſhments of thy ſins; as Iniquity is very oft uſed) far from thy tabernacles; i. e. from all thy Dwellings, and Tents, and Poſſeſſions; no hand of violence ſhall come near them, no evil Plague ſhall come upon thy own Habitation, or upon the Habitations of thy Children, as lately it did for thine and their ſins.

24 Then ſhalt thou lay up gold k || as duſt l, and the gold of Ophir † as the ſtones m of the brook. || Or, in the duſt. † Heb. in, or among the ſtones.

k Solid or choice Gold, as the Word ſignifies. l i. e. In great abundance. Or, upon the duſt, or ground: It ſhall be ſo plentiful, and therefore vile, that thou ſhalt not lock it up in Cheſts and Treaſuries, but ſcatter it any where, and let it lie even upon the ground. m As plentifully as if the pieces of Gold were but ſo many Pebble Stones, which are to be found in and near every Brook. Or, for the Stones; i. e. in ſtead of them. Or, in the rock, or among the rocks: Gold ſhall be ſo abundant that thou mayſt lay it any where, even upon or among the rocks.

25 Yea, the Almighty ſhall be thy || defence n, and thou ſhalt have † plenty of ſilver o. || Or, gold. † Heb. ſilver of ſtrength.

n God by his ſpecial and watchful Providence ſhall protect thee from all dangers and calamities. Heb. thy defences, or munitions. One God ſhall keep thee as ſafely as many Munitions. o Heb. ſilver of ſtrength, i. e. which by God's Bleſſing ſhall be thy Defence, Eccleſ. 7. 12. Or, ſilver of heights, i. e. high and heaped up like a Mountain.

26 For p then thou ſhalt have thy delight in the Almighty q, and ſhalt * lift up thy face unto God r. * Ch. 11.15 p So this Verſe contains a Reaſon why he might confidently expect all thoſe former outward Bleſſings, becauſe he ſhould have God's Favour, which is the Spring and Foundation of them. Or, Surely: Or, Yea, moreover; for this Particle Chi, is ſometimes uſed by way of of aggravation, or amplification, as Gen. 45. 26. 1 Sam. 14. 41. Iſa. 7. 9. & 32. 13. And this ſuits very well here; yea, God will do greater things than theſe for thee. q Thou ſhalt find delight not only in theſe outward comforts, but alſo, and eſpecially in God, whoſe Face ſhall ſhine upon thee; who ſhall give thee theſe things not in anger and wrath, as he doth to wicked Men, but as pledges of his love and favour to thee, and of thoſe greater and eternal Bleſſings which he hath in ſtore for thee; and accordingly thou ſhalt delight thy ſelf in worſhipping, enjoying, obeying, and ſerving God in and with all his Mercies. r i. e. Look up to him by meditation and prayer, not as now thou doſt, with horror and grief, which is ſignified by a dejected Countenance, 2 Sam. 2. 22. Luke 18. 13. but with chearfulneſs and confidence, as this Phraſe oft notes, as Luke 21. 28. See on Job 11. 15.

* Pſal. 50. 14, 15.

The Antecedent is here ſuppoſed and underſtood out of the Conſequent.

28 Thou ſhalt alſo decree a thing, and it ſhall be eſtabliſhed u unto thee, and the light ſhall ſhine upon thy ways x.

† Heb. him that hath low eyes.

y Heb. When they (i. e. they who do this work. It is an indefinite and imperſonal Speech, which is very common in the Hebrew Language) ſhall caſt down or overthrow; either 1. proud and wicked men, as may be gueſſed by the oppoſition of the humble and innocent, who ſhould be ſaved, whilſt theſe were deſtroyed. So the ſenſe is, when there ſhall come a general calamity which ſhall ſweep away all the wicked round about them. Or, 2. Thee, or thine; which Pronoun is oft underſtood. So the ſenſe is, when through God's permiſſion thou ſhalt be brought into ſome trouble, which God ſees fit for thee. z Within thy ſelf with good aſſurance and confidence. a Or, there ſhall be lifting up, either 1. for them, if they repent and humble themſelves, they ſhall be preſerved or reſtored. And this thou wiltſt aſſure them of from thy own experience. Or, 2. for thee and thine: God will deliver thee, when others are cruſhed and deſtroyed. b Or, for, this Particle being oft put cauſally, as hath been formerly noted. So the following words contain a Reaſon why he might confidently ſay, That there would be ſuch a lifting up for a perſon ſo humbled. c i. e. God, unto whom only Salvation belongeth, Pſalm 3. 8. d Either 1. Eternally; or 2. Temporally; to wit, from the Evils here mentioned. e Heb. Him that hath low or caſt down Eyes: Which Phraſe may here note, either 1. Humility and Lowlineſs of Mind and Diſpoſition, as Pride is oft expreſſed by high or lofty looks, as Pſalm 18. 27. & 101. 5. & 131. 1. Prov. 6. 17. And ſo this is a tacit Admonition and Reproof for Job, whom, for his confident juſtification of himſelf, and his contemptuous Expreſſions and Cenſures concerning them, they judged to be guilty of intolerable Pride of Heart. Or, 2. Lowneſs of Eſtate or Condition, as James 1. 10. So it notes him whoſe Eyes and Countenance are dejected by reaſon of his great troubles and miſeries; as on the contrary, Proſperity makes perſons lift up their Eyes and Faces.

‖ Or, the innocent ſhall deliver the iſland.

30 ‖ He f ſhall deliver g the Iſland of the innocent h: and it i is delivered by the pureneſs of thine hands k.

f i. e. God, as v. 29. whoſe Prerogative it is to give deliverances. g To wit, upon thy requeſt, as the following Clauſe ſheweth: God will hear thy Prayers even for others: which is a great honour and comfort; and much more for thy ſelf. h Not only thy ſelf, when thou ſhalt become innocent and pure, but for thy ſake he will deliver the whole Iſland (or Country, that word being oft uſed not only for ſuch Lands or Countries as were ſeparated from Canaan by the Sea, as is commonly obſerved, but alſo for ſuch as were upon the ſame Continent with it, as appears from Gen. 10. 5. &c. Pſalm 72. 10. & 97. 1. Iſa. 41. 5.) in which thou dwelleſt. Or, the guilty, or him that is not innocent: For the word here rendred Iſland, is ſometimes uſed for not, in Scripture, as 1 Sam. 4. 21. Prov. 31. 4. So the Senſe is, God will have ſo great a reſpect to thy innocency and purity, that for thy ſake he will deliver thoſe that belong to thee, or live with thee, or near thee, though in themſelves they be ſinful Creatures and ripe for Deſtruction. See Gen. 18. 32. i To wit, the Iſland. Or, he, i. e. the guilty perſon. k i. e. By thy Prayers proceeding from a pure Heart and Conſcience. When thou ſhalt lift up pure hands to God in Prayer, as it is expreſſed, 1 Tim. 2. 8. Whereby as he aſſerts the prevalency of the righteous Man's Prayers with God for Mercy both for himſelf and others; and by this Argument he perſwadeth Job to Repentance: ſo withal he alledgeth this as an Argument, or evidence that Job did not ſtretch out pure hands to God in Prayer, as he pretended, becauſe his Prayers could not prevail for the preſervation of himſelf or his Children, and much leſs for others at a greater diſtance.

CHAP. XXIII.

Job's reply: his deſire to plead with God, 1——5. who ſhould not confound but ſtrengthen him, 6, 7. He cannot behold God's way; but he walked in the way of his law, 8——12. God in his Providences bringeth about what he had decreed: Job's trouble herein, 13——17.

THen Job anſwered and ſaid,

† Heb. my hand.

2 Even to day a is my complaint bitter b: † my ſtroke c is heavier than my groaning d.

a i. e. Even at this time, notwithſtanding all your Promiſes and pretended Conſolations, I find no eaſe or ſatisfaction in all your Diſcourſes: And therefore in this and the following Chapters, Job ſeldom applies his Diſcourſe to his Friends, but only addreſſeth his Speech to God, or bewaileth himſelf. b i. e. I do bitterly complain, and have juſt cauſe to do ſo. But this Clauſe is and may be otherwiſe rendred: Even ſtill (Heb. at this day) is my complaint called or accounted by you rebellion or bitterneſs? or the rage of an exaſperated mind? Do you ſtill paſs ſuch harſh Cenſures upon me after all my Declarations and Solemn Proteſtations of my Innocency? c Heb. my hand, paſſively; i. e. the hand or ſtroke of God upon me, as the ſame Phraſe is uſed, Pſal. 77. 2. and mine arrow, Job, Chap. 34. 6. d i. e. Doth exceed all my Complaints and Expreſſions: So far are you miſtaken, that think I complain more than I have cauſe. Some render the words thus, My hands are heavy (i. e. feeble and hanging down, as the Phraſe is, Heb. 12. 12. My ſtrength and ſpirit faileth) becauſe of my groaning.

3 * O that I knew where I might find him e! that I might come even to his ſeat f.

* Ch. 13. 3.

e To wit, God, as his Friends well knew, and the thing it ſelf ſheweth: Thou bidſt me acquaint my ſelf with him, Chap. 22. 21. I deſire nothing more than his acquaintance and preſence; but alas he hides his Face from me that I cannot ſee him, nor come near him. f i. e. To his Throne or Judgment-ſeat to plead my Cauſe before him, as it here follows, verſe 4. not upon terms of ſtrict Juſtice, but upon thoſe terms of Grace and Mercy upon which God is pleaſed to deal with his ſinful Creatures: See before Chap. 9. 34, 35. & 16. 21. & 17. 3. And this my Confidence may be ſome Evidence that I am not ſuch a groſs Hypocrite as you imagine me to be.

4 I would * order my cauſe g before him h, and fill my mouth with arguments i.

* Chap. 13. 3, 18.

g i. e. Orderly declare the things which concern and prove the right of my Cauſe; h not only debating the Controverſie between my Friends and me, concerning my Sincerity or Hypocriſie before God, as a Witneſs or Judge; but alſo pleading with God as a Party, and modeſtly enquiring, whether he doth not deal more rigorouſly with me than I might reaſonably expect, wherein I deſire no other Judge but himſelf. i To prove my Innocency and Sincerity towards God, and conſequently that I am ſeverely uſed.

5 I would know the words which he would anſwer me, and underſtand what he would ſay unto me k.

k I long to know what he would ſay, either to prove me an Hypocrite, or to juſtifie his harſh proceedings againſt me; and if he ſhould diſcover to me any ſecret and unknown ſins, for which he contendeth with me, I ſhould humble my ſelf before him, and accept of the puniſhment of mine iniquity.

6 Will he plead againſt me with his great power l? no, but he would put ſtrength in me m.

l i. e. Oppreſs me with his Soveraign and Abſolute Power, as Men do thoſe whom they cannot fairly and juſtly conquer? m The word ſtrength, or power, being fitly ſupplied out of the former branch of the Verſe, as is very uſual in Scripture. He would not uſe his power againſt me, but for me; by enabling me to plead my Cauſe, and giving Sentence according to that Clemency and Benignity, which according to his gracious Covenant he uſeth towards his Children. Or, He would put or ſet his heart (this very Verb of putting, or ſetting being elſewhere uſed in this defective manner, for putting or ſetting the heart, as Job 7. 17. Iſa. 41. 10. as it is fully expreſſed, Iſa. 57. 1. Ezek. 40. 4. & 44. 5.) upon (the Prepoſition Beth, in, being ſometimes uſed for al, upon, as Neh. 2. 12. Iſa. 21. 13.) me, to wit, to hear me and all my reaſons meekly, and to judge favourably, and to help and deliver me, as that and the like Phraſes commonly ſignifie in Scripture uſe.

7 There n the righteous o might diſpute with him p: ſo q ſhould I be delivered for ever from my judge r.

n At that Throne of Grace, as it is called, Hebr. 4. 16. where God lays aſide his Majeſty, and Power, and judgeth according to his wonted Grace and Clemency. o Such as I do and dare avow my ſelf to be, to wit, in ſincerity, though not in perfection. p Humbly and modeſtly propounding the grounds of their Confidence, and the Evidences of their Righteouſneſs. q Upon ſuch a fair and equal hearing. r Either, 1. From the ſevere Cenſures of all corrupt and partial Judges, ſuch as you my Friends are. Or rather, 2. From the Damnatory Sentence of God; for he is not only pleading before him, but alſo with him. He would give Sentence for me, and againſt himſelf. This and ſome ſuch Expreſſions of Job cannot be excuſed from Irreverence towards God, and too great a confidence in himſelf; for which therefore God ſharply reproves him hereafter, and Job abhorreth himſelf.

8 * Behold, I go forward s, but he is not there t; and backward u, but I cannot perceive him:

* Ch. 9. 12.

s i. e. Towards the Eaſt, which in Scripture is accounted the forepart of the World, as the Hebrew name of it ſignifies, becauſe of the Light of the Sun, which ariſeth there, and draweth the eyes of men towards it. t To wit, ſo as I would have him, as a Judge to hear and determine my Cauſe, of which he is here ſpeaking: For otherwiſe he knew and believed that God was eſſentially preſent in all places. u i. e. Towards the Weſt. So alſo the North is called the Left-hand, and the South the Right-hand, v. 9. becauſe ſo they all are to a man who looks towards the Eaſt. He names all the ſeveral parts of the World, to ſhew his eager deſire and reſtleſs endeavours to find out God, and to preſent himſelf before him.

9 On the left hand where he doth work x, but I cannot behold him: he hideth himſelf y on the right hand, that I cannot ſee him z:

x To wit, in a ſpecial and peculiar manner, more than in other parts of the World; for ſo indeed God did work in thoſe parts which were Northward from Job, becauſe there Mankind (among whom God delights to be and to work) were moſt numerous, and moſt ingenious to diſcern God's Works. There alſo was the Seat of the Aſſyrian Empire, which was eminent in Job's time, and afterwards of the other ſucceſſive Empires. In and by all which God did many great and glorious Works: But this Hebrew word is by others, and that very properly and fitly rendred, when or whileſt he worketh, to wit, in an eminent manner. So this is added to aggravate Job's unhappineſs. We may certainly find any man when and where he is working: But I, ſaith he, ſearch for God even when and where he is working, and yet cannot find him out. y To wit, from me. He withdraweth his favour, and will not afford me his preſence and audience. z Either, 1. I cannot diſcern his Counſels, and Ways, and the Reaſons of his ſevere dealings with me. Or rather, 2. He doth not appear to me as a Judge, to examine my Cauſe and Arguments, but condemns me without hearing me.

† Heb. the way that is with me.

10 But a he knoweth † the way that I take b: when he hath tried me c, I ſhall come forth as gold d.

a Though I cannot ſee him, yet my comfort is, that he ſeeth me and my heart, and all my actions. Or, For, as this Particle commonly ſignifies. So this Verſe contains a reaſon why he ſo vehemently deſired that he might plead his Cauſe with or before God. b He cannot be deceived nor blinded, either by the Artifices of bold Accuſers or Advocates, or by his own Miſapprehenſions or Paſſions, but he exactly knows the way that is with me, i. e. the diſpoſition of my heart, and the whole courſe or manner of my life. c If he would examine me throughly, which above all things I deſire. d Which cometh out of the Furnace pure from all droſs. It would appear upon a fair hearing that I am free, though not from all ſin, as he had confeſſed before, yet from that Hypocriſie, and thoſe groſs Enormities wherewith my Friends charge me.

11 My foot hath held e his ſteps f, his way have I kept and not declined g.

e i. e. Made a free and fixed choice, and taken faſt hold of them: been firmly and ſtrongly ſettled, and reſolved to continue in them, as the word ſignifies. f Either, 1. Actively, the ſteps or ways in which God himſelf walks; the paths of Holineſs, Juſtice, Mercy, &c. wherein he walked with, or after God, as the Phraſe is, Gen. 5. 24. 2 Kings 23. 3. following his Example. Or, 2. Paſſively, the ſteps or paths which God hath appointed men to walk in, as Chap. 21. 14. g The ſame thing with that in the former part of the Verſe, in different expreſſions.

† Heb. I have hid, or laid up.
|| Or, my appointed portion.

12 Neither have I gone back h from the commandment of his lips; † I have eſteemed i the word of his mouth more than || my neceſſary food k.

h i. e. Not turned aſide to any crooked or ſinful path or courſe of life, human Infirmity excepted. i Heb. I have hid, or laid it up, as Men do their beſt Treaſures, or what they moſt love and value. The Phraſe notes an high eſtimation of it, an hearty affection to it, and a diligent care to preſerve it. k Or, my appointed food, or my daily portion; i. e. that food or proviſion which is neceſſary for the ſupport of my life, as this word is uſed, Gen. 47. 22. Prov. 30. 8. & 31. 15. which is more prized and deſired than all the riches in the world.

* Chap. 9. 12, 13. & 12. 14.
* Pſal. 115. 3.

13 But he is in one mind l, and * who can turn him m? and what * his ſoul deſireth even that he doth n.

l i. e. Notwithſtanding all theſe Evidences of my ſincere Piety, and all my Prayers to him, he ſtill continues in the ſame mind and courſe of afflicting me. Or, but he is, i. e. if he be, againſt one, or againſt any man, as that word is oft uſed, as he now ſetteth himſelf againſt me. Or, But he is one, the Hebrew prefix Beth, being here the note of a Nominative Caſe, as it is Job 18. 8. Pſal. 68. 5. Hoſ. 13. 9. and elſewhere. So the ſenſe is, But why do I waſte words to no purpoſe? All my former conſtant Integrity, and my preſent profeſſion of it, gives me no eaſe, he is ſtill one and the ſame, conſtant, unchangeable in his Purpoſes and Counſels of proceeding againſt me. Or, he is alone, and there is none beſides him, who can either reſtrain, or adviſe, or move him. m No Man can change his Counſels or courſe, or incline him to ſhew favour to me. He is moſt abſolute and free to do what he pleaſeth, and he dealeth with me accordingly, and not by thoſe milder Methods which he uſeth towards other Men. n He will not do what I pleaſe or deſire, but only what pleaſeth himſelf.

14 For he performeth the thing that is appointed for me o: and many ſuch things are with him p.

o Or, he will perfect, or finiſh my appointed portion, i. e. thoſe Calamities which he hath allotted to me for my portion, which as he hath begun to lay on me, ſo he is reſolved to make a full end of them. p There are many ſuch Examples of God's proceeding with Men in way of abſolute Sovereignty and Severity, and his Counſels and Providences, though always juſt, yet are oft ſecret, and we cannot diſcern the Reaſonableneſs or Equity of them, which is my caſe.

15 Therefore q am I troubled at his preſence r: when I conſider I am afraid of him.

q In conſideration of his glorious Majeſty, and ſoveraign, and irreſiſtible Power, by which he can do whatſoever pleaſeth him, without giving any account of his matters. r When I preſent him to my Thoughts. Or, when he appears or manifeſteth himſelf to me. Or, for fear or dread of him; or, by reaſon of him.

16 For God maketh my heart ſoft s, and the Almighty troubleth me:

s Or, tender. He hath bruiſed, and broken, or melted it, ſo that I have no Spirit, nor Courage, nor Strength in me, as this or the like Phraſe is uſed, Deut. 20. 3. Pſal. 39. 11. Iſa. 7. 4. Jer. 51. 46.

17 Becauſe I was not cut off t before the darkneſs u; neither hath he covered the darkneſs from my face x.

t Becauſe God did not cut me off by death. u i. e. Before theſe dark and diſmal Miſeries came upon me. Or, before the face, or by reaſon of the darkneſs, i. e. That God hath not yet cut me off by theſe Calamities, but prolonged my days under them, that he might increaſe my Torment. x So that I might no longer ſee, or feel my Miſeries, but might be taken out of them by my long deſired death. Seeing (and conſequently having before ones Face) is oft put for experiencing, for enjoying good, or feeling evil, as Job 20. 17. Pſal. 16. 10, &c. Or, but he hath covered darkneſs, to wit, death, which is ſo called, Job 10. 21, 22. and elſewhere, from my Face, i. e. he will not allow me the favour to ſee Death.

CHAP. XXIV.

The Practice and Proſperity of the Wicked, 1—16. Their Puniſhment and Curſe in the End, 17—25.

* Acts 1. 7

WHy ſeeing * times are not hidden from the Almighty, do they that know him, not ſee his days a?

a The ſenſe of the words according to this Tranſlation is this, Why (how comes it to paſs) ſeeing times, (i. e. the ſeveral times of every Man's Life, how long he ſhall live, or the fitteſt Seaſons and Opportunities (which are oft called times, as Gen. 24. 11. Pſal. 31. 15. & 119. 126. Acts 1. 6, 7.) for every Action, and particularly for the Puniſhment of wicked Men, about which the preſent Controverſie was) are not hidden from, or unknown to the Almighty God, (i. e. ſeeing all times, and Men that live, and things that are done, or to be done in their times and ſeaſons, are exactly known to God,) do they that know him, (i. e. who love and obey him, as that word is oft uſed, as Pſal. 9. 10. & 36. 10. & 91. 14. or they who obſerve and regard his ways and works done in the World) not ſee (whence is it that they cannot diſcern) his (i. e. God's) days? i. e. his Times and Seaſons which he takes for the Puniſhment of ungodly Men; which if they were conſtant and fixed in this Life, as you pretend they are, they would not be unknown to good Men, to whom God uſeth to reveal his Secrets, and they could not be unobſerved by ſo many good Men, who make it their buſineſs to mind and ſtudy the Works of God, and eſpecially the courſe and Methods of his Providence towards good and bad Men. The times or days of God's executing Judgments upon Sinners, are frequently called the days of the Lord, as Iſa. 2. 12. & 13. 6. Jer. 46. 10. Compare Job 20. 28. Prov. 6. 34. Acts 2. 20. as the time of Man's judging is called man's day, 1 Cor. 4. 3. But this Verſe is in part, and may very agreeably to the Hebrew Text be rendred and interpreted thus, Why or how are not times (i. e. the times and ſeaſons appointed for the Puniſhment of evil-doers, about which the Diſpute was) hidden or reſerved by or with God (i. e. kept as a ſecret in his own Breaſt, and concealed from the Knowledge of Mankind: How can you ſay or think with any colour, that theſe times are fixed and manifeſt to all Men, and that Sinners are conſtantly puniſhed in this Life, and that ſo notoriouſly, that all good Men ſee it, as was ſaid, Chap. 22. 15,—19.) ſeeing (as the Particle Vau is rendred, Chap. 19. 28. or for, as it is frequently uſed) they that know him (that give themſelves to underſtand and conſider his doings in the World, who of all Men are moſt likely to know this, if it were true and certain) do not ſee his days, to wit, of puniſhing the Wicked in this Life, as was ſaid before. And this he mentions as a fit Preface to uſher in the following Diſcourſe concerning the manifold Wickedneſs of Men, and withal their preſent Impunity.

b Or, they (i. e. the Wicked, of whom he here treats) touch (to wit, in an unlawful manner, and with evil deſign, as this word is oft uſed, as Gen. 26. 11, 29. Ruth 2. 9. ſo as to invade, or poſſeſs, or remove,) the Land-marks, by which Mens Lands are diſcerned, and their Properties ſecured; that ſo they may inlarge their own Border by diminiſhing their Neighbour. Which is ſo horrid an Act of Injuſtice, that it hath not only been ſeverely forbidden by God, Deut. 19. 14. & 27. 17. Prov. 22. 28. & 23. 10. but alſo declared execrable by the Heathens; among whom it was permitted to any Man to kill him that did it. c Or, feed them. They do not hide or kill them, but openly feed them, either in their oppreſſed Neighbours Ground, which, by taking away the Land-marks, they have made their own, or in their own Paſtures, without any Remorſe, or Shame, or Fear of Puniſhment, either from God or Men.

* Ch. 22. 6.

3 They drive away the aſs d of the fatherleſs e; they * take the widows ox f for a pledge g.

d Either the aſſes, the ſingular Number being uſed collectively. Or he ſaith the Aſs, to aggravate their Sin, that they robbed him who had but one Aſs. Compare 1 Sam. 12. 2, 3, 4. e Whoſe helpleſs Condition required their Pity and Mercy. f Thereby depriving her not only of the Ox it ſelf, but of all the benefit of its Labours by which ſhe ſuſtained her Life. g Contrary to God's Law, firſt written in Mens Hearts, and afterwards in Holy Scripture, Exod. 22. 26, 27. Deut. 24. 6, 10, &c.

* Prov. 28. 28.

4 They turn the needy out of the way h: * the poor of the earth hide themſelves i together k.

h Either 1. Out of the way of Piety and Juſtice. They engage them to take evil Courſes by their Examples, or Promiſes, or Threatnings. Or 2. Out of their right. Or 3. Out of their courſe and way of living. Or rather (as the word properly ſignifies, and as the next Clauſe explains it) out of the high way; out of the path or place in which theſe wicked Oppreſſors walk and range. They labour to keep out of their way and ſight for fear of their further Injuries and Oppreſſions. i For fear of theſe wicked Tyrants and Perſecutors. k For their mutual comfort and defence againſt thoſe who ſhould invade or diſturb them there. Or, alike. Though ſome of the Poor are more nearly related, or have been more ſerviceable to theſe Oppreſſors, yet none of them can eſcape their Rage and Violence.

5 Behold, as wild aſſes l in the deſert m, go they n forth to their work o, riſing betimes for a prey: the wilderneſs yieldeth food for them p, and for their children q.

l Which are wild, and lawleſs, and unteachable, and fierce, and greedy of Prey, or Food, which they ſnatch out of the Goods or Labours of the Husbandman; in all which they are fit Emblems of theſe Men. Or, theſe wild-men. For ſo this word ſignifies, Gen. 16. 12. as elſewhere wild Aſſes. The Particle, as, is not in the Hebrew. m Which is the proper Habitation of wild Aſſes, Jer. 2. 24. If this be underſtood of the wild Men, he placeth them in the Deſert and Wilderneſs, either becauſe they by their Spoils and Violences have deſtroyed or driven away the People, as is intimated Verſe 4. and thereby turned populous places into Deſerts; or becauſe ſuch places as have but few Houſes and Inhabitants, (which are oft ſo called, as Gen. 21. 20, 21. Joſh. 15. 61, 62. 1 Kings 2. 34. & 9. 18. Iſa. 42. 11. Matt.

Matt. 3. 1.) are moſt fit for their Robberies. n Either 1. The Poor whom they ſpoiled and drove away from their own former Habitations into Deſerts, where they hid themſelves, and wrought hard for a Subſiſtence. Or rather 2. The Oppreſſors, who are more fitly compared to wild Aſſes, and more truly ſaid to ſeek for prey, than thoſe poor oppreſſed Perſons mentioned v. 4. and of whom he ſpeaks both in the foregoing and following Verſes. o i. e. To ſpoil and rob, which is their conſtant Work and Trade. p They are ſo diligent and induſtrious in that work, that they will fetch Food for them and theirs, even out of Deſert-places in which the Owners can very hardly ſubſiſt. q Or Servants; for the word ſignifies both Children and Servants, even the whole Family.

† Heb. they mingled corn, or dredge.

† Heb. the wicked gather the vintage.

6 They r reap every one his † corn s in the field t: and † they gather the vintage of the wicked u.

r Either the Poor, who are forced to gather in the Corn and Grapes of their wicked Oppreſſors: Or rather 2. the Oppreſſors, of whom he ſpeaks, v. 4, 5, & 7. s i. e. The Corn of the Wicked, as it is in the next Clauſe. Or, that which is not their own; as the Seventy, and Chaldee, and Vulgar Latin tranſlate it, reading the Hebrew as two diſtinct words: They reap other Mens labours. t i. e. In the Field of the right Owner from whom they take it. He notes their great Power and Boldneſs, that they did not come ſuddenly and carry away their Corn when it was laid up in the Barns, or in heaps, but they proceeded leiſurely, and ſtaid to reap the Corn, and by degrees carried it away; as it were in triumph, not fearing any Interruption or Hindrance either from God or Man. u Of ſuch as themſelves: So they promiſcuouſly robbed all, even their own Brethren in Iniquity; whereby alſo he may intimate the righteous Judgment of God in puniſhing one wicked Man by another, and in depriving Men of thoſe Goods which they had wickedly gotten. Or, the wicked (the Singular Number being uſed collectively for the Plural, as is frequent; the Oppreſſors) gather the vintage; to wit, belonging to other Men.

7 They cauſe the naked x to lodge y without cloathing z, that they have no covering in the cold a.

x i. e. Thoſe whom they have made naked, whom they ſtripped of their Garments and Coverings; ſo far were they from exerciſing Juſtice or Charity towards them. y To ſleep in the night, which is the coldeſt Seaſon. z Without Bed-cloaths to cover them. Compare Deut. 24. 13. a Of the Night of the Winter-ſeaſon. This Verſe is and may fitly be rendred thus; They cauſe men to lodge naked, becauſe they have no cloathing, (i. e. becauſe they leave them nothing wherewith they can cloath themſelves) and no covering in the cold: They leave them neither Rayment to wear in the Day, nor a covering for the Night.

8 They b are wet with the ſhowers of the mountains c, and embrace the rock d for want of a ſhelter.

b i. e. The Poor being ſtripped of their Rayment, and forced away from their Houſes. c With the Rain-water, which in great ſhowers runs down from the Rocks or Mountains into the Caves or Holes in the ſides of them, to which they fled for ſhelter. d i. e. Are glad when they can find a Cavern or Cleft of a Rock in which they may have ſome protection againſt the Injuries of the Weather, and an hiding-place from the fury of their Oppreſſors. Compare Lam. 4. 5.

9 The e pluck the fatherleſs from the breaſt f, and take a pledge of the poor g.

e The wicked Oppreſſor, as is manifeſt from the following words. f Either out of Cruelty, not ſparing poor Infants, but killing them: or out of covetouſneſs, and with deſign either to ſell the Mother, or to employ her in their work to which they ſo ſtrictly confine her, that they will not allow any of her time or ſtrength for the ſuckling of her Infant. g Of which ſee the Notes on Chap. 22. 6.

10 They cauſe him h to go naked without clothing i, and they take away the ſheaf from the hungry k.

h The poor oppreſſed perſon. i Leaving him nothing, or next to nothing, to cover him in the Day-time, when he ſhould go abroad to his labour to get his living, but cannot for want of Cloaths to cover his Nakedneſs. k That ſingle Sheaf which the poor man had got with the Sweat of his Brows to ſatisfie his hunger, they unhumanly take away, and added it to their own Stores and full Barns. Or, they are hungry; or they ſent them away hungry; thoſe words being repeated out of the former clauſe of the Verſe, (as is moſt uſual) which took or carried the ſheaf, or their ſheaves; i. e. which reaped and gathered in the rich man's Corn, for which they received Injuries inſtead of a juſt Recompence for their labour; and that when God's liberality, and the bounty of the Earth to them, invited and obliged them to kind and generous actions to others.

11 Which make oil within their walls l, and tread their wine-preſſes m, and ſuffer thirſt n.

l To wit, the poor man laſt mentioned. Either 1. within their own Walls, i. e. in private and ſecret places for fear of the Oppreſſors. Or rather 2. within the Walls of the rich Oppreſſors for their uſe and benefit: For the poor, alas! had no Walls nor Houſes, nor Olive-yards nor Vine-yards left to them, but they were violently ſpoiled of, and driven away from all thoſe things, as was ſaid in the foregoing Verſes. m i. e. The Grapes in their Wine-preſſes, by a Metonymy of the thing containing, for the thing contained. n Becauſe they are not permitted to quench their thirſt out of the Wine which they make, though their labours both need and deſerve refreſhment.

12 Men groan o from out of the city p, and the ſoul q of the wounded crieth out: yet God layeth not folly to them r.

o Under the burden of Injuries and grievous Oppreſſions. p Not only in Deſerts or leſs inhabited places where theſe Tyrants have the greater opportunity and advantage to practice their Villanies, but even in Cities where there is a face of Order and Government, and Courts of Juſtice, and a multitude of People to obſerve and reſtrain ſuch actions; whereby they plainly declare that they neither fear God nor reverence Man. q Either 1. properly, their Soul ſympathizing with the Body, and being grieved for its inſupportable miſeries, crieth to God and Men for help. Or rather 2. the Life or Blood (which oft cometh under that name) of thoſe who are there wounded unto death, as this word properly ſignifies, Ezek. 30. 24. crieth aloud unto God for vengeance, Gen. 4. 10. Rev. 6. 9, 10. whereby God might ſeem in ſome ſort obliged to puniſh them, and yet he did not, as the next words declare. r So the ſenſe is, Yet God doth not impute or lay to their charge this folly, or wickedneſs; which in Scripture is commonly called folly; i. e. He takes no notice of theſe horrid Oppreſſions, nor hears the Cries of the Oppreſſed, nor puniſh the Oppreſſors. Or, Yet God (who ſeeth and permitteth all this) diſpoſeth or ordereth, or doth, (for all theſe things this Hebrew Verb ſignifies) nothing which is abſurd, or fooliſh, or unſavoury; i. e. doth nothing in this permiſſion and connivance unworthy of himſelf, or which a wiſe and conſiderate man cannot reliſh or approve, or which is not in it ſelf righteous and reaſonable, though we do not always diſcern the reaſonableneſs of it.

13 They are of thoſe that rebel againſt the light s; they know not t the ways thereof u, nor abide in the paths thereof x.

s This is added as the general Character of the perſons before mentioned, and as a great aggravation of their wickedneſs, that they were not modeſt ſinners which were aſhamed of their evil ways; and therefore ſinned in the dark, and in ſecret, as ſome who here follow: but ſinned impudently in the face of the Sun, and in ſpight of all their light, as well the Light of Reaſon and Conſcience, which abhors and condemns their wicked actions, as the Light of Divine Revelation, which was then in good meaſure imparted to the Church and People of God in this time, and ſhortly after was committed to Writing; all which they ſet at defiance, ſinning with manifeſt contempt of God, and of Men, and of their own Conſciences. t Either 1. they do not deſire or care to know them; they are willingly ignorant of them. Or 2. they do not approve, nor love, nor chooſe them; as knowing frequently ſignifies in the Scripture uſe. u i. e. Of the light, or in ſuch ways and courſes as are agreeable to the light. Or, in his ways, i. e. in the ways of God, who is oft underſtood in this Book where he is not expreſſed. x If they do ſome good actions, yet they do not perſevere in well-doing, they are not conſtant and fixed in a good courſe of life.

14 * The murderer riſing with the light y, killeth the poor and needy z, and in the night is as a thief a.

* Pſ. 10. 8

y As ſoon as the Light appears, uſing no leſs diligence in his wicked practiſes, than Labourers do in their honeſt and daily employments. z Where he finds nothing to ſatisfie his Covetouſneſs, he exerciſeth his Cruelty. a i. e. He is really a Thief; the Particle as being oft uſed to expreſs, not the reſemblance, but the truth of the thing, as Numb. 11. 1. Deut. 9. 10. Hoſ. 4. 4. & 5. 10. John 1. 14. In the Night they rob men ſecretly and cunningly, as in the Day-time they do it more openly and avowedly.

15 * The eye alſo of the adulterer b waiteth for the twilight c, ſaying d, No eye ſhall ſee me: and † diſguiſeth his face e.

* Prov. 7. 9.

† Heb. ſetteth his face in ſecret.

b i. e. The Adulterer; but he mentions his Eye, becauſe the Eye diſcerns the difference between light and darkneſs. c To wit, for the Evening twilight, which is his opportunity. d In his heart, comforting himſelf with the thoughts of ſecretneſs and impunity. e Heb. putteth his face in ſecret, covers it with a Vizard or Cloak, that he may be undiſcovered.

16 In the dark they f did through houſes, which they g had marked for themſelves h in the day-time: * they know not the light i.

f Either 1. the Adulterer laſt mentioned; although ſuch perſons do not uſe nor need theſe violent courſes to get into the Houſe of the Adultereſs, but are commonly admitted upon milder and eaſier terms. Or 2. the Thief or Robber, whoſe common practiſe this is, of whom he ſpoke v. 14. and having on that occaſion inſerted the mention of the Adulterer as one who acted his ſin in the ſame manner as the Night-thief did, he now returns to him again. g The Thief and his Complices. h Deſigning by ſome ſecret mark the Houſe of ſome rich man which they intended to rob, and the part of the houſe where they reſolved to enter into it. i i. e. Do not love nor like it, as verſe 13. but abhor it, as it follows.

17 For the morning is to them even as the ſhadow of death k: if one know them, they are in the terrours of the ſhadow of death l.

k i. e. Terrible and hateful, becauſe it both diſcovers them, and hinders their practiſes. l If they are brought to light or diſcovered, they are overwhelmed with deadly horrours and terrours. Or, as the words are, and may very agreeably to the Hebrew be rendred thus; But (as the Hebrew Particle commonly ſignifies) they know (Heb. he knoweth, every one of them knoweth; i. e. approveth and loveth) the terrours of the ſhadow of death, i. e. the groſſeſt darkneſs of the Night, which to other men is as terrible as the ſhadow of death, but to theſe men is moſt acceptable; So this Clauſe is fitly oppoſed to the former, he hates the light, and he likes darkneſs.

18 He is ſwift † as the waters m; their n portion o is curſed in the earth p: he beholdeth not the way of the vineyard q.

† Heb. upon the face of the waters.

m In theſe words he deſcribes either, 1. The wicked man's diſpoſition and deportment, that ſuch perſons are light and frothy in their ſpirits; or ſwift, or haſty to do evil, or unſtable in their ways as the waters, or upon the face of the waters; i. e. like the foam or froath, or any other light thing which ſwims upon the top of the waters. Or rather, 2. His miſerable condition, of which he manifeſtly ſpeaks in the next words, and in the two next Verſes. For though Job conſtantly affirms and maintains it againſt his Friends, that many ungodly men do proſper and eſcape puniſhment in this life; yet withal he obſerves and aſſerts, that God will certainly ſooner or later puniſh them, and that he ſometimes doth it here, cutting them off by cruel and untimely Deaths, or otherwiſe inflicting ſome notable Judgment upon them, of which he alſo ſpeaks, Chap. 21. 17, &c. So the ſenſe is, He is ſwift, i. e. he quickly paſſeth away with all his glory, as the waters which never ſtay in one place, but are always haſting and running away; or like a Ship, or any other thing which ſwimmeth upon the face of the waters: Though he ſeems to ſtand as firm and unmoveable as a Rock, and to have taken deep rooting in the Earth, yet he is ſuddenly and unexpectedly removed and pulled up by the roots. n Or, his; for he ſtill ſpeaks of the ſame perſon, though with a change of the number, which is moſt familiar in this Book, and elſewhere in Scripture. o Or, part, i. e. his Habitation and Eſtate which he left behind him. p Is really accurſed by God, and is by all Men who live near it, or obſerve it, pronounced accurſed, becauſe of the remarkable Judgments of God upon it, and upon his Poſterity or Family to which he left it, and from whom it is ſtrangely and ſuddenly alienated. q i.e. He ſhall never more ſee or enjoy his Vineyards, or other pleaſant places and things, which ſeem to be comprehended under this particular.

19 Drought and heat † conſume the ſnow-water; ſo doth the grave thoſe which have ſinned r.

r As the Snow, though it doth for a time lye upon the Ground, yet at laſt is diſſolved into Water by the heat of the Seaſon, and that Water quickly ſwallowed up by the Earth when it is dry and thirſty: So ungodly ſinners, though they live and proſper for a ſeaſon, yet at laſt they ſhall go into the Grave, which will conſume them, together with all their Hopes and Comforts: Their jolly Life is attended with a ſad and oft times ſudden and violent Death, not with ſuch a death as the godly die, which perfects them and brings them to Happineſs, but with a conſuming and never dying death.

20 The womb ſhall forget him s, the worm † ſhall feed ſweetly on him t, he ſhall be no more remembred u, and wickedneſs x ſhall be broken y as a tree z.

† Heb. is ſweet to him. Ch. 21. 33.

s His Mother that bare him in her Womb, and much more the reſt of his Friends, ſhall ſeldom or never remember or mention him; to wit, with honour and comfort, but ſhall rather be afraid and aſhamed to own their Relation to one that lived ſuch a vile and wretched Life, and died ſuch an accurſed Death. This he ſhall have inſtead of all that Honour and Renown which he thirſted and laboured for, and expected ſhould perfume his Name and Memory. t This proud and inſolent Tyrant that preyed upon all his Neighbours, v. 2, 3, &c. ſhall himſelf become a prey and a ſweet morſel to the contemptible Worms. u To wit, with Honour, or ſo as he deſired and hoped, but his name ſhall rot, and ſcarce ever be mentioned but with Infamy and Execration. x i. e. The wicked man, of whom he is here treating; the Abſtract being put for the Concrete, of which many Inſtances have been formerly given. y Broken to pieces, or violently broken down, as the word ſignifies. He ſhall be utterly and irrecoverably deſtroyed. And this expreſſion plainly ſheweth, that the former Clauſes are not to be underſtood of the ſinner's happineſs in an eaſie and comfortable death, but of his curſed and miſerable end. z Which being once broken, either by its own weight, or by ſome violent wind, or by the hand of man, never groweth again.

21 He a evil entreateth b the barren that beareth not c, and doth not good d to the widow.

a Either 1. God, who is oft underſtood, who having cut off his Perſon, and brought him to his Grave, continues his Judgments upon his Wife or Widow, and Family. Or rather, the Oppreſſor, who is the principal Subject of almoſt all that is ſaid in this Chapter; whoſe great and manifold wickedneſs Job deſcribed from v. 2. to 18. where he proceeds to relate the Judgments of God upon him for his ſins; which having done v. 18, 19, 20. he here returns to the declaration of his further Wickedneſſes, the Cauſe of theſe Judgments. b Or, feedeth upon, or devoureth, or breaketh in pieces: for all theſe the word ſignifieth, and all come to one and the ſame thing. c Barrenneſs was eſteemed a Curſe and Reproach; and ſo he added affliction to the afflicted, whom he ſhould have pitied and helped: But becauſe ſuch had no Children, and the Widows no Husbands, to defend or avenge their Cauſe, he exerciſed Cruelty upon them. d Either, 1. He did her much wrong and harm, it being uſual in Scripture under ſuch Negative Expreſſions to contain the Affirmation of the contrary; as Exod. 20. 7. Prov. 17. 21. & 28. 21. And ſo this branch anſwers to the former, of evil-entreating. Or, 2. He afforded her no help, or advice, or comfort in her Diſtreſſes: And ſo he intimateth the greatneſs of Omiſſion-ſins, and that the common neglect or contempt of plain and poſitive Duties, whether of Piety to God, or of Charity to Men, is to be reckoned among high and hainous Crimes.

22 He draweth e alſo the mighty f with his power g: he riſeth up h, and ‖ no man is ſure of life i.

‖ Or, he truſteth not his own life.

e Either into his Net, as Pſalm 10. 9. or to his Party, to aſſiſt and ſerve him in his Enterprizes. f Who are mighty in Place, or Wealth, or Power: He practiſeth upon theſe, as well as upon the Poor. g Which being greater than theirs, he ſoon forceth them to comply with his deſires and demands. h To wit, againſt any man, as this Phraſe is uſed, Pſalm 18. 38. & 44. 5. When he ſets himſelf againſt a man, and reſolves to deſtroy him. i i. e. None of them whom he ſo oppoſeth can be ſecure or confident of holding his life, but all ſuch give up themſelves for loſt men, as knowing they cannot reſiſt his greater might: Compare Deut. 28. 26.

23 Though it be given him to be in ſafety, whereon he reſteth; yet ‖ his eyes are upon their ways k.

‖ That is, God's eyes.

k Heb. He giveth to him to be in ſafety, or all things neceſſary for his ſafety, &c. This Verſe is underſtood either, 1. Of the Oppreſſor, If the Oppreſſor give a man his hand or promiſe, that he ſhall live in ſafety by him; or, If the Oppreſſed give Gifts to the Oppreſſor to purchaſe his quiet and ſafety, and as it follows, he reſteth upon that aſſurance given him, yet his, i. e. the Oppreſſors eyes are upon their ways, he watcheth for their halting, and ſeeks for all occaſions to quarrel with them, and to deſtroy them. Or rather, 2. Of God, and ſo the words are fitly rendred thus, He, i. e. God, giveth, or granteth to him, i. e. to the Oppreſſor, to be in ſafety, i. e. to live a quiet and comfortable life, and he reſteth ſecure, or he reſteth or leaneth upon him, i. e. upon God; his former experience of God's favour makes him confident of the continuance of it: So he is not only happy in his preſent enjoyments, but alſo of his freedom from diſtracting fears of future miſeries; and his, i. e. God's eyes are upon their ways, i. e. God bleſſeth and proſpereth him in all his undertakings, as this Phraſe moſt commonly ſignifies, as Deut. 11. 12. Ezra 5. 5. Pſalm 33. 18. Or, yet his eyes are upon their ways, i. e. although God giveth them ſuch ſtrange ſucceſſes, this doth not proceed from his ignorance or regardleſneſs of their wicked actions, for he ſees and obſerves them all, and will in due time puniſh them, though not always in this life, nor as ſoon as their ſins are committed, but in ſuch time and way as he in deep wiſdom ſeeth moſt fit.

24 They are exalted for a little while l but † are gone m, and brought low n, they are † taken out of the way o as all other p, and cut off q as the tops of the ears of corn r.

l They live in honour and happineſs, but not for ever, but only at beſt during this ſhort and mortal life, which laſteth but for a very little time, and therefore their preſent happineſs is not to be envied; nor is it any reproach to God's Providence, which hath time enough to reckon with them hereafter. m Heb. are not; to wit, in this World, they die. n As low as their Graves: Or, after (as the Particle Vau is elſewhere uſed, as hath been obſerved before) they have been brought low; to wit, by pining Sickneſs, or other grievous Judgments. o i. e. Out of this World and way of living, by Death. Or, are reſtrained or ſhut up; to wit, in the Grave, the place of ſilence and impotency. p They can no more prevent or delay their Death, than the meaneſt Men in the World. q By Death's Sickle, or by a violent Hand. r To wit, in his greateſt height and maturity, when he is arrived at his perfect ſtature of worldly power and glory, then God cuts him off, and that ſuddenly and violently.

25 And if it be not ſo now s, who will make me a liar, and make my ſpeech nothing worth?

s To wit, as I have diſcourſed; if God doth not ſuffer wicked men to live long and proſperouſly in the World before he puniſheth them; and if good men be not ſometimes ſorely afflicted here, if all things do not fall alike to all men in theſe matters.

CHAP. XXV.

Bildad's anſwer. God's majeſty and purity is ſuch as that man cannot be juſtified before God; before him the heavenly lights loſe their luſtre and purity, 1——6.

THen anſwered Bildad a the Shuhite, and ſaid, a Not to that which Job ſpake laſt, but to that which ſtuck moſt in Bildad's mind, and which ſeemed moſt reproveable in all his Diſcourſes; to wit, his bold Cenſure of God's proceedings with him, and his avowed and oft repeated deſire of diſputing the matter with him.

2 Dominion b and fear c, are with him d; he maketh peace in his high places ‖.

b i. e. Abſolute and Soveraign Power over all Perſons and Things, with whom to contend, is both rebellion and madneſs. c Actively underſtood, or terrour, i. e. that which juſtly makes him dreadful to all men, and eſpecially to all that ſhall undertake to diſpute with him; awful Majeſty, infinite Knowledge, whereby he knows mens hearts and ways, far better than they know themſelves, and ſees much ſin in them which themſelves do not diſcover, and exact purity and juſtice, which renders him formidable to ſinners. d Emphatically ſpoken: with him whom thou challengeſt; with him who is not lightly and irreverently to be named, much leſs to be contended with. And therefore it is thy duty to humble thy ſelf for thy preſumptuous words and carriages towards him, and quietly and modeſtly to ſubmit thy ſelf and thy cauſe to his pleaſure. ‖ This Clauſe, as well as the following Verſe, ſeems to be added to prove what he laſt ſaid of God's Dominion and Dreadfulneſs: He keepeth and ruleth all perſons and things in Heaven in peace and harmony, and the order which he hath eſtabliſhed among them. The Angels, though they be very numerous, and differing in orders and miniſteries, do all own his Soveraignty, and acquieſce in his Pleaſure, without any diſputing and murmuring. The Stars and heavenly Bodies, though vaſt in their bulk, and various in their motions, yet exactly keep their courſes and the order which God hath appointed them: And therefore it is great folly and impudence to exempt thy ſelf from God's Juriſdiction, or to quarrel with the methods of God's dealings with thee.

3. Is there any number of his armies e? and upon whom doth not his light ariſe f?

e Of the Angels, and Stars, and other Creatures, all which are his Hoſts, wholly ſubmitting themſelves to his Will, to be and do what God would have them: And therefore how inſolent and unreaſonable a thing is it for thee to quarrel with him! He ſpoke before of God's making peace; and here he mentions the Armies by which he keeps it. f Either 1. properly, his Sun, which riſeth upon all, Matth. 5. 45. Or rather 2. metaphorically, all that is in Men, which is or may be called light: the light of life, by which men ſubſiſt, and are kept out of the ſtate of the dead, called a land of darkneſs, Job 10. 22. The Light of Reaſon and Underſtanding, called God's Candle, Prov. 20. 27. by which thou, O Job, art capable of arguing with God and with us, and all that peace, and proſperity, and comfort which thou ever didſt enjoy, which oft comes under the name of Light, as Eſth. 8. 15, 16. Pſalm 97. 11. & 112. 4. which being here called light, is, to continue the Metaphor, moſt fitly ſaid to ariſe upon men: all this is from God, and therefore is wholly at his diſpoſal: he freely gave it all, and he may juſtly take it away; as thou thy ſelf didſt truly obſerve and confeſs, Job 1. 21. and conſequently thou haſt no reaſon to reproach God for diſpoſing of his own as he pleaſeth, Thou haſt loſt nothing which was thine own, and having no propriety, there is no foundation for any judicial conteſt with God.

4 * How then, can man g be juſtified with God h? or how can he be clean that is born of a woman i?

* Ch. 4. 17, &c. & 15. 14, &c.

g The word ſignifies Man that is miſerable, which ſuppoſeth him to be ſinful; and that ſuch a Creature ſhould quarrel with that Dominion of God, to which the ſinleſs, and happy, and glorious Angels willingly ſubmit, is moſt abſurd and impious. h i. e. Before God's Tribunal, to which thou doſt ſo boldly appeal. Thou maiſt plead thy Cauſe with thy fellow Worms as we are, and expect to be juſtified, but wo to thee if the great God undertake to plead his Cauſe againſt thee; how ſeverely and certainly wouldſt thou then be condemned! i To wit, after the ordinary courſe; for otherwiſe Chriſt was born of a Woman, but in a ſingular manner. This Birth is alledged as an evidence of Man's filthineſs, Job 14. 4. & 15. 14. Pſalm 51.5. and of his liableneſs to God's Curſe and Wrath, Gen. 3. 16. *Epheſ.*2.2. and conſequently of his condemnation oppoſite to the juſtification here mentioned, and confidently expected by Job in this Conteſt.

5 Behold even to the moon, and it ſhineth not k; yea, the ſtars are not pure in his ſight l.

k The Moon, though a bright and glorious Creature Job 31. 26. *Cant.*6.10. if compared with the ſplendour of the Divine Majeſty, is but as a dark and earthy lump, without any luſtre or glory. He names the Moon and the Stars, rather than the Sun, becauſe they many times are eclipſed or diſappear even to our eyes, which is a plain evidence of their utter obſcurity in reſpect of God's Light: whereas the Sun, though that alſo be obſcure, if compared with God, yet it caſts a conſtant and moſt clear light. Or by naming the Moon, and thence proceeding to the Stars, the Sun is included between them. l He can diſcern many ſpots and blemiſhes in them which we cannot ſee; and in like manner he can diſcover thoſe corruptions or ſins in us which are unknown to our own Conſciences, which ſhould make thee, O Job, tremble to appear before his Tribunal.

*Pſal.22.6. 6 How much leſs man that is a * worm m: and the ſon of man which is a worm n?

m To wit, mean, and vile, and impotent; proceeding from corruption, and returning to it; and withal filthy and loathſom, and ſo every way a very unfit perſon to appear before the high and holy God, and much more to contend with him. n The ſame thing repeated in other words; only for miſerable man in the laſt Branch he here puts the ſon of any man, of what degree or quality ſoever, to ſhew and that this is true even of the greateſt and beſt of men.

CHAP. XXVI.

Job's reply: this toucheth not Job, 1——4. who acknowledgeth God's power and providence to be infinite and unſearchable; of which we have but ſmall knowledge, 5——14.

BUt Job anſwered and ſaid,

2 How haſt thou helped a him that is without power b? how ſaveſt thou the arm that hath no ſtrength?

a Thou haſt helped egregiouſly: It is an ironical expreſſion, implying the quite contrary, that he had not at all helped. See the like, *Gen.*3.22. 1 Kings 18.27. 1 *Cor.*4.8,10. b Either 1. God, who it ſeems is weak and unwiſe, and needed ſo powerful and eloquent an Advocate as thou art, to maintain his Rights and plead his Cauſe. Or rather 2. Job himſelf: I am a poor helpleſs Creature, my ſtrength and ſpirits quite broken with the pains of my Body and Perplexities of my Mind, whom Nature, and Humanity, and Religion ſhould have taught thee to ſupport and comfort, with a repreſentation of the gracious Nature and Promiſes of God, and not to terrifie and overwhelm me with diſplaying his Soveraign Majeſty, the thoughts whereof are already ſo diſtractive and dreadful to me.

3 How haſt thou counſelled him that hath no wiſdom c? and how haſt thou plentifully declared the thing as it is d?

c Either 1. God: Thou haſt in effect undertaken to teach God how to govern the World. Or rather 2 Me, whom you take to be a man void of Underſtanding, Chap. 11. 2, 3. whom therefore you ſhould have inſtructed with wholeſom Counſels, inſtead of theſe impertinent Diſcourſes; and who indeed do want wiſdom, being perfectly at a loſs, and not knowing what to ſay or do. d Heb. Eſſence, the truth and ſubſtance of the thing in queſtion between us; Thou haſt ſpoken the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, and all that can be ſaid in the matter. Or Wiſdom, as this word is uſed, *Prov.*3.21. A moſt wiſe and profound Diſcourſe thou haſt made, and much to the purpoſe: an Ironical expreſſion as before.

4 To whom haſt thou uttered words e? and whoſe ſpirit came from thee f?

e For whoſe Inſtruction haſt thou uttered theſe things? For mine? Doſt thou think me to be ſo ignorant that I do not know, that which the meaneſt perſons are not unacquainted with; to wit, that God is incomparably greater and better than his Creatures? f So the ſenſe is, whom haſt thou revived or comforted by this Diſcourſe? Not me ſurely. The ſpirit or breath of a man is in a manner ſuppreſſed and intercepted in deep ſorrows and conſternations, ſuch as Job's were, and when he is cheared or refreſhed, it finds vent and breaths out freely as it did before. But I do not remember that ever this Phraſe is uſed in this ſenſe; but on the contrary, the giving or reſtoring of life are expreſſed by the coming in, and not by the going out of ſpirit or breath, as appears from Gen. 2. 7. Ezek. 37. 5, 6, 10. The words therefore are and may be otherwiſe underſtood; either thus, Whoſe ſpirit or inſpiration, (as this word ſignifies, Job 32. 8.) came from thee? Who inſpired thee with this profound Diſcourſe of thine? Was it by Divine Inſpiration, as thou wouldſt have us to believe? Or was it not a raſh ſuggeſtion of thy own vain and fooliſh mind? Or thus, Whoſe ſpirit went out (to wit, of his Body by an extaſie of admiration) for thee, by reaſon of thy Diſcourſe? I may be thought partial in my Cenſure of it, but thou maiſt perceive none of our Friends here preſent admire it, except thy ſelf. Or to, or for whom (the Particle eth being here underſtood out of the former Branch, as is uſual among the Hebrews) did breath go out from thee; i. e. didſt thou ſpeak? For whoſe good, or to what end didſt thou ſpeak this? God needed it not, I receive no Edification or Benefit by it.

‖Or, ſhall the dead be born under the waters? So Gr.
‖Or, will the inhabitants?

5 ‖ Dead things g are formed from under the waters, ‖ and the inhabitants thereof.

g Job having cenſured Bildad's Diſcourſe concerning God's Dominion and Power, as inſignificant and impertinent to their queſtion, he here proceedeth to ſhew how little he needed his Information in that Point, and that he was able to inſtruct him in that Doctrine, of which accordingly he gives divers Proofs or Inſtances. Here he ſheweth that the Power and Providence of God reacheth not only to the things which we ſee, but alſo to the inviſible parts of the World, not only to the Heavens above and their Inhabitants, and to Men upon Earth, of which Bildad diſcourſed *Chap.*25.2,3. but alſo to ſuch perſons or things as are under the Earth, or under the Waters; which are under the Earth; which are out of our ſight and reach, and might be thought to be out of the ken or care of Divine Providence. This Hebrew word ſometimes ſignifies Giants, as Deut. 2. 11,20. & 3. 13. & 1 Chron. 20. 8. Whence it may be tranſlated to other great, and as it were, gigantick Creatures, and more commonly dead men, as Pſalm 88.11. *Prov.*2.18. & 9.18. & 21. 16. Iſa. 14. 9. & 26. 14, 19. Whence it is ſuppoſed metaphorically to ſignifie alſo dead or liſeleſs things; though there be no example of that uſe of the word elſewhere; and it may ſeem improper to call thoſe things dead, which never had nor were capable of life. The next Hebrew word, or the Verb is primarily uſed of Women with Child, and ſignifies their bringing forth their young Ones with travel or grievous pains, as Job 39.3. Pſalm 29.9. *Iſa.*23.4. & 45.10. and thence it ſignifies either to form or bring forth, as below, verſe 13. Prov. 26.10. Or to grieve or mourn, or to be in pain. Accordingly theſe words are diverſly underſtood; either 1. Of dead, or liſeleſs things, ſuch as Amber, Pearl, Coral, Metals, or other Minerals, which are formed or brought forth; to wit, by the Almighty Power of God, from under the waters; i. e. either in the bottom of the Sea, or within the Earth, which is the loweſt Element, and in the Scripture and other Authors ſpoken of as under the Waters; this being obſerved as a remarkable Work of God's Providence, that the Waters of the Sea, which are higher than the Earth, do not overwhelm it, and from under (which may be repeated out of the former Clauſe of the Verſe, after the manner of the Hebrews) the inhabitants thereof; i. e. either of the Waters, which are Fiſhes, or of the Earth, which are Men. Or rather, 2. Of the Giants of the old World, which were Men of great Renown whilſt they lived, Gen. 6. 3. and the remembrance of them and of their exemplary deſtruction was now in ſome ſort freſh and famous; who once carried themſelves inſolently towards God and Men, but were quickly ſubdued by the Divine Power, and drowned with a Deluge, and now mourn or groan from under the waters where they were buried, and from under the preſent inhabitants thereof, as before. Or, 3. of vaſt and gigantick Fiſhes or Monſters of the Sea, who by God's infinite power were formed or brought forth under the waters, with the other inhabitants thereof; to wit, of the Waters, the leſſer Fiſhes. Or, 4. of dead men, and of the worſt ſort of them, ſuch as died in their ſins, and after death were condemned to further miſeries; for of ſuch this very word ſeems to be uſed, *Prov.*2.18. & 9.18. who are here ſaid to mourn or groan from under the waters; i. e. from the lower parts of the Earth, or from under thoſe ſubterranean Seas of Waters, which are by Scripture and by Philoſophers ſuppoſed to be within and under the Earth; of which ſee Deut. 8. 7. Job 28. 4,10. Pſalm 33.7. and from under the inhabitants thereof; i. e. either of the Waters or of the Earth, under which theſe Waters are, or with the other inhabitants thereof; i. e. of that place under the Waters, to wit, the Apoſtate Spirits. So the ſenſe is, that God's dominion is over all men, yea even the dead, and the worſt of them, who though they would not own God, nor his Providence, whilſt they lived, yet now are forced to acknowledge and feel that power which they deſpiſed, and bitterly mourn under the ſad effects of it in their ſubterraneal and infernal Habitations, of which the next Verſe ſpeaks more plainly. And this ſenſe ſeems to be favoured by the Context and Scope of the place, wherein Job begins his Diſcourſe of God's Power and Providence at the lowermoſt and hidden parts of the World, and thence proceeds to thoſe parts which are higher and viſible. Nor is it ſtrange that Job ſpeaks of theſe matters, ſeeing it is evident that Job, and others of the holy Patriarchs and Prophets of old, did know and believe the Doctrine of the future Life, and of its ſeveral Recompences to good and bad men. Others underſtand this of the Reſurrection of the dead; The dead ſhall be born (as this word is uſed *Pſal.*2.7. *Prov.*8.24,25. i. e. ſhall be raiſed, which is a kind of Regeneration, or ſecond Birth, and is ſo called, Matth. 19. 28. Acts 13.33.) from under the waters (i.e. even thoſe of them that lye in the waters, *Rev.*20.13. that were drowned and buried in the Sea, and devoured by Fiſhes, &c. whoſe caſe may ſeem to be moſt deſperate, and therefore they only are here mentioned) and (or, even, this Particle being oft uſed expoſitively) the Inhabitants thereof, i. e. thoſe dead Corps which lye, or have long lain there.

6. * Hell h is naked before him i, and deſtruction k hath no covering l. * Pſal.139. 8,11. Heb. 4.13.

h As this word is frequently uſed, as Job 11.8. *Iſa.*57.9, &c. And ſo it ſeems to be explained by the following word deſtruction, i.e. the place of deſtruction, which Interpreters generally underſtand of Hell, or the place of the Damned. Others the Grave, the moſt ſecret and obſcure places and things. i i. e. It is in his Preſence, and under his Providence. So far am I from imagining that God cannot ſee through a dark Cloud, as you traduced me, Chap. 22. 13. that I very well know, that even Hell it ſelf, that place of utter darkneſs, is not hid from his ſight. k i. e. The place of deſtruction, as it is alſo uſed, Prov. 15. 11. by a Metonymy of the Adjunct. l To wit, ſuch as to keep it out of his ſight.

7 * He ſtretcheth out the north m over the empty place n, and hangeth the earth upon nothing o. * Ch. 9.8. Pſal.104.2, &c.

m i. e. The Northern Pole, or part of the Heavens, which he particularly mentions, and puts for the whole viſible Heaven, becauſe Job and his Friends lived in a Northern Climate, and were acquainted only with that part of the Heavens, the Southern Pole and Parts near it being wholly unknown to them. The Heavens are oft and fitly ſaid to be ſpread or ſtretched out like a Curtain or Tent, to which they are reſembled. n To wit, the Air, ſo called, not Philoſophically, as if it were wholly empty, but popularly, becauſe it ſeems to be ſo, and is generally void of ſolid and viſible Bodies. o Upon its own Center, which is but an imaginary thing, and in truth nothing: Or upon no Props or Pillars, but his own Power and Providence: Which is juſtly celebrated as a wonderful Work of God, both in Scripture, and in Heathen Authors.

8 He bindeth up the waters in his thick clouds, and the cloud is not rent under them p.

p This alſo is a miraculous Work of God, conſidering the nature of theſe Waters, which are fluid and heavy, and preſſing downward, eſpecially being oft times there in great abundance: and withal, the quality of the Clouds, which are thin and looſe bodies of the ſame nature with Fogs and Miſts upon the Face of the Earth, and therefore of themſelves utterly unable to bear that weight, and to keep up thoſe Waters from falling ſuddenly and violently upon the Earth.

9 He holdeth back q the face of his throne r, and ſpreadeth his clouds upon it.

q i.e. To wit, from our view, that its luſtre and glory ſhould not reach us, and ſo dazle our ſight; he covereth it with a Cloud, as the next words explain it. Or, He holdeth faſt, or binds together, or ſtrengthens it, that it may be able to bear that burden. r Either 1. this lower Air, which is as the face or open part of the Heavens, which is often called God's Throne, as Pſalm 11.4. Iſa. 66. 1. Amos 9.6. Or 2. the appearance or manifeſtation of the Heaven of Heavens, where he dwelleth, whoſe light and glory is too great for mortal eyes, which therefore by Clouds and other ways he hides from us.

10. * He hath compaſſed the waters s with bounds t, † until the day and night come to an end u.

* Pſ.33.7. & 104.9. † Heb. until the end of light with darkneſs.

s To wit, of the Sea; for of the upper Waters coming out of the Clouds he ſpake before. t Which are partly the Rocks and Shores, and principally God's appointment, made at the firſt Creation, and renewed after the Deluge, Gen. 9. 11, 15. that the Waters ſhould not overwhelm the Earth: See Job 38.8,10,11. Pſalm 104.3. Jer. 5. 22. u i.e. Unto the end of the World, for ſo long theſe viciſſitudes of Day and Night are to continue, Gen. 8.22. & 9.9.&c. Jer. 5.22.& 31. 35,36.

11 The pillars of heaven x tremble, and are aſtoniſhed at his reproof y.

x Either 1. thoſe Mountains which by their height and ſtrength may ſeem to reach and ſupport the Heavens, as the Poets ſaid of Atlas; for this is a Poetical Book, and there are many Poetical expreſſions in it. Theſe tremble ſometimes by force of Earthquakes, or by God's glorious appearance in them, as Sinai did. Or 2. holy Angels, but they are not ſubject either to trembling or to God's rebuke. Or, 3. the heavenly Bodies, as the Sun, and Moon, and Stars, which as they may ſeem in ſome ſort to ſupport, ſo they do certainly adorn the Heavens: And we know Pillars are oft made, not to ſupport, but only for ornament; as the two famous Pillars of the Temple, Jachin and Boaz, 1 Kings 7.21. And theſe oft times ſeem to tremble and be aſtoniſhed, as in Eclipſes or Tempeſts, and terrible Works of God in the Air, by which they are frequently ſaid to be affected and changed, becauſe they ſeem ſo to us; and many things are ſpoken in Scripture according to appearance: See Iſa. 13. 10. & 24.23. Joel 2.10,31. Matth. 24.29,&c. y Either 1. when God rebuketh them: for God is ſometimes ſaid in Scripture to rebuke the lifeleſs Creatures; which is to be underſtood figuratively of the Tokens of God's Anger in them. Or 2. when God reproveth not them, but men by them, manifeſting his diſpleaſure againſt ſinful men by Thunders, or Earthquakes, or prodigious Works.

12 * He ‖ divideth the ſea z with his power, and by his underſtanding a he ſmiteth thorough † the proud b.

* Iſa.51.15 ‖ Or, ſtilleth. Ch.38.11. † Heb. pride

z He ſpeaks either 1. of God's dividing the Red-ſea for the Iſraelites to paſs over: And conſequently the Hebrew word Rahab, which here follows, and is tranſlated pride, or the proud, is meant of Egypt, which is oft called Rahab, as Pſalm 87.4. & 89. 10. Iſa. 51. 9. But it ſeems moſt probable that that Work was not yet done, and that Job lived long before Iſraels coming out of Egypt. Or rather 2. of the common Work of Nature and Providence, in raiſing Tempeſts, by which he breaketh or divideth the Waves of the Sea, by making deep Furrows in it, and caſting up part of the Waters into the Air, and ſplitting part of them upon the Rocks and Shores of the Sea. a i.e. By his wiſe Counſel and Adminiſtration of things, ſo as may obtain his own glorious ends. b Either 1. the Whale, which is called King over all the children of pride, Job 41.34. and which is ſometimes by force of Tempeſts caſt upon the ſhore. Or rather 2. the Sea, which is fitly called proud, as its Waves are called, Job 38. 11. becauſe it is lofty, and fierce, and ſwelling, and unruly; which God is ſaid to ſmite when he ſubdues and reſtrains its rage, and turns the ſtorm into a calm.

13 By his * ſpirit c he hath garniſhed the heavens d; his hand hath formed the † crooked ſerpent e.

* Pſ.33.6. † Heb. croſſing like a bar. Iſa.27.1.

c Either 1. by his Divine Vertue or Power, which is ſometimes called his Spirit, as Zach. 4.6. Matth. 12.28. Or 2. by his holy Spirit, to which the Creation of the World is aſcribed, Gen. 1. 2. Job 33. 4. Pſalm 33.6. d Adorned or beautified them with thoſe glorious Lights, the Sun, and Moon, and Stars. e By which he underſtands either 1. all the kinds of Serpents, or Fiſhes, or Monſters of the Sea. Or 2. the moſt eminent of their kinds, particularly the Whale, which may be here not unfitly mentioned (as it is afterwards more largely deſcribed) amongſt the glorious Works of God in this lower World; as the garniſhing of the Heavens was his nobleſt Work in the ſuperiour viſible parts of the World. Or 3. an heavenly Conſtellation, called the great Dragon and Serpent, which being moſt eminent, as taking up a conſiderable part of the Northern Hemiſphere, may well be put for all the reſt of the Conſtellations or Stars wherewith the Heavens are garniſhed. Thus he perſiſteth ſtill in the ſame kind of God's Works, and the latter branch explains the former. And this ſenſe is the more probable, becauſe Job was well acquainted with the Doctrine of Aſtronomy, and knew the nature and names of the Stars and Conſtellations, as appears alſo from Chap. 9.9. and 38.31.

14 Lo, theſe are parts f of his ways g, but how little a portion is heard of him h? but the thunder of his power i who can underſtand?

f Or, the extremities, but ſmall parcels, the outſide and viſible work: How glorious then are his inviſible and more inward Perfections and Operations. g i.e. Of his Works. h i.e. Of his Power and Wiſdom, and Providence and Actions. The greateſt part of what we ſee or know of him, is the leaſt part of what we do not know, and of what is in him, or is done by him. i Either 1. of his mighty and terrible Thunder, which is oft mentioned as an eminent Work of God; as Job 28. 25. & 40. 9. Pſalm 29. 3. & 77. 18. Or 2. of his mighty Power, which is aptly compared to Thunder, in regard of its irreſiſtible force, and the terrour which it cauſeth to wicked men: This Metaphor being uſed by others in like caſes; as among the Grecians, who uſed to ſay of their vehement and powerful Orators, that they did thunder and lighten; and in Mark 3. 17. where powerful Preachers are called Sons of Thunder.

CHAP. XXVII.

He will not renounce his integrity, 1——6. The character of an hypocrite, and his miſery, 7——10. The portion and heritage of the wicked.

MOreover, Job † continued a his parable b, and ſaid,

a When he had waited a while to hear what his Friends would reply, and perceived them to be ſilent. b His grave and weighty, but withal dark and difficult Diſcourſe, ſuch as are oft called Parables, as Numb. 23.7. & 24.3,15. Pſalm 49.4. & 78.2. Prov. 26.7.

2 As God liveth c, who hath taken away my judgment d, and the Almighty, who hath † vexed my ſoul:

† Heb. made my ſoul bitter.

c He confirms the truth and ſincerity of his Expreſſions by an oath, becauſe he found them very hard to believe all his profeſſions. d Or, my right, or my cauſe, i. e. who, though he knows my Integrity and Piety towards him, yet doth not plead my Cauſe againſt my Friends, nor will admit me to plead my Cauſe with him before them, as I have ſo oft and earneſtly deſired, nor doth deal with me according to thoſe Terms of Grace and Mercy wherewith he treateth other Men and Saints, but uſeth me with great rigour, and by his Soveraign Power puniſheth me ſorely, without diſcovering to me what ſingular cauſe I have given him to do ſo.

3 All the while my breath e is in me, and ‖ the ſpirit of God f is in my noſtrils;

‖ That is, the breath which God gave him.

e Which is the conſtant Companion and certain Sign of Life both coming in with it, Gen. 2.7. and going out with it, 1 Kings 17. 17. Pſalm 146.4. Or, my Soul, or Life. f That Spirit or Soul which God breathed into me, Gen. 2. 7. and preſerveth in me. Or rather, the breath of God, i. e. which God breathed into me, which eminently appears in a man's noſtrils.

4 My lips ſhall not ſpeak wickedneſs, nor my tongue utter deceit g.

g I will ſpeak nothing but the truth with all plainneſs and impartiality, neither defending my ſelf and cauſe by vain and falſe Profeſſions of thoſe Vertues or Graces which I know I have not; nor yet in compliance with your deſire and deſign, falſly accuſing my ſelf of thoſe Crimes wherewith you charge me, whereof I know my ſelf to be innocent.

5 God forbid that I ſhould juſtifie you h: till I die, * I will not remove i my integrity from me.

* Ch. 2. 9.

h i. e. Your opinion and cenſure concerning me, as one convicted to be impious or hypocritical; by God's unuſual and ſevere dealing with me. i To wit, declaratively, as real words are frequently underſtood; or by renouncing or denying my integrity, of which God and my own Conſcience bear me witneſs. I will not, to gratifie you, ſay that I am an hypocrite, which I know to be falſe.

6 My righteouſneſs I hold faſt k, and will not let it go: my heart l ſhall not reproach me m † ſo long as I live n.

† Heb. from my days.

k Heb. I have held faſt, i.e. I have not only begun well, but continued in well-doing; which is a plain Evidence that I am no hypocrite. Or, the paſt tenſe is put for the future, as is uſual, I will hold faſt, declaratively, as before, I will maintain it, that howſoever you calumniate me, I am a righteous perſon. l i. e. My Conſcience, as the heart is oft uſed, as 1 Sam. 24.5. & 25. 31. Ezek. 14. 5. 1 John 3. 20.21. m Either 1. with betraying my own cauſe and innocency, and ſpeaking what I know to be falſe, to wit, that I am an hypocrite. Or 2. for my former impiety or hypocriſie, wherewith you charge me. n Heb. From, or for, or concerning my days, i. e. the time of my Life, whether paſt or to come: Or the courſe of my Life: days, or times being put here, as it is elſewhere, for actions done in them by Metonymy.

7 Let mine enemy be as the wicked o, and he that riſeth up againſt me p, as the unrighteous.

o I am ſo far from loving and practiſing wickedneſs, whereof you accuſe me, that I abhor the thoughts of it, and if I might and would wiſh to be revenged of mine Enemy, I could wiſh him no greater miſchief than to be a wicked man. p Either 1. you my Friends, who inſtead of comforting me, are riſen up to torment me. Or rather, 2. my worſt Enemies.

8 * For what is the hope of the hypocrite, though he hath gained q, when God taketh away r his ſoul?

* Matth. 16.26.

q There is no reaſon why I ſhould envy or deſire the portion of wicked men; for though they oft times proſper in the World, as I have ſaid, and ſeem to be great gainers, yet death, which haſteneth to all men, and to me eſpecially, will ſhew that they are far greater loſers, and die in a moſt wretched and deſperate condition; having no hope either of continuing in this life, which they chiefly deſire, or of enjoying a better life, which they never regarded. But I have a firm and well grounded hope, not of that temporal reſtitution which you promiſed me, but of a bleſſed immortality after death, and therefore am none of theſe hopeleſs hypocrites, as you account me. r Or expelleth, or plucketh up: which notes violence, and that he died unwillingly. Compare Luke 12. 20. when good men are ſaid freely and chearfully to give themſelves or their Souls unto God.

9 * Will God hear his cry s when trouble cometh upon him t?

* Pſ.18.41. & 109. 7. Prov.1.28. & 28.9. Iſa.1.15. Ezek.8.18. Mich.3.4. John 9.31. James 4.3.

s An hypocrite doth not pray to God with comfort, or any ſolid hope that God will hear him, as I know he will hear me, though not in the way which you think. t When his guilty Conſcience will fly in his face, ſo as he dare not pray, and accuſe him to God, ſo as God will not hear him.

10 Will he delight himſelf in the Almighty u? will he always call upon God x?

u Will he be able to delight and ſatisfie himſelf with God alone, and with his Love and Favour, when he hath no other matter of delight? This I now do, and this an hypocrite cannot do, becauſe his heart is chiefly ſet upon the World, and when that fails him, his heart ſinks, and the thoughts of God are unſavoury and troubleſome to him. x He may by his Afflictions be driven to Prayer, but if God doth not ſpeedily anſwer him, he falls into deſpair and neglect of God and of Prayer; whereas I conſtantly continue in Prayer, notwithſtanding the grievouſneſs, and the long continuance of my Calamities.

‖ Or, being in the hand, &c. 11 I will teach you ‖ by the hand of God y: that which is with the Almighty z, will I not conceal.

y i. e. By God's help and inſpiration; as God is ſaid to ſpeak to the Prophet with or by a ſtrong hand, Iſa. 8.11. I will not teach you my own vain conceits, but what God himſelf hath taught me. Or, concerning (as the prefix Beth is oft uſed, as Exod. 12.43, 44. Pſalm 63.6. & 87.3. *Prov.*4.11.) the hand of God, i. e. his Counſel and Providence in governing the World, or the manner of his dealing with Men, and eſpecially with wicked men, of whoſe portion he diſcourſeth *v.*13,14. &c. ſhewing how far the hand of God is either for them, or upon them, and againſt them. z i. e. What is in his Breaſt or Counſel, and how he executes his ſecret purpoſes concerning them; or, the truth of God, the Doctrine which he hath taught his Church about theſe matters.

12 Behold, all ye your ſelves have ſeen it a; why then are ye thus altogether vain b?

a I ſpeak no falſe or ſtrange things, but what is known and confirmed by your own, as well as others experiences. b In maintaining ſuch a fooliſh and falſe opinion againſt your own knowledge and experience. Why do you obſtinately defend your opinion, and not comply with mine, for the truth of which I appeal to your own Conſciences?

13 This c is the portion of a wicked man with God d, and the heritage of oppreſſors e, which they ſhall receive of the Almighty.

c That which is mentioned in the following Verſes. In which Job delivers either, 1. The Opinion of his Friends, in whoſe perſon he utters them, and afterwards declares his diſſent from them. Or rather 2. His own Opinion, and how far he agreeth with them; for his ſenſe differs but little from what Zophar ſaid, Chap. 20.29. d Either laid up with God, or in his Counſel and appointment; or, which he ſhall have from God, as the next words explain it. e Who are mighty, and fierce, and terrible, and miſchievous to Mankind, as this word implies, whom therefore men cannot deſtroy, but God will.

* Deut. 28.41. Hoſ.9.13. 14 * If his children be multiplied, it is for the ſword f: and his off-ſpring ſhall not be ſatisfied with bread g.

f That they may be cut off by the Sword, either of War, or of Juſtice. g Shall be ſtarved, or want neceſſaries. A Figure called Meioſis.

15 Thoſe that remain of him h ſhall be buried in
* Pſ.78. 64 death i: and * his widows k ſhall not weep l.

h Who ſurvive and eſcape that Sword and Famine. i Either 1. ſhall die and ſo be buried. Or 2. ſhall be buried as ſoon as ever they are dead, either becauſe their Relations or Dependents feared leſt they ſhould come to themſelves again, and trouble them and others longer; or becauſe they were not able to beſtow any Funeral Pomp upon them, or thought them unworthy of it. Or 3. ſhall be in a manner utterly extinct in or by death; all their hope, and glory, and name, and memory (which they deſigned to perpetuate to all Ages) ſhall be buried with them, and they ſhall never riſe again to a bleſſed Life: whereas a good man hath hope in his death, and leaves his good name alive and flouriſhing in the World, and reſts in his Grave in aſſurance of Redemption from it, and of a glorious Reſurrection to an happy and eternal Life. k For they had many Wives, either to gratifie their Luſt, or to encreaſe and ſtrengthen their Family and Intereſt. l Either, becauſe they durſt not lament their death, which was entertained with publick joy: or, becauſe they were overwhelmed and aſtoniſhed with the greatneſs and ſtrangeneſs of the Calamity, and therefore could not weep: or, becauſe they alſo, as well as other perſons, groaned under their tyranny and cruelty, and rejoyced in their deliverance from it.

16 Though he heap up ſilver as the duſt, and prepare raiment as the clay m:

m i. e. In great abundance.

17 He may prepare it, but the juſt ſhall put it on n, and the innocent ſhall divide o the ſilver.

n Either becauſe it ſhall be given to him by the Judge to recompence thoſe Injuries which he received from that Tyrant: Or becauſe the right of it is otherwiſe transferred upon him by Divine Providence. o Either 1. to the Poor: he ſhall diſtribute that which the oppreſſors hoarded up and kept as wickedly as he got it. So this ſuits with *Prov.*28.8. *Eccleſ.*2.26. Or 2. with others, or to himſelf. CHAP. XXVIII.

The power and wiſdom of God in his works of nature, 1——11. A knowledge and wiſdom anſwering this is not found in man, nor to be bought or acquired, 12——21. Death and deſtruction make their report of it, 22. It is only in God, 23——27. Man's wiſdom is to fear God, 28.

SUrely there is ‖ a vein for the ſilver a, and a place ‖ Or, a Mine.
for Gold, ‖ where they fine it b. ‖ Or, which they fine.

a Where it is hid by God, and found, and fetched out by the art and induſtry of man. The connexion of this Chapter with the former is difficult, and diverſly apprehended; but this may ſeem to be the faireſt account of it, Job having in the laſt Chapter diſcourſed of God's various Providences and Carriages towards wicked men, and ſhewed that God doth ſometimes, for a ſeaſon, give them Wealth and Proſperity, but afterwards calls them to a ſad account, and puniſheth them ſeverely for their abuſe of his Mercies; and having formerly ſhewed that God doth ſometimes proſper the wicked all their days, ſo as they live and die without any viſible token of God's diſpleaſure againſt them, when on the contrary, good men are exerciſed with many and grievous Calamities, and perceiving that his Friends were, as Men in all Ages have been, ſcandalized at theſe methods of Divine Providence, and denied the thing, becauſe they could not underſtand the reaſon of ſuch unequal Diſpenſations: In this Chapter he declares that this is one of the depths and ſecrets of Divine Wiſdom, not diſcoverable by any mortal Man in this World, and that although Men had ſome degree of Wiſdom whereby they could dig deep, and ſearch out many hidden things, as the Veins of Silver, Gold, &c. yet this was a Wiſdom of an higher nature, and out of Man's reach. And hereby he ſecretly checks the arrogance and confidence of his Friends, who, becauſe they had ſome parts of Wiſdom, the knowledge of natural things, ſuch as are here contained, and of Human Affairs, and of ſome Divine Matters, therefore preſumed to fathom the depths of God's Wiſdom and Providence, and to judge of all God's ways and works by the ſcantling of their own narrow underſtandings. Poſſibly it may be connected thus, Job having been diſcourſing of the wonderful ways of God, both in the Works of Nature, Chap. 26. from *v.*5. to the end, and in his Providential Diſpenſations towards wicked men, *Chap.*27. from *v.*13. to the end, he here returns to the firſt Branch of his Diſcourſe, and diſcovers more of God's Wiſdom and Power in natural things. And this he doth partly, that by this manifeſtation of his ſingular skill in the ways and actions of God, he might vindicate himſelf from that contempt which they ſeemed to have of him, and oblige them to hear what he had further to ſay with more attention and conſideration, and partly that by this repreſentation of the manifold Wiſdom and Power of God, they might be wrought to a greater Reverence for God and for his Works, and not preſume to judge ſo raſhly and boldly of them, and to condemn what they did not underſtand in them. b Or rather, as it is in the margent of our Bibles, which they to wit, the Refiners, do fine. For he ſpeaks not hear of the Works of Men and of Art, but of God and of Nature, as is manifeſt from the foregoing and following words.

*Ch.12.22. 3 He f ſetteth an end g * to darkneſs, and ſearcheth out all perfection b: the ſtones i of darkneſs, and the ſhadow of death k.

f Either 1. Man the Miner, or 2. God, of whoſe Works of Nature he here ſpeaks, or 3. God as the chief Author and Director, and Man as Gods Inſtrument in the Work. g Or, a bound, how far the darkneſs ſhall reach, and how far the dark and hidden parts and Treaſures of the Earth ſhall be ſearched, and diſcovered, and brought to light. b i. e. Metals and Minerals, which are nothing elſe but Earth concocted, and hardened, and brought to maturity and perfection. Or, unto all perfection, i. e. he perfectly and exactly ſearcheth them out, although the Hebrew Lamed may be here only a Note of the Accuſative Caſe, as our Tranſlation takes it. i Either Gems and precious Stones, which are called by this word Prov. 26. 8. or thoſe ſtones out of which the Metals forementioned are taken. k Which lye hid in the dark and deadly ſhades and bowels of the Earth.

4 The flood breaketh out l from the inhabitant m, even the waters n forgotten of the foot o: they are dried up, they are gone away from men p.

l This Verſe ſpeaks either 1. Of another great and remarkable Work of God, whereby in ſome places either new Rivers break forth, or old Rivers break in upon the Inhabitants, and drive them away; and in other places Rivers, or other Waters, are dried up, or derived into other channels or grounds, by which means theſe Lands are rendred more uſeful and fruitful. Or rather, 2. Of an accident which commonly happens in Mines, where, whilſt men are digging, a flood of Waters breaks in ſuddenly and violently upon them, and diſturbs them in their work. m Heb. from with the inhabitant, i. e. out of that part of the Earth which the Miners in a manner inhabit, or where they have their fixed abode, and for the moſt part dwell. Or, ſo that there is no inhabitant or abider, i.e. ſo that the Miners dare continue there no longer, but are forced to come away. n Which word is eaſily and fitly underſtood out of the foregoing word flood. Or, without this ſupplement, the flood may be ſaid to be forgotten, &c. that ſingular word being collectively taken, and ſo conveniently joined with this word of the plural number. o i. e. Untrodden by the foot of man, ſuch waters as men either never did paſs over, or, by reaſon of their depth, cannot paſs over, or, ſuch as though the Miners at firſt for a while did paſs over, yet now cannot, or dare not, do ſo any more. Forgetfulneſs is here aſcribed to the foot, as it is to the hand, Pſalm 137.5. and it is put for ignorance or unacquaintedneſs; as all ſinners are ſaid to forget God, though many of them never remembred nor minded him. p Heb. they are dried up (or, drawn up, to wit, by Engines made for that purpoſe) from men, (i. e. from the Miners, that they may not be hindred in their work. Or, with, or by men, the prefix Mem being oft put for Beth, i.e. by the labour of men) they remove, or vaniſh, or paſs away, and ſo the Miners return to their work.

5 As for the earth, out of it q cometh bread r: and q Out of the upper parts of the Earth. r Bread-corn, or other food for man's uſe. s Either 1. under the ſame Earth, which either at the ſame time yields bread out of its upper, and fire out of its lower parts; or at ſeveral times; that Earth which once was fruitful, becoming, by the diſpoſition of Divine Providence, barren and ſulphureous, &c. Or 2. under other parts of the Earth. t i. e. Is digged out and fetched up. u Either Gold and precious Stones, which glitter and ſparkle like fire: or Coals, and Brimſtone, and other Materials of fire.

Of this Stone ſee Exod. 24.10. Ezek. 1.26. Cant. 5. 14. Lam. 4. 7. y i. e. The Earth containeth in or under it. z Which is a diſtinct thing from that Gold which is found in the maſs or lump, of which v. 2. both ſorts of Gold being found in the Earth.

7 There is a path a which no fowl knoweth, and which the vultures b eye hath not ſeen.

a To wit, in the dark depths and bowels of the Earth. b Whoſe eye is very quick, and ſtrong, and which ſearcheth all places for its Prey, but cannot reach to theſe places, which yet the wiſdom of Man by the direction of God's Providence findeth out.

8 The lions whelps c have not trodden it, nor the fierce lion d paſſed by it.

c Heb. The ſons of Pride, a fit name for Lions, which are lofty and ſtately Creatures, deſpiſing both Men and all other Beaſts that oppoſe them. d Which rangeth all places for Prey, and findeth out the Deepeſt Dens and Caves of the Earth. The Birds and Beaſts have oft times led men to ſuch places as otherwiſe they ſhould never have found out; but they could not lead men to theſe Mines, but the finding out of them is a ſpecial gift of God, and an act of that Wiſdom which he hath put into Man.

*Ch.9.5. 9 * He putteth forth his hand upon the ‖ Rock e; he ‖Or, flint. overturneth the mountains by the roots f.

e This and the two next Verſes are meant either, 1. Of other eminent and conſiderable Works of God, who ſometimes overturneth Rocks, and produceth new Rivers in unlikely places. Or rather 2. Of the ſame work of mining and digging for Gold, or other precious things of the Earth, and of other effects of Man's Art and Wiſdom in that Work. The Miners reſolve to break through all oppoſition, and by Iron tools, or Fire, or other ways, dig through the hardeſt Rocks. f He undermineth the very Mountains to find out the Metals lying at the bottom of them.

10 He cutteth out rivers among the rocks g, and his eye ſeeth every precious thing b.

g He maketh Channels there to convey away that Water which was breaking in upon him, and if not thus diverted, would have ſpoiled his work: of which ſee on v. 4. b Having with great art and indefatigable Induſtry broke through all Difficulties, he at laſt arriveth at his end, and finds out thoſe precious Treaſures which he ſought for.

11 He bindeth the floods † from overflowing i, and † Heb. from weeping.
the thing that is hid, bringeth he forth to light k.

i He reſtraineth them, and as it were bindeth them to their good behaviour, that they may not overflow the Mine. k Thoſe Metals which did lye hid in the ſecret parts of the Earth, he diſcovers to himſelf and others.

12 But where ſhall wiſdom l be found? and where is the place of underſtanding m?

l Heb. that Wiſdom, for here is an Article which ſeems to be emphatical. The ſenſe is, I confeſs that Man hath one kind of Wiſdom in a great Meaſure, to wit, to diſcover the Works of Nature, and to perform the operations of Art; but as for that ſublime and eminent Wiſdom, which conſiſts in the exact knowledge of all God's Counſels and Ways, and of the ſeveral manners and reaſons of his governing the World, and dealing with good and bad Men, this is far above Man's reach, and is the Prerogative of God alone. m There is no vein for that upon the Earth, as there is for Gold or Silver.

13 Man knoweth not the price thereof n, neither is it found in the land of the living o.

n Man knoweth neither where to purchaſe it, nor how much it is worth, nor what to offer in exchange for it. o Amongſt mortal men that live upon Earth, but only amongſt thoſe bleſſed Spirits that dwell above.

ſaith, It is not with me.

p To wit, of the Earth, becauſe the Sea here follows as a differing place. This is a very common figure, whereby Speech is aſcribed to dumb and ſenſleſs Creatures. The meaning is, this is not to be found in any part of the Land or Sea, yea though a man ſhould dig or dive never ſo deep to find it, nor to be learned from any Creatures: For though theſe diſcover the Being, and Power, and in part, the Wiſdom of God, yet they do not inſtruct us in the methods and grounds of God's Providential Diſpenſations to good and evil Men: theſe are ſecrets of Wiſdom reſerved for God himſelf.

15 † It * cannot be gotten for gold q, neither ſhall † Heb. fine gold ſhall not be given for it.
ſilver be weighed r for the price thereof.

q The choiceſt Gold laid up in Treaſures, as the word ſignifies. r To wit, in the ballance: for in thoſe times Money was paid by weight, not by tale. See Gen. 23.16. Jer. 32.9,10. *Pro. 3.13, 14. & 8.11, 19. & 16. 16.

16 It cannot be valued with the gold of Ophir s with the precious Onyx t, or the Saphire.

u Or Amber, which in thoſe parts was of very great price. Or, the Diamond. The Hebrew word is not elſewhere uſed, and it hath in it the ſignification of purity, or clearneſs, or brightneſs. x Or, veſſels, wherein there is not only the excellency of the Materials, but the Curioſity of Art, which renders the other much more valuable.

18 No mention ſhall be made y of ‖ coral, or of ‖ Or, Ramoth.
pearls: for the price z of wiſdom is above rubies.

y They are of no value, nor worthy to be named the ſame day with this, nor fit to be mentioned as a price or recompence, wherewith to purchaſe this. z Or, the attraction or acquiſition: or rather, the extraction, or drawing forth. For Job uſeth the word of art which was proper in the taking of Pearls, as the following word, rendred by our Tranſlators Rubies, is underſtood by divers, both Hebrew and Chriſtian Interpreters, and amongſt others by the late eminently learned Bochart, who proveth it by divers Arguments. Now theſe Pearls are and were taken by men that dived to the bottom of the Sea, and drew them out thence, which is the very word which both Arabick and Latin Authors uſe in the caſe, as indeed the ſame word is uſed of all Fiſhermen, who are ſaid to draw forth with their Hook, or Net, or otherwiſe, Fiſhes, or any other thing for which they are fiſhing. Moreover this diving, as it produced great profit, ſo it was not without ſome danger and difficulty; for if they heedleſly put their fingers into the gaping ſhell, within which the Pearl was, it ſpeedily cloſed upon them, and put them to exquiſite pain, to the loſs of their finger, and ſometimes of their life. Which is a fit repreſentation of the ſtate of thoſe perſons who ſearch after the knowledge of God's Counſels, and Ways, and the grounds of them, who as when they modeſtly enquire into them, and truly diſcover them, they have infinite advantage and ſatisfaction therein, ſo if they prie into them too boldly, ſearching into thoſe things which God hath concealed, and raſhly judging of them above what they know, which Job judged to be his Friends caſe, they expoſe themſelves to manifold ſnares and dangers. And this extraction, or drawing forth, is aptly uſed concerning this Wiſdom, which lying very deep and remote from the reach of ordinary men, is not to be obtained without diligent ſearch and conſideration. And ſo the place may be thus tranſlated, the extraction or drawing forth of Wiſdom is above that (to wit, the extraction) of Pearls.

19 The topaz a of Ethiopia b ſhall not equal it; neither ſhall it be valued with pure gold.

a Of which ſee Exod. 28. 17. & 39. 10. b Or, of Arabia: for Cuſh ſignifies both Ethiopia and Arabia; and the Topaz was found in the Red Sea, which lay between both, and ſo might be aſcribed to either.

d Of all men that live upon the Earth. e Though they flie high, and can ſee far and well, yet they cannot diſcern this: Men of the moſt raiſed underſtandings cannot diſcover it. It is to be found no where in this viſible World, neither in the upper nor lower parts of it.

* Ver.14.

22 * Deſtruction and death f ſay, we have heard the ſame thereof g with our ears.

f Either 1. Men that are dead, and thereby freed from the encumbrance of their bodies, which depreſs their minds, and have more raiſed thoughts than men that live here. Or, 2. The Grave, the place of the dead, to which theſe things are here aſcribed, as they are to the depths, and to the Sea, *v.*14. by a Figure called Proſopopœia. If a man ſhould ſearch for this Wiſdom, either amongſt living men, or amongſt the dead, he could not find it; yea, though he ſhould and might enquire of all men that formerly lived in the World, ſome of whom were perſons of prodigious Wit, and Learning, and of vaſt Experience, as having lived nigh a thouſand years, and made it their great buſineſs in that time to ſearch out the depths of this Divine Wiſdom in the Adminiſtration of the World. g We know it only by ſlight and uncertain rumours, but not fully and perfectly.

23 God h underſtandeth the way thereof i, and he knoweth the place thereof k.

h i. e. God alone; as appears by the denial of it to all other things. i Either the way how it is to be obtained: Or rather, the methods or courſes which it takes in the management of all Affairs in the World, together with its grounds and ends in them. k Where it dwells, which is only in his own Breaſt and Mind, and in the beſt of men but in part, and only as far as it pleaſeth him to afford it.

24 For he looketh to the ends of the earth, and ſeeth under the whole heaven l.

l He, and he only knows it, becauſe his Providence, and that only, is infinite and univerſal, reaching to all places, and times, and things, paſt, preſent, and to come; whereas the moſt acute and knowing men have narrow underſtandings, and ſee but very few things, and ſmall parcels of the Works of God, and therefore are very unfit to paſs a Judgment upon them, becauſe the Wiſdom, and Juſtice, and Beauty of God's Works is not clearly nor fully ſeen till all the parts of them be laid together.

25 To make the weight for the winds m, and he weigheth n the waters o by meaſure p.

m Which of themſelves are moſt light, and without any weight, and inconſtant, and ſuch as no Creature can order or govern them: But God manageth them all by weight, appointing to every Wind that blows, its ſeaſon, its proportion, its bounds and limits, when, and where, and how much, and how long each Wind ſhall blow, and for what ends, whether for Mercy, as to refreſh men in hot ſeaſons with its gentle gales, to cheriſh the fruits of the Earth, to waft Ships on the Sea to their deſired Havens, &c. or whether for Judgment, as to corrupt the Air, and thereby the Bodies of men, and Fruits of the Earth, to blow down Houſes upon their Inhabitants, as he was pleaſed to deal with my poor unhappy Children. He only doth all theſe things, and he only knows why he doth them. He inſtanceth but in ſome few of God's works, and thoſe which ſeem to be moſt trivial, and caſual, and uncertain, that thereby he might more ſtrongly imply and prove that God doth the ſame in other things which are more conſiderable, and are managed by more conſtant Cauſes, and certain Methods; that he doth all things in the moſt exact order, and weight, and meaſure. n But it ſeems a very improper ſpeech, to weigh things by meaſure, and therefore this word may more fitly be otherwiſe rendred, he examineth, or diſpoſeth, or fitteth, or directeth, for ſo this Verb is elſewhere uſed, as 1 Sam. 2. 3. Pſal. 75. 3. Prov. 16. 2. & 21. 2. o To wit, the Rain-waters, as appears from the next Verſe, which God layeth up in his Store-houſes, or Bottles, the Clouds, and thence draws them forth, and ſends them down upon the Earth in ſuch times and proportions as he thinks fit, and as may ſerve his ſeveral deſigns and ends. p For liquid things are examined by meaſure, as other things are by weight: and here is both weight and meaſure to ſignifie with what exact and perfect Wiſdom God doth govern the World.

26 When he made q a decree for the rain r, and a way s for the lightning of the thunder.

q Which was either from eternity, or at the firſt Creation, when he ſettled that courſe and order which ſhould afterwards be continued. Or, when he maketh: But our Tranſlation ſeems beſt to ſuit with the then in the next Verſe, where the ſenſe is compleated. r An appointment, and as it were a Statute Law, that it ſhould fall upon the Earth, and that in ſuch times, and places, and proportions, and manner, as he ſhould think fit, either for correction, or for mercy, as Elihu ſpeaks, Job 37.13. s Or path, how it ſhould get out of the thick Cloud in which it was ſhut up, and as it were impriſoned: or, a courſe, which ſhould for the future be obſerved, as to the time, and meaſure, and ends, and other circumſtances belonging to it.

27 Then t did he ſee it u, and ‖ declare it x; he prepared it y, yea, and ſearched it out z.

t Either from eternity, when he decreed what he would do, or when he firſt created them. u i. e. Wiſdom, which is the ſubject matter of the preſent Diſcourſe. This God ſaw not abroad, but within himſelf; he looked or reflected upon it in his own mind, as the rule by which he would proceed in the Creation and Government of all things, managing them in ſuch ways and methods as were moſt agreeable to his own moſt wiſe and unſearchable Counſels, which no human or created Wit can reach or pierce into. Or, he ſaw it, ſo as to declare it, as it follows; ſo as to make it viſible and manifeſt in ſome meaſure to his Creatures. Or, he ſaw it, i. e. he enjoyed it, ſeeing being oft put for enjoying, as Pſal. 27.13. & 34.12. Eccleſ. 3. 13. & 2. 1. Compare Prov. 8. 22. x i. e. He made it evident, he diſcovered his deep Wiſdom which lay hid before in his own breaſt; or he laid the foundation of that Diſcovery of it, which then was, or afterward ſhould be made to Angels and Men, as the Heavens did in themſelves declare the glory of God, Pſal. 19.1. before there was ſuch a Creature as Man to take notice of it, becauſe the object was viſible in it ſelf, and not made ſo by the Eye which afterwards beheld it. Or, did number it, i. e. ſhewed it as it were by number, not only in groſs, but as it were by retail, in all the ſeveral works which he made. y i. e. He had it in readineſs for the doing of all his works, as if he had been for a long time preparing Materials for them. So it is a Speech of God after the manner of Men. Or, he deſpoſed it, i.e. uſed or employed it in his works. Or, he ſettled, or eſtabliſhed it, i. e. he firmly purpoſed to do ſuch and ſuch things in ſuch manner as he thought meet, and he eſtabliſhed the order which he firſt made in the World, that it ſhould continue in after Ages. Or, he directed it, and directed and ordered all things by it. z Not properly; for ſo ſearching implies Ignorance, and that a man is at a loſs, and requires time and induſtry, all which is repugnant to the Divine Perfections; but figuratively, as ſuch expreſſions are oft uſed concerning God, i. e. He did, and doth, all things with that abſolute and perfect Wiſdom, and he knoweth all his own Counſels and Actions, and the reaſons of them, ſo exactly, and perfectly, as if he had beſtowed a long time in ſearching, and judging, to find them out. And this, and the other Acts mentioned in this verſe, are to be underſtood of God ſolely and excluſively, it being here, as it is oft elſewhere in this Book, ſufficiently implied, that this kind of Divine Wiſdom, which conſiſts in the accurate knowledge of all God's Counſels and Works, is far above, out of man's reach: Man doth not ſee this Wiſdom, but only ſo far as God is pleaſed to reveal it to him, and therefore he cannot declare it to others; Man did not prepare, nor order, nor contrive it, and therefore no wonder if he cannot ſearch it out. And ſo this is moſt fitly connected with the following verſe: For as here he tells us what Wiſdom is denied to man, ſo there he informeth us what is granted to him.

* Pſal.111. 10. Prov.1.7. & 9.10. Eccleſ. 12. 13.

28 And a unto man b he ſaid c, behold d, * the fear of the LORD e that is wiſdom f, and to depart from evil g is underſtanding h.

a Or rather, But: For this is added by way of oppoſition, to ſhew that man's Wiſdom doth not lie in a curious enquiry into, or an exact knowledge of the ſecret paths of God's Counſel and Providence, but in things of another, and of a lower nature. b Unto Adam at firſt, and in, and with him, to all his Race and Poſterity. c i. e. God ſpake it, partly and at firſt inwardly to the mind of Man, in which God wrote this with his own finger, and engraved it as a firſt Principle for his direction; and partly afterwards by the Holy Patriarchs, and Prophets, and other Teachers of his Church, whom God ſent into the World to teach men true Wiſdom; which accordingly they did, not by acquainting the People with the ſecrets and intricacies of God's Counſel and Providence, but by declaring the revealed Will of God, and inſtructing them in their duty towards God and Men, making this their great, if not only buſineſs, to make men wiſe unto Salvation. See *Deut.*4.6. & 29.29. d Which expreſſion notes the great importance of this Doctrine, and withal man's dulneſs and backwardneſs to apprehend and conſider it, and man's proneneſs to place his Wiſdom in vain and curious ſpeculations. e i. e. True Religion, and the right Worſhip of God, both inward and outward, all which cometh under this name. f In that only conſiſts man's true Wiſdom, becauſe that, and that only, is his duty, and his ſafety, and happineſs, both for this Life and for the next; and withal this is attainable, whereas the depths of God's ways are unknown, and unſearchable to human or created Capacities. g i. e. From ſin, which is called evil eminently, as being the chief, if not the only Evil, and the cauſe of all other evils, and that which is conſtantly and immutably evil, whereas afflictions are frequently made good and highly beneficial. Religion conſiſts of two Branches, doing good, and forſaking evil; the former is expreſſed in the former clauſe of this Verſe, and the latter in theſe words. h Is the beſt kind of Knowledge or Wiſdom to which man can attain in this Life. The ſame thing is here twice expreſſed in ſeveral Phraſes. And the deſign of Job in this cloſe of his Diſcourſe, is not only to ſhew the miſtake, and reprove the arrogance and boldneſs of his Friends, in prying into God's ſecrets, and paſſing ſuch a raſh cenſure upon him, and upon God's ways and carriage towards him; but alſo to vindicate himſelf from the imputation of Hypocriſie and Profaneneſs, which they faſtned upon him, by ſhewing that he had ever eſteemed it to be his beſt Wiſdom, and true Intereſt, to fear God, and to depart from evil.

MOreover, Job † continueth his parable, and ſaid,

2 Oh that I were as in months paſt, as in the days when God preſerved me a:

a To wit, from all thoſe miſeries which now I feel. This he deſires, not only for his own eaſe and comfort, but alſo for the vindication of his Reputation, and of the honour of Religion, which ſuffered by his means: For as his Calamities were the only ground of all their hard Speeches and Cenſures of him, as a man forſaken and hated by God, ſo he rightly judged that this ground being removed, and his Poſterity reſtored, his Friends would take it for a token of God's favour to him, and beget in them a milder and better opinion of him.

3 When his ‖ candle b ſhined upon my head c, and when by his light I walked through darkneſs d.

b i. e. His Favour and Bleſſing, oft ſignified by the name light; as his diſpleaſure, and a ſtate of affliction is frequently called darkneſs. c Or, over my head, to comfort and direct me. The ground of the Expreſſion is this, that lights uſed to be carried and ſet on high, that men may make the better uſe of them, as the Sun for that end was placed above us. d I paſſed ſafely through many difficulties, and dangers, and common Calamities, which befel others who lived round about me, and overcame thoſe troubles which fell upon my ſelf.

4 As I was in the days of my youth e, when the ſecret of God was upon my Tabernacle f:

e i. e. In my former and flouriſhing days, which he calls the days of youth, becauſe thoſe are commonly the times of mirth and comfort, as old age is called evil days, Eccleſ. 12. 1. f When there was a ſecret Bleſſing of God upon me, and my Family, protecting, directing, and ſucceeding us in all our Affairs, which the Devil obſerved, Chap. 1. 10. whereas now there is a viſible Curſe of God upon me and mine.

5 When the Almighty was yet with me g; when my children h were about me:

i i. e. When I abounded in all ſorts of Bleſſings; which is oft ſignified by this or the like Phraſes, as Gen. 49. 11. Deut. 33. 24. Job 20. 17. Pſal. 81. 16. When I had ſuch numerous Herds of Cattle, and conſequently ſuch plenty of Butter, that if I had needed it, or been pleaſed ſo to uſe it, I might have waſhed my Feet with it. k When not only fruitful Fields, but even barren and rocky Places (ſuch as that part of Arabia was where Job lived) yielded me Olive Trees and Oil in great Plenty. See on Deut. 32. 13.

7 When I went out l to the gate m, through the city n, when I prepared my ſeat o in the ſtreet p.

l From my dwelling. m To wit, of the City, as the following words ſhew; to the place of Judicature, which was in the Gates, as hath been oft obſerved. n Through that part of the City which was between my Houſe and the Gate. Or, to the City, i. e. the Gate belonging to the City: So Job might live in the Country adjoyning to it. o When I cauſed the ſeat of Juſtice to be ſet for me. By this, and divers other Expreſſions, it appears that Job was a Magiſtrate, or Judge in his Country. p i. e. In that void and open place within, or near the Gate, where the People aſſembled for the adminiſtration of Juſtice among them.

8 The young men ſaw me, and hid themſelves q: and the aged aroſe, and ſtood up r.

q Either out of a profound Reverence to my Perſon and Dignity, or out of a Conſcience of their own Guilt or Folly, which they ſuppoſed I might either underſtand by Information from others, or diſcover by their countenances or carriages in my preſence, for which they knew I would reprove them, and bring them to ſhame, or other puniſhment. r Whilſt I either paſſed by them, or was preſent with them. See Levit. 19. 32. 1 Kings 2. 19. So great a veneration they had for my Perſon, in regard of that Wiſdom, and Juſtice, and Faithfulneſs, which they diſcerned in me, and in all my proceedings. And therefore they judged quite otherwiſe of me than you now do.

9 The princes refrained talking s, and laid their hand on their mouth t.

s Either fearing that I ſhould diſcern their weakneſs by their words; or deſiring to hear my words and ſentence which they readily approved of, and fully aſſented to. Such an Opinion had they of my Wiſdom, and did not think me ſuch a fooliſh, erroneous, and impertinent Perſon as you fancy or repreſent me to be. t In token both of their wonder at Job's wiſe Speeches and Sentences, and of their reſolution to be ſilent. See Job 21. 5. Prov. 30. 32.

x i. e. Pronounced me to be a Man bleſſed of God with eminent Gifts and Graces; or heartily prayed for God's Bleſſing upon me, becauſe of that Wiſdom and Integrity which they ſaw in all my actions, and of the ſatisfaction which I gave to all, and the relief which I gave to the oppreſſed, by my righteous and equitable decrees in all cauſes which were brought before me. y When my appearance gave them occaſion to ſpeak of me, they gave Teſtimony to my pious, and juſt, and blameleſs converſation. So far was I from being, or being thought to be guilty of thoſe crimes wherewith you charge me; of which ſee Ch. 22. 9.

* Pſal. 72. 12. Prov. 21. 13.

12 Becauſe * I delivered z the poor that cried, and the fatherleſs, and him that had none to help him a.

z From his potent Oppreſſor. They did not honour me for my great Wealth or Power, but for my impartial Juſtice and Pity to the Afflicted, and courage in maintaining their cauſe and right, againſt their mighty Adverſaries. a None would own or help them, partly becauſe they were poor, and unable to recompence them for it: and partly becauſe their Enemies were great, and likely to cruſh both them and their helpers. Which made Job's Virtue more glorious.

13 The bleſſing b of him that was ready to periſh c came upon me: and I cauſed the Widows d heart to ſing for joy e:

It is a Metaphor from wild Beaſts, which break their Prey with their Teeth. Compare Pſalm 38. & 57. 4. & 58. 6. o i. e. Forced them to reſtore what they had violently and unjuſtly taken away.

p i. e. I perſuaded my ſelf, being thus ſtrongly fortified with the Conſcience of my own univerſal Integrity, and with the ſingular Favour of God, and of all Men. But although this was ſometimes Job's Opinion, yet at other times he was ſubject to Fears, and expectation of Changes, as appears from Chap. 3. 25, 26. q Not a violent or untimely, but a natural, and peaceable, and ſeaſonable death, ſweetly expiring in my own Bed and Habitation, in the midſt of my Children and Friends, leaving the precious perfume of a Good Name behind me, and a plentiful Inheritance to all my Poſterity. r Which is innumerable. 21 Unto me men gave ear, and waited and kept ſilence at my counſel z.

z Expecting till I ſpoke, and ſilently liſtening to my Counſel, which they were confident would be like the Oracle of God, Wiſe, and Juſt, and Good, and preferring it before their own Judgment.

22 After my words they ſpake not again a, and my ſpeech dropped upon them b.

a Either to confute them as falſe, or to add to them as lame and imperfect. b To wit, as the Rain, as the next Verſe explains it, which when it comes down gently and droppingly upon the earth, is moſt acceptable and beneficial to it; not ſo when it comes in great and violent ſhowers.

23 And they waited for me, as for the rain c, and they opened their mouth d for me as for the latter rain.

c As the Earth, or the Husbandman waiteth for the rain, to wit, the former rain; of which ſee Deut. 11. 14. becauſe the latter rain is here oppoſed to it: See Jam. 5. 7. d To receive my words, and therewith to ſatisfie their thirſt, as the dry and parched Earth gapes or opens its mouth to receive the Rain.

24 If I laughed on them e, they believed it not f, and the light of my countenance they caſt not down g.

e Or ſported, or jeſted with them i. e. carried my ſelf familiarly and pleaſantly with them. f It was ſo acceptable to them to ſee me well-pleaſed with them, that they could ſcarce believe their Eyes and Ears that it was ſo: Compare Gen. 45. 26. Pſalm 126. 1. g My Familiarity did not breed Contempt or Preſumption in them to ſay or do any thing that might grieve me, or make my countenance to fall, as it doth in caſe of ſhame or ſorrow, Gen. 4. 5. They were very cautious not to abuſe my ſmiles, nor to give me any occaſion to change my Countenance or Carriage towards them.

25 I choſe out their way f, and ſat g chief h, and dwelt as a king in the army i, as one that comforteth the mourners k.

f They ſought to me for my Advice in all doubtful and difficult Caſes, and I chalked out their Path, and directed them what methods they ſhould take to accompliſh their deſires. g As a Prince or Judge, whilſt they ſtood waiting for my Counſel. h Or Head, as their Head or Ruler, and my mind and word was as a Law or Oracle to them. i Whoſe Preſence puts Life, and Courage, and Joy into the whole Army. And no leſs acceptable was my preſence to them. k As I was able and ready to comfort any afflicted or ſorrowful Perſons, ſo my Conſolations were always grateful and welcom to them. Or, when he, to wit, the King, comforteth the mourners, i. e. his Army, when they are under ſome great Conſternation or Dejection, by reaſon of ſome great loſs or danger, but are revived by the Preſence and Speech of a wiſe and valiant King or General.

CHAP. XXX.

His Honour is turned into Contempt, 1—14. His Proſperity into Calamity; Fears, Pains, Deſpicableneſs, 15—19. Notwithſtanding his Prayer now, and his former Charity, and Hope, 20—26. His great Sorrow, 27—31.

†Heb. Of fewer days than I. BUT now a they that are † younger than I b, have me in deriſion c, whoſe fathers I would have diſdained d to have ſet with the dogs of my flock e.

a My Condition is ſadly changed for the worſe. b Whom both univerſal cuſtom, and the Light of Nature, taught to reverence their Elders and betters. c Make me the Object of their contempt and ſcoffs: Thus my Glory is turned into ſhame. d Or, rather, I might have diſdained, i. e. Whoſe condition was ſo mean and vile, that in the Opinion, and according to the cuſtom of the World, they were unworthy of ſuch an Employment. e To be my Shepherds, and the Companions of my Dogs which watch my Flocks. Dogs are every where mentioned with contempt as filthy, unprofitable, and accurſed Creatures; as 2 Sam. 16. 9. 2 Kings 8. 13. Phil. 3. 2. Revel. 22. 15.

2 Yea, whereto might the ſtrength of their hands profit me f, in whom old age was periſhed g?

f Nor was it ſtrange that I did, or would, or might refuſe to take them into any of my meaneſt Services, becauſe they were utterly impotent, and therefore unſerviceable. g Or, loſt, either 1. becauſe they never attain to it, but are conſumed by their luſts, or cut off for their wickedneſs by the juſt Hand of God, or Men, in the midſt of their Days. Or, 2. becauſe they had ſo waſted their Strength and Spirits by their evil courſes, that when they came to old Age, they were feeble and decripit, and uſeleſs for any labour. Or, 3. becauſe they had not that prudence and experience which is proper and uſual in that Age, by which they might have been uſeful, if not for Work, yet to Over-ſee and direct others in their Work. But the Words may be thus rendred, In whom vigorous Age was periſhed, i. e. who were grown impotent for ſervice. For the Word here rendred old Age, is uſed only here, and Job 5. 26. where alſo it may be ſo rendred, Thou ſhalt come to thy Grave in a vigorous, or mature Age, having the vigour of Youth even in thine old Age, and until thy Death, as Moſes had. And if this word do ſignifie old Age, yet it ſignifies not every, but only a flouriſhing and vigorous old Age; as the Hebrews note, and the word may ſeem to imply: Whence the Seventy Interpreters alſo render it perfection, to wit, of Age, and of the endowments belonging to Age.

‖Or, dark as the night. † Heb. yeſternight. 3 For want and famine h they were ‖ ſolitary: fleeing into the wilderneſs, † in former time deſolate and waſt:

h Brought upon them either by their own ſloth or wickedneſs, or by God's juſt Judgment. Heb. In want and famine, which aggravates their following Solitude. Although want commonly drives Perſons to places of reſort and company for relief, yet they were ſo conſcious of their own guilt, and contemptibleneſs, and hatefulneſs to all Perſons, that they ſhunned all company, and for fear or ſhame fled into, and lived in deſolate places.

4 Who cut up mallows i by the buſhes k, and juniper l roots for their meat.

i Or, Purſlain, or Salt, or Bitter Herbs, as the word ſeems to import, which ſhews their extreme neceſſity. k Or, by the ſhrubs, nigh unto which they grew. Or, with the barks of trees, as the Vulgar Latine renders it. l Poſſibly the word may ſignifie ſome other Plant, for the Hebrews themſelves are at a loſs for the ſignification of the Names of Plants.

5 They were driven forth from among men m, (they cried after them, as after a thief n)

†Heb. holes 6 To dwell in the clifts of the valleys, in † caves of the earth, and in the rocks.

m As unworthy of humane Society, and for their beggery and diſhoneſty, ſuſpected and avoided of all men. n Giving one another warning of their danger from them.

7 Among the buſhes they brayed o, under the nettles p they were gathered together.

o Like the wild Aſſes, Job 6. 5. for hunger or thirſt. p Which ſeem not proper for that uſe. This Hebrew Word is uſed but twice in Scripture, and it is acknowledged both by Jewiſh and Chriſtian Writers, That the ſignification of the Hebrew Words which expreſs Plants, or Beaſts, or Stones, &c. is very uncertain; and therefore this is by others, and may well be underſtood of ſome kind of Thorns: And ſo this is the ſame thing with the buſhes in the former Branch of the Verſe, under which they hid themſelves, that they might not be diſcovered when they were ſought out for Juſtice.

†Heb. men of no name. 8 They were children of fools q, yea, children of † baſe men r: they were viler than the earth s.

q Either 1. The genuine Children of fooliſh Parents, their Children not only by Birth, but by Imitation; as they only are eſteemed the Children of Abraham, who do the works of Abraham, John 8. 39. Or, 2. Fools, by a common Hebraiſm, as the ſons of men are put for Men, and the children of Wiſdom, for wiſe men, &c. r Heb. men without name, i. e. without any degree of Credit or Reputation; as men of name is put for renowned Perſons, Gen. 6. 4. s Which we tread and ſpit upon, and are not willing to touch.

9 * And now am I their ſong t, yea, I am their by-word. *Ch. 17. 6. Pſal. 35. 15. & 69. 12. Lam. 3. 14. 63.

t The matter of their ſong and deriſion: They now rejoyce in my Calamities, becauſe formerly I uſed my Authority to puniſh ſuch Vagrants and Miſcreants.

10 They abhor me, they flee far from me u, † and ſpare not to ſpit in my face x. † Heb. and with-hold not ſpittle from my face.

u In contempt of my perſon and loathing of my ſores. x Not literally, for they kept far from him, as he now ſaid; but figuratively, i. e. they uſe all manner of contemptuous and reproachful Expreſſions and Carriages towards me, not only behind my back, but even to my face.

11 Becauſe he y hath looſed my cord z, and afflicted me a, they have alſo let looſe the bridle b before me c.

y To wit, God, for it follows, He afflicted me, which was God's work. z Either 1. He hath ſlackned the ſtring (as this word ſometimes ſignifies) of my Bow, and ſo rendred my Bow and Arrows uſeleſs, either to offend others, or to defend my ſelf; i. e. He hath deprived me of my Strength or Defence: So this is oppoſed to that expreſſion, Chap. 29. 20. Or, 2. He hath taken away from me that Power and Authority, wherewith, as with a Cord, I bound them to the good behaviour, and kept them within their bounds. The like Expreſſion is uſed in the ſame Senſe, Job. 12. 18. a When they perceived that God who had been my faithful Friend, and conſtant Defender, had forſaken me, and was become mine Enemy, they preſently took this advantage of ſhewing their malice againſt me. b They caſt off all former reſtraints of Law, or Humanity, or Modeſty, and gave themſelves full liberty to ſpeak or act what they pleaſed againſt me. c They durſt now do thoſe things before mine Eyes, which formerly they trembled leſt they ſhould come to my ears.

12 Upon my right hand d riſe e the youth f, they puſh away my feet g, and they raiſe up againſt me the ways h of their deſtruction i.

d This Circumſtance is noted, either becauſe this was the place of Adverſaries or Accuſers in Courts of Juſtice, Pſal. 109. 6. Zach. 3. 1. Or, to ſhew their boldneſs and contempt of him, that they durſt oppoſe him even on that ſide where his chief Strength lay. e To wit, in way of contempt and oppoſition, or to accuſe and reproach me, as my Friends now do; as one who by my great, but ſecret wickedneſs, have brought theſe Miſeries upon my ſelf. f Heb. young Striplings, who formerly hid themſelves from my preſence, Ch. 29. 8. g Either 1. properly, they trip up my Heels. Or, rather 2. Metaphorically, they endeavour utterly to over-whelm my goings, and to caſt me down to the ground. h i. e. Cauſe-ways, or Banks: So it is a Metaphor from Souldiers, who raiſe, or caſt up Banks, againſt the City which they beſiege. Or, they raiſe up a Level, or ſmooth the Path by continual treading it: they prepare, and contrive, and uſe ſeveral methods to deſtroy me. i Either 1. paſſively, ſo the Senſe is, they raiſe, or heap upon me, i. e. impute to me, the ways, i. e. the cauſes of their ruine. They charge me to be the Author of their ruine. Or, rather, 2. Actively, of that deſtruction which they deſign and carry on againſt me: Which beſt ſuits with the whole Context, wherein Job is conſtantly repreſented as the Patient, and wicked Men as the Agents.

13 They mar my path k, they ſet forward my calamity l, they have no helper m.

k As I am in great miſery, ſo they endeavour to ſtop all my ways out of it, and to fruſtrate all my Counſels and Courſes of obtaining Relief or Comfort. And although Job had no hopes of a temporal deliverance or reſtitution, yet he could not but obſerve and reſent the malice of thoſe who did their utmoſt to hinder it. Or, the ſenſe is, They pervert all my ways, putting perverſe and falſe conſtructions upon them, cenſuring all my conſcientious diſcharges of my duty to God and Men, as nothing but craft and hypocriſie. l Increaſing it by their bitter Taunts, and Invectives, and Cenſures. Or, they profit by, or are pleaſed and ſatisfied with my calamity. It doth them good at the heart to ſee me in miſery. m This is added as an aggravation of their malice, they impudently perſiſted in their malicious deſigns againſt me, though none encouraged or aſſiſted them therein. Or, even they who had no helper, who were themſelves in a forlorn and miſerable condition; and yet they could ſo far forget or over-look their own calamities as to take pleaſure in mine.

14 They came upon me as a wide breaking in of waters n; in the deſolation o they rolled themſelves upon me p.

n As fiercely and violently as a River doth when a great breach is made in the Bank which kept it in. Heb. as at a wide breach; as a beſieging Army having made a breach in the Walls of the City, do ſuddenly and forcibly ruſh into it. o Or, for, or inſtead of a deſolation; i. e. that they might utterly deſtroy me, and make me deſolate. Or, in the waſt place; i. e. in that part of the Bank or Wall which was waſted or broken down. p As the Waters, or Souldiers come rolling or tumbling in at the Breach.

15 Terrors q are turned upon me r: they purſue † my ſoul s as the wind t: and my welfare u paſſeth away as a cloud x. † Heb. my principal one.

q To wit, from God, who ſets Himſelf againſt me, and in ſome ſort joyns his Forces with theſe Miſcreants. r Are directed againſt me to whom they ſeem not to belong, as being the portion of wicked Men. s Heb. my principal or excellent one, i. e. my Soul, which is fitly ſo called, as being the chief part of Man; as it is called a Man's Glory, Gen. 49. 6. and his onely One, Pſalm 22. 20. and which is the proper Seat and Object of Divine Terrors, as his Body was of his outward Pains and Ulcers. t i. e. Speedily, vehemently, and irreſiſtably. u All the happineſs and comfort of my Life. x Which is quickly diſſolved into Rain, or diſſipated by the Sun, or driven away with the Wind.

16 And now my ſoul is poured out y upon me z: the days of affliction have taken hold upon me.

y All the ſtrength and powers of my Soul are melted, and fainting, and dying away, through my continued and inſupportable ſorrows and calamities. z Or, within me, as this Hebrew Particle is elſewhere uſed; as Pſalm 42. 5, 6. Iſa. 26. 9. Hoſea 11. 8.

17 My bones are pierced a in me b in the night-ſeaſon c: and my ſinews d take no reſt.

a Heb. It, to wit, the Terror or Affliction laſt mentioned: Or, He, i. e. God, hath pierced my bones. This is no ſlight and ſuperficial, but a moſt deep wound that reacheth to my very heart and bones, and marrow. Nothing in me is ſo ſecret, but it reacheth it, nothing ſo hard and ſolid, but it feels the weight and burden of it. b Heb. from above me, by an Arrow ſhot from Heaven, whence my Calamities come, and that in a ſingular and eminent manner. Or, by that which is upon me: the ſores which are upon my Skin, or outward Fleſh, do pierce and pain me even to the Bones. For now he is come from deſcribing the Terrors of his Mind, to expreſs the Torments of his Body. c When others do, and I ſhould receive ſome reſt and refreſhment. d And the Fleſh of my Body which covereth the Sinews, and is mixed with them, and may ſeem to be ſynecdochically expreſſed by the Sinews, which are the ſtrength and ſupport of the Fleſh. So he ſignifies that neither his Bones nor his Fleſh reſteth. Or, and my Veins or Arteries, which reſt or move ſlowly when the Mind and Body are well compoſed; but in Job did move vehemently and reſtleſly, by reaſon of his great heat, and pain, and paſſion.

18 By the great force of my diſeaſe is my garment changed e: It bindeth me about f as the collar of my coat g.

e My Diſeaſe is ſo ſtrong and prevalent, that it breaks forth every where in my Body, in ſuch plenty of purulent and filthy Matter, that it infects and diſcolours my very Garments. Others, By the great Power of GOD my Garment is changed. In both theſe Tranſlations the Words, of my Diſeaſe, and of God, are not in the Hebrew Text, but are ſupplied by the Tranſlators. But the words are by ſome not untruly, nor unfitly rendred thus, without any ſupplement, With great force my Garment is changed; for ſo this Verb is uſed, 1 Kings 22. 30. So the Senſe is, I cannot ſhift or put off my Garment, without great ſtrength and difficulty; the reaſon whereof is rendred in the following Words. f It cleaveth faſt to me, being glewed by that filthy matter iſſuing from my Sores. g As my Collar girdeth in and cleaveth to my Neck. He alludes to the faſhion of the Eaſtern outward Garments, which were ſeamleſs, and all of a piece, and had a ſtrait mouth at the top which was brought over the head, and contracted and faſtned cloſe about the Neck.

19 He hath caſt me into the mire h, and I am become like duſt and aſhes i.

h He hath made me contemptible, and filthy, and loathſom for my Sores, my whole Body being a kind of Quagmire, in regard of the filth breaking forth in all its parts. i Like one dead and turned to duſt; more like a rotten Carkaſs than a living Man.

20 I cry unto thee, and thou doſt not hear me k: I ſtand up l, and thou regardeſt me not m.

k To wit, ſo as to anſwer or help me. l Or, I ſtand, to wit, before thee, i. e. I pray, as this Phraſe ſignifies, Jer. 15. 1. & 18. 20. this being a geſture of Prayer, Mat. 6. 5. And ſo the ſame thing is here repeated in other words after the manner: Or, I perſiſt, or perſevere in praying; I pray importunately and continually, as thou requireſt. m So the Particle not is ſupplied out of the former Clauſe. Or, without the Negation, thou knoweſt or obſerveſt me, and all my Griefs and Cries, and yet doſt not pity nor help me, but rather takeſt pleaſure in the contemplation of my Calamities, as the following words imply. Or it may be taken Interrogatively, Doſt thou regard me? i. e. thou doeſt not.

† Heb. the ſtrength of thy hand.

21 Thou art † become cruel n to me: with † thy ſtrong hand thou oppoſeſt thy ſelf againſt me o.

n Heb. Turned to be cruel, as if thou hadſt changed thy very Nature, which is kind, and merciful, and gracious; and ſuch thou haſt been formerly in thy carriage to me: but now thou art grown ſevere, and rigorous, and inexorable. o Thy power wherewith I hoped and expected that thou wouldſt have ſupported me under my troubles thou uſeſt againſt me.

‖ Or, Wiſdom.

22 Thou lifteſt me up to the wind p: thou cauſeſt me to ride upon it q, and diſſolveſt my ‖ ſubſtance r.

p Thou doſt not ſuffer me to reſt or lie ſtill for a moment, but diſquieteſt me, and expoſeſt me, to all ſorts of ſtorms and calamities; ſo that I am like Chaff or Stubble lifted up to the Wind, and violently toſſed hither and thither in the Air, without the leaſt ſtop or hindrance. q i. e. To be carried and hurried about by it. r By this reſtleſneſs, and the vehemency of theſe Winds, my Body is almoſt conſumed and waſted, and my heart is melted within me.

23 For I know that thou wilt bring me to death s, and to the houſe appointed for all living t.

s I ſee nothing will ſatisfie thee but my death, which thou art bringing upon me in a lingering and diſmal manner. t To the Grave, to which all living Men are coming and haſtening.

† Heb. heap.

24 Howbeit he will not ſtretch out his hand to the † grave, though they cry in his deſtruction u.

u There is great variety and difficulty in the Senſe and Connexion of theſe words: They may be joyned either 1. with the following Verſe, as deſcribing Job's compaſſion to others in affliction, which by the Principles of Reaſon and Religion ſhould have procured him ſome pity from God and Men in his affliction. And to that purpoſe the Words are, or may be tranſlated thus; But was not my Prayers for them (which words may be underſtood out of the following Clauſe) when he ſtretched out his hand? (to wit, againſt them to deſtroy them) in his deſtruction or oppreſſion (underſtand it actively, i. e. when God was about to deſtroy any other Man or Men) was not (the Negation being underſtood out of the former Branch of the Verſe, as is uſual) my cry for them? the Feminine Gender being put for the Maſculine, as it is elſewhere; or for theſe things, the Feminine being put for the Neuter; that is, for thoſe deſtructive Calamities which were upon them? Or, 2. with the fore-going Verſe. And ſo theſe Words contain either 1. a Conſolation againſt the Evil laſt mentioned: So the Senſe is, Though God will undoubtedly bring me to the Grave by theſe Torments, yet this comforts me, that ſurely he will not ſtretch out his hand (to wit, to afflict or puniſh me further, as this Phraſe is uſed, Exod. 3. 20. Iſa. 9. 12, 13.) in the Grave, though they, i. e. the periſhing Perſons cry or roar (i. e. be ſorely pained and tormented) in his deſtruction, i. e. whilſt God is deſtroying them. Or, this laſt Clauſe may be read interrogatively, Is there any cry in his deſtruction? When a Man is cut off or deſtroyed by Death, doth he then cry and complain? No, there is an end of all theſe Miſeries. Or, rather, 2. A Confirmation of what he laſt ſaid. For the whole Context ſhews that Job is not taking any comfort to himſelf, but rather aggravating his Sufferings. I know, ſaith he, that I am a dead Man, and my Condition is deſperate, for ſurely he, i. e. God, will not ſtretch out his hand (to wit, to ſave or reſcue me, as this Phraſe is uſed, Pſalm 18. 17. & 144. 7. compared with Acts 4. 30.) to or in the Grave, (i. e. to a dead Man, ſuch as I am in effect, having not onely one Foot, but in a manner both Feet in the Grave, as being upon the very brink of the Pit) though they cry (to wit, unto God, i. e. though there be a great and a general Cry and Lamentation for him among his Friends, or others, and an earneſt deſire of him, if poſſibly he might be reſtored to Life again) in his deſtruction, i. e. when he is deſtroyed or dead; yet all theſe Cries would be in vain.

25 * Did not I weep † for him that was in trouble x? was not my ſoul grieved for the poor y?

* Pſal. 35. 13, 14. Rom. 12. 15.

x Whence is it that neither God nor Man ſhew any compaſſion to me, but both conſpire to afflict me, and encreaſe my Torments? Doth God now mete out to me the ſame meaſure which I meted out to others? Have I now Judgment without Mercy, becauſe I afforded no Mercy nor Pity to others in Miſery? No, my Conſcience acquits me from this Inhumanity: I did not ſleightly reſent, but bitterly mourn and weep over others in their Miſeries; and therefore I had reaſon to expect more Compaſſion than I find. y Even for him who was not capable of requiting my kindneſs in caſe of his Recovery: which ſhews that my Sympathy was real, and not feigned, as it is in ſome who pretend great ſorrow for the Rich in their troubles, hoping thereby to inſinuate themſelves into their favour and friendſhip, and thereby to procure ſome advantage to themſelves.

26 When I looked for good, then evil came unto me z: and when I waited for light, there came darkneſs.

z Inſtead of the return of the like pity to me, which I might juſtly challenge and expect whenſoever I ſhould ſtand in need of it, I meet with a ſad diſappointment, and my Pity is recompenſed with others cruelty to me.

27 My bowels boiled and reſted not a: the days of affliction prevented me b.

a i. e. My inward parts boiled without ceaſing. The Bowels are the ſeat of Paſſion and of Compaſſion; and therefore this may be underſtood, either 1. of his Compaſſionate and deep ſenſe of others Miſeries; which is oft expreſſed by Bowels, as Iſa. 16. 11. Col. 3. 12. and elſewhere, of which he ſpake, v. 25. to which he ſubjoyns the contrary uſage which he met with, v. 26. And then, in this firſt part of v. 27. he renews the mention of his compaſſion to others, and in the latter part he adds by way of Antitheſis or Oppoſition, that his Mercy was requited with cruel Afflictions. Or, 2. of the grievouſneſs of his Troubles, which is ſometimes expreſſed by the troubling or boyling of the Bowels, or inward Parts; as Lam. 1. 20. b i. e. Came upon me ſuddenly, and unexpectedly, when I promiſed to my ſelf Peace and Proſperity, as the uſual recompence which God promiſeth and giveth to ſuch as fear and pleaſe him, as I have done.

28 * I went c mourning without the Sun d: I ſtood up e, and I cried f in the congregation g.

* Pſal. 38. 6. & 42. 9. & 43. 2.

c Or, I walked hither and thither as I could. Or, I converſe or appear among others. d Spending my Days in Mourning without any Sun-light or Comfort; or ſo oppreſſed with ſadneſs, that I did not care nor deſire to ſee the Light of the Sun. Heb. black not by the Sun. My very Countenance is changed and become black, but not by the Sun, which makes many other perſons black; Cant. 1. 5, 6. but by the force of my Diſeaſe and deep Melancholy which oft-times makes a Man's Viſage black and diſmal. See Pſalm 119. 83. Lam. 5. 10. And this he repeats in plainer terms, v. 30. as an eminent token of his exceſſive grief and miſery. e Either becauſe my Diſeaſe and Pain made me weary of other Poſtures: Or, that others might take notice of me and be moved with pity towards me. f With a loud and direful clamour through great and ſudden anguiſh. g Where Prudence and Modeſty taught me to forbear it, if extream Neceſſity and Miſery had not forced me to it.

29 * I am a brother h to dragons i, and a companion to ‖ owls k.

* Pſ. 102. 6.

‖ Or, Oſtriches. Mic. 1. 8.

h To wit, by imitation of their cries: Perſons of like qualities are oft called brethren, as Gen. 49. 3. Prov. 18. 9. i Which howl and wail mournfully in the Deſerts, Mich. 1. 8. either through hunger or thirſt, or when he fights with, and is beaten by the Elephant. k Whoſe ſad and mournful noiſes are known. Or, Oſtriches, which alſo is noted to make lamentable out-cries.

30 * My ſkin is black upon me l, and my bones are burnt with heat m.

* Pſ. 119. 83. Lam. 4. 8. & 5. 10.

l Either by his dark-coloured Scabs, wherewith his Body was in a manner wholly overſpread; or by Grief, as before. m The effect of his Feaver and Sorrow, which dried up all his moiſture, and cauſed great Inflammations and burning Heats within him.

31 My harp alſo is turned to mourning n, and my organ into the voice of them that weep.

n Either 1. I have now nothing but bitter lamentations inſtead of my former expreſſions of joy. Or, 2. Thoſe very things which formerly were occaſions and inſtruments of my delight, do now renew and aggravate my ſorrows.

CHAP. XXXI.

He proteſteth his Continency and Chaſtity, God's Providence, Preſence and Judgments, his Motives, 1——4. His juſt Dealings, 5——8. Free from Adultery, which ought to be puniſhed by the Magiſtrate, 9——12. His juſt Carriage to his Servants, and the reaſon, 13——15. His Bounty to the Poor, for fear of God, and his Highneſs, 16——23. Not Covetous, nor Idolatrous, which ought to be puniſhed by the Magiſtrate, 24——28. Not Revengeful, 29, 30. Hoſpitable to Strangers, 31, 32. His Repentance, 33. He wiſheth God would anſwer, and his Words might be Recorded, 35.—37. His Imprecation againſt himſelf, if he ſpake not the Truth, 38---40.

I Made a covenant with mine eyes a: why then ſhould I think upon b a maid c?

a So far have I been from wallowing in the Mire of Uncleanneſs, or any groſs wickedneſs, wherewith you charge me, that I have abſtained even from the leaſt occaſions and appearances of evil, having made a ſolemn reſolution within my ſelf, and a ſolemn Covenant and Promiſe to God, That I would not wantonly or luſtfully fix mine Eyes, or gaze upon a Maid, leſt mine Eyes ſhould affect my Heart, and ſtir me up to further filthineſs. Hereby we plainly ſee, That that Command of Chriſt, Matth. 5. 29. was no new Command peculiar to the Goſpel, as ſome would have it, but the very ſame which the Law of God revealed in his Word, and written in Mens Hearts by Nature, impoſed upon Men in the times of the Old Teſtament. See alſo 2 Pet. 2. 14. 1 John 2. 16. b i. e. Indulge my ſelf in filty and luſtful thoughts. Seeing I was obliged, and accordingly took care to guard mine Eyes: I was upon the ſame reaſon obliged to reſtrain my Imagination. Or, why then ſhould I conſider, or contemplate, or look curiouſly, or thoughtfully, or diligently. Since I had made ſuch a Covenant, why ſhould I not keep it? c Which is emphatically added, to ſhew that that Circumſtance which provokes the Luſt of others, had no ſuch power over him, and that he reſtrained himſelf from the very thoughts and deſires of filthineſs with ſuch Perſons wherewith the generality of Men allowed themſelves to commit groſs Fornication, as deeming it to be either none, or but a very little ſin. Withal he inſinuates, with how much more caution he kept himſelf from Uncleanneſs with any married perſon.

2 For d what portion of God is there e, from above f? and what inheritance of the Almighty from on high g?

d The reaſon of my Continency and Chaſtity, was, the conſideration of God's Preſence, and Providence, and Judgments. e What fruit or recompence might be expected from God for thoſe who do ſuch things? Nothing but deſtruction, as it follows, v. 3. I conſidered, that though theſe Practices might at firſt pleaſe me, yet they would be bitterneſs in the latter end. f An emphatical Phraſe to note, That how ſecretly and ſliely ſoever unchaſt Perſons carry the matter, ſo as Men cannot reprove or reproach them, yet there is one who ſtands upon an higher place, whence he hath the better proſpect, who ſeeth both when, and in what manner, and with what deſign they do theſe things.

†Heb. alienation: So Gr.

3 Is not deſtruction to the wicked f? and a † ſtrange puniſhment g to the workers of iniquity?

f Deſtruction is their Portion. g Some extraordinary and dreadful Judgment, which of right and courſe belongs to them, and only to ſuch as they are, although it hath pleaſed God out of his Soveraign Power to inflict it upon me, who have lived in all good Conſcience before Him. Heb. an alienation or eſtrangement, to wit, from God and from his favour: Had I been ſuch an one, I neither could nor ſhould have expected any kindneſs or mercy from God, as now I do.

*2 Chr. 16. 9. Ch. 34. 21. Prov. 5. 21. & 15. 3. Jer. 32. 19.

4 * Doth not he ſee my ways h, and count all my ſteps?

h i. e. All my counſels and courſes: This is another reaſon why he was ſo circumſpect and exact in reſtraining his Thoughts and Senſes, and whole Man from ſinful Practiſes, becauſe he knew that God would diſcern them, and therefore puniſh them; as he ſaid Verſe 3.

5 If I have walked k with vanity l, or if my foot hath haſted to deceit m; k i. e. Converſed in the World, dealt with Men, l i. e. with lying, or falſhood, or hypocriſie, as this word is oft uſed, as Pſalm 4. 2. & 12. 3. & 36. 3. Prov. 30. 8. and as the next words explain it. m If when I have had any temptation or opportunity of enriching my ſelf, by defrauding or wronging others, I have readily and greedily complied with it, as Hypocrites (ſuch as you account me) uſe to do, and have not rejected and abhorred it: for more is here underſtood then is expreſſed. The ſenſe is imperfect, and ſuppoſeth an Imprecation, which is either underſtood, after the manner of the Hebrews, or expreſſed in the next Verſe.

6 † Let me be weighed in an even balance n, that God may know mine integrity o.

n This is either 1. an Imprecation; or, rather 2. a Submiſſion to tryal, as the following words ſhew. The Senſe is, I am ſo far from being conſcious to my ſelf of any Hypocriſie, or ſecret wickedneſs whereby I have brought theſe unuſual Judgments upon my ſelf, as you traduce me, that I deſire nothing more than to have my heart and life weighed in juſt Balances, and ſearched out by the All-ſeeing God. o Heb. and let him know (i. e. let him acknowledge and ſhew that he knoweth and approveth: or let him make known to my Friends and others, who cenſure or condemn me. Or, and he will know; (i. e. upon ſearch he will find out: which is ſpoken of God after the manner of Men:) mine integrity. So this is an appeal to God to be witneſs of his ſincerity, and to vindicate him from the imputation of Hypocriſie.

7 If my ſtep hath turned out of the way p, and mine heart walked after mine eyes q, and if any blot r hath cleaved to mine hands:

p If I have wittingly and willingly, and cuſtomarily (as you accuſe me) ſwerved from the way of truth and juſtice which God hath preſcribed to me: For otherwiſe no Man here is ſo juſt, but he ſometimes takes a wrong ſtep. Eccleſ. 7. 20. q If I have let my heart looſe to covet and ſeek after forbidden things, which mine Eyes have ſeen; which may deſign either 1. the Luſt of Uncleanneſs; but of that he had ſpoken v. 1. and reneweth the diſcourſe, v. 9. Or rather, 2. the Luſt of Covetouſneſs, which is called the luſt of the eyes, 1 John 2. 16. partly becauſe it is oft cauſed by Sight, as Joſ. 7. 21. and partly becauſe oft-times all the ſatisfaction it gives, is to pleaſe the ſight, Eccleſ. 5. 11. And this ſin is moſt legible in the following puniſhment, v. 8. where his loſs anſwers to this evil gain. The Phraſe notes the common method and progreſs of ſin, which is to enter by the Eye to the Heart, Gen. 3. 6. Num. 15. 39. Eccleſ. 2. 10. & 11. 9. r Or, blemiſh, to wit, any unjuſt gain. If I have in my hands or poſſeſſion, any Goods gotten from others by fraud or violence, which would be a great ſcandal and a blot to my reputation.

8 Then let me ſow, and let another eat s; yea, let my off-ſpring t be rooted out.

s Let Strangers enjoy the Fruit of my Labours, according to God's Curſe, Levit. 26. 16. Deut. 28. 30. t As this word is uſed, Job 5. 25. & 27. 14. Or, rather, my encreaſe, or growths, or ſprouts; i. e. all my Plants, and Fruits, and Improvements. For 1. ſo the Word properly ſignifies. 2. So this latter Branch of the Verſe explains the former, as is moſt frequent in this and ſome other Books of Scripture. 3. He had not now any Children to be rooted out.

9 If mine heart have been deceived by a woman u, or if I have laid weight at my neighbours door x.

u To wit, by a ſtrange Woman, or rather by my Neighbours Wife, as the next words limit it; for of a Maid he ſpoke before, v. 1. and this cannot be meant of his own Wife. He ſaith, by a Woman, i. e. either by gazing upon her Beauty, ſo as to be enamoured with it, and to luſt after her; or by her perſuaſions or allurements. Or, concerning a Woman, i. e. concerning impure converſation with a forbidden Woman. The Phraſe is very emphatical, taking from himſelf, and others, the vain excuſes wherewith men uſe to palliate their ſins, by pretending that they did not deſign the wickedneſs, but were merely drawn in, and ſeduced by the ſtrong inticements and provocations of others. All which Job ſuppoſeth, and yet nevertheleſs owns the great guilt of ſuch practiſes even in that caſe, as well knowing that temptation to ſin is no juſtification of it. x Watching for a fit opportunity to defile his Wife. Compare Prov. 7, 8, 9.

10 Then let my wife grind unto another y, and let others bow down upon her z.

y Either 1. Let her be taken captive, and made a ſlave to grind in other Mens Mills; which was a ſore and vile ſervitude, Exod. 11. 5. Judg. 16. 21. Iſa. 47. 2. Mat. 24. 41. Or, rather 2. Let her be defiled by another Man, as the next words expound it, and as the Hebrews underſtand it, and as this very Phraſe is uſed by very ancient both Greek and Latine Authors: [Of which ſee my Latine Synopſis on this place.] And this is to be cautiouſly underſtood, not as if Job deſired, or would permit a requital in the ſame kind, but onely, that if in that caſe God ſhould give up his Wife to ſuch a wickedneſs, he ſhould acknowledge his Juſtice in it, and (though with abhorrency of the ſin) accept of that puniſhment of it. z Another modeſt expreſſion of a filthy action; whereby the Holy Ghoſt gives us a Pattern and a Precept, to avoid not only unclean Actions, but alſo all immodeſt Expreſſions.

11 For this a is an heinous crime; yea, it is an iniquity to be puniſhed by the Judges b.

a To wit, Adultery, whether committed by choice and deſign, or by the ſollicitation of the Woman, v. 9. b Heb. an iniquity of the Judges; i. e. which belongs to them to take cognizance of, and to puniſh, and that with death; and that not only by the Law of Moſes, Deut. 22. 22. but even by the Law of Nature, as appears from the known Laws and Cuſtoms of Heathen Nations in that caſe. See alſo Gen. 38. 24. This is oppoſed to thoſe ſecret and leſſer ſins, which are only known to, and puniſhed by God.

12 For it is a fire that conſumeth to deſtruction c, and would root out all mine encreaſe d.

c For this ſin would be as a ſecret but conſuming fire, waſting my Eſtate and Reputation, and Body and Soul too, provoking God, and enraging the Husband, and bringing down ſome extraordinary Vengeance upon me: And therefore the fear of God kept me from this and ſuch like wickedneſs. d i. e. All my Eſtate: Compare Prov. 6. 27.

13 If I did deſpiſe the cauſe of my man-ſervant e, or of my maid-ſervant, when they contended with me f; e If I uſed my power over him to overthrow him or his juſt rights. And ſeeing it is known that I was ſo juſt and kind to them, over whom I had ſuch unlimited power, it is not probable that I ſhould be guilty of ſuch cruelty to others, as you impute to me. f Either for impoſing heavier burdens than they could bear; or for not providing for them thoſe ſupports which their Nature and neceſſity required, or for any other plauſible cauſe. I heard them patiently and indifferently, and did them right even againſt my ſelf, if by any miſ-information or paſſion I had done them any Injury.

14 What then ſhall I do when * God riſeth up g ? and when he viſiteth h, what ſhall I anſwer him i ?

g To wit, to plead the Cauſe of the Oppreſſed againſt the Oppreſſor, and to execute Judgment, as this Phraſe is uſed, Pſalm 68. 1. Zach. 2. 13. and elſewhere. I uſed my Servant like one who was alſo my ſelf a Servant, and had a Maſter in Heaven, Col. 4. 1. to whom I was to give an account of my carriage to my Servant and to all men. h i. e. When he ſhall call me to his Tribunal, and ſeverely examine all my actions, and particularly the Cauſe between me and my Servant. i What Apology ſhall I make for my ſelf?

Chap. 34. 19. Prov. 14. 31. & 22. 2. Mal. 2. 10. || did he faſhion us in one womb.

15 * Did not he that made me in the womb, make him k? and || did not one faſhion us in the womb l ?

k I conſidered that he was, though my Servant, yet, my Fellow-creature made by the ſame God, and therefore one of God's Subjects, whom I could not abuſe without the injury of his Supream Lord. l Heb. Did he not form us in one womb ? Not in one individual Womb, but in a Womb of the ſame kind, in an human Womb, with a Body and Soul of the ſame nature and quality, a reaſonable and immortal Creature, and made after God's Image, no leſs than my ſelf, to whom therefore I owed ſome reſpect for God's ſake.

16 If I have withheld the poor from their deſire m, or have cauſed the eyes of the widow to fail n :

m i. e. Denied them what they deſired of me, either in Juſtice or from Neceſſity : For he was not obliged to grant their vain, or inordinate deſires. n To wit, with tedious expectation of my Juſtice or Charity. I durſt neither deny or delay my help when they required and needed it.

17 Or have eaten my morſel my ſelf alone o, and the fatherleſs p hath not eaten thereof:

o Without communicating part of my Proviſions or Eſtate to the Poor, as it follows. p This one kind of neceſſitous perſons is put for all the reſt.

18 For from my youth q he was brought up with me r, as with a Father s, and I have guided || her t from my mothers womb u.

|| That is, the widow.

q As ſoon as I was capable of managing my own Affairs, and of doing good to others. r In my Family, or at leaſt under my care and protection. s i. e. With all the diligence and tenderneſs of a Father. t i. e. The widow, mentioned v. 16. and commonly joyned with the Fatherleſs. u i. e. From my tender years; ever ſince I was capable of diſcerning good and evil, I have made conſcience of this Duty; and this my continuance in well-doing is a good Evidence of my ſincerity therein.

19 If I have ſeen any periſh for want of clothing x, or any poor without covering :

x When it was in my power to cloath and arm them againſt cold and nakedneſs.

20 If his loyns have not bleſſed me y, and if he were not warmed with the fleece of my ſheep z :

y i. e. Given him occaſion to bleſs and praiſe me, and to pray to God to bleſs me for covering them; the loyns being put ſynecdochically for the whole Body : See the like expreſſion, Deut. 24. 13. and compare Gen. 4. 10. Luke 16. 9. z With clothing made of my Wooll.

21 If I have lift up mine hand againſt the fatherleſs a, when I ſaw my help in the gate b :

a To ſmite him with the Fiſt of Wickedneſs, as the Phraſe is, Iſa. 58. 4. to bring him to the Judgment Seat, that under colour of Juſtice I might take away his Right, as powerful Oppreſſors uſe to do, or any ways to threaten, injure, or cruſh him. b When I underſtood my advantage againſt him, and that I could influence the Judges to do what I pleaſed.

22 Then let mine arm fall from my ſhoulder-blade c, and mine arm be broken from || the bone.

|| Or, the chanel bone.

c I am contented that that Arm which hath been ſo wickedly employed, may either rot off or fall out of joynt, and ſo be uſeleſs and burdenſom to me.

l. 13. 6. Joel 1. 15.

23 For * deſtruction from God was a terrour to me d, and by reaſon of his highneſs e I could not endure f.

d I was ſo far from denying or queſtioning God's Providence, wherewith you ſeem to charge me, that I always reverenced it, and when by reaſon of my great Wealth and Power, and Intereſt, I had little reaſon to fear Man, I ſtood in awe of God and of his Judgments, and made it my care and buſineſs to pleaſe God. e Or, Excellency or Majeſty, which is moſt glorious and terrible. f I found my ſelf utterly unable either to oppoſe his Power, or to bear his Wrath, and therefore I durſt not provoke him by any Impiety or Injuſtice.

*Mark 10. 24. 1 Tim. 6. 17.

24 * If I have made gold my hope g, or have ſaid to the fine gold, Thou art my confidence ;

g i. e. The matter of my hope and truſt, placing my chief joy and ſatisfaction in worldly Wealth, expecting ſafety and happineſs from it : Compare Pſalm 62. 10.

*Pſal. 62. 10. † Heb. found much.

25 * If I rejoyced h becauſe my wealth was great, and becauſe mine hand had † gotten much i :

h To wit, carnally and exceſſively, eſteeming my ſelf happy therein without God's Love and Favour; for otherwiſe it is not only lawful, but a duty and gift of God moderately and thankfully to rejoyce in the good things of this life : Of which ſee Deut. 12. 7. Eccleſ. 2. 24, 25. 26. & 3. 12, 13. & 5. 18, 19. i Aſcribing my Wealth to my own Wit or Induſtry, rather than to God's Goodneſs and Mercy. And theſe ſins he the rather mentions, partly for his own vindication, leſt it ſhould be thought that God took away his Eſtate becauſe he had abuſed it to Pride, or Carnal Confidence or Luxury. or the Oppreſſion of others, &c. and partly for the Inſtruction of Mankind in ſucceeding Generations, that they might take notice of the malignity and odiouſneſs of theſe practiſes, which by moſt men are reputed either laudable or harmleſs, or at worſt but light and trivial Miſcarriages.

26 * If I beheld k † the ſun l when it ſhined m, or the moon walking † in brightneſs n :

k Not ſimply, nor only with admiration (for it is a glorious work of God which we ought to contemplate and admire) but for the end here following, or ſo as to aſcribe to it the honour peculiar to God. l Heb. the light, to wit, the Sun, as appears by the oppoſition of the Moon following, which is called the light here, and Gen. 1. 16. Pſalm 136. 7, 8. by way of eminency, becauſe it is the great light, and the fountain of light to this viſible World. And this is underſtood either 1. of Job's Worldly Glory, or Proſperity, which is oft compared to light in Scripture, as the contrary is to darkneſs : And ſo the ſenſe of thoſe and the following words is, If I reflected upon my Wealth and Glory, with pride and admiration, and ſatisfaction. But this he had now mentioned in plain and proper terms, v. 25. and therefore it is not likely that he ſhould now repeat the ſame thing in dark and metaphorical expreſſions. And although this be a great ſin before God, yet this is not one of thoſe ſins which fall under the cognizance of human Judges, as it here follows, v. 28. Or rather 2. of the Sun in the Firmament : and ſo this place ſpeaks of the Idolatrous Worſhip of the Hoſt of Heaven, and eſpecially of the Sun and Moon, the moſt eminent and glorious of that number, which was the moſt ancient kind of Idolatry, and was moſt frequent in the Eaſtern Countries, in one of which Job lived. m i. e. In its full ſtrength and glory; for then it did moſt affect mens eyes and hearts with admiration at its beauty and benefits, and ſo move them to adore it. Or, when it began to ſhine; (the compleat Verb being uſed of the beginning of it, as he reigned, is oft put for he began to reign) i. e. at its firſt riſing, which was a ſpecial, and the chief time for its adoration. n When it ſhines moſt clearly; or when it is at the full, for then eſpecially did the Idolaters worſhip it.

27 And my heart hath been ſecretly o enticed p, or q † my mouth hath kiſſed my hand r :

†Heb. my hand hath kiſſed my mouth.

o In my inward thoughts or affections, whilſt I made open profeſſion of my adherence to God and to the true Religion. p Or, ſeduced or deceived, by its plauſible and glorious appearance, which might eaſily cheat a credulous and inconſiderate perſon to believe that there was ſomething of a Divinity in them, and ſo induce him to worſhip it. This emphatical Expreſſion ſeems to be uſed with deſign to teach the World this neceſſary and uſeful Truth, that no miſtake or errour of mind would excuſe the practice of Idolatry. q Heb. and, which ſeems more proper here, becauſe the ſecret errour of the Mind, without ſome ſuch viſible Action and Evidence as here follows, had not been puniſhable by the Judges. r In token of Worſhip, whereof this was a ſign, whether given to Men, as Gen. 41. 40. Pſalm 2. 12. or to Idols, 1 Kings 19. 18. Hoſ. 13. 2. And when the Idols were out of the reach of Idolaters, that they could not kiſs them, they uſed to kiſs their hands, and, as it were, to throw kiſſes at them; of which we have many Examples in Heathen Writers : Of which ſee my Latin Synopſis on this place.

28 This alſo s were an iniquity to be puniſhed by the judge t : for I ſhould have denied the God u that is above x.

s No leſs than the other forementioned ſins, Adultery, Oppreſſion, &c. t i. e. By the Civil Magiſtrate; who being advanced and protected by God, is obliged to maintain and vindicate his Honour, and conſequently to puniſh Idolatry. And this did not ceaſe to be his duty, although the Magiſtrates of the World in Job's time were ſo far from this, that they themſelves alſo were Idolaters. Yet conſidering that both Job and his Friends, who lived in his time and neighbourhood, were moſt probably the Poſterity or Kindred of Abraham and his Family, and by him or his inſtructed in the knowledge of the true God, and were alſo Men of great Power and Authority in their places; it ſeems moſt likely that they did reſtrain and puniſh Idolatry in their ſeveral Juriſdictions, or at leaſt in their own large and numerous Families, where the Maſters anciently had power of Life and Death without controul. u Not directly (for nothing is more evident than this, that divers of the wiſer Heathens, who did worſhip the Sun and Moon, did yet acknowledge and adore the Soveraign and Supream God over and above all) but by conſequence and conſtruction, becauſe this was to rob God of his Prerogative, by giving to the Creature that religious Honour or Worſhip which is peculiar to God. x Who is above the Sun and Moon, not only in place, his glorious Manſion and Palace being far above all viſible Heavens, but alſo in power and dignity, or adorable excellency.

29 * If I rejoyced at the deſtruction of him that hated me y, or lift up my ſelf z when evil found him :

*Prov. 17. 5.

y I was ſo far from malice and revenging my ſelf of mine Enemy, which is the common and allowed practiſe of ungodly men, that I did not ſo much as deſire or delight in his ruin, when it was brought upon him by other hands. Compare Exod. 23. 4. Prov. 24. 17, 18. Whence we may judge whether the great Duty of loving and forgiving our Enemies, be a peculiar Precept of Chriſtianity, or whether it be a natural and moral Duty, and a part and act of that Charity which now is, and ever was the Duty of one Man another in all Ages. z Heb. ſtirred up my ſelf to rejoice and inſult over his miſery.

30 * Neither have I ſuffered † my mouth a to ſin, by wiſhing a curſe to his ſoul :

*Mat. 5. 44. Rom. 12. 14. † Heb. my Palate.

a Heb. my palate, which being one of the Inſtruments of Speech is put for another, or for all the reſt. The ſenſe is, If any ſecret paſſion or deſire of his hurt did ariſe in me, I forthwith ſuppreſſed it, and did not ſuffer it to grow and break forth into an Imprecation of hurt to him.

31 If the men of my tabernacle b ſaid not, Oh that we had of his fleſh c ! we cannot be ſatisfied d.

b i. e. My Domeſticks and familiar Friends, who were much converſant with me in my Houſe, and were Witneſſes of my carriage to others, and of their carriages to me, and therefore beſt able to judge in the caſe. c Either 1. of Job's fleſh, which is thought to be an expreſſion, either 1. Of their fervent Love to him, cauſed by his great tenderneſs and kindneſs to them. But his meek and gentle carriage to his Servants he had expreſſed before in plain terms, v. 13. and therefore it is not likely he would repeat it at leaſt in ſuch an obſcure and ambiguous phraſe, as is no where uſed in this ſenſe, and is uſed in a contrary ſenſe, Chap. 19. 22. Or, 2. of their hatred and rage againſt him for the exceſſive trouble he put upon them in the entertainment of ſtrangers, which follows v. 32. But it is very improbable, either that ſo juſt and merciful a Man as Job, would put intolerable burdens upon his Servants; or that ſome extraordinary trouble brought upon them by hoſpitality, would inflame them to ſuch an height of rage as this phraſe implies, againſt ſo excellent and amiable a Maſter. Or 2. of the fleſh and other proviſions made by Job for ſtrangers; He feeds them liberally, but ſcarce alloweth us time to ſatisfie our ſelves therewith; which alſo is very unlikely. Or rather 3. of the fleſh of Job's enemy, of whom he laſt ſpoke, v. 29, 30. And ſo this is an amplification and further confirmation of Job's charitable diſpoſition and carriage to his Enemy, although his Cauſe was ſo juſt, and the Malice of his Enemies was ſo notorious and unreaſonable, that all who were daily converſant with him, and were Witneſſes of his and their mutual carriages, did condemn and abhor them for it, and were ſo concerned and zealous in Job's quarrel, that they proteſted they could eat their very fleſh, and could not be ſatisfied without it. And yet notwithſtanding all theſe Provocations of others, he reſtrained both them and himſelf from executing vengeance upon them, as David afterwards did in a like caſe, 1 Sam. 24. 4. & 2 Sam. 16.9,10. d To wit, without eating his fleſh.

* Rom.12. 13. Hebr.13.2. 1 Pet.4.9.

‖ Or, to the way.

32 * The ſtranger e did not lodge in the ſtreet f: but I opened my doors ‖ to the traveller:

e Or traveller, as it follows. f But in my houſe, according to the Laws of Hoſpitality, and the uſage of thoſe times, when there were no publick Inns provided for the conveniency of ſuch perſons: See Gen. 18.3. & 19.2. Judg. 19.15,21.

‖ Or, after the manner of man.

33 If I covered my tranſgreſſions g, ‖ as Adam h; by hiding mine iniquity in my boſom i:

g This he adds to prevent or anſwer an Objection. So the ſenſe is, either 1. And whereas amongſt theſe and other Vertues it may well be preſumed, that I had divers failings, as I do not now deny them, ſo I never covered them, but was forward to confeſs them to God or to Men, as I had occaſion. Or (which I propoſe with ſubmiſſion to better Judgments.) 2. If I uſed all this care and caution in my carriage towards Strangers and Enemies, and others, only as a Cloak to any ſecret and ſubtile way of wickedneſs, ſuch as you accuſe me of, and did not ſeek to purge out all ſin as in God's ſight, but only to hide my ſins from men, and to have the better opportunity for oppreſſing others, or indulging my ſelf in any other cloſe ſin, under a colour, and with a reputation of Juſtice and Holineſs. h Either 1. as Adam did in Paradiſe: Which Hiſtory is recorded by Moſes, Gen. 3. 7, &c. and was doubtleſs imparted by the godly Patriarchs to their Children before Moſes his time. Or 2. like a man, or after the manner of men in their corrupt eſtate. Compare Hoſ. 6. 7. i In my own breaſt, and from the ſight of all men.

34 Did I fear a great multitude, or did the contempt of families terrifie me: that I kept ſilence, and went not out of the door k?

k This Verſe either 1. contains new Matter and another Argument, or evidence of his Integrity taken from his Courage and faithfulneſs in the diſcharge of his duty as a Magiſtrate. The Interrogation implies a denial, and ſo the ſenſe is, either 1. This, I did not for fear of a great Multitude, or for any Contempt, or Reproach, or other inconvenience which might befall me from great and numerous Families, or combinations of People, who were ingaged for him, who had an unrightous Cauſe, forbear to ſpeak for the poor oppreſſed and injured Perſon whom they all oppoſed, or deny to go out of the Door of my Houſe to plead his Cauſe, as a timerous and man-pleaſing Judge would have done. Or, 2. This, Though I could have terrified, or, violently oppreſſed a great Multitude, becauſe of my great power and intereſt, yet did the moſt contemptible Perſons, or Families terrifie me; i. e. I was afraid to do them any injury, not for fear of them, as appears from the former Clauſe, but for fear of God; therefore I kept ſilence, and went not out of the Door, i.e. I durſt neither move Tongue, nor Hand, nor Foot againſt them. Or, 3. It contains an Amplification or Confirmation of what he ſaid, v. 33. Either thus, did I cover, or conceal my Tranſgreſſions becauſe I was afraid of the rage of the Multitude, or of the contempt of Families, which would be brought upon me by the confeſſion of my wickedneſs? Did I therefore keep ſilence, i. e. Forbare to confeſs my ſin, and not go out of my Door? But keep at home as one in that caſe aſhamed or afraid to be ſeen abroad? No, the fear of ſhame or contempt from men, did not hinder me from giving glory to God by confeſſing my faults. Or rather thus, did I therefore cover all my oppreſſions, and frauds, and other wickedneſſes (wherewith you tax me) with the Mask of Vertue and Piety, and uſe all poſſible caution and cunning in my evil Courſes, becauſe I feared the great Multitude, (who were my Friends and Admirers, but in caſe of the diſcovery of my wickedneſs, would have hated and perſecuted me;) Or becauſe the contempt of ſo many Families (whoſe favour and good opinion I needed or deſired) terrified me? Then (as the Particle Vau is oft uſed, i. e. If that were really my caſe:) I ſhould be ſilent (I ſhould ſilently and patiently bear all the ſtroaks of God and all the reproaches of my Friends) and not go out of the door of my houſe, as one aſhamed to ſhew his Face before Men. But my condition being through God's mercy far otherwiſe, and my Conſcience bearing me witneſs of my Integrity in theſe and many other things, I dare now lift up my Head and open my Mouth to plead my Cauſe, and I deſire nothing more than a fair hearing: O that one would hear me! As it follows in the next Verſe.

35 O that one would hear me l! ‖ behold, my deſire is that the Almighty would anſwer me m, and that mine adverſary n had written a book o.

‖ Or, behold my deſign is that the Almighty will anſwer me.

l O that I might have my Cauſe heard by any juſt and impartial Judge! m i. e. Anſwer my deſire herein, either by hearing me himſelf: or by appointing ſome indifferent Perſon to judge whether I be ſuch an Hypocrite as my Friends make me, or an upright Perſon, and whether I have not cauſe to complain. n Whoſoever he be that ſhall contend with me, or accuſe me, God himſelf not excepted, nay, poſſibly being chiefly intended, though for reverence to him he forbare to expreſs it. So this is another of Job's irreverent and preſumptuous Expreſſions, for which he is ſo ſharply reproved afterwards. o i. e. Had given me his Charge written in a Book or Paper, as the manner was in Judicial Proceedings, that I might put in my Anſwer into the Court, which I am ready to do.

36 Surely I would take it p upon my ſhoulder q, and bind it as a crown to me.

p i. e. That Book containing my Charge or Accuſation. q As a Trophy or Badge of Honour. I ſhould not fear nor ſmother it, but glory in it, and make open ſhew of it as that which gave me the happy and long deſired occaſion of vindicating my ſelf, which I doubt not fully to do.

37 I would declare unto him r the number of my ſteps s; as a prince t would I go near unto him u.

r i. e. To my Judge, or Adverſary. s i. e. The whole courſe of my Life and Actions, which I would exactly number to him, ſtep by ſtep, ſo far as I can remember. I would not anſwer his Allegations againſt me, but furniſh him with further matter of the ſame kind, and then anſwer all together. t i. e. With undaunted courage and confidence and aſſurance of ſucceſs, as being clearly conſcious of my own ſincerity, not like a ſelf-condemned Malefactor, as my Friends ſuppoſe me to be. u And not run away, or hide my ſelf from my Judge, as guilty perſons deſire to do.

38 If my land cry againſt me x, or that the furrows likewiſe thereof † complain;

x To wit, to God for revenge, as the like Phraſe is uſed, Gen. 4. 10. Hab. 2. 11. Becauſe I have gotten it from the right Owners by Fraud or Violence, as my Friends charge me, and as is implied in the next Verſe.

39 If I have eaten † the fruits thereof without money y, or have † cauſed the owners thereof to loſe their life z.

† Heb. the ſtrength thereof.

† Heb. cauſed the ſoul of the owners thereof to expire, or breath out.

y Either without paying the price required by the right owner for the Land, or by defrauding my Workmen of the wages of their Labours. z Killing them that ſo I might have undiſturbed Poſſeſſion of it, as Ahab did Naboth.

40 Let thiſtles grow inſtead of wheat, and ‖ cockle inſtead of barley. The words of Job ‖ are ended.

‖ Or, noiſome weeds.

‖ To wit, in anſwer to his Friends: for he ſpeaks but little afterwards, and that is to God.

CHAP. XXXII.

Elihu, Job's fourth friend, ſpeaketh; he is angry with Job for juſtifying himſelf, and with his three friends for not ſatisfying, and yet condemning him, 1——5. He excuſeth his youth; but wiſdom is from God, and not from age, 6——9. therefore he ſpeaketh, being full of matter, and his ſpirit conſtraining him, without accepting any man's perſon, 10——22.

SO theſe three men ceaſed † to anſwer Job, becauſe he was righteous in his own eyes a.

† [illegible]

a i. e. Was ſelf-conceited and obſtinately reſolved to juſtifie himſelf both againſt God and Men: therefore they give him [illegible] incorrigible.

2 Then was kindled the wrath of Elihu the [illegible] Barachel the Buzite b of the kindred of Ram [illegible] Job was his wrath kindled, becauſe he juſtified [illegible] ſelf rather then God d.

b Of the Poſterity of Buz, Nahor's Son, Gen. 22. 21. [illegible] Aram; for Ram and Aram are uſed promiſcuouſly [illegible] 2 Kings 8. 28. with 2 Chron. 22. 5. and Ruth 4.19. with [illegible] Others, of Abraham, who as he was called Abram poſſibly [illegible] called only Ram. His Pedegree is thus particularly d[illegible] for his honour, becauſe his ſpeech declares him to be [illegible] and a good Man, and principally to evidence the truth of this Hiſtory, which otherwiſe might ſeem to be but a Poetical Fiction. d He juſtified himſelf, not without reflection upon God, as dealing too ſeverely with him, and denying him that hearing which he ſo paſſionately deſired. He took more care to [illegible] his own innocency than God's glory.

3 Alſo againſt his three friends was his wrath kindled, becauſe they had found no anſwer e, and yet had condemned Job f.

e To Job's Allegations and Arguments as to the main Cauſe. f As an Hypocrite or ungodly Man.

4 Now Elihu had † [illegible] till Job h had ſpoken, becauſe they were † eld[illegible] he i.

† Heb. expected Job in words.

g With Patience, as the [illegible]. h Add, and his three Friends, as appears from the following words: It is a Synecdoche, whereof Inſtances have been given before. i And therefore he expected more ſatisfaction from them, and gave them the precedency in the Diſcourſe. Wherein he ſhewed his prudence and modeſty.

5 When Elihu ſaw that there was no anſwer in the mouth of theſe three men, then his wrath was kindled.

6 And Elihu the ſon of Barachel the Buzite, anſwered and ſaid, I am † young, and ye are very old, wherefore I was afraid k, and † durſt not ſhew you mine opinion.

† Heb. feared.

k To wit, of diſcovering my weakneſs and folly, and of being thought forward and preſumptuous.

7 I ſaid, * Days l ſhould ſpeak m, and multitude of years ſhould teach wiſdom n.

* Ch. 12. 12.

l i. e. Multitude of days; by comparing the next Clauſe of the Verſe. Or men of days, i. e. of many days or years, old Men. m To wit, wiſely and pertinently, as the next words limit it. n Should inſtruct us that are younger in the paths of Wiſdom, and concerning the wiſe Counſels and Ways of God, about which the preſent Controverſie lay.

8 But o there is a ſpirit p in man: and * the inſpiration of the Almighty q giveth them underſtanding r.

* Ch. 35. 11 & 38. 36. Prov. 2. 6. Eccleſ. 2. 26. Dan. 1. 17. & 2. 21. James 1. 5.

o Or, ſurely: It muſt be confeſſed. p To wit, which gives him underſtanding, as is eaſily and fitly gathered out of the laſt words of the Verſe. And this is to be underſtood either 1. of the human Spirit, or reaſonable Soul, which is in every Man. So the ſenſe of the place is, Every man, as a man, whether old or young, hath a reaſonable Soul, by which he is able in ſome meaſure to diſcern between Good and Evil, and to judge of mens Opinions and Diſcourſes: And therefore I alſo may venture to deliver my Opinion. Or 2. of the Spirit of God; the latter Clauſe being explicatory of the former, according to the manner. So the ſenſe is, I expected a true and full diſcovery of the truth in this Controverſie from Perſons of your Years, Wiſdom, and Experience. But upon ſecond thoughts I conſider that the knowledge of theſe deep and divine Myſteries is not to be had or expected from any man as ſuch, though never ſo aged or wiſe, but only from God's Spirit, which alone knoweth the deep things of God. And this Spirit he ſaith is in man, not in every man, for the words are not univerſal, but indefinite, and man in this Branch is no larger than them who receive Divine Inſpiration in the next Branch. And ſo the ſenſe is, God is pleaſed to give his Spirit unto Mankind, unto Men of all Ages and Qualities, as he pleaſeth; and having given it in ſome meaſure to me, I may take the boldneſs to utter my thoughts. q. i. e. God's Spirit, or the gracious Gifts thereof breathed or infuſed into Man's Soul by God. r To wit, in Divine and Spiritual Matters, which are the Matter of this Debate and Book.

9 Great men s are not always wiſe: neither doth the aged underſtand judgment t.

s i. e. Men of eminency for Age or Learning, or Dignity and Power, ſuch as Job's three Friends ſeem to have been. t What is juſt and right: Or the Judgment of God, and the Methods and Reaſons of his Adminiſtrations.

10 Therefore I ſaid u, Hearken to me x: I alſo will ſhew mine opinion.

u Within my ſelf, and now I ſay it with my mouth. x Thou Job eſpecially, who art more nearly concerned (to whom therefore he ſpeaketh in the Singular Number) and thy Friends with thee.

11 Behold, I waited y for your words: I gave ear to your † reaſons z, whileſt ye ſearched out † what to ſay a.

y With ſilence, and patience, and diligent attention: which therefore I now expect from you. z Or, reaſonings. Heb. underſtandings, or minds, the depth and ſtrength of your Diſcourſes, your moſt intelligent and forcible Arguments againſt Job; I ſearched and examined them to the bottom. a Whilſt you put your Inventions upon the Rack, and ſtudied to find out all that could be ſaid againſt him, and to furniſh your ſelves with the moſt convincing words and reaſons.

12 Yea, I attended to you: and behold, there was none of you that convinced Job b, or that anſwered his words:

b By ſolid and ſatisfactory Anſwers to his Aſſertions and Allegations.

13 Leſt ye ſhould ſay c, We have found out wiſdom: God thruſteth him down, not man d.

c It is a defective Speech, and may be thus ſupplied: Thus it was, or God thus left you to your own weakneſs and miſtakes, and impertinent diſcourſes, leſt ye ſhould ſay, &c. i. e. leſt you ſhould aſcribe the conquering or ſilencing of Job to your own Wiſdom, Age, and Experience: Or leſt you ſhould boaſtingly ſay, We have diſcovered and ſaid all that can or need be ſaid in the Cauſe, the ſum and ſubſtance of the thing, that which may fully and finally end the Controverſie, which is contained in the following Words. d Theſe are alledged by Elihu, in the perſon of Job's three Friends, or as their Words. The Senſe is, The ſtupendious Judgments which are upon Job, have not been brought upon him by Man ſolely and originally, for then there might have been ſome ground for Job's Complaints, there might have been injuſtice or cruelty in them, but immediately by the Hand of God, of that God, who being Omniſcient, and Juſt, and True, and Merciful, would never have dealt thus hardly with Job, if he were not an Hypocrite, and guilty of ſome very groſs, though ſecret ſins: which is the ground-work of our diſcourſes. But, ſaith Elihu, this Argument doth not ſatisfie me, and therefore bear with me if I ſeek for better.

14 Now he hath not † directed his words againſt me e: neither will I anſwer him with your words f.

e I am not engaged in this diſcourſe by any provoking words of Job, as you have been, which hath drawn forth your Paſſions, and byaſſed your Judgments, but meerly from Zeal, for the vindication of God's honour and love to Truth and Juſtice, and a ſincere deſire to adminiſter to Job matter both of conviction and of comfort. f i. e. With ſuch Words or Arguments as yours, either weak and impertinent, or fierce and opprobrious.

15 They g were amazed h, they anſwered no more i, † they left off ſpeaking.

† Heb. they removed ſpeeches from themſelves.

g i. e. Job's three Friends, of whom he ſpeaks ſometimes in the ſecond, and here in the third perſon, directing his Speech to Job, and the Auditors of this Diſputation. h They ſtood mute like perſons amazed, not knowing what to reply to Job's Arguments, and wondring at his bold and confident Aſſertions of his Integrity, and of his Intereſt in God, under ſuch ſad and manifeſt tokens of God's juſt diſpleaſure againſt him. i Although Job gave them juſt occaſion to reprove and confute him for his intemperate Speeches, and preſumptuous and irreverent Expreſſions concerning God.

16 When I had waited, (for they ſpake not, but ſtood ſtill; and anſwered no more k;)

k Which he repeats as a ſtrange and unreaſonable thing that they ſhould be ſilent when they had ſuch Obligations to ſpeak for the Vindication both of God's Juſtice, and of their own Truth and Reputation.

17 I ſaid, I will anſwer alſo my part l; I alſo will ſhew mine opinion.

l I will take my turn and ſpeak what they have omitted.

18 For I am full of † matter m, † the ſpirit within me n conſtraineth me o.

† Heb. words.

m i. e. I have many things to ſay in this Cauſe. n Either my own Spirit or Soul, which is wholly diſſatisfied with what hath been hitherto ſpoken, and clearly apprehends what may ſilence Job and end the Diſpute. Or, God's Spirit which he hath put in me, the Spirit of Underſtanding, which hath diſcovered the truth of the matter to me, and the Spirit of Zeal, which urgeth me to plead God's Cauſe againſt Job. o Forceth me to ſpeak: It is a Metaphor from a Man or Woman whoſe Belly is full with Wind, or with a Child, and is never at reſt till it be emptied and eaſed of its burden.

19 Behold, my belly p is as wine q which † hath no vent; it is ready to burſt like new bottles r:

† Heb. is not opened.

p i. e. My mind or heart, which is oft called a man's belly, as Job 15. 35. Pſalm 40. 8. Hab. 3. 16. John 7. 38. q As new Wine pent up cloſe in a Bottle, as the following words explain it and determine it. The Wine is here put for the Bottle in which it is, by a common Metonymy. r i. e Bottles of new Wine, by the ſame general Figure; for otherwiſe old Bottles are moſt apt to burſt; Matt. 9. 17.

20 I will ſpeak, † that I may be refreſhed s; I will open my lips, and anſwer t.

† Heb. that I may breath.

s That I may eaſe my mind of thoſe thoughts which now oppreſs it. t I will not utter impertinent words, but ſolid anſwers to Job's arguments.

21 Let me not, I pray you, accept any mans perſon u: neither let me give flattering titles unto man x.

u Do not expect that I ſhould out of fear or reſpect to any of you ſpeak partially, but bear with my free and plain dealing with you all. x As I ſhall not cenſure and reproach Job as an Hypocrite or profane perſon, which you have done, ſo neither ſhall I flatter him, but faithfully reprove him for his exorbitant Speeches of God.

22 For I know not to give flattering titles y: in ſo doing z, my maker would ſoon take me away.

y i. e. I have neither skill nor will to flatter Job or any Man ſo as to debauch my Conſcience, or corrupt the Truth, or ſpeak falſly for his ſake. z i. e. If I ſhould be guilty of that ſin, God would quickly and ſorely puniſh me for it. Or, without this Supplement, My Maker will quickly take me away; to wit, out of this World. I dare not flatter any Man, becauſe I conſider I muſt ſhortly die, and go to Judgment, to give an account of all my Words and Actions.

CHAP. XXXIII.

He offereth himſelf in God's ſtead to reaſon with Job, 1——8. who had too hard thoughts of God, who by his greatneſs giveth no account of his ways, 9——13. God inſtructeth man by viſions, 14——18. by afflictions, 19——22. by his miniſtery, 23——25. When man prayeth and confeſſeth God will be gracious, 26——28. Theſe are God's methods of inſtructing men, 29, 30.

WHerefore, Job, I pray thee a, hear my ſpeeches, and hearken to all my words b.

a Perceiving the Erroar of Job's Friends, and that by their violent and opprobrious Speeches they had exaſperated Job's mind, and thereby hindred the Succeſs of their Diſcourſes, he applies himſelf to him in milder ways, and treats him kindly, thereby to gain his attention and affection, that his words might have more acceptance with him. b Not only to what may pleaſe thee, but alſo to what may convince and reprove thee.

2 Behold, now I have opened my mouth c, my tongue hath ſpoken † in my mouth d.

† Heb. in my palate.

c Now I have begun to ſpeak, and intend with thy good leave to proceed in my Diſcourſe with thee. d Heb. in or with my palate, for both Tongue and Palate are Inſtruments of Speech; and that a man ſhould ſpeak plainly and diſtinctly (which he deſigned to do) it is neceſſary that his Tongue ſhould oft times touch the Palate or Roof of the Mouth.

3 My words ſhall be of the uprightneſs of my heart e: and my lips ſhall utter knowledge clearly f.

e I ſhall not ſpeak paſſionately or partially, as one reſolved to defend what I have once ſaid, whether true or falſe, but from an honeſt mind, or what I verily believe to be true, and from a ſincere deſire to do thee good. f I ſhall not ſpeak my own fancies or devices, but only that which by diligent ſtudy, and divine inſpiration, I know to be true, and this I ſhall do plainly and clearly.

4 The ſpirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the Almighty hath given me life g.

g I am thy fellow Creature, made by God's Spirit, Gen. 1. 2. and quickned by that Soul which God breathed into Man, Gen. 2. 7. and therefore fit and ready to diſcourſe with thee upon even and equal terms, according to thy deſire.

*Ch.32.14 5 If thou canſt anſwer me h, * ſet thy words in order before me; ſtand up i.

h I ſhall allow thee all freedom of Diſcourſe, I cannot terrifie thee, as God would; I ſhall not reproach thee, nor caval at thee, as thy Friends have done. i To contend with me as thine Adverſary in this Cauſe.

* Ch.9.35. & 13.20, 21. † Heb. according to thy mouth. † Heb. cut out of the clay. 6 * Behold, I am † according to thy wiſh in Gods ſtead k: I alſo am † formed out of the clay.

k I will plead with thee in God's name and ſtead, and on his behalf, which thou haſt oft wiſhed that God would do upon equal terms, and laying aſide his terrible Majeſty, &c. Or, I am as thou art with or towards God; i. e. God's Creature like thy ſelf, as the next words explain it.

7 Behold, * my terrour ſhall not make thee afraid;
*Ch.13.21 neither ſhall my hand be heavy upon thee l.

l Which was the Condition of that Diſputation which thou didſt offer to undertake with God, Chap. 9.34. & 13. 21.

† Heb. in mine ears. 8 Surely thou haſt ſpoken † in mine hearing m, and I have heard the voice of thy words, ſaying, m I ſhall not charge thee with hypocriſie, as thy Friends do, which God only can diſcern, but with thoſe words which I have heard from thee.

* Ch.9.17. & 10.7. & 16. 17. & 23. 10, 11. & 27.5. & 29. 14. & 31.1. 9 * I am clean without tranſgreſſion, I am innocent, neither is there iniquity in me n.

n Not ſimply and abſolutely none, for he oft confeſſeth himſelf to be a ſinner, as Chap. 9. 1, 2, &c. & 14. 4. but no ſuch tranſgreſſion or iniquity, as might give God juſt occaſion to puniſh him ſo ſeverely, as is implied in the next verſe, where he blameth God for finding occaſions againſt him, implying that he had given him none by his ſins. And thus far Elihu's Charge was juſt and true, and herein it differs from the Charge of Job's three Friends, who oft accuſe him, and that in words much like theſe, for aſſerting his own Righteouſneſs and Innocency; although they did it, becauſe they thought him a ſecret Sinner and an Hypocrite, whereas Elihu doth it upon other grounds, even becauſe Job's juſtification of himſelf was accompanied with Reflections upon God as hath been ſaid.

* Ch.16.9. 10 Behold he findeth occaſions againſt me o; * he counteth me for his enemy p.

o He picketh quarrels with me, and watcheth over and ſearcheth after all my Errours and Frailties, as Job ſaid, Chap. 10. 6. & 14. 16, 17. ſeverely marking what is amiſs in me, that thence he may take occaſion to puniſh me worſe than mine Iniquities deſerve. p Though I have endeavoured to be his Friend and faithful Servant all my days, yet he treats me like an Enemy. This Job ſaid, Chap. 13. 24. and 19. 11.

*Ch.13.27 & 14. 16. 11 * He putteth my feet in the ſtocks, he marketh all my paths q, q He narrowly pries into all my actions, that he may find matter for further Severities againſt me.

12 Behold, in this thou art not juſt r: I will anſwer thee, That God is greater s then man.

r I do not accuſe thee of hypocriſie, nor rip up the former Errours of thy Life; but in this thou art unjuſt and much to blame, that thou boaſteſt ſo much of thine own Integrity, and chargeſt God with rigorous dealing, and calleſt him to an account before thy Tribunal, and offereſt to diſpute the matter with him. s Not only in Power and Majeſty, which thou acknowledgeſt, but alſo in Juſtice, and Wiſdom, and Goodneſs, and therefore thou doſt very fooliſhly, and preſumptuouſly, and wickedly in contending with him, and cenſuring his Judgments: thou forgetteſt thy diſtance from him, and caſteſt off that awe and reverence which thou ſhouldſt conſtantly maintain towards thy Soveraign Lord.

† Heb. he anſwereth not. 13 Why t doſt thou ſtrive againſt him u? for † he giveth not account of any of his matters x.

t Upon what grounds and for what ends? What advantage doſt thou expect from it? u To wit, in a judicial way. See Chap. 13. 6. x He neither uſeth nor is by any Law obliged to give an account to any of his Creatures of the grounds and reaſons of his Judgments or Diſpenſations, as being the Supream and Abſolute Governour of all Perſons and Things, in whoſe Will and Pleaſure it becometh all men to acquieſce. And therefore, O Job, thou exceedeſt all bounds of Modeſty and Humility and Reverence and Submiſſion which thou oweſt to thy Maker, in that thou preſumeſt to demand a reaſon for his dealings with thee, and to quarrel with him for not giving it to thee at thy deſire. Or, he anſwereth not all his words, i. e. He doth not ſay, or hath not ſaid all that he can to juſtifie his actions, which he can do many more ways than we can imagine, but hath revealed ſo much of his will and ways to Mankind, as he hath thought meet, and as their narrow Capacity can comprehend; as he declareth in the following verſes.

14 For y God ſpeaketh z once, yea twice a, yet man b perceiveth it not c.

y Or, Nevertheleſs, as this Particle is ſometimes uſed. Although God doth not give men an account of his matters, yet he doth that for them which is much better, and which is ſufficient for them. z To wit, unto men by way of inſtruction or admonition, as appears from the following verſes. a i. e. Again and again, or oft times, this number being ſometimes put indefinitely, as below v. 29. 2 Kings 6. 10. Pſal. 62. 11. When one ſpeaking doth not awaken men, God is graciouſly pleaſed to give them another admonition. So God, though he will not gratifie mens Curioſity in enquiring into his hidden Judgments, yet he will ſupply their neceſſity, and acquaint them with their duty and intereſt ſo far as is fit, and they are concerned to know. b Which is eaſily and fitly underſtood here from the former branch of this verſe, as being the Perſon to whom God ſpeaketh, as appears from the next verſe. And ſuch Supplements are not unuſual in the Hebrew Language, and eſpecially in theſe Poetical Books, where the Stile is very conciſe and ſhort, and many things to be underſtood. c Through his inadvertency or negligence or dulneſs. Man therefore hath no reaſon to charge God as if he were deficient in his notices and manifeſtations of his will, but to accuſe himſelf for not improving revealed things to his own advantage, but deſiring rather to pry into God's ſecret Counſels, which was Job's errour.

15 In a dream d, in a viſion of the night e, when deep ſleep falleth upon men f, in ſlumbrings g upon the bed.

d This he mentions as the uſual way of God's revealing his mind and will to Men in thoſe days, before God's Word was committed to writing, as Gen. 20. 6. & 41. 1, 28. e This is added by way of explication and limitation, to ſhew that he ſpeaks not of every dream, but of thoſe Divine dreams in which God was pleaſed to vouchſafe ſome viſion or repreſentation of his will to the mind of a Man. f When mens ſenſes are bound up, and their minds free from all diſtracting cares and buſineſs of the World, and wholly at leiſure to receive Divine Impreſſions. g This is added, becauſe in this caſe the Man is like one that ſlumbereth, or between ſleeping and waking, or uncertain in which ſtate he is, as Paul could not tell whether he was in the Body, or out of the Body, when he was in his Extaſie, 2 Cor. 12. 1, 2.

16 Then † he openeth the ears of men h, and ſealeth their inſtruction i. † Heb. he vealeth, or uncovereth.

h i. e. He revealeth his Will to the Ears and Hearts of Men, as this Phraſe is uſed, Job 36.10. Pſal. 40.6. Iſa. 50.4. i He imprinteth thoſe Inſtructions, which he hath revealed to their Ears, upon their Minds, that after they have heard and received them, they do not let them ſlip, as Men commonly do moſt things which they hear, whether from God or Men; but do retain and hold them faſt, and are fully ſatisfied and aſſured of the truth and importance of them. Or, he ſealeth their chaſtening, or correction, for ſo this word ſignifies as well as inſtruction, i. e. He gives them aſſurance of his purpoſe of correcting them for their ſins, if they do not prevent it by a ſpeedy repentance. Or, he ſealeth it (i. e. his Word conveyed to their Ears and Minds) with chaſtening them, i. e. He gives them aſſurance of the truth and reality of his Revelation by ſtriking them with a ſacred dread and horrour, as was uſual in ſuch Dreams or night Viſions, as we ſee, Job 4. 13, 14. Which he did that they might remember it the better, and diſtinguiſh this from ſuch vain Dreams as are only the productions of Man's fancy.

k i. e. God, who was expreſſed, v. 14. and deſigned by this Pronoun he both in the foregoing and following verſes. l i. e. From the execution of his purpoſe. Heb. from his work, i. e. from his evil work, as the Chaldee and Seventy underſtand it; from ſin, which is truly and fitly called Man's work, becauſe it hath its riſe in and from him, and is his own proper work, and very agreeable to his Nature in his preſent corrupt Eſtate, as on the contrary all the good that is in Man is God's proper and peculiar work, and is generally aſcribed to him in Scripture. So this is noted as the deſign of God's giving Man this warning, to keep him from executing that evil work which poſſibly he had deſigned to do; of which ſee examples, Gen. 20. 5, 6. & 31. 24. m i.e. Either, 1. To take it away, as God is ſaid to hide ſin, when he quite removes and forgives it, Pſal. 32. 1. and ſorrow is ſaid to be hid, Job 3. 10. when it never is nor was: and underſtanding is ſaid to be hid, when it periſheth, Iſa. 29. 14. And Pride is here mentioned as the root of thoſe evil purpoſes or works laſt mentioned; which for the moſt part proceed from haughtineſs of ſpirit, whereby men ſcorn to ſubmit themſelves, and their wills and actions to God's Authority, and preſume to advance themſelves above God, and reſolve to follow their own wills and luſts in ſpight of God, and with contempt of him. Or, Pride may be here put for all matter or occaſion of Pride. And God by this means is ſaid to hide Pride from man, becauſe by theſe glorious and terrible Repreſentations of his Divine Majeſty to a Man, he takes him off from the contemplation and admiration of his own excellency, which men are generally very prone to reflect upon, and brings him to a ſight of his own nothingneſs and weakneſs, and to a ſenſe of his dependence upon God, and to an humble and ready ſubmiſſion to his will and pleaſure.

18 * He keepeth back l his ſoul m from the pit n, and his life † from periſhing by the ſword o. * Vers. 28. † Heb. from paſſing by the ſword.

l To wit, by theſe gracious admonitions whereby he leads them to repentance. m Either the Man, who is oft expreſſed by this part; or, his life, as the next branch explains it. n i. e. From the Grave, from Death or Deſtruction. o i. e. By ſome dreadful Judgment of God which was ready to fall upon him.

19 He is chaſtned alſo with pain p upon his bed, and the multitude of his bones with ſtrong pain q.

p Or grief, with ſome painful and dangerous Diſeaſes, or Bodily Diſtempers, which is the ſecond way whereby God inſtructs men and excites them to repentance: which alſo was Job's caſe. q The pain pierceth his very Bones, even all of them. Or, even the ſtrong multitude of his Bones, i. e. his Bones which are both many and ſtrong. Or, according to another reading, the contention of his bones, (i.e. the pain of his Bones whereby God contends with him) is ſtrong. This alſo was Job's Caſe, Chap. 30. 17.

20 * So that his life r ‖ abhorreth bread s, and his ſoul † dainty meat t. * Pſal. 107.18. ‖ Or, maketh him abhor. † Heb. meat of deſire.

r i. e. His Soul, as the next Clauſe explains it: or his Appetite which is a ſign and an act of life. s i. e. Common and neceſſary food. t Such as others do, and he formerly did much deſire and prize.

21 His fleſh is conſumed away u, that it cannot be ſeen x, and his bones that were not ſeen y, ſtick out.

u Through pain and pining ſickneſs. x Becauſe there is none left to be ſeen, but he who before was fat and flouriſhing, is now become a meer Skeleton. y Formerly, becauſe they were covered with Fleſh and Fat. But this Clauſe is, and may be rendred thus, and his Bones are broken, and are not ſeen: which is to be metaphorically underſtood.

†Heb. pit. 22 His ſoul draweth near unto the † grave z, and his life to the deſtroyers a.

z He ſeems to himſelf, and others, to be loſt and paſt all hopes of recovery. Which he adds for Job's comfort in his deſperate condition. a To the inſtruments of death or deſtruction, whether it be Angels, whom God ſometimes uſeth in thoſe caſes, or Devils, who have the power of Death, Heb. 2. 14. or Diſeaſes, which by God's appointment are ready to give the fatal blow.

*Iſa. 43. 27. 23 If there be a meſſenger b with him c, an * interpreter d, one among a thouſand e, to ſhew unto man his uprightneſs f:

b Either 1. an Angel ſent to him from Heaven upon this errand; for the Angels are miniſtring Spirits, Pſalm 103. 20. Heb. 1. 14. and are, and eſpecially in that time and ſtate of the Church, were frequently employed by God upon Meſſages to Men. But why then ſhould he ſay, one of a thouſand Angels, ſeeing any the meaneſt Angel was very competent for this work? Or rather, 2. a Prophet or Teacher, for ſuch are oft called by this Name; as Judg. 2. 1. Mal. 2. 7. & 3. 1. Rev. 1. 20. and ſuch Perſons are appointed by God for, and are moſt commonly imployed in this work. c Either 1. with God to plead Man's Cauſe, and to pray to God for Man. Or, rather, 2. with Man, who is expreſſed in the laſt Clauſe of this Verſe, and of whom this ſame Pronoun him is twice uſed in the next Verſe. Nor is it ſtrange that the Pronoun Relative is put before the Noun to which it belongs, but uſual in the Hebrew Language, as Exod. 2. 6. Prov. 5. 22. & 14. 33. and elſewhere. d One whoſe Office and Work it is to declare the Mind of God unto the ſick Man, and wherefore God contends with him, and what God would have him to do. e A perſon rightly qualified for this great and hard work, ſuch as there are but very few, ſcarce one of a thouſand; which expreſſion is uſed to denote the rarity and fewneſs of Perſons, Eccleſ. 7. 28. By which Words he doth covertly reflect upon Job's three Friends, and imply that they were not ſuch Perſons, though they had undertaken to perform this Office or Work to Job; and withal, modeſtly intimates, That although he was in himſelf mean and inferiour to all of them (as he acknowledgeth) yet he was ſelected by God for this work; which he ſaith, not out of a deſire of vain boaſting of himſelf, but to diſpoſe Job to a more diligent attention unto, and a more ready entertainment of his preſent Diſcourſes. f Or, Rectitude, or Righteouſneſs. His, i. e. either 1. God's: To convince a Man that God is juſt and right in all his dealings with him, though never ſo ſevere; of which Job was not yet convinced. Or rather 2. Man's; to teach Man his Duty, or to direct him to the right way and method how he may pleaſe God, and procure that mercy and deliverance which he thirſts after; which is not by quarrelling with God, as Job did, but by an humble confeſſion, and hearty deteſtation and forſaking of his ſins, and ſupplication to God for mercy in and through Chriſt the Redeemer, of whom Job ſpoke before. Or thus, To diſcover to Man, that although he be afflicted, yet he is an upright and righteous Perſon, and conſequently in God's favour; about which good Men oft doubt, and need the help of a skilful Miniſter to ſatisfie them therein. But this ſeems not ſo well to ſuit Job's caſe, who was ſufficiently, and more than enough perſuaded of his own Integrity, and needed no Miniſter to preach that Doctrine to him.

24 Then g he h is gracious unto him i, and ſaith, k Deliver him l from going down into the pit, I have found ‖ a ranſom m. ‖Or, an Atonement.

g In that caſe, or upon the ſick Man's knowledge and practice of his duty. h Either 1. the Meſſenger or Interpreter laſt mentioned, who is pitiful unto the ſick Man, and in compaſſion to him doth all that he can for him, counſelling and comforting him, and praying to God for his Recovery in the following words, Deliver him, &c. for the ſake of that Ranſom which thou haſt revealed, and I have diſcovered to him. Or rather 2. God, who is oft in this Book deſigned by this Particle he, or him; whoſe property and prerogative it is to be gracious unto Man; and who alone can ſpeak the following words with power and authority. i Pardoning his ſins, and delivering him from his dangerous Diſeaſe, and from Death, and from the Hell which attends upon it. k To the Angel or Meſſenger. l To wit, miniſterially and declaratively; in which Senſe the acts of forgiving Sins, and reconciling Sinners, and ſaving Souls, are aſcribed to God's Miniſters; as John 20. 23. 2 Cor. 5. 19, 20. 1 Tim. 4. 16. Declare to him that I have pardoned and will heal him. m Although I might juſtly deſtroy him, and ſhould do it if I were ſevere to mark what is amiſs in him, yet I will ſpare him, for I have found out an expedient and a way of ranſoming and redeeming Sinners from Death, both temporal and eternal, which they by their ſins have deſerved, which is by the Death of my Son the Redeemer of the World, which ſhall be in the fulneſs of time, and with reſpect to which I will pardon this ſick Man, and others that ſhall repent and ſue to me for mercy, as he hath done.

†Heb. than Child-hood. 25 His fleſh ſhall be freſher † than a childs n: he ſhall return to the days of his youth o.

n i. e. More ſound and tender: Theſe joyful tidings delivered to him by God's Meſſenger ſhall revive his Spirit, and by degrees reſtore his former health and vigour. o i. e. To the ſame healthful and ſtrong conſtitution of Body which he had in his youth.

26 He p ſhall pray unto God q: and he will be favourable unto him r, and he ſhall ſee his face with joy s: for he will render unto man his righteouſneſs t.

p Either, 1. the Meſſenger, or rather, 2. the ſick Man. q Being engaged and encouraged to do ſo, either by the aforeſaid gracious Meſſage; or by his miraculous recovery through God's goodneſs. r In hearing and anſwering his Prayers, which before he ſeemed to neglect. s Either, 1. God will look upon the Man with a ſmiling or well-pleaſed Countenance; whereas before, he either hid his Face from him, or frowned upon him. Or, 2. The Man ſhall then be emboldened and encouraged to look God in the Face with comfort and joy; which before he was, not without cauſe, afraid to do: but now he ſhall find that God is reconciled to him by the bleſſed effects of it, both in his Body, and in his Conſcience. t i. e. According to his righteouſneſs, or the fruit of his righteouſneſs, as on the contrary Iniquity is oft put for the puniſhment of iniquity. The Senſe is, He will deal with him as with one reconciled to him through the Mediator, and ſincerely repenting of, and turning from his former ſins unto the ſerious practice of righteouſneſs and true holineſs, and therefore muſt needs be favourable to him, as he hath declared and engaged himſelf to be in ſuch caſes.

27 ‖ He looketh upon men u, and if any ſay, I have ſinned x and perverted that which was right y, and it profited me not z. ‖Or, he ſhall look upon men, and ſay, I have ſinned, &c.

u Either, 1. the ſick Man ſhall look upon, and converſe with Mankind, his Friends, or others, as he did before, and ſhall ſay (as the following word is, and may be rendred) I have ſinned, &c. i. e. He ſhall confeſs to them that God was not to be blamed, but that he, by his own ſin and folly, did bring that evil upon himſelf. And then he ſhall acknowledge God's great goodneſs to him, and ſhall add what follows in the next Verſe, He hath delivered my Soul, &c. and my life, &c. as they render it. Or rather, 2. God diligently obſerves all Mankind, and their ſeveral carriages, eſpecially in ſickneſs and diſtreſs. x If there be any Man that ſincerely ſaith thus, God hears it, and will pardon, and heal him, as it follows. y Either 1. I have judged perverſly of the juſt and right ways of God, cenſuring his proceedings againſt me as too ſevere and rigorous, whereas in truth I only was to be blamed. Or, 2. I have perverted God's righteous Law by bending it, and making it comply with my crooked ways. Or, I have ſwerved from the right and good way of God's commands: or, I have made crooked paths. So he repeats in other words what he ſaid in the former branch of the Verſe, I have ſinned. z I got no good by ſo doing, as I vainly promiſed my ſelf, but I got much hurt by it, even Diſeaſes, and Griefs, and extream Dangers. This was the juſt fruit of my ſins. It is a Meioſis whereby leſs is ſaid, and more is underſtood, of which we have ſeen many examples before.

28 ‖ He a will deliver his ſoul b from going into the pit, and his life c ſhall ſee the light d. ‖Or, he hath delivered my Soul, &c. and my life.

a i. e. God, whoſe work alone this is. b Himſelf, or as it follows, his life. c See on v. 18. d i. e. Shall enjoy either 1. Proſperity, which is oft called light, as darkneſs is put for affliction, or 2. the light of the living, as it follows, v. 30. the light of this World, i. e. his Life, which was endangered, ſhall be reſtored and continued. This is oppoſed to his going down into the Pit, in the former branch.

29 Lo, all theſe things worketh God e † oftentimes with man f. †Heb. twice and thrice.

e All theſe ways and methods doth God uſe to awaken, and convince, and ſave ſinners. f Either ſeverally, one way with one, and another way with another, or with the ſame Man, trying ſeveral means one after another, to bring him to repentance, and prepare him for deliverance.

30 * To bring back his ſoul from the pit, to be enlightned with the light of the living g. * Pſal. 56. 13.

g i. e. That he may enjoy the light of life, and continue in the Land of the Living, out of which he was going.

31 Mark well, O Job, hearken unto me, hold thy peace h, and I will ſpeak.

h Attend to what I have further to ſay to thee with patience and ſilence.

32 If thou haſt any thing to ſay i, anſwer me: ſpeak, for I deſire to juſtifie thee k.

i For thy own Juſtification, or in anſwer to the charge that I have already brought againſt thee. k To wit, as far as may conſiſt with Truth and Juſtice. I do not ſpeak with evil deſign, or a bitter mind, or as one reſolved to condemn thee whatſoever thou ſayeſt, and I ſhall be glad to hear any thing from thee, which may make for thy juſt vindication.

33 If not, hearken unto me: hold thy peace, and I ſhall teach thee wiſdom l.

l i. e. What thy wiſdom and duty is in thy circumſtances.

CHAP. XXXIV.

He accuſeth Job for charging God with injuſtice, 1——9. God, the Almighty Diſpoſer, Governour, and Judge of the World, cannot be unjuſt, 10——17. It is not fit to ſay of Kings and Princes they are unjuſt, much leſs of God: His power over, and obſervance of Man, who cannot hide from God, 18——22. He exerciſeth his Power and Juſtice over them, 23——30. Man's Duty under God's Afflictions, 31, 32. He reproveth Job's words againſt God, 33——37.

FUrthermore, Elihu anſwered, and ſaid,

2 Hear my words, O ye wiſe men a, and give ear unto me, ye that have knowledge.

a Who are here preſent: do you judge of the truth and reaſon of what I have ſaid, and am further to ſay: for I am willing to ſubmit all to the judgment of the truly wiſe.

3 * For the ear trieth words b, as the † mouth taſteth meat. * Chap. 6. 30. & 12. 11. † Heb. Palate.

b i. e. Man's mind judgeth of things ſpoken and heard. The Ear, the Senſe of Diſcipline is put for the mind to which things are conveyed by it. See the note on Job 12. 11.

4 Let us chooſe to us judgment c: let us know d among our ſelves what is good e:

c i. e. Juſtice and Equity, Judgment being oft ſynecdochically uſed for juſt Judgment, as Job 8. 3. & 19. 7. & 32. 9. Pſal. 37. 28. Let us not contend for victory, but only for Truth and Juſtice. This ſhall be my only care and buſineſs. Let us lay aſide all prejudices and animoſities, which I perceive have had too great an influence upon thee and thy Friends, and impartially conſider the naked truth and right of the cauſe. d i. e. Let us diſcover or make it known one to another. e Who hath the beſt cauſe.

5 For Job hath ſaid, I am righteous f: and my God hath taken away my judgment g.

f Either 1. I am perfectly righteous. But this Job did not ſay, but the contrary, Job 9. 2, 3. & 14. 4. Or, 2. I am a ſincere Perſon, no Hypocrite, as my Friends make me. But this Elihu doth not deny. Or 3. I am ſo far righteous, and have been ſo holy and blameleſs in my life, that I have not deſerved, nor had any reaſon to expect ſuch hard uſage from God. And this Job had oft intimated, and Elihu doth juſtly blame him for it, that he blazoned his own righteouſneſs with tacit reflections upon God for dealing ſo ſeverely with him. g For ſo Job had ſaid, Ch. 27. 2. i. e. He denies me that which is but juſt and equal, to give me a fair hearing, to ſuffer me to plead my Cauſe with, or before Him, to ſhew me the reaſons of his contending with me, and what ſins beſides common Infirmities, I have been guilty of, whereby I have deſerved ſuch extraordinary Judgments. Which Elihu juſtly taxeth him with as a very irreverent and preſumptuous expreſſion.

† Heb. mine Arrow. Chap. 6. 4. & 16. 12.

6 Should I lie againſt my right h? † my wound is incurable without tranſgreſſion i.

h So Job had ſaid in effect, Ch. 27. 4, 5, 6. Should I falſly accuſe my ſelf of ſuch ſins of which I am no way conſcious to my ſelf? Should I betray mine own Cauſe, and deny my Integrity, and ſay that I deſerved worſe than I have done? i. e. Without any great, or hainous, or crying ſin, as this word commonly ſignifies, which might reaſonably bring down ſuch terrible Judgments upon my Head.

7 What man is like Job, who drinketh up ſcorning like water k?

k i. e. Abundantly and greedily: who doth ſo oft and ſo eaſily break forth into ſcornful and contemptuous expreſſions, not only againſt his Friends, but in ſome ſort even againſt God himſelf, whom he fooliſhly and inſolently chargeth with dealing rigorouſly with him. The words may be thus read, What Man, being like Job, would drink up, &c. That a wicked or fooliſh Man ſhould do thus, is not ſtrange; but that a Man of ſuch Piety, Gravity, Wiſdom and Authority, as Job, ſhould be guilty of ſuch a ſin, this is wonderful.

8 Which goeth in company with the workers of iniquity, and walketh with wicked men l?

l Although I dare not ſay, as his three Friends do, that he is a wicked Man, yet in this matter he ſpeaks and acts like one of them.

* Ch. 9. 22. & 35. 3.

9 For he hath ſaid m, * It profiteth a man nothing, that he ſhould delight himſelf with God n.

m Not abſolutely and in expreſs terms, but by unforced conſequence, and as concerning this Life, and with reference to himſelf; becauſe he ſaid that good Men were no leſs, nay, ſometimes more miſerable here than the wicked, Ch. 9. 22, &c. 30. 26. and that for his part he was no gainer as to this Life, by his Piety, but a loſer, and that God ſhewed him no more kindneſs and compaſſion than he uſually did to the vileſt of Men. Which was a very unthankful and ungodly Opinion and Expreſſion, ſeeing Godlineſs hath the Promiſe of this Life as well as of that to come, and Job had ſuch ſupports, and ſuch aſſurances of his own uprightneſs, and of his future happineſs, as he confeſſeth, as were and ſhould have been accounted even for the preſent, a greater comfort and profit, than all which this World can afford. n That he ſhould chuſe and delight to walk with God, and make it his chief care and buſineſs to pleaſe Him, and to do His Commandments: which is the true and proper Character of a Godly Man.

† Heb. men of heart. * Deut. 32. 4. Chap. 8. 3. & 36. 23. Pſal. 92. 15. Rom. 9. 14.

10 Therefore hearken unto me, ye † men of underſtanding o: * far be it from God that he ſhould do wickedneſs p, and from the Almighty, that he ſhould commit iniquity.

o You who are preſent, and underſtand theſe things, do you judge between Job and me. p This I muſt lay down as a Principle, That the Righteous and Holy God, neither doth, nor can deal unjuſtly with Job, or with any Man, as Job inſinuates that God had dealt with him.

* Pſ. 62. 12. Pro. 24. 12. Jer. 32. 19. Ez. 33. 20. Mat. 16. 27. Rom. 2. 6. 2 Cor. 5. 10 1 Pet. 1. 17. Rev. 22. 12.

11 * For the work q of a man ſhall he render unto him, and cauſe every man to find according to his ways.

q i. e. The reward of his work; or according to his work. Job's afflictions, though great and ſharp, are not undeſerved, but juſtly inflicted upon him, both for his original corruption, and for many actual tranſgreſſions which are manifeſt to God, though Job, through his partiality, may not ſee them. And Job's Piety ſhall be recompenced it may be, in this life, but undoubtedly in the next. And therefore Piety is not unprofitable, as Job ſaith.

12 Yea, ſurely God will not do wickedly, neither will the Almighty pervert judgment r.

r As Job hath wickedly affirmed. For the Phraſe, ſee on Chap. 8. 3.

† Heb. all of it.

13 Who hath given him a charge over the earth s? or who hath diſpoſed t † the whole world?

s i. e. Over the Inhabitants of the Earth, to rule them according to his Laws, and to give an account to him of it? Who or where is his Superiour that made the World, and then delivered the Government of it to God? There is no ſuch Perſon. God himſelf is the ſole Creator, the abſolute and ſupream Lord and Governour of all the World, and therefore cannot do unjuſtly. The reaſon is partly becauſe all unrighteouſneſs is a tranſgreſſion of ſome Law, and God hath no Law to bound him but his own nature and will: partly becauſe the Creator and Lord of the World muſt needs have all poſſible Perfections in himſelf, and amongſt others, perfect Juſtice, and muſt needs be free from all imperfections and obliquities, and therefore from Injuſtice: and partly becauſe he is of himſelf All-ſufficient, and independent upon all other Perſons, and able to do and procure whatſoever pleaſeth him, and therefore as he hath no inclination, ſo he hath no temptation, to any unrighteous actions; this being generally the reaſon of all unrighteous actions in the World, becauſe the Perſons who do them either are obliged to do it, to gratifie ſome Superiour Authority who commands them to do it, or elſe do want or deſire ſomething which they cannot juſtly obtain. For he is a Monſter, and not a Man, who will take away any thing by injuſtice or violence, which he may have by right. t Or, committed, to wit, to him, to be governed by Him, in the Name, and for the uſe and ſervice of his Superiour Lord, to whom he muſt give an account.

* Pſal. 104. 29. † Heb. upon him.

14 * If he ſet his heart † upon man u; if he gather unto himſelf x his ſpirit and his breath y:

u Heb. upon him, i. e. Man, as may ſeem probable from v. 11. & 15. where Man is expreſſed, and from the next Clauſe of this Verſe, where he ſpeaks of that Spirit and Breath which is in Man. If his Eye and Heart be upon Man, if he diligently and exactly obſerve Him, and all his ways, and whatſoever is amiſs in him, and which follows upon it of courſe, reſolve to puniſh him. Or, if he ſet his heart againſt (as this Particle El is uſed, Amos 7. 15. and elſewhere, as hath been noted before) him, to wit, to cut him off. x If it pleaſe him, to gather to himſelf, to wit, by Death, whereby God is ſaid to take away Mens Breath, Pſal. 104. 29. and to gather Mens Souls, Pſal. 26. 9. and the Spirit is ſaid to return unto God, Eccleſ. 12. 7. y i. e. That Spirit and Breath, or that living Soul that God breathed into Man, Gen. 2. 7. and gives to every Man that cometh into the World.

* Gen. 3. 19. Eccleſ. 12. 7.

15 * All fleſh z ſhall periſh together a, and Man ſhall turn again unto duſt.

z i. e. Every Man, who is called Fleſh, Gen. 6. 3. 17. Iſa. 40. 6. a Or, alike, without any exception, be they great or mean, wiſe or fooliſh, good or bad, if God deſign to deſtroy them, they cannot withſtand his Power, but muſt needs periſh by his ſtroke. The deſign of this and the foregoing verſe is the ſame with that of v. 13. (where ſee the notes) namely, to declare God's abſolute and uncontroulable Soveraignty over all men, to diſpoſe of them either to life or to death, as it pleaſeth him, and conſequently to ſhew that Job had cauſe to be thankful to God, who had continued his life ſo long to him, which he might have taken away as ſoon as ever he had given it, and had no cauſe to complain of him, or to tax him with injuſtice for afflicting him, as he did.

16 If now thou haſt underſtanding, hear this b: hearken to the voice of my words.

b As thou art a Man of Underſtanding, hear and conſider what I ſay.

17 Shall even he that hateth right c, † govern d? and wilt thou condemn him that is moſt juſt e?

c i. e. That is unrighteous. But this he expreſſeth in a moſt emphatical manner, the reaſon and weight whereof ſeems to me to be this; If God be unjuſt, he is not ſo from fear of any Superiour (as inferiour Magiſtrates do many unrighteous things againſt their Conſciences to pleaſe their Prince or Chief Ruler, or to avoid his diſpleaſure) but meerly from an intrinſecal hatred of Juſtice, or love of Unrighteouſneſs: which being moſt abſurd to imagine concerning God, therefore he cannot poſſibly be unjuſt, or do any unjuſt action. d So this word, which properly ſignifies to bind, is fitly rendred by moſt Interpreters, and ſo it is uſed Iſa. 3. 7. becauſe Governours have a power to bind their Subjects by Laws and Penalties, and they are as it were the Ligaments by which Societies are bound and kept together, which without them would be diſſolved and broken to pieces. Elihu's Argument here is the ſame with that of Abraham's, Gen. 18. 25. and that of St. Paul's, Rom. 3. 5, 6. If God be unrighteous, how ſhall he judge or govern the World? And the Argument is undeniable; If God were unjuſt, there would be nothing but injuſtice and confuſion, and miſchief in the World, whereas we ſee there is a great deal of Juſtice adminiſtred by Rulers in the World, and all this muſt proceed from him who is the Fountain and Author of all Juſtice, and Rule, and Authority. And as the Pſalmiſt ſaith, Pſal. 94. 9. He that formed the eye, ſhall not he ſee? So ſay I; He that makes men juſt, ſhall he be unjuſt? e i. e. God, who hath given ſo many clear and unqueſtionable Evidences of his Juſtice, in giving juſt and holy Laws, in encouraging and rewarding very many righteous Perſons in this life, and in inflicting dreadful and remarkable Judgments upon Tyrants and Oppreſſours. Or, him that is juſt and mighty; for the next verſe ſpeaks of ſuch who were generally in thoſe times more conſiderable for their Power and Authority, than for their Juſtice. So here is a double Argument againſt Job's cenſures of God's Juſtice. He is juſt, and therefore giveth thee no cauſe to condemn him, and withal potent, and therefore can puniſh thee yet far worſe for ſo doing.

18 Is it fit to ſay to a King, Thou art † wicked f: and to princes, ye are ungodly?

f Or, thou art Belial, or a Son of Belial. Though a King may really be unjuſt and wicked, yet their Subjects neither may nor dare preſume to call them ſo, Exod. 22. 28. And therefore if ſome evil Thought did ariſe in thee, yet how waſt thou not afraid to utter ſuch unworthy and almoſt blaſphemous expreſſions againſt God?

* Deut. 10. 17. 2 Chron. 19. 7. Acts 10. 34. Rom. 2. 11. Gal. 2. 6. Epheſ. 6. 9. Col. 3. 25. 1 Pet. 1. 17. * Ch. 31. 15.

19 How much leſs to him that * accepteth not the perſons of princes g, nor regardeth the rich more than the poor: for * they all are the work of his hands h.

g i. e. To God, who reſpecteth not the greateſt Princes, ſo as to do any unjuſt thing to gain their favour, or to avoid their anger, to whom Princes and Peaſants are equally ſubject, and infinitely inferiour; who therefore is free from all temptation to Injuſtice, which commonly proceeds from reſpect of Perſons, Lev. 19. 15. and to whom therefore thou didſt owe more reverence, than thy words have expreſſed. h And therefore of equal worth and price with him, and equally ſubject to his power and pleaſure.

20 In a moment i ſhall they k die, and the people l

ſhall be troubled m at midnight n, and paſs away o: and † the mighty ſhall be taken away p without hand q.

† Heb. they ſhall take away the mighty.

i Whenſoever God doth but give the word, and ſend his Summons for them. k i. e. The Rich and the Prince, no leſs than the Poor, muſt ſubmit to the Law of Death which God hath impoſed upon all men, without exception, and they cannot charge God with injury therein. l Whole Nations or People are no leſs ſubject to God's Power than any particular Perſons: their Numbers cannot ſecure them from God's hand. m i. e. Diſturbed and terrified with thoſe Calamities which God ſhall bring upon them. n Suddenly, and when they are moſt ſecure. o Either, 1. Go into Captivity, or run, or fly away, they know not whether for their lives. Or, 2. Periſh or die, as he ſaid before, and as this word is oft uſed, as Job 14. 20. Pſal. 37. 36. Eccleſ. 1. 4. So the ſame thing is ſaid of the People, which in the firſt branch of the verſe was ſaid of the Princes. p Either from their place or power: or out of this life. q Without any hand or help of Man, by ſome ſecret and ſtupendious Work and Judgment of God; which he oft inflicts upon thoſe who are out of the reach of Men.

* 2 Chron. 16.9. Chap. 31.4. * Pſ. 34.15. & 119.168. Prov. 5.21. & 15.3. Jer. 16.17.

21 * For his eyes are upon the ways of man r, and he ſeeth all his goings.

r This is added as the reaſon of the Judgments mentioned in the foregoing verſe, God doth not affiict nor deſtroy either Princes or People unjuſtly, no nor out of his meer pleaſure and abſolute Soveraignty (to which Job ſeemed to impute his Calamities) but for their ſins, which God ſees exactly, although they uſe all poſſible arts and tricks to hide them from him. Therefore no man hath cauſe to complain of God, but of himſelf, for all that he may ſuffer in the World.

* Pſal. 139.12. Amos 9. 2, 3. Hebr. 4.13.

22 * There is do darkneſs, nor ſhadow of death, where the workers of iniquity may hide themſelves s.

s They may flatter themſelves, or cheat others by covering their wicked actions with plauſible pretences and profeſſions, but they cannot deceive God, nor keep their hearts and ways from his ſight.

23 For he will not lay upon man more than right t: that he ſhould † enter into judgment with God u.

t More or heavier Puniſhments than they deſerve, or then are proportionable to their ſins, which he accurately obſerves, as was now ſaid, and therefore can ſuit Puniſhments to them. u Thereby to give him any pretence or occaſion of entring into Judgment with him, or condemning his proceedings; for which there might ſeem to be ſome colour, if God did lay upon Man more than right. And therefore thou, O Job, hadſt no cauſe for thy Complaints againſt God.

† Heb. without ſearching out.

24 He ſhall break in pieces mighty men † without number x, and ſet others in their ſtead y.

x Neither their greatneſs, nor their numbers can ſecure them from the ſtroke of God's Juſtice. y i. e. Give away their power and dignity to others who ſhall come in their place.

† Heb. cruſhed.

25 Therefore he knoweth their works z, and he overturneth them in the night a, ſo that they are † deſtroyed b.

z i. e. Hence it appears that he knows all their evil works, becauſe he judgeth them for them. God or Men are oft times ſaid in Scripture to know or do a thing, when they only manifeſt their knowing and doing of it. Or, Becauſe, &c. as this Particle is uſed, Iſa. 26. 14. & 61. 7. So this is ſubjoined as the ground or reaſon why he puniſheth them, as is related both in the foregoing, and in the following words, becauſe he ſees all their wicked deſigns and actions. a i. e. When they are at reſt and ſecure; at midnight, as it is v. 20. Or, he turneth, or bringeth upon them the night, to wit, of Calamity and Tribulation, as the next words explain it, and as the words night and darkneſs are oft uſed. Or, he turneth the night, to wit, into day, i. e. He knoweh all their deeds of darkneſs, and bringeth them to light. See above v. 22. b Heb. and (or then, or therefore; for both theſe ways this Particle is ſometimes uſed) they ſhall be deſtroyed, or broken to pieces.

26 He ſtriketh them as wicked men c † in the open ſight of others d.

c i. e. As he uſeth to ſmite wicked men, with a grievous and terrible ſtroke. Compare Iſa. 27. 7. Or, for wicked men, or, becauſe they are wicked men, therefore he deſtroys them without any regard to their quality. d In publick view for their greater ſhame, and for the greater glory of God's Juſtice, and for the greater terrour of other Oppreſſours, and comfort of the Oppreſſed.

† Heb. from after him. * Pſ. 28. 5. Iſa. 5. 12.

27 Becauſe they turned back † from him e, and * would not conſider f any of his ways g.

e From the God, whom they or their Progenitors had owned; and his Laws, which God hath written in the minds of all men, Rom. 2. 14, 15. and it may be from the practice of the true Religion which ſometimes they profeſſed. f Or, underſtand. They did not deſire nor endeavour to know them, at leaſt practically or to any good purpoſe. g Either, 1. God's Providential ways. They did not lay to heart any of God's Judgments inflicted upon ſuch Oppreſſours as themſelves, which ſhould have given them warning, but boldly perſiſted in the ſame wicked courſes. Or, 2. His Precepts; oft called his ways, becauſe he hath appointed them for us to walk in. For theſe ways they were in a ſpecial manner obliged to conſider and practiſe: and the next verſe giveth us an inſtance of their backſliding from theſe ways.

28 So that they cauſe the cry of the poor to come b unto him i, and he heareth the cry of the afflicted k.

b Heb. To bring, &c. which is ambiguous, and may be read, either 1. that he, i. e. God, might bring, &c. So this is a reaſon why God ſmote them, &c. as is ſaid, v. 26. Or 2. that they, i. e. thoſe wicked men, might bring, &c. and ſo theſe words contain either 1. A reaſon of what was laſt mentioned, to wit, why they would not conſider nor walk in God's ways, becauſe they were reſolved to oppreſs the Poor, and give them cauſe to cry unto God; which they neither would nor could have done if they had throughly underſtood and conſidered God's ways: or 2. An evidence or inſtance of it wherein it did appear, that they had turned back from God, &c. i i. e. Unto God, as the following words imply, it being God's work to hear the cry and plead the cauſe of the afflicted or oppreſſed. Others, Upon him, or upon them, or upon each of them, to wit, of the Oppreſſours; upon whom the cry of the oppreſſed is ſaid to come, becauſe the vengeance of God is by that cry brought down upon them. k He delivereth the oppreſſed by taking the Oppreſſour away.

* Ch. 12. 14.

29 * When he giveth quietneſs l, who then can make trouble m? and when he hideth his face n, who then can behold him o? whether it be done againſt a nation, or againſt a man only p:

l Either to the poor and oppreſſed Perſons laſt mentioned, or to any other Perſon or People, as it follows. m No Man or Creature can hinder God's deſign and work. n i. e. Withdraws his favour and help from them, and thereby expoſeth them to all Oppreſſions or Calamities. o i.e. Who can look up to God with chearfulneſs or confidence, to deſire or expect his help? Or rather, who then will look upon him, or regard him, to wit, ſo as to pity or ſuccour him! If God be againſt him, what Man will or dare be for him? all men will forſake and oppoſe him, and ſo he will be utterly loſt. For this [who] anſwers to the [who] in the former branch of the verſe, and both of them ſpeak of Man and his act as oppoſed unto God, and to his act. p The caſe is the ſame in both: God can carry on his work either of Mercy or Juſtice, as eaſily and as irreſiſtibly upon an whole Nation or People as upon one particular Perſon.

30 That the hypocrite reign not, leſt the people be enſnared q.

q Having ſaid that God could and would carry on his own work and deſign effectually, whether againſt one Man, or againſt an whole People, he now proceeds to give a further inſtance of God's mighty power above and againſt the greateſt Monarchs, in whom their own and the Peoples ſtrength ſeem to be united, yet all together cannot oppoſe God in his work. God when he pleaſeth can and doth ſo order affairs, that the Hypocrite (i. e. the profane wicked Prince, as one of the Kings of Judah is called, Ezek. 21. 25. Bad Princes being called Hypocrites, becauſe they do commonly cover all their Oppreſſions, and Injuries, and Impieties too, with the ſpecious pretence of Juſtice and the Publick Good, and the diſcharge of their Truſt and Duty) may not reign, (i. e. may not continue his Reign and Tyranny, that he may and ſhall by his Soveraign Power and Omnipotent Providence be deprived of his Kingdom) leſt the people be enſnared, i. e. leſt the People ſhould be longer, and more and more kept and held in the Snares or Fetters of Tyranny and Oppreſſion; i. e. God doth this to free poor oppreſſed People from the ſnares which ungodly and unrighteous Princes lay for them. Or, that the People be not enſnared any longer, Heb. that there be no ſnares of or for the People. Or, for the ſnares, or ſcandals or ſins (which are oft ſo called) of the People. So the ſence is, That ſuch a wicked Prince may not continue to reign over that People, although by their ſins they had provoked God to give them ſuch a Prince, and to continue his power over them.

31 Surely it is meet r to be ſaid unto God s, I have born chaſtiſement t, I will not offend any more u.

r Certainly it is but fit and reaſonable that Man ſhould ſay thus, to his Maker and Supream Lord, and that inſtead of contending with God he ſhould ſubmit to him, Or (which comes to the ſame thing) But hath he ſaid? So the ſence is, I have ſhewed the abſolute Power which God hath over all his Creatures, and that he may juſtly, and doth oft times ſeverely puniſh all ſorts of men as he ſees fit: And this Job ſhould have applied to his own caſe. But, I appeal to all of you, hath he i. e. Job (who is the principal ſubject of this whole diſcourſe, and to whom he now begins to direct his diſcourſe) ſaid, that which here follows? which is a kind of form of Confeſſion or Humiliation, which Elihu puts into Job's mouth, as fit to have been uſed by him. Nay, hath not his ſpeech and carriage been of a directly contrary nature and tendency? Inſtead of humbling himſelf under God's hand which was his duty, hath he not been full of murmurings and complaints againſt God? s Unto one ſo much thy Superiour, ſo mighty and ſo righteous in all his ways: with ſuch an one, a weak and ſinful Creature (as thou art) ſhould not preſume to conteſt. t Or, I do, or ſhall bear it, to wit, quietly and contentedly; I will bear the Lord's indignation, and accept of the puniſhment of my own iniquity, and not accuſe God falſly and fooliſhly, as I have done. u Heb. I will not corrupt, to wit, my ſelf or my ways; which is oft underſtood in like caſes. Or, I will take or demand no Pledge: for ſo this Verb is oft uſed. So the ſence may poſſibly be, I confeſs I have been too bold with God, in deſiring that he would come with me into Judgment, and that I could have a Pledge or Surety that he would do ſo, but I will no longer deſire it, but ſubmit my ſelf wholly to him.

32 That which I ſee not, teach thou me x; if I have done iniquity, I will do no more y.

x I will no longer maintain mine innocency, but from thy judgments I will conclude and have reaſon to believe that there are ſome ſecret ſins in me, for which thou doſt chaſtiſe me, and which I through mine ignorance or partiality cannot yet diſcover, and therefore do beg that thou wouldſt by thy Spirit manifeſt them to me. y I will amend my former errours.

† Heb. ſhould it be from with thee?

33 † Should it be according to thy mind z? he will recompenſe it; a whether thou refuſe, or whether thou chooſe b, and not I c: therefore ſpeak what thow knoweſt d.

z Having adviſed and directed Job how to behave himſelf, and what to ſay to God in his caſe, he now proceedeth to enforce his advice by ſolid Arguments. Should it (to wit, God's chaſtening of thee, about which the great Controverſie was) be according to thy mind? Heb. from with thee, as thou wouldſt have it? Shall thy Opinion or Affection give Laws and Meaſures to God that he ſhall afflict only ſuch Perſons, and in ſuch a manner and meaſure, and ſo long as thou wouldſt have him? Doth God need, or ſhould he ſeek for thy advice how to govern the World, and whom, and when to reward or puniſh? Doſt thou quarrel with God, becauſe he puniſheth eth thee worſe and longer than thou expecteſt or deſireſt? a To wit, thy iniquity expreſſed, v. 32. b Whether thou art ſatisfied or offended with his proceedings, he regards not, as not being obliged to give thee an account of his matters; whether thou wculd refuſe his Puniſhments or accept of them. c It is not I, nor thou, that muſt preſcribe to God, but he will do what he pleaſeth. Or, but not I, i. e. do thou refuſe or chooſe as thou pleaſeſt, and contend with God for doing with thee otherwiſe, than according to thy opinion or good will; but ſo would not I do, if it were my caſe, and I can ſay nothing for this courſe which thou takeſt, and therefore do thou ſpeak what thou knoweſt, or what thou canſt ſay for it, as it here follows. d If thou canſt ſay any thing for this practice, here I am ready to hear thy defence, and to juſtifie thee as far as I can truly and righteouſly do. But this verſe is and may well be otherwiſe rendred, and that very agreeably to the Hebrew, though ſtill the ſence will be the ſame, Shall he, i. e. God, render, or recompence it (to wit, thy iniquity) according to thy mind, (i. e. no further than thou doſt like and conſent) becauſe thou refuſeſt? (to wit, his Chaſtiſement. Is he obliged to forbear puniſhing thee becauſe thou art not pleaſed with it? Shall not he diſpenſe either favours or afflictions as he ſees fit without thy conſent?) ſhalt thou chooſe, and not I? (So Elihu ſpeaks this in the Name and Perſon of God: ſuch ſudden changes of Perſons being not unuſual in this Book. Shalt thou, O Job, chooſe for me, and not I for my ſelf?) therefore ſpeak what thou knoweſt. If this be thy opinion, ſpeak what thou canſt in defence of it: and here am I ready to plead for God againſt thee. So here Elihu returns to ſpeak in his own Perſon.

† Heb. of heart.

34 Let men † of underſtanding tell me, and let a wiſe man hearken unto me e.

e I am content that any wiſe Man ſhould judge of my words, and let ſuch conſider what I ſay. Or, as others tranſlate the place, Men of Underſtanding will ſpeak for or with (as the prefix Lamed is ſometimes uſed, as Gen. 46. 26. Numb. 18. 11. Job 17. 5.) me, and wiſe n will hearken or aſſent unto me.

35 Job hath ſpoken without knowledge f, and his words were without wiſdom.

f Fooliſhly and inconſiderately.

‖ Or, my Father, let Job be tried.

36 ‖ My deſire is that Job may be tried g unto the end h, becauſe of his anſwers i for wicked men k.

g Either 1. That he may be further tried by God, or exerciſed with Afflictions, till he be throughly convinced or humbled. But it ſeems harſh that he ſhould pray for the continuance or increaſe of Job's Afflictions. Or rather, 2. That his words and cauſe which I am now debating may be examined and ſifted, that you that are here preſent, or any other wiſe men, may conſider and judge thereof, as he deſired above, v. 2, 10, 34. h i. e. Thoroughly and exactly, till the Cauſe be brought to an iſſue. Or, unto victory, i. e. till judgment be brought forth unto victory. i Or, concerning his anſwers, or replies or diſcourſes; for anſwering is oft uſed in Scripture, both in the Old and New Teſtament for ſpeaking. So he limits and changeth the ſtate of the Controverſie: I do not meddle with Job's former life, nor charge him with hypocriſie, as his three Friends have done, but I juſtly reprove him for his hard Speeches againſt God, whereby he hath reproached his Juſtice and Goodneſs. k i.e. On their behalf or for their uſe. He hath put Arguments into their Mouths againſt God and his Providence. Or, with or among wicked men, as if he were one of them: or ſuch Anſwers as they uſe to make, which therefore are very unbecoming ſuch a Man as Job is, or pretends to be.

37 For he addeth rebellion unto his ſin l, he clappeth his hands m amongſt us, and multiplieth his words againſt God n.

l He ſinned before, as other ways, ſo by impatience under his afflictions, which may be aſcribed to human Infirmity; but now he is grown obſtinate and incorrigible, and inſtead of repenting and humbling himſelf for his ſins, he excuſeth them, and juſtifieth himſelf, and accuſeth the bleſſed God. Or thus, For otherwiſe, unleſs he be throughly tried and rebuked, he will add rebellion unto his ſin, he will break forth into open rebellion againſt God, and (as it follows) he will clap, &c. For the Hebrew words are of the future tenſe, although ſuch are oft rendred by the paſt tenſe. m In token of joy and victory, as this phraſe is uſed, Pſal. 47. 1. & 98. 8. inſulting and triumphing, not only over us, as if none of us were able to anſwer him, but in a ſort over God himſelf, inaſmuch as he hath again and again deſired leave of God to debate his Cauſe with or before him, and in that caſe did not doubt to maintain it, but could not obtain the favour or juſtice of a fair hearing. n Whereas the reverence which he oweth to God, and his infinite diſtance from him ſhould teach him to be very modeſt and ſparing in his Speeches of God, Job on the contrary poureth forth whole floods of bold and preſumptuous Expoſtulations with God, and Reflections upon God's proceedings with him.

CHAP. XXXV.

Our good or evil extendeth not to God, 1——7. but to men on earth who are hereby oppreſſed, and cry out, but not unto God, nor are delivered, 8——12. He exhorteth to hope in God, though for the preſent he be angry, 13——16.

ELihu ſpake moreover and ſaid,

2 Thinkeſt thou this to be right a, that thou ſaidſt, My righteouſneſs is more than Gods b?

a Canſt thou in thy Conſcience, upon ſecond Thoughts, approve of what thou haſt ſaid? b Not that Job ſaid this in expreſs terms, but he ſaid thoſe things from which this might ſeem to follow, as that God puniſhed him more than he deſerved or expected, all things conſidered; and that if he might be admitted to debate his cauſe with or before God, he did not doubt to carry it, and to obtain that eaſe and favour from God, which otherwiſe God would not afford him. But this Charge againſt Job he proves in the next verſe.

* Ch. 34. 9.

‖ Or, by it more than by my ſin.

3 For * thou ſaidſt, c What advantage will it d be unto thee e? and what profit ſhall I have ‖ if I be cleanſed from my ſin f?

c This verſe contains the proof of the foregoing Charges: Job had oft affirmed, that he was and ſtill continued to be Righteous, though he had no preſent benefit by it, but much bitterneſs with it: and God was not kind to Job notwithſtanding all his former and preſent Piety, but dealt with him as if he had been a moſt wicked Man: which was in effect to ſay, That he was more righteous than God. d To wit, his Righteouſneſs laſt mentioned. e i. e. Unto me; ſuch changes of Perſons being very frequent in the Hebrew Language. f Or, by the expiation of my ſin: for the ſame Hebrew word ſignifies both to ſin and to purge out or expiate ſin. Or, by it (to wit, by my righteouſneſs) more than by my ſin. So the ſence is, I have no more preſent benefit by all my care to pleaſe and ſerve God, than wicked men have by their ſins againſt him. God regards my cries no more than theirs, and ſhews no more kindneſs or pity to me, than he doth to the moſt profligate Wretches. But ſtill remember Job ſpeaks not here of the future life, wherein he knew he ſhould have much advantage, as he profeſſed before, but only of this preſent ſtate.

† Heb. I will return to the Word.

4 † I will anſwer thee, and thy companions g with thee.

g i. e. Thoſe who are of thy opinion, or with whom thou doſt aſſociate thy ſelf in thoſe Speeches and Carriages. Which ſeems to be meant not of Job's three Friends (as many underſtand it, for their opinions were contrary to Job's in this point) but of wicked men, with whom Job is ſaid to walk and go in company for this ſame opinion or aſſertion, Chap. 34. 8, 9. And theſe men he here calls Job's companions, partly becauſe they are very forward to harp upon the ſame ſtring, and to accuſe God and juſtifie themſelves upon all occaſions; and partly, that he might awaken Job to a more ſerious review of his former aſſertions, by repreſenting to him, whoſe Cauſe he pleaded, and who were his Confederates and Colleagues in this Opinion.

5 * Look unto the heavens, and ſee, and behold the † clouds which are higher than thou h.

h How much more is God, who is far above all Heavens, higher than thou? And therefore God is out of the reach of all profit or loſs by thy actions; if thy goodneſs do not profit thee, it is certain it doth not profit him; and therefore doth not lay any Obligation upon him to indulge or recompence thee for it, ſave only ſo far as he hath graciouſly obliged himſelf: and therefore thou canſt not accuſe him of injuſtice for afflicting thee, nor pretend that thou haſt deſerved better uſage from him. And this infinite diſtance between God and thee, ſhould cauſe thee to think and ſpeak more modeſtly and reverently of that glorious Majeſty.

6 If thou ſinneſt, what doeſt thou againſt him i? or if thy tranſgreſſions be multiplied, what doeſt thou unto him?

i Thy ſins do him no hurt, and therefore thy righteouſneſs brings him no benefit, as it follows.

* Ch. 22. 3. Pſal. 16. 2. Rom. 11. 35.

7 * If thou be righteous what giveſt thou him? or what receiveth he of thine hand k?

k He gaineth nothing by it, nor can indeed receive any good from thee, becauſe all thy good comes from him. And therefore thou haſt no reaſon to boaſt of, nor to upbraid God with thy Piety, which is much to thy advantage, but nothing to his.

8 Thy wickedneſs may hurt a man as thou art l, and thy righteouſneſs may profit the ſon of man.

l If God were ſuch an one as thou art, he might have benefit or hurt by thine actions: but being an infinite, independent and ſelf-ſufficient being, he is far exalted above all thy good or evil.

9 By reaſon of the multitude m of oppreſſions, they make the oppreſſed to cry n: they cry out by reaſon of the arm of the mighty o.

m Or, greatneſs. This verſe is ſuppoſed to contain an Argument to prove what he ſaid, v. 8. that one Mans wickedneſs may hurt another. But he rather ſeems to begin a new matter, and having anſwered one of Job's Objections, to proceed to another, which may be either 1. That which Job had oft complained of, that he cried to God, and God did not hear his cry; which Elihu anſwers by a Parallel caſe of men, crying out for oppreſſion; whom yet God doth not hear, nor help, and that for juſt reaſons, which he leaves to Job to apply to himſelf. Or, 2. that which Job had alledged, Chap. 24. 12. and which might ſeem to reflect upon God's Providence. This therefore Elihu repeats in this verſe, and anſwereth in the following. n Not only to murmur and complain, but to cry out by reaſon of ſore oppreſſion, and to cry to the Oppreſſours, or others for pity and help. o Becauſe their Oppreſſours are too ſtrong for them.

* Pſal. 42. 8

10 But none p ſaith q, Where is God r my Maker s? who giveth * ſongs t in the night u!

p Few or none (for few are oft called and accounted as none, both in Scripture and other Authors) of the great numbers of oppreſſed Perſons. q To wit, ſeriouſly or ſincerely, and it may be not ſo much as in word and profeſſion. r They howl and cry out of men, and to men, but they ſeek not after God, they do not acknowledge him in all their ways: they praiſe him not for that eaſe, and liberty, and eſtate, and other mercies which God gave them; and by this unthankfulneſs they forfeit their mercies; and therefore if God ſuffer Oppreſſours to take them away, they have no cauſe to complain of God, but only of themſelves: they will not vouchſafe to pray to God ſeriouſly and fervently, either to continue or to reſtore their loſt mercies; and therefore if God do not hear, nor regard their brutiſh cries ariſing only from a natural ſenſe of their miſery, it is not ſtrange nor unjuſt. s Who alone made me, and whoſe Power and Providence preſerveth me every day, and who only can protect and deliver me. All which were Obligations upon them to praiſe God and pray to him, and depend upon him, and aggravations of their groſs neglect of God. Heb. my Makers, in the Plural Number. Which being uſed not only here, but alſo, Eccleſ. 12. 1. Iſa. 54. 5. and that without any neceſſity, when it might as well have been put in the ſingular number, yea though Elohim be Plural, as it is Gen. 1. 1. plainly implies a Plurality of Perſons in the Divine Eſſence, of which ſee on Gen. 1. 26. t i. e. Matter of Songs: great occaſion to rejoyce and praiſe God. u Either 1. Metaphorically taken, i. e. in the night of affliction; implying that they want not cauſe to bleſs God even in their afflictions. Or rather 2. Properly, as this word is always uſed in Job, one place excepted which is doubtful, to wit, Chap. 36. 20. which he may mention rather than the day; either becauſe oppreſſed Perſons, who in the day time are cruelly uſed by their Oppreſſours, are permitted to reſt in the night: or becauſe the Hand and Mercy of God is more manifeſt in the preſervation, and reſt, and ſleep of the Night, than in the Bleſſings of the Day, which are procured by Man's induſtry: or becauſe the Day is the time of Action, the Night of Contemplation, when we do and ought to remember God's Mercies with Thankſgiving: Compare Pſal. 42.8. & 119.62.

11 Who teacheth us more then the beaſts x of the earth, and maketh us wiſer then the fowls of heaven.

x This is mentioned as a further aggravation of Mens neglect of God in their Miſery. God hath given to Men thoſe Gifts which he hath denied to Beaſts, Reaſon and Religion, Wiſdom to know God and themſelves, and their Obligations to God, and their dependance upon him. And therefore it ill becometh them to lye like Brute-creatures, roaring and crying out in their Miſeries, without taking any notice of God in way of Prayer or Praiſe; and if they do ſo, it is no wonder if God takes no notice of them.

12 There y they cry, (but none giveth anſwer) becauſe of the pride of evil men z.

y Or, Then, as this Particle is uſed, Pſal. 14.5. Eccleſ. 3. 17. Zeph. 1.14. In that time or condition. z Either 1. of the Oppreſſours. So this is the reaſon not of the laſt Clauſe, why none anſwereth, but of the former why they cry, the latter Clauſe being therefore ſhut up within a Parentheſis, and the words thus are to be tranſpoſed, as ſome place them; There they cry, becauſe of the pride of evil men, but none giveth anſwer. The reaſon whereof followeth in the next verſe. Or rather 2. of the oppreſſed Perſons. And ſo there is no need of any Parentheſis, or Tranſpoſition. And ſo theſe words contain one reaſon of the words immediately foregoing, which is moſt natural and eaſie, and uſual, to wit, why none giveth anſwer, i.e. why God doth not anſwer nor regard their cries, becauſe of their Pride, &c. becauſe they are both evil, wicked and impenitent, and proud, unhumbled for thoſe ſins for which God brought theſe Miſeries upon them, and unſubdued to the Obedience of God.

*Ch.27.9. Prov.1.28. & 15.29. Isa.1.13. Jer.11.11. 13 * Surely God will not hear vanity a, neither will the Almighty b regard it.

a Either 1. vain and light Perſons, that have no true Wiſdom or ſolid Piety in them, but are wholly addicted to vain and worldly things, rejoycing immoderately when they have them, and crying out for want of them, as here they do. Or 2. vain cries, which proceed not from Faith or Piety, but only from Self-love and a Natural Senſe of their Miſery; which is common to them with Brute-beaſts. The Abſtract is here put for the Concrete, as wickedneſs is oft put for wicked men, and pride for proud Perſons, and the like. b Though God be able to help them, as this title of God implies, and though he be the Judge of the World, as the former Name of God ſignifies, to whom therefore it belongs to right the Oppreſſed againſt the Oppreſſour, yet in this caſe he juſtly refuſeth to help them.

14 Although thou ſayeſt, thou ſhalt not ſee him c, yet judgment is before him d, therefore truſt thou in him e.

c Or, thou canſt not ſee him; the Future Tenſe of the Indicative Mood being oft put potentially; i.e. Thou canſt not have thy deſire in appearing and pleading thy Cauſe before him. So this is a new matter, and Elihu anſwers another Objection of Job's: of which ſee Chap. 23. 8, 9. and tells him that he is not to judge of God by preſent appearance; becauſe though God may for a ſeaſon hide his Face, and delay to give him an anſwer, yet he will certainly do him right. d i.e. Before God, or in his Preſence, or at his Tribunal, or in all his Ways and Adminiſtrations: And Judgment is put for Juſtice or juſt Judgment, as it is Job 8. 3. Pſal. 37.28. & 99. 4. and oft elſewhere. So the ſenſe is, God is and will ſhew himſelf to be juſt in all his ways, and therefore thou doſt wickedly in reflecting upon God's Juſtice. Or, yet judge thy ſelf before him: inſtead of accuſing God, condemn thy ſelf, acknowledge thy ſins, and then thou maiſt hope for Mercy. Compare 1 Cor. 11. 31. e Inſtead of murmuring againſt him, put thy truſt in him. Repent of what is paſt, and humble thy ſelf under God's hand, and do not deſpond for the future, but wait upon God patiently in his way till deliverance come to thee; for it will certainly come if thou doſt not hinder it.

|| That is, God. || That is, Job. 15 But now becauſe it is not ſo f, || he g hath viſited in his anger h, yet || he knoweth it not i in great extremity k.

f i. e. Becauſe Job doth not acknowledge God's Juſtice and his own Sins, and wait upon God in his way for Mercy, according to the laſt advice given to him, v. 14. g To wit, God, to whom this great Work of viſiting is aſcribed every where in Scripture. h i. e. Hath laid grievous Afflictions upon him; all which is too little to bring Job to compliance with God. i Job is not ſufficiently ſenſible of it, ſo as to be humbled under God's hand. k Or, though (which Particle is ſometimes underſtood, of which Examples have been before) in great extremity, or abundance, to wit, of Afflictions. Though Job hath hitherto been and ſtill is exerciſed with very ſore Calamities, yet they have not brought Job to the knowledge of God and of himſelf. But this verſe is and may be rendred thus; And now know that his (i. e. God's) anger hath viſited thee little or nothing, (to wit, in compariſon of what thou haſt deſerved and mighteſt reaſonably expect) neither hath he known (i. e. judged or puniſhed, as this word is uſed, Prov. 10.9. and elſewhere) thee in or according to (as the prefix Beth is ſometimes uſed) the great abundance, to wit, of thy ſins. And therefore thy Complaints againſt God are very unrighteous and unreaſonable.

16 Therefore l doth Job open his mouth in vain m: he multiplieth words without knowledge n.

l Hence it is manifeſt. m i. e. Pour forth his Complaints without any ſucceſs, and gets no eaſe by them. n Thereby diſcovering his ignorance of God and of himſelf.

CHAP. XXXVI.

God is juſt in all his ways; towards the wicked, 1——6. the godly, 7——11. the hypocrite, 12——14. the poor, 15. Job's ſins hindred God's ſalvation to him: he admoniſheth him, 16——21. God's power and ſoveraignty, and all his perfections to be magnified, 22--33.

ELihu alſo proceeded, and ſaid,

2 Suffer me a little a, and I will ſhew thee † that I have yet to ſpeak on Gods behalf b. † Heb. that there are yet words for God.

a Give me thy patient attention but a little longer, and I have done. b That I have not ſaid all that can be ſaid to juſtifie God's proceedings againſt thee.

3 I will fetch my knowledge from afar c, and will aſcribe righteouſneſs to my maker d.

c i. e. From remote times, and places, and things. I will not confine my Diſcourſe to thy particular Caſe, but will juſtifie God by declaring his great and glorious Works of Creation and Providence both in the Heaven and Earth, and the manner of his dealing with men in other Parts and Ages of the World: for theſe are the chief Heads of the following Diſcourſe, and therefore the beſt Comment upon this General Expreſſion. d I will acknowledge that which is true, that God is Righteous. He adds the words, my Maker, either 1. as an Argument or Evidence of God's Righteouſneſs; partly becauſe it is not likely that God ſhould be unjuſt to his own Creatures, ſince even Men are not only juſt, but kind to their own Works and Relations: and partly becauſe the Work of Creation gave unto God an abſolute right and power to diſpoſe of Job as he ſaw fit, as the Potter hath power over the Clay, Rom. 9. 21. and therefore there was no foundation for Unrighteouſneſs, nor any temptation upon God to do it: and partly becauſe Man's Maker muſt needs be a Being of all poſſible Perfection, and therefore one of perfect Righteouſneſs. Or, 2. as a Motive or Obligation upon him to plead God's Cauſe. I do not engage my ſelf in this Controverſie out of a pragmatical or contentious humour, nor out of any prejudice or ill will to thee, but meerly from the ſenſe of my duty to my bleſſed Creator. Withal, he reflects upon Job as guilty of great folly and ingratitude in contending with him, in or by whom he lived, and moved, and had his being.

4 For truly, my words ſhall not be falſe e: * he that *Ch.37.16 is perfect in knowledge is with thee f.

e I will not ſpeak any thing againſt my own Conſcience, nor againſt Truth, either to flatter God, or to vex thee, as thou ſuppoſeſt thy other Friends have done, Chap. 13.7. and elſewhere. f This is meant either 1. of God. Thou haſt to do with a God of perfect Knowledge, by whom all thy words and actions are weighed; and therefore haſt need to be more wary and circumſpect in thy expreſſions and behaviour. Or rather 2. of himſelf, as the former part of the verſe is. And he ſpeaketh of himſelf in the third Perſon for modeſties ſake. He ſpeaks not of abſolute, but of comparative Perfection. And whatſoever perfection of Knowledge he had, he doth not aſcribe it to himſelf, but to God's Spirit, Chap. 32.8. And the meaning may be this; Thou haſt not to do with a Novice, but with one who hath accurately conſidered, and through God's grace doth fully underſtand theſe matters, Therefore hearken to me. But the word rendred perfect ſignifieth alſo ſincere or upright, or right. And this may ſeem beſt to agree with the former Clauſe, wherein he ſaith that he would not ſpeak what he knew to be falſe; and now he adds, That he was and would be upright in the uſe of his knowledge, or in the delivery of his opinion in this matter, and not be byaſſed by any paſſion or prejudice, either to ſpeak otherwiſe than he thought, or to judge otherwiſe than he ſhould.

5 Behold, God is mighty, and deſpiſeth not any g:
* he is mighty in ſtrength and † wiſdom h. *Ch. 9.4. & 12.13, 16. & 37.23. † Heb. heart.

g His greatneſs doth not make him (as it doth men) to ſcorn, or deſpiſe, or oppreſs the meaneſt. Though he may do what he pleaſeth, and none can hinder him, yet he will not uſe it to do any Man wrong, as Job ſeemed to inſinuate, Chap. 10.3. & 19.7. & 23.13. h His Strength is guided by Wiſdom, and therefore cannot be imployed to do any thing unbecoming God, or unjuſt to his Creatures; for either of theſe is folly. Or, in ſtrength, or vertue of heart: for the and is not in the Hebrew. So the ſenſe is, He is truly magnanimous, of a great and generous Mind or Heart, and therefore not Unrighteous: for all Injuſtice proceeds from littleneſs or weakneſs of heart. Truly great Souls ſcorn unjuſt actions.

6 He preſerveth not the life of the wicked i: but giveth right to the || poor k. || Or, afflicted.

alted o.

l He never ceaſeth to care for and watch over them, no not when they are afflicted or perſecuted, when he may ſeem to neglect them. m Though they may be oppreſſed for a time, yet oft times he not only delivers them, but alſo raiſeth them to the higheſt Honour and Happineſs in this Life; Compare 1 Sam. 2. 8. Pſal. 113.7, 8. n Their Felicity is more ſtable and permanent than that of the wicked. o Having mentioned the Cauſe, that God did eſtabliſh them; he now mentions the effect, that they are or continue to be exalted: they are not caſt down from their Dignity, as the wicked commonly are.

8 And * if they be bound in fetters p, and be holden * Psal.107.
in cords of affliction: 10.

p If through the viciſſitude of Wordly Affairs, and the Righteous Judgment of God upon them for their ſins, they be brought from their Throne into a Priſon, as ſometimes hath been done.

9 Then he ſheweth them their work q, and their tranſgreſſions, that they have exceeded r.

q i. e. Their evil Works, as the next Clauſe explains and limits it. By theſe Afflictions he brings them to a ſight of their Sins and to Repentance, which is the way and means of their recovery. r That they have greatly ſinned by abuſing their Power and Proſperity; which even good men are too prone to do.

*Ch.33.16. 10 * He openeth alſo their ear s to diſcipline t, and commandeth u that they return from iniquity x.

s i. e. He enableth and enclineth them to hearken to what God ſpeaks by the rod, who would not hear in the time of their Proſperity: like them, Jer. 22. 21. t Or, to inſtruction, i. e. to receive inſtruction: or to chaſtening, i. e. to hear the rod, and who hath appointed it; as is ſaid, Mich. 6. 9. u Either by his Word or Spirit accompanying the Affliction and diſcovering the Mind and Will of God in this Diſpenſation. x Which is the chief Cauſe of their Calamity.

*Ch.21.13 11 If they obey y and ſerve him, they ſhall * ſpend their days in proſperity z, and their years in pleaſures a.

y God's Admonition and Command. z They ſhall be reſtored to their former Proſperity, and ſhall live and die in it. This he ſpeaks according to the Tenour of God's Promiſes, eſpecially in the Old Teſtament ſtate of the Church, and according to the common courſe and method of God's Providence, which Elihu and other good men had obſerved. a Abounding in worldly Comforts, and being enabled by God to rejoyce in them, which is God's gift, Ecclef. 3. 13. and delighting themſelves in God's love and favour to them.

† Heb. they ſhall paſs away by the Sword. Ch.33.18. 12 But if they b obey not, † they ſhall periſh by the ſword, and they ſhall die without knowledge c.

b The Righteous ſpoken of v. 7. oppoſed to the Hypocrites here following, v. 13. for even good men may ſometimes be diſobedient to Divine Admonitions, and may ſuffer deeply, yea, even Death it ſelf, for their folly; See 1 Cor. 11. 30. c In or for their ignorance or inadvertency or folly. Or, becauſe they are without knowledge: becauſe they are fooliſh, or brutiſh, and will not learn the Leſſons which God ſo plainly teacheth them.

*Rom.2.5. 13 But the hypocrites in heart d * heap up wrath e: they cry not f when he bindeth them g d Such as are truly void of that Piety which they profeſs. Whereby he either ſecretly inſinuates that Job was ſuch an one: or gives him this occaſion to ſearch himſelf whether he were not ſo: or rather admoniſheth him not to carry himſelf like ſuch an one, as he had hitherto done, and for which he reproved him, Chap. 34. 8. e i. e. By their impious and obſtinate carriage in all Conditions, they treaſure up God's wrath againſt themſelves. f Unto God for help. They live in the groſs neglect of God, and of Prayer. g To wit, with the Cords of Affliction, expreſſed, v. 8. which is mentioned as an Aggravation of their Wickedneſs: becauſe even wicked men, if not profligately bad, will ſeek God in a time of Affliction, Hoſea 5. 15. Withal he ſecretly reflects upon Job as one that behaved himſelf like a wicked Man, becauſe though he cried out of God in way of Complaint, yet he did not cry unto him by humble Supplication.

*Ch.15.32 & 22.16. Pſ.55.23. † Heb. their ſoul dieth. ‖ Or, Sodomites. 14 * † They die in youth h, and their life is i among the ‖ unclean k.

h They provoke God to cut them off before their time. Heb. Their Soul (i. e. they themſelves) ſhall die in youth. i Or, their life ſhall die or be extinct: which Verb is underſtood out of the former Clauſe after the manner of the Hebrews. k Or, the filthy, or Whoremongers, or Sodomites; to whoſe deſtruction (which happened not long before this time) he may ſeem to allude. The ſame is, They ſhall die by ſome dreadful and exemplary ſtroke of Divine Vengeance.

‖ Or, afflicted. 15 He delivereth the ‖ poor in his affliction, and openeth their ears l in oppreſſion m.

l i. e. Cauſeth them to hear, and underſtand, and do the will of God; hearing being oft put for obeying. And this latter Clauſe ſeems to be added to intimate, that he will not deliver all afflicted Perſons, but only thoſe whoſe Ears he openeth to receive his Counſels. m i. e. In the time of their oppreſſion. Or, by oppreſſion or tribulation, as the means of opening their Ears and Hearts.

16 Even ſo would he n have removed thee o out of the p ſtrait into a broad place q, where there is no ſtraitneſs, and † * that which ſhould be ſet on thy table r, ſhould be full of fatneſs.

† Heb. the reſt of thy table. * Pſ.23.5.

n If thou hadſt opened thine Ear to God's Counſels, and humbled thy ſelf under his correcting hand, and ſued to God for Mercy. o As this Verb is uſed, 2 Chron. 18. 31. Or, allured, or inticed, or perſwaded thee, as the word properly ſignifies: which poſſibly may here be emphatical, and may imply as that Job had by his ſins brought himſelf into theſe ſtraits, ſo that God would have brought him out of them by the uſual and regular way, to wit, by perſwading him to turn from his ſins, and humbly and earneſtly to cry to God for Mercy, which if he had complied with, God would have delivered him. p Heb. out of the mouth or jaws of tribulation; which like a wild Beaſt was ready to ſwallow him up. q i. e. Into a ſtate of eaſe and freedom. r Thy Diſhes, or the Food in them.

17 But thou haſt fulfilled the judgment s of the wicked: ‖ judgment and juſtice take hold on thee t.

‖ Or, judgment and juſtice, ſhould uphold thee.

s Or, the cauſe, or ſentence, as the word moſt properly ſignifieth. Thou haſt fully pleaded their Cauſe, and juſtified the hard and reproachful Speeches which wicked men in their rage utter againſt God, condemning God and juſtifying themſelves. t Or, therefore (which is oft underſtood) the ſentence and judgment (or, the judicial ſentence, to wit, of the wicked now mentioned) ſhall take hold on thee. Thou haſt maintained their Cauſe againſt God, and God ſhall paſs againſt thee their Sentence, or the Sentence of Condemnation due to ſuch wicked men.

18 Becauſe there is wrath u, beware x leſt he take thee away with his ſtroke y: then * a great ranſom cannot † deliver thee z. * Pſ.49.7. † Heb. turn thee aſide.

u To wit, conceived by God againſt thee. Becauſe by thy pleading the Cauſe of the wicked, thou haſt deſerved that God ſhould give Sentence againſt thee, as was now ſaid, and haſt provoked God's wrath againſt thee, therefore look to thy ſelf, and reconcile thy ſelf to God by true Repentance whilſt thou maiſt, and before Sentence be executed upon thee. x This is not in the Hebrew, but is neceſſarily to be underſtood to make up the ſence, and is oft underſtood in the like caſes, and that before this Hebrew Particle Pen, as Gen. 3. 22. & 11. 4. & 42. 4. Iſa. 36. 18. See the like alſo, Matth. 25. 9. Acts 5. 39. y Properly, with the ſtroke of his hand or foot. It is an alluſion to men who oft expreſs their anger by clapping their hands, or ſtamping with their feet. z For if once God's Wrath take hold of thee, and ſentence be executed upon thee before thou doſt repent and humble thy ſelf to thy Judge, neither Riches, nor Friends, no nor any Perſon, or thing in Heaven and Earth can redeem thee; no Ranſom or Price will be accepted for thee.

19 Will he eſteem thy riches? no not Gold, nor all the forces of ſtrength a.

a If thou couldſt recover thy loſt wealth or ſtrength, or thy Friends would employ theirs on thy behalf, neither could the one ranſom thee, nor the other reſcue thee.

20 * Deſire not the night b, when c people d * are cut off e in their place f. * Ch. 7. 4. * Ch. 34. 20

b Either 1. properly, that in it thou maiſt find ſome eaſe or reſt, as men uſually do. But this Job did not much deſire, for he complains that his Nights were as reſtleſs as his Days. Or rather 2. metaphorically, the Night of Death, which is called the Night both in Scripture, as John 9. 4. and in other Writers; and which Job had oft and earneſtly deſired, and even thirſted after, as this Verb notes. See Chap. 7. 15. And this ſeems beſt to agree with the foregoing Counſel, v. 18. beware leſt he take thee away with his ſtroke, for then, ſaith he, thou art irrecoverably loſt and gone; and therefore take heed of thy fooliſh and oft repeated deſire of death, leſt God inflict it upon thee in great anger. c Or, by which: which words are oft underſtood in divers Texts of Scripture. d Even whole Nations and Bodies of People, which are all God's Creatures as well as thou, and yet are not ſpared by him, but cut off in wrath, and many of them ſent from one death to another; take heed therefore thou beeſt not added to the number. e Heb. are made to aſcend, i. e. to vaniſh, or periſh, or die, as this Verb is oft uſed, as Job 18. 16. Pſal. 102. 25. f In their ſeveral places where they are: or, ſuddenly before they can remove out of the Place where the hand and ſtroke of God finds them: or, in the Place where they are ſettled and ſurrounded with all manner of Comforts, and Supports, and Friends, all which could not prevent their being cut off. Poſſibly this phraſe may allude to that expreſſion of Job's, Chap. 29. 18. I ſhall die in my neſt.

21 Take heed, regard not g iniquity: for this haſt thou choſen rather than affliction h.

g Or look not to it, to wit, with an approving or coveting eye, as this word is uſed, Prov. 23. 31. h Thou haſt choſen rather to quarrel with God, and cenſure his Judgments, than humbly and quietly to ſubmit to them, and to wait upon God by Faith and Prayer for deliverance in his time and way.

22 Behold, God exalteth i by his power: * who teacheth like him k? * Pſal.119. 12, 26, 27. Iſa.40.13. Rom. 11. 34. 1 Cor. 2.16.

i Or, is high, or exalted, the active Verb being taken intranſitively; which is not unuſual in the Hebrew Tongue. This is a proper Argument to force the foregoing Counſels. God is Omnipotent; and therefore can with great facility, either puniſh thee far worſe, if thou beeſt obſtinate and refractory; or deliver thee, if thou doſt repent and return to him. k He is alſo infinitely wiſe as well as powerful, and as none can work like him, ſo none can teach like him. Therefore do not preſume to teach him how to govern the World, or to order thy Affairs; but know that whatſoever he doth with thee, or with any other men, is beſt to be done. And therefore be willing to learn from him: learn Obedience by the things which thou ſuffereſt from him; and do not follow thy own Fancies or Affections, but uſe the Methods which God hath taught thee to get out of thy Troubles, by Submiſſion, and Prayer, and Repentance. The words may be rendred, What Lord is like him? For the word Moreh in the Chaldee dialect ſignifies a Lord. This Tranſlation ſuits with the former Clauſe of this verſe, but ours agrees well enough with that, and is confirmed by the following verſe.

23 * Who hath enjoyned him his way l? or * who can ſay, Thou haſt wrought iniquity m? * Ch. 34. 13 * Ch. 34. 10

l Wherein he would walk, i. e. what Courſes and Methods he ſhould uſe in the Adminiſtration of Human Affairs? If he had a Superiour Lord who gave him Laws for his Actions, he might be accountable to him, and queſtionable for what he did: but he is Supream, Abſolute and Uncontroulable, who hath no Law to regulate him, but his own holy Nature and bleſſed Will. And therefore how raſh and impudent, and abſurd a thing is it for any Man to cenſure his proceedings m? Thou haſt ſwerved from the Law and Rule given to thee.

24 Remember n that o thou magnifie his work p, which men behold q?

n Call to mind this thy duty, and take this matter into thy more ſerious thoughts, and it will prevent thy horrible Miſtakes and Miſcarriages. o So this Hebrew Particle is uſed here, v. 10. & Job 3. 12. p Or, his works, the Singular Number being put for the Plural; every work which he doth; do not condemn any of his Providential Works towards thee or others, but adore and glorifie them as done with admirable Wiſdom, and Juſtice, and Faithfulneſs. q To wit, with admiration and aſtoniſhment: which by their greatneſs and glory draw the eyes and minds of all men towards them: which deſerve to be entertained with adoration and reverence of all men, not with cenſure and reproach.

25 Every man may ſee it r: man may behold it afar off s.

r To wit, his work, laſt mentioned. The Power, and Wiſdom, and Greatneſs of God is ſo manifeſt in all his Works, that all who are not blind or ſtupid, muſt needs ſee and acknowledge it. s The Works of God are ſo great and conſpicuous, that they may be ſeen at a great diſtance; whereas little things cannot be ſeen, unleſs we be near them. This Tranſlation and Interpretation ſeems better to agree with the Context than that which is more common, Man doth behold it (i. e. God's Work or Works) afar off, i. e. They ſee them darkly and imperfectly, as things at a great diſtance, but not clearly and plainly as things near at hand, and therefore they are ſo apt to miſtake them, and misjudge of them.

26 Behold, God is great t, and we know him not u;
* neither can the number of his years be ſearched out x. * Pſ. 90.2. & 102.24, 27. Heb. 1. 12.

t Infinite in Majeſty, and Power, and Wiſdom, and all Perfections, and therefore juſt in all his Ways. u To wit, perfectly. Though we ſee ſomething of him in his Works, as was now ſaid, yet we ſee and know but little of him in compariſon of that which is in him. He is incomprehenſibly great in his Eſſence and in his Works, and therefore be not ſo raſh, O Job, as to cenſure thoſe Ways of God which thou canſt not fully underſtand. x He is from everlaſting to everlaſting eternal, as in his Being, ſo in all his Counſels; which therefore muſt be infinitely wiſe and above the comprehenſion of ſhort-liv'd men.

27 For y he maketh ſmall the drops of water y, they z pour down a rain according to the vapour thereof b:

y Having affirmed that God's Works are incomprehenſibly great and glorious, he now enters upon the proof of it; and he proveth it from the moſt common and viſible Works of Nature and Providence, which if throughly conſidered, are full of wonder, and paſt the reach of the greateſt Philoſophers, who indeed ſpeak of them only by gueſs, and by their innumerable Diſputations about them diſcover their ignorance in them. And hence he leaves it to Job to conſider how incomparably more deep and unconceiveable the ſecret Counſels and Judgments of God muſt needs be, and therefore how fooliſh and preſumptuous a thing it was for him to judge and cenſure them. y i. e. He orders matters ſo wiſely and graciouſly, that the Waters which are in the Clouds, do not fall down at once in Spouts, or Rivers, or Seas; which would be both unprofitable and pernicious to the Earth and to Mankind; but by degrees, and in drops; which is beſt for mens ſafety and comfort, and for the refreſhment of the Earth. And this he obſerves as a wonderful Work of God, without whoſe Providence herein thoſe Waters might conſtantly or commonly fall in Spouts, as ſometimes part of them hath done. z Either the Waters, laſt mentioned; or the Clouds, as it is expreſſed in the next verſe: or the Active Verb is uſually impersonally, which is frequent in the Hebrew Language, they pour down rain, for, the rain is poured down. a Or, melt or diſſolve, which word is borrowed from Metaliſts, who diſſolve Metals with Fire, and then pour them forth by degrees and in parcels; as the Clouds are diſſolved, and then poured forth in drops, as was now expreſſed. b i.e. According to the proportion of Vapours which the heat of the Sun hath drawn up from the Earth or Sea into the Clouds. Or, into the vapour thereof. So it notes that great Work of God by which the Rain is firſt made of Vapours, and afterwards reſolved into Vapours, or into the matter of ſucceeding Vapours, by a conſtant rotation and reciprocation.

CHAP. XXXVII.

God's great Works, Lightning, Thunder, Snow, Rain, Winds, Froſt, Clouds, and his Providences towards Nations, whether for Correction or Mercy, call for reverence and fear, 1——14. as alſo his unſearchable Wiſdom in them, 15——18. We are ignorant, and cannot ſpeak to God; but muſt fear him who reſpecteth none, 19——24.

AT this alſo a my heart trembleth, and is moved out of his place b.

p By his powerful Word and Will the Snow is made in the Air, and falls upon the Earth where and when he ſeeth fit. q i. e. Thoſe great ſtorms or ſhowers of Rain which come with great force and irreſiſtible violence.

7 He ſealeth up the hand of every man r, that all men may know his work s.

r By theſe great Snows and Rains he drives men out of the Fields, and ſeals or binds up their hands from all that Work, and drives them home to their Houſes, and in a manner ſhuts them up there. See Gen. 7. 16. Exod. 9. 19. Or, By his Hand, or Power (i. e. By thoſe powerful Works of his Hand here mentioned) he ſealeth, or ſhutteth up, or keepeth cloſe every man, to wit, in his Houſe, as the Beaſts in their Dens, v. 8. s That Men being hindered from action and their own work, and ſo being idle and at perfect leiſure, may fall to a ſerious contemplation of theſe, and other great and glorious Works of God. Or, that he (i. e. every man, as was now expreſſed) may know (or enquire into, or take an account of) all his workmen: for which the proper ſeaſon is when they are all hindred from their work, and brought together into the Houſe.

8 Then t the beaſts go into dens u, and remain in their places.

x Heb. out of the inner chamber; as the Southern part of the World is called, becauſe in a great part it was, and is hid and unknown to thoſe who live in the Northern Hemiſphere, in which Job's habitation lay; Or, out of the Chambers of the South, as it is more largely expreſſed, Job 9. 9. for this is oppoſed to the North in the following Clauſe. y Violent and ſtormy Winds: which in thoſe parts moſt frequently came out of the South, whence they are called whirlwinds of the South, Zech. 9. 14. So alſo Iſa. 21. 1. z i. e. Cold and freezing Winds, which generally come from that quarter.

* Chap. 38. 29, 30. Pſal. 147. 17, 18.

a i. e. By the Word of God, as this very Phraſe is explained, Pſal. 33. 6. By his will or appointment, to which as the principal cauſe, all theſe Works are aſcribed. b The Froſt dries up the Waters in great meaſure, and bringeth the remainder into a narrower compaſs, as we ſee.

‖ Or, clearneſs wearieth.
† Heb. the cloud of his light.
‖ Or, the cloud ſcattereth his rain. Iſa. 18. 4.

11 Alſo by ‖ watering c he wearieth the thick clouds d: he ſcattereth † ‖ his bright cloud e.

c To wit, the Earth. By cauſing them firſt to receive and return, and then to pour forth abundance of Water. d By filling and burdening them with much Water, and making them to go long Journeys to water remote parts, and at laſt to ſpend and empty themſelves there: all which things make men weary; and therefore are here ſaid to make the Clouds weary by a common figure called Proſopopœia. e As for the white and lightſome Clouds (which are oppoſed to the thick and black Clouds in the former Clauſe) he ſcattereth and diſſolveth them by the Wind or Sun. Or, he ſcattereth other Clouds by his light, i. e. by the beams of the Sun. So he gathereth ſome, and ſcattereth others, as he pleaſeth, cauſing either clear, or dark, and rainy weather.

12 And it is turned round about f by his counſels g: that they may do whatſoever he commandeth them h upon the face of the world in the Earth.

f The Clouds (now mentioned) are carried about to this or that place. g Not by chance (though nothing ſeems to be more caſual and uncertain than the motions of the Clouds) but by his order and governance. h Either be diſperſed and paſs away without effect to the diſappointment of the Husbandmens hopes, or be diſſolved in ſweet and fruitful ſhowers.

* Exod. 9. 18, 23. 1 Sam. 12. 18, 19. Ezr. 10. 9. Chap. 36. 27, &c.

13 * He cauſeth it to come i, whether for † correction k, or for his land l, or for mercy m.

i Heb. He maketh it (to wit, the Cloud or Clouds, and the Rain which is in it) to find, to wit, a path, or to find out the Perſons or Place to which God intends either good or hurt by it. k Heb. for a rod, to ſcourge or correct men by immoderate ſhowers. Or, for a Tribe, or certain Portion of Land, which God intends particularly to puniſh in that kind. l i. e. For God's Land, whereby he underſtands, either 1. The Land which he favoureth, and where his Servants live, ſuch as Canaan was, which for that reaſon God bleſſed with Rain, as is noted Deut. 11. 12. Pſal. 68. 9, 10. But in Job's time God's People were not in Canaan, but in Egypt, where little or no Rain fell. Or, 2. The uninhabited or deſert parts of the World, which may be called God's Land peculiarly, becauſe it is immediately and only under God's care, as being not regarded nor poſſeſſed by any man. For it is noted as a ſpecial act of God's Providence, that he cauſeth Rain to fall upon ſuch places, Job 38. 26, 27. Or 3. his Earth, as it may be rendred, to wit, the whole Earth, which is ſaid to be the Lord's, Pſal. 24. 1. & 50. 12. and which may be here oppoſed to a Tribe, or little part of the Earth. And ſo this may note a general Judgment by exceſſive Rains inflicted upon the whole Earth, and all its Inhabitants, even the Univerſal Deluge, which then was in a manner of freſh memory, which came in a great meaſure out of the Clouds. And thus theſe two firſt Members ſpeak of Correction, and the laſt of Mercy. m For the comfort and benefit of Mankind by cooling and cleanſing the Air and refreſhing and improving all the Fruits of the Earth, and other ways.

14 Hearken unto this, O Job: ſtand ſtill, and conſider the wondrous works of God n.

n If there be ſo much matter of wonder and adoration in the moſt obvious and ſenſible works of God, how wonderful muſt his deep and ſecret Counſels and Judgments be? And therefore it would better become thee humbly to admire, and quietly to ſubmit to them, than to murmur or quarrel with them.

15 Doſt thou know when God diſpoſed them o, and cauſed the light of his cloud to ſhine p?

o To wit, the things before mentioned, the Clouds, Rain, Snow, Thunder and Lightning, and other Meteors. Did God ask Counſel from thee to acquaint thee with his Counſels in the producing and ordering of them, when and where, and in what manner he ſhould diſpoſe them? God ordereth all theſe things not as it pleaſeth thee, but as he thinks meet; and in like manner he diſpoſeth of all human Affairs, and of thine among the reſt. p Which may be underſtood either 1. of the Light of the Sun breaking through the Clouds, when it is moſt glorious and comfortable. But though this Light break through the Clouds, yet it is very improper to call it the light of the Clouds. Or, 2. The Lightning, which is properly ſo called, as being produced by and in a Cloud. Or, 3. The Rainbow, which is a lightſom and glorious Work of God, and therefore not likely to be omitted in this place, and which is ſeated in a Cloud, which alſo may well be called God's Cloud, becauſe therein God puts his Bow, as the Rain-bow is called, Gen. 9. 13.

16 Doſt thou know the balancings q of the clouds; the wondrous works of him which is perfect in knowledge r?

q How God doth as it were weigh and ſuſpend the Clouds in Balances, ſo that although they are ponderous and full of Water, yet they are by his power kept up in the thin Air from falling down upon us in ſpouts and floods, as ſometimes they have done, and generally would do, if not over-ruled by an higher Providence. r Who exactly knows the weight. Theſe are effects and evidences of his infinite Power and Knowledge.

17 How thy garments are warm s, when he quieteth the earth t by the ſouth wind u?

s How and why thy Garments keep thee warm; of which as there are ſome natural cauſes, ſo it is certain that they are not ſufficient to do it without God's bleſſing, as experience ſhews, Hagg. 1. 6. t i. e. The Air about the Earth. u Which though ſometimes it brings Tempeſts, v. 9. yet commonly it uſhereth in hot weather, Luke 12. 55. as the North-wind brings cold, v. 9. Or, from the South-wind, i. e. from the Tempeſt which was noted to come out of the South, v. 9. Heb. from or by the South, i. e. by the Sun's coming into the Southern Parts, which makes the Air quiet and warm.

18 Haſt thou with him * ſpread out the skie x, which is ſtrong y, and as a molten looking glaſs z. * Gen. 1. 6.

x Waſt thou his Co-worker or aſſiſtant in ſpreading out the Skie like a Tent or Canopy over the Earth? Or, canſt thou ſpread out ſuch another Skie? Then indeed thou maiſt with ſome colour pretend to be privy to his Counſels, and to judge of his Works. y Which though it be very thin and tranſparent, yet is alſo firm and compact and ſtedfaſt, and of great force when it is pent up. z Made of Braſs or Steel, as the manner then was.

19 Teach us what we ſhall ſay unto him a: for we cannot * order our ſpeech b by reaſon of darkneſs c. * Ch. 32. 14

a i. e. Unto God, either by way of Apology for thee: or rather by way of debate and diſputation with him about his Counſels and Ways; about which we know not what to ſay, and therefore are willing to be taught by thee who pretendeſt to ſuch exquiſite knowledge of theſe matters. So it is a reproof of his preſumption and arrogance. b We know neither with what words or matter, nor in what method and manner, to maintain diſcourſe with him, or plead againſt him. The words our ſpeech, are eaſily underſtood out of the former Clauſe of the verſe. c Both becauſe of the darkneſs of the matter, God's counſels and ways being a great depth, and far out of our reach; and becauſe of the darkneſs or blindneſs of our minds.

20 Shall it be told him that I ſpeak d? if a man ſpeak e, ſurely he ſhall be ſwallowed up f.

d Heb. that I will ſpeak. Shall I ſend, or who dare carry a Challenge from me to God, or a Meſſage that I am ready and deſirous to debate with him concerning his proceedings? This indeed thou haſt done in effect, but far be ſuch preſumption from me. e If a Man ſhould be ſo bold and venturous to enter the Liſts with God. f With the ſenſe of God's infinite Majeſty and ſpotleſs Purity.

21 And g now h men ſee not i the bright light which is in the clouds k, but the wind paſſeth l and cleanſeth them m.

g Or, For, as this Particle is oft rendred; the following words containing a reaſon of thoſe which go before. h This Particle is either 1. A note of time, and ſo it intimates a ſudden change which then was in the Weather, which having been very dark, began now to clear up: Or rather, 2. A note of inference to uſher in the argument. i Either 1. do not obſerve (as ſeeing is oft uſed) nor conſider theſe glorious Works of God; or 2. cannot behold, or at leaſt not gaze upon it. k Or, in the Skies: For the Hebrew word ſignifies both Clouds and Skies. This is to be underſtood, either 1. of bright and lightſome Clouds: or rather 2. of the Sun, which is oft and emphatically called Light, as was noted before, and here the bright Light: which men oft times cannot behold, either when it is covered with a black and thick Cloud; or when, as it follows, the Skie is very clear, and conſequently the Sun-ſhine is very bright. And therefore it is not ſtrange if we cannot ſee God, who dwelleth in darkneſs, 1 Kings 8. 12. nor diſcern his Counſels and Ways which are covered with great obſcurity; and if we dare not approach to him, with whom is, as it here follows, terrible Majeſty; and if we preſume to do ſo, we muſt needs be ſwallowed up, as was ſaid v. 20. l Or rather, when (as this Particle is oft uſed) the wind paſſeth. m Either the Clouds, i. e. cleanſeth the Air from them: or the Skies by driving away thoſe Clouds which darkned it.

22 † Fair weather n cometh out of the north o: with God is terrible Majeſty p. † Heb. gold.

n Or, when (which Particle may well be underſtood out of the foregoing verſe; and ſo this may be a further deſcription of the time when men cannot ſee or gaze upon the Sun, namely when) fair Weather, &c. Heb. Gold, either 1. properly. And ſo this may be noted as another wonderful Work of Gold, that the choiceſt of Metals, to wit, Gold ſhould be found in and fetched out of the bowels of cold Northern Countries. Or, 2. Metaphorically, as this word is oft uſed of bright and ſhining things; as we read of golden Oyl, Zech. 4. 12. and we call happy times golden Days. And ſo bright and fair Weather may well be called golden, becauſe then the Sun gilds the Air and Earth with its beams, which alſo are called called by Poets golden Beams. o i. e. From the Northern Winds which ſcatter the Clouds, and clear the Skie, Prov. 25. 23. p And therefore we neither can nor may approach too near to him, nor ſpeak preſumptuouſly or irreverently to him, or of him. And ſo this is the Application of what he had now ſaid, that we could not ſee the Sun, &c. much leſs God: and withal it is an Epiphonema or Concluſion of the whole foregoing Diſcourſe. Thoſe glorious Works of his which I have deſcribed, are Teſtimonies of that great and terrible Majeſty which is in him; which ſhould cauſe us to fear and reverence him, and not to behave our ſelves ſo inſolently towards him, as Job hath done.

23 Touching the Almighty, * we cannot find him
*1 Tim. 6.16. out q; he * is excellent in power r, and in judgment s, *Ch.36.5. †Lam. 3. 33. and in plenty of juſtice t; † he will not afflict u.

q To wit, to perfection, as it is expreſſed Job 11. 7. We cannot comprehend him: his Being, Power, Wiſdom, Juſtice, and his Counſels proceeding from them are paſt our finding out: and therefore it is moſt abſurd and intolerable that thou, O Job, preſumeſt to cenſure what thou doſt not underſtand. r And therefore as he doth not need any unrighteous action to advance himſelf, ſo he cannot do it, becauſe all ſuch things are acts and evidences of impotency or weakneſs. s i.e. In the juſt and righteous adminiſtration of Judgment, as this word is oft uſed, and as the thing it ſelf, and the following words plainly evince. And this he adds, to intimate that although God had indeed a Power to cruſh Job, or any other Man, yet he never did nor can exerciſe that power unjuſtly or tyrannically, as Job ſeemed to inſinuate. t In great and perfect Juſtice, ſuch as no Man can juſtly reproach. u To wit, without juſt cauſe, and above meaſure: as it may and muſt be limited both from the foregoing words, and from Job's Complaint which was of that very thing; and from the nature of the thing, becauſe otherwiſe this Propoſition that God will not afflict, is not ſimply and univerſally true. Or theſe laſt words may be joyned with the former; and ſo ſome render the place, He is excellent in power, and or but, or yet, he will not afflict any Man with judgment and much (i. e. too much) juſtice, i. e. with extremity or rigour of Juſtice.

24 Men do therefore fear him x: he reſpecteth not y any that are wiſe of heart z.

x For this cauſe, to wit, becauſe of God's infinite and excellent Perfections, and eſpecially thoſe mentioned in the foregoing Verſe, men do, or ſhould (for the Future Tenſe is oft uſed Potentially as Hebrecians know) fear or reverence him, and humbly ſubmit to him, and not preſume to quarrel or diſpute with him, as thou, O Job, haſt done. y Heb. He doth not, or will not behold, to wit, with reſpect or approbation; he beholdeth them afar off with ſcorn and contempt. z i. e. Such as are wiſe in their own eyes, that lean to their own underſtandings, and deſpiſe all other men in compariſon of themſelves, and ſcorn all their Counſels; that are ſo puffed up with the opinion of their own Wiſdom, that they dare contend with their Maker, and preſume to cenſure his Counſels and Actions. Which he hereby intimates to be Job's fault, and to be the true reaſon why God did not reſpect nor regard him, nor his Prayers and Tears, as Job complained. And ſo this is alſo a tacit advice and exhortation to Job to be humble and little in his own eyes, if ever he expected or deſired any favour from God.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

The Lord Anſwers Job, 1——3. declareth his works of Creation: the foundation and the meaſures of the earth, 4——6. the Stars, the Sea and its bounds, 7——11. the morning and its light, 12——15. the depth of the ſea: the gates and ſhadow of death: the breadth of the earth, 16——18. the place of light and darkneſs: the treaſures of ſnow and hail for battel, 19——23. the eaſt-wind, ſprings, and rain for the earth, 24——30. the planets, ordinances of heaven, and their dominion on the earth: clouds and lightning, 31——35. Wiſdom and underſtanding in the heart of man; and in his works more then we can underſtand: he feedeth the Lion and the Raven, 36——41.

Nah. 1.3 THen the LORD anſwered Job a * out of the whirlwind b, and ſaid, a i. e. Began to debate the matter with him, as Job had deſired. b i.e. Out of a dark and thick Cloud, from which he ſent a terrible and tempeſtuous Wind, as the Harbinger of his Preſence. In this manner God appears and ſpeaks to him, partly becauſe this was his uſual method in thoſe times, as we ſee Exod. 19. 18. Numb. 9. 15, 16. See alſo 1 Kings 19. 11. Ezek. 1. 4. partly to awaken Job and his Friends, to the more ſerious and reverend attention to his words; partly to teſtifie his diſpleaſure both againſt Job, and againſt his three Friends, and partly that all of them might be more deeply and throughly humbled and abaſed within themſelves, and prepared the better to receive, and longer to retain the inſtructions which God was about to give them.

2 Who is this c that darkeneth counſel d by words e without knowledge f?

c It is a queſtion of admiration and reprehenſion, What and where is he that preſumeth to talk at this rate? This Language becomes not a Creature, much leſs a Profeſſour of Religion. The Perſon here deſigned is not Elihu who ſpoke laſt, but Job who had ſpoken moſt, as is apparent from v. 1. and from Chap. 42. 3. where Job takes the following reproof to himſelf, and from the following Diſcourſe wherein God convinceth Job by divers of the ſame kind of arguments which Elihu had uſed againſt him. d Either 1. his own Counſel; i.e. that expreſſeth his own mind darkly and doubtfully. But that was not Job's fault. He ſpake his mind too plainly and freely. Or rather, 2. God's Counſel, which is called ſimply Counſel by way of eminency, as the word and the commandment are oft put for the word and command of God. For the great matter of the diſpute between Job and his Friends, was concerning God's Counſel, and Purpoſe, and Providence in afflicting Job; which being a wiſe, and juſt, and glorious action of God, Job had endeavoured to obſcure and miſrepreſent and ſenſure. And God's Decrees and Judgments are frequently called his Counſels, as *Pſal.*33.11. Prov. 19. 21. *Iſa.*28.29. Acts 2.23. e God doth not charge Job, as his three Friends had done, with hypocriſie and wickedneſs in the courſe of Life, nor with Atheiſtical Opinions of God, or his Providence, as ſome of the Hebrew Writers do, but confines his Reproof to his hard Speeches. f Proceeding from ignorance, and miſtake, and inconſiderateneſs; not from malice or rage againſt God, as his Friends accuſed him.

3 * Gird up now thy loins g like a man; for I will demand of thee h and † anſwer thou me. *Ch. 40.7. †Heb. make me know.

g As Warriours then did for the Battle. Prepare thy ſelf for the Combate with me, which thou haſt oft deſired. I accept of thy Challenge, Chap. 13.22. and elſewhere. h Or, I will ask thee queſtions; which he doth in the following verſes.

4 * Where waſt thou i, when I laid the foundations of the earth k? declare, † if thou haſt underſtanding l. * Pſal.104. 5. Prov.8.29. & 30.4. † Heb. if thou knoweſt underſtanding.

i Then thou waſt no where, thou hadſt no being; thou art but of yeſterday; and doſt thou preſume to judge of my eternal Counſels! I made the World without thy help, and therefore can govern it without thy Counſel, and I do not need thee to be the Controller or Cenſurer of my Works. k When I made the Earth, which is as the Foundation or lower part of the whole World, and ſettled it as firm and faſt upon its own Center as if it had been built upon the ſureſt Foundations. l But if thou art ignorant of theſe manifeſt and viſible Works, do not pretend to the exact knowledge of my ſecret Counſels and myſterious Providences.

5 Who hath laid the meaſures thereof m, if thou knoweſt? or who hath ſtretched the line n upon it?

m Who hath preſcribed how long and broad and deep it ſhould be. n To wit, the meaſuring Line to regulate all its Dimenſions, ſo as might be moſt convenient both for beauty and uſe.

6 Whereupon are the † foundations thereof † faſtened o? or who laid the corner ſtone thereof p? † Heb. Sockets. † Heb. made to ſink.

o This ſtrong and durable Building hath no Foundations but in God's Power and Word which hath marvellouſly eſtabliſhed it upon it ſelf. p By which the ſeveral Walls and parts of the Building are joyned and faſtened together, and in which, next to the Foundations, the ſtability of any Building does conſiſt. The ſenſe is, Who was it that did build this goodly Fabrick, and eſtabliſht it ſo firmly that it cannot be moved without a Miracle.

7 When the morning ſtars q ſang together, ‖ and all the ſons of God r ſhouted for joy s. ‖ Or, then. So Gr.

q Either 1. the Stars properly ſo called, who are ſaid to ſing and praiſe God, objectively, becauſe they give men ample occaſion to do it in regard of their glorious Light and ſtupendious Motions, &c. Compare Pſal. 19. 1. & 148. 1, &c. But 1. theſe Stars are not here the Objects or Matter, but the Authors or Inſtruments of God's Praiſes for the Founding of the Earth. 2. The Stars were not created when the Earth was founded, but upon the fourth day. 3. There is no ſatisfactory reaſon given why all the Stars ſhould be called Morning-ſtars, eſpecially when there is but one Star known by that name. Or rather 2. the Sons of God, as it here follows, the latter Clauſe of the Verſe being explicatory of the former, as is moſt frequent in this and ſome other Books of Scripture, to wit, the Angels, who may well be called Stars, as even Men of eminent note, and particularly Miniſters of God's Word are called, Dan. 8.10. & 12.3. Rev. 1. 16, 20. and Morning-ſtars, becauſe of their excellent luſtre and glory, for which they are called Angels of Light, 2 Cor. 11. 14. and Chriſt for the ſame reaſon is called the Morning-ſtar, Rev. 22.16. r The bleſſed Angels; for Man not being yet made, God had then no other Sons; and theſe are called the Sons of God, partly becauſe they had their whole being from him, and partly becauſe they were made partakers of his divine and glorious Image. And all theſe are ſaid to joyn in this work of praiſing God, probably becauſe none of the Angels were as yet fallen from their firſt eſtate, though they did fall within a very little time after. s Rejoyced in and bleſſed God for his works. Whereby he intimates, that they neither did adviſe or any way aſſiſt him in his works, nor diſlike or cenſure any of his works, as Job had preſumed to do with the works of his Providence, which are not inferiour to thoſe of Creation.

t Who was it, thou or I, that did ſet bounds to the vaſt and raging Ocean, and ſhut it up as it were with Doors within its proper place and ſtore-houſe, that it might not overflow the Earth; which without God's powerful reſtraint it would do? See *Pſal.*33.7.& 104. 9. This ſenſe ſeems moſt proper, and to be confirmed by the following verſes. u Or, after it had broken forth, to it, from the womb or bowels of the Earth, within which the Waters were for the moſt part contained, Gen. 1.2. Compare 2 Pet. 3. 5. and out of which they were by God's command brought forth into the proper place or channel which God had appointed for them.

So the ſame thing is repeated in other words after the manner. z Having compared the Sea to a New-born Infant, he continues in the ſame Metaphor, and makes the Clouds as Swadling-bands to keep the Sea within its bounds: though indeed neither Clouds, nor Air, nor Sands, and Shores, can bound the Sea, but it is God alone who doth it in and with theſe things.

And this effect the Morning-light hath upon the wicked, partly becauſe it diſcovers them, and drives them into their lurking holes; whereas the darkneſs hides them and draws them forth and gives them opportunity to execute their Villanies without obſervation, Job 24. 15, 16, 17. and partly becauſe it brings them to condign puniſhment, the Morning being the moſt fit and the moſt uſual time for executing judgment: of which ſee *Pſal.*101.8. *Jer.*21.12.

‖ Or, of.

14 It m is turned n as clay ‖ to the ſeal o, and they p ſtand q as a garment r.

m To wit, the Earth mentioned in the next foregoing verſe. n Is transformed and changed in its ſhape and appearance. o Or, by the ſeal, which makes a beautiful or valuable impreſſion upon that Clay, which in it ſelf hath no form, nor worth, nor comlineſs in it. So the Earth, which in the darkneſs of the Night lies like a confuſed heap without either form or beauty, when the light ariſeth and ſhineth upon it, appears; in excellent order and great glory. p Either 1. the Inhabitants of the Earth, and particularly the wicked, mentioned both in the foregoing and following verſes. Or 2. more generally, the men and things of the Earth, whether Natural, as living Creatures, Herbs and Trees, &c. Or artificial, as Houſes or other Buildings. q i. e. Preſent themſelves to our view, for which that poſture of ſtanding is moſt convenient. Or, conſiſt, or abide, or are conſtituted. r Wherewith the Earth is in a manner clothed and adorned as with a Garment; as the bleſſed God himſelf is ſaid to cover himſelf with light as with a garment, Pſal. 104. 2.

* Pſ.10.15

15 And s from the wicked their light t is withholden, and * the high arms u ſhall be broken.

s Or, But, for the following words ſeem to be added by way of oppoſition to what went before. The Earth, and the Men, and the Things in it have the comfort and benefit of the Light, but ſo have not the wicked. t i. e. Their portion of Light: That Light which is enjoyed by others is withholden from them, either by their own choice, becauſe they love and chooſe darkneſs rather than light; or by the judgment of God, or the Magiſtrate, by whom they are cut off from the light of the living, as it is called, Job 33.30. or at leaſt deprived of their Peace, and Comfort, and Proſperity, which frequently goes under the name of Light in Scripture, and may be ſo called here by an elegant alluſion to the natural Light of the Sun mentioned before. u Their great ſtrength which they uſed tyrannically to the oppreſſion and cruſhing of others.

‖ Or, currents. Heb. weeping.

16 Haſt thou entred into the ‖ ſprings x of the ſea? or haſt thou walked in the ſearch of the depth y?

x Heb. the Tears; i. e. the ſeveral Springs out of which the Waters of the Sea flow as tears do from the eyes. y Haſt thou found out the utmoſt depth and bottom of the Sea, which in divers places could never be reached by the wiſeſt Mariner, or the longeſt Cables? And how then canſt thou fathom the depths of my Counſels?

* Pſ. 9. 13.

17 Have * the gates of death been opened unto thee z? or haſt thou ſeen the doors of the ſhadow of death a?

z Haſt thou ſeen, or doſt thou perfectly know the place and ſtate of the Dead; the depths and bowels of that Earth in which the generality of dead men are buried; or the ſeveral ways and methods of Death; or the various ſtates and conditions of men after death? a The ſame thing repeated.

18 Haſt thou perceived the breadth of the Earth b? declare c if thou knoweſt it all.

b Doſt thou exactly know the whole Compaſs and all the parts of the Earth, and the ſtate and quality of all Countries, and of the men and things in them? c Give me an anſwer to theſe Queſtions, which is far more eaſier to do, than to anſwer me to many other Queſtions which I could put to thee about my ſecret Counſels and Providences, and the Reaſons of my dealing with thee as I do.

19 Where is the way d where light dwelleth e? and as for darkneſs where is the place thereof?

d Or rather, the place, as the next Clauſe explains it, and the Hebrew Phraſe will bear. e i.e. Hath its conſtant and ſettled abode. For in the place where Job lived, and in moſt other parts of the inhabited World, it is like a Traveller that cometh and goeth continually every day. This may be referred, either 1. to the places under the two Poles, where firſt the light, and then the darkneſs continues for ſix Months together. Or rather 2. to the Sun the Fountain of Light. And as this is a Poetical Book, ſo this may be a Poetical Expreſſion and Queſtion, Whither goes the Sun when it departs from this Hemiſphere? Where is the Tabernacle and the Chamber in which both ſacred, as Pſal. 19. 4, 5. and profane Poets ſuppoſe the Sun to reſt? Doſt thou know the place where the Sun when it ſets may be found, and whence thou canſt fetch it back again. For it is to be carefully obſerved that he ſpeaks not here of a bare and ſimple knowledge of this matter, which was plain and eaſie to Job, and many others, who were not ignorant that the Sun was the Fountain of Light, from whoſe approach Light comes, and by whoſe departure Darkneſs is cauſed; but of an operative Knowledge, even ſuch as could and did enable him to take it to the bound thereof, as it follows *v.*20. And withal he ſeems here to ſpeak not only of the daily courſe and motion of the Sun, and the viciſſitude of Day and Night, but alſo and eſpecially of the firſt production of the Light which was before Job was born, as is evident from v. 21. And this makes the Queſtion more difficult and more conſiderable, the ſenſe whereof may be this; Seeing there was a time when there was nothing but groſs and comfortleſs Darkneſs upon the face of the Earth, what way came light into the World? Which was the place where Light dwelt at that time, and whence it was fetched? and whence came that orderly conſtitution and conſtant ſucceſſion of Light and Darkneſs? Was this thy work? Or waſt thou privy to it, or a Counſellor, or Aſſiſtant in it? Or was it not done by me alone long before thou hadſt a being?

20 That thou ſhouldſt take it f ‖ to the bound thereof g, and that thou ſhouldſt know h the paths to the houſe thereof i?

f i. e. Taking, bring or lead it, as this Verb is oft uſed, as Exod. 25. 2. Pſal. 68. 29. compared with Eph. 4. 11. 1 Kings 3. 24. & 17. 10. Hoſea 14. 2. And many other ſuch pregnant Verbs there are in the Hebrew Language having the ſignification of two Verbs included in one. And this it refers principally to the Light, and ſecondarily to Darkneſs, as the conſequent of the other. g i. e. Its whole courſe from the place of its abode whence it is ſuppoſed to come, to the end of its journey which it is to go. Didſt thou direct or guide the Light or the Sun, that he ſhould at firſt take, and afterward conſtantly continue in that courſe which now it holds; that it ſhould go from Eaſt to Weſt, and riſe ſometimes in one point or part of the Heaven, and ſometimes in another, and that its days journey ſhould be longer in one ſeaſon of the year, and ſhorter in another? This regular and excellent courſe muſt needs be the effect of great Wiſdom. And whoſe wiſdom was it? thine or mine? h To wit, practically, ſo as to direct or lead it in the manner now expreſſed. i Where thou maiſt find it, and whence thou maiſt fetch it.

21 Knoweſt thou it becauſe thou waſt then born? or becauſe the number of thy days is great?

k An ironical Queſtion, If thou pretendeſt that thou knoweſt theſe things, and canſt readily anſwer theſe Queſtions, how comeſt thou by this knowledge? Was it from hence becauſe thou waſt born when I made the World, and that firſt conſtitution of the Light and Darkneſs in that order and ſucceſſion which continues to this day, and thereby hadſt the opportunity of inſpecting my Works, and ſeeing whence the Light came, and becauſe thou haſt gained this knowledge by long experience, as having lived ever ſince the Creation of the World until this time? Whereas in truth thou art but of yeſterday, and knoweſt nothing, as was ſaid, Chap. 8. 9. But the words are and may be otherwiſe rendred, doſt or didſt thou know, either by thy own remembrance, or by the information of others, that thou waſt then born (to wit, when I made the World? Or, didſt thou know that thou ſhouldſt then be born, then, to wit, when thou waſt born? Or, didſt thou then know, the two Hebrew Particles being tranſplaced, as is not unuſual in that Language, that thou ſhouldſt be born? How couldſt thou know this when thou hadſt no being?) and that the number of thy days ſhould be great? That thou ſhouldſt live ſo long as thou haſt lived. Thou couldſt neither foreknow the time of thy Birth, nor the length of thy Life. Or, and is the number of thy days great? i. e. So great that it reacheth to the time of the Worlds Creation.

22 Haſt thou entred into the treaſures of the ſnow? or haſt thou ſeen the treaſures of the hail l.

l Doſt thou know where I have laid up thoſe vaſt quantities of Snow and Hail which I draw forth when I ſee fit? doſt thou know the cauſes of them, and the way to produce them? But if thou art unacquainted with theſe treaſures, it is intolerable preſumption in thee to pretend that thou knoweſt thoſe treaſures of Wiſdom which lye hid in my own Breaſt.

23 Which m I have reſerved againſt the time of trouble n, againſt the day of battle and war?

m i.e. Which Snow, and eſpecially Hail. n i. e. When I intend to bring trouble or calamity upon any Country or People for their ſins, or for their trial. Or, againſt the time of the enemy, i. e. when I intend to puniſh mine or my Peoples Enemies, and to fight againſt them with theſe Weapons. Of which ſee inſtances, Exod. 9. 14. Joſ. 10. 11. Compare 1 Sam. 7. 10. Job 36. 31. Iſa. 30. 30.

24 By what way o is the light parted p, which ſcattereth the eaſt-wind upon the earth q?

o Doſt thou know all the Cauſes, Means, Methods, and Circumſtances of this Work of God? p Or, diſperſed, or diſtributed, to wit, in the Air, or upon the Face of the Earth. By Light he underſtands either, 1. the Lightning, which breaks forth ſuddenly out of a Cloud, and with ſtrange ſwiftneſs diſperſeth it ſelf, and fleeth from Eaſt to Weſt, as is noted Matth. 24. 27. But this word Light put by it ſelf, and being underſtood properly, is conſtantly uſed in this Book for the Light of the Sun, and never for the Lightning, and where it is meant of the Lightning, there is ſome other word added to it, as Chap. 37. 15. where it is called the light of his Cloud. And beſides, he ſpeaks of the Lightning in the next verſe; which were ſuperfluous if it were here mentioned. Or rather, 2. of the light of the Sun, which is commonly called light without any other word added to it, as Job 3. 4, 9, 16. & 24. 14. & 25. 3, &c. And this light of the Sun, is variouſly parted or diſtributed in the World, ſhining in one place and time, when it doth not ſhine in another, or for a longer time, or with greater brightneſs and power and vertue than it doth in another. All which are the effects of God's infinite Wiſdom and Power, and ſuch as were out of Job's reach to underſtand, or at leaſt to effect. q i. e. Which light ſcattereth, &c. i. e. raiſeth the Eaſt-wind, and cauſeth it to blow hither and thither upon the Earth. For as the Sun is juſtly called by the Poets, and others, the Father of the Winds, becauſe he draws up thoſe Exhalations which give matter to the Winds, and for other reaſons; ſo in particular the Eaſt-wind is oft obſerved to riſe together with the Sun, from which alſo it hath both its Latine and Greek Name. But ſome make this a diſtinct Queſtion from the former, and render the words thus, And (repeat, by which way) the Eaſt-wind (under which all the other Winds may be comprehended) ſcattereth it ſelf upon the Earth, i. e. Whence the Winds come, and whither they go, which is mentioned as a ſecret in Nature, Job 3. 8. and how it comes to paſs that they blow in ſuch ſeveral manners, and with ſuch various and even contrary effects. Or thus, and by which way the Eaſt-wind ſcattereth (to wit, the Clouds, or other light things: for this is noted in Scripture to be a moſt vehement Wind, and to ſcatter the Clouds, Exod. 14. 21. Jonah 4. 8.) upon the Earth; i. e. whence it comes to paſs that the Eaſt-wind was ſo violent and furious. But the words may be rendred thus, Which (i. e. which light of the Sun, or when it, to wit, this Light) ſcattereth it ſelf (as divers here render this Word, that conjugation being often uſed reciprocally, as is confeſſed) from (the prefix Mem being underſtood, as it is very frequently in the Hebrew Text) the Eaſt (for this Hebrew Word doth not only ſignifie the Eaſtern Wind, but alſo the Eaſt, or the Eaſtern part of the Heavens or Earth, as Ezek. 40. 19. & 42. 16. Habak. 1. 9. and in many other places, (and Kedem, the root of this word is conſtantly ſo uſed) upon or over the Earth, all over the Earth. And this is juſtly mentioned as a wonderful Work of God, That as ſoon as ever the Sun ariſeth, it parteth or ſcattereth its light in an inſtant, from one end of the Hemiſphere to another: But this I propoſe with ſubmiſſion.

25 Who hath divided a water-courſe for the overflowing of waters r? or a way for the lightning of thunder s, r For the Showers of Rain which come down out of the Clouds, orderly, moderately, and gradually, as if they were conveyed in Pipes or Channels; which, without the care of God's Providence, would fall confuſedly, and all together; and, inſtead of refreſhing, would over-whelm the Earth. s i. e. For that Lightning which breaking out of the Cloud with violence, cauſeth Thunder. Or, for Lightning and Thunder. Who opened a paſſage for them out of the Cloud in which they were impriſoned? And theſe are here joyned with the Rain, becauſe they are commonly accompanied with great Showers of Rain; which is here noted as a wonderful work of God, that Fire and Water ſhould come out of the ſame Cloud?

26 To cauſe it to rain t on the earth where no man is; on the wilderneſs wherein there is no man u!

t That the Clouds being broken by Lightning and Thunder might pour down Rain. u To wit, to water thoſe parts by art and induſtry, as is uſual in cultivated and inhabited places. Which makes this work of Divine Providence more neceſſary and more remarkable in providing for the relief of the wild Beaſts and Plants and other fruits of theſe forſaken Lands, which otherwiſe would periſh with drought.

*Pſal. 107. 35. 27 * To ſatisfie u the deſolate and waſte ground, and to cau[illegible]he bud of the tender herb to ſpring forth x.

u By Raining not ſparingly, but liberally and abundantly upon it. x There being many excellent and uſeful Herbs found in Deſart Places, which otherwiſe would be utterly neglected and deſpiſed.

28 Hath the rain a father y? or who hath begotten the drops of the dew?

y To wit, beſides me. Is there any Man upon Earth that can beget or produce Rain at his pleaſure? No, this is my peculiar work. And therefore ſeeing thou knoweſt and canſt do nothing as to the government of theſe ordinary effects of Nature, how great preſumption is it to arrogate to thy ſelf the knowledge and management of the ſecret and myſterious affairs of my Providence in the diſpoſal of men.

29 Out of whoſe womb came the ice? and the hoary froſt of heaven who hath gendred it z?

z What Man either can produce them, or doth fully underſtand where or how they are engendred? For Philoſophers ſpeak of theſe things only by gueſs, and the reaſons which ſome aſſign for them are confuted by others, and ſo they will confute one another to the end of the World, and prove nothing ſolidly, but their own ignorance and the reaſonableneſs of theſe Queſtions.

30 The waters are hid as with a ſtone a, and the face of the deep b † is frozen. †Heb. is taken.

a i. e. With Ice as hard as a Stone. b i. e. The great Sea, which is oft called the deep, as Gen. 7. 11. Pſal. 107. 24. Iſa. 51. 10. & 63. 13. 2 Cor. 11. 25. which in ſome parts is frozen, which is a wonderful work of God.

31 Canſt thou bind c the ſweet influences d of ‖ † Pleiades e, or looſe the bands f of † Orion g? ‖Or, the ſeven Stars. †Heb. Cimah. †Heb. Ceſil.

c i. e. Reſtrain or hinder them. Canſt thou bind or ſhut up the Earth when they open it? d Or, the delights, becauſe this Conſtellation by its benign and opening Influences brings in the Spring, the Herbs and Flowers, and other delights of the Earth. e Called, alſo the Seven Stars. Of this, and the following Conſtellation, ſee Job 9. 9. f By which it binds up the Air and Earth, by bringing ſtorms of Rain or Hail, or Froſt and Snow; and withal binds or ſeals the hands of Workmen, as is noted Job 37. 7. g This is another Conſtellation which riſeth in November, and brings in Winter. So the Senſe of the Verſe is, Thou canſt not bind the Earth when the one looſeth or openeth it, nor looſe or open it, when the other binds or ſhutteth it up.

32 Canſt thou bring forth h ‖ Mazzaroth i in his ſeaſon, or canſt thou † guide Arcturus k with his ſons l? ‖Or, the twelve Signs. †Heb. guide them.

h To wit, into view. Canſt thou make him to ariſe and appear in thy Hemiſphere? i By which he deſigns either 1. all the Conſtellations, and eſpecially the Twelve Signs of the Zodiack: or, rather, 2. ſome particular Conſtellation, as all the reſt here mentioned are underſtood. But whether this be that which is called the Chambers of the South, Chap. 9. 7. Or, the Dog-Star, or ſome other, viſible in Job's Countrey, but not in ours, we may be ſafely and contentedly ignorant, ſeeing even the Hebrew Doctors are not agreed therein. k A Northern Conſtellation, of which ſee on Job 9. 9. l To wit, the leſſer Stars, which belong to it, and are placed round about it; and attend upon it, as Children upon their Parents.

33 Knoweſt thou m * the ordinances of heaven n? *Jer. 31. 35 canſt thou ſet the dominion thereof in the earth o?

m Either 1. ſimply, and by ſpeculation, doſt thou underſtand them. Or, 2. practically, or operatively, ſo as to eſtabliſh or rule them, as the next Clauſe implies. n The Laws which are firmly eſtabliſhed concerning their order, motion, or reſt, and their powerful influences upon this lower World. Didſt thou give theſe Laws? Or doſt thou perfectly know them? o Canſt thou manage and overrule their influences that they ſhall bring ſuch Seaſons and ſuch Weather as thou wouldſt have?

34 Canſt thou liſt up thy voice to the clouds p, that abundance of waters may cover thee q?

p Either thundering in them: or calling to them with a loud voice, commanding them to rain. q i. e. Thy Land when it needs and requires rain.

35 Canſt thou ſend r lightnings, that they may go, and ſay unto thee, † Here we are s? † Heb. behold us.

r At thy pleaſure and upon thy errand. s An expreſſion of Servants, declaring their readineſs to obey their Maſters commands; of which ſee Gen. 22. 1. Iſa. 6. 8.

36 * Who hath put wiſdom in the inward parts t, *Ch. 32. 8. Eccleſ. 2. 26.
or who hath given underſtanding to the heart u?

t To wit, of a Man. Comp. Job 19. 27. Pſal. 51. 6. Who gave thee that wit and underſtanding which thou haſt, and which thou now uſeſt ſo arrogantly and wickedly, to contend with me, and to cenſure my actions? u So he limits the former general expreſſion of the inward parts. The heart is made by the Hebrews the ſeat of the underſtanding, and is commonly put for it in Scripture.

37 ‖ Who can number the clouds in wiſdom x, or † who can ſtay the bottles of heaven y? ‖Or, declare the Skies. † Heb. who can cauſe to lie down.

x Who can wiſely ſearch out and exactly find the number of the Clouds? They are numberleſs and filled with Water, as the next Clauſe implies. y To wit, the Clouds, in which the Rain is kept, as in Bottles, out of which God poureth them when he ſees fit.

38 ‖ When the duſt † groweth into hardneſs, and the clods cleave faſt together z? ‖ Or, when the duſt is turned into mire. † Heb. is poured.

z This Verſe containeth a deſcription, either 1. of a great drought, when the Earth grows very hard, and cloſe, and compact: Or, 2. of the condition of the Earth preſently after the fall of Rain, when the Earth, which in time of drought was much of it diſſolved into duſt, is now by the Rain cemented or united together. In either of theſe caſes it is the work of God alone to keep the Clouds from pouring down more Rain upon the Earth.

39 * Wilt thou hunt the prey for the Lion a? or *Pſal. 104. 21.
fill † the appetite of the young Lions. † Heb. the life.

a Is it by thy care and providence that the Lions who live in deſert places are furniſhed with neceſſary proviſions? This is juſtly mentioned as another wonderful work of God.

40 When they couch in their dens b, and abide in the covert to lie in wait c?

b When through Age and Infirmity they cannot range abroad for Prey, as the young Lions do, but lie ſtill in their Dens, as it were expecting their Food from God, from whom alſo they receive it. c Watching till ſome Beaſt comes that way upon which they may Prey.

41 * Who provideth for the Raven d his food? *Pſal. 147. 9. Mat. 6. 26.
when his young ones cry unto God, they wander for lack of meat.

d Having mentioned the nobleſt of Brute Creatures, he now mentions one of the moſt contemptible and loathſome, to ſhew the care of God's Providence over all Creatures, both great and ſmall. Which is more remarkable in Ravens, becauſe 1. they devour fleſh, which it is not eaſie for them to find. 2. They are greedy, and eat very much. 3. They are generally neglected and forſaken by Mankind. 4. Their young ones are ſo ſoon forſaken by their Dams, that if God did not provide for them in a more than ordinary manner, they would be ſtarved to death.

CHAP. XXXIX.

Of the wild Goats and Hinds, 1——4. The wild Aſſe, 5——8. The Unicorn, 9——12. The Peacock, Stork, and Oſtrich, 13——18. The Horſe, 19——25. The Hawk, the Eagle, 26——30. Theſe Creatures not fully known to Job, nor governed by him, are ſufficient to convince him, That he is no fit Judge of the Counſels of God.

KNoweſt thou the time a when the wild goats of the rock b bring forth c? or canſt thou mark when the * hinds do calve d? *Pſal. 29. 9.

a That thou mayeſt then go to them, and afford them thy help in their hard work. b Which dwell in high and ſteep Rocks where no Man can come. See 1 Sam. 24. 2. Pſal. 104. 18. c Which they do with great difficulty, as is implied Pſal. 29. 9. and noted by Philoſophers, wherein they have no aſſiſtance from Men, but onely from God. d When God by his ſecret inſtinct directs them to a certain Herb called Seſeli, which, as Naturaliſts report, doth haſten and help forward their Birth.

2 Canſt thou number the months that they fulfil? or knoweſt thou the time when they bring forth e?

e Doſt thou exactly know when they did conceive, and when they will bring forth: which is more uncertain in theſe, than in other Creatures, becauſe there fall out many accidents which cauſe them to bring forth before their time, as thunder, Pſal. 29. 9. and other like cauſes of ſudden fear, which may be many and various, in thoſe deſert places where they live.

3 They bow themſelves f, they bring forth their young ones g, they caſt out their ſorrows h.

f Being taught by a Divine Inſtinct to diſpoſe themſelves in ſuch a poſture as may be fitteſt for their ſafe and eaſie bringing forth. g To wit, with great pain, being almoſt torn or rent aſunder with the Birth, as the word ſignifies: or, without any of that help, which tame Beaſts oft have. h i. e. Their young ones, and their ſorrows together. Or, though (which Particle is oft underſtood) they remit or put away their ſorrows, i. e. Though inſtead of cheriſhing and furthering their ſorrows, which for their own eaſe and ſafety they ſhould do, they fooliſhly hinder them, and ſo increaſe their own danger, yet by God's good Providence to them they are enabled to bring forth, as was now ſaid.

4 Their young ones are in good liking i, they grow up with corn k: they go forth, and return not unto them l.

i Or, grow ſtrong, or fat; notwithſtanding their great weakneſs cauſed by their hard entrance into the World. k Which they find and feed upon in the Fields. Or, as with Corn, i. e. as if they were fed with Corn; the Particle as being oft deficient and to be ſupplied. Or, in the Field, as this Word in the Chaldee or Syriak Dialect ſignifies. l Finding ſufficient Proviſions abroad by the care and conduct of God's Providence.

5 Who hath ſent out the wild aſs free m? or who hath looſed the bands of the wild aſs n?

m Who hath given him this diſpoſition that he loves freedom, and avoids and hates that ſubjection which other Creatures quietly and contentedly endure? n Which is not to be underſtood privatively, as if God took off the bands which Men had put upon him, but Negatively, that he keeps him from receiving the bands, and ſubmitting to the ſervice of Man. Who hath made him ſo untractable and unmanageable? Which is the more ſtrange, becauſe home-bred Aſſes are ſo tame and tractable.

*Ch. 24. 5. 6 * Whoſe houſe I have made the wilderneſs o, and †Heb. Salt places. the † barren land p his dwellings.

o Who uſeth and loveth to dwell in Deſert Lands, Jer. 2. 24. Hoſ. 8. 3. 9. p Called barren, not ſimply, for then he muſt be ſtarved there, but comparatively, unmanaged, and therefore in a great meaſure unfruitful Land.

7 He ſcorneth q the multitude of the city r, neither regardeth s he the crying † of the driver t.

q Either 1. he feareth them not when they purſue him, becauſe he is ſwift, and can eaſily eſcape them. Or, 2. he values them not, nor any proviſions or advantages which he may have from them, but prefers a vagrant and ſolitary life in the Wilderneſs before them. Or, 3. he diſdains to ſubmit himſelf to them, and reſolutely maintains his own freedom. r He mentions the City rather than the Country, partly, becauſe there is the greateſt Multitude of People to purſue, and overtake, and ſubject him: and partly becauſe there is the greateſt plenty of all things to invite him; the Fruits of the Country being laid up in Cities in greateſt abundance. s Heb. heareth, i. e. obeyeth. t Heb. of the Taskmaſter, or Exactor of Labour, i. e. He will not be brought to receive his Yoke, nor to do his Drudgery, nor to anſwer to his cries or commands, as tame Aſſes are forced to do.

8 The range of the mountain u is his paſture, and he ſearcheth after every green thing.

u That which he ſearcheth out, or findeth in the Mountains. He prefers that mean proviſion and hardſhip with his freedom, before the fatteſt Paſtures with Servitude. Why ſo weak and harmleſs a Creature as the wild Aſs ſhould be untamable, when the moſt Savage Lions and Tigers have been tamed; and how there comes to be ſo vaſt a difference between the tame and the wild Aſs, thou canſt give no reaſon, but muſt refer it wholly to my good pleaſure, to which alſo thou ſhouldſt upon the ſame grounds refer all the various methods of my providence and dealings with thee, and with other Men, and not ſo boldly cenſure what thou doſt not underſtand.

9 Will the Unicorn x be willing to ſerve thee y, or abide by thy crib z?

x It is much diſputed among the Learned, but is not needful to be known by others, whether there be, or ever was ſuch a Creature as we call the Unicorn; or whether this Reem, which is the Hebrew Name of it, be the Rhinoceros, as ſome would have it; or a certain kind of wild Goat, called Oryx, which is very tall and ſtrong, and untractable; or one of that kind of wild Oxen or Bulls, called Uri; which may ſeem moſt probable, both from the deſcription of this Creature here, and elſewhere in Scripture, which exactly agrees with its deſcription given by other Authors; and from the deſcription of his work in this place; which muſt in all reaſon be agreeable to Creatures of that general kind; and from the conjunction of this Creature with Bullocks in Scripture, Deut. 33. 17. and eſpecially Iſa. 34. 6, 7. where having put Lambs, and Goats, and Rams together, v. 6. as Creatures of the ſame, or very like ſort; he mentions Bullocks, and Bulls, and Reems, v. 7. as belonging to the ſame general ſort of Creatures. But this I ſhall not poſitively determine here. He that would know more, may ſee what the Reverend and Learned Mr. Caryl hath upon this Text out of Bootius and others, and my Latine Synopſis on Numb. 23. 22. y Canſt thou tame him, and bring him into ſubjection to thy command. z Will he ſuffer himſelf to be tied or confined there all night, and to be reſerved to the work of the next day, as the Oxen do? Surely no. And if thou canſt not rule ſuch a Creature as this, much leſs art thou able to govern the World, or to teach me how to govern it, which thou preſumeſt to do.

10 Canſt thou bind the Unicorn with his band in the furrow a? or will he harrow the valleys b after thee c?

a i. e. In thy furrowed Field, by a Metonymy. Or, to, or for (as the prefix Beth is oft uſed, as Gen. 11. 4. Levit. 16. 22. Job 24. 5.) the Furrow, i. e. to make Furrows, or to Plow: for which work Cattle uſe to be bound together, that they may be directed by the Husbandman, and may make right Furrows. b To wit, the low Grounds; which are moſt proper for, and moſt imployed in the work of Plowing. c Under thy conduct, following thee ſtep by ſtep.

11 Wilt thou truſt him d becauſe his ſtrength is great e? or wilt thou leave thy labour f to him g?

d To wit, for the doing of theſe works? e Becauſe he is very able for thy work. And wilt thou by thy power make him willing, or force him to put forth and ſpend his ſtrength in thy ſervice? f Either, 1. thy work of Plowing and Harrowing. Or, rather 2. the Fruit of thy Labour, or the Goods gotten by thy labour, as this word is oft uſed, as Deut. 28. 33. Job 20. 18. Pſal. 78. 46. & 128. 2. Joh. 4. 38. to wit, the Fruits of the Earth procured by God's Bleſſing upon thy induſtry. g To be brought home by him into thy Barnes, as the next Verſe explains it.

12 Wilt thou believe him that he will bring home thy ſeed h, and gather it into thy Barn?

h Heb. will return thy Seed; either 1. by Plowing and Harrowing thy Land ſo well that it ſhall make a good return to thee for thy ſeed. Or rather, 2. by bringing into thy Barn, as it follows, thy ſeed, i. e. the product of thy ſeed, or thy ſheaves of Corn, as this word is uſed, Hagg. 2. 19.

13 Gaveſt thou i the goodly k wings l unto the Peacocks m? or ‖ wings and feathers unto the Oſtrich n? ‖ Or, the feathers of the Stork and Oſtrich.

i The Stile of this Book is very conciſe, and ſome Verb is manifeſtly wanting to ſupply the ſenſe; and this ſeems to be fitly underſtood out of v. 19. where it is expreſſed. k Or, triumphant, that wherein it triumpheth or prideth it ſelf. l Or, feathers. Heb. wing or feather. The Peacocks beauty lies in its tail; which may well enough be comprehended under this Name, as it is confeſſed, that the Latine word Ala, which properly ſignifies a wing, is uſed by Martial and Claudian to expreſs the Peacock's tail. m Or, as ſome render it, to the Oſtrich: whoſe Wings are much more great and goodly, than thoſe of the Peacock. And for the other word in the next Clauſe, which is rendred Oſtrich, they tranſlate it another way. For that the Hebrew word Haſidah doth not ſignifie an Oſtrich, ſeems plain from the mention and deſcription of that Bird, Pſal. 104. 17. Jer. 8. 7. Lam. 4. 3. Zech. 5. 9. which doth not at all agree to the Oſtrich. And foraſmuch as the following Verſes do evidently ſpeak of the Oſtrich, and it is abſurd to diſcourſe of a Bird which had not been ſo much as named, and conſequently the Name of it muſt be found in this Verſe, and there is no other Word in this Verſe which bids ſo fair for it, it may ſeem probable that this Word is not to be rendred the Peacock (though it be ſo taken by moſt) but the Oſtrich. Nor is it likely that both the Peacock and the Oſtrich ſhould be crouded together into one Verſe: eſpecially when all the following Characters belong only to the latter of them. Add to this, that it is confeſſed, even by the Hebrew Writers themſelves, That there is a great uncertainty in the ſignification of the Names of Birds and Beaſts; and therefore it is not ſtrange if many Interpreters were miſtaken in the ſignification of this word. n Or, or the wings or feathers of the Stork (or, or) the Oſtrich? Or, didſt thou give (which may be repeated out of the former Branch) the wings and feathers to the Stork? Or, verily (the Particle im being oft uſed as a note of confirmation, as Pſal. 59. 16. & 63. 7. Prov. 3. 34. & 23. 18.) it hath wings and feathers like thoſe of a Stork; for ſo indeed they are, black and white like them. And this may be noted as a great and a remarkable Work of God, that it ſhould really have wings and feathers as other Birds have, and particularly the Stork, who comes neareſt to it in bulk and colour, although otherwiſe, by its vaſt bulk, it might ſeem to be a Beaſt rather than a Bird, as it is alſo called by Ariſtotle and Pliny, and others.

14 Which o leaveth her eggs in the earth p, and warmeth them in the duſt q, o i. e. Which Oſtrich; whoſe property this is noted to be by Naturaliſts. Or, But: for this unnatural quality is oppoſed to the goodlineſs of her Wings or Feathers. p In the place where ſhe lays them: where ſhe leaves them, either 1. from care, leſt ſhe ſhould cruſh and break them, if her vaſt Body ſhould ſit upon them: or rather, 2. from forgetfulneſs, or careleſneſs, or unnaturalneſs, or folly; to which it is manifeſtly aſcribed in the following Verſes. q Either 1. covering them with Sand, that they may be warmed and hatched by that, together with the heat of the Sun. But this is judged a fabulous report; for the Arabians, amongſt whom this Bird is moſt frequent, and beſt known, affirm, That ſuch Eggs do quickly periſh and putrefie. Or, rather 2. expoſing them to the heat of the Sun, which being exceſſive in thoſe hot Countries, doth, and muſt needs quickly deſtroy or ſpoil them. And the Oſtrich is ſaid to warm them, becauſe her leaving them there is not onely the occaſion, but in ſome ſort the cauſe of the Suns warming them.

15 And forgetteth that the foot r may cruſh them, or that the wild beaſt may break them.

r To wit, of wild Beaſts (as it follows) paſſing that way.

16 She is hardned s againſt her young ones t, as though they were not hers u: her labour x is in vain without fear y;

s Or, He, i. e. God hardens her, or, ſhe hardneth her ſelf. t i. e. Againſt her Eggs, which he calls her young ones emphatically, to aggravate her fault and folly in deſtroying thoſe Eggs, which, if not neglected, would have been young ones. u As if they were laid by ſome other Bird. Or, that they may not be to her, i. e. that they may be utterly loſt and deſtroyed; or as if it were her deſign to deſtroy their very being. x To wit, in laying her Eggs is wholly loſt. y This may be added as a farther aggravation. She doth this, not becauſe ſhe is compelled to forſake her Eggs for fear of Men or Beaſts, but meerly out of an unnatural careleſneſs. Or, ſhe is without fear, or, for want of fear, to wit, of a provident fear and care about them.

17 Becauſe God hath deprived her of wiſdom, neither hath he imparted to her underſtanding z.

z Becauſe God hath not implanted in her that natural Inſtinct, and Providence, and Affection, which he hath put into other Birds and Beaſts towards their young. And yet no Man preſumes to reproach me for making this difference in my Creatures. And as little reaſon haſt thou to blame me for afflicting thee, when others not ſo bad as thou for the preſent go unpuniſhed: becauſe I have no leſs authority over thee, than over them, and can diſpoſe of all my Creatures according to my good pleaſure. The great folly of this Bird is noted by Arabick Writers, who beſt know her, and that not only for this property of forſaking her own Eggs, but alſo for other things, as that ſhe eats any thing which is offered to her, as Iron, Stones, Glaſs, hot Coals, &c. Whereas other Birds and Beaſts have ſo much Sagacity, as to reject improper and unwholſome things; that being purſued by the Hunter, ſhe thinks her ſelf ſafe and unſeen, by hiding her head in the Sand: For which, and other ſuch qualities, it is a Proverb among the Arabians, More fooliſh than an Oſtrich.

18 What time ſhe lifteth up her ſelf on high a, ſhe ſcorneth the horſe and his rider b.

a To flee from her Purſuer: to which end ſhe lifteth up her head and body, and ſpreads her wings. b She deſpiſeth them in regard of her greater ſwiftneſs; for though ſhe cannot flie becauſe of her great bulk, being ſaid to be as big as a new-born Camel, yet by the aid of her wings ſhe runs ſo faſt, that Horſemen cannot reach her, as both Greek and other Authors have noted.

19 Haſt thou given the horſe ſtrength c? haſt thou clothed his neck with thunder d?

c Either ſtrength of Body: or rather courage and generous confidence, for which the Horſe is highly commended. d i. e. With ſnorting and neighing; in the making of which ſound the Neck, in regard of the Throat which is within it, and a part of it, is a principal Inſtrument: which noiſe may not unfitly be called thunder, becauſe of the great vehemency and rage, wherewith it is attended, and the great Terrour which it cauſeth, eſpecially in War and Battel, of which ſee Jer. 8. 16. and compare 1 Sam. 12. 17, 18. where this very term of thundering is aſcribed to a far lower and leſs terrible noiſe. Nor is this, as ſome alledge, an improper Speech, becauſe this thunder or neighing, is rather cloathed with the Neck, as being within it, than the Neck with it; for nothing is more common in Scripture than to ſay, That Men are cloathed with righteouſneſs, humility, and other Graces, which yet are in ſtrictneſs of Speech within the Man, and not he within them. But becauſe this word, in this form, is not elſewhere extant, ſome render it otherwiſe, with a mane, with a thick, and full, and deep Mane, as the Phraſe of being clothed with it implies. For this is mentioned by all Writers of Horſes, as a notable mark of a generous Horſe; which therefore they conceive would not be omitted here, where ſo many ſeveral properties and excellencies are deſcribed. And the Verb Raam, whence this comes, in the Syriack Language ſignifies not only to thunder, but alſo to be high or lofty: which fitly agrees to the Mane, which is in the higheſt part of the Horſe.

20 Canſt thou make him afraid as a graſhopper e? the glory of his noſtrils f is † terrible.

e Which is eaſily affrighted and chaſed away by the leaſt noiſe of a Man. Or, as divers others render the place, didſt thou make him to move like a Graſhopper, skipping and leaping as he goes! So he deſcribes the poſture of a gallant and generous Horſe, who curvets, and pranceth, and as it were danceth as he walks. f That ſnoring, or ſound, and ſmoke which cometh out of his Noſtrils, eſpecially when he is inraged and ingaged in Battel, which is another note of a generous Horſe, and ſtrikes a terror into his adverſary. Or, the vehemency, or majeſty, or magnificence of his ſnorting, or ſnoring, as this word is rendered, Jer. 8. 16.

21 ‖ He paweth g in the valley h, and rejoiceth in his ſtrength i: he goeth on to meet † the armed men k.

‖ Or, his feet dig. † Heb. the armour.

g Or, He diggeth. Through courage and wantonneſs he cannot ſtand ſtill, but is beating, as it were digging up the Earth with his feet. h This he adds, partly becauſe the ground being there more plain and ſmooth, he hath the better conveniency for his prancing and pawing with his feet, which in hilly and uneven ground he cannot ſo well do; and partly, becauſe Battels uſe to be pitched in Valleys, or low grounds, eſpecially Horſe Battels. i Making ſemblance of great pride and complacency in it. k With great readineſs and undaunted courage.

22 He mocketh at fear l, and is not affrighted: neither turneth he back from the Sword m.

l i. e. At all Inſtruments and Objects of Terror, as Fear is oft uſed, as Prov. 1. 26. & 10. 24. He deſpiſeth what other Creatures dread. m Or, becauſe of the Sword: or, for fear of the Sword, as this Phraſe is uſed, Iſa. 21. 15. & 31. 8. Jer. 14. 16. & 50. 16.

23 The quiver n rattleth againſt him, † the glittering ſpear and the ſhield o.

† Heb. the flame of the Spear.

n Or, although the Quiver, &c. So this comes in as an aggravation of his courage notwithſtanding the juſt cauſes of fear which are mentioned in this Verſe. And the Quiver is here put for the Arrows contained in it, by a Metonymy, very uſual in this very caſe, and in all ſorts of Authors, which being ſhot againſt the Horſe and Rider, make this rattling noiſe here mentioned. o Or, rather the launce or javelin. For that this was not a defenſive, but an offenſive Weapon, ſeems plain, both from this place, where it is mentioned among ſuch, and as on object of fear, which the Shield is not, and from Joſ. 8. 18. 1 Sam. 17. 45. where it is ſo uſed.

24 He ſwalloweth the ground p with fierceneſs and rage: neither believeth he that it is the ſound of the trumpet q.

p The Senſe is either, 1. He is ſo earneſt and eager upon the Battel, that he ruſheth into it with all ſpeed, and runs over the ground ſo ſwiftly, that he might ſeem to have ſwallowed it up. Or, 2. He is ſo full of war-like Rage and Fury, that he not only champs his Bridle, but is ready to tear and devour the very ground on which he goes. And the Phraſe here uſed is not unuſual, both in Arabick, and in other Authors: of which ſee my Latine Synopſis on this place. q i. e. He is ſo pleaſed with the approach of the Battel, and the ſound of the Trumpet calling to it, that he could ſcarce believe his Ears for gladneſs. Compare Gen. 45. 26. Luke 24. 41. Or, thus, He cannot ſtand ſtill, or firm, (as this Verb and the derivative from it is uſed, not only in the Chaldee and Syriack Dialect, but alſo in the Hebrew, as Deut. 28. 59. 1 Sam. 2. 35.) when the Trumpet ſoundeth: His Rider can hardly keep him ſtill, but he ſtrives and longs to run to the fight.

25 He ſaith among the trumpets, ha, ha r; and he ſmelleth s the battle afar off t, the thunder of the captains u, and the ſhouting.

r An Expreſſion of Joy and Alacrity, declared by his proud neighings, whereby he doth in ſome ſort anſwer the ſound of the Trumpets, in way of ſcorn and challenge. s i. e. He perceiveth, as this Phraſe is uſed, Judg. 16. 9. t At ſome diſtance, either of place, or rather of time, as the word is moſt frequently uſed. He perceives by the motion of the Souldiers, and the clattering of the Arms, that the Battle is at hand, which is very welcome to him. u By which he underſtands, either the military Orations which the Captains make and deliver with a loud voice to animate their Souldiers to the Battle: Or rather, the loud and joyful clamour begun by the Commanders, and followed by the Soldiers when they are ready to join Battle, that thereby they may both daunt their Enemies, and encourage themſelves.

26 Doth the hawk flie x by thy wiſdom y, and ſtretch her wings toward the ſouth z?

x In ſo ſingular a manner, ſo ſtrongly and ſteddily, ſo conſtantly and unweariedly, ſo ſwiftly and ſpeedily, ſo regularly and cunningly to catch her Prey. y Didſt thou inſpire her with that Wiſdom? z Which ſhe doth, either 1. when ſhe caſts her old Feathers, and gets new ones, which is furthered either by the warmth of Southerly Winds, or by the heat of the Sun, which was South-ward from Job's Country, as it is from ours. Whence it is, that as wild Hawks do this by natural Inſtinct, ſo the places which Men build for the keeping of tame Hawks, are built towards the South. Or in, or towards Winter, when wild Hawks flie into warmer Countries, as being impatient of cold weather.

27 Doth the Eagle mount up a † at thy command, and make her neſt on high b?

† Heb. by thy mouth.

a Flies directly upward till ſhe be out of thy ſight; which no other Bird can do. b In the higheſt and inacceſſible Rocks. Compare Jer. 49. 16. Obad. v. 4.

28 She dwelleth and abideth upon the rock, upon the crag of the rock c, and the ſtrong place.

c Which ſhe doth, partly for the ſecurity of her ſelf, and her young: and partly that ſhe may thence have the better proſpect to diſcern her Prey, as it followeth.

29 From thence ſhe ſeeketh the prey, and her eyes behold afar off d.

d Her ſight is exceeding ſharp and ſtrong, ſo that ſhe is able to look upon the Sun with open Eyes, and to behold the ſmalleſt prey upon the Earth or Sea, when ſhe is mounted out of our ſight; which when ſhe ſpies, ſhe flies to it with incredible ſwiftneſs, even like an Arrow out of a Bow.

30 Her young ones alſo ſuck up blood e: and * where the ſlain are f, there is ſhe g.

* Mat. 24. 28. Luke 17. 37.

e Either of the Prey which the Eagle hath brought to her Neſt for them, or of that which themſelves catch and kill, being betimes inured to this work by their Dams. Naturaliſts note of the Eagle, That ſhe drinketh no Water but Blood only. f Where any dead Carkaſſes are, yea, or are like to be: For natural Hiſtorians write of the Eagles, That they can preſage or ſmell a Battle ſome days before it be fought. And although ſome Writers affirm, That there are divers Eagles who do not feed upon Carkaſſes, and will not meddle with them, yet that many Eagles do feed on them is ſufficiently evident, by the Teſtimony both of Scripture, as Mat. 24. 28. and of divers, both ancient and later Writers. g To wit, in an inſtant, flying thither with admirable celerity.

CHAP. XL.

God's reproof of Job, 1, 2. He humbleth himſelf, 3——5. God again declareth his Righteouſneſs, Majeſty, and the power of his Wrath to abaſe the proud, 6——14. A deſcription of Behemoth, 15–24.

MOreover, the LORD anſwered Job a, and ſaid, a Having made a little pauſe to try what Job could anſwer to his queſtions, and Job, being it ſeems aſtoniſhed with God's Rebukes, or expecting what God would further ſay, continued ſilent.

2 † Shall he that contendeth with the Almighty inſtruct him b? he that reproveth God c, let him anſwer it d.

† Heb. to plead with the Almighty, is it to inſtruct.

b Shall Job, who preſumeth to contend with me in Judgment, and to diſpute the reaſonableneſs and equity of my proceedings, give me Inſtructions or Directions how to manage my own Affairs, and govern my Creatures? He juſtly mentions his Almightineſs, as a convincing Argument of his Juſtice. For how can he be unjuſt to his Creatures, who hath no Obligation to them, and never did nor can receive any thing from them, and who hath an abſolute, ſoveraign, and uncontroulable Dominion over them, and who being infinitely and neceſſarily perfect, and alſufficient within himſelf, can neither have any inclination to Unrighteouſneſs, which is an imperfection, nor any temptation to it, from any need he hath of it to accompliſh his Deſigns, which he can do by his own Omnipotence, or from any advantage accruing to him by it. c That boldly cenſureth his ways or works; which thou haſt done. d Let him anſwer my former and further queſtions at his peril.

3 Then Job anſwered the LORD, and ſaid,

4 Behold, I am vile e, what ſhall I anſwer thee f?
* Pſ.39.9.  I will lay mine hand upon my mouth g.

e What am I a mean and contemptible Creature, that I ſhould preſume to contend with my Maker and Judge? I confeſs my fault and folly. f I neither deſire nor am able to diſpute with thee. g I will for the future bridle my Tongue, and inſtead of conteſting with thee, do here humbly and willingly ſubmit my ſelf to thee.

5 Once have I ſpoken, but I will not anſwer h: yea, twice i, but I will proceed no further k.

h Or, ſpeak again; anſwering being oft put for ſpeaking. I will contend no more with thee. i i. e. Oft times, or again and again, the definite number being uſed indefinitely. k In ſuch bold and preſumptuous Expreſſions and Accuſations of thy Providence towards me. Vain therefore are the Excuſes which ſome Interpreters make for Job, as if he were faultleſs in his foregoing Diſcourſes, when both God chargeth him with faultineſs therein, and Job himſelf confeſſeth it.

6 Then anſwered the LORD unto Job out of the whirl-wind l, and ſaid, l Which was renewed when God renewed his Charge upon Job, whom he intended to humble more throughly than yet he had done. Both this and the next verſe are repeated out of Chap. 38.1,3. where they are explained.

* Ch.38.3. 7 * Gird up thy loins now like a man: I will * de-
* Ch.42.4. mand of thee, and declare thou unto me.
* Pſ. 51.4. 8 * Wilt thou alſo diſanul my judgment m? Wilt Rom.3.4. thou condemn me that thou maiſt be righteous n?

m Every word is emphatical, Wilt (Art thou reſolved upon it) thou (thou Job, whom I took to be one of a better mind and temper; had it been a Stranger, or my Enemy who had ſpoken thus of me, I could have born it, but I cannot bear it from thee) alſo (not only vindicate thy ſelf, and thy own integrity, but alſo accuſe me) diſanul (not only queſtion and diſpute, but even condemn, repeal and make void, as if it were ungrounded and unjuſt) my judgment? i. e. my Sentence againſt thee, and my Government and Adminiſtration of Human Affairs? n Wilt thou make me unrighteous that thou maiſt ſeem to be righteous?

9 Haſt thou an arm like God o? or canſt thou thunder with a voice like him p?

o Thou art infinitely ſhort of God in Power, and therefore in Juſtice: for all his Perfections are equal and infinite. Injuſtice is much more likely to be in thee, an impotent Creature, than in the Almighty God; of which ſee the Notes on v. 2. p Therefore do not preſume to contend with him.

* Pſ.104.1. 10 * Deck thy ſelf now with majeſty and excellency q, and aray thy ſelf with glory and beauty.

q Seeing thou makeſt thy ſelf equal, yea, ſuperiour to me in Juſtice, and conſequently in Power and Majeſty, take to thy ſelf thy great Power, come and ſit in my Throne, and diſplay thy Divine Perfections in the ſight of the World. Theſe and the following are ironical expreſſions, to make Job more ſenſible of his diſtance from, and ſubjection to God.

11 Caſt abroad the rage of thy wrath r: and behold every one that is proud, and abaſe him s.

r Inflict heavy Judgments upon thine Enemies, the Chaldeans and Sabeans, and others who have injured or provoked thee. s Deſtroy him with an angry look, as I can do and delight to do with ſuch Perſons.

12 Look on every one that is proud, and bring him low: and tread down the wicked in their place t.

t Either 1. whereſoever they are. Or, 2. Where they are in their greateſt ſtrength and glory, and therefore are moſt ſecure and confident. Or, 3. Forthwith, upon the ſpot, that the quickneſs and immediateneſs of the ſtroke may diſcover that it comes from a Divine hand.

13 Hide them in the duſt together u, and bind their faces x in ſecret y.

u Kill every one of them (as he ſaid v. 12.) at one blow, as I can do, and bring them all to their Graves, that they may ſleep in the Duſt, and never offend thee, nor trouble others more. x i. e. Condemn or deſtroy them. He alludes to the manner of covering the Faces of condemned Perſons, Eſther 7. 8. and of dead Men. John 11. 44. & 20.7. See on Job 9.24. y Either in a ſecret place, bury them in their Graves: Or, ſecretly, with a ſecret and inviſible ſtroke, that it may appear it comes from the hand of a God.

14 Then will I alſo confeſs unto thee, that thine own right hand can ſave thee z.

z i. e. That thou art mine Equal, and maiſt venture to contend with me. But ſince thou canſt do none of theſe things, it behoves thee to ſubmit to me, and to acquieſce in my dealings with thee.

15 Behold now ‖ Behemoth a which I made with thee b, he eateth graſs as an ox c.
‖ Or, the Elephant, as ſome think.

a That ſome particular Beaſt is deſigned by this word is evident from v. 15. and from the peculiar Characters given to him, which are not common to all great Beaſts. But what it is, is matter of ſome diſpute amongſt the Learned. The generality of them are agreed that this is the Elephant, and the following Leviathan the Whale; which being two of the goodlieſt and vaſteſt Creatures which God made, the one of the Land, the other of the Sea, and withal ſuch to whom the deſcription here given for the moſt part manifeſtly agrees, and the like is preſumed concerning the reſt, may ſeem to be here intended. And the difficulty of reconciling ſome few Paſſages to them, may ariſe either from our ignorance of them, or from the different nature and qualities of Creatures of the ſame general kind in divers parts. But ſome late and very learned men take the Leviathan to be the Crocodile, and the Behemoth to be a Creature called the Hippopotamus, which may ſeem fitly to be joyned with the Crocodile, both being very well known to Job and his Friends, as being frequent in the adjacent Parts, both amphibious, living and preying both in the Water and upon the Land, and both being Creatures of great bulk and ſtrength. I ſhall not undertake to determine the Controverſie; but ſhall ſhew how each part of the following Deſcription is or may be applied to them ſeverally. And this being no Point concerning Faith or a Good Life, every one may take the more liberty to underſtand the place of one or other of them. b Either 1. upon the Earth where thou art, whereas the Leviathan is in the Sea. Or, 2. as I made thee, for this Hebrew Particle is oft uſed as a Note of Compariſon, as Job 9.26. Pſal. 143. 7. and elſewhere; in the ſame manner, and upon the ſame day. Whereby he may intimate, that being equally the Creator and Soveraign Lord both of Job, and of this Behemoth, he had equal right to diſpoſe of them in ſuch manner as he thought meet. Or, (nigh as the Particle oft ſignifies) unto thee, i. e. in a place not far from thee, to wit, in the River Nile where the Hippopotamus, as well as the Crocodile, doth principally abide. But although thoſe Creatures were now in that River, yet they were made elſewhere, even where the firſt Man was made. c This is mentioned as a thing ſtrange and remarkable, as indeed it is, either 1. of the Elephant, in which God hath wiſely and mercifully planted this diſpoſition that he ſhould not prey upon other Creatures, which if he had, being ſo ſtrong and vaſt a Creature, he muſt needs have been very pernicious to them, but feed upon Graſs as an Ox doth. Or, 2. of the Hippopotamus; of whom Hiſtorians relate, that he comes out of the River upon the Land to feed upon Corn, and Hay, or Graſs, as an Ox doth, to whom alſo he is not unlike in the form of his Head and Feet, and in the bigneſs of his Body, whence the Italians call him the Sea-ox.

16 Lo now, his ſtrength is in his loins d, and his force is in the navel of his belly e.

d He hath ſtrength anſwerable to his bulk, but this ſtrength by God's wiſe and merciful Providence is not an offenſive ſtrength, conſiſting in or put forth by horns or claws, as it is in ravenous Creatures, but only defenſive and ſeated in his Loins, as it is in other Creatures, whereby he is rendred more ſerviceable to Men by the carrying of vaſt burdens. e Which though in the Elephant it be weaker than his Loins, whence the Rhinoceros fighting with him aims at that part, yet hath a more than ordinary ſtrength in it, as appears by the binding of the heavieſt burdens under and about it. This alſo agrees to the Hippopotamus in an eminent degree, whoſe whole skin is noted by ancient Writers to be harder than any other Creatures, and almoſt impenetrable.

17 ‖ He moveth his tail f like a cedar: the ſinews of his ſtones g are wrapt together.
‖ Or, he ſetteth up.

f Which though it be but ſhort both in the Elephant and in the Hippopotamus, yet when it is erected, is exceeding ſtiff and ſtrong. But this may be underſtood, either 1. of his Generative Part, which is oft called by that, or the like name, which the following Clauſe of the verſe may ſeem to favour. Or, 2. of the Elephants trunk, which being ſo eminent and remarkable a part, would not probably be omitted in this Deſcription, to which theſe words very fitly agree, becauſe of its admirable motion and ſtrength. Nor is it ſtrange that this is called his Tail, becauſe that word is oft uſed improperly for any end of a thing, as Iſa. 7. 4. See alſo Deut. 25. 18. & 28. 13, 44. g This may be noted becauſe the Elephants Teſticles do not hang down below the belly, as they do in other Beaſts, but are contained within his belly, where they are faſtned by Ligaments of extraordinary ſtrength. Or, the ſinews of the terror thereof, to wit, of the Trunk laſt mentioned under the name of the Tail, i. e. its terrible Sinews are ſtrongly and ſtrangely wrapped together, that he can move it as he liſteth with wonderful dexterity and ſtrength. Or, the Sinews of his Thighs, as the latter word oft ſignifies in the Arabick Tongue, which is very near akin to the Hebrew. The Thighs and Feet of the Hippopotamus are noted to be ſo ſinewy and ſtrong, that one of them is able to break or overturn a large Boat.

18 His bones h are as ſtrong pieces of Braſs i; his bones are like bars of iron.

h Under which title are comprehended his Ribs (as the LXX. here render it) and his teeth. i Exceeding hard and ſtrong, as they are in both theſe Creatures.

19 He is the chief of the ways of God k: he that made him, can make his ſword to approach unto him l.

k i. e. Of God's Works, to wit, of that ſort, or among living and brute Creatures. This is eminently and unqueſtionably true of the Elephant, in regard of his vaſt bulk, and ſtrength joyned with great activity, and eſpecially of his admirable ſagacity and aptneſs to learn, and of his ſingular uſefulneſs to Mankind, his Lord and Maſter, and God's Vicegerent in the World, and many other commendable qualities. And the Hippopotamus alſo is in ſome ſort, as others note, the chief, or one of the chief of God's Works, in regard of its great bulk and ſtrength and ſagacity, and the manner of his living both in the Water and upon the Land. But it muſt be granted that the Elephant doth exceed the Hippopotamus in many things. l Though he be ſo ſtrong and terrible, yet God can eaſily ſubdue and deſtroy him, either immediately, or by arming other Creatures, as the Rhinoceros, or Dragon, or Tiger, againſt him. Or, he that made him hath applied or given to him his Sword, or Arms, to wit, his Trunk, which may not unfitly be called his Sword, becauſe thereby he doth both defend himſelf, and offend his enemies. And this Trunk of his being a thing very obſervable and admirable in him, and therefore not likely to be neglected in his Deſcription, if it were not intended by his Tail, v. 17. may ſeem to be deſigned in theſe words.

20 Surely the mountains bring him forth food m: where all the beaſts of the field play n.

m Though this Creature be vaſtly great, and require much food, and no Man careth for it, yet God provides for it out of his own ſtores, and makes even deſert Mountains to afford him ſufficient ſuſtenance. The Hippopotamus alſo, though he live moſt in the Water, fetched his food from the Land, and from the Mountains or Hills, which are nigh unto the River Nile. n They not only feed ſecurely, but ſport themſelves by him or with him, being taught by experience that he is gentle and harmleſs, and never preys upon them.

21 He lieth under the ſhady trees, in the covert of the reeds, and fens p.

o The Elephant lies down to reſt himſelf: and it is but fabulous which ſome Writers affirm that they have no joynts in their Legs, and ſo cannot lye down, but ſleep or reſt themſelves ſtanding or leaning againſt a Tree. Which is denied and confuted by Ariſtotle in his Hiſtory of Living Creatures, 2,4. and by later Writers. p For the Elephant being a Creature naturally hot, and living generally in hot Countries, diligently ſeeks for and delights in ſhady and wateriſh places, as is noted by Ariſtotle, and after him by Pliny and Ælian.

22 The ſhady trees cover him with their ſhadow; the willows of the brook q compaſs him about.

q Or, of Nilus, of which this word is oft uſed in Scripture. And this ſeems to be the chief Argument by which the learned Bochart proves this to be meant of the Hippopotamus, whoſe conſtant reſidence is in or near the River of Nilus, or the Willows that grow by it. But it is well alledged by our Learned and Judicious Caryl, that this word Naal is never uſed to expreſs Nilus when it is put by it ſelf, as here it is, but only where the word Egypt is added to it, as it is in all the places which Bochart produceth. And this very phraſe, the Willows of the Brook, is uſed of other Brooks or Rivers beſides Nilus, as Lev. 23. 40. Compare Iſa. 15. 7.

23 Behold, † he drinketh up r a river s and haſteth not t: he truſteth that he can draw up Jordan into his mouth u.

† Heb. he oppreſſeth.

r Or, He ſnatcheth, or draweth, or drinketh up as it were with force and violence, as the word ſignifies. s i.e. A great quantity of water, hyperbolically called a River, as it is alſo Pſal. 78. 16. & 105. 41. This may be fitly applied to the Elephant, which becauſe of its great bulk and vehement thirſt, drinks a great deal of Water at one draught, as Naturaliſts and Hiſtorians have obſerved. t He drinks not with fear and caution and ſparingly, as the Dogs do at Nilus, for fear of the Crocodile; but ſuch is his Courage and Self-confidence, that he fears no Enemy either by Water or by Land, but drinketh ſecurely and liberally. u He drinks as if he deſigned, or hoped, or deſired to drink up the whole River. He mentions Jordan, either as a River well known in and nigh unto Job's Land; or becauſe poſſibly there were many Elephants which uſed to drink at it; or as a River in ſome parts of it but ſmall, which therefore might give more colour to the Hyperbole, and to the Elephants fancy or expectation, than a vaſter River, ſuch as Euphrates, would have done. Bochart expounds this alſo of the Hippopotamus, which, though he cannot ſwim, and may be drowned, as Naturaliſts report, yet will continue ſecurely under Water at the bottom of Nilus for ſome days together; and he renders the verſe thus, Behold, if a River oppreſs or cover him, he fears not, he is confident or ſecure, though Jordan (which is here put for any River) ſhould break forth or over-flow above his mouth, i. e. ſhould overwhelm him. But the judgment of this I leave to the Reader.

24 ‖ He taketh it with his eyes: his noſe pierceth through ſnares x.

‖ Or, will any take him in his ſight? or bore his noſe with a Gin?

x According to this Tranſlation the ſenſe is this, He taketh, or ſnatcheth, or draweth up (as was now ſaid, v. 23.) it (to wit, the River Jordan) with his eyes, i. e. when he ſees it, he truſteth that he can drink it all up; as we uſe to ſay, The eye is bigger than the belly: his noſe or ſnout pierceth, &c. i. e. he ſecurely thruſteth his Snout into the River, even to the bottom of it, to ſtir up the Mud, becauſe he delights to drink muddy Water, and if there be any Snares laid for other Creatures, he breaks them to pieces. But this verſe is otherwiſe tranſlated by others, Will or Can any man take him in his eyes? (i. e. openly and by manifeſt force? Surely no. His force and ſtrength is too great for Man to reſiſt or overcome: and therefore Men are forced to uſe many wiles and engines to catch him; which is true both of the Elephant and of the Hippopotamus:) Or pierce his Noſe with Snares or Gins? No. He may be taken by art and cunning, but not by violence.

CHAP. XLI.

God's Kingly Power and Authority above all the Children of Pride ſeen in the Leviathan, 1——34.

CAnſt thou draw out ‖ Leviathan with an hook? or his tongue with a cord † which thou letteſt down a?

‖ That is, a Whale, or a Whirlpool.
† Heb. which thou drowneſt.

a Canſt thou take him with a Hook and a Line, as Anglers take ordinary Fiſhes? Surely no. Queſt. What is this Leviathan? Anſw. This is granted on all hands, that it is a great and terrible Monſter, living in the Sea or Rivers, as Behemoth is a Land Monſter. It is the general and received Opinion that is the Whale, which is unqueſtionably called the Leviathan, Pſal. 104. 25, 26. which having been diſcovered in the Seas next bordering upon Arabia, probably was not unknown to Job, who was a very inquiſitive Perſon, and well ſtudied in the Works of God, as this Book manifeſts. But ſome later and very learned Interpreters conceive that it is the Crocodile; which was very well known in Egypt and all the Parts adjacent to it. And this is evident, that the Hebrew Thannin (which is parallel to this word Leviathan, theſe two words being ſynonymous, and the one promiſcuouſly uſed for the other, as appears from Pſal. 74. 13, 14. Iſa. 27. 1. Ezek. 32. 2.) is uſed of the Crocodile, Ezek. 29. 3, 4. & 32. 2, 3. But I ſhall not poſitively determine this Controverſie; but only ſhew how far the Text may be underſtood of both of them, and then ſubmit it to the Reader's Judgment, this being a matter of no great moment, wherein Chriſtians may vary without any hazard. Only this I will ſay, That whatever becomes of the Behemoth of the former Chapter, whether that be the Elephant, or the Hippopotamus, that doth not at all determine the ſenſe of this Leviathan, but leaves it indifferent to the Whale or the Crocodile, as the Context ſhall determine, which I confeſs ſeems to me to favour the latter more than the former. To which may be added, that it ſeems more probable that God would ſpeak of ſuch Creatures as were very well known to Job and his Friends, as the Crocodile was, than of ſuch as it is very uncertain whether they were known in thoſe parts, and in Job's time. This verſe, noting either the impoſſibility, or rather the great and terrible difficulty, of taking this Monſter with his Hook or Line, or ſuch like Inſtruments, may agree to either of them. For the Whale there is no doubt; nor much doubt as to the Crocodile; the taking whereof was generally eſteemed by the Ancients to be very difficult and perillous; whatſoever peculiar virtue or power from Nature or Art the Tentyritæ had againſt them, as the Pſylli were ſaid to have againſt Serpents. Some indeed object, That the laſt Clauſe cannot agree to the Crocodile, becauſe that hath no Tongue, as is affirmed by Ariſtotle, Pliny, and other Ancient Authors. But that is a miſtake, and the ground of it is plain, becauſe their Tongues are but ſmall in proportion to their vaſt Bodies, and withal faſtned to their under Jaws, as the ſelfſame Authors note. And that the Crocodile hath a Tongue is poſitively affirmed by the ſaid Ancient Authors, and by the Hebrew Writers, and by the Arabians, to whom this Creature was beſt known, and by later Authors.

2 Canſt thou put an hook b into his noſe c? or bore his jaw throw with a thorn d.

b Heb. a Bulruſh; i.e. an Hook like a Bulruſh with its head hanging down, as is expreſſed Iſa. 58. 5. c To hang him up by it for ſale, or to carry him home for uſe, after thou haſt drawn him out of the Sea or River, of which he ſpake in the former verſe. d Or, with an Iron Hook or Inſtrument as ſharp as a Thorn; wherewith thou uſeſt to carry little Fiſhes.

3 Will he make many ſupplications unto thee? will he ſpeak ſoft words unto thee e?

e Doth he dread thine anger or power? or will he humbly and earneſtly beg thy favour, that thou wouldſt ſpare him, and not purſue him, or releaſe him out of Priſon? It is a Metaphor from Men in diſtreſs and miſery, who uſe theſe means to them to whoſe power they are ſubject.

4 Will he make a covenant with thee f? wilt thou take him for a ſervant for ever?

f To wit, to do thee faithful ſervice, as the next words explain it. Canſt thou bring him into bondage, and force him to ſerve thee?

5 Wilt thou play with him as with a bird g? or wilt thou bind him for thy maidens h?

g As Children play with little Birds kept in Cages, or tied with ſtrings; which they do at their pleaſure and without any fear? h For thy little Daughters; which he mentions rather than little Sons, becauſe ſuch are moſt ſubject to fear.

6 Shall the companions i make a banquet of him k? ſhall they part him among the merchants l?

i Thy Friends or Aſſiſtants in the taking of him. k i. e. Feed upon him. Or, for him, i.e. for joy that thou haſt taken him. l As is uſual in ſuch caſes, that all who are Partners in the labour and hazard may partake of the profit alſo and divide the ſpoil.

7 Canſt thou fill his skin with barbed irons, or his his head with fiſh-ſpears m?

m This may be underſtood, either 1. of the Whale. And whereas it is objected, that the Whales at this day are taken in this manner, and therefore this cannot be underſtood of them: It may be replied, both that this art and way of taking Whales is a late invention, and was not known in Job's time; and that he doth not ſpeak of the abſolute impoſſibility, but of the great difficulty of taking them. Or 2. of the Crocodile, whoſe skin is ſo hard that an Iron or Spear will not pierce it, as we ſhall ſee hereafter.

8 Lay thine hand upon him n, remember the battel o, do no more.

n Either 1. in a familiar and Friendly manner, that thou maiſt catch him by deceit when thou canſt not do it by force. Or rather 2. in way of Hoſtility, ſeize upon him and take him by a ſtrong hand, if thou dareſt do ſo. o But e're thou do attempt that, conſider what thou art doing, and how hazardous thy enterprize is, and with whom, and with what diſadvantage thou art going to fight, and as it follows, do no more, proceed no further, draw back thy hand, and be thankful for ſo great a deliverance. Or the verſe may be rendred thus: If (which Particle is oft underſtood) thou offereſt or attempteſt to lay violent hands on him, thou wilt have cauſe to remember (the Imperative being put for the Future, (which is frequent in the Hebrew Language) the battel, and thou wilt do ſo no more; If thou doſt eſcape, thou wilt never forget thy danger, nor attempt any thing of like nature for the time to come.

9 Behold, the hope of him p, is in vain: ſhall not q one be caſt down even at the ſight of him r?

r Either 1. of the Fiſh, i. e. the hope of taking or conquering him. Or rather, 2. of the Man who laid hands upon him, as hopeing to take him by force, but in vain. q The prefix He being put for Halo, as it is oft times in the Hebrew Text, as Gen. 27.36. 1 Sam. 2.28. Jer. 3.6. & 31.20. Ezek. 20.30. r Not only the fight, but the very ſight of him is moſt frightful. Such is the ſight of the Whale to Mariners, who fear the overturning of their Veſſel. And ſuch is the ſight of the Crocodile, by which alone ſome have been affrighted out of their wits.

10 None is ſo fierce that dare ſtir him up s: who then is able to ſtand before me t?

s When he ſleepeth or is quiet. None dare provoke him to the Battel. t To contend with me his Creator, as thou Job doſt, when one of my Creatures is too hard for him.

* Rom. 11. 35. Pſal. 24. 1. & 50. 12. 1 Cor. 10. 26.

11 * Who hath prevented me u that I ſhould repay him x? whatſoever is under the whole heaven is mine y.

u To wit, with Offices or Service done for me, by which he hath laid the firſt Obligation upon me, for which I am indebted to him. Who can be before-hand with me in kindneſſes, ſince not only the Leviathan, but all Men, and, as it follows, all things under Heaven, are mine, made by my hand, and inriched with all their indowments by my favour, without which, O Job, thou wouldſt not have had either reaſon or ſpeech to uſe ſo perverſly to reproach my Providence. Having now ſaid and largely proved that Man could not contend with God in power, he now adds, that he cannot do it in juſtice, becauſe God oweth him nothing, nor is any way obliged to him. Which having briefly hinted to prevent an Objection, he returns to his former Argument, the Deſcription of the Leviathan. x That I ſhould be ingaged to requite his favours. y Created by my power and favour, and wholly in my poſſeſſion, and at my diſpoſe, and therefore cannot poſſibly prevent me, as was now ſaid.

† Heb. bars. Ch. 18. 13.

12 I will not conceal z his † parts a, nor his power, nor his comely proportion b.

z i. e. I will particularly ſpeak of them. Here is a Meioſis, as there is, Chap. 14. 11. & 15. 18. and oft elſewhere. a Heb. his bars, i. e. the Members of his Body, which are ſtrong like bars of Iron. b Which is more amiable and admirable in ſo vaſt a bulk.

13 Who can diſcover c the face of his garment d? or who can come to him ‖ with his double bridle e?

‖ Or, with in

c Or, uncover, or take off from him. d The upper or outward part of his Garment, or, the Garment it ſelf: the word face being oft redundant, as Gen. 1. 2. & 23. 3. and oft elſewhere. And by the Garment is meant the Skin which covers the whole Body, and may be taken off from the Body like a Garment. Who dare attempt to touch his very outward Skin? much leſs dare any venture to approach to him, to give him a deep or deadly wound. e To put it into his mouth, and lead him by it to thy Stable and Service, as thou doſt by an Horſe. Or rather, (becauſe he plainly ſeems to perſiſt in deſcribing the ſeveral parts of his Body: of which he ſpeaks both in the foregoing and following words) Who can come within his double Bridle, to wit, his vaſt Jaws, which have ſome reſemblance to a double Bridle: whence the Greeks call thoſe parts of the face which reach to the Jaws on both ſides, the Bridles.

14 Who can open the doors of his face f? his teeth are terrible round about g.

f To wit, his Mouth. If it be open, none dare enter within it, as he now ſaid; and here he adds, that if it be ſhut, none dare open it. g This is true of ſome kinds of Whales, though others are ſaid to have either none, or no terrible teeth: but it is more eminently and unqueſtionably true of the Crocodile, of which this very thing is obſerved by all Authors who write of it.

† Heb. ſtrong pieces of ſhield.

15 His † ſcales are his pride h, ſhut up together as with a cloſe ſeal i.

h He prides and pleaſeth himſelf in his ſtrong and mighty Scales. Heb. his ſtrong ſhields (i. e. Scales) are his pride. Or (as other, both ancient and modern Interpreters render it) His body (or, His back, as this word is uſed, Iſa. 38. 17. which, if meant of the Crocodile, is emphatical, becauſe his ſcales and ſtrength is in his Back, whereas his Belly is very ſoft and eaſily pierced,) is the ſtrength of ſhields, i. e. fortified with Scales ſtrong as Shields. This is meant either, 1. of the Whale, whoſe Skin, though it be ſmooth and entire, and without Scales, may be ſaid to be, as (which Particle is oft underſtood) ſtrong ſhields, becauſe it is, as Galen reports, exceeding hard and ſtrong, and almoſt impenetrable, and like a Shield, eſpecially then when Shields were made of Leather; and ſo it is not only on the back, as in the Crocodile, but alſo in the belly all over. Or, 2. of the Crocodile, which hath Scales properly ſo called, and thoſe moſt truly ſuch as here deſcribed, as all Authors and Eye-witneſſes conſent. i Cloſely compacted together, as things that are faſtned together by a ſeal.

16 One is ſo near to another k that no air can come between them.

k Which plainly ſhews that the Shields or Scales are ſeveral; which agrees better to the Crocodile, than to the Whale, whoſe Skin is all one entire piece, unleſs there were a ſort of Whales having thick and ſtrong Scales, which ſome have affirmed, but is not yet known and proved.

17 They are joined one to another; they ſtick together, that they cannot be ſundred l.

l It is exceeding difficult, and almoſt impoſſible by any power of Art to ſever them one from another.

18 By his neeſings m a light doth ſhine, and his eyes are like the eye-lids of the morning n.

m Which may be underſtood, either 1. of any commotion or agitation of the Body, like that which is in neezing, as when the Whale ſtirreth himſelf, and caſteth or ſhooteth up great ſpouts of Water into the Air by the Pipes which God hath planted in his Head for this uſe; which Water being thin and tranſparent, and illuminated by the Sun-beams, caſts forth a ſhining light. Or, 2. of neezing properly ſo called, which the Crocodile is ſaid frequently to do, becauſe it commonly turneth its eyes to the Sun, as Strabo, and others note; which when a Man doth, he is apt to neeze. n To which they ſeem very fitly compared, becauſe the Eyes both of the Whale and Crocodile are dull and dark under the Water, but as ſoon as they appear above Water, they caſt forth immediately a bright and clear light, though not like that of the Sun at noon day, which had been too great an Hyperbole, yet like the Morning light, ſuddenly breaking forth after the dark Night.

19 Out of his mouth go burning lamps o, and ſparks of fire leap out.

o i. e. His breathings and blowings are very hot, or flaming, as the following verſes explains this. This alſo may ſeem better to agree to the Crocodile, which breaths (as Ariſtotle affirms) like the Hippopotamus, of which ancient Authors affirm, that his Noſtrils are very large, and he breaths forth a fiery ſmoak like that of a Furnace, than to the Whale, which rather caſts forth ſtreams of Water, as was noted before, than flames of Fire, there being no ſuch great heat obſerved in Whales, nor as far as I know, in any other fiſhes.

20 Out of his noſtrils goeth ſmoak, as out of a ſeething pot or caldron p.

p Heb. Pool. So a great Caldron is called, becauſe it ſends forth a great ſmoak as a Pool doth vapours; as in like manner the great brazen Laver in the Temple is called a Sea, for the great quantity of Water which it held.

21 His † breath kindleth Coals q, and a flame goeth out of his mouth.

† Heb. ſou

q An Hyperbolical Expreſſion, noting only extraordinary Heat.

22 In his neck remaineth ſtrength r, and † ſorrow is turned into joy before him s.

r His Neck is exceeding ſtrong. This is meant, either 1. of the Whale, who though he hath no Neck no more than other Fiſhes have, yet he hath a part in ſome ſort anſwerable to it, where the Head and Body are joyned together. Or, 2. of the Crocodile, whom Ariſtotle (who made it his buſineſs to ſearch out the ſeveral Natures and Parts of all living Creatures, and had all the helps and advantages which he deſired to find them out,) and Scaliger, and others, affirm to have a Neck, though ſome deny it. s i. e. The approach of any Enemy, which uſually cauſeth fear and ſorrow in others, fills him with joy, as being deſirous of nothing more than fighting. Or, ſorrow rejoyceth, or danceth, or triumpheth, &c. i. e. is prevalent and victorious, and quickly invades and conquers all thoſe Men, or other Creatures, which are in his way. Sorrow is his Companion, or Harbenger, which attends upon him whereſoever he goes. This may be a Poetical Expreſſion, like that of the Poets, when they bring in Anger and Fear going along with or before Mars into the battle.

23 † The flakes t of his fleſh u are joined together: they are firm in themſelves, they cannot x be moved y.

t Or, Parts, which ſtick out, or hang looſe, and are ready to fall from other Fiſhes, or Creatures. u The word Fleſh is uſed of Fiſhes alſo, as Lev. 11. 11. 1 Cor. 15. 39. x Without difficulty. y To wit, out of their place, or from the other Members of the Body.

24 His heart z is as firm as a ſtone, yea, as hard as a piece of the nether mill-ſtone a.

z Either, 1. That part of the Body is moſt firm, and hard, and ſtrong. Or, 2. His Courage is invincible; he is void of fear for himſelf, and of compaſſion to others, which is oft called hardneſs of heart. a Which being to bear the weight of the upper, ought to be the harder and ſtronger of the two.

25 When he raiſeth up himſelf b, the mighty c are afraid: by reaſon of breakings d they purifie themſelves e.

b Shewing himſelf upon the top of the Waters. Or, becauſe of his Height or Greatneſs, or Majeſty, for he is repreſented as a King, v. 34. c Even the ſtout-hearted Mariners or Paſſengers, who uſe to be above fear. d Either, 1. Of the Sea, cauſed by his motion, which daſheth the Waves in pieces one againſt another. Or rather, 2. Of their Mind and State: by reaſon of their great danger and diſtreſs; which is expreſſed by this very word, Pſal. 60. 2. Jonah 2. 4. e Either 1. Naturally; that being the uſual effect of great terrour. See Ezek. 7. 17. Or rather 2. Morally, as this word is generally uſed. Thoſe Mariners who ordinarily live in a groſs and general neglect of God, and of Religion, are ſo affrighted with this imminent danger, that they cry unto God in their trouble, as is ſaid in like caſe, Pſal. 107. 28. and endeavour to purge their Conſciences from the guilt of their ſins, by confeſſing and ſeemingly forſaking of them, and to make their peace with God, and obtain his favour and help, by their Vows, and Promiſes, and Prayers.

f That approacheth to him, and dare ſtrike at him. g Heb. cannot ſtand, i. e. either, 1. Cannot endure the ſtroke, but will be broken by it. Or rather, 2. Cannot abide or take hold of him, or be fixed in him; but is inſtantly beaten back by the exceſſive hardneſs of the Skin, which cannot be pierced by it, as may be gathered from this and other paſſages before and after it. This alſo ſeems better to agree to the Crocodile, whoſe Skin no Sword, nor Dart, nor Muſquet Bullet (as others add) can pierce, than to the Whale, whoſe Skin is eaſily pierced, as experience ſheweth in our Whales; except the Whale here ſpoken of were of another kind; which is not impoſſible. h Or, Breaſt-plate. As offenſive Weapons cannot hurt him, ſo defenſive Weapons cannot ſecure a Man from him. But Men that go upon the deſign of taking either Whales or Crocodiles do not uſe to fortifie themſelves in that manner. Some therefore take this to be another offenſive Weapon, a kind of Dart, as this word ſignifies in the Arabick Language; which is but a Dialect of the Hebrew, and from which the true ſignification of many Hebrew words muſt be gathered.

27 He eſteemeth iron as ſtraw i, and braſs as rotten wood.

i He neither fears nor feels the blows of the one more than of the other.

28 The arrow k cannot make him flee: ſling-ſtones l are turned with him into ſtubble m.

k Heb. the ſon of the bow; as it is elſewhere called the ſon of the quiver, Lam. 3. 13. the Quiver being as it were the Mother or Womb that bears it, and the Bow as the Father that begets it, or ſendeth it forth. l Great Stones caſt out of Slings, which have a great force and efficacy: of which ſee on 2 Chron. 26. 14. m Hurt him no more than a blow with a little ſtubble.

29 Darts are counted as ſtubble: he laugheth at the ſhaking of a ſpear n.

n So far is he from fearing it, and fleeing from it, that he ſcorns and defies it.

30 † Sharp ſtones are under him: he ſpreadeth ſharp-pointed things upon the mire o.

† Heb. ſharp pieces of the potſheard.

o According to this Tranſlation the ſenſe is, His Skin is ſo hard and impenetrable, that the ſharpeſt Stones are as eaſie to him as the Mire, and make no more impreſſion upon him. But the words are and may be otherwiſe rendred as continuing the former ſenſe, They (to wit, the Arrows, Darts or Stones caſt at him) are, or fall under him, like (which Particle is oft underſtood) ſharp ſhreds, or fragments of ſtones, he ſpreadeth ſharp pointed things (to wit, the pieces of Swords or Darts which were flung at him, and broken upon him) upon the mire. The fragments of broken Weapons lie as thick at the bottom of the Water in the place of the fight, as little ſtones do in the Mire, or as they do in a Field after ſome fierce and furious Battle. Or thus, with him (or for him, i.e. for his defence) are ſharp ſtones, he ſpreadeth himſelf like an arrow, or threſhing inſtrument (which is filled and fortified with Iron) in the mire or mud in the bottom of the Water: So he doth not deſcribe his reſting place, but rather his Back, which he not unfitly compares to ſharp Stones or threſhing Inſtruments, becauſe the Darts or Stones caſt at him pierce no more into him than they would do into them if they were thrown at them.

31 He maketh the deep p to boil like a pot q: he maketh the ſea r like a pot of ointment s.

p The deep Waters, or the Sea, which is called the deep, Pſal. 107. 24. Jonah 2. 3. as it is explained in the next Clauſe. q To ſwell, and foam, and froth by his ſtrong and vehement motion, as any Liquor doth when it is boiled in a pot. r Either the great Sea, the proper place of the Whale, Pſal. 104. 25. or the great River Nilus, which is called a Sea, both in Scripture, as Iſa. 11. 15. and in other Authors (of which ſee my Latin Synopſis) as Euphrates is called the Sea of Babylon, Iſa. 21. 1. Jer. 51. 36. or Lakes or Pools, which are moſt frequently called Seas both in the Old and New Teſtament, as every one knows. And in ſuch Lakes the Crocodiles are no leſs than in Nilus, as it is atteſted by Herodotus, and Strabo, and others. s This Clauſe ſeems to be added very emphatically to intimate that this Leviathan cauſeth not only a vehement commotion, but alſo a great fragrancy in the Sea or Waters where it is. Which, though it was not obſerved by the Ancients, yet is unanimouſly affirmed by later Authors upon their own knowledge and experience, that it caſts a perfume like Musk; of which ſee the Names and Words of the Authors in my Latin Synopſis.

32 He maketh a path to ſhine after him; one would think the deep to be hoary t.

t When he raiſeth himſelf to the top of the Waters, he doth as it were plow it up and make large furrows, and cauſeth a white froth or foam upon the Waters.

33 Upon earth u there is not his like, ‖ who is made without fear x.

‖ Or, who behave themſelves without fear.

u Either 1. ſtrictly ſo called, as it is diſtinguiſhed from the Sea or Rivers. There is no Land-creature comparable to him for ſtrength and courage. Or 2. largely taken. No Creature equals him in all points. Or, upon the duſt, as the word properly ſignifies, i. e. among all things that creep in the duſt, among which this may in ſome ſort be numbred for the ſhortneſs of its feet. But this were no great honour to it to be the chief of creeping things; and therefore the former Tranſlation ſeems more proper for the preſent deſign of magnifying this Creature above all others. x Fears no Enemy as being full of courage, and ſenſible of his own invincible ſtrength. Or, ſo as he cannot be bruiſed or broken, by reaſon of his prodigious hardneſs, of which I have ſpoken before.

34 He beholdeth all high things y: he is a king over all the children of pride.

y He doth not turn his back upon, nor hide his face from the higheſt and proudeſt Creatures, but looks upon them with a bold and undaunted countenance, as being without any fear of them, as was now ſaid. z He carries himſelf with Princely Majeſty and Courage towards the ſtouteſt and loftieſt Creatures; which, though of far higher ſtature than himſelf, he ſtriketh down with one ſtroke of his Tail, as he commonly doth Cows, and Horſes, and ſometimes Elephants.

CHAP. XLII.

Job's humiliation and repentance, 1—6. God preferring Job's cauſe, reproveth his friends, for whom Job muſt intercede, and God will accept him, 7—9. God magnifieth and bleſſeth Job, 10—15. His age and death, 16, 17.

THen Job anſwered the LORD, and ſaid,

2 I know that thou canſt do a every thing b, and that ‖ no thought can be withholden from thee c.

‖ Or, no thought of thine can be hindred.

a Not only by power, (for that he always thought) but alſo by right; about which he had in ſome ſort doubted and diſputed. It is a Maxim in Law, That a Man can only do that which he hath a right to do. b Whatſoever it pleaſeth thee to do with thy Creatures. c He ſpeaks either, 1. of Job's thoughts. Thou knoweſt me and all my ſinful and unworthy thoughts of thy Providential Dealings with me, though I was not able to ſee the evil of them. Or 2. of God's thoughts. Whatſoever thou thinkeſt or propoſeſt to do, thou thou canſt or maiſt do it; and neither I nor any of thy Creatures can either reſtrain thee from it, or condemn thee for it, as I have boldly and wickedly preſumed to do. So this laſt Clauſe of the verſe explains the former.

3 * Who is he d that hideth counſel without knowledge e? therefore f have I uttered that I underſtood not; * things too wonderful for me, which I knew not g.

* Ch. 38. 2.

* Pſ. 40. 5. & 139. 6.

d i.e. What am I that I ſhould dare to do ſo? Ah ſilly audacious Wretch that I am, that I ſhould be guilty of ſuch madneſs! e Which words are repeated out of Chap. 38. 2. where they are explained. f Becauſe my mind was without knowledge, therefore my ſpeech was ignorant and fooliſh. Or, Being ſenſible of my ignorance and raſhneſs, I think fit to make this humble and ingenious confeſſion. g I have ſpoken fooliſhly and unadviſedly of things far above my reach, even of God's infinite and ſoveraign Majeſty, and of his deep and unſearchable Counſels and Providence.

4 Hear, I beſeech thee, and I will ſpeak h: I will demand of thee i, and declare thou unto me.

h Hear and accept my humble and penitent Confeſſion and Recantation. i Or, and enquire, to wit, Counſel or Inſtruction, as a Scholar doth of his Maſter, as the following words note. I will no more ſawcily diſpute the matter with thee, but beg information from thee. The words which God had uttered to Job by way of challenge, Chap. 38. 3. & 40. 7. Job returns to him again in way of ſubmiſſion.

5 I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear, but now mine eye ſeeth thee k.

k The knowledge which I had of thy Divine Nature, and Perfections and Counſels, was hitherto dark, and doubtful, and conjectural, being grounded chiefly, if not only, upon the Inſtructions and Reports of other Men; but now it is clear and certain, as being immediately inſpired into my Mind by this thy glorious Apparition and Revelation, and by the Operation of thy Holy Spirit; which makes theſe things as certain and evident to me, as if I ſaw them with my bodily Eyes.

6 Wherefore I abhor l my ſelf m, and repent in duſt and aſhes n.

l i. e. Diſlike, and deteſt, and loath. m Or, my former words and carriage. One of theſe, or ſome like Supplement is neceſſary to compleat the ſenſe, and is clearly gathered from the following words. n Sitting in Duſt and Aſhes; which hitherto I have done in token of my grief for my Affliction; but now I deſire and reſolve to do in teſtimony of my Penitence for my Sins.

7 And it was ſo that after the LORD had ſpoken theſe words unto Job, the LORD ſaid to Eliphaz the Temanite o, My wrath is kindled againſt thee, and againſt thy two friends p, for ye have not ſpoken of me the thing that is right, as my ſervant Job hath q.

o As the eldeſt of the three, and becauſe he ſpoke firſt, and by his evil example led the reſt into the ſame miſtakes and miſcarriages. p To wit, Bildad and Zophar, who are not excuſed, but ſeverely reproved, although they were drawn into the ſin by Eliphaz his authority and influence. Elihu is not here reproved, becauſe he dealt more juſtly and mercifully with Job, and did not condemn his Perſon, but only rebuke his ſinful expreſſions. q Either, 1. as Job hath now ſpoken: you have not acknowledged your errours as he hath done. Or rather, 2. as Job did in his Diſcourſes with you. Which is not to be underſtood ſimply and abſolutely (as is manifeſt from God's cenſure upon Job for his hard and evil ſpeeches of him) but comparatively; becauſe Job was not ſo much to be blamed as they, partly becauſe his opinion concerning the methods of God's Providence, and the indifferency and promiſcuouſneſs of its diſpenſations towards good and bad men was truer than theirs, which was that God did generally reward good men and puniſh ſinners in this Life; partly becauſe their misbelief of God's counſels and dealings with men was attended with horrid uncharitableneſs and cruelty towards Job, whom they wounded with bitter and injurious Speeches, and condemned as an Hypocrite, not only without ſufficient evidence, as not being able to ſearch his Heart, but upon falſe and frivolous grounds, to wit, his ſore Afflictions, and againſt many Evidences of Piety which Job had given: and partly becauſe Job's heavy preſſures might eaſily cloud and darken his mind, and draw forth his impatience and paſſionate Speeches; which although it did not wholly excuſe Job, yet did certainly much extenuate his Offences; whereas they were under no ſuch Temptations or Provocations, either from God or from Job, but voluntarily broke forth into their hard, and ſevere, and untrue Expreſſions concerning God's Counſels and Job's Conditions, thereby adding Affliction to him whom God did ſorely afflict, which was moſt unfriendly and inhuman.

8 Therefore take unto you now ſeven bullocks, and ſeven rams, and go to my ſervant Job r, and offer up s for your ſelves a burnt-offering, and my ſervant Job ſhall pray for you, for † him will I accept t: leſt I deal with you after your folly u, in that ye have not ſpoken of me the thing which is right, like my ſervant Job.

r Whom though you have cenſured and condemned as an Hypocrite, I own for my faithful Servant, human infirmity excepted. s By the hand of Job, whom I do hereby conſtitute your Prieſt to Pray and Sacrifice for you. t To wit, on your behalf as well as on his own. u Leſt my Wrath and juſt Judgment take hold of you for your falſe and fooliſh Speeches.

9 So Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite went, and did according as the Lord commanded them x: the LORD alſo accepted † Job y.

† Heb. the face of Job.

x Shewing their repentance by their ſubmiſſion to God, and to Job for God's ſake, and by taking ſhame to themſelves. y Both for his Friends and for himſelf, as the next verſe explains it.

10 And the LORD turned the Captivity of Job z, when he prayed for his friends a: alſo b the LORD † gave Job twice as much as he had before.

† Heb. added all that had been to Job unto the double.

z i. e. Brought him out of that ſtate of Bondage in which he had been ſo long held by Satan and by his own Spirit, and out of all his Diſtreſſes and Miſeries. Or, returned Job's captivity, i. e. the Perſons and Things which had been taken from him, not the ſame which he had loſt, but other equivalent to them, and that with advantage. a Whereby he manifeſteth his Obedience to God and his true Love and Charity to them, in being ſo ready to forgive them and heartily to pray for them; for which God would not let him loſe his Reward. b An emphatical Particle. He not only gave him as much as he loſt, but double to it.

11 Then c came there unto him all his brethren, and all his ſiſters d, and all they that had been his acquaintance before, and did eat bread with him e in his houſe: and they bemoaned him f, and comforted him over all the evil g that the LORD had brought upon him: every man alſo gave him a piece of money, and every one an ear-ring of gold h.

c When Job had humbled himſelf, and God was reconciled to Job, he quickly turned the Hearts of his Friends to favour him, according to Prov. 16. 7. as during his impenitency, and for his trial and humiliation he had alienated their Hearts from him, of which Job ſo ſadly complains. d Largely ſo called, according to the Scripture-uſe of theſe Titles, to wit, his Kindred diſtinguiſhed from his other Acquaintance. i. e. Feaſted with him, as that Phraſe is commonly uſed in Scripture, to congratulate with him for God's great and glorious favour already vouchſafed to him in ſo eminent a Viſion and Revelation. f They declared the ſenſe which they had of his Calamities whilſt they were upon him, although they had hitherto wanted opportunity to expreſs it. g Or, concerning all the evil; which though it was bitter to endure when it was preſent, yet the remembrance of it revived in him by the Diſcourſes of his Friends was very delightful, as is uſual in ſuch caſes. h Partly to make up his former loſſes, and partly as a teſtimony of their honourable reſpect to him.

12 So the LORD bleſſed i the latter end of Job more then his beginning: for he had fourteen thouſand ſheep, and ſix thouſand camels, and a thouſand yoke of oxen, and a thouſand ſhe-aſſes.

i Not only with Spiritual, but alſo with Temporal and Earthly Bleſſings.

13 He had alſo ſeven ſons and three daughters.

14 And he called k the name of the firſt, Jemima, and the name of the ſecond, Kezia, and the name of the third, Keren-happuch.

k Giving them ſuch Names as ſignifie their excellent beauty, of which ſee my Latin Synopſis.

15 And in all the land were no women found ſo fair as the daughters of Job: and their father gave them l inheritance among their brethren.

l Gave his Daughters a ſhare, and poſſibly an equal ſhare with his Sons in his Inheritance: which in ſo plentiful an eſtate he might eaſily do, eſpecially to ſuch amiable Siſters, without the envy of their Brethren: and which peradventure he did to oblige them to ſettle themſelves amongſt their Brethren, and to marry into their own Religious Kindred, not to Strangers, who in thoſe times were generally ſwallowed up in the gulph of Idolatry.

16 After this lived Job an hundred and forty years, and ſaw his ſons, and his ſons ſons, even four generations.

17 So Job m died being old, and full of days n.

m After God had turned his Captivity, as is ſaid v. 10. n By which length of his days it ſeems moſt probable that he lived before the times of Moſes, when the days of human life were much ſhortned, as he complains.

PSALMS.

PSALMS.

The ARGUMENT.

THE divine Authority of this Book of Pſalms is ſo certain and evident, that it was never queſtioned in the Church: Which being fixed, it is of ſmall moment that the Penmen of ſome of them is not now known: Nor doth this any more leſſen its Authority, than it invalidates the Decree of a Prince, or an Act of Parliament, that it is not certain by whoſe Pen it was drawn up. Moſt of them were compoſed by David, as is evident both from the title of them, and from the expreſs Teſtimony of the New Teſtament concerning ſome of them, and that by the inſpiration of Gods Spirit, as appears both from the divine matter and frame of them, and from 2 Sam. 23. 1. Mat. 22. 43. &c. Act. 1. 16. and 2. 25. But ſome of them were compoſed by other Perſons; by Moſes, as Pſal. 90. by Heman, and Ethan, and Aſaph, as the title of the Pſalms ſhew; and by others after their times, whoſe names are not mentioned, as is manifeſt from Pſal. 126. & 137. It is apparent that the Pſalms were not written in the order in which they now lie; and they were put into this order either by Ezra, as the Hebrew Doctors affirm; or by ſome other holy Prophet or Prophets. It is ſufficient for us, that the whole Book is owned as Canonical by our bleſſed Saviour, Luke 24. 44.

PSAL. I.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm was put firſt as a Preface to all the reſt, as a powerful perſwaſive to the diligent reading, and ſerious ſtudy of the whole Book, and of the reſt of the Holy Scripture, taken from that bleſſedneſs which attends upon the ſtudy and practice thereof.

The Godly bleſſed, 1. Their delight in Gods Law, 2. Their fruitfulneſs, 3. The wretched courſe and condition of the ungodly, 4—6.

rov. 4. 4, 15. ||Or, wicked. *Jer. 15. 19. 1 BLeſſed * is the man a that walketh not in the counſel of the || ungodly b, nor ſtandeth c in the way d of ſinners e, * nor ſitteth in the ſeat f of the ſcornful g.

a The Hebrew words are very Emphatical: Bleſſedneſs belongs to that man; or, O the bleſſedneſs of that man! Thrice bleſſed is that man; who is here deſcribed negatively, and in the next verſe poſitively. b i.e. That doth not lead his Life according to their counſel, or courſe, or manner of living: That doth not aſſociate himſelf with them, nor follow their evil inſtigations or examples. Walking, notes choice of it, and continuance or progreſs in it, otherwiſe good men do ſometimes ſtep aſide into an evil Action. For the explaining of the Phraſe ſee Gen. 49. 6. 2 Chron. 22. 3, 4, 5. Prov. 1. 15. & 4. 14. Mic. 6. 16. c Which notes a more ſetled abode, hardneſs and obſtinacy in it. d i.e. In their courſe or manner of Converſation; in the practice of thoſe things which they chuſe and uſe to do; which is called a mans way, Pſal. 5. 8. & 25. 4. 2 Pet. 2. 2, 15. e Emphatically ſo called here, as alſo Pſal. 26. 9. Eccleſ. 9. 2. Mat. 26. 45. Luke 7. 37. John 9. 16, 31. who give up themſelves to the power and practice of ſin, making it their great buſineſs and their delight. f Which notes their aſſociation, or incorporation of themſelves with them; a conſtant and reſolved perſeverance in their wicked courſes, with great content and ſecurity; and a great proficiency and eminency in the ſchool of Wickedneſs, and an ability and readineſs to inſtruct others therein. g Of thoſe who are not only diſeaſed, but reject, deſpiſe, and ſcorn all Remedies; who make a mock of ſin, and of Gods threat'nings and judgments againſt Sinners; who deride all wholeſome reproofs and counſels, and make it their trade to ſcoff at goodneſs and good men. Divers have obſerved a gradation in this verſe; the following clauſe ſtill exceeding the former, for ſtanding is more than walking, and ſitting more than ſtanding. And the way or courſe may ſeem to be worſe than the counſel or deſign, and the ſeat is worſe than the way: And Sinners in Scripture uſe, are worſe than the ungodly, and the ſcornful are the worſt of Sinners: But I would not lay great ſtreſs upon ſuch Obſervations.

*Joſh. 1. 8. Pſa. 119. 1. 2 But his delight is in the law h of the LORD, * and in his law doth he meditate i day and night k.

h (i. e.) In the ſtudy and practice of it, as appears from the Context. The law of God may be here underſtood of the whole Doctrine delivered by God to the Church conſiſting of Doctrines, Precepts, Promiſes, and Threat'nings; &c. as it is taken Pſalm 37. 31. & 78. 1. Iſa. 51. 7. John 10. 34. or more particularly of the preceptive part of it, which is commonly ſo called; and ſo this is noted as the peculiar character of a good man, that he delighteth himſelf not only in the Promiſes, which a bad man may do, Mat. 13. 20. but even in the commands of God, Pſal. 112. 1. & 119. 47, 127, 143. 1 John 5. 3. which are unwelcome and burthenſom to a wicked man. i The word implies a deep, and ſerious, and affectionate thoughtfulneſs about it: ſee Pſal. 19. 14. & 49. 3. Prov. 24. 2. Iſa. 33. 18. k Not ſeldom and ſlightly, as Hypocrites do, but diligently, frequently, conſtantly, and upon all occaſions.

*Jer. 17. 8. Ezek. 47. 12. †Heb. fade 3 And l he ſhall be like a tree * planted by the rivers m of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his ſeaſon n; his leaf alſo ſhall not † wither o, and whatſoever he doth ſhall proſper p.

l Or, for, as this particle is oft uſed, as Pſal. 60. 12. & 108. 13. Prov. 4. 17. This being the proof of that bleſſedneſs of a good man, which he had only aſſerted (v. 1.) m (i. e.) A river; the plural number being put for the ſingular, as it is Judg. 12. 7. Jonah 1. 5. and oft elſewhere. n (i. e.) In the time of fruit-bearing: Which being applyed to the good man, notes either, 1. His active goodneſs, that he ſeeketh and improveth all opportunities for the doing of good, exerciſing godlyneſs, juſtice, temperance, charity, patience, &c. according to the ſeveral occaſions offered to him; or rather, 2. His certain proſperity and happineſs, as may be gathered from the end of this verſe, and the oppoſite ſtate of the ungodly, v. 4. 5. That he ſhall have the fruit or benefit of his godly life in due time, or when it is expedient for him; poſſibly in this life, but aſſuredly in the next life. o His happineſs is not ſhort and tranſitory, as all worldly felicity is, but fixed and everlaſting, like thoſe trees which are continually green and flouriſhing: Or, and (like a tree) whoſe leaf never withers. p All his actions ſhall be crowned with ſucceſs and a bleſſed end or effect; ſee Rom. 8. 28.

4 The ungodly are not ſo q: but are * like the chaff which the wind driveth away r. *Iſa. 35. 5. Pſal. 17. 13.

q Their condition is far differing from the former. r In regard either, 1. of their ſinful diſpoſition. They are vain and frothy, unprofitable and hurtful, without any root of true and ſolid goodneſs, without any certain end, or conſtant courſe, toſſed to and fro with every wind of their own luſts or temptations. Or rather, 2. of their wretched condition: They are reſtleſs and unquiet in their own minds and conſciences; their ſeeming felicity, in which they pleaſe and pride themſelves, hath no firm foundation, but quickly vaniſheth and fleeth away as chaff doth before the wind, and their end is to be burned, ſee Job 21. 18. Pſal. 35. 5. Mat. 3. 12.

5 Therefore s the ungodly ſhall not * ſtand t in the judgment u, nor ſinners in the congregation of the righteous x. *Pſa. 24. 3.

s To wit, becauſe they are ungodly: Or becauſe, as this particle is ſometimes uſed, as Gen. 38. 26. Num. 10. 31. & 14. 43. Pſal. 42. 6. for this verſe is added to enforce or prove what he ſaid in the former. t (i. e.) Not ſubſiſt or endure the tryal; or not be juſtified or carry his cauſe; as this word is oft uſed, being oppoſed to falling, as Pſal. 18. 38. & 20. 8. Mal. 3. 2. Luke 21. 36. Rom. 14. 4. Eph. 6. 13. u Either 1. in the time of temporal calamities, when God ſhall ariſe to judge and puniſh them; for then the hearts of the wicked fail, and their conſciences are filled with horrour. Or 2. in that great and general judgment of the whole World, called here the judgment emphatically; in that ſolemn and general Congregation of all mankind, as the next words expreſs it. x (i. e.) In that ſociety which ſhall conſiſt of none but righteous Perſons, or amongſt the righteous ones on Chriſts right hand, Mat. 25. 32.

6 For y the LORD * knoweth z the way of the righteous: but the way of the ungodly ſhall periſh †. *Pſa. 31. 7. Prov. 21. 10.

y He now gives a reaſon of this great difference between the righteous and the ungodly, expreſſed in the foregoing verſes. z Either 1. properly and ſpeculatively he ſearcheth and knoweth all their hearts aud ways, or actions; and therefore will preſerve, proſper, and bleſs them; which may be gathered out of the following and oppoſite clauſe of this verſe, and out of v. 1, 2. Or 2. practically and affectionately, as words of knowledge in Scripture do very frequently imply affection, as Exod. 1. 8. Pſal. 31. 7. & 101. 4. Hoſ. 8. 4. Amos 3. 2. He approveth, loveth, and delighteth in them, and in the courſe of their lives, and therefore will recompence them: Or, he careth for and directeth their actions to a bleſſed iſſue. † All their wicked deſigns and courſes ſhall come to nothing, and they ſhall periſh with them.

PSAL. II.

The ARGUMENT.

THE Penman of this Pſalm was David, as is affirmed, Acts 4. 25. As for the matter or ſubject of it, it may ſeem to have ſome reſpect unto David, and to his advancement to, and ſettlement in the Throne of Juda and Iſrael; but the chief deſign and ſcope of it, and the primary intention of the Holy Ghoſt in it, was to deſcribe the Meſſiah and his Kingdom, as is manifeſt, 1. From expreſs teſtimonies of the New Teſtament to that purpoſe, as Acts 4. 25. & 13. 33. Heb. 1. 5. & 5. 5. and, 2. From the conſent of the ancient Hebrew Writers who did unanimouſly expound it ſo, as is confeſſed by their own brethren, particularly by Rabbi Solomon Jarchi upon this place; who hath this memorable paſſage, Our Doctors expounded this Pſalm of the King Meſſiah, but that we may anſwer the Hereticks (by which he means the Chriſtians, as all know) it is expedient to interpret it of Davids perſon, as the words ſound. Which words although they are left out of the latter Editions of that Book, either by the fraud of Jews or careleſneſs, or miſtake of others, yet are extant in the ancient Editions of it. 3. From divers paſſages of the Pſalm which do not agree to David but to Chriſt only, as the title of Son, of which ſee Heb. 1. 4, 5. The extent of his Kingdom, v. 8. and divine Worſhip, v. 11, 12.

The Kingdom of Chriſt, and the oppoſition of the Heathen foretold, 1—5, 6, 7. God giveth him the Earth for his poſſeſſion, 8, 9. He ſummons all the Kings and Judges of the Earth to ſubmit themſelves to him, 10—12.

1 WHY a * do the heathen b ‖ rage, and the people c † imagine a vain thing d?

a Upon what provocation, or to what end or purpoſe? b Or, Gentiles; who did ſo againſt David, as we ſee 2 Sam. 5. 6, 17. 1 Chron. 14. 8. &c. and againſt Chriſt, Luke 18. 32. Acts 4. 25, &c. c This is either another expreſſion of the ſame thing, as is uſual in Scripture; or as the former word notes the Gentiles, ſo this may deſign the Jews or Iſraelites, who alſo combined againſt David, 2 Sam. 2. 8, &c. and againſt Chriſt, Acts 4. 27, though they were all of one nation, and deſcended from one and the ſame mother, as this word ſignifies, and it is uſed Gen. 25. 23. d. What they ſhall never be able to affect, and if they could, it would do them no good, as they fancy, but great hurt.

2 The kings e of the earth f ſet themſelves g, and the rulers take counſel together, againſt the LORD h, and i againſt his anointed k, ſaying, e Either thoſe mentioned 2 Sam. 5. & 8. or rather Herod the Great, and the other Herod, and Pilate and others with or after them. f So called in way of contempt, and to ſhew their madneſs in oppoſing the God of Heaven. g The word notes their firm purpoſe and profeſſed hoſtility, and the combination of their counſels and forces. h Either directly and profeſſedly; or indirectly and by conſequence, becauſe againſt his anointed, and againſt his counſel and command. i Or, that is, as that particle is oft uſed, the latter clauſe explaining the former, and ſhewing in what ſenſe they fought againſt that God whom they pretended to own and worſhip. k Againſt ſuch a King whom God hath choſen and exalted, and wonderfully accompliſhed and ſet up for his work and ſervice, who therefore will certainly defend him againſt all his Enemies.

* Nah. 1. 13.

3 * Let us break their l bands m aſunder, and caſt away their cords from us n.

l (i. e.) The Lords and his anointeds. m Which they deſign to put upon our necks that they may bring us into ſubjection. They mean the laws of God, which the King would oblige them to obſerve, which though eaſie and pleaſant in themſelves and to good men, Mat. 11. 29, 30. 1 John 5. 3. yet are very grievous and burthenſome to corrupt Nature, and to men of wicked lives. n The ſame thing expreſſed with a little more emphaſis. Let us not only break off their yoke and the cords by which it is faſtened upon us, but let us caſt them far away, that they may never be recovered, and we may never be brought into bondage again.

See the Preface to the Lords Prayer. q (i. e.) Shall both deſpiſe and deride them and all their crafty devices, which he ſhall manifeſt to the World to be ridiculous, and contemptible follies. ‖ Or, for a decree.
* Acts 13. 33. Heb. 1. 5.

7 I will declare z ‖ the decree a: the LORD hath ſaid unto me, * Thou art my ſon b, this day have I begotten thee c.

z Or publiſh, that all people concerned may take notice of it, and ſubmit to it upon their peril. Publication or promulgation is eſſential to all Laws or Statutes. a Or, concerning the decree, (i. e.) the will or pleaſure and appointment of God concerning my advancement into the Throne, and the ſubmiſſion and obedience which the People here following ſhall yield to me. b Which tho' it may in ſome ſort be ſaid to, or of David, who was in ſome reſpects the Son of God, and begotten by him, as all Believers are, John 1. 12. 1 John 3. 9. Jam. 1. 18. yet much more truly and properly belongs to Chriſt, who is commonly known by this Title both in the Old and New Teſtament, as Prov. 30. 4. Hoſea 11. 1. Mat. 2. 15. & 3. 17. & 4. 3, 6. and oft elſewhere: And to whom this Title is expreſly appropriated by the Holy Ghoſt, who is the beſt interpreter of his own words, Acts 13. 33. Heb. 1. 5. & 5. 5. and to whom alone the following Paſſages belong. c This is alſo applyed by ſome to David, and ſo this day is the day of his Inauguration, when he might be ſaid to be begotten by God, inaſmuch as he was then raiſed and delivered from all his troubles and calamities, which were a kind of death, and brought forth and advanced to a new kind of life, of Royal State and Dignity; and ſo this was the Birth-day tho' not of his Perſon, yet of his Kingdom, as the Roman Emperors celebrated a double Birth-day; firſt the Emperor's, when he was born, and then the Empires, when he was advanced to the Empire. But this is but a lean and far-fetched and doubtful Senſe; and therefore not to be allowed by the laws of Interpretation, when the words may be properly underſtood concerning Chriſt. And ſo this may be underſtood either, 1. Of his eternal generation. This day, from all Eternity, which is well deſcribed by this day, becauſe in Eternity there is no ſucceſſion, no [yeſterday,] no [to morrow,] but it is all as one continued day or moment without change or flux; upon which account one day is ſaid to be with the Lord as long as a thouſand years, and a thouſand years as ſhort as one day, 2 Pet. 3. 8. or rather, 2. Of the manifeſtation of Chriſts Eternal Sonſhip in time; which was done partly in his Birth and Life, when his being the Son of God was demonſtrated by the Teſtimony of the Angel, Luke 1. 32. and of God the Father, Matth. 3. 17. & 17. 5. and by his own words and works; but principally in his Reſurrection, which ſeems to be here mainly intended, of which day this very place is expounded, Acts 13. 33. When Chriſt was in a moſt ſolemn manner declared to be the Son of God with power, Rom. 1. 4. And this day or time Chriſt might very well be ſaid to be begotten by God the Father, partly becauſe the Reſurrection from the dead is in Scripture called a regeneration or ſecond birth, Mat. 19. 28. as well it may, being a reſtitution of that very Being which Man received by his firſt Birth, and that by the peculiar and mighty power of God: Partly becauſe in this reſpect Chriſt is called the firſt begotten of the dead, Rev. 1. 5. and partly becauſe of that common obſervation, That things are oft ſaid to be done in Scripture when they are only declared or manifeſted to be done: of which ſee Inſtances, Gen. 41. 13. Jer. 1. 10. Ezek. 43. 3. and elſewhere.

8 * Ask of me d and I ſhall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance e, and the uttermoſt parts of the earth f for thy poſſeſſion. * Pſ. 72. 8.

d Claim or demand it of me, as thy right by my promiſe, and thy birth and purchaſe. e To be poſſeſſed and enjoyed by thee in a manner of an Inheritance, to wit, conſtantly, ſurely, and perpetually. f Either 1. the whole land of Canaan from one end of it to the other, as this Phraſe is uſed, Pſal. 61. 2. & 72. 8. which is but a very narrow ſenſe, and that was but a very ſmall Kingdom, and no way agreeable to thoſe magnificent expreſſions here uſed. Or rather, the whole world, not only the Jewiſh Nation, but the Gentiles alſo, as this phraſe is almoſt univerſally uſed in the Old Teſtament, as Pſal. 19. 4. & 22. 28. & 46. 10. & 65. 5. Iſa. 40. 28. & 45. 22, &c. And ſo theſe words declare the great amplitude of the Kingdom of the Meſſiah.

* Rev. 2. 27. & 19. 15.

9 * Thou ſhalt break them g with a rod of iron h; thou ſhalt daſh them in pieces like a potters veſſel.

g (i. e.) Thoſe people that will not quietly ſubmit to thee, ſhall be cruſhed and deſtroyed by thee. h With thy mighty power, which they ſhall never be able to reſiſt.

10 Be wiſe i now k therefore, O ye kings l: be inſtructed, ye judges m of the earth.

i Underſtand your true intereſt. k Whileſt you have time and ſpace for repentance and ſubmiſſion. l You and your people. But he ſpeaks of, and to Kings only, partly, becauſe they moſt needed the admonition, as preſuming upon their own power and greatneſs; and thinking it below them to ſubmit to him; partly, becauſe their authority and example could do much with their people; and partly, to intimate the greatneſs of this Monarch, and that he was King of Kings, and Lord of Lords. m Or rulers, or governours. The ſame called Kings in the former branch.

11 Serve the LORD with fear n, and rejoyce o with trembling p.

n (i. e.) with reverence and an awful ſenſe of his great and glorious Majeſty, as very careful and diligent to pleaſe him, and afraid to offend him. o Do not eſteem his yoke your diſhonour and grievance; but know that it is a greater glory and happineſs to be the Subjects of this King, than to be Emperors of the greateſt Empire; and accordingly rejoyce in it, and bleſs God for this ineſtimable grace and benefit. p This is added to expreſs the quality of this joy to which he calls them, and to diſtinguiſh it from that carnal and worldly rejoycing, which is uſually attended with ſecurity and preſumption and licentiouſneſs, and to warn them to take heed that they do not turn this Grace of God into wantonneſs, nor ſlacken their dread of Gods tremendous Majeſty, and of his terrible Judgments, if they ſhould hereafter revolt from him, or rebel againſt him; but on the contrary work out their ſalvation with fear and trembling, as it is preſcribed Phil. 2. 12. compare Mat. 28. 8.

‖ Or, in the way. Pſal. 102. 23.
* Prov. 16. 20. Iſa. 30. 18. Jer. 17. 7. Rom. 9. 33. & 10. 11. 1 Pet. 2. 6.

12 Kiſs q the ſon r leſt he be angry, and ye periſh ‖ from the way s, when his wrath is kindled but a little t: * bleſſed are all they that put their truſt in him u.

q In token of your ſubjection and adoration; whereof this was a ſign among the Eaſtern Nations, as is manifeſt both from Scripture, as 1 Sam. 10. 1. 1 Kings 19. 18. Hoſea 13. 2. and from Heathen Authors. Submit to his Perſon and Government. r To wit, the Son of God, as appears from v. 7. called here the Son, by way of eminency and in a ſingular manner. Which agrees much better to Chriſt than to David, who is never particularly called by this name. s (i. e.) Be taken out of the way by death or deſtruction. Or, periſh out of the way, (i. e.) by loſing the right way, by taking wrong and evil courſes, the end of which will be your certain and utter ruine. Or, for the way, (i. e.) for your evil way or manner of living, for your perverſe and fooliſh courſe of oppoſing my Son inſtead of ſubmitting to him. Or, in (which particle is oft underſtood) the way, (i. e.) in your wicked way or courſe, in the midſt of your plots and rebellions againſt him; and ſo you will dye in your ſins, as it is expreſſed John 8. 24. which is a ſad aggravation of their death, and therefore here fitly propoſed as a powerful Argument to diſſwade them from ſuch dangerous and deſtructive courſes. t (i. e.) The leaſt degree of his anger is very terrible, much more the heat and height of it, cauſed by ſuch a deſperate provocation as this is. Or, for his wrath will be kindled ſhortly, or ſuddenly, or within a very little time, as this word is uſed Pſal. 81. 14. Cant. 3. 4. Iſa. 26. 20. His patience will not laſt always, but will ſhortly be turned into fury; and therefore take heed that you neither deny nor delay ſubjection to him, but ſpeedily comply with his offers and commands before it be too late. u Who put themſelves under his power and protection, believing in him, and expecting ſafety and happineſs from him. Which cannot with any colour be applied to David, who always diſſwades all men from putting their truſt in Princes, or in any men or thing beſides or below God, Pſal. 20. 7. & 44. 6. & 62. 6, 7, 8. & 118. 8. & 146. 3. and every where; and therefore it would very ill have become him to invite others to put their truſt in him. And he is pronounced curſed that truſteth in man, Jer. 17. 5. But Chriſt is every where propounded as an object of truſt, not only in the New Teſtament, but alſo in the Old, as Iſa. 28. 16. And therefore they are moſt truly and fitly ſaid to be bleſſed that put their truſt in him. Under which ſentence the contrary is implied, that they are moſt curſed and miſerable creatures that provoke and oppoſe him; and ſo curſed and miſerable that David dreaded the very thoughts and mention of it, and therefore expreſſeth it by the contrary and bleſſed condition of his Friends and Subjects. And ſuch like ſignifications of the miſeries of ſinners by the bleſſedneſs of others oppoſed to them, we have Mat. 23. 39. Rev. 14. 13.

a Compoſed by David, as this phraſe implies, Pſalm 110. 1. compared with Mat. 22. 43. and generally elſewhere. b Or, after he had fled. Either this Pſalm was compoſed in his flight, or the matter of it was then in his thoughts; which afterwards he digeſted into this form and order.

The Pſalmiſt complaineth of the multitude of his Enemies, 1, 2. But comforteth himſelf with his confidence in and reliance on God, 3—6. And the manifold experiences of his former aſſiſtance, 7. He prayeth for his own and the Church's Salvation, 8.

Which makes that opinion probable that it was a Muſical Note, directing the Singer either to lift up his Voice, or to make a ſhort ſtop or pauſe, or to lengthen out the tune. But withal, it is generally placed at ſome remarkable paſſage; which gives occaſion to think that it ſerved alſo to quicken the attention or obſervation of the Singer and Hearer.

PSAL. IV.

To the || chief muſician a on Neginoth b, a pſalm of David. || Or, overſeer.

a The Maſter or Directour of the ſacred Muſicians and Muſick of the Temple: of whom ſee 1 Chron. 6. 31. & 15. 16, 17. & 25. 1, 2. 2 Chron. 20. 21. & 34. 12, 13. Heb. To him that overcometh, or excelleth, or triumpheth, to wit, in his profeſſion of Muſick. b Or, on ſtringed Inſtruments, as this word is tranſlated, Hab. 3. 19. for the Hebrew verb niggen, whence this is derived, ſignifies to play with the hand upon an Inſtrument, 1 Sam. 16. 23. & 18. 10. This Pſalm is for the matter or ſubſtance of it much like the former, and ſeems to have been made upon the ſame or ſome other like occaſion, when he was diſtreſſed either by Abſolom, or by Saul, or by ſome other great and powerful Enemies.

David prayeth for Audience, 1. He reproves the wicked, 2. The priviledge of the Godly and his Faith in God, 3. An exhortation to Duty, 4, 5. The ungodly ſatisfied with Earthly Bleſſings, but the godly cannot be at reſt without the favour of God, 6, 7, 8.

1 HEar me when I call * O God of my righteouſneſs c: thou haſt enlarged me d when I was in diſtreſs; || have mercy upon me e and hear my prayer. * Pſ. 25. 5. & 59. 10, 17. & 109. 1. || Or, be gracious to me.

c Either the witneſs and defender of my righteous cauſe: Or, from whom I expect that righteous judgment and deciſion of my cauſe, which I cannot obtain from mine Enemies, who load me and my cauſe with manifold Injuries and Calumnies. Or, O my righteous God. Or, O God of my mercy; which title is given to God elſewhere, as Pſal. 59. 10, 17. whereas this title, O God of my righteouſneſs, is not given to God in any other place of Scripture, Pſal. 59. 10, 17. O God, to whoſe mercy I owe all that I have or hope for: which was a very fit and powerful Argument in Prayer, and very agreeable to the following words, in which there is an acknowledgment of Gods former Mercies, and a petition for Mercy. And ſo this and other words in Hebrew and Greek which properly ſignifie righteouſneſs, are oft uſed for mercy or kindneſs, as Iſa. 58. 8. Pſal. 31. 1. & 36. 10. 2 Cor. 9. 9. and in many other places. d (i. e.) Freed me from my former ſtraits and troubles. So he urgeth God and ſtrengtheneth his own Faith with his former Experiences. e Thou maiſt juſtly deſtroy me for my many and great ſins, and therefore I flee from thy Juſtice to thy Mercy, on which all my hopes are grounded.

2 * O ye ſons of men f, how long will ye turn my glory into ſhame g? how long will ye love vanity h, and ſeek after leaſing i? Selah. * Pſ. 62. 4.

f (i. e.) Princes and Potentates, as this Hebrew Phraſe ſeems, and is thought to ſignifie, who are engaged with Saul or Abſalom againſt me. g Or, ſhall my Glory be for a ſhame, (i. e.) be made by you matter of reproach and ſcorn? By his Glory probably he means that high Honour and Royal Majeſty which God had either promiſed to him, or conferred upon him; wherewith, when he was in great ſtraits and dangers, they might poſſibly reproach him in ſome ſort as this, Is this the Man, whom God ſo highly loves and honours and will exalt, who now flees from one Mountain or Cave to another, who runs away to the Philiſtins, whom his own Son hath baniſhed out of the Land? Is this the effect of his glorying and boaſting of Gods favour and promiſes? h (i. e.) Affect and purſue theſe courſes and deſigns of oppoſing me and my Kingdom, which you will certainly find to be vain and to no purpoſe. i Or, lying, the ſame thing with vanity; theſe two words being promiſcuouſly uſed, as Pſal. 62. 9. Only this ſeems to add ſome Emphaſis, and to intimate the fair hopes and promiſing probabilities of Succeſs which they had, and which aggravate their diſappointment. Or, by lying, he may deſign thoſe horrid Calumnies which the Partiſons either of Saul or Abſalom had raiſed againſt him, and which they joyned with their other indeavours to make him odious to all the people, and ſo the better to effect his Ruine.

3 But know that the LORD k, hath ſet apart l him that is godly m for himſelf n: the LORD will hear when I call unto him o.

k You fight not againſt me but againſt the Lord. l Or, hath wonderfully ſeparated me; hath rejected the other Royal Perſon and Family, and hath called me by Name, and choſen me out of all the Tribes and Families of Iſrael, and out of my Fathers Family, though I was the youngeſt of them, and thought by Samuel and by my Father to be moſt remote from this Honour. m (i. e.) Me, whom, though you traduce and cenſure, as if I were an egregious Hypocrite and Impoſtor, who only pretended Religion for my own ambitious ends, God hath pronounced to be a man after his own heart, 1 Sam. 13. 14. And that I am ſuch in ſome good meaſure, both my own Conſcience and the general courſe of my Life bear me witneſs: Which teſtimony David gives to himſelf, not out of a vain-glorious humour, but meerly becauſe he was conſtrained to it by the Calumnies of his Enemies, for his own juſt and neceſſary Vindication. Or, his favourite, as this word oft ſignifies: Him, whom he hath been pleaſed to chuſe and advance, not for any worth or merit of mine, but out of his free grace and kindneſs to me; who therefore will maintain the work of his own hands and grace, although I cannot deny that I have been guilty of divers frailties and miſcarriages, for which God might juſtly reject me, if he ſhould deal with me according to the rigours of his Juſtice. n Either 1. In his ſtead, or to be his Vicegerent, as all Kings are, and eſpecially the Kings of Gods own People. Or rather 2. For his own ſervice and glory, to fulfil all his will, as it is expreſſed, Acts 13. 22. Which may be ſpoken by way of oppoſition to Saul, who had no regard to God, nor to his Will and Glory, but minded only his own honour and advantage. o Therefore I am aſſured that God will hear my Prayers and ſave me out of your hands.

4 Stand in awe p, and ſin not q: commune with your own heart upon your bed r, and be ſtill s. Selah.

p Tremble therefore and be afraid, if not of me, yet at leaſt of God, who hath engaged himſelf in my Cauſe or Quarrel, and will be an Adverſary to my Adverſaries, Or, be angry, as this word is here rendered by all the antient and ſome modern Tranſlators, and, as it is thought, by the Apoſtle, Eph. 4. 26. Or, Are you angry. for it may be taken interrogatively: Admit you be angry or diſpleaſed that God hath preferred me an obſcure Perſon and of a mean Family, before ſo many noble and mighty men, yet or but (as it follows) ſin not; (i. e.) do not ſo far indulge your anger as to break forth into murmuring againſt God, or rebellion againſt me: but ſeaſonably ſuppreſs and mortifie your unadviſed and ſinful Paſſion, leaſt it break forth to your own Ruine. This Hebrew word ſignifies in general a vehement commotion of the mind or heart, whether through grief, as 2 Sam. 18. 33. or fear, as Exod. 15. 14. Deut. 2. 25. or anger, as Gen. 45. 24. 2 Kings 19. 27, 28. Prov. 29. 9. Ezek. 16. 43. q By cheriſhing and proſecuting your anger and malice againſt me, and your Rebellion againſt Gods Authority. r Calmly and deeply conſider theſe things in your own Breaſts in the ſilent night, when you are at leaſure from the croud of diſtracting buſineſs, and free from the company of crafty and dawbing Paraſites. s Either 1. As to your outward Actions; for this Verb oft ſignifies a ceſſation of Actions, as Joſ. 10. 13. Job 30. 27. Proceed no further in your wicked ſpeeches and contrivances againſt me. Or rather 2. As to your inward paſſions. Compoſe your tumultuous minds; as this Verb is uſed, Pſal. 37. 7. and 62. 2. and 137. 2. Suppreſs your anger and rage which tho' directed againſt me onely, yet is indeed againſt God and againſt his Counſel and Providence.

* Pſal. 51. 19. Prov. 15. 8. & 21. 27.

5 Offer t * the ſacrifices of righteouſneſs u: and put your truſt in the LORD x.

t To wit, unto God, that he may be reconciled to you, and may pardon all your Murmurings and Inſurrections againſt him and againſt me. For it ſeems plain that this, as well as the former verſe, is ſpoken not to David's Friends and Favourers, as ſome think, but to his Enemies, even to thoſe ſons of men, v. 2. to whom he directeth his ſpeech v. 3. But know, and v. 4. Stand in awe, and here Offer. u (i. e.) Righteous Sacrifices; which requires that the perſons offering them be righteous and do righteous things, and offer them with an honeſt mind, and with faith (as it follows) and true repentance. Without which he intimates that all their Sacrifices were of no eſteem with God, and would be wholly unprofitable to them. And withal, it is probable that he reflects upon the followers of Saul or of Abſalom, who had the only place of Sacrifice in their poſſeſſion, whileſt David was debarred of the opportunity of ſacrificing, as he complains, 1 Sam. 26. 19. and accordingly they gloried in their Sacrifices, and upon that account promiſed themſelves ſucceſs againſt David, who was by Gods providence deprived of the opportunities of reconciling and engaging God by Sacrifices. x And then (i. e.) ſo doing, you may rely upon God, and confidently expect his aſſiſtance, which otherwiſe it is in vain for you to hope for. Withal he ſeems to reflect upon his Enemies who truſted to an arm of fleſh, to their own great numbers and power, and to intimate what his courſe was, to wit, to truſt in the Lord.

* Num. 6. 25, 26. Pſal. 21. 6. & 44. 3. & 67. 1.

6 There be many y that ſay, Who will ſhew us z any good a? LORD, * lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us b.

y Either 1. Of my own followers, who are weary of waiting upon God and ready to deſpair. Or rather, 2. Of mine Enemies, and of the body of the people, who were either engaged againſt him, or at leaſt unconcerned for him, and ſought only their own eaſe and advantage. z Heb. make or give us to ſee, (i. e.) to enjoy, as this phraſe is frequently uſed, as Pſal. 27. 13. and 34. 12. Eccleſ. 2. 1. and 3. 13. a (i. e.) Worldly good, as appears by the oppoſition of the light of Gods countenance to it in the next words, and by the explication of it of Corn and Wine in the next verſe. (i. e.) Who will put an end to our preſent Broils and Troubles, and give us that tranquillity and outward happineſs which is the onely thing that we deſire. Withal he may ſeem to intimate the reaſon and motive which induced ſo many perſons to take part againſt him, which was their eager deſire of Honour or Worldly Advantage, which they promiſed to themſelves by appearing againſt David. See 1 Sam. 22. 7. b (i. e.) Upon me and my Friends. Give us aſſurance of thy love and favour to us, and evidence it to us by thy powerful and gracious aſſiſtance.

7 Thou haſt put gladneſs in my heart c more than in the time that their corn and their wine increaſed d.

c Whatſoever thou ſhalt do with me for the future, as to my outward diſtreſſes and concernments, I have at preſent unſpeakable pleaſure and full ſatisfaction in the impreſſions and teſtimonies of thy love in and to my Soul; whereby alſo I am encouraged with confidence to expect good ſucceſs to my righteous Cauſe. d Than worldly perſons have in the time of a plentifulful Harveſt, which is a time of great rejoycing, Judg. 9. 27. Iſa. 9. 3. Jer. 48. 33.

8 * I will both e lay me down in peace f, and ſleep: for thou LORD onely makeſt me dwell in † ſafety g.

* Pſal. 3. 5. † Heb. confidence, or ſecurity.

e This word relates to the two following Verbs; as ſoon as I am laid down I will quietly compoſe my ſelf to ſleep; whereas many lye down upon their beds and cannot ſleep through diſtracting cares or troubles. Or, in like manner, (i. e.) as they do who have abundance of Corn and Wine, of whom he laſt ſpoke, Luke 12. 29. f Either 1. In outward peace or ſafety, as the next clauſe explains it. Or 2. In inward peace or tranquillity of mind, as Luke 2. 29. reſting ſecurely upon Gods promiſes, and the conduct of his wiſe and gracious providence. g I owe not my ſafety to my own valour or wiſdom, nor to the courage of my followers, but to thee onely. Or, thou Lord, makeſt me to dwell alone in ſafety: Either 1. Alone, or apart from mine Enemies, Compare Deut. 33. 28. Or rather, 2. Though I be in a manner alone, (i. e.) forſaken and deſtitute of friends or helpers, as that word is uſed, Pſalm 102. 7. Lam. 1. 1.

PSAL. V.

To the chief muſician upon Nehiloth a, A pſalm of David b.

a This is no where elſe uſed in Scripture. It is generally and probably thought to be a term belonging to Muſick, and to ſignifie either ſome kind of tune: or rather an Inſtrument, and particularly a Wind-inſtrument, as Neginoth in the title of the laſt Pſalm ſignified ſtringed Inſtruments. b This Pſalm ſuppoſeth David to be in ſome great diſtreſs or trouble, either from Saul, or from Abſalom, or ſome of their Courtiers.

David earneſtly beſeecheth God to hear his Prayer, 1—3. And aſſureth himſelf of Gods juſtice againſt his Enemies, 4—6. Profeſſing his Faith in God, 7. He prayeth him to guide his goings, 8. He exclaims againſt his Enemies cruelty, 9. and prayeth God to deſtroy them, 10. but to preſerve the godly, 11, 12.

1 GIve ear to my words, O LORD, conſider my meditation c.

c (i. e.) My prayer, as the words foregoing and following ſhew. Which he calls his Meditation, to note that it was not a lip-prayer only, but that it proceeded from, and was accompanied with the deepeſt thoughts and moſt fervent affections of his Soul.

2 Hearken unto the voice of my cry, my King d, and my God; for unto thee will I pray e.

d It is the part and duty of a King to anſwer the juſt and humble deſires of his Subjects. e To thee alone I will direct all my Prayers, and therefore from thee alone I expect ſuccour and relief.

3 * My voice ſhalt thou hear in the morning f, O LORD, in the morning will I direct my prayer g, unto thee, and will look up h.

* Pſal. 130. 6.

f Either 1. metaphorically, (i. e.) early, ſeaſonably, in a time when thou wiltſt be found, and art ready to hear. Or 2. properly, every morning. As ſoon as I awake, I am ſtill with thee, as he ſaith, Pſal. 139. 18. The firſt thing that I do is to pray to thee, I neither neglect nor delay that work. But this is not ſpoken excluſively as to his other times of Prayer, as appears from Pſal. 55. 17. but only eminently, to ſhew his conſtancy, diligence, and eagerneſs in the work. g Or, mine Eyes: Which may be well underſtood out of the following word; which is uſual in Scripture. Or, it, (ſo it is only a defect of the Pronoun, which is moſt frequent) to wit, my voice, laſt mentioned; or, which is equivalent, my words, which is alſo underſtood with this very Verb, Job 33. 5. and is expreſſed with it, Job 32. 14. And the Verb here and there uſed is very emphatical, and notes his great care and exactneſs ſo to direct or order, or compoſe himſelf and his Prayers in ſuch a manner as was moſt pleaſing to God. h To wit, unto thee (as he now ſaid) for help. The word implies a confident, and withal a patient expectation of relief, as Pſal. 130. 6. Mic. 7. 7. Hab. 2. 1. See alſo Pſal. 145. 15. Acts 3. 4.

4 For i thou art not a God that hath pleaſure in wickedneſs k: neither ſhall ‖ evil dwell with thee l.

‖ Or, the evil man, ſo Gr.

i Or, but, or ſurely. k Or, in wicked men. Thou doſt not approve of, nor delight in them, or in their Prayers, but doſt hate and wiltſt deſtroy them, as it here follows, compare Prov. 17. 15. And this he ſaith partly for the conviction and diſcouragement of his Enemies, who were ſuch; and partly for his own vindication, to ſhew that he was not ſuch a wicked man, as they falſly and maliciouſly repreſented him. l (i. e.) Have any friendſhip or fellowſhip, or quiet abode with thee, as thoſe that dwell together uſually have one with another.

5 * The fooliſh m ſhall not ſtand † in thy ſight n: thou hateſt all workers of iniquity o.

* Hab. 1. 13. † Heb. before thine eyes.

m Or, the mad men, as the word properly ſignifies, as Eccleſ. 2. 2, 12. and 7. 7. and 10. 13. Iſa. 44. 25. (i. e.) Wicked men, as the next words explain it: who are indeed morally and really mad men in fighting with the Lord God Almighty, and in expoſing themſelves to ſuch dreadful Hazards and Miſchiefs, for ſuch mean and momentary Advantages. n Either in battel againſt thee, as this Phraſe is uſed, Deut. 7. 24. Joſ. 1. 5. and 7. 12. Or, in Judgment at thy Tribunal; of which ſee on Pſal. 1. 5. compare 1 Sam. 6. 20. Job 41. 10. o (i. e.) Such as make Sin their choice, deſign and buſineſs, giving up themſelves to the conſtant or cuſtomary practice of it. Compare Mat. 7. 23. Otherwiſe, in a general ſenſe, there is no man that doth not ſin, or work iniquity, Eccleſ. 7. 20.

6 Thou ſhalt deſtroy them that ſpeak leaſing p: the LORD will abhor † the bloody and deceitful man q.

p Or, lies, that make it their buſineſs to raiſe and ſcatter Calumnies and Reproaches concerning me; as many did. q Thoſe who deſign Miſchief againſt me or my Friends under a pretence of kindneſs: of whom he oft ſpeaks.

7 But as for me, I will come r into thy houſe ſ in the multitude of thy mercy t: and in thy fear u will I worſhip toward † thy holy temple x.

r To wit, with holy boldneſs and confidence, as becomes thy Son and Servant: Whereas mine Enemies cannot appear in thy preſence with any comfort and ſafety, v. 5. ſ To wit, the Tabernacle: from which, though I be now excluded through the malice and power of mine Adverſaries, yet thou wiltſt, I doubt not, reſtore me to my former opportunities of coming thither to worſhip thee, which was my conſtant cuſtom and chief joy. t Or, By thy great Mercy, (i. e.) truſting only to thy great Mercy for admittance thither, and acceptance there. Or, for or becauſe of thy many Mercies to me: for which I will come to pay my thanks and ſervice unto thee. u With an holy dread and reverence of thy Majeſty and of thy Houſe, and a due care to pleaſe thee in my Religious Worſhip, and in the whole courſe of my Life. Which he oppoſeth to the careleſneſs of his Enemies who came thither ſo rudely and preſumptuouſly, and with the Conſcience of ſuch wicked Hearts and Lives. x Looking towards it, when I cannot come to it. Compare Dan. 6. 10. Or, at thy holy Temple, (i. e.) the Tabernacle, which is ſometimes called by that name.

8 Lead me y O LORD in thy righteouſneſs z, becauſe of † mine enemies a; * make the way b ſtraight c before my face d.

y Direct my heart and counſels, and affairs, and all the courſe and actions of my life. z In thy righteous Laws; which ſometimes are called righteouſneſs, as Pſal. 119. 172. Mat. 3. 15. Or for or becauſe of, or according to thy righteouſneſs; which is a Phraſe and Argument frequently uſed in this Book of Pſalms. a Either 1. That I may give them no occaſion of ſlandering me or Religion for my ſake. Or rather 2. Becauſe they are moſt malicious and miſchievous, and withal cunning and treacherous, as he deſcribes them in the next verſe (which he uſeth as an Argument to enforce this Petition) and they lay Snares for me, and if thou doſt not aſſiſt me, will be too hard for me, and will triumph over me; which will reflect diſhonour upon thee alſo. b (i. e.) The way wherein thou wouldeſt have me to walk, or the courſe which thou wouldeſt have me to take; for Gods Precepts or Counſels are moſt commonly called his way. c Or, plain or ſmooth that I may clearly diſcern it, and readily walk in it without miſtake or lett, or ſtumbling, or offence. This was a needful requeſt, becauſe many good men are oft at a loſs what their Duty is in ſeveral Circumſtances. And God granted this requeſt to David, as in many other things, ſo in this, that he ſhould not cut off Saul when he had opportunity and inſtigation to do it, 1 Sam. 24. and 26. but that he ſhould wait til God took him away. d To my view and for my walk: For men walk forward, not backward.

9 For there is no ‖ faithfulneſs † in their mouth, their inward part is † very wickedneſs e; * their throat f is an open ſepulchre, they flatter with their tongue g.

e They ſpeak one thing and mean another, and under a pretence of kindneſs they ſeek my deſtruction; which makes it difficult for me to know how I ſhould carry my ſelf to them; wherein therefore I have begged thy direction. f Either 1. Metonymically; their ſpeech coming out of their Throat, though ſmooth and ſubtil, yet is moſt pernicious. Or 2. Properly; their Throat and Mouth are wide opened ready to devour all that come within their reach. A Metaphor from wild Beaſts gaping for the Prey. g They make ſhew of piety and friendſhip, that they may more eaſily deceive and deſtroy me.

‖ Or, make them guilty.
‖ Or, from their counſels.

10 ‖ Deſtroy thou them h, O God; let them fall ‖ by their own counſels i: caſt them out k in l the multitude of their tranſgreſſions, for they have rebelled againſt thee m.

h Heb. Hold them guilty, (i. e.) Condemn and puniſh them. Or, make them to offend, to wit, in their Counſels, as it follows: ſo as they may either be given up to bad and fooliſh Counſels; or fail in the execution of their wiſe or crafty Counſels. Or, make them deſolate, as the word is uſed, Ezek. 6. 6. Joel 1. 18. i (i. e.) Make their Counſels not only unſucceſsful againſt me, but alſo deſtructive to themſelves. Or, from their, &c. (i. e.) Let them fall ſhort of their aims and deſigns. Or, becauſe of their Counſels, which are ungodly and unjuſt, and ſo deſerve deſtruction. k Out of thy Land, and from among thy People, whom they either infect or moleſt by their wicked courſes. l Or, for or becauſe of, as before. m Againſt thy Authority and declared Will concerning my advancement to the Throne; which divers Iſraelites oppoſed againſt their own Conſciences. See 2 Sam. 3. 8, 9, 10.

† Heb. thou covereſt over, or protecteſt them.

11 But let all thoſe that put their truſt in thee n, rejoyce o: let them ever ſhout for joy, becauſe † thou defendeſt them: let them alſo that love thy name p be joyful in thee.

n That dare rely upon thy word and promiſe when all humane hopes and refuges fail; which was oft the caſe of David and his followers. o Let them have cauſe of great joy from thy love and care of them, and becauſe thou defendeſt them, as it follows. p (i. e.) Thy Majeſty, thy Word and Worſhip, and Glory; all which is called Gods name in Scripture. David doth not confine his Prayer to his Party, but prays for all good men, though by their own miſtakes, or other mens artifices, ſome of them might now be in a ſtate of oppoſition againſt him.

12 For thou, LORD, wilt bleſs q the righteous: with favour r wilt thou † compaſs him as with a ſhield s. † Heb. crown him.

q (i. e.) Thou art reſolved, and haſt engaged thy ſelf by promiſe and covenant to bleſs them. And therefore my Prayer for them is agreeable to thy will. r With thy Love and gracious Providence. s (i. e.) Keep him ſafe on every ſide.

PSAL. VI.

To the chief muſician on Neginoth a ‖ upon Sheminith b, ‖ Or, upon the eighth.
a pſalm of David c.

a Of which ſee on Pſal. 4. 1. b Or, upon the eighth. It is thought to be the ſhrilleſt or loftieſt Note, as Alamoth is the loweſt; of which ſee 1 Chron. 15. 20, 21. and, as ſome add, Muth-labben, Pſal. 9. the mean. But all this is only conjecture; and the Jews themſelves have no certain knowledge of their own antient Muſick, and of the ſignification of the Terms belonging to it. c The occaſion of the Pſalm ſeems plainly to have been ſome grievous Diſtreſs or Diſeaſe of the Body then upon him, accompanied alſo with great trouble of Conſcience for his Sins, whereby he had brought it upon himſelf.

David being very weak and feeble, preſenteth his miſery before God, 1—3. prayeth for his Mercy and Recovery, 4—8. And being aſſured of a gracious hearing, triumphs over all his enemies, 9, 10.

1 O * LORD, rebuke me not d in thine anger e, * Pſal. 38. 1.
neither chaſten me in thy hot diſpleaſure f.

d (i. e.) Do not chaſten or correct me, as the next Clauſe explains it, and as this word is frequently uſed, as Job 22. 4. Pſal. 50. 21. Iſa. 37. 4. Rev. 3. 19. e With rigour or ſeverity, as my Sins deſerve, but with gentleneſs and moderation, Jer. 10. 24. and 46. 28. or ſo as it may not be the effect of thy ſtrict Juſtice or Anger, but of thy Mercy and Faithfulneſs. f The ſame thing repeated after the manner.

2 Have mercy upon me g, O LORD, for I am weak h: O LORD, heal me i, for my bones are vexed k.

g I plead not my merit, but thy free Mercy. h Or, I languiſh, my Body pines away, and my Spirit fails through my exceſſive pains or troubles. i (i. e.) The diſtempers of my Soul and Body, of both which this word is uſed, Pſal. 41. 4. and 107. 18, 20. k My torment is ſo deep and ſo general, that it reacheth, and is very grievous even to my Bones, though they are inward, and might ſeem to be out of the reach of it, and alſo ſtrong and ſenſeleſs, and therefore can beſt bear it. See the like expreſſions, Job 4. 14. and 33. 19. Pſal. 38. 3. and 51. 8.

3 My ſoul is alſo ſore vexed l: but thou, O LORD, how long m?

l Partly by ſympathy with my Body; and partly with the burthen of my Sins, and the ſenſe of thine Anger, and my own danger and miſery. m Wiltſt thou ſuffer me to lye and languiſh in this condition? It is a Figure called Apoſiopeſis, very agreeable to men in pain or anguiſh, who uſe to cut their words ſhort.

4 Return n, O LORD, deliver my ſoul o: oh, ſave me for thy mercies ſake.

n Unto me, from whom thou haſt withdrawn thy ſelf, and thy ſmiling Countenance, and thy helping Hand. o (i. e.) Save me or my life, as the Soul oft ſignifies, as Gen. 9. 5. and 12. 5. Job 36. 14. Pſal. 33. 19. David and other good men in thoſe times were much afraid of death, partly becauſe the manifeſtations of Gods Grace to his people were then more dark and doubtful; and partly becauſe thereby they were deprived of all opportunities of advancing Gods Glory and Kingdom in the World. Compare Iſa. 38. 1, 2, 3.

5 * For in death p there is no remembrance of thee q: * Pſal. 30. 9. & 88. 11. & 115. 17. & 118. 17. Iſa. 38. 18.
in † the grave who ſhall give thee thanks? † Heb. hell, ſo Gr.

p Amongſt the dead; or in the grave, as it follows. q To wit, by me David, conſiſting both of Soul and Body; and no ſuch remembrance, to wit, in way of thankfulneſs and praiſe, as the next Clauſe of the Verſe limits and explains it: which he might fear would be true, not only becauſe he ſhould not have occaſion to praiſe God for this deliverance, but alſo becauſe he was in grievous agonies of Conſcience, and under terrors of Gods wrath, and his eternal damnation; which being oft incident to the Saints of God under the New Teſtament, it is not ſtrange if it were ſo alſo under the Old Teſtament. Beſides he ſpeaks of the remembrance or celebration of Gods Name and Grace in the Land of the Living, to the enlargement and edification of Gods Church, and the propagation of true Religion among men; which is not done in the other life, and was juſtly prized at ſo high a rate by David and other holy men, to whom therefore it muſt needs be a great grief to be for ever deprived of ſuch opportunities. For otherwiſe David very well knew, and firmly believed that Souls departed were not extinct, but did go to God, Eccleſ. 12. 7. and there remember and adore aud enjoy God, though quite in another way than that of which he here ſpeaks.

6. I am weary with my groaning, ‖ all the night r ‖ Or, every night.
make I my bed to ſwim s; I water my couch t with my tears.

r He mentions this time, by way of aggravation of his miſery, becauſe that ſeaſon, which is to others by God's appointment a time of reſt, was to him very ſad and doleful, whether from his Diſeaſe, which then came upon him more ſtrongly, as it is uſual; or from the opportunity which the ſolitude and ſilence of the Night gave him to think of his own Sins, or his Enemies Perfidiouſneſs and Malice, or God's Diſpleaſure, or his future Eſtate. s To wit, with tears. See the like Hyperbole Jer. 9. 1. Lam. 3. 48, 49. t Or, my bedſtead.

7. * Mine eye is conſumed u becauſe of grief x; it * Job 17. 7. Pſ. 31. 9. & 38. 10. Lam. 5. 17.
waxeth old becauſe of all mine enemies.

u Or, grown dim or dull, through plenty of ſalt tears which I ſhed: Or, through the decay of my Spirits. x (i. e.) My grief ariſing from mine Enemies, as the next Clauſe interprets it, and from the conſideration of their multitude and rage, and falſeneſs.

* Mat. 7. 23. & 25. 41. Luke 13. 27. Pſal. 119. 115. * Pſal. 31. 22.

8 * Depart from me y, all ye workers of Iniquity z; for the LORD hath heard a the * voice of my weeping b.

y I adviſe you for your own ſakes to ceaſe from oppoſing or moleſting me, or inſulting over me, or approaching to me, with deſign of deceiving and betraying me: for all your labour will be loſt. z All you wicked Enemies of mine. a (i. e.) He will hear, the paſt time being put for the future, as is uſual in prophetical Paſſages, ſuch as this was; David having received by the Spirit of God particular aſſurance that God would hear and deliver him. b. (i. e.) Or my fervent Prayers joined with my Tears.

9 The LORD hath heard c my ſupplication; the LORD will receive my prayer.

c And therefore will hear, as it follows. He draws an Argument from his former Experience.

10 Let all mine Enemies be aſhamed d and ſore vexed: let them return e and be aſhamed ſuddenly f.

d Of their vain hopes and confidence of conquering and deſtroying me. Or, they ſhall be aſhamed, becauſe of their great and unexpected diſappointment. e To wit, from their wicked ways, from their hoſtile and malicious practiſes againſt me, and let them come and ſubmit to me, from whom they have revolted. Or, let them turn back, as it is expreſſed Pſal. 56. 9. let them be put to flight. Or, let them be converted. (i. e.) Repent of their Sins and return to their Obedience to me. Although it ſeems more probable both from the foregoing and following words, that this turning or returning is rather penal than penitential. Or, they ſhall turn or return. Or this Verb may be taken adverbially and joyned to the following Verb, as it is frequently in other places, and both may be thus rendered, Let them, or They ſhall be again aſhamed, clothed, as it were, with double ſhame. f Sooner than I could hope, or they did expect or believe.

PSAL. VII.

Shiggaion a of David, which he ſang unto the LORD, concerning the ‖ words b of Cuſh c the Benjamite.

a This ſeems to be the name of a certain kind either of Song or Tune, or Inſtrument, which then was very well known, but now is only matter of conjecture; wherewith I think is not fit to trouble the unlearned Reader: And the learned may conſult my latin Synopſis. b The falſe and ſlanderous Reports raiſed or fomented by him. This was the occaſion of this Pſalm. c By which he deſigns either 1. Saul: whom he thought it indecent to expreſs by his proper Name, for which he might at this time have divers reaſons, and therefore he deciphers him enigmatically, which is not unuſual in holy Scripture; where Babylon is called Sheſhach, Jer. 25. 26. and 51. 41. and Rome is called Egypt and Sodom, and Babylon in the Revelation; and John the Baptiſt is called Elias. And he might call him Cuſh; partly, by a tacit Alluſion to his Father's Name Kiſh; and partly, with reſpect to bis black and wicked Diſpoſition planted and firmly rooted in him: Compare Jer. 13. 23. Amos 9. 7. Or 2. Some eminent and potent Commander or Courtier under Saul called Cuſh, though he be not elſewhere named; it being the lot of many other perſons to be named but once in Scripture. And he is called the Benjamite, becauſe he was one of that Tribe, in which Saul put moſt confidence: See 1 Sam. 22. 7.

The Pſalmiſt prayeth for deliverance from his perſecuting Enemies, 1, 2. and maketh a ſolemn profeſſion of his Innocency, 3—7. By Faith he ſeeth his Defence, 8—11. and the deſtruction of his Enemies, 12—17.

1 O LORD my God, in thee do I put my truſt d: ſave me from all them that perſecute me, and deliver me.

d All my hope and confidence is in thy Favour and Faithfulneſs to make good thy Promiſe made to me.

2 Leſt he e tear my ſoul f like a lion g, renting it in pieces, while there is † none to deliver h.

† Heb. not a deliverer

e (i. e.) Mine enemy, as it is expreſſed v. 4. even Saul, or any of his followers. f Out of my Body. Or deſtroy me and my Life, as Pſal. 6. 5. g To which he compares him both for Power and Cruelty, and withal intimates his own inability to oppoſe or eſcape his Rage without God's almighty help. h Whileſt I have no conſiderable Force to defend my ſelf, but am forced to flee to Mountains and Caves, and Woods for my Safety.

3 O LORD my God, if I have done this i; if there be Iniquity in my hands k:

i (i. e.) That which Cuſh and others falſly lay to my Charge. If I deſign or have endeavoured to take away Saul's Crown and Life by Violence, as Saul's Courtiers maliciouſly reported, 1 Sam. 24. 9, 10. and 26. 19. k (i. e.) In my actions or carriage towards Saul. The hand is oft put for actions, whereof the hand is a great and common Inſtrument, as Pſal. 78. 42. and 109. 27. Jonah 3. 8. If I deſign, or have attempted to lay violent hands upon Saul.

4 If I have rewarded evil unto him that was at peace with me l: (yea m, I have delivered him n that without cauſe o is mine enemy.)

l (i. e.) To Saul, when he was peaceable and friendly towards me: For David was charged with evil Deſigns againſt Saul, before Saul broke out into open Enmity againſt him. m This Particle is here uſed by way of correction or oppoſition, as it is alſo Pſal. 2. 6. Prov. 6. 16. So far have I been from doing this, that I have done the contrary. n When it was in my power to deſtroy him, as 1 Sam. 24. and 26. o Without any Provocation on my part.

5 Let the enemy perſecute my ſoul, and take it p; yea, let him tread down my life upon the earth, and lay mine honour q in the duſt. Selah.

p I am contented, and wiſh that Saul may ſo perſecute my Life as to overtake it, and take it away. q Either 1. That honourable and royal Eſtate to which I am choſen and deſigned. Or 2. My Reputation and Memory. Or rather 3. The ſame thing which he called his ſoul and his life in the former branch of the verſe, and here his honour; it being very frequent to expreſs one thing in ſeveral words or phraſes in one verſe. And ſo here may be obſerved a gradation. Let him 1. Perſiſt to perſecute it; 2. Take it; 3. Tread it down, or deſtroy it, and 4. Lay it in the duſt, or bury it, to prevent all hopes of Reſtitution.

6 * Ariſe, O LORD, in thine anger r, lift up thy ſelf s, becauſe of the rage of mine enemies; and * awake for me to the judgment that thou haſt commanded t.

* Iſa. 3 18. * Pſal. 3 23.

r Oppoſe thy juſt Anger to their cauſeleſs and ſinful Rage againſt me. s That thou maiſt give them a deadly blow. A Metaphor from men who ariſe and lift up themſelves to do ſo. Heb. Be thou exalted; glorifie thy ſelf, and ſhew thy ſelf to be above them. t To execute that juſt and righteous Sentence of Saul's Depoſition, and my Advancement, which thou haſt commanded. (i. e.) appointed, (as that word is uſed Pſal. 148. 5. 1 Kings 17. 4. and in this very caſe, 1 Sam. 13. 14.) and declared by thy holy Prophet Samuel.

7 So ſhall the congregation of the people u compaſs thee about x: for their ſakes y therefore return thou on high z.

u Either 1. A great number of all ſorts of people, who ſhall obſerve thy Juſtice, and Holineſs, and Goodneſs in pleading my righteous Cauſe againſt my cruel and implacable Oppreſſor. Or rather 2. The whole Body of thy people Iſrael, to whom both theſe Hebrew Words are commonly aſcribed in holy Scripture. x They will, and I as their King and Ruler in thy ſtead will take care that they ſhall come from all parts and meet together to worſhip thee, which in Saul's time they have groſly neglected, and been permitted to neglect, and to offer to thee Praiſes and Sacrifices for thy Favour to me, and for the manifold Benefits which they ſhall enjoy by my Means, and under my Government. y Or, for its ſake. (i. e.) For the ſake of thy Congregation, which now is wofully diſſipated and oppreſſed, and have in a great meaſure loſt all adminiſtration of Juſtice, and exerciſe of Religion. z Or, return to thy high place. (i. e.) To thy Tribunal to ſit there and judge my cauſe. An Alluſion to earthly Tribunals, which generally are ſet up on high above the people. 1 Kings 10. 19.

8 The LORD ſhall judg the people a: judg me, O LORD, * according to my righteouſneſs, and according to mine Integrity that is in me b.

* Pſal. 18. 20.

a It belongs to thee to judg all perſons and people, and to give Sentence between them, eſpecially when they appeal unto thee; which I now do. b If I be guilty of thoſe evil Deſigns, towards him, wherewith Cuſh and others charge me, do thou give Sentence againſt me; but if I be juſt and innocent towards him, as thou knoweſt I am and have been, do thou plead my right.

9 O let the wickedneſs of the wicked come to an end c, but eſtabliſh d the juſt e: * for the righteous God trieth the heart and reins f.

* 1 Sam. 16. 7. 1 Chr. 28. 9. Pſal. 139. 1. Jer. 11. 20. & 17. 10. & 20. 12. Rev. 2. 23.

c Let the Malice of mine Enemies ceaſe, put a ſtop to their wicked Practiſes, either by changing their Hearts, or by tying their Hands, or ſome other way: Say to it, as thou doſt to the Sea, Hitherto haſt thou gone, but thou ſhalt go no further, and here ſhall thy proud Waves be ſtayed. Or, The Wickedneſs of the Wicked ſhall have an end, not an end of perfection, which is to be accompliſhed; but an end of termination, it ſhall ceaſe; and an end of deſtruction, it ſhall be rooted out. Or, Let, I pray thee, Wickedneſs conſume the wicked. (i. e.) thoſe that are maliciouſly and incorrigibly ſuch. And ſo this Prayer is oppoſed to that following Prayer for the Juſt. And ſuch Prayers againſt ſome wicked Men we find uſed by prophetical Perſons, which are not raſhly to be drawn into preſident by ordinary Perſons. d Or, and thou wilt eſtabliſh, or confirm, or uphold: which is oppoſed to that coming to an end, or conſuming laſt mentioned. e All juſt Perſons and Cauſes, and mine in particular which is ſo. f And therefore he knows that I have not ſo much as a thought or a deſire of that miſchief which Cuſh and others report I am deſigning againſt Saul.

i (i. e.) Defendeth, or avengeth, or delivereth, as this word is oft uſed, as Deut. 32. 36. Pſal. 9. 4. and 10. 18. and 26. 1. &c. To judge, is properly to give Sentence; which becauſe it may be done either by abſolving and acquitting from puniſhment; or by condemning and giving up to Puniſhment, therefore it is ſometimes uſed for the one, and ſometimes for the other, as the Circumſtances of the place determine it. k Which though it may ſeem a bold Supplement, yet is neceſſary, and eaſily fetched out of the next and following verſes. l Even then, when his Providence ſeems to favour them, and they are moſt ſecure and confident.

12 If he m turn not n, he o will whet his ſword p, he hath bent his bow q, and made it ready.

m (i. e.) The wicked Man laſt mentioned, either Cuſh, or Saul. n From this wicked courſe of Calumniating or Perſecuting me. o (i. e.) God, who is often deſigned by this Pronoun, being eaſily to be underſtood from the nature of the thing. p (i. e.) Will prepare, and haſten, and ſpeedily execute his Judgments upon him. q Did I ſay, He will do it, nay, he hath already done it, his Sword is drawn, his Bow is bent, and the Arrows are prepared and ready to be ſhot.

13 He hath alſo prepared for him r the inſtruments of death s; he † ordaineth t his arrows againſt the perſecutors u.

r Either 1. For or againſt the Perſecutor, as it follows. Or rather 2. For himſelf, for his own uſe, to wit, to ſhoot againſt his Enemies. s (i. e.) Arrows, or other deadly Weapons, t Heb. maketh or worketh, deſigneth or fitteth for his very uſe. u Or, againſt furious and fiery Perſecutors, as the word ſignifies, and as it is uſed Gen. 31. 36. Pſal. 10. 2. Lam. 4. 19.

14 * Behold, he x travelleth with iniquity, and hath conceived miſchief and brought forth falſhood y.

x (i. e.) The Wicked, as is undeniably manifeſt from the matter and context. y This Metaphor noteth his deep Deſign, and continued Courſe, and vigorous Indeavours for the doing of Miſchief, and his reſtleſneſs and pain till he have accompliſhed it.

15 † He made a pit, and digged it, * and is fallen into the ditch which he made z.

z Hath brought that Evil upon himſelf which he intended againſt me. PSAL. VIII.

To the chief muſician upon Gittith a, A Pſalm of David b.

a The ſame title is prefixed to Pſal. 81. and 84. This alſo is ſuppoſed to be the Name of a Tune or Song, or Inſtrument ſo called, becauſe it was either invented or much uſed in Gath. Some render it, For the Wine-preſſes, and ſay it was to be ſung at the time of Vintage. b It is a great Queſtion among Interpreters, whether this Pſalm ſpeak of Man in general, and of the Honor which God put upon him in his Creation; or only of the Man Chriſt Jeſus. Poſſibly both may be reconciled and put together, and the Controverſy, if rightly ſtated, may be ended. For the ſcope and buſineſs of this Pſalm ſeems plainly to be this, to diſplay and celebrate the great Love and Kindneſs of God to Man-kind not only in his Creation, but alſo, and eſpecially in his Redemption by Jeſus Chriſt; whom, as he was Man, he advanced to the Honor and Dominion here mentioned, that he might carry on that great and glorious Work. So Chriſt is the principal Subject of this Pſalm, of whom it is interpreted both by Chriſt himſelf, Mat. 21. 16. and by his holy Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 15. 27. Heb. 2. 6, 7.

David extolleth the Majeſty, Power, and Providence of God in the World, 1—3. and his Love and Kindneſs to Mankind, 4, 5. in giving him Power over the Earth, 7. the Air, and the Sea, 8, 9.

1 O LORD our Lord, how excellent is thy name c in all the Earth d! * who haſt ſet thy glory above the heavens e. * Pſal. 113. 4 & 148. 13.

c (i. e.) Thy Fame or Glory, as it is explained in the next clauſe, and as the Name commonly ſignifies, as Gen. 6. 4. Eccleſ. 7. 1. Phil. 2. 9. And this Glory of God is moſt eminent in the Goſpel, and the work of Redemption. d Not only in Iſrael, to which the Name and Knowledg of God was confined, Pſal. 76. 2. and 147. 19. but among all Nations. Which ſhews that this Pſalm ſpeaks of the Meſſias, and the times of the New Teſtament. See Iſa. 40. 5. Mal. 1. 5. &c. e What do I ſpeak of the Earth? thy Glory or Praiſe reacheth to the Heavens, and indeed, above all the viſible Heavens, even to the Heaven of Heavens; where thy Throne of Glory is eſtabliſhed, where the bleſſed Angels celebrate thy Praiſes, where Chriſt ſitteth at thy right Hand in glorious Majeſty, from whence he poureth down excellent Gifts upon Babes, &c. as it followeth.

2 Out of the mouth of babes and ſucklings f haſt thou † ordained ſtrength g, becauſe of thine enemies, that thou mighteſt † ſtill h the enemy i and the avenger k. * Mat. 21. 16. † Heb. founded. ‖ Heb. cauſe to ceaſe.

f Either 1. Properly ſuch. For there is much of God's Glory ſeen in Infants in their Conception and ſtrange Progreſs from ſmall and contemptible Beginnings, in their Preſervation and Nouriſhment in the dark Cell of the Womb, in their bringing forth, and bringing up, in providing Breaſts and Milk for them, and keeping them from innumerable Dangers, from which they are utterly unable to keep themſelves. But this though it ſets forth God's Praiſe, yet how it ſtills the Enemy and Avenger, ſeems not clear. Or rather, 2. Metaphorically ſo called, babes not ſo much in age and years, as in diſpoſition and condition; weak and fooliſh, and contemptible and harmleſs Perſons, who are very frequently called Babes or Children, as 2 Chron. 13. 7. Prov. 1. 4. Eccleſ. 10. 16. Iſa. 3. 4. Mat. 18. 3. Eph. 4. 14. &c. For ſuch are very unfit to grapple with an Enemy: and therefore when ſuch Perſons conquer the moſt powerful and malicious Enemies, it muſt needs exceedingly confound and ſilence them, and mightily advance the Glory of God: as indeed it did, when ſuch mean and obſcure Perſons as the Apoſtles, and Miniſters, and Diſciples of Chriſt were, did maintain and propagate the Goſpel in ſpight of all the Wit, and Power, and Rage of their Enemies. See 1 Cor. 1. 25, 27, 28, 29. And of ſuch Babes as theſe Chriſt himſelf expounds this place, Mat. 21. 16. Of which more, God willing, upon that place. g Or, thou haſt founded (or confirmed, or eſtabliſhed, or firmly ſetled, or fitted, or perfected, as it is rendered by the LXX and vulgar Latin here, and by St. Matthew, Ch. 21. 16. (i. e.) perfectly or firmly ſetled) Strength: By which he ſeems to underſtand either 1. The Celebration or Praiſe of his Strength or Power, by comparing this with Mat. 21. 16. where it is rendered Praiſe. So it is onely a Metonymy of the Adjunct, which is moſt frequent in Scripture and all Authors. And ſo the word Strength ſeems to be taken Pſal. 29. 1. and 96. 7. Or 2. A ſtrong and mighty Kingdom, the Abſtract being put for the Congrete, than which nothing is more frequent, even the Kingdom of Chriſt, or his Goſpel, which is oft called the Arm or Power of God, as Pſal. 110. 2. Iſa. 53. 1. 1 Cor. 1. 18, 24. And this Kingdom being an everlaſting, and invincible, and all-conquering Kingdom, Dan. 2. 44. it is no wonder it is here called Strength. And this Goſpel or Kingdom is here ſaid to be founded or eſtabliſhed, not by the Hands or valiant Actions of Men of Might, as other Kingdoms are, but meerly by the Mouths of Babes, &c. (i. e.) by the Words and Diſcourſes of Chriſt's Apoſtles and Diſciples. Which is juſtly obſerved and celebrated here as a wonderful Work of God. h (i. e.) Silence, and Confound, and Conquer, either by Convincing and Converting them, or by deſtroying them. i The Enemies of God and of his People, the Devil, the head of them, whoſe Kingdom and Power is aboliſhed by this means, and all Men who fight under his Banner againſt God and Chriſt and his Members. k Which Title moſt truly and fitly agree, firſt to the Devil, who being ſentenced by God to eternal Flames, and Conquered, and Tormented by Chriſt, maketh it his great buſineſs to revenge himſelf, which becauſe he cannot do upon God and Chriſt, he indeavours to do it upon their Servants and Children; and next, to all theſe Men who are his Vaſſals and eſpouſe his Quarrel; who alſo are provoked and conceive, though falſly, that they are injured by the Goſpel, and by the Preachers, Profeſſors, and Practiſers of it, and therefore ſeek to revenge themſelves of them. Whereof we have an eminent Inſtance, Rev. 11. 10. Compare Heb. 11. 37.

3 When I conſider the heavens l, the work of thy fingers m, the moon and the ſtars n which thou haſt ordained o; l Thine by Creation, as it follows. m (i. e.) of thy hand, as it is expreſſed Pſal. 102. 25. A part being here put for the whole: God's hand and finger being indifferently uſed to note his Power, as Exod. 8. 19. Luke 11. 20. &c. Though ſome conceive that by this Phraſe he intended to ſignifie, both with what facility God made this glorious Work, even with a touch of his Finger; and with what curious and exquiſite Artifice he framed it; the Fingers being much uſed in ſuch Works. n Either the Sun is included under this general Title: or he omitted it, becauſe he made this Pſalm by Night, when the Sun did not fall within his Contemplation. o Or, eſtabliſhed, or directed, or diſpoſed, or ordered, (i. e.) placed in that excellent and unalterable order, and directed to all their ſeveral Courſes or Motions.

4 * What p is man q that thou art mindful of him r? and the ſon of man s that thou viſiteſt him t? * Job 7. 17. Pſal. 144. 4 Heb. 2. 6.

p (i. e.) How mean and inconſiderable a thing is Man, if compared with thy glorious Majeſty, who art ſo infinite in Power and Wiſdom, as thou haſt ſhewed in the Frame of the Heavens, &c. q Heb. infirm, or miſerable Man. By which it is apparent that he ſpeak of Man, not according to the ſtate of his Creation, but as fallen into a ſtate of Sin and Miſery, and Mortality. r (i. e.) Careſt for him, and conferreſt ſuch high Favours upon him. s Heb. the ſon of Adam, that great Apoſtate from, and Rebel againſt God, the ſinful Son of a ſinful Father, his Son by likeneſs of Diſpoſition and Manners no leſs than by Procreation. All which tends to magnifie the following Mercy. t Not in anger, as that Word is ſometimes uſed, but with thy Grace and Mercy, as it is taken Gen. 21. 1. Exod. 4. 31. Pſal. 65. 9. and 106. 4. and 144. 3.

5 For thou haſt made him a little lower than † the angels u, and haſt crowned him x with glory and honour. † Heb. the Gods. Pſal. 82. 6. & 138. 1.

u Thou haſt in and through Chriſt mercifully and wonderfully reſtored Man to his primitive and happy Eſtate, in which he was but one remove below the Angels; from which he was fallen by Sin. x (i. e.) Man, fallen and loſt Man: who is indeed actually crowned and reſtored to the Glory and Dominion here following, not in his own perſon, but in Chriſt his Head and Repreſentative, who received this Crown and Dominion, not ſo much for himſelf, who did not need it, as for Man's good and in his ſtead; which alſo he will in due time communicate unto all his Members. And ſo the two differing Expoſitions of this place concerning Mankind and concerning Chriſt, may be reconciled. For he ſpeaks of that happy and honourable Eſtate by God's Favour conferred firſt upon Chriſt, of whom therefore this place is rightly Expounded, Heb. 2. 6, 7, 8. and then by his hands upon Mankind, even upon all that believe in him. And ſo this whole place compared with that may be thus Paraphraſed. What is Man that thou ſhouldeſt mind or viſit him by thy Son whom thou haſt ſent into the World! Who, that he might reſtore Man to that happy and glorious Eſtate which was but a little below that of the Angels, was pleaſed to take upon him Man's miſerable and mortal Nature, and thereby to make himſelf (who was far above all Angels, even their Lord and God) lower than the Angels, mortal and miſerable for a little time; after which he was advanced to the higheſt Honour, and to an univerſal Dominion over all God's Works, the Angels not excepted.

6 * Thou haſt made him to have Dominion y over the works of thy hands; * thou haſt put all things z under his feet ‖: * Gen. 1. 26, 28. 1 * Cor. 15. 25.

y Thou didſt give all Power and all things into his hands, Mat. 28. 18. John 13. 3. z Both in Heaven, where are the Angels mentioned v. 5. and in the Earth, Air and Sea, as it follows. For nothing is excepted beſides God, 1 Cor. 15. 25, 27. Heb. 2. 8. ‖ (i. e.) Made them ſubject to him, as this Phraſe oft ſignifies. See Deut. 33. 3. Judg. 5. 27. Pſal. 18. 38. and 110. 1.

7 † All

† Heb. Flocks of Oxen all of them.

7 † All ſheep and oxen †, yea, and the beaſts of the field *.

8 The fowl of the air, and the fiſh of the ſea, and whatſoever paſſeth through the paths of the ſea.

9 O LORD our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth.

† Here is no perfect Enumeration, but under theſe are comprehended all other Beaſts, and much more Men and Angels. * (i. e.) The wild Beaſts: which together with divers Fowls and Fiſhes were ſubject to Chriſt, and are governed and employed as it pleaſeth him; although many of them be without the reach, and are not brought under the Power of any other Man.

PSAL. IX.

To the chief muſician upon Muth-labben a, a Pſalm of David.

a This alſo ſeems to be another Title of ſome Song or Tune, or Inſtrument: of which we muſt and may be content to be Ignorant, as the Jewiſh Doctors alſo are. Some render it, Upon the death of his Son, to wit, Abſalom, or of one called Labben, or, of the middle Man, or the Man that ſtood between the two Armies, to wit, Goliah, who is ſo called in the Hebrew Text, 1 Sam. 17. 4. But none of theſe ſuit with the deſign and matter of the Pſalm, which is more general, and relates to his former manifold Dangers, and the Deliverance which God had graciouſly given him out of them. And that of Goliah agrees not with v. 14. where there is mention of Praiſing God in Zion, which then and long after was in the Hands of the Jebuſites.

David reſolveth to praiſe God, 1, 2. for executing Judgment upon his Enemies, 3–8. God is a Refuge to the Oppreſſed, 9, 10. David calls the People of Iſrael to praiſe the Lord, 11, 12. He prayeth him to conſider his Trouble, 13. that he might have cauſe to praiſe him, 14. The Heathen, by God's Judgment, fall into the ſnare they made for others, 15, 16. The portion of the wicked that forget God, 17. A Promiſe of Mercy to the Needy and poor, 18. And a Prayer for Judgment on the Ungodly, 19, 20.

‖ Or, I will praiſe the Lord.

1 ‖ I Will praiſe thee, O LORD, with my heart b; I will ſhew forth all thy marvelous works c.

b (i.e.) With a ſincere, and affectionate, and united Heart. c I will diſcourſe in the general of thy manifold Wonders wrought for me, and for thy Church and People formerly. The Particle all is here, as it is oft elſewhere taken in a reſtrained Sence.

2 I will be glad and rejoyce in thee d: I will ſing praiſe to thy name, O thou moſt high.

d (i. e.) In thy favour and help vouchſafed to me.

3 When mine enemies are turned back e, they ſhall fall and periſh f at thy preſence g.

e (i.e.) Diſcomfited and put to flight. f They ſhall not ſave themſelves by Flight, and reſerve themſelves to do further Miſchief, but ſhall ſtumble as it were at Gall-traps by thee laid in their way, and ſhall be purſued and overtaken, and cut off. g Upon thy appearance againſt them. One angry Look of thine is able to confound and deſtroy them. Heb. from thy face, becauſe thou didſt march in the head of our Armies, and againſt them. They could not ſtand before thee. So he aſcribes the Honour of his Victories to God only, and to his Preſence and aſſiſtance.

† Heb. Thou haſt made my judgment.

5 Thou haſt rebuked l the heathen m, thou haſt deſtroyed the wicked, thou haſt put out their name n for ever and ever.

l (i. e.) Puniſhed, as Pſal. 6. 1. or deſtroyed, as it is explained in the next Clauſe. m To wit, the Philiſtins and other heathen Nations, who did from time to time moleſt David, or the People of Iſrael. n Either that Fame and Honour which they had gained by their former Exploits, but now utterly loſt by their ſhameful Defeats: or their very Memorial, as it fared with Amalek.

‖ Or, the deſtructions of the enemy are come to a perpetual end, and their cities haſt thou deſtroyed, &c.

6 ‖ O thou enemy o, deſtructions are come to a perpetual end p: and thou q haſt deſtroyed Cities, their memorial is periſhed with them r.

o This is a ſudden Apoſtrophe to the Enemies of God's People, Philiſtins, Amorites, or other Nations, who had formerly made great Havock and Waſte among them. p Thou haſt deſtroyed the Iſraelitiſh Nation utterly and irrecoverably, and, as it follows, their defenced Cities, and their very Name and Memory, according to thy own deſire. So it is a Sarcaſme or Irony, an uſual Figure in Scripture and all Authors, whereby the quite contrary is ſignified; To wit, That they were not only fruſtrated of their Deſires and Hopes of deſtroying the Iſraelites, but were alſo ſubdued, and in a great part deſtroyed by them. Or this Verſe may be underſtood of the great Waſte and Ruin which God's Enemies had brought upon Iſrael before this time: which is here remembred, to make the Iſraelites more thankful for their later or preſent Deliverances. Or it may be taken as a Prophecy of the future Calamities which the Enemies ſhould by God's Permiſſion bring upon Iſrael, of which he ſpeaks as of a thing paſt and done, after the manner of the Prophets. But this place is otherwiſe rendred in the Margent of our Bibles, and by divers others, The Deſtructions of the enemy (which may be underſtood either 1. Actively, which they cauſed. Or 2. Paſſively, which they felt) are come to a perpetual end, or, are fully and finally compleated. q Either 1. Thou, O God, who is oft underſtood and couched in a Pronoun in this manner, Thou haſt deſtroyed their Cities. Or rather 2. Thou, O Enemy: as may be gathered both from the foregoing Clauſe, where it is ſo expreſſed; and from the next Verſe, where it follows by way of oppoſition to this; But the Lord, &c. r The Places and People are utterly exſtinct.

7 But the LORD ſhall endure for ever s: he hath prepared t his throne for judgment.

s Though Cities and People may periſh for ever, yet the Lord abides for ever. Which is ſufficient for the Enemies Terror, and for the Comfort of his Church. t Or, eſtabliſhed, by his immutable Purpoſe, and his irrevocable Promiſe.

* Gen. 9. 5.
‖ Or, Afflicted.

12 * When he maketh inquiſition for blood e, he remembreth them f: he forgetteth not the cry of the ‖ humble g.

e Heb. Bloods. The bloodſhed or murder of his innocent and holy ones: which though he may connive at for a ſeaſon, yet he will certainly call the Authors of it to a very ſevere Account, and avenge it upon them. f Either 1. The Humble, as it follows, or the Oppreſſed, v. 9. That truſt in him, and ſeek to him, v. 10. Whom he ſeemed to have forgotten. Or 2. The bloods laſt mentioned, for that Noun, and this Pronoun are both of the maſculine Gender: and then remembring is put for revenging or puniſhing, as it is Deut. 25. 17, 19. Neh. 6. 14. Jer. 14. 10. and 44. 21. and oft elſewhere. g Or, meek, as this word which is uſed alſo Zech. 9. 9. is Tranſlated Mat. 21. 5. Who do not, and cannot, and will not avenge themſelves, but commit their Cauſe to me, as the God to whom Vengeance belongeth. Or afflicted, or oppreſſed ones.

13 Have mercy upon me, O LORD, conſider my trouble h which I ſuffer of them that hate me, thou that lifteſt me up from the gates of death i:

h To wit, Compaſſionately and effectually, ſo as to bring me out of it. i From the Brink or Mouth of the Grave into which I was dropping, being as near Death as a Man is to the City, that is come to the very Gates of it. And ſo the Phraſe is uſed Pſal. 107. 18. Iſa. 38. 10. and in other Authors, [of whom ſee my Latin Synopſis.] Gates elſewhere ſignifie Power and Policy, becauſe the Gates of Cities were places both of Counſel and Strength; but the Gates of Death are never ſo taken in Scripture.

14 That I may ſhew forth thy praiſe in the gates k of the daughter of Zion l: I will rejoyce m in thy ſalvation.

k (i. e.) In the great Aſſemblies, which were uſually in the Gates. Compare Prov. 31. 31. Iſa. 3. 26. Theſe Gates he elegantly oppoſeth to the former, and declareth that if he be brought off them he will go into theſe. l Either 1. Of Jeruſalem, ſo called alſo Iſa. 1. 8. Zech. 9. 9. Becauſe at this time it was ſubject to Zion; which at this time was the ſeat of the Kings Palace, and of the Ark. For Cities or Towns belonging or ſubject unto any Metropolis are commonly called its Daughters, as Joſ. 15. 45. 2 Chron. 13. 19. Pſal. 48. 11. As the chief Cities are called Mothers, as 2 Sam. 20. 19. Gal. 4. 26. Or 2. Of the People who live in or belong to, or meet together for civil and religious Matters in Zion. For Cities are as it were Mothers to their People, giving them Birth and Breeding, and therefore the People are commonly called their Daughters. So the Names of the Daughters of Egypt, Jer. 46. 11. and of Edom, Lam. 4. 21, 22. and of Tyre, Pſal. 45. 12. and of Babel, Pſal. 137. 8. and of Jeruſalem, Lam. 2. 13, 15. Mich. 4. 8. 17 The wicked ſhall be turned into hell r, and all the nations s that forget God t.

r Either 1. Into the Grave, which is oft called Scheol, into which they are ſaid to be turned, or to return, becauſe they were made of, or taken out of the Duſt, Eccleſ. 12. 7. Or 2. Into the place of eternal Perdition; which alſo is ſometimes called Scheol, as Prov. 15. 24. and elſewhere. For he ſeems to ſpeak here of thoſe Puniſhments which are peculiar to the Wicked, whereas the Grave is common to good and bad. And as v. 8. He ſeems to ſpeak of the laſt and general Judgment of all the World, ſo this Verſe may be underſtood of the general puniſhment of all Perſons and Nations conſequent upon it. And into this place wicked men may be ſaid to be turned back, or to return, either 1. Becauſe it is their own proper place, Acts 1. 25. to which they belong, and from which they have their original and their wicked qualities, as being of their Father the Devil, John 8. 44. In which reſpect the Locuſts (who are by all Interpreters underſtood to be living Men) are ſaid to come out of the bottomleſs pit, Rev. 9. 2, 3. Or 2. Becauſe they had ſet themſelves as it were in Battel-array againſt God, and were beaten back and driven from his Preſence into their Graves, and into Hell it ſelf. s Whom their great Numbers and Power cannot protect from Gods Wrath. t That do not conſider nor regard God, nor his Precepts, nor his Threatnings and Judgments, but go on ſecurely and preſumptuouſly in their oppreſſive and wicked Courſes.

* Pſ. 12. 5.

19 Ariſe, O LORD, let not man prevail, let the heathen be judged in thy ſight.

u Though God for a time may ſeem to neglect or forget them, and ſuffer their Enemies to triumph over them. x Which negative Particle is fitly underſtood out of the former Clauſe, as it is Pſal. 1. 5. and 44. 18. Iſa. 23. 4. and 28. 27, 28.

20 Put them in fear y, O LORD, that the nations may know themſelves to be but men z. Selah.

y Subdue their proud and inſolent Spirits, and ſtrike them with Terror, or with ſome terrible Judgment. z Heb. Weak, and miſerable, and mortal Men, and therefore altogether unable to oppoſe the omnipotent and eternal God. This he ſaith, becauſe wicked Men when they are advanced to great Power and Majeſty are very prone to forget their own Frailty, and to carry themſelves as if they were Gods. See Iſa. 31. 3. Ezek. 30. 7, 8. Dan. 5. 21.

PSAL. X.

The ARGUMENT.

This Pſalm contains David's Complaint unto God againſt his malicious Enemies, eſpecially thoſe of his own People, whoſe wicked and deceitful Practices he here deſcribes, and then commits his cauſe to God, and begs his help againſt them.

The Pſalmiſt complaineth of Gods hiding himſelf, 1. and of the outrage and pride of the wicked, 2—5. The language, 6, 7. and malicious practice of the wicked, 8—10. and their denying Gods omniſcience, 11. David prayeth for remedy againſt, and puniſhment upon the wicked, 12——15. and acknowledgeth Gods mercy in hearing the oppreſſed, 16—18.

1 WHY ſtandeſt thou afar off a, O LORD? why hideſt thou thy ſelf b † in times of trouble c?

† Heb. at ſeaſons in trouble. So c.

a Like one that neither ſees nor hears, nor regards me, nor intendeſt any help for me. b Or, thy face, out of v. 11. which did ſometimes ſhine upon me: Or, thine eyes, by comparing this with Prov. 28. 27. Iſa. 1. 15. c When I moſt need thy Pity and Succour. Do not add Affliction to the Afflicted.

2 † The wicked in his pride d doth perſecute e the poor f: * let them be taken in the devices that they have imagined.

† Heb. in the pride of the wicked he doth perſecute.
* Pſ. 7. 16. & 9. 15, 16. Prov. 5. 22.

d Torough pride of Heart; which makes him forget God, v. 4. and deſpiſe the Poor, and oppreſs others, either becauſe they oppoſe or diſlike his wicked Courſes, or that he may have more fewel for his Pride or Ambition. Or, in his Exaltation. This is the uſe that he makes of that power and authority to which thou haſt advanced him, to perſecute thoſe whom he ſhould protect and cheriſh. He ſeems to point at Saul or his Courtiers. e With great fervency and burning fury, as the word ſignifies. f To wit, me who am through their Tyranny poor and deſtitute, and miſerable, and therefore the more proper Object for thy Compaſſion, and others who favour my righteous Cauſe.

3 For the wicked boaſteth g of his † hearts deſire h, and * ‖ bleſſeth the covetous i, whom the LORD abhorreth k, † Heb. Soul.

* Pro. 28. 4 Rom. 1. 32
‖ Or, the covetous bleſſeth himſelf, he abhorreth the LORD.

g Or glorieth, or praiſeth, or pleaſeth himſelf. h Or, in, or concerning, or becauſe of the deſire, or concupiſcence, or luſt of his heart, or ſoul; which word is added to note the vehemency and fervency of it. He glorieth in his very Luſts, which are his Shame, Phil. 3. 19. and eſpecially in the ſatisfaction of his deſires how wickedly ſoever he gets it. Deſire is oft put for the thing deſired, as Pſalm 21. 2. and 78, 29, 30. i And as he applaudeth himſelf, ſo he commends others that are greedy after, and get abundance of gain, though it be done by fraud and violence, accounting ſuch the onely happy Men. Or, the covetous (the ſame with the wicked enlarging his deſire, as was now ſaid) bleſſeth, or applaudeth, or flattereth himſelf in what he hath already gotten, and in the confident expectation of the continuance and increaſe of his Worldly Wealth and Glory. k So his judgment as well as practice is contrary to Gods. Or, rather without any Supplement, as it is in the Margent, He abhorreth, or deſpiſeth, or provoketh the Lord. He ſets himſelf not only againſt Men but againſt God himſelf, as he declareth more fully in the next Verſe.

4 The wicked, through the pride l of his countenance m, will not ſeek after God n: ‖ God is not in all his * thoughts o.

‖ Or, all his thoughts are, There is no God.
* Pſ. 14. 1. & 53. 1.

l By which he ſcorns to ſtoop to God, or to own any Superiour, and makes himſelf and his own Luſts his only Rule, and his laſt end, and is full of ſelf-confidence, and a conceit of his own ſelf-ſufficiency and unchangeable felicity, as is noted v. 6. m So called, becauſe though Pride be properly ſeated in the Heart; whence it is called Pride, or loftineſs of Heart, or Spirit, as Pſal. 131. 1. Prov. 16. 18. Eccleſ. 7. 8. &c. Yet it is manifeſted in the Countenance, and therefore is oft deſcribed by lofty Looks, as Pſal. 101. 5. and 131. 1. Prov. 6. 17. and 21. 4. and 30. 13. &c. Which poſſibly was done purpoſely to meet with the Excuſes of proud Perſons, who when they are charged with pride for their looks or geſtures, or apparel, or the like, uſe to make this Apology for themſelves; that pride lies in the Heart and not in theſe outward things. n (i. e.) Not ſeek, or enquire into the Mind and Will of God, to order his Life by it ſo as to pleaſe God, nor ſeek to him by Prayer for his Favour and Bleſſing. But the words after God, are not in the Hebrew, and it is thought by ſome too great boldneſs to add them here. And therefore others omit it and render the Hebrew words, will not ſearch, or conſider, to wit his Actions, which ſeems to be a more natural and eaſie Supplement: he will not trouble himſelf to enquire whether his Actions be juſt or unjuſt, pleaſing or offenſive to God, but without any care or conſideration ruſheth into Sin, and doth whatſoever ſeemeth right in his own Eyes. But theſe and the former words are and may be, and that very agreeably to the Hebrew, thus rendered without any Supplement, The wicked through his pride (for ſo this Hebrew word by it ſelf ſignifies, Iſa. 5. 16. and 10. 33. will not ſeek his (i. e. Gods, which is plain both from the foregoing and following words) face, which is an uſual phraſe in Scripture, as 2 Chron. 7. 14. Pſal. 24. 6. and 27. 8. and 105. 4. &c. o He hath no ſerious thoughts of, nor regard unto God or his word, which ought to command him, or his Threats and Judgments, which ſhould keep him in awe. Or, all his thoughts are there is no God, to wit, no ſuch God as minds the Affairs of the World, and the Actions of Men, and puniſheth Sinners. He was a Deiſt and owned a God, at leaſt in words, but denied his Providence.

5 His ways are alwayes grievous p: * thy judgments q are far above out of his ſight r: as for all his enemies, he puffeth at them s.

* Pro. 24. 7.

p His whole courſe and carriage is vexatious to all that are within his reach, but eſpecially to the poor who cannot right themſelves, and to juſt and good Men, whom he hateth and perſecuteth. Or, his ways, (i. e.) his deſigns and enterprizes, at all times are proſperous, or ſucceſsful, or do bring forth: for this Verb ſignifies as the pains and trouble, ſo alſo the ſucceſs and comfort, of childbearing, or the bringing forth Children, as Pſal. 29. 9. Iſa. 54. 1. Jer. 4. 31. And the accompliſhment or diſappointment of deſigns is frequently expreſſed by this Metaphor: of which ſee 2 Kings 19. 23. Pſal. 7. 14. Iſa. 59. 4. &c. And this ſenſe ſeems beſt to ſuit with the Context. q Either 1. Thy Laws, which are oft called Judgments. Or rather, thy Threatnings denounced againſt, and Puniſhments inflicted upon Sinners. r Either 1. He doth not feel them, thou removeſt them far from him: which indulgence of thine is the cauſe of his inſolency. Or rather 2. He doth not diſcern nor regard, nor fear them, nor think of them, but goes on ſecurely and reſolvedly in his wicked courſes. He hath not ſo much Faith nor Reaſon as to apprehend or conſider them, but like a Brute-Beaſt looks only downward to the Earth, and minds not things above him. And thus it ſeems beſt to agree with the foregoing and following Clauſes. His Devices ſucceed, and therefore he neither fears Gods Judgments nor the power of his Enemies, but fancies his Happineſs to be unchangeable, as it follows, v. 6. s (i. e.) He deſpiſeth them, being confident that he can blow them away with a Breath. This is a Geſture of contempt or diſdain both in Scripture, as Pſal. 12. 5. Mal. 1. 13. and in other Authors, as in Plautus; where one ſpeaks thus to a proud and bragging Captain, Thou haſt blown away whole Legions with thy Breath, as Leaves are blown away by a wind.

6 He hath ſaid in his heart t, I ſhall not be moved u: for I ſhall † never be in adverſity x.

† Heb. unto generation and generation.

t He thinketh or perſwadeth himſelf. u Or, removed, to wit, from my place and happy ſtate. x Or, becauſe I am not in adverſity, therefore I never ſhall be in it. His preſent proſperity makes him ſecure for the future. Compare Rev. 18. 7. Or, yea (for this particle ſometimes hath no other ſignification or uſe, but only to amplifie or aggravate, as it is alſo taken 1 Sam 15. 20. and 24. 11.) I ſhall never be in evil. So the ſenſe of the place is, I ſhall not only be kept from total ruine or a removal from my place and eſtate, but I ſhall not meet with the leaſt croſs or trouble. For this evil is not the evil of Sin, as ſome here underſtand it, in which he knew that he was, and was reſolved ever to continue, but the evil of puniſhment, which was the only thing that he feared or regarded.

7 * His mouth is full of curſing y, and † deceit and fraud z: under his tongue a is miſchief and ‖ vanity b.

* Rom. 3. 14.

y Either 1. Of Oaths and Blaſphemies againſt God. Or 2. Of reviling and execration of other men, eſpecially thoſe that are good; or thoſe that ſtand in his way and hinder his wicked deſigns. Or rather 3. Of Oaths and Imprecations againſt himſelf, of which this word is uſed Numb. 5. 21. Deut. 29. 12, 21. Neh. 10. 29. By which he indeavours to gain Credit, and to make his Neighbours ſecure, and ſo to make way for the deceit and fraud which here follows. For this wretched Man is repreſented both here, and in the ſucceeding Verſes, as one that doth not act with open Violence and Hoſtility, but with ſubtil and ſecret Artifices, uſing all cunning Inſinuations, and Flatteries, and Lies, and among others, Oaths, of which an Atheiſtical Politician ſaid, that Men were to be deceived with Oaths, and Children with Rattles or Toyes. z Two words ſignifying the ſame thing, to note the greatneſs and frequency of his Deceits. Or one word may ſignifie the deceit lurking ing in his heart, and the other the manifeſtation of it in external Frauds and Stratagems. a Either 1. In his Heart, which is under the Tongue. Or rather 2. Under his fair and plauſible Speeches, the Miſchief here following is hid and covered. Withal he ſeems to allude to Serpents whoſe poyſon lies hidden under the Tongue, or within their Teeth. b Or rather iniquity, as this word is oft rendered, or injury, the vexation or oppreſſion of other men, which he covers with theſe fair pretences.

* Hab. 3. 14.
† Heb. hide themſelves

8 He ſitteth in the lurking places of the villages c, * in the ſecret places d doth he murder the innocent : his eyes † are privily ſet e againſt the poor.

c Not within the Villages, which is not a fit place for lurking, but about them, in the ways bordering upon them or leading to them, as Robbers uſe to do. d That he may avoid the ſhame and puniſhment of Men ; which is the only thing that he fears. e Heb. Are hid. The ſenſe is either 1. He winketh as men do when they ſhoot their Arrows at a mark. Or rather 2. He watcheth and looketh out of his lurking-place; to ſpy what paſſengers come that way. He alludes ſtill to the practices of Robbers.

† Heb. in the ſecret places.

9 He lieth in wait † ſecretly as a lion in his den f : he lieth in wait to catch the poor : he doth catch g the poor when he draweth him h into his net.

f Where he lurks and waits for prey. g Or ſnatch, or ſeize upon, to wit, with violence, and to devour or deſtroy him. h Or, by drawing him : or, after he hath drawn him. He layeth Snares for him, and when he takes him, tears him in pieces.

† Heb. he breaketh himſelf.
‖ Or, into his ſtrong parts.

10 † He croucheth, and humbleth himſelf i, that the poor may fall k ‖ by his ſtrong ones l.

i Like a Lion (for he continues the ſame Metaphor) which gathereth himſelf together and lies cloſe upon the ground, partly that he may not be diſcovered, and partly that he may more ſuddenly, and ſurely, and fiercely lay hold upon his prey. But for this Tranſlation, becauſe this and is not in the Hebrew, and there is another and there prefixed to the firſt Verb ; ſome joyn that firſt Verb to the end of the tenth Verſe, and render the place thus, He catcheth the poor by drawing him into his net, and breaks him to pieces, as that Verb properly ſignifies. So there is only a defect of the pronoun, which is moſt frequent. And this makes the Senſe compleat, which otherwiſe would be imperfect in that verſe, and ſheweth us what he doth with his prey when he hath taken it. And this 10*th* verſe begins very well with the next Verb, He humbleth himſelf : Or, He ſtoops, or bends himſelf. k Or, that he may fall (for this Verb is ſometimes taken actively, as Joſ. 11. 7. Job 1. 15.) upon the poor. That having firſt couched and lay'n down, and then of a ſudden riſing, he may leap and fall upon his prey, like a Lion. l (i. e.) By his ſtrong members, his teeth or paws. So it is an Ellipſis of the Noun Subſtantive ; whereof we have examples, as 2 Sam. 21. 16. new for a new ſword ; and Pſal. 73. 10. full for a full Cup : and Mat. 10. 42. cold for cold water.

11 He hath ſaid in his heart, God hath forgotten m :
* Job 22. 13. Pſal. 94. 7. & 64. 5. * he hideth his face n, he will never ſee it o.

m To wit, the poor, v. 10. or the humble, which we are taught to ſupply out of v. 12. where he ſaith, forget not the humble. He forgets and neglects all their Oppreſſions and Prayers, and doth not avenge their cauſe, as he hath ſaid he would do, nor execute Judgments upon their Oppreſſors, as he hath ſometimes done or been thought to do. n Leſt he ſhould ſee. He takes no notice of their Sufferings leſt he ſhould be engaged to help them. He will not encumber himſelf with the care of things done upon Earth, but leaves it wholly to men to manage their Affairs as they think fit. o To wit, the oppreſſion of the poor, or the deſign of oppreſſors againſt them, which is the chief ſubject of the whole Pſalm, and is particularly expreſſed, v. 10.

‖ Or, afflicted.

12 Ariſe, O LORD, O God, lift up thine hand p : forget not q the ‖ humble.

p To reſcue the poor, and to ſmite their oppreſſors with an hand ſtretched out and lifted up, that the blow may be the greater, Compare Exod. 7. 5. Iſa. 5. 25. and 9. 12. &c. q Shew by thy appearance for their Vindication, that thou doſt remember and regard them.

13 Wherefore doth the wicked contemn God r ? he hath ſaid in his heart, thou wilt not require it.

r The ſenſe is either 1. What is the cauſe of his contempt of God ? To which queſtion the next words give an anſwer, Thy connivance makes him ſecure. Therefore ſhew thy ſelf. Or 2. Why doſt thou by giving them impunity ſuffer, and occaſion them to deſpiſe thee ? Do ſo no longer. Which tacit deſire he inforceth by repreſenting their atheiſtical denial of Gods providence.

14 Thou haſt ſeen it s, for t thou beholdeſt u miſchief and ſpite x, to requite it with thy hand y : the poor † committeth himſelf z unto thee ; thou art the helper of the fatherleſs a.

* Pſ. 7. & 37. 1

15 Break thou b the arm c of the wicked, and the evil man : * ſeek out his wickedneſs d till thou find none e.

b Or, Thou wiltſt break. For it may be either a prayer or a prophecy. c (i. e.) His ſtrength, the inſtrument of violence and miſchief. d Search for it ſo ſtrictly and puniſh theſe wicked Atheiſts ſo ſeverely. e (i. e.) No ſuch wickedneſs, to wit, undiſcovered and unpuniſhed, or indeed left in the World, or at leaſt, in the Church. Which might happen becauſe thoſe wicked men here ſpoken of ſhould be generally either convinced or rooted out, and the reſt ſhould be warned and reformed by their Example, and ſo this lewdneſs ſhould ceaſe out of the land, as the phraſe is Ezek. 23. 48. That is ſaid to be ſought for and not found, which is utterly loſt, as Job 20. 7, 8. Pſal. 37. 36. Rev. 16. 20. and 18. 21. And this phraſe is uſed both of good men, whoſe ſins are taken away by Gods Grace and Mercy, pardoning and purging them away, and of wicked men in the ſenſe above-mentioned.

* Pſal. 29. 10. & 145. 13. & 146. 10. Jer. 10. 10. Lam. 5. 19. Dan. 4. 34. & 6. 26. 1 Tim. 1. 17.

16 * The LORD is king f for ever and ever g : the heathen h are periſhed out of his land i.

f To whom it belongs to protect his Subjects. Therefore thou wiltſt ſave the humble and puniſh the oppreſſors. g Therefore his peoples caſe is never deſperate, ſeeing he ever lives and reigns to help them, and therefore he will help them in his time ſooner or later. h Either 1. Thoſe impious Iſraelites who oppreſſed David and other good men, whom, although they were reputed Iſraelites by themſelves and others, yet he might call them heathens for their heatheniſh opinions of God and his providence, and for their ungodly and unrighteous lives. Compare Iſa. 1. 9. Amos 9. 7. Or 2. The Canaanites, whom God as King of the World, did expel or deſtroy, and gave their land to his people. By which great example he confirms his faith and hope for the future. i (i. e.) Out of Canaan, which God calls his land, Levit. 25. 23. becauſe he ſpied it out for them, Ezek. 20. 6. and gave it to them, and fixed his preſence and dwelling in it.

† Heb. make thine ears attentive.

17 LORD, thou haſt heard the deſire of the humble k : thou wilt ‖ prepare l their heart, thou wilt † cauſe thine ear to hear m :

k And therefore wiltſt ſtill do it, being unchangeable and the ſame for ever. l Or, direct or fit, by thy Grace and good Spirit, either that they may ſo pray as thou wiltſt hear : or that they may be made fit to receive the mercies which they deſire : which when they are, they ſhall have their prayers heard. Or, thou wiltſt confirm, or ſtabliſh (as this Verb is oft uſed) their heart, to bear their preſent preſſures, and to wait upon, and hope, and truſt in thee for deliverance, until thou ſeeſt fit to hear and help them. m In due time, though for a ſeaſon thou ſeemeſt to turn a deaf ear to them. But this and the foregoing Verb may be taken as a prayer, future Verbs being oft uſed imperatively. Prepare or ſtabliſh their hearts (by giving them ſupport and aſſurance of help in the time of need, and then) cauſe thine ear to hear.

18 To judge n the fatherleſs and the oppreſſed, that the man of the earth o may no more ‖ oppreſs p.

n (i. e.) To defend them, and give ſentence for them, and againſt their Enemies, as this word is uſed, Deut. 32. 36. Pſal. 7. 8. and 135. 14. o (i. e.) Earthly and mortal men, who are made of the duſt and muſt return to it, ſuch as the oppreſſors of thy people are ; who yet preſume moſt audaciouſly and madly to contend with thee their Maker and Judge. Therefore it is time for thee to repreſs ſuch inſolency, and to ſhew how unable they are to ſtand before thee. p To wit, the Fatherleſs laſt mentioned.

PSAL. XI.

To the chief muſician a Pſalm of David.

This Pſalm ſeems to have been Compoſed by David when he was perſecuted by Saul, and forced to flee from place to place for ſafety.

David encourageth himſelf in God, 1. againſt the wicked deſigns of his Enemies, 2, 3. The Providence and Juſtice of God, 4. to the righteous and wicked, 5.

1 IN the LORD a put I my truſt : how ſay ye b to my ſoul c, Flee as a bird d to your mountain e.

a (i. e.) In his faithfulneſs, who hath promiſed, and will, I doubt not, give me the Kingdom. b Either 1. Ye my Friends : who through diffidence and diſpondency adviſed him to this courſe. Or 2. Ye my Enemies : who ſaid it ſcoffingly and inſultingly : How ſay ye. With what face or reaſon can you ſay thus to him who hath the Lord God Almighty for his refuge ? c (i. e.) To me, as Pſal. 6. 4. and 7. 2. d Suddenly and ſwiftly, and to ſome remote place, where thou mayſt be out of Sauls reach. Feed not thy ſelf with vain hopes of the Kingdom, but conſult for thy own ſafety, which thou canſt not do without taking the wings of a Dove, or ſome other Bird, that thou maiſt flee away out of the land, and be at reſt, as thou ſayeſt Pſal. 55. 6. Or, flee away, O thou Bird, thou little ſilly Bird ; leſt the Royal Eagle ſeize upon thee. e (i. e.) To ſome of your Mountains in Juda, and there hide thy ſelf. But this was Davids common practice ; and therefore there was no need that any ſhould adviſe him to it, or that he ſhould reprove them for that advice. Or, from (which prefix is oft wanting and to be underſtood, as Joſ. 10. 13. 2 Sam. 23. 24.) your Mountain, (i. e.) from the Mountain, or mountainous Country of Judah, as it is called Joſ. 20. 7. The Mountain being frequently put for a Mountainous Country, as Numb. 13. 29. and 23. 7. Joſ. 9. 1. and 10. 6, 40. and oft elſewhere ; or, from your Mountains, in which thou and thy Companions uſe to hide your ſelves : Flee into ſome Foreign Land where you may be ſafe. For this was the deſign of Davids Enemies, as he complains 1 Sam. 26. 19. and afterward when David was under ſore Temptations, it was his practice once or twice.

* Pſal. 64. 3, 4.

2 For lo f, the wicked * bend their bow, they make ready their arrow upon the ſtring g, that they may † privily h ſhoot at the upright in heart i.

f Theſe are the words, either 1. Of Davids Friends or Enemies; confirming their former advice: which might ſuit with it, if that was the Counſel of his Friends; but not, if it was (as it ſeems to have been) the counſel of his Enemies; for theſe would never have called themſelves wicked, nor David and his men upright in heart. Or rather 2. Of David himſelf: who having directed his ſpeech to his Enemies, v. 1. now turns it to God, and pours out before him his Complaints againſt his Enemies, as his uſual courſe is in this Book. They do not only ſpeak ſcornfully of me, as I have ſaid, but, O Lord, they act againſt me with all their might and malice. g They lay deſigns for my deſtruction and they make all things ready to execute them. h Out of their lurking holes, compare Pſal. 10. 8, 9. and 64. 5. For as ſome of his Enemies did openly oppoſe him, ſo others did ſecretly undermine him, and with pretences of Friendſhip ſeek to betray him. i At me and my followers, who have manifeſted our integrity both towards God, and towards Saul, whom I have faithfully ſerved and ſpared when I could have taken away his life.

3 If k * the foundations l be deſtroyed, what † can the righteous do m?

k Or, for, or when. l (i. e.) Piety and Juſtice, and Fidelity and Mercy, which are the Pillars or Foundations of a State or Kingdom, as they are called Pſal. 75. 2, 3. and 82. 5. By which they are eſtabliſhed, Prov. 29. 14. and which Saul and his Courtiers had manifeſtly violated and overthrown in perſecuting David and his Friends. The ſenſe is, There is nothing in publick adminiſtrations, but diſorder and oppreſſion, and right can take no place. m The condition of all righteous men (whom thou haſt engaged thy ſelf to protect and deliver) will be deſperate; which will not be for thine honour. Heb. What hath the Righteous done. As for me and my Friends upon whom all the blame is laid, what have we poor, but righteous perſons (for ſuch thou knoweſt us to be) done? namely, to cauſe all theſe Calumnies and Perſecutions, or to occaſion all theſe Commotions and Diſturbances of publick Peace and Juſtice. It is eaſie to ſlander us, but let them prove their Accuſations by any one of our Actions.

4 * The LORD m is in his holy temple o; the LORD's throne p is in heaven: his eyes behold, * his eye-lids try the children of men q.

n To whom I appeal from mens unjuſt Tribunals. o Either 1. In his Tabernacle, which is ſometimes called his Temple, as 1 Sam. 1. 9. and 3. 3. Pſal. 18. 6. and 38. 2. and 68. 29. where he reſides to hear the Prayers and Appeals of all his People. Or 2. In Heaven, as it is explained in the next Clauſe; which is alſo called Gods Temple, Mich. 1. 2. Rev. 7. 15. and which ſeems to be moſt emphatical here; for Gods being in Heaven is oft mentioned as an evidence of his glorious Majeſty, of his ſoveraign Power and Dominion over all men and things, and of his accurate Inſpection into all men and their actions here below, which from that high Tower he can eaſily behold, as it here follows. p Where he ſits to examine all Cauſes, and to judge all Men, and to give forth righteous Sentences according to every mans works; which is my great Comfort and Joy. q (i. e.) He doth exactly and thoroughly diſcern all men, and all that is in men, their moſt inward and ſecret Actions, Pſal. 7. 9. And therefore he ſees and will reward my Innocency notwithſtanding all the Reproaches and Calumnies of mine Enemies; and withal he ſees all their ſecret and ſubtil, and malicious Deſigns againſt me through all their cunning Pretences, and will diſcover and defeat them.

5 The LORD trieth r the righteous: but the wicked and him that loveth violence s, his ſoul hateth t.

r Either 1. He examines them, and knows them to be righteous, and conſequently approveth and loveth, and will preſerve and bleſs them; which may be gathered from the contrary Condition of the Wicked, whom God is ſuppoſed to try, though that be not expreſſed, and upon Trial finds them to be wicked, and therefore hates and puniſheth them, as it follows. The like Ellipſis of an whole Sentence ſee on Pſal. 1. 6. Or 2. He tryeth and exerciſeth them and their Graces by Afflictions, or he corrects them for their Sins; which is oft called trying, as Pſal. 66. 10. Zech. 13. 9. Jam. 1. 12. 1 Pet. 4. 12. So this is ſpoken by way of conceſſion, and to remove the Offence which ſome men might take at David, whoſe perſon and cauſe they might be apt to condemn becauſe of his troubles. Therefore he ſaith, God tries, (i. e.) chaſtens, even righteous perſons, yet ſtill he loves them, and therefore will in due time deliver them. But as for the wicked, let not them rejoyce in my Tryals, for far worſe things are appointed for them: God hates them, and will ſeverely puniſh them. s By which Character he deſcribes and brands his Enemies, and aggravates their Malice, becauſe they choſe and practiced Violence againſt him, not for any need which they had of it (for David was a moſt peaceable and harmleſs man, and neither pretended nor indeavoured to do any more than to defend himſelf, and that, as far as was poſſible, without the Offence or Injury of any other man) but meerly from their love to Injuſtice and Violence and their implacable Hatred againſt goodneſs and good men. t He hateth with, or from his Soul, (i. e.) inwardly and ardently.

6 * Upon the wicked he ſhall rain u ſnares x, fire, and brimſtone, and || an horrible tempeſt ||: this ſhall be the portion of their * cup y.

u Which notes their original to be extraordinary, and from Gods hand, and withal that they ſhould come plentifully, ſwiftly, and ſuddenly, violently and unavoidably, as Rain commonly doth fall from Heaven. x (i. e.) Grievous Plagues or Judgments which are called Snares here, as alſo Job 18. 9, 10. and 22. 10. Iſa. 8. 14. and 24. 17, 18. Partly becauſe wicked men are oft times ſurprized with them when they leaſt expect them, Luke 21. 35. And partly becauſe they cannot eſcape them, nor get out of them, but are held faſt and deſtroyed by them. || (i. e.) Dreadful Judgments ſo called metaphorically, and by alluſion to the deſtruction of Sodom and other places by theſe means. But this he ſeems to ſpeak not ſo much of preſent and temporal Calamities, as of their future and eternal puniſhments; becauſe he manifeſtly ſpeaks of thoſe miſeries which are peculiar to wicked men; whereas David knew very well both by his own Experience, and by the Hiſtory of Job, and of Iſraels Bondage in Egypt, that all things here came alike to all men, good or bad, Eccleſ. 9. 2. and that good men had many times a greater ſhare of worldly troubles than Gods own people; as David acknowledgeth and complaineth of it, Pſal. 73. y This is their portion, and as it were the meat and drink appointed to them by God. This ſhall certainly and unavoidably be their ſtate or condition; which is oft called a mans part or portion, as Pſal. 15. 5. and 63. 10. and 75. 8. Mat. 24. 51. He alludes to the antient cuſtom of Maſters of Families, or of Feaſts, who uſed to diſtribute the ſeveral portions of Meat to their Domeſticks or Gueſts.

* So this is given as the reaſon why God hateth and puniſheth wicked men ſo dreadfully, becauſe he loves righteouſneſs, and therefore muſt needs hate wickedneſs and puniſh wicked men. Or, But as this Particle is oft rendered. For this ſeems to be added by way of oppoſition to what he now ſaid concerning the ſtate of wicked men. z To wit, with an eye of Approbation, and true and tender Affection, and watchful and gracious Providence; which is oft ſignified by Gods beholding or looking upon men, as Exod. 2. 25. Ezra 5. 5. Pſal. 25. 18. and 33. 18. and 34. 15. &c. As on the contrary God is oft ſaid to hide or turn away his Face, or Eyes from wicked men.

PSAL. XII.

To the chief muſician || upon Sheminith a, A Pſalm of David b.

a The ſame Title is prefixed to Pſal. 6. b This Pſalm was compoſed in the time, and upon the occaſion of Sauls ill Government and his Perſecution of David, and other good men who favoured him.

David being deſtitute of humane Comfort, craveth help of God, 1. He exclaims againſt flattering and deceitful Tongues, 2. and comforteth himſelf with Gods Judgment on them, 3. and aſſureth himſelf of his tryed Mercies to the needy, 4——8.

1 || HElp c LORD, for * the godly d man ceaſeth: for the faithful fail e from among the children of men.

c Or, ſave me and other good men, from the Subtilty and Rage of wicked men. Saul will not help us, and other men cannot help: therefore it is a fit ſeaſon for thee to help. d Or kind, or merciful, as this word is oft uſed, as Pſal. 30. 5. and 31. 24. and 86. 2. q. d. I and my Friends are ſorely and cauſeleſly perſecuted, baniſhed from our Homes and Friends, and which is worſt of all, from Gods Sanctuary, and yet few or none pity us; all Mercy and Humanity is loſt. e Men have loſt not only ſerious Piety, but even common Honeſty in their words and dealings with men.

2 They ſpeak vanity f every one with his neighbour: * with flattering lips, and with † a double heart g do they ſpeak.

f Or, falſhood, which is a vain thing, and wants the ſolidity of truth. g Pretending one Heart, and that they ſpeak from a kind and upright Heart, when they really have another, even a cruel and deceitful Heart.

3 The LORD ſhall cut off all flattering lips, and the tongue that ſpeaketh † proud things g.

g Or great things, or great words, either bragging or threatning what they will do, and what great things they will effect, to wit, by their Tongues, as they themſelves explain it in the next verſe, which they will uſe ſo cunningly and powerfully that they ſhall not need to uſe their Hands, or ſtrike a Stroke.

4 Who have ſaid, With our tongue will we prevail h, our lips † are our own i: who is Lord over us k?

k By raiſing and ſpreading Slanders and evil Reports concerning him, whereby both Saul will be highly and implacably inrag'd againſt David, and the Hearts of the People alienated from him; which was indeed a very likely way to prevail againſt him, and that by their Tongues only. i (i. e.) At our own diſpoſe to ſpeak what we pleaſe. k Who can controll or reſtrain us? This was not the Language of their Mouths, for they were Iſraelites that owned a God above them, and they were Subjects of Saul, but the Language of their Actions. Scripture oft tells us not only what men do actually ſay, but what they would ſay if they durſt, or what their Actions mean, as Pſal. 94. 7. Mal. 1. 12, 13. and 2. 17. They take as great a liberty in their Speech as if they believed there was no God or Man ſuperiour to them; becauſe neither the fear of God, nor the reverence of Men, can keep them from ſpeaking whatſoever they pleaſe, or what they ſuppoſe makes for their Intereſt.

5 For the oppreſſion of the poor l, for the ſighing of the needy, now m will I ariſe (ſaith the LORD;) I will ſet him in ſafety from him that || puffeth at him n.

l Oppreſſed by Saul through the inſtigation and artifices of his fawning Courtiers. m Speedily, ſooner than they imagine or expect. n (i. e.) From him that deſpiſeth him, and hopeth to deſtroy him with a puff of Breath, or a parcel of Words. See this Phraſe Pſal. 10. 5. Only there it is conſtrued with beth and here with lamed; which may make ſome difference. And the Supplement in our Tranſlation may ſeem to be large, and not neceſſary. And the place is, and may be otherwiſe rendered according to the Hebrew, without any ſuch large Supplement, I will ſet him (to wit, the needy laſt mentioned, ſo it is an Ellipſis of the Pronoun, which is moſt frequent,) in ſafety: he (to wit, the Lord mentioned before)

o Or, ſincere, without the leaſt mixture of Vanity or Falſhood; and therefore ſhall infallibly be fulfilled. This he ſeems to add to anſwer an Objection which might ariſe in ſome mens Minds concerning what was laſt ſaid. You tell us, The Lord ſaith, I will ſet him in ſafety, &c. But ſaying and doing are two things. They are ſo indeed in men, who oft ſpeak raſhly what they cannot perform, and deceitfully what they never intend: But all Gods words are pure from all manner of droſs; from all folly or fraud, or uncertainty; he is holy and true in all his Doctrines, Threatnings, Predictions and Promiſes. p (i. e.) Made of ſuch Earth or Clay as was proper for, and then uſual in that work. 8 The wicked walk on every ſide r, when † the vileſt men s are exalted.

r Which Phraſe may note 1. their great numbers, they fill all places. 2. Their Freedom and Safety, they are not reſtrained nor puniſhed, but go about boldly and ſecurely whither they pleaſe. 3. Their proficiency and ſucceſs, which is ſometimes ſignified by this Verb, as Gen. 26. 13. 1 Sam. 2. 21. Iſa. 40. 31. They grow worſe and worſe, and proſper in and by their Wickedneſs. 4. Their unceſſant and unwearied Induſtry in doing Miſchief to good men. Compare 1 Pet. 5. 8. And this is very fitly here added as another Argument to prevail with God to ariſe to help his poor people who are oppreſſed by wicked men. s Heb. Vileneſſes, (i. e.) all manner of wickedneſs, lying and ſlandering, profaneneſs, oppreſſion, cruelty and the like: Or, vile perſons, the abſtract being put for the concrete, which is frequent, as pride Pſal. 36. 11. for a proud man, and many ſuch like; both comes to one, vile perſons and vile practices were both advanced and incouraged through Sauls Miſgovernment, whereby all the foundations were deſtroyed, as he complained, Pſal. 11. 3. The Hebrew word zolel (whence this zuloth comes) ſignifies firſt a glutton, or drunkard, as Deut. 21. 20. Prov. 23. 21. and thence any vile perſon, as Jer. 15. 19. Lam. 1. 11.

PSAL. XIII.

To the ‖ chief muſician, a pſalm of David.

‖ Or, overſeer.

The occaſion of this Pſalm was Davids deep and long continued Diſtreſſes, from which he prays for Deliverance.

David complaineth to God of his delay to help, 1. and the Enemies triumph, 2. He praying for preventing Grace, 3. profeſſeth his truſt in God, 4. and boaſteth of divine Mercy, 5.

1 HOW long wilt thou forget me, O LORD, for ever a? how long wilt thou * hide thy face b from me?

*Pſ. 69. 17.

a How long wilt thou forget (i. e. neglect or diſregard) me? For ever? b (i. e.) Withdraw thy favour and aſſiſtance.

2 How long ſhall I take counſel in my ſoul c; having ſorrow in my heart daily? how long ſhall mine enemy be exalted over me?

c How long ſhall I be in ſuch perplexities and anxieties of Mind, not knowing what courſe to take, nor how to get out of my Troubles.

3 Conſider and hear me, O LORD my God: * lighten mine eyes d, leſt I ſleep the ſleep of death e; d Either 1. Becauſe I find my Counſel inſufficient, v. 2. do thou enlighten my mind, and guide me by thy Counſel and Spirit into the right way of obtaining thy Mercy and Help. So this Phraſe is uſed Pſal. 19. 8. Eph. 1. 18. Or 2. Do thou revive and comfort, and deliver me from the darkneſs of Death, which is ready to come upon me and to cloſe mine Eyes. Nothing is more common than to expreſs great Dangers and Calamities by Darkneſs, and great Comforts and Deliverances by Light, as Job 15. 22. and 17. 13. and 30. 26. and by an enlightning of the Eyes, as Ezra 9. 8. Compare Prov. 15. 30. and 29. 13. e (i. e.) Leſt I ſink under my burthen and dye; for Death is oft called a Sleep in Scripture, as Job 3. 13. and 14. 12. Pſal. 76. 5. John 11. 11.

*Pſ. 38. 10.

4  Leſt mine enemy ſay, I have prevailed againſt him; f and thoſe that trouble me, rejoyce when I am moved g.

* Pſ. 25. 2.

f To wit, by my art or ſtrength; which will reflect diſhonour upon thee, as if thou wert either unfaithful and unmindful of thy Promiſes; or unable to make them good. Therefore repreſs this their Arrogancy and Blaſphemy, and maintain thine own Honour. g Or, ſtumble, or fall, to wit, into Miſchief.

5 But I have truſted in thy mercy h; my heart ſhall rejoyce in thy ſalvation.

h Neither their Threats and Brags, nor my own Dangers ſhall ſhake my Confidence in thy Mercy promiſed to me.

6 I will ſing unto the LORD, becauſe he hath dealt bountifully with me i.

i Either 1. In giving me that ſupport and aſſurance of his favour which for the preſent I enjoy. Or 2. In giving me that Mercy which he hath freely promiſed me: it being a common thing for David and other Prophets to ſpeak of future Deliverances as if they were already come, that ſo they may ſignifie both the infallible certainty of the thing, and their firm aſſurance thereof. But the words may be rendered, When he ſhall have dealt bountifully with me. This Verb properly ſignifies to requite, or reward (as it may be taken here, for there is a reward of Grace, as well as of Debt, Rom. 4. 4.) but here it ſignifies a free and bountiful giving, as it doth alſo Pſal. 119. 17. and 142. 7.

PSAL. XIV.

To the chief muſician, a Pſalm of David.

The deſign of this Pſalm is to deſcribe and bewail the horrible Wickedneſs and Corruption of Mankind, and eſpecially of ungodly Men, and of his own Enemies.

David ſheweth the Atheiſm and Corruption of men, 1—3. He convinceth the wicked by the light of Conſcience, 4—6. and longeth for the Salvation of God, 7.

1 THE * fool a hath ſaid in his heart b, there is no God c: they * are corrupt d, they have done abominable works, there is none e that doeth good f.

* Pſ. 10. 4. & 53. 1. * Rom. 1. 21. &c.

a (i. e.) The wicked man: For ſuch are commonly and juſtly called Fools every where in Scripture, and that purpoſely to meet with their falſe, yet common Conceit of themſelves, as if they were the only wiſe men, and all others were Fools. b (i. e.) In his ſecret Thoughts, or within himſelf, being afraid and aſhamed to utter it with his mouth. Not that it was his fixed and conſtant Opinion and Judgment, but this he ſaith by Conſtruction, becauſe he heartily wiſheth there were no God, and lives as if there were none. So this Text may be explained by comparing it with Pſal. 36. 1. and Tit. 1. 16. c He denies not Gods Being or Exiſtence, but only his Providence. He ſaith not, there is no Jehovah, which name of God notes his being, but no Elohim, which expreſſeth God as the Judge and Governour of the World, who obſerves and recompenſeth all the Actions of all men according to their ſeveral qualities. d Heb. They have corrupted, to wit, themſelves, or their ways, as this word commonly ſignifies. Their great and wilful Wickedneſs is alledged as a ground of their Atheiſm or Infidelity. e To wit, of the Fools here deſcribed. f None of their Actions are really and thoroughly good or pleaſing to God; for if ſome of them be materially good, as when they do an act of Juſtice or Charity, yet they are poiſoned with bad Principles or Ends, not being performed by them out of a good Conſcience, and ſerious Care to pleaſe God, for then they would do one good Action as well as another, but in Hypocriſie, or with vain Glory, or ſome ſiniſter and unworthy deſign.

2 The LORD looked down from heaven g, upon the children of men h, to ſee if there were any that did underſtand, and ſeek God i.

g To ſearch out the Truth. God knoweth all things without any enquiry: But this is a Figure called Anthropopathia, whereby Scripture oft ſpeaks of God after the manner of Men. h Upon the whole Body of the Iſraelitiſh Nation, and upon the generality of Mankind under Heaven; for he ſpeaks of all except his People, and the Righteous ones, who are here oppoſed to theſe, v. 4. 5. i That did truly know God, to wit, ſo as to love, and fear, and truſt, and obey him, (for all theſe are frequently ſignified in Scripture by this Expreſſion of knowing God) and that did diligently ſeek him, (i. e.) Study his Mind and Will that they might do it, and ſeek his Grace and Favour.

3 They are all gone aſide k; they are all together become † filthy l: * there is none that doth good, no not one.

† Heb. ſtinking. * Rom. 3. 10.

k To wit, from God, whom they ſhould have ſought, v. 2. and from the Rule which he hath given them, and by which they ſometimes profeſſed, and ſeem'd to govern themſelves. Or, are grown ſowre, as this word ſignifies, Hoſ. 4. 18. And ſo this is a Metaphor from corrupted Drinks, as the next is taken from rotten Meat. l Heb. ſtinking, (i. e.) loathſom and abominable to God, and to all wiſe and ſober Men.

4 Have all the workers of iniquity no knowledg m? † * who eat up n my people o as they eat bread p, and call not upon the LORD q.

† Heb. the eaters up of my People, eat Bread. * Mic. 3. 3.

m Have they loſt their Wits? have they neither Religion nor common Diſcretion, either of which would teach them not to make themſelves ſo hateful to the all-ſeeing and almighty God, and to all Men? The words may be rendered thus, Do not all the workers of Iniquity know it? So it is only an Ellipſis of the Pronoun, which is frequent, as I have ſhewed before. [illegible] they not Conſcious to themſelves of the Truth of what I ſay? I dare appeal to their own Conſciences. But this I propound with ſubmiſſion. n Or, they eat up, (i. e.) devour and deſtroy, as this word ſignifies, Deut. 7. 16. Prov. 30. 14. Jer. 50. 17. Nah. 3. 15. o (i. e.) The poor and godly Iſraelites, of whom he principally ſpeaks: whom he calleth my people. Either 1. Gods people, as they were in many reſpects: Or rather, 2. Davids people: For David ſpeaks both theſe words, and all the reſt of this Pſalm in his own Name and Perſon. And David might well call them his People, either becauſe they were his Friends and Favourers: Or becauſe he being anointed their King, they were conſequently his People: Or becauſe he was now actually their King, and ſo they were actually his People: For ſome conceive that this Pſalm was made in the time, and upon the occaſion of Abſaloms Rebellion. p (i. e.) With as little regret or remorſe, and with as much greedineſs, and delight, and Conſtancy too, as they uſe to eat their Meat. The Particle as is here underſtood, as it is Pſal. 125. 2. Prov. 26. 9. and in many other places. q They are guilty not only of groſs Injuſtice, and Oppreſſion towards men, but alſo of horrid Impiety and Contempt of God, whoſe Providence they deny, and whoſe Worſhip they wholly neglect and deſpiſe.

5 There r † were they in great fear s: for t God is in the generation of the righteous u.

r (i. e.) In the place, or upon the ſpot, where they practiſed theſe Inſolences, God ſtruck them with a panick fear. Or, Then (i. e.) In the height of their Tyranny and proſperous Impiety, when they ſeemed to have no cauſe for it. An Adverb of Place for an Adverb of Time, of which there want not Examples in Scripture and other Authors, as hath been noted before. Or thence, as this Particle is rendered, Gen. 2. 10. and 49. 24. Iſa. 65. 20. (i. e.) From that time; or, for that Cauſe, as ſome take it, and it may be taken, Job 35. 12. Pſal. 36. 12. (i. e.) For this their contempt of God and manifeſt injury to Men. s From their own guilty Conſciences, and the juſt Expectation of divine Vengeance. Heb. They feared with fear, (i. e.) Vehemently, where there was no cauſe of fear, as is here implied, (for they are now ſuppoſed to be in a State of Power and Tyranny) as is expreſſed in the Parallel place, Pſal. 53. 5. Or, they ſhall be greatly afraid, the paſt Tenſe being put for the future Prophetically. t For they remembred what a potent Adverſary they had, and therefore had cauſe enough to fear. Or, But, as this Particle is taken, Gen. 45. 8. Pſal. 37. 20. Eccleſ. 2. 10. and 6. 2. So he deſcribes the contrary and ſafe Condition of the Righteous. Or, when, as it oft ſignifies, and ſo it Anſwers to the then in the beginning of the Verſe, when God ſhall once appear for his People, a dreadful Horror ſhall ſeize upon their wicked Enemies. u (i. e.) Among them, with his gracious and powerful Preſence to defend them, and to fight againſt their Enemies. Or, God is for, &c. as the Hebrew beth oft ſignifies, that is, God is on their ſide, and therefore their Enemies have great cauſe to tremble.

6 * Ye have ſhamed x the counſel of the poor y; becauſe z the LORD is his refuge.

x (i. e.) Deſired and endeavoured to bring it to ſhame or diſappoint it. Compare Pſal. 6. 10. Or, ye have reproached or derided it, as a fooliſh thing. y (i. e.) The cauſe which he hath taken to defend himſelf, which is not by lying and flattery and violence, and all manner of wickedneſs, which is your Counſel and uſual Practice, but by truſting in God and keeping his way, and calling upon his Name. z This was the ground of their Contempt and Scorn, that he lived by Faith in Gods promiſe and Providence. Or, but, as in the foregoing Verſe. So there ſeems to be an Elegant and fit Oppoſition. You reproach them, but God will own and protect them, and juſtifie their Counſel which you deride.

7 † O that the ſalvation of Iſrael were come out of Zion ‖! when the LORD bringeth back the captivity of his people † Jacob * ſhall rejoyce and Iſrael ſhall be glad.

‖ Theſe words directly and immediately Concern the deliverance of the People of Iſrael out of that ſinful and deplorable Eſtate, in which they now were; which having deſcribed in the Body of the Pſalm, he concludes, after his manner, with a prayer to God to hear and help them out of Zion, where the Ark then was, whence God uſed to hear and Anſwer his Peoples prayers. But ultimately and principally they Deſign a further, even the ſpiritual Redemption and Salvation of all Gods Iſrael by the Meſſias, as may appear by divers Conſiderations; 1. That the Ancient Jews did thus underſtand it, and among others, Jonathan's Targum or Paraphraſe on the Bible, expound it thus: I do not expect Gideon's Salvation, which was but Corporeal, nor that of Sampſon——but the Salvation of the Meſſias. With whom agrees the Targum of Jeruſalem. 2. That the Doctrine of Iſrael's Redemption or Salvation by Chriſt was very well known as to other ancient Patriarchs, John 8. 56. 1 Pet. 1. 10, 11, 12. ſo particularly to David, of whom it is expreſly ſaid, that he knew and foreſaw this Myſtery, Acts 2. 30, 31. in whoſe Book of Pſalms there are divers and very diſtinct and clear Prophecies of it, as we have in part ſeen upon Pſal. 2. and 8. and ſhall ſee more fully and Evidently hereafter. 3. That David and other holy Prophets in the midſt of their ſad Thoughts, and Fears, and Troubles, did uſually Comfort themſelves with the Promiſe and Expectation of the Meſſias, by whom, and by whom alone they ſhould receive that plenary Salvation for which they groaned; of which it is thought we have one inſtance, Gen. 49. 18. but we have many unqueſtionable Inſtances in the Prophecy of Iſaiah, as Ch. 7. 14. and 9. 6. &c. And this Courſe might be the more ſeaſonable for David, becauſe he ſpeaks here of his Troubles after he was ſetled in his Kingdom, (as may be gathered from the mention of Zion, where the Ark was not till that time) and poſſibly of the ſad and ſinful State of his Kingdom during Abſolom's Rebellion; and therefore finding himſelf ſo ſtrangely diſappointed of that Peace and Happineſs, which he Confidently expected when once he came to the Kingdom, and wiſely and juſtly preſaging that his Children and the following Generations of Iſraelites for the ſame Cauſes were likely to meet with the ſame or greater Calamities than this, he wearieth himſelf with the Expreſſion of his Belief, and deſire of the coming of the Meſſias to ſave his People. 4. To this alſo ſuits the mention of Zion becauſe the Prophets knew and foretold that the Meſſias or Deliverer ſhould firſt come to Zion, and ſhould ſet up his Throne there, and from thence ſend forth his Laws and Edicts to the Gentile World; as is poſſitively affirmed, Pſal. 2. 6. and 110. 2. Iſa. 2. 3. and 59. 20. Compared with Rom. 11. 26. and in many other places. 5. The following words agree only to this time, wherein he ſpeaks of bringing back the Captivity of his people with the univerſal joy of all Jacob and Iſrael; which cannot agree to David's time, wherein there was no ſuch Captivity of the People, but only a Civil war and mutual ſlaughter, which is quite another thing; nor to the time of Iſrael's return from Babylon, when there was no ſuch return of all Iſrael, but only of Judah and Benjamin, and ſome few of the other Tribes, and the joy which the returning Iſraelites then had, was but low and mixed with many Fears and Dangers, and Reproaches; as we ſee in the Books of Ezra and Nehemiah. And therefore they muſt belong to the times of the Meſſias, by whom this Promiſe was fulfilled to the true Iſrael of God, who were brought back from that moſt real and dreadful, though ſpiritual, Captivity of ſin and Satan, as is declared; Luke 4. 18. Eph. 4. 8. and ſhall be litterally accompliſhed to the natural ſeed of Jacob or Iſrael according to the Expectation and belief of all the Jews in their ſeveral Ages, and of moſt Chriſtian Writers. † (i. e.) His Captive people, Captivity, being oft put for Captives, as Deut. 21. 10. and 30. 3. Pſal. 126. 1, 4. Or, his people from Captivity, of which ſee the former Note. * (i. e.) The ſeed or Children of Jacob, as Aaron is named for his Sons, 1 Chron. 12. 27. and 27. 17. and David for his Sons, and the like.

PSAL. XV.

The ARGUMENT.

THE occaſion and time of Compoſing this Pſalm is uncertain: but the Scope of it is plain, which is to give the Character of an holy and happy Man, and to deſcribe the way to true Bleſſedneſs. Wherein this is obſervable, that he is wholly ſilent as to the Ceremonial or Ritual Obſervations of the Law; not that he doth diſown them, or allow the neglect of them, as is manifeſt from David's conſtant Practice, and from many other paſſages, but that he might undeceive the Hypocritical Iſraelites, who laid too great a ſtreſs upon thoſe things, as if the diligent performance thereof would excuſe their wicked Lives, which Error almoſt all the Prophets do obſerve and Condemn in them; and that he might inform the Church of that, and all ſucceeding Ages, that the ſubſtance of Religion did conſiſt in the Practice of true Holineſs and Righteouſneſs.

A Pſalm of David.

David deſcribeth a Citizen of Zion, 1. i. e. He is pure in Heart, 2. Governeth his Tongue, 3. Contemns a vile Perſon, but Honours him that fears God, 4. He is no Uſurer, 5.

1 LORD a, * who ſhall † abide b in thy tabernacle? c who ſhall dwell in thy holy hill d?

* Pſal. 24. 3. &c.

a O thou who art the ſoveraign Lord of this holy Hill and Tabernacle, to whom it belongs to give Laws to it, and to admit or reject Perſons, as thou ſeeſt fit, I beg of thee the reſolution of this important queſtion. And he propoſeth this queſtion to God that the Anſwer coming from him, may have the greater Authority and influence upon mens Conſciences. b Heb. ſojourn, to wit, ſo as to dwell, as it is explained in the next clauſe. Unleſs this clauſe be meant of ſojourning in the Church here, and the next of dwelling in Heaven hereafter. Who ſhall enter thither and abide there, with thy good leave and liking. c (i. e.) In thy Church, either 1. Militant. Who is a true and will be a perſevering Member of this Church? Or, 2. Triumphant, or in Heaven; which is called the true Tabernacle not made with mans hands, Heb. 8. 2. and 9. 11. Revel. 21. 3. d To wit, of Zion, ſo called Pſal. 2. 6. which is oft put for the Church and for Heaven. Who ſhall ſo dwell in thy Church here, as to dwell with thee for ever hereafter in Heaven?

2 * He that walketh uprightly e, and worketh righteouſneſs f, and ſpeaketh the truth ‖ in his heart g?

* Iſa. 33. 15.

e Or perfectly, or ſincerely, without guile or Hypocriſie, Loving, Worſhipping and ſerving God, and loving his Neighbour not in word and ſhew only, but in truth and reality; and this conſtantly, and in the whoſe courſe of his Life, as walking implies. f Maketh it his work and buſineſs to do juſtly, (i. e.) to give to every one his due, firſt to God, and then to men; for the words are general, and not reſtrained to either. g His words and profeſſions to God and men, agree with and proceed from the thoughts and purpoſes of his Heart.

3 He that back bites not with his tongue h, nor doeth evil i to his neighbour k, nor ‖ taketh up l a reproach againſt his neighbour.

‖ Or, receiveth, Or, endureth, Exod. 23. 1.

h He doth not take away or diminiſh his Neighbours good name, either by denying him his due praiſes, or by laying any thing to his Charge falſely or without ſufficient cauſe and Evidence. i (i. e.) Any hurt or injury. k (i. e.) To any man; as is evident, 1. from the Nature of this precept which reacheth to all, it being plain and certain, that both by Laws of Nature and of Moſes, it was not lawful to do evil to any man, except where God the Soveraign commanded it, as he did to the Canaanites and Amalekites. 2. From the Scripture uſage of this word Neighbour, which frequently ſignifies every man, though a ſtranger or an heathen, as appears from Gen. 29. 4. Exod. 20. 16, 17. Levit. 18. 20. and 19. 15, &c. Prov. 25. 8, 9. Luke 10. 29, &c. Mat. 5. 43, 44. And he uſeth this word, Neighbour, becauſe he who is ſtrictly ſo is moſt within our reach, and moſt liable to the injuries which one man doth to another. l To wit, into his Lips or Mouth, which is underſtood here, as alſo Exod. 20. 7. Job 4. 2. and fully expreſſed: Pſal. 16. 4 and 50. 16. (i. e.) Doth not raiſe it, though that may ſeem to be included in the firſt Clauſe, that Back-biteth not: Or, doth not ſpread and propagate it; which men are too prone and ready to do; and which makes that a publick, which before was but a private injury and miſchief. Or, nor taketh or receiveth, (i. e.) Entertaineth it cheerfully and greedily, as men uſually do ſuch things, and eaſily believeth it without ſufficient reaſon. See Exod 23. 1. Levit. 19. 16. Or, nor beareth or endureth, as this phraſe ſignifies, Pſal. 69. 7. Ezek. 36. 15. He doth not ſuffer another to defame him without ſome rebuke or ſignification of his diſlike, Prov. 25. 23.

4 In whoſe eyes m a vile perſon n is contemned o; but he honoureth p them that fear the LORD: he that ſweareth q to his own hurt r, and changeth not s?

m (i. e.) In whoſe Judgment and Eſtimation. n (i. e.) One that deſerves Contempt, an ungodly or wicked Man, as appears from the next clauſe: where he that feareth God is oppoſed to him. o Or, deſpiſed, notwithſtanding all his Wealth and Glory, and Greatneſs. He doth not admire his Perſon, nor envy his Condition, nor court him with flatteries, nor value his Company and Converſation, nor approve of or comply with his Courſes, but he thinks meanly of him, he judgeth him a moſt miſerable man, and a great object of Pity, he abhors his wicked practices, and labours to make ſuch ways Contemptible and hatefull to all men, as far as it lyes in his power.

But this contempt of wicked men muſt be ſo managed as not to cauſe a contempt of juſt Authority, which if it be lodged in a wicked hand, doth Challenge not only Obedience, but alſo Honour and Reverence; as is manifeſt from the Precepts and Examples of Chriſt and of his Apoſtles, who charge this upon the Chriſtians, every where, although the Magiſtrates of thoſe times were unqueſtionably, vile and wicked men. See Acts 23. 5. Rom. 13. 1 Pet. 5. 13,&c. p (i. e.) He highly eſteemeth and heartily loveth them, and ſheweth great reſpect and kindneſs to them, though they be mean and obſcure as to their worldly Condition, and though they may differ from him in ſome Opinions or practices of leſſer moment. q To wit, a promiſſory Oath, engaging them by ſolemn Oath, to do ſomething which may be beneficial to his Neighbour. r (i. e.) To his own damage or prejudice. As if a man ſolemnly ſwear by the name of the great God, that he will ſell him ſuch an Eſtate at a price below the full worth; Or that, he will give a poor Man ſuch a Sum of Mony, which when afterwards he comes to review and Conſider, he finds it very inconvenient and burdenſom to him, where he is tempted to break his Oath. s To wit, his purpoſe or Courſe, but continues firm and reſolved to perform his promiſe, and Sacrificeth his intereſt and profit to his Conſcience, and the Reverence of God and of an Oath. See Ezek. 17, 18, 19.

* Exod. 22. 25. Lev. 25. 36. Deut. 23. 19. Ezek. 18 8. & 22. 12. Deut. 16. 19. * Exod. 23. 8.

5 * He that putteth not out his money to uſury t, * or taketh reward u againſt the innocent. He that doth theſe things x, ſhall never be moved y.

t In ſuch manner as is contrary to God's law: Of which ſee in, Exod. 22. 25. Levit. 25. 36, 37. u Or, a bribe from him who hath a bad cauſe; that he may either condemn the innocent or acquit the guilty: Both which God abhorreth. x Here enumerated, and ſuch things as naturally and neceſſarily flow from them, or are a-kin to them, and joyned with them. y He ſhall conſtantly perſevere in Gods Church here, and though he may be ſhaken, and ſtagger and fall, yet he ſhall never wholly and finally be removed or fall away from it, nor from that happineſs, which was propoſed and promiſed to him, but ſhall abide with God here, and go to him when he dies and be for ever with the Lord.

PSAL. XVI.

||Or, a golden Pſalm of David.

|| Michtam a of David.

a Divers render this word, a Golden Pſalm, becauſe of the preciouſneſs and excellency of the matter of it; for it Treats of Chriſt's Death and Reſurrection. But becauſe this Title is prefixed to Pſal. 56, 57, 58, 59, 60. wherein there is no ſuch peculiar Excellency, it may ſeem rather to be a Title belonging to the Muſick or the Song, which, with the reſt, is now loſt and unknown. It is a great queſtion among Expoſitors, in whoſe Name and Perſon he ſpeaketh this Pſalm, whether his own or Chriſt's. It ſeems hard to exclude David's Perſon, to whom almoſt the whole Pſalm properly and literally belongs, and to whom ſome parts of it do more conveniently belong than to Chriſt: And ſome parts of it do peculiarly belong to Chriſt, of whom it is expounded by the two great Apoſtles, Peter and Paul, Acts 2. 25. and 13.35. And yet it ſeems probable by the contexture of the Pſalm, and the coherence of the ſeveral Verſes together, that the whole Pſalm ſpeaks of one and the ſame Perſon. But becauſe David was a mixt Perſon, being both a Member, and an eminent Type, of Chriſt, he may without any inconvenience be thought to ſpeak of himſelf ſometimes in the one and ſometimes in the other Capacity, to paſs from the one to the other. And therefore having ſpoken of himſelf as a Believer or Member of Chriſt, in the former part of the Pſalm, he proceeds to conſider himſelf as a Type of Chriſt, and having Chriſt in his Eye, and being inſpired by the Holy Ghoſt with the knowledge and Contemplation of Chriſt's Paſſion and Reſurrection, towards the cloſe of the Pſalm he ſpeaks ſuch things, as though they might be accommodated to himſelf in a very imperfect, obſcure, and improper Sence, yet could not truly, literally, and properly, fully and compleatly, belong to any but to Chriſt, to whom therefore they are juſtly appropriated in the New Teſtament.

David diſtruſting his own Merit, and hating Idolatry, fleeth to God for Preſervation, 1—4. He ſheweth the Hope in Life and Death, 5—9. Of the Reſurrection and Everlaſting Life, 10—11.

1 PReſerve me b O God: for in thee do I put my truſt c.

b From all mine Enemies. c Therefore thou art in Honour and by Promiſe obliged not to deceive my Truſt.

*Pſal.16.2. *Job 22.2. & 35. 7. Pſal.50.9. Rom. 11. 35.

2 * O my ſoul d, thou haſt ſaid e unto the LORD, Thou art my Lord f: * my goodneſs g extendeth not to thee h; d Which words are fitly underſtood: For it is manifeſt he ſpeaks to one Perſon of another. And it is uſual with David to turn his Speech to his Soul, as Pſal. 42. 6. and 43. 5. e Thou haſt oft times avowed and profeſſed it, and doſt ſtill perſiſt to do ſo. f By Creation and preſervation and otherwiſe; to whom I owe all Service and Obedience upon that account. g Whatſoever Piety or Vertue, or Goodneſs is in me, or is done by me. h (i. e.) Doth not add any thing to thy Felicity, for thou doſt not need me nor my Service, nor art capable of any advantage from it: Or, is not for thee, as this word is uſed, Gen. 16. 5. 2 Sam. 1. 26. (i. e.) For thy uſe or Benefit. Or, is not upon thee, (i. e.) It lays no Obligation upon thee, as this very word is taken, Judg. 19. 20. Pſal. 56. 12. Ezek. 45.17. All comes to the ſame thing. The Sence is, God is al-ſufficient and infinitely happy, and the Author of all the good that is in, or is done by any of his Creatures; and therefore cannot prevent nor oblige God any further, than he is graciouſly pleaſed to oblige himſelf. Thus he renounceth all Opinion of merit, and though he urged his truſt in God, as a motive to perſwade God to preſerve him, v. 1. yet he here declares that he did not do it, as thinking that God was indebted to him for it.

3 But i to the Saints that are in the Earth k, and to the excellent l in whom is all my delight m.

i (i. e.) But my goodneſs extendeth, which is eaſily underſtood out of the former Verſe: From which alſo there may be fetched another Supplement. O my ſoul, thou haſt ſaid, to the Saints, &c. k (i. e.) To thoſe holy and righteous Perſons that live upon Earth with me: To theſe only or principally my goodneſs is extended. Becauſe I cannot reach thee, I endeavour to pay a ſingular Reſpect and Love, and Kindneſs to all Saints, for thy ſake whoſe Friends and Servants they are, and whoſe image they bear. This may ſeem more properly to agree to David, than to Chriſt, whoſe goodneſs was principally deſigned for, and imparted to Sinners, and did not find men Saints, but make them ſo; nor was it confined to them, that lived with him upon the Earth, but extended to all the Believers of all Ages before and after him. l Or, the magnificent, or mighty, or honourable, to wit, the Saints, as he now called them, whom, becauſe they were mean and deſpicable in the Eyes of the World, he honours with their juſt Titles, and by appropriating them to the Saints he ſufficiently intimates that all other men how great ſoever, are but ignoble and vile Perſons, as he had called them, Pſal. 15. 4. m (i. e.) Whoſe Company and Converſation is moſt Pleaſant and deſirable to me. Compare Pſal. 119. 63.

|| Or, give gifts to another. * Joſh.23. 7.

4 Their ſorrows ſhall be multiplied that || haſten after another God n: their drink offerings o of blood p will I not offer, * nor take up their names q into my lips.

n Or, that preſent, or endow (as this Verb ſignifies, Exod. 22. 16.) another God, to wit, with Oblations, as it follows. God is not expreſſed in the Hebrew text, but ſeems fitly and neceſſarily to be underſtood, becauſe of the following Offerings, which are made to none that is not either really or by Reputation a God. The Senſe is, Idolaters, notwithſtanding all their zeal or coſt about their Idols, gain nothing to themſelves, but abundance of ſorrow and miſery. This he mentioneth partly as one Reaſon, why he would have no fellowſhip with them in their Idolatrous worſhip, which he adds in this Verſe: and partly that by this Compariſon he might illuſtrate and commend his own Happineſs, in having the Lord for his Portion, of which he ſpeaks, v. 5. 6. Or thus, let their ſorrows be multiplied, &c. Having ſhewed his great Reſpect and Affection to the Saints, and excellent Servants of the true God, he now declares what an abhorrency he had for thoſe that forſake the true God, and worſhip Idols. To whom he wiſheth increaſe of their ſorrows, whereby they may either be awakened and converted to the Lord again, or may be cut off; if they be impenitent and incorrigible. o Under which he comprehends all their Offerings, the reaſon being for Subſtance the ſame in all: but he mentions theſe particularly, becauſe of a ſpecial Corruption in them above their other Sacrifices, to wit, that the very matter of them was unlawful, as we ſhall ſee: Which alſo might ſerve both to convince and deter thoſe Iſraelites which hearkened after Idolatry, and made no Conſcience of maintaining Communion with Idolaters, which was the Caſe of many of them in Saul's time; and to juſtifie himſelf for his Deteſtation of them, and of all fellowſhip with them. p In which the Gentiles uſed (as divers learned men have obſerved) to Offer and ſometimes to drink part of the Blood of their Sacrifices, whether of Beaſts or of Men, as either of them were Sacrificed. Which muſt needs be very hateful to God, becauſe he had ſo ſeverely forbidden the drinking of Blood to his people either at their Sacrifices, or in their common Food. q (i. e.) Of thoſe other Gods mentioned before. I abhor the very name and memory of them. Not that he thought it unlawful to name theſe Idols, which is frequently done by holy Propheſs, but to expreſs the odiouſneſs of the thing by his loathing of the very name and ſhadow of them. Compare Exod. 23. 13. Deut. 12. 3. Hoſ. 2. 16, 17. Eph. 5. 3. Or the Senſe is, I will not ſwear by them: For taking up ones name is uſed for ſwearing, Exod. 20. 7.

* Deut. 32.9. Pſal. 73. 26. & 142. 5. Lam.2.24. † Heb. of my part.

5 * The LORD is the portion † of mine inheritance r, and of my cups s: thou maintaineſt my lot t.

r Or, of my diviſion, (i. e.) Of that inheritance which God hath mercifully divided, or diſtrubuted to me, and which I by his grace have choſen for my ſelf. I envy not the vaſt Riches and Glory of Idolaters, but do heartily rejoyce in God as my portion, and deſire no better nor no other Felicity. God who hath ſuffered other Nations to walk in their own Idolatrous ways, hath granted this favour to me, to know and worſhip him the only true God. And as other Nations have choſen, and do adhere to their falſe Gods, ſo have I choſen God and will cleave to him. s The ſame thing repeated in other words. The portion of my Cup, is the portion which is put into my Cup, as the ancient manner was in feaſts, where each had his portion of Meat, and of Wine allotted to him. See Pſal. 11. 6. The Cup oft denotes a Mans portion or Condition, as Mat. 20. 22. and 26. 39. t (i. e.) My inheritance divided to me by lot, as the Cuſtome then was, Joſ. 18. 11. Judg. 1. 3. q. d. As thou haſt given me an excellent lot, having planted me among thine own People, and in that place which thou haſt choſen for thy dwelling and worſhip, ſo, I doubt not, thou williſt uphold and preſerve me there, in ſpight of all the malicious deſigns of mine enemies that ſeek to drive me hence.

* Joſh. 17.5 Heb. Pſal. 78. 55. Mic.2.4,5.

6 * The lines u are fallen unto me in pleaſant places x; yea, I have a goodly heritage.

u (i. e.) My poition, which was meaſured with lines. Compare Joſ. 17. 5. Deut. 32. 9. x In a ſweet land flowing with Milk and Honey, and above all bleſſed with the Preſence and Knowledge, and Service of the true God.

7 I will bleſs the LORD, who hath given me counſel y; my reins z alſo inſtruct me a in the night-ſeaſons b.

y Heb. conſulted for me, (i. e.) By his wiſe and gracious Counſel hath provided ſo good an heritage for me, and withal inſpired that Counſel and Wiſdom into me, by which I have choſen the Lord for my portion, and am ſo fully ſatisfied with him. z (i. e.) My inward thoughts and affections (which are commonly ſignified by the Reins, as Pſal. 7. 9. and 26.2. and 73.21. and 139.13. Jer. 11.20. and 12.2. and 17. 10.) being inſpired and moved by the holy Spirit. a (i. e.)

Direct me what courſe to take, how to pleaſe and ſerve God, and to put my whole Truſt and Confidence in him, as it follows. b Not only in the day time, but alſo in the night, when others are aſleep, but my mind is working upon God, and the things of God, and improving the ſilence and leaſure, and ſolitude of the night to holy Meditations, and the exciting of my affections towards God.

8 * I have ſet the LORD always before me c: becauſe * he is at my right hand d, I ſhall not be moved e.

c (i. e.) I have always preſented him to my mind, as my Rule and Scope, as my Witneſs and Judge, as my Patron and Protector in the diſcharge of my Office, and in all my Actions. Hitherto David ſeems to have ſpoken in his own Perſon, and with ſpecial reſpect to himſelf, but now he ſeems to have been tranſported by an higher Inſpiration of the Spirit of Prophecy, and to be carried above himſelf, and to have an Eye to the man Chriſt Jeſus, who is and was the end of the Law, and the great Scope of all the Prophets, and to ſpeak of himſelf only as a Type of Chriſt, and with more ſpecial reſpect unto Chriſt, in whom this and the following Verſes were much more truly and fully accompliſhed than in himſelf. Chriſt as man did always ſet his Fathers will and Glory before him, as he himſelf oft declareth, eſpecially in St. John's Goſpel. d To wit, to ſtrengthen me, (for the right hand is the chief ſeat of a Man's ſtrength, and Inſtrument of Action,) to Protect, aſſiſt and Comfort me, as this Phraſe ſignifies, Pſal. 109. 31. and 110. 5. And this aſſiſtance of God was neceſſary to Chriſt as man. e Or, removed, either from the diſcharge of my Duty, or from the attainment of that Glory and Happineſs which is prepared for me. Though the Archers ſhoot grievouſly at me, and both men and Devils ſeek my Deſtruction, and God ſets himſelf againſt me as an Enemy, withdrawing his favour from me and filling me with deadly ſorrows, through the Sence of his anger; yet I do not deſpair but am aſſured that God will deliver me out of all my Diſtreſſes.

9 Therefore f my heart g is glad, and my glory h rejoyceth i: my fleſh alſo ſhall † reſt k in hope l.

f Upon this ground and Confidence. g The proper ſeat of joy and of all the Affections. h Either 1. my ſoul, which is indeed the Glory of a man. Or rather 2. my Tongue, which alſo is a mans Glory and Priviledge, above all other living Creatures, and the Inſtrument of glorifying both God and man; and which is oft called a mans Glory, as Gen. 49. 6. Pſal. 30. 12. and 57. 8. and 108. 1. and 149. 5. And ſo this very word is tranſlated, Acts 2. 26. And thus the diſtinction between Heart and Glory, and Fleſh is more certain and evident. i Or, exulteth, (i. e.) Declares or expreſſeth my inward joy. For this Verb ſignifies not ſo much internal joy, as the outward and viſible Demonſtrations of it, in Words or Geſtures and Carriages. k (i. e.) My body ſhall quietly and ſweetly reſt in the Grave, to which I am haſtening. l (i. e.) In confident aſſurance of its Incorruption there, and of its Reſurrection to a bleſſed and immortal Life, as it is explained v. 10, 11. The fleſh or body is in it ſelf, but a dead and ſenceleſs lump of clay, yet Hope is here aſcribed to it figuratively, as it is to the brute Creatures, Rom. 8. 19. becauſe there is Matter and Foundation for ſuch hope, if it were capable of it, the good promiſed and expected being certainly future.

10 * For thou will not leave my ſoul m in hell n; neither wilt thou ſuffer thine holy One o to ſee corruption p.

m (i. e.) My Perſon, as this word is every where uſed, by a Synecdoche of the part, and then the Perſon by another Synecdoche of the whole is put for the Body. The ſoul is oft put for the Body, either for the living Body, as Pſal. 35. 13. and 105. 18. or for the Carkaſs or dead Body, as it is taken, Levit. 9.28. and 21. 1. Numb. 5. 2. and 6. 6, 9, 11. and 9, 10. and 19. 11, 13. And ſo it is interpreted in this very place, as it is produced, Acts 2. 29, &c. and 13. 36, 37. n (i. e.) In the Grave or ſtate of the Dead, as appears, 1. From the Hebrew word Scheol, which is very frequently ſo underſtood, as is undeniably evident from Gen. 42. 38. Numb. 16. 30. Job 14. 13. Compare with 17. 13. Pſal. 18. 5. and 30. 3. and 141. 7. Eccleſ. 9. 10. Ezek. 32. 21, 27. Jonah 2. 2. and many other places. 2. From the following clauſe of this Verſe. 3. From Acts 2. and 13. where it is ſo expounded and applied. o (i. e.) Me thy holy Son, whom thou haſt ſanctified and ſent into the World. It is peculiar to Chriſt, to be called the holy one of God, Mark 1. 24. Luke 4. 34. p Or Rottenneſs, (i. e.) To be corrupted or putrified in the Grave, as the Bodies of others are. Seeing is oft put for perceiving by experience. In which Sence men are ſaid to ſee good, Pſal. 34. 13. and to ſee Death, or the Grave, Pſal. 89. 48. Luke 2. 26. John 8. 51. and to ſee ſleep, Eccleſ. 8. 16. And the Hebrew word Shochath, though ſometimes by a Metonymy it ſignifies the Pit or place of Corruption, yet properly and generally it ſignifies Corruption or Perdition, as Job 17. 14. and 33. 18, 30. Pſal. 35. 7. and 55. 23. Jonah 2. 6. and is ſo rendered by the ſeventy Jewiſh Interpreters, Pſal. 107. 20. Prov. 28. 10. Jer. 13. 14. and 15. 3. Lament. 4. 20. Ezek. 19. 4. and 21. 31. And ſo it muſt be underſtood here, although ſome of the Jews to avoid the force of this Argument render it the Pit. But in that Sence it is not true, for, whether it be meant of David, as they ſay, or of Chriſt, it is confeſſed that both of them did ſee the Pit, (i. e.) Were laid in the Grave. And therefore it muſt neceſſarily be taken in the other Sence now mentioned; and ſo it is properly and literally true in Chriſt alone, although it may in a lower and Metaphorical Sence be applied to David, who had a juſt and well grounded Confidence, that altho' God might bring him into great Dangers and Diſtreſſes, which are called the ſorrows of Death, and the pains of Hell, Pſal. 116. 3. yet God would not leave him to Periſh in or by them.

11 Thou wilt ſhew me q the path of life r: * in thy preſence s is fulneſs of joy t, at thy right hand u there are pleaſures for evermore.

q (i. e.) Give me an exact and experimental knowledge of it for my own Comfort, and the benefit of my People. r (i. e.) The way that leadeth to Life, not to a temporal and mortal Life here, for he is ſuppoſed to be dead and buried, v. 10. But to an endleſs and immortal, and bleſſed Life after death in the preſence of God, as it followeth; the way to which is by the Reſurrection of the Body. So the Sence is, Thou wiltſt raiſe me from the Grave, and Conduct me to the place and ſtate of everlaſting Felicity. s Heb. With or before thy face. (i. e.) In that heavenly Paradiſe, where thou art graciouſly and glorioully preſent, where thou doſt clearly and fully diſcover thy Face, and the light of thy Countenance; whereas in this Life thou hideſt thy Face and ſheweſt us only thy Back-parts, and we are in a ſtate of abſence from thee, and ſee thee only through a Glaſs darkly, and enjoy thee but in part. t (i. e.) Full and perfect joy and Satisfaction, which it is in vain to expect in this Life, and is only to be found in the ſight of thee. See Exod. 33. 14. Pſal. 17. 15. Mat. 5. 8. 1 John 3. 2. u Which he mentions as a place of greateſt Honour, as this was Gen. 48. 13, &c. 1 Kings 2. 19. Pſal. 45. 9. and the place where the Elect and Saints are placed at the laſt day, Mat. 25. 33, &c. and laſtly, at the place where Chriſt himſelf is ſaid to ſit, Pſal. 110. 1. Mat. 26. 64. Col. 3. 1. Heb. 1. 3. x Everlaſting delights in the Contemplation and fruition of God.

PSAL. XVII.

A prayer of David a.

a David being now grievouſly perſecuted and diſtreſſed by Saul and other Enemies, and being alſo beſpattered with many Calumnies, he appeals to the heart-ſearching God, makes a ſolemn Proteſtation of his integrity, earneſtly begs of God protection and Deliverances, and being made weary of this Life, by his preſſing and manifold Calamities, he Comforts himſelf with the Contemplation and hope of an happier Life.

David in confidence of his Integrity, 1—6. prayeth to God for defence againſt his Enemies, 7—9. He ſheweth their Pride, Craft, and Eagerneſs to make a Prey of the Innocent, 10—12. And prayeth againſt them in confidence of his hope, 13—15.

1 HEar † the right b, O LORD, attend unto my cry c; give ear unto my prayer that goeth † not out of feigned lips d.

b Heb. righteouſneſs, (i. e.) Me who, notwithſtanding all their Accuſations and ſlaunders, am righteous; Or, my righteous cauſe; do thou take notice of it and give Sentence for me: or my righteous Prayer. I deſire nothing that is unreaſonable or unjuſt, but that thou wouldeſt judge righteouſly between me and mine Enemies, and vindicate thine own Honour, and faithfulneſs in making good thy Promiſe to me; which thy righteouſneſs obliges thee to do. c (i. e.) My fervent Prayer attended with ſtrong Cries. d Heb: not with deceitful lips, which ſpeak one thing when my Heart knoweth and deſigneth another. And this profeſſion of his ſincerity in his Words, doth fitly make way for his ſolemn appeal to God in the following Verſes.

2 Let my ſentence e come forth from thy preſence f: let thine eyes * behold the things that are equal g. *Pſal. 11. 5

e Heb. my right or judgment, (i. e.) Judgment in my cauſe, or on my behalf. f (i. e.) From thee, and from thy tribunal to which I bring my cauſe. Do not ſuſpend or delay it, but ſpeedily examine my cauſe and give Sentence in it. g Or, Right. For though I deſire and need thy Grace and Favour in many other Reſpects, yet I beg only thy juſtice in this cauſe between me and them.

3 Thou haſt proved h mine heart, thou haſt viſited me i in the night k, * thou haſt tried me l, and ſhalt find nothing m: I * am purpoſed n that my mouth ſhall not tranſgreſs o.

* Job 23. 10.
Pſal. 26. 2.
Mal. 3. 2, 3.
1 Pet. 1. 7.
*Pſal. 39. 1

h Or ſearched or tried it, by many and ſore Temptations and Afflictions, whereby the ſincerity or hypocriſie of mens hearts are eaſily and commonly diſcovered, and eſpecially by thy all-ſeeing Eye. And that is my great Comfort, that thou art Witneſs of my innocency. i Thou haſt made an inſpection and enquiry into my Heart. k Either 1. Metaphorically, (i. e.) in the time of Trouble. Or, 2. properly; when mens minds being freed from the incumbrance and diſtraction of Buſineſs, and from the Preſence and Society of men (Which either lays a reſtraint upon them, or tempts them to uſe Diſſimulation,) do act moſt vigorouſly and freely, either upon Good or Evil, according to their ſeveral inclinations. l Accurately and ſeverely, as Gold-ſmiths do Metals. m (i. e.) Nothing of unrighteouſneſs, in Heb. ſhalt not find, To wit, that whereof mine Enemies accuſe me, namely Hypocriſie towards thee, and evil Deſign againſt Saul, covered under fair Pretences, as they alledge. So this general Phraſe is to be limited from the Context, as other generals moſt frequently are. For he was far from thinking himſelf Sinleſs, that he often acknowledgeth his many and great ſins, and particularly, that, if God ſhould enter into Judgment with him, and be ſevere to mark iniquities, no living man could be juſtified, Or, ſtand before him, Pſal. 130. 3. and 143. 2. n Or, I have reſolved upon Deliberation, as the word implies. o I am ſo far from practiſing againſt Saul's Life, as they charge me, that I will not wrong him ſo much as in a Word. Some joyn theſe Words with the next foregoing, and render the place thus, That which I have thought, my mouth ſhall not tranſgreſs, or rather, hath not tranſgreſſed; (i. e.) My Thoughts and Words always agree together. I abhor falſhood and Diſſimulation.

4 Concerning the works of men p, by the word of thy lips q, I have kept me from r the paths s of the deſtroyer t.

p Concerning my care and Caution about my Words, I have now ſpoken v. 3. now I may ſay the like concerning my works. As for the works which men generally Practice. Or, Becauſe of (as the prefix, Lamed is oft uſed, as Gen. 2. 23. Numb. 16. 34. Jer. 4. 31. and 22. 10. and 23. 9.) The works of men. So the Sence may be this, Obſerving and conſidering the quality of the Works of the men of this Age, with whom I converſe, or of all mankind, ſome few excepted, conſidering, I ſay, how wicked and unreaſonable and pernicious they are, not only to others, but alſo to themſelves; I was reſolved to take more care in the ordering of my own Actions. q (i. e.) By the help of thy bleſſed Word and the excellent Rules, Promiſes and Threatnings thereof, which by deep and frequent Meditation I have hid and fixed in mine Heart, as the beſt Antidote againſt ſin and temptation, Pſal. 119. 9, 11. r So the ſame Verb is uſed with the like Supplement, Joſ. 6. 18. which alſo is in a manner included in the Verb. Or, I have obſerved, to wit, ſo as to avoid them. s Or, ways, (i. e.) The Cuſtoms and Practices, or the imitation of them; as may be gathered from the next Verſe, where he prays to be kept in Gods paths, which are oppoſed to theſe paths. t Or, of the violent Man: Such as Saul and his Courtiers and Soldiers have ſhewed themſelves towards me. Although their rage and violence againſt me, might have tempted me to have repayed them in their own Coyn, yet I forbore it, and ſpared both others, and Saul himſelf when his Life was at my Mercy, 1 Sam. 24. and 26. and this I did in obedience to thy Word, which required me to Honour and preſerve the Lords Anointed.

5 Hold up my goings in thy paths u that my footſteps † ſlip not x.

u As by thy Word and Grace thou haſt hitherto kept me from the paths of evil men, and led me into thy paths, ſo, I pray thee, enable me by the ſame means to perſevere in thy ways, and in mine abhorrency of wicked courſes. x That I may not fall into that ſin of revenging my ſelf upon Saul, to which I may be more and more tempted, nor into any other ſin, whereby thou mayſt be provoked, or men may be offended, and Religion diſgraced.

6 I have called upon thee y, for thou wilt hear me, O God z: incline thine ear unto me, and hear my ſpeech.

y It hath been and ſtill is, and ſhall be my conſtant courſe, to apply my ſelf to thee for aſſiſtance and for deliverance. z For though thou mayſt delay for a ſeaſon, I am well aſſured that thou wiltſt hear and anſwer me.

*Pſ. 31. 21

‖ Or, that ſaveſt them which truſt in thee, from thoſe that riſe up againſt thy right hand.

7 * Shew thy marvellous loving kindneſs a, O thou ‖ that ſaveſt by thy right hand b, them which put their truſt in thee c, from thoſe that riſe up againſt them d.

a To wit, in preſerving and delivering me: which, if thou doſt, I muſt ever acknowledge it to be an Act of kindneſs, or free Grace, or undeſerved bounty, yea and of marvellous kindneſs, becauſe of my extream and preſſing Dangers, out of which nothing but a wonder of Gods mercy and power can ſave me. b (i. e.) By thy great power. c Or, in it, (i. e.) In thy right Hand, as was now expreſſed. Or, becauſe of (as the Hebrew prefix Mem oft ſignifies, as Pſal. 12. 6. and elſewhere) thoſe that exalt themſelves, (as this word ſignifies, Job 20. 27. and 27. 7. Pſal. 59. 1.) not only againſt me, but againſt thee who haſt engaged and declared thy ſelf for me. So this Prayer is like that Pſal. 66. 7. Let not the rebellious exalt themſelves. But this place is otherwiſe tranſlated in the Margent of our Bibles, with which divers others, both Antient and latter Interpreters agree, and that more agreeably to the order of the words in the Hebrew Text, O thou that ſaveſt (or uſeſt to ſave) them which truſt in thee (or, as the Hebrew word may be properly rendred without any Supplement, believers) from thoſe that riſe up againſt thy right hand, (i. e.) Either againſt thy mighty power, which thou haſt already ſhewed in my wonderful preſervation: Or, againſt thy Counſel (which is called Gods hand, Acts 4. 28.) and revealed Will concerning my advancement to the Kingdom, which divers of theſe men did knowingly oppoſe, as may be gathered from 2 Sam. 3. 9, 10. Or, againſt the man (which word is oft underſtood, whereof examples have been given, and more we ſhall have in this Book) of thy right hand, as David is called Pſal. 80. 17. According to this Tranſlation his Prayer is inforced with a double motive, to wit, his truſt in God, and his Enemies oppoſition againſt God.

* Deut. 32. 10. Zech. 2. 8.

* Jer. 41. 8.

14 ‖ From men which are thy hand t, O LORD, from men of the world u, * which have their portion in this life, and whoſe belly x thou filleſt with thy * hid treaſure y: ‖ they are full of children z, and leave the reſt of their ſubſtance to their babes.

t Wherewith thou doſt Correct me. u (i. e.) Who proſper in and ſet their Hearts upon this vain and tranſitory World, and neither have, nor chuſe, or deſire any other Portion or Felicity, as it follows. x (i. e.) Mind or Appetite, as that word is uſed, Job 20. 20. Prov. 20. 30. y (i. e.) Not only with common Mercies, as Food and Raiment, but with thy choiceſt and moſt precious good things, ſuch as men uſe to hide or keep in their treaſures, with extraordinary Wealth and Glory, and all the Delights and Comforts of the preſent Life. z When many of the faithful Servants are barren, theſe are bleſſed with a numerous Poſterity. Or, their Children are filled or ſatisfied as well as their Parents. There is abundantly enough both for them and for their Children, and to ſpare for their Childrens Children, as it follows.

15 As for me a, I will [or ſhall] behold thy face b in righteouſneſs c: I ſhall be ſatisfied d when I awake e with thy likeneſs f.

a I do not envy this their Felicity, but my Hopes and Happineſs are of another Nature. b I do not place my portion in earthly and temporal Treaſures, as they do, but in beholding Gods face, (i. e.) In the enjoyment of Gods preſence and favour; which is indeed enjoyed in part in this Life, but not fully and to Satisfaction, of which David here ſpeaks, as appears from the laſt Clauſe of this Verſe; The ſight of God, and of his face, being frequently ſpoken of, both in the Old and New Teſtament, as a priviledge denied even to the Saints, in this Life and peculiar to the next Life, as is manifeſt from Exod. 33. 20. Judg. 13. 22. Mat. 5. 8. 1 Cor. 13. 12. 2 Cor. 3. 18. 1 John 3. 2. c With the Comfort of a good Conſcience, bearing me Witneſs that, notwithſtanding all the Calumnies and Cenſures of mine Enemies, I have been, and am upright and righteous in the courſe of my Life, both towards thee and towards all men. Which Teſtimony will enable me to look God in the Face with boldneſs, when mine Enemies, being Conſcious to themſelves of groſs and manifold unrighteouſneſs towards thee and me, and others, will be afraid to appear in thy Preſence. d I am now greatly diſtreſſed and diſſatisfied, and mine Enemies are filled and ſatisfied with good things; but my turn will come, the time is coming wherein I ſhall be abundantly ſatisfied, to wit, with beholding thy Face, which is to me more comfortable and ſatisfactory than all the Poſſeſſions of this World. e Either 1. When I ſhall be delivered from my preſent Diſtreſſes and Calamities. But theſe never are in Scripture, nor indeed can fitly be called by the name of Sleep, which is every where ſpoken of as a ſtate of reſt, and quietneſs; as Pſal. 127. 2. John 11. 12, 13. and conſequently deliverance from them, cannot be compared to awaking. Or rather, 2. When I ſhall ariſe from the Dead: For Death is very frequently called Sleep both in Scripture, as 1 Kings 1. 21. Iſa. 26. 19. Jer. 51. 39, 57. Dan. 12. 2. John 11. 11, 13. and in other Authors; and conſequently Reſurrection from the Dead, is juſtly and fitly called an awaking, as it is Job 14. 12. Dan. 12. 2. John 11. 11. And ſince the Doctrine of the Reſurrection of the Juſt to a bleſſed and endleſs Life was not unknown to the Holy Men of God in the Old Teſtament, as it were very eaſie to prove, nor to David in particular, as appears from Pſal. 16. 10, 11. and from divers other Paſſages, it cannot be imagined but David would Support and Comfort himſelf in his greateſt Agonies, with the Conſideration thereof, this being incomparably the moſt weighty and effectual Argument and ground of Comfort, which he could poſſibly uſe. And this alſo beſt ſuits with the Context; for David is here oppoſing his hopes and portion to that of his Enemies, and having noted, not without a ſecret reflection and reproach upon them for it, that their portion was in this life, v. 14. it was moſt conſonant to the place and to the thing it ſelf, that he ſhould ſeek and have his Happineſs in the future Life. f Or Image. By which may be underſtood either, 1. Chriſt, the Son of God, who was known to David and other Prophets, as is evident, and that under the name of the Son of God, Pſal. 2. 7, 12. Prov. 30. 4. Hoſ. 11. 1. compare with Mat. 2. 15. who being exactly like to his Father, might moſt fitly be called his likeneſs or image, as he is, Heb. 1. 3. Or 2. the Image of God ſtamped upon his glorified Soul; which muſt needs afford him infinite delight and ſatisfaction. Or 3. God himſelf, or the Face of God mentioned in the former Clauſe, and explained here by another Phraſe, as is very uſual in theſe Writings. And this Interpretation may receive ſtrength from Numb. 12. 8. where beholding the ſimilitude of the Lord is evidently the ſame thing, which is elſewhere called ſeeing his face, and from Heb. 10. 1. where the image doth not note the likeneſs or repreſentation, but the truth and exiſtence of the thing.

PSAL. XVIII.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm, with ſome few and ſmall Variations, is written, 2 Sam. 22. It was compoſed by David towards the end of his Reign and Life upon the occaſion here mentioned.

To the chief muſician, a Pſalm of David, the ſervant of the LORD a, who ſpake unto the LORD the words of * this ſong, in the day that the LORD delivered him from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul b : And he ſaid : *2 Sam. 22.

a Who eſteemeth it a greater Honour to be thy Servant, than to be King of Iſrael, and who doth intirely devote himſelf to thy Service and Glory. b (i. e.) After the Death of Saul, and the Conqueſt of all his ſucceeding Enemies, and his own firm eſtabliſhment in his Kingdom.

David profeſſeth his Love to God, 1. and his confidence in his Attributes, 2. He praiſes God for deliverance out of Trouble, 3—5. His experience of Gods hearing him in an awful manner, 6——31. He acknowledgeth Gods help againſt his Enemies, 32——50.

*Pſ.144.1. 1 * I Will love thee e, O LORD my ſtrength d.

c Moſt affectionately and with my whole Soul; as the Hebrew word ſignifies. I can return thee no better thing for all thy Favours than my Love and Heart, which I pray thee to accept. By loving him he underſtands not only his inward affection, but alſo all the outward Expreſſions and Teſtimonies of it, praiſing and glorifying, and ſerving of him. d From whom alone I have received all my ſtrength and ſucceſs and ſettlement, and in whom alone I truſt, as it follows v. 2.

2 The LORD is my rock e and fortreſs, and my deliverer : my God, † my ſtrength * in whom I will truſt, my buckler, and the horn f of my ſalvation, and my high tower. †Heb. my Rock, or Cliff. *Heb. 2. 13.

e To which I flee for refuge, as the Iſraelites did to their Rocks. See Judg. 6. 2. 1 Sam. 13. 6. f By which I have both defended my ſelf and ſubdued mine Enemies. It is a Metaphor from thoſe Beaſts whoſe ſtrength lyes in their Horns. The Horn is oft put for power, as Pſal. 92. 10. Amos 6. 13. and elſewhere.

3 I will call upon the LORD who is worthy to be praiſed, ſo ſhall I be ſaved g from mine enemies.

g Or, I did call——and was ſaved. For the Future Tenſe is commonly uſed for that which is Paſt. And this ſeems beſt to agree with the whole Context, which is to praiſe God for mercies already received.

*Pſ.116.3. 4 * The ſorrows of death h compaſſed me, and the floods of † ungodly men i made me afraid : †Heb. Belial.

h (i. e.) Dangerous and deadly Troubles. Or, the Bands or Cords of Death, which had almoſt ſeized me, and was putting its Bands upon me. Compare Pſal. 73. 4. i Their great multitudes and ſtrength, and violent aſſaults, breaking in upon me like a Flood.

|| Or, Cords. 5 The || ſorrows of hell k compaſſed me about : the ſnares of death prevented me l.

k Or, of the Grave, which brought me to the brink of the Grave. l Had almoſt taken hold of me, ere I was aware of my danger.

6 In my diſtreſs I called upon the LORD, and cryed unto my God; he heard my voice out of his * temple m, and my cry came before him, even unto his ears. *Pſ.11.4.

m Either 1. Out of his Sanctuary; whence he promiſed to hear and anſwer the prayers of his people, which are either made there or directed thither. Or 2. Out of his Heavenly Habitation, which is oft called his Temple; ſee on Pſal. 11. 4.

7 Then the earth ſhook and trembled n, the foundation alſo of the hills were moved and ſhaken o, becauſe he was wroth.

n Then God appeared on my behalf in a miraculous and glorious manner, and with the great Terror and Confuſion of all mine Enemies, which is here compared to an Earthquake. o The Earthquake was ſo deep and violent, that it overthrew whole Mountains by the Roots. Whereby he deſigns his lofty and potent Enemies; ſuch being oft compared to Mountains, as Pſal. 46. 3, 4. and 144. 5. Iſa. 41. 15. &c.

8 There went up a ſmoke † out of his noſtrils p, and fire out of his mouth devoured : coals were kindled by † it q. †Heb. by it. †Heb. him.

p As is uſual in perſons tranſported with great anger and rage. He manifeſted his great diſpleaſure againſt my Adverſaries. q Which notes the fervency, conſtancy and efficacy of his anger.

*Pſ.144.5. 9 He bowed the heavens r alſo and came down s, and darkneſs was under his feet.

r By producing thick and dark Clouds, by which the Heavens ſeem to come down to the Earth. s Not by change of place, but by the manifeſtation of his preſence and power on my behalf.

10 And he rode upon a cherub t, and did fly : yea, * he did fly upon the wings of the wind u. *Pſ.104.3.

t Or, upon the Cherubims, by an Enallage of number, that is, upon the Angels, who are ſo called, Gen. 3. 24. Heb. 9. 5. who are alſo called Gods Chariots, Pſal. 68. 17. upon which he is ſaid to ſit and ride. All which is not to be underſtood groſly, but only to note Gods uſing of the Miniſtry of Angels, in raiſing ſuch Storms and Tempeſts as are here deſcribed. u As ſwiftly as the Wind. He came to my reſcue with all ſpeed.

11 He made darkneſs his ſecret place x : his pavilion round about him, were dark waters y, and thick clouds of the skies.

x Or, his hiding place, (i. e.) He covered himſelf with dark Clouds, from whence he ſecretly ſhot at his Enemies, as it follows. y (i. e.) Watry Vapours and thick Clouds, as the next Words expound theſe.

12 At the brightneſs that was before him z his thick clouds paſſed a, hail-ſtones and coals of fire.

z At his glorious and powerful appearance. a Or, paſſed away, (i. e.) Vaniſhed, (as this Word is oft taken, as Pſal. 90. 5, 6. Iſa. 29. 5. Hab. 3. 10.) being diſſolved into ſhowers of Hail-ſtones, &c.

13 The LORD alſo thundered b in the heavens, and the Higheſt gave his voice c : hail-ſtones and coals of fire.

b To wit againſt my Adverſaries. Thunder is a ſign of Gods Anger, 1 Sam. 2. 10. and 7. 10. c (i. e.) Thunder, oft ſo called. The ſame thing expreſſed in other words.

14 Yea he ſent out his arrows d, and ſcattered them e; and he ſhot out lightnings, and diſcomfited them.

d To wit Lightnings, as it is explained in the next Clauſe. e To wit, mine Enemies : Which is ſufficiently underſtood from v. 3. and 17. and from the whole Context.

15 Then the channels of waters were ſeen, and the foundations of the world were diſcovered f : at thy rebuke, O LORD, at the blaſt of the breath of thy noſtrils.

f By mighty and terrible Earthquakes which overturned the Earth, and made its lower parts uppermoſt and viſible.

16 * He ſent g from above; he took me, he drew me out of || many waters. *Pſ.144.7. & 57. 3. || Or, great waters.

g Angels, or aſſiſtance otherwiſe.

17 He delivered me from my ſtrong enemy, and from them which hated me h; for they were too ſtrong for me.

h From them that wanted neither Malice nor Power.

18 They prevented me i in the day of my calamity : but the LORD was my ſtay.

i They were too cunning for me, and had almoſt ſurprized me; but they could not prevent thee.

19 * He brought me forth k alſo into a large place l : *Pſ.118.5.
he delivered me, becauſe he delighted in me m.

k Out of my ſtraits and difficulties; out of the little Caves in which I was ſhut up and impriſoned. l Into a ſtate of Freedom and Plenty, and Comfort. m Or, loved me, or had a good will to me, as this phraſe commonly ſignifies. Whereby he aſcribes all his Mercies and Bleſſings to Gods good Pleaſure and free Grace, as the firſt ſpring of them. Which he thought fit to premiſe, leſt the following Expreſſions ſhould ſeem to ſavour of boaſting of his own Merits, which he oft diſclaims.

20 The LORD rewarded me according to my righteouſneſs n; according to the cleanneſs of my hands o hath he recompenſed me.

n As I had a juſt Cauſe, and made it my care and buſineſs to deal righteouſly with God and with Saul and all others, ſo God (who hath engaged himſelf by his Promiſe, to ſuccour and reward them that are ſuch) was graciouſly pleaſed to own me, and to plead my Cauſe againſt my unrighteous Enemies. And becauſe I would not deliver my ſelf from ſtraits and miſeries, by unrighteous means, namely, by killing Saul, as I was adviſed to do, God was pleaſed to deliver me in a more honourable and effectual manner. n (i. e.) The innocency of my Actions, and carriage towards Saul, from whoſe Blood I kept my hands pure.

21 For I have kept the ways of the LORD p, and have not wickedly departed from my God q.

p I have obſerved and obeyed his Precepts, and made mine own Will, and Paſſions and Intereſt ſtoop to them. q (i. e.) I have not knowingly and wilfully forſaken God, and broken his Laws as wicked men do. Which he adds by way of Correction and Explication, leſt the former or following Clauſes ſhould be interpreted as a Profeſſion of ſuch a perfect and ſinleſs righteouſneſs, whereby he might in ſtrict Juſtice be juſtified by, and before God; which he elſewhere utterly diſowns, Pſal. 130. 3. and 143. 2. and which David, eſpecially towards the end of his days, (when this Pſalm was Compoſed, as the Title ſhews) could not pretend to without great Arrogancy and Falſhood, as having been guilty of thoſe great Sins of Murder and Adultery, and many other Errors, as he confeſſeth, Pſal. 19. 12. and oft elſewhere.

22 For all his * judgments were before me r, and I did not * put away his ſtatutes from me s. * Pſ. 10.5.

r (i. e.) Before the Eyes of my Mind, I diligently ſtudied and conſidered them, that I might govern my whole Life by them. s (i. e.) Out of my view, as ungodly men do; who like not to retain God nor his Word in their Hearts or Thoughts.

23 I was alſo || upright † before him t : and I kept my ſelf from mine iniquity u. || Or, perfect. Job 11. 4. † Heb. with.

24 Therefore hath the LORD recompenſed me according to my righteouſneſs, according to the cleanneſs of my hands † in his eye-ſight. † Heb. before his eyes.

t I did not pretend Religion before men for my own ends, but did approve my heart and ways to the all-ſeeing God. u (i. e.) From that ſin which I was moſt inclined or tempted to : Either, 1. From my Hereditary and Natural Corruption, ſo far that it ſhould not have dominion over me, nor break forth into any preſumptuous or ſcandalous ſins. Or rather 2. From the ſin of killing Saul, which might be called his ſin, becauſe this might ſeem moſt agreeable and deſireable to him both as a Man and as a Souldier, and as anointed to be King, as being a likely way, both to revenge and to preſerve and to advance himſelf; to which alſo he might ſeem to be both invited by the fair opportunity which Providence had put into his hand, 1 Sam. 24. 4. and 26. 8. and neceſſitated by Sauls implacable Malice, and his own perpetual and extream Dangers and Diſtreſſes; and to which he was ſo ſtrongly tempted by his own followers, in the place now quoted.

|| Or, perfect

25 With the merciful man thou wilt ſhew thy ſelf merciful: with an || upright man thou wilt ſhew thy ſelf upright x.

x Or, ſincere, to wit, in performing what thou haſt Promiſed to ſuch Perſons, this being a great part or act of Sincerity, when ones Deeds and Words, or Profeſſions agree together; as on the contrary for thoſe that deal Hypocritically and wickedly with thee, thou wilſt make them to know thy breach of Promiſe, as it is expreſſed, Numb. 14. 34. The Sence of the Verſe is, Thou meteſt to every one the ſame meaſure, which he meteth out to others, and giveſt to him the Fruit of his own doings, and therefore thou wilſt perform mercy and truth, to thoſe who are merciful and true to others, as through thy mercy I have been.

* Lev. 26. 23,24,27, 28.
|| Or, wreſtle.

26 With the pure thou wilt ſhew thy ſelf pure y; and with * the froward thou wilſt ſhew thy ſelf || froward z.

y Free from the leaſt mixture or appearance of unrighteouſneſs, or unfaithfulneſs, or unkindneſs: or ſimply and ſincerely ſuch as thou uſeſt, and haſt promiſed to be to them that are ſuch: for Purity is oft put for Sincerity. z Or, perverſe, (i. e.) Thou wilſt Croſs him and Walk contrary to him, as thou haſt threatned, Levit. 26. 23, 24. See alſo, Prov. 3. 24. Man's perverſeneſs here is moral and ſinful, but God's perverſeneſs is judicial and penal.

27 For thou wilt ſave the afflicted people a; but wilt bring down high looks b.

a Such as I and my poor followers were. b (i. e.) Proud Perſons who diſcover the Pride of their Hearts, by their haughty looks and Carriages, Pſal. 101. 5. Prov. 6. 17. ſuch as mine Enemies were.

|| Or, Lamp.

28 For thou wilt light my || candle c: the LORD my God will enlighten my darkneſs.

c Or, thou doſt light, or haſt lighted my Candle, (i. e.) given me Safety and Comfort, and Proſperity and Glory, and Poſterity alſo; all which are oft ſignified by a Candle or a Light, as Eſth. 8. 16. Job 21. 17. and 29. 3. Pſal. 97. 11. and 132. 17. &c.

|| Or, broken.

29 For by thee I have || run through a troop d; and by my God have I leaped over a wall e.

d (i. e.) Broken through the armed Troops of mine Enemies. e I have ſcaled the Walls of their ſtrongeſt Cities and Caſtles, and ſo taken them.

* Deu. 32. 4. Dan. 4. 37. Rev. 15. 3.
* Pſ. 12. 6. & 119. 140. Prov. 30. 5.
|| Or, refined.

30 As for God his * way is perfect f: the word of the LORD is * || tryed g: he is a buckler to all thoſe that truſt in him.

f His Counſel and Providence, though it may ſometimes be dark and hard to be underſtood, yet is always wiſe and juſt, and every way perfect or unblameable. g The truth of God's promiſes is certain, and approved by innumerable Experiences, and mine among the reſt.

* Deut. 32. 39. 1 Sam. 2. 2. Pſal. 86. 8. Iſa. 45. 5.

31 For who is God ſave the LORD h? or who is a Rock ſave our God!

h It muſt needs be as I have ſaid, becauſe our Lord is the only God, and therefore there is none, neither God nor Creature, that can hinder him from accompliſhing his own word and work, or from defending thoſe that truſt him: He is unchangeable and invincible. Or this is an Amplification, as God is, what I have now deſcribed him to be, ſo he only is ſuch, and there is no other God, or Rock in which they may ſafely truſt.

32 It is God that girdeth me with ſtrength i, and maketh my way perfect k.

i That gives me ſtrength both of Mind and Body for Battel. It is a Metaphor taken either from a Military Girdle, or from a Common Girdle, wherewith their looſe Garments were girt about them, whereby they were rendred fitter for any Action. k (i. e.) Perfectly plain and ſmooth, and clear from Impediments, as Pioneers uſe to prepare the way for the March of an Army. He guided me in all my Counſels and enterprizes, ſo that I neither miſs my way, nor ſtumble in it, nor come ſhort of my end.

* Deut. 32. 13. & 33. 29.

33 He maketh my feet like hinds feet l, and * ſetteth me m upon my high places.

l (i. e.) Moſt ſwift and nimble. As he made me wiſe in Counſel and Contrivance, (which he elſewhere ſaith) ſo he made me ſpeedy and Expeditious in the Execution: Which are the two great Excellencies of a Captain. He gave me great Agility either to flee and eſcape from mine Enemies, when prudence required it, or to purſue them, when I ſaw occaſion. m Heb. maketh me to ſtand, (i. e.) Either he placeth me in ſafe and ſtrong places, out of the reach of mine Enemies: Or he confirms and eſtabliſheth me in that high and honourable eſtate into which he hath advanced me, and gives me Wiſdom to improve my Victories.

* Pſ. 144. 1.

34 * He teacheth my hands to war n, ſo that a bow of ſteel is broken by mine arms o.

n To him I owe all that Military skill, or ſtrength or Courage which I have. o My ſtrength is ſufficient not only to bend it, but to break it.

|| Or, with thy meekneſs thou haſt multiplied me.

35 Thou haſt alſo given me the ſhield of thy ſalvation p, and thy right hand hath holden me up q, and || thy gentleneſs r hath made me great.

* Ro. 15. 9.
|| Or, confeſs.

49 * Therefore will I || give thanks unto thee, O LORD, among the heathen q: and ſing praiſes unto thy name.

q Or, among the Gentiles or Nations; (i. e.) Either, 1. In the great Congregations conſiſting of the Iſraelites of all Tribes; of whom this very word is uſed, Joſ. 3. 17. and 4. 1. Ezek. 2. 3. and elſewhere, as hath been noted before, Or 2. In the Preſence of thoſe Gentiles, who reſorted to Jeruſalem in great numbers, or before others of them, who are either ſubject to me, or Confederate with me, as I have occaſion of ſpeaking or writing to any of them. But this was but an uncertain and inconſiderable Buſineſs. And therefore David is here tranſported beyond himſelf, even to his ſeed for ever, as it is expreſſed v. 50. and ſpeaks this in ſpecial Relation to Chriſt, who was to be his ſeed, and of whom he was an Eminent Type, and by whom alone this was done, to any purpoſe. And therefore this is juſtly applied to him, and to his Preaching to and calling of the Gentiles, Rom. 15. 9.

PSAL. XIX.

The ARGUMENT.

THE deſign of this Pſalm is to adore and magnifie the name of God for the diſcovery of his Wiſdom and Power, and Goodneſs, both by his great and glorious Works of Creation and Providence; and eſpecially by his Word and the holy Scripture; which he prefers before the former.

To the chief muſician, a Pſalm of David.

The Heavens declare the Glory of God, 1. So do Night and Day, 2, 3 and the Sun, 6. The Perfection, Purity, and Extent of God's Law; its Effects, 7–12. He prayeth againſt Preſumptuous Sins, 13.

* Gen. 1. 6.

1 THe * heavens a declare b the glory of God c: and the firmament d ſheweth his handywork e.

a Theſe viſible Heavens ſo vaſt and ſpacious, richly adorned with Stars, ſo various and admirable in their Courſe, or Station; ſo uſeful and powerful in their Influences. b Not properly, but Objectively, as the Earth and Trees and Stars are ſaid to ſpeak, Job 12. 8. and 38. 7. Iſa. 55. 12. they demonſtrate or make it evident and undeniable to all men, of Sence or Reaſon: They are as a moſt legible Book, wherein even he that runs may Read it. c (i. e.) His glorious Being or Exiſtence, his eternal Power and God-head, as it is particularly expreſſed, Rom. 1. 20. his infinite Wiſdom and Goodneſs. All which are ſo viſible in them, that it is Ridiculous to deny or doubt of them, as it is eſteemed Ridiculous to think of far meaner works of Art, as an Houſe or a Book, &c. that they were made without an Artiſt, or without an Hand. d Or, the Expanſion, (i. e.) All this vaſt ſpace extended from the Earth to the higheſt Heavens, with all its goodly Furniture, the ſame thing which he called Heavens. e The Excellency of the work diſcovers who was the Author of it, that it did not come by chance, nor ſpring of it ſelf, but was made by the Lord God Almighty.

2 Day unto day f uttereth g ſpeech h, and night unto night ſheweth knowledge i.

f Or rather, after (as the Hebrew Lamed oft ſignifies, as Exod. 16. 1. and 29. 38. 2 Chron. 30. 21. Pſal. 96. 2.) Day: For the day doth not utter this to the Day, but to us upon the Day. The Sence is, Either, 1. That orderly and conſtant, and uſeful Succeſſion of Days and Nights one after another, declare this. But of the Courſe of the Sun, the effect whereof this Succeſſion is, he ſpeaks, v. 5. Or rather, 2. Every Day and Night renews or repeats theſe Documents and Demonſtrations of God's Glory. He that neglects them one day, may learn them the next day. g Or, poureth forth, to wit, conſtantly and abundantly and forcibly, as a Fountain doth Water, as this Hebrew Verb ſignifies. h Or the Word, or Diſcourſe, To wit, Concerning God. It hath as it were a Tongue to ſpeak the Praiſes of its Maker; (i. e.) It gives men occaſion to Magnifie and adore him. i (i. e.) Gives us a clear and certain Knowledge or Diſcovery of God their Author.

|| Or, without theſe their voyce is heard, † Heb. without their voice heard.

3 There is no ſpeech nor language || † where their voyce is not heard k.

k Or, underſtood, as the Verb oft ſignifies, as Gen. 11. 7. and 42. 23. 2 Kings 18. 26. 1 Cor. 14. 2. for the hearing of it, would have been inſignificant without the underſtanding of it, in which the force of the Argument lyes. The Sence is, there are divers Nations in the World, which have ſeveral Languages, ſo that one cannot Diſcourſe with, or be underſtood by another, But the Heavens are ſuch an univerſal and admirable Teacher, that they can ſpeak to all People under them, and be clearly underſtood by all. No Nation, or People, ſaith that wiſe and learned Heathen, Tully, Is ſo barbarous and ſottiſh, as, when they look up to the Heavens, not to perceive that there is a God, or to imagine that thoſe things are the Effect of blind Chance, which are made with ſuch wonderful Art and Wiſdom, that it requires extraordinary Art to underſtand their excellent Orders and Courſe? But this Verſe is by divers Learned men otherwiſe Tranſlated, not without an elegant Gradation, as ſome obſerve. They have no Speech nor Word, nor is any Voyce or ſound heard, in or from them. Then follow the next Verſe by way of Oppoſition, yet their line, &c. Or thus, They have no Speech, nor Words, (which is ſuppoſed to be here ſaid by way of Prolepſis, to ſoften and explain his former Expreſſions of the Heavens, declaring and ſpeaking) yet (or, but without them) their Voyce is heard or underſtood.

* Rom. 10. 18. || Or their rule, Or, direction.

4 * || Their line l is gone out m through all the earth n, and their words o to the end of the world: in them hath he ſet a tabernacle p for the ſun q;

l Either, 1. their admirable ſtructure made exactly, and as it were by line: ſee Job 38. 5. Zech. 1. 16. Or, 2. Their lines, the ſingular number being put for the plural, for the line anſwereth to the Words in the next Clauſe. And by line or lines he may underſtand their writing, as this very Word is taken, Iſa. 28. 10. which is made up of ſeveral lines. And this Expreſſion may ſeem to be very fit and Proper, becauſe the Heavens do not teach men audibly, or by ſpeaking to their Ears, but viſibly by propounding things to their Eyes, which is done in lines or writings. m (i. e.) Is ſpread abroad or drawn forth. n So as to be ſeen and Read, by all the Inhabitants of the Earth. o (i. e.) Their magnificent Structure, and their exquiſite Order, and moſt regular Courſe, by which they declare their Author, no leſs than if they uſed many Words, or long Diſcourſes to that purpoſe, or no leſs than men diſcover their Minds by their Words. See more concerning this Verſe, upon Rom. 10. 18. where it is applied to the Preaching of the Goſpel by the Apoſtles, in the ſeveral parts of the World. p Which is a moveable Habitation, and therefore fitly applied to the Sun, which is here deſcribed, to be in conſtant and perpetual Motion, v. 5, 6. q Which being the moſt Illuſtrious and uſeful of all the Heavenly Bodies, is here particularly mentioned.

5 Which is as a bridegroom r coming out of his chamber s; and * rejoyceth as a ſtrong man t to run a race.

* Eccl. 1. 5.

r Glorioully adorned with Light as with a beautiful Garment, and ſmiling upon the lower World with a pleaſant Countenance. s In which he is Poetically ſuppoſed to have reſted all Night, and thence to break forth as it were on a ſudden, as both Sacred and profane Poets repreſent the Matter. t Who being Conſcious and Confident of his own ſtrength, and promiſing to himſelf Victory and the Glory which attends it, ſets upon his Work with great Pleaſure.

6 His going forth is from the end of the heaven, and his circuit unto the ends of it u: and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof x.

u His Courſe is conſtant from Eaſt to Weſt, and thence to the Eaſt again. x There is no part of the Earth which doth not one time or other feel the Comfort and Benefit of its Light and Heat.

7 The || law of the LORD y is perfect z, || converting a the ſoul: the teſtimony of the LORD f is * ſure g, making wiſe h the ſimple i.

|| Or Doctrine. || Or, reſtoring. Ruth 4. 15. Heb. * Pſ. 119. 140.

y (i. e.) The Doctrine delivered by God to his Church, whether by Moſes or by other Prophets, and holy men of God after him: for the Title of Law is given not only to the Ten Commandements, or the Moral Law, as it is, Rom. 2. 23, 25, 27, 31. but alſo to the whole Word of God, as Pſal. 1. 2. and 119. 70, &c. Jer. 8. 8. Mal. 2. 6. to the Pſalms, as John 10. 34. and 15. 25. Compare with Pſal. 82. 6. and 35. 19. and to the Writings of the Prophets, 1 Cor. 14. 21. Compare with Iſa. 28. 11. yea even to the Goſpel it ſelf, as Iſa. 2. 3. and 42. 4. and 51. 4, 7. Rom. 3. 27. Gal. 2. 21. And in this general Sence it muſt be here underſtood, becauſe the Effects here following, do not flow from one but from all the Parts of it, Precepts and Counſels, and Threatnings, and Promiſes, and God's gracious Covenant made with man therein revealed. Having diſcourſed hitherto of the Glory of God ſhining forth in, and Demonſtrated by, the viſible Heavens, and the Heavenly Bodies, he now proceeds to another Demonſtration of God's Glory, which he Compares with and prefers before the former. Which he doth partly to prevent that Exceſſive admiration of the ſplendour and beauty of the Sun and Stars, by the Contemplation whereof the Heathens were brought to adore them, an Error which the Iſraelites were not free from the Danger of, Deut. 4. 19. partly, to make the Iſraelites ſenſible of their ſingular Obligations to God, who beſides that common Light and Influence of the Heavenly Bodies, had given them a peculiar and a more neceſſary and beneficial Light; and partly, to awaken and provoke the Gentiles (into whoſe hands theſe Pſalms might come) to the ſtudy and love of God's law, by repreſenting thoſe excellent Advantages, which they no leſs than the Jews might obtain by it. z Without fault or defect, fully and compleatly diſcovering both the Nature and Will of God, and the whole Duty and buſineſs of man, whom and how he is to Worſhip and Serve, what he is to believe and Practice, and whatſoever is neceſſary to his preſent and eternal Happineſs. Wherein their ſeems to be a ſecret Reflection upon the former and natural diſcovery of God, by his works of Creation, as that which is defective and inſufficient for the great and Glorious ends here following, which although it did declare ſo much of God's being and Nature, as left all men without excuſe, Rom. 1. 20. yet did not fully nor clearly manifeſt the Mind and Will of God, nor direct and bring men to eternal Salvation. a To wit, from the Errors of Mind and Converſation, in which men without this Light do generally wander and periſh, unto God, from whom all men are naturally revolted. Or, Comforting or Reviving, as this Word is uſed, Ruth 4. 15. Pſal. 23. 3. Lam. 1. 11, 16. Heb. reſtoring or bringing back the Soul, which was drooping and even going out of the Body, through grievous Troubles of the outward Man, and Terrors of the Mind and Conſcience. f (i. e.) His law, ſo called becauſe it is a Witneſs between God and Man, what God requires of Man, and what upon the performance of that Condition, he will do for Man. g Heb. faithful or true, which is moſt Excellent and Proper, and neceſſary in a Witneſs: It will not miſ-lead or deceive any man, that truſteth to it or followeth it; But will certainly and infallibly bring him to Happineſs. h Unto Salvation, as is expreſſed, 2 Tim. 3. 15. Which is the only true Wiſdom. i This is added Either, 1. By way of Commendation, or as a qualification of the Perſon whom God's word will make wiſe, he muſt be humble and fooliſh, and little in his own Eyes, and willing to be taught: See Mat. 11. 25. 1 Cor. 1. 25, &c. For God reſiſteth the proud and ſcornful, and will not give this Wiſdom to them; or rather, 2. By way of Contempt, which ſeems moſt agreeable both to the uſe of the Words, Prov. 1. 4. and 9. 6. and 14. 15. and 22. 3. and to the Scope of the place, which is to ſet forth the Excellency and Efficacy of God's Law in the general, without any Reſtriction to this or that ſort of Men. So it may note the weak and fooliſh even Perſons of the loweſt Capacities, and ſuch are apt to miſtake and are eaſily ſeduced, as the

the Word implies. And yet theſe, if they will hearken to the Inſtructions of God's word, ſhall become Wiſe, when thoſe who profeſs themſelves Wiſe, ſhall by leaning to their own underſtanding, and deſpiſing or neglecting the Directions of God's word, become and prove themſelves to be Fools, Rom. 1. 22. But this is not ſpoken excluſively, as if no men of better Abilities were thus made Wiſe, but by way of Amplification, to ſhew the Uſefulneſs of God's Word to men of all ſorts and ſizes.

8 The ſtatues k of the LORD are right l rejoycing the heart m: the commandement of the LORD n is * pure o, enlightning the eyes p. *Pſal. 119. 140.

k Another word ſignifying the ſame thing with Law and Teſtimonies. l Both in themſelves, as being free from Crookedneſs or Error; and in their Effect, as guiding and directing men in the right and ready way to eternal Happineſs. Which alſo reflects upon that knowledge of Divine things, which men have by the light of Nature and works of God, or by the Doctrines of the Philoſophers or others, that wanted or neglected the light of God's word, wherein there is a great deal of darkneſs and uncertainty, and Error and Danger. m Partly by that clear and certain knowledge of Divine things which it gives, for knowledge is pleaſant to the Soul, Prov. 2. 20. and partly by the diſcoveries of God's Love and Grace to ſinful men, in Offers and Promiſes of Mercy therein contained. n (i. e.) All his Commands. o Without the leaſt mixture of Error, or injuſtice or Deceit: Which cannot be ſaid of humane Laws. p To wit, of the Mind, with an evident and compleat manifeſtation of God's Will and Man's Duty: both which the works of Nature, and all the Writings of men diſcover but darkly and imperfectly.

9 The fear of the LORD q is clean r, enduring for ever s: the judgments of the LORD t are † true and righteous altogether u. † Heb. truſt.

q By which he underſtands not the Grace of God's fear, as this Phraſe is commonly taken; nor the whole Worſhip of God, as it taken, Pſal. 34. 9, 11. Mat. 15. 9. but the Law and Word of God, which is the only thing that is here commended, and which is meant by all the other parallel Titles of his Teſtimony, and Statutes, and Commandements, and Judgments, and conſequently by this of his Fear, which is as it were hemmed in within them. And this may well be ſo called by an uſual Metonymy, becauſe it is both the Object and the Rule, and the Cauſe of this Grace of holy Fear; as God himſelf is called Fear for the like reaſon, Gen. 31. 53. and in the Hebrew, Pſal. 76. 11. r (i. e.) Sincere, not adulterated with any mixture of Vanity, or Falſhood, or Vice; not requiring nor allowing any uncleanneſs or wickedneſs, as the Religion of the Gentiles did, s Conſtant and unchangeable, the ſame for Subſtance in all the Ages of the Church and the World. Which is moſt true, both of the moral Law, and of the Doctrine of God's Grace and Mercy to ſinful and miſerable man; which two are the Principal parts of that Law, of which he here ſpeaks, as is Evident from the whole Context. For as the difference between the Old and the New Teſtament, that lyes only in Circumſtantial and Ceremonial, or Ritual things, which are not here intended; and that Alteration alſo was foretold in the Old Teſtament, and conſequently, the accompliſhment of it did not deſtroy, but confirm the certainty and conſtancy of God's word. This alſo is oppoſed to humane Laws, wherein there are, and ought to be manifold Changes, according to the difference of Times and People and Circumſtances. (i. e.) God's Laws frequently called his Judgments, becauſe they are the Declarations of his righteous Will and as it were his legal or judicial Sentence by which he expects that men ſhould govern themſelves, and by which he will judge them at the laſt day.

10 More to be deſired are they than gold, * yea, than much fine gold x: * ſweeter alſo than honey y, and † the honey comb z. * Pſ. 119. 12, 127. Prov. 8. 11, 19. * Pſ. 119. 103. † Heb. the dropping of Hony-combs x Than Gold of the beſt quality, and in the greateſt quantity. y Which was moſt ſweet in thoſe Eaſtern Countries. z Than that Honey which the Bees have moſt diligently wrought in their Combs, and which freely flows from them; which is ſweeter than the reſt.

11 Moreover, by them is thy ſervant a warned: and in keeping of them b there is great reward c.

a I thy ſervant, though a King and a Prophet, and of ſome Repute for Wiſdom and Knowledge, yet I am daily taught by them. Or, enlightned, as Dan. 12. 3. or clearly admoniſhed, as this word ſignifies, Exod. 18. 20. 2 Kings 6. 10. Eccleſ. 4. 13. Ezek. 3. 17, &c. and 33. 3, 9. It is a faithful and excellent Monitor to ſhew me my Duty in all Conditions, and to preſerve me from falling into ſin and danger, and Miſchief. b To thoſe that make it their great Deſign, and care to conform their whole Lives to them. For he ſpeaks not of a Legal and perfect keeping of them, which no man attaineth to in this Life, Eccleſ. 7. 20. Gal. 3. 10, 11, 12. 1 John 1. 8. but of doing it in an Evangelical Sence, with the allowances which God through Chriſt makes for Humane infirmities. c In this Life, and eſpecially in the next.

12 * Who can underſtand d his Errors e? cleanſe thou me f from ſecret faults g. *Pſ. 40. 12.

d This may be here added Either, 1. As a further Proof of the Excellency and neceſſity of God's Law, becauſe mens Errors are ſo many and hard to be diſcovered and prevented, that they indiſpenſably need ſuch a Friend and Counſellor as the Law is, to give them the true knowledge of themſelves and of their ſins. Or 2. As a juſt and ſorrowful Cenſure of himſelf, upon the Conſideration of the exact Purity of God's Law, and the Comparing of his Life with it. Thy Law, O Lord, is Holy and juſt and Good. But I am a poor ſinful Wretch falling infinitely ſhort of it, and Condemned by it. Or 3. As a ſignification of the inſufficiency of God's Law,) ſtrictly ſo called for the healing and ſaving of mens Souls, and of the neceſſity of further ſupplies of the Goſpel, and grace of God; whereby the eyes of their Minds may be enlightned to ſee that light which ſhines in God's Law, and their Hearts may be renewed to yeild univerſal Obedience to it, for which therefore he prays in the following words. And withal he implies, that he did not expect that reward which he laſt mentioned as a juſt Recompence to his Obedience, which he confeſſeth to need a Pardon more than to deſerve a Reward, but only as an effect of God's grace and goodneſs. e Either, 1. His ſins of ignorance, of which this word is uſed, Levit. 4. 2, 22, 27. Eccleſ. 5. 6. Or rather, 2. His ſins in general (which afterwards he divides into ſecret and preſumptuous ſins) Or all deviations from God's Law, which are thus called, 1 Sam. 26. 1. Pſal. 119. 67, 118. Heb. 9. 7. Jam. 5. 20. The Sence is, I cannot comprehend the numbers or the ſeveral kinds, or all the Hainous Aggravations of my ſins. f Both by juſtification or the Pardon of my ſins, through the Blood of thy Son which is to be ſhed for me; and by Sanctification through thy holy Spirit, co-working in and with thy Word, to the further Renovation of my Heart and Life: For theſe are the two ways of cleanſing Sinners, moſt frequently mentioned both in the Old and New Teſtament. Though the firſt may ſeem to be Principally, if not only, Intended, becauſe he ſpeaks of his paſt ſins, which could be cleanſed no other way but by Remiſſion. g (i. e.) From the guilt of ſuch ſins as were ſecret Either, 1. From others; ſuch as none knows but God and my own Conſcience: Or 2. From my ſelf; ſuch as I never obſerved, or did not diſcern the evil of. Pardon my unknown ſins, of which I never repented particularly, as I ſhould have done.

13 Keep back h thy ſervant alſo from preſumptuous ſins h, * let them not have dominion over me i: then ſhall I be upright k, aud I ſhall be innocent l from ‖ the great tranſgreſſion m. * Pſ. 119. 133. Rom. 6. 12, 14. ‖ Or, much h Or, reſtrain, or withdraw. Which word is emphatical, and ſignifies Mans natural and great proneneſs even to the worſt of ſins, and the neceſſity of God's Grace, as a Bridle, to keep men from ruſhing upon them. Having begged Pardon for his former Errors, he now begs grace to keep him from Relapſes for the time to come. h From known and evident ſins, ſuch as are committed againſt knowledge and Deliberation, with deſign and reſolution, and Eagerneſs, with reſiſtance againſt the Checks of Conſcience, and the Motions of Gods Spirit, and with Contempt both of God's commands and Judgments, and ſo with Pride and Inſolency, which this word ſignifies. See Exod. 21. 14. And ſuch a ſin was that of David's in the Matter of Uriah, to which he ſeems to have an Eye; and prayeth to be kept from ſuch Miſcarriages. i If I be at any time tempted to any ſuch ſins, Lord let them not prevail over me, and if I do fall into them, let me ſpeedily riſe again, and not willingly give up my ſelf to the Cuſtomary practice of them. k That will be an Evidence of my Sincerity, and I ſhall have this Comfort, that although I am not abſolutely Perfect, but incompaſſed with many Infirmities, yet I am an upright Perſon, and ſuch as thou wiltſt accept. l Thou wiltſt hold me for Innocent. Or, I ſhall be cleanſed, or kept pure, as this Word primarily ſignifies. m (i. e.) From the guilt of ſuch Preſumptuous ſins, which are indeed very great Tranſgreſſions, and ſuch, as if accompanied with Obſtinacy and Impenitency, thou wiltſt not Pardon. But as for other ſins of ignorance or infirmity, thou wiltſt graciouſly remit them for thy Covenants ſake, made with me in and through thy Chriſt. Oth. From much Tranſgreſſion, or from innumerable ſins, which uſually follow the Commiſſion of one Preſumptuous ſin, as David found by his own ſad Experience.

14 Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart n be acceptable in thy ſight o, O LORD, † my ſtrength p and my redeemer q. † Heb. my Rock.

n Having prayed that God would keep him from ſinful Actions, he now prays that God would govern, and ſanctifie his Words and Thoughts, wherein he had many ways offended, as he here implies, and oft in this Book confeſſeth and bewaileth. And this he the rather doth, becauſe this Caution was very neceſſary to preſerve him from Preſumptuous ſins, which have their firſt riſe in the Thoughts, and thence proceed to Words and Expreſſions, before they break forth into Actions. o (i. e.) Be really good and Holy, and ſo well-pleaſing to thee. p O thou who haſt hitherto ſtrengthned me both againſt my temporal and ſpiritual Enemies, and whoſe gracious and powerful Aſſiſtance, is abſolutely neceſſary to keep me from my own corrupt Inclinations, and from all Temptations, to ſinful Thoughts and Words, and Actions. q This Expreſſion ſeems to be added emphatically, and with ſpecial reſpect to Chriſt, who was certainly much in David's Eyes, to whom alone this word Goel can here Properly belong, as may appear by my Notes, on Job 19. 25. to which I refer the Reader, and by whoſe Blood and Spirit alone, David could and did expect the Bleſſings and Graces, for which he here prayeth.

PSAL. XX.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm contains a Prayer to be uſed by the People, both now on the behalf of King David, when he was undertaking ſome great Expedition, going forth, as is ſuppoſed, againſt the Ammonites, and Syrians, 2 Sam. 10. or ſome other potent Enemies, and hereafter in like Caſes.

The Church prayeth God to hear and defend the King, 1. and for a Bleſſing on all his Deſigns, 2—6. and ſheweth wherein the Confidence of ſome is; but theirs is in God, 7—9.

To the chief muſician, a Pſalm of David.

1 THe LORD hear thee in the day of trouble a: the Name of the God of Jacob b † defend thee. † Heb. ſet thee on high places.

a In this time of War and Danger. b (i. e.) God himſelf; For Names are oft put for Perſons, as Numb. 26. 53. Acts. 1. 15. and 4. 12. and the Name of God, for God, as Deut. 28. 58. Neh. 9. 5. Pſal. 44. 98. 20. Prov. 18. 10. and oft elſewhere. He calls him the God of Jacob, or Iſrael, partly to diſtinguiſh him from falſe Gods; and partly as an Argument to enfore the Prayer, becauſe God had made a League, or Covenant with Jacob and his Poſterity, who are called by the Name of Jacob, Pſal. 147. 19, 20. Iſa. 44. 2. and whoſe cauſe David was now pleading againſt their Enemies.

2 Send † thee help from the ſanctuary c: and † ſtrengthen thee out of Zion.

† Heb. the help.
† Heb. ſupport thee.

c Either, 1. From Heaven, as it is expreſſed, v. 6. Or rather, 2. From the Tabernacle in Sion, as it is explained in the next Words, where the Ark then was; toward which the Iſraelites directed their Prayers, and from which God heard and anſwered them.

3 Remember d all thy offerings e, and † accept f thy burnt-ſacrifice, Selah.

† Heb. turn to Aſhes; Or, make fat.

d To wit, with acceptance, as it follows. e Offered either by thee, at thy Entrance upon this Expedition: Or by us thy People on thy behalf, or by thine appointment. f Heb. turn to Aſhes, by fire ſent from Heaven, in token of his acceptance, as was uſual; of which ſee Levit. 9. 24. 1 Kings 18. 38.

4 Grant thee according to thine own heart g, and fulfil all thy counſels h.

g (i. e.) That good ſucceſs which thy Heart deſires. h Thy preſent deſign for God, and for his and thy People.

5 We will rejoyce i in thy ſalvation, and * in the Name of our God k we will ſet up our banners l: the LORD fulfil all thy Petitions.

* Exod. 17. 15. Pſal. 60. 4.

i Hereby they ſhew their Confidence in God, and their aſſurance of the Victory. k (i. e.) To the Honour of God, as the Conqueror. l In way of Triumph; which among other ways was celebrated by the ſetting up of Banners or Trophies.

6 Now know I m, that the LORD ſaveth n his anointed o; he will hear him † from his holy Heaven, † with the ſaving ſtrength of his right hand p.

† Heb. from the Heaven of his Holineſs.
† Heb. by the ſtrength of the Salvation of his right hand.

m We are already ſure of Victory by the Conſideration of God's power and faithfulneſs and Love to David, and to his People. They ſpeak as one Perſon, becauſe they were united, and Unanimous in this Prayer. n (i. e.) Will certainly ſave. o Our Lord and King. p This ſhews how God will hear him, even by ſaving him with a ſtrong hand.

7 * Some truſt q in chariots, and ſome in Horſes; but we will remember r the Name of the LORD our God.

* Pſ. 33. 16. Pr. 21. 31. Iſ. 31. 1.

q Or, Remember; which may better be ſupplied out of the next Clauſe, r Or, make mention of, to wit, ſo as to boaſt of it, or truſt in it; for ſuch things men oft remember or mention.

8 They are brought down s and fallen, but we are riſen and ſtand upright t.

s From their Horſes and Chariots, to which they truſted. Heb. They bowed down, as being unable to ſtand longer becauſe of their mortal Wounds. Compare Judg. 5. 27. t Stand firmly upon our Legs, and keep the field, as Conquerors uſe to do.

9 Save, LORD, let the king u hear us when we call.

u Either, 1. David. So the Sence is, O Lord preſerve and aſſiſt the King, that when we are diſtreſſed and Cry to him for Help, he may be able and ready to Help us, Or 2. God, the Supream Monarch, the King of Kings, and in a peculiar manner the King of Iſrael, hear and anſwer us, when we pray for our King and People. And for the change of Perſons in this Verſe, nothing is more common. Or 3. Chriſt, called the King both in the Old and New Teſtament. But this Verſe is by divers learned Men rendred thus, Lord ſave the King. He (i. e. the Lord) will hear us (Or, Let him hear us; For the future Tenſe is oft put Imperatively:) When we Cry, Or call upon him. And this verſion is very agreeable to the Hebrew Text. For whereas the only ground of the other Tranſlation, is, that the Hebrew Accent called Athnach is put under the word ſave, which is ſuppoſed to ſtop the Sence there, it is ſufficiently evident, that Athnach doth not always make ſuch a Diſtinction in theſe Poetical Books, as appears from Pſal. 11. 5. and 17. 10. and 19. 4. and 22. 31. and therefore this may ſeem to be the better Verſion.

PSAL. XXI.

To the chief muſician, a Pſalm of David a.

a The ſubject of this Pſalm is the ſame with the former, both being being made for the Peoples uſe, concerning the King. Only the Prayers there uſed, are here turned into Praiſes, for the Bleſſings received in anſwer to their Prayers. And as David was an illuſtrious Type of Chriſt, ſo in many of theſe Expreſſions he may ſeem to look beyond himſelf unto Chriſt, in whom they are more properly, and fully accompliſhed, and of whom divers of the Ancient Hebrew Doctors underſtand it.

David, out of a ſenſe of God's anſwering his Prayers, for all he ask't, profeſſeth his joy and gladneſs in him, 1——6. His Confidence for further Succeſs, 7. that God will find out and conſume his Enemies, 8——12. He prayeth that God would exalt his Strength, that he might praiſe his Power, 13.

1 THe king ſhall joy in thy ſtrennth b, O LORD, and in thy ſalvation how greatly ſhall he rejoyce?

2 Thou haſt given him his hearts deſire, and haſt not withheld the requeſt of his lips. Selah.

b Conferred upon him, and put forth by thee, on his behalf againſt his Enemies.

3 For thou preventeſt him c with the bleſſing of goodneſs d; thou ſetteſt a crown of pure gold e on his head.

c Or, didſt prevent him, Crowning him with manifold bleſſings, both more and ſooner, than he either deſired or expected, ſurprizing him with the Gift of the Kingdom, and with many happy Succeſſes. d (i. e.) With excellent Bleſſings. Or with abundance (as this Word both in Hebrew and Greek is ſometimes uſed, as Pſal. 84. 6. Rom. 15. 29. 2 Cor. 9. 5, 6.) of Good. e Either, 1. in token of Victory. Or rather 2. As an Enſign of Royal Majeſty conferred upon him.

4 He asked life of thee f, and thou gaveſt it him, even * length of days for ever and ever g.

* Pſ. 61. 6.

f He asked only the Preſervation of that ſhort and mortal Life, which was oft expoſed to utmoſt Perils, g Either, 1. In his Poſterity, in whom Parents are commonly ſaid to live. Thou gaveſt the Kingdom not only to himſelf for a ſeaſon, as thou didſt to Saul, but to him, and to his ſeed for ever. Or rather, 2. In his Perſon; For this giving Anſwers to David's asking. And the thing which David asked of God, was not the Kingdom (wherein God had prevented his Prayers, and granted what David durſt not have preſumed to ask) but only Life, or the ſaving and prolonging of his Life, which his Enemies deſigned to take away. Thou gaveſt him a long Life and Reign here, and after that thou didſt tranſlate him to thy Heavenly Kingdom, to live with thee for ever. But this was more eminently fulfilled in Chriſt, who asked of his Father, Life, or to be ſaved from Death, Heb. 5. 7. though with Submiſſion to his Will: But his Father, though he ſaw it fit and neceſſary to take away his Temporal Life, yet he inſtantly gave him another, and that far more noble inſtead of it, even the perfect Poſſeſſion of an everlaſting and moſt glorious Life, both in his Soul and Body, at his right hand.

5 His glory h is great in thy ſalvation i: honour and majeſty haſt thou laid upon him k.

h His fame or renown in the World. i By reaſon of thoſe great and glorious Deliverances, which thou haſt wrought both for him, and by him. k Or, fitted to him, or upon him, as the Hebrew Verb ſignifies, or made it adequate to him. Thou haſt given him a large and noble Soul, very capable of and fit for that high and Honourable eſtate, to which thou haſt advanced him, and thou haſt given him Honour and Power, ſuitable to ſo excellent a Perſon, and to ſuch rich Endowments.

6 For thou haſt † made him moſt bleſſed l for ever m: thou haſt † made him exceeding glad with thy countenance n.

† Heb. ſet him to be Bleſſings.

l Heb. thou haſt ſet (or, made, as this Verb is uſed, Pſal. 40. 5. and 89. 42. and 91. 9. Lam. 3. 45.) him Bleſſings, (i. e.) Either, 1. The Author or Inſtrument of manifold Bleſſings to the World, and eſpecially to thy People: which David was in a good meaſure, but Chriſt much more truly and eminently. Although this may not ſeem very ſuitable to the Context, which only ſpeaks of the Beſſing conferred by God upon this King, and not at all of the Bleſſings flowing from him to others. Or, 2. The great example of all Bleſſings, whom the Iſraelites in all Ages ſhall propound to themſelves, in all their Forms and Pronunciations of Bleſſings, They ſhall ſay, God make thee as bleſſed as this King, Either David or the Meſſias. Compare Gen. 12. 2. and 48. 20. or rather moſt Bleſſed, as we tranſlate it, the abſtract Form, and the plural Nnmber being here uſed emphatically, as they commonly are, as Ezek. 34. 26. Pſal. 5. 10. and 19. 10. and 35. 6. to Note a man in whom all ſorts of Bleſſings are united and met together, filled with Bleſſings, and as it were a man of Bleſſings, made up altogether of Bleſſings, as Chriſt upon a like Reaſon was called a man of Sorrows, Iſa. 53. 3. And poſſibly the Word Man, may be underſtood here, as it is in many other places. as I have ſhewed before, and the place rendred thus, Thou haſt made him a Man of Bleſſings. m Of which ſee on v. 4. n To wit, ſmiling upon him, as it muſt neceſſarily be underſtood from the foregoing Words, (i. e.) By thy Grace and Favour manifeſted, and imparted to his Soul, and by the Effects of it, in ſaving him from all his Enemies and Calamities.

7 For the king truſteth in the LORD, and through the mercy of the moſt High, he ſhall not be moved o.

o Or removed from his Kingdom, as Saul was.

8 Thine hand ſhall find out all thine Enemies p; thy right hand ſhall find out thoſe that hate thee.

p When they ſeek to hide themſelves or flee away from thee, ſhould diſcover and overtake and deſtroy them. Or, ſhall be ſufficient (as this Verb ſometimes ſignifies, as Numb. 11. 22. Judg. 21. 14.) for all thine Enemies, To wit, to Conquer them; thou ſhall need no forreign Succours to help thee.

9 Thou ſhalt make him as a fiery oven q in the time of thine † anger: the LORD ſhall ſwallow them up r in his wrath, and the fire ſhall devour them.

Pſ. 34. 16.

q Or, Thou ſhalt put them, (as the Hebrew word Properly ſignifies) as it were into (So there is only an Ellipſis of the Prepoſition Beth, which is moſt frequent) a fiery Oven, (i. e.) Like Wood, which when it is caſt in there, is quickly conſumed. r (i. e.) Deſtroy them, as this Phraſe is oft uſed, as 2 Sam. 20. 19, 20. Pſal. 56. 1, 2. Prov. 1. 12.

10 * Their fruit s ſhall thou deſtroy from the earth, and their ſeed from among the children of men.

* Job 18. 16, 19.

s Either, 1. The fruit of their Labours. Or rather, 2. Their ſeed or Children, as it is explained in the next Branch, oft called a Man's Fruit, as Deut. 28. 4. Pſal. 127. 3. and 132. 11. Lament. 2. 20. God will take away both Root and Branch, the Parents and all that wicked Race.

11 For they intended evil againſt thee t: they imagined a miſchievous device, which they are not able to perform u.

t (i. e.) Againſt God, not directly but by Conſequence, becauſe it was againſt David, whom God had anointed, and againſt the Lords people, whoſe injuries God takes as done to himſelf, Zech. 2. 8. Such Supplements are uſual after this Verb, as Exod. 8. 18.

Pſal. 101. 5. and 139. 6. Iſa. 1. 13. Or, for which they were unable or inſufficient. Or, but they did not prevail, as this Verb ſignifies, Pſal. 13. 4. and 129. 2. This Clauſe ſeems to be added to teach us this great and neceſſary Leſſon, that men are juſtly puniſhed by God for their wicked Intentions, although they be hindred from the Execution of them, contrary to what ſome Jewiſh Doctors, and others have taught.

† Heb. Shoulder.
* Pſ. 7.13.

12 Therefore ‖ ſhalt thou make them turn their † back x, when thou ſhalt * make ready thine arrows upon thy ſtrings, againſt the face of them y?

13 Be thou exalted, LORD, in thine own ſtrength z: ſo will we ſing and praiſe thy Power.

x (i. e.) Flee away at the firſt ſight of thee, whereby alſo they will be a fit mark for thine Arrows. Or, Thou ſhalt ſet them, as a Butt to ſhoot at, as the like Phraſe is uſed, Deut. 7. 10. Job 7. 20. and 16.12. y Or, againſt them, the word Face being oft redundant. z By thy own Power, or by the manifeſtation thereof, whereby thou wiltſt have the whole Glory of the work.

PSAL. XXII.

The ARGUMENT.

THat queſtion mentioned, Acts 8. 34. is very Proper here, Of whom ſpeaketh the Prophet this (Pſalm?) of himſelf, or of ſome other Man? It is confeſſed that David was a Type of Chriſt, and that many Pſalms or paſſages of the Pſalms, though properly and litterally underſtood of David, yet had a further and Myſtical reference to Chriſt, in whom they were accompliſhed. But there are ſome other Pſalms or paſſages in the Pſalms, as alſo ſome Chapters or paſſages in other Prophets, eſpecially in Iſaiah, who lived not very long after David, which either by thoſe ſacred Pen-men, or at leaſt by the Holy Ghoſt inſpiring them, which is one and the ſame thing, were directly, Primarily and Immediately intended for, and are Properly and litterally to be underſtood of the Meſſias; though withal there may be ſome reſpect and alluſion to the ſtate of the Pen-man himſelf, who being a Type of Chriſt, it is not ſtrange if there be many Reſemblances between them. And this ſeems to be the ſtate of this Pſalm, which is underſtood of the Meſſias, by the Hebrew Doctors themſelves, and by Chriſt himſelf, and by his Apoſtles, as we ſhall ſee. And there are many paſſages in it, which were moſt litterally accompliſhed in him, and cannot in a tolerable Sence be underſtood of any other, as we ſhall ſee in the particular Verſes. And therefore, I doubt not, that David, though he had an Eye to his own Condition, in divers paſſages here uſed, yet was carried forth by the Spirit of Prophecy beyond himſelf and unto Chriſt, to whom alone it truly and fully agrees.

‖ Or, the Hind of the Morning.

To the chief muſician upon ‖ Aijeleth Shahar a, a Pſalm of David.

a Or the hind of the Morning. To note that the Perſon here deſigned was like an Hind, comely and meek and every way Lovely but withal Perſecuted by wicked men, and that oftentimes is in the Morning, when ſhe comes out of her lurking and Lodging place, and when the Hunters uſe to go abroad to their Work. Or this was the Title of ſome Muſical inſtrument, or Tune, or Song, which was uſually ſung in the Morning.

The Prophet as a Type of Chriſt, complaineth that God had forſaken him, 1. and heard not his Prayers, 2. He ſheweth that he heard his Fathers, and delivered them, 3—5. But owns himſelf a Worm, 6. And the Reproach of Men, 7. He ſheweth the Language of the Enemy againſt him, yet his truſt is in God, 8———21. He calleth all Iſrael *to praiſe him,*22——25. He ſheweth the Happineſs of the the Meek, 26. And of all the Gentiles, 27———31.

* Mat. 27. 46. Mark 15. 34.
* Pſal. 31. 14.
† Heb. from my Salvation.

1 MY * God b, my * God c, why haſt thou forſaken me d? Why art thou ſo far † from helping me, and from the words of my roaring e?

b Whom, notwithſtanding thy forſaking me, I heartily Love, and in whom I truſt; who art my Friend and Father, though now thou frowneſt upon me. c The Repetition Notes, the depth of his diſtreſs which made him Cry ſo earneſtly, and the ſtrugglings of his Faith, with his Fears and Sorrows. d (i. e.) Left me in the hands of Malicious men, withdrawn the Light of thy Countenance, and the ſupports and Comforts of thy Spirit from me, and filled me with the Terrors of thy wrath, ſo that I am ready to ſink under my Burden. This was in part verified in David, but much more fully in Chriſt, who applies theſe Words to himſelf, Mat. 27. 46. e (i. e.) From regarding, or Pitying, or Anſwering my ſtrong Prayers, and lamentable Out-cries forced from me, by my intolerable Diſtreſſes and Miſeries.

† Heb. there is no ſilence to me.

2 O my God, I cry in the day-time, but thou heareſt me not; and in the night-ſeaſon, and † am not ſilent f.

f (i. e.) I continue praying Day and Night without Intermiſſion. Or thus, I have no ſilence, (i. e.) No quietneſs or Reſt, as this Word ſignifies, Judg. 18. 9. In which reſpect alſo the Sea and Waves thereof are ſaid to be ſilent, ſtill (i. e.) and quiet, Pſal. 107. 29. Mark 4. 39. And ſo this laſt Clauſe anſwers to and expounds the Former, Thou heareſt me not, which is moſt uſual in this Book.

3 But thou art holy g, O thou that inhabiteſt the praiſes of Iſrael g.

g (i. e.) Juſt and true in all thy ways, and therefore hearing Prayers, ond keeping thy Covenant; a true Lover of Holineſs, and of all holy Men. This he adds Either, 1. To aggravate his Miſery, that ſuch a God ſhould neglect and forſake him. Or rather, 2. To ſtrengthen his Faith, and to enforce his Prayers, and prevail with God for the Honour of his holy Name, to hear and help him. g Either, 1. That dwelleſt in thy Tabernacle and Ark, which is called Iſrael's glory, 1 Sam. 4. 21. and the place where God was praiſed, Iſa. 64. 11. Or 2. That receiveſt and rightly poſſeſſeth the praiſes of Iſrael; whom thy people are perpetually praiſing for one Mercy or another; and therefore I truſt, I alſo ſhall have occaſion to praiſe thee. But becauſe this Hebrew Verb when it is uſed Tranſitively, and is taken for inhabiting is generally, as far as I have obſerved, Conſtrued with a Prepoſition, which here it is not, this Verſe may ſeem to be better rendred thus, as it is by divers Learned men. But thou abideſt, or perſevereſt, or Continueſt to be (as this Verb is uſed, Pſal. 9. 7. and 55. 19. and 102. 12.) Holy, (notwithſtanding thy preſent neglect of my Prayers and Miſeries) O the praiſes, Or, O thou who art the praiſes (Or, and the praiſes, (i. e.) the great Cauſe and Object of the praiſes) of Iſrael, (i. e.) whom Iſrael ſolemnly and uſually praiſed, Deut. 10. 21. Jer. 17. 14.

4 Our Fathers truſted in thee: they truſted, and thou didſt deliver them h.

h This he adds for the Reaſons mentioned in the firſt Note, v. 3.

* Pſal. 25. 2, 3. & 31. 1. Iſa. 49.23. Rom.9.33.

5 They cryed unto thee, and were delivered: * they truſted in thee and were not confounded i.

i (i. e.) Not diſappointed of that for which they prayed and hoped.

6 But I am a Worm k and no man; a reproach of men, and deſpiſed of the people l.

k Our Fathers were Honoured by thee and by others, becauſe of thy appearance for their defence and deliverance, but I am treated like a Worm, (i. e.) Neglected and deſpiſed, both by thee who doſt not afford me Help, and by the men of my Age and Nation; as it follows. For the Phraſe ſee Job 25. 6. Iſa. 41. 14. l Not only of the great Men, but alſo of the common People. Which doth not ſo truly agree to David (who, though he was hated and perſecuted by Saul and his Courtiers, was Honoured and Beloved by the Body of the people) as to Chriſt, Compare Iſa. 53. 2, 3.

* Mat. 27. 39.

† Heb. He rolled himſelf on the LORD.
‖ Or, if he delight in me.

8 * † He truſted on the LORD q, that he would deliver him r; let him deliver him, ‖ ſeeing he delighted in him s.

q He Rolled himſelf upon the Lord. Where they ſeem to Scoff not only at the thing, but at the Expreſſion. Their Sence is, He pretended that he did wholly lean and reſt himſelf, and caſt his cares upon God, and quietly and confidently commit all his Affairs to his Providence, aſſuring himſelf of an happy Iſſue from him. r Or, without any Supplement, let him deliver him, as it follows, though the Hebrew words be differing. And ſo the ſame thing is twice repeated to ſhew both the Vehemency of their Hatred, and their Confidence of Succeſs againſt him. They thought his Caſe deſperate, and paſt all hope and Remedy. s As he uſeth to alledge and boaſt, but how vainly the Event now ſheweth.

9 But thou art he that took me out of the Womb t; thou ‖ didſt make me hope u when I was upon my mothers breaſts x.

t This is noted as an Effect of God's wonderful and gracious Providence. And although this be a Mercy which God grants to all mankind, yet it may well be alledged here, partly in way of gratitude for this great, though common Mercy; nothing being more reaſonable and uſual than for David and other holy men to praiſe God for ſuch Bleſſings; and partly as an Argument to encourage himſelf. to expect and to prevail with God, to grant him the Deliverance which now he deſires, becauſe he had formerly delivered him: This being a very common Argument, See 1 Sam. 17. 37. 2 Cor. 1. 10. But this is applicable to Chriſt in a ſingular manner, not, as a late learned Writer takes it, that God ſeparated him from the Womb, but that God did bring him out (as the word properly ſignifies) of the Womb, to wit, immediately and by himſelf, and without the help of any Man, by the miraculous Operation of the Holy Ghoſt, which made him there, or elſe he could never have been brought thence. u Or, Truſt: (i. e.) Thou didſt give me ſufficient ground for Hope and Truſt, if I had then been capable of acting that Grace, becauſe of thy wonderful and watchful Care over me, in that weak and helpleſs State. Which was eminently true of Chriſt, whom God ſo miraculouſly preſerved and provided for in his Infancy; the Hiſtory whereof we read, Mat. 2. It is not ſtrange that Hope is figuratively aſcribed to Infants, ſeeing even the Brute-Creatures are ſaid to Hope, Rom. 8. 20. and to wait and Cry to God, Pſal. 145. 15. and 137. 9. x (i. e.) When I was a ſucking Child. Which may be properly underſtood.

* Pſ. 71.6.

10 * I was caſt upon thee y from the Womb: thou art my God from my Mothers belly.

y I was like one forſaken by his Parent, and caſt wholly upon thy Providence. I had no Father upon Earth; and my Mother was poor and helpleſs.

† Heb. not a helper.

11 Be not far from me z, for trouble is near a; for there is † none to help b.

z To wit, as to affection and ſuccour. a At hand and ready to ſwallow me up. And therefore if thou doſt not ſpeedily deliver me it will be too late. Which is an Argument that David oft uſeth, es Pſal. 6. 5. and 88. 11. &c. q Thy help therefore will be the more ſeaſonable, becauſe it is moſt neceſſary, and thou wiltſt have the more of Glory by it, becauſe it will appear that it is thy work alone.

12 Many bulls c have compaſſed me: ſtrong bulls of Baſhan d have beſet me round.

c Wicked and violent, and potent Enemies; for ſuch are ſo called, Ezek. 39. 18. Amos 4. 1. d (i. e.) Fat and Luſtly, as the the Cattel there bred were, Deut. 3. 13. and 32. 14. and therefore fierce and furious.

13 They † gaped upon me with their mouths e, as a ravening and a roaring lyon. † Heb. opened their mouths againſt me.

e Partly to affright me, and principally to tear and devour me, as the following Metaphor explains it. Otherwiſe it might be underſtood of their Crying out with loud and earneſt Voyces, that he might be Condemned and put to Death.

14 I am poured out like water f, and all my bones are || out of joynt g: my heart h is like wax i; it is melted in the midſt of my bowels. || Or, ſundred.

f My Heart faileth, my Spirits are ſpent and gone like water which once ſpilt can never be recovered; my very fleſh is melted within me, and I am become as weak as Water. See the like Phraſe Joſ. 7. 5. and Compare 2 Sam. 14. 14. Job 14. 11. g I am as weak and unable to move or help my ſelf, and withal as full of Torment, as if I were upon a Rack, and all my bones were disjoynted. Or, all my bones are ſeparated, one from another; as they were in ſome ſort in Chriſt, by the ſtretching of his Body upon the Croſs. h The ſeat of Life and fountain which ſupplies Spirits, and Vigour to the whole Body. i Melted, as it follows, through fear and overwhelming grief, Compare Pſal. 68. 2. and 97. 5.

15 My ſtrength is dryed like a potſherd k, and my tongue cleaveth to my jaws l, and thou haſt brought me into the duſt of death m.

k I have in a manner no more Radical moiſture left in me, than is in a dry potſheard. l Through that exceſſive thirſt and drought. See John 19. 20. m Partly by thy Providence, delivering me into the power of mine Enemies, and partly by thy Terrors in my Mind and Soul.

16 For dogs n have compaſſed me; the aſſembly of the wicked o have incloſed me; they pierced my hands and my feet p.

n So he calls his Enemies for their vileneſs and filthyneſs, for their inſatiable Greedineſs, and implacable fury and fierceneſs againſt him. o He explains what he means by Dogs, even wicked men, who are oft ſo called, not ſome few of them ſingly, but the whole Company or Congregation of them; whereby may be noted, either their great Numbers, or their conſulting and conſpiring together, as it were in a lawful aſſembly. Which was moſt literally and eminently fulfilled in Chriſt. p Theſe words cannot with any probability be applied to David, nor to the attempts of his Enemies upon him; for their deſign was not to Torment his Hands, or Feet, but to take away his Life. And if it be pretended that it is to be underſtood of him in a Metaphorical Sence, it muſt be Conſidered, that it is ſo uncouth and unuſual a Metaphor, that thoſe who are of this Mind cannot produce any one example of this Metaphor, either in Scripture or in other Authors, nor are they able to make any tolerable Sence of it, but are forced to wreſt and ſtrain the Words. But what need is there of ſuch forced Metaphors, when this was moſt properly and literally verified in Chriſt, whoſe Hands and Feet were really pierced and nailed to the Croſs, according to the manner of the Roman Crucifixions, to whom therefore this is applied in the New Teſtament. See Mat. 27. 35. Mark 15. 24. Luke 23. 33. John 19. 18, 23, 37.

* Mat. 15. 29. John 19. 37. 17 I may tell all my bones q: * they look and ſtare upon me r.

q Partly through my Leanneſs cauſed by exceſſive grief, which is much more Credible of Chriſt than of David; and partly by my being ſtretched out upon the Croſs. r To wit, with Delight and Complacency in my Calamities, as this Prhaſe is uſed, Pſal. 35. 21. and 37. 34. and 54. 7. and 59. 10. Obad. v. 12. Compare Luke 23. 35.

18 They part my garments among them, and caſt lots upon my veſture s.

s This alſo cannot be applied to David, without an uncouth and ſtrained Metaphor, but was literally fulfilled in Chriſt, Mat. 27. 35. John 19. 24.

19 But be not thou far from me, O LORD; O my ſtrength haſt thee to help me.

† Heb. my only one. * Pſal. 35. 17. † Heb. from the hand. 20 Deliver my ſoul from the ſword t: † * my darling from the † power x of the dog.

t (i. e.) From the rage and violence of mine Enemies, as the next Clauſe explains it, and as the Sword is oft taken in Scripture. See Jer. 25. 16. 27. 29. Ezek. 38. 21. u Heb. My one, or only One; to wit, his Soul, as he now ſaid: which he ſo calls, either becauſe it was very dear to him: Or rather becauſe it was left alone and deſtitute of Friends and Helpers; for ſo this word is uſed, Pſal. 25. 16. and 35. 17. x Heb. the hand: Which is oft put for Power, and in that Sence is aſcribed to a Flame, Iſa. 47. 14. and to Evil, Hab. 2. 9.

21 Save me from the lyons y mouth, for thou haſt heard me z from the horns of the unicorn a.

y Either the Devil, that raging and roaring Lyon; who did many ways aſſault and annoy him: Or his Lyon-like Enemies. z (i. e.) Anſwered and delivered me. a A ſtrong and fierce and untameable Wild beaſt: though the learned are not agreed about the kind of it. See of it, Deut. 33. 17. Job 39. 9, 10. Pſal. 92. 10. Iſa. 34. 7. and my Latin Synopſis on Numb. 23. 22. For it is not worth while to trouble the unlearned Reader with ſuch Diſputes.

* Heb. 2. 12 22 * I will declare b thy name c unto my brethren d: in the midſt of the congregations e will I praiſe thee.

b (i. e.) Publiſh or celebrate it; when thou haſt delivered me, thou ſhalt have the glory of it, as now thy Honour is eclipſed by my Calamities. c (i. e.) That power and faithfulneſs and goodneſs, and thoſe Perfections which thou haſt manifeſted on my behalf. d The ſame whom he calls the Congregation in the next Clauſe, and the ſeed of Jacob and Iſrael in the next Verſe. Which alſo doth not ſo fitly agree to David, who never to my remembrance gives this Title to any, but ſuch as were near a-kin to him, as it doth to Chriſt, who extendeth this name to all his Diſciples and Believers, Mat. 12. 48, 49. and 25. 40. and 28. 10. and to whom this very Text is applied. Heb 2. 11, 12. e Not only privately but even in the publick Congregation.

23 Ye that fear the LORD, praiſe him f; all ye the ſeed of Jacob glorify him; and fear him, all ye the ſeed of Iſrael g.

f Partly for my ſake, and chiefly for your own benefit received by my Deliverance. g The two univerſal Particles ſeem to intimate that he ſpeaks not only of the Carnal, but alſo of the Spiritual Seed: which alſo is more than probable, by Comparing this with v. 27, 28.

24 For he hath not deſpiſed h, nor abhorred i the affliction of the afflicted: neither hath he hid his face from him k, but * when he cried unto him, he heard. * Heb. 5. 7.

h I was deſpiſed by the People, v. 6. but not by God. i (i. e.) He did not turn away his Face from it, as men do from things which they abhor, but looked upon it with Compaſſion. k To wit, for ever: for he did ſo for a time: But now, ſaith he, he hath lift up upon me the Light of his Countenance.

25 * My praiſe ſhall be of thee in the great congregation l: * I will pay my vows m before them that fear him. * Pſal. 35. 18. * Pſal. 50. 14.

l Either in the general aſſemblies of the Iſraelites, at their ſolemn Feaſts: Or in the univerſal Church, made up of Jews and Gentiles, as the following Verſes explain it. m (i. e.) Thoſe Praiſes and Services, which in my diſtreſs, I vowed to return unto thee, when thou didſt deliver me.

26 The meek n ſhall eat and be ſatisfied o: they ſhall praiſe the LORD that ſeek him p; * your q heart ſhall live r for ever s. * Pſal. 69. 32.

n (i. e.) Faithful or Godly Perſons, who are frequently called meek ones, as Pſal. 25. 9. and 76. 9. and 149. 4. Iſa. 11. 4. and 61. 1. Zeph. 2. 3. becauſe the grace of God doth ſoften and ſweeten the Hearts of Sinners, and ſubdues their Pride and paſſion, and Rebellion againſt God, and their fierceneſs towards men. Or the Poor, as this word is oft rendred; which ſeems well to ſuit this place, Partly, becauſe theſe are oppoſed to the fat ones upon Earth, v. 29. Partly, becauſe the following Eating and Satisfaction may ſeem moſt proper and acceptable to ſuch as were in want: Partly, becauſe here is an alluſion to the legal Feaſts, made of the remainders of the Sacrifices, in which the poor had a ſhare: and Partly, becauſe this well agrees to the time of Chriſt's coming, when the Body of the Jewiſh Nation were a poor and afflicted people, and the Poor eſpecially did receive the Goſpel, Mat. 11. 5. o Which is mentioned as a great Bleſſing, Joel 2. 26. as it is threatned as a grievous Curſe that men ſhould Eat and not be ſatisfied, Levit. 26. 26. Mich. 6. 14. But becauſe it was Comparatively a poor and mean thing to have ones Belly filled and ſatisfied, with that food which periſheth and paſſeth away preſently after it is received, this magnificent promiſe is doubtleſs to be underſtood, ſpiritually of thoſe ſpiritual Bleſſings, that Grace and Peace, and Comfort and full Satisfaction, which all believing and pious Souls have in the Sence of God's Love, and the pardon of their Sins, and in the influences of God's Spirit into their Souls. p That ſeek his Favour: Or that enquire after him, and Labour to know and diſcern him. Wherein poſſibly the Spirit of God may intimate to us, the neceſſity of ſeeking, and the Difficulty of finding or diſcovering God, when he ſhall appear in the Fleſh and in the Form of a Servant; which was likely to hide him from the Eyes of the Carnal, and Careleſs Jews, and not to be diſcerned, but by thoſe that were ſtudious and inquiſitive concerning the mind of God revealed in the Scriptures, conrerning that matter. q (i. e.) Their: For he ſpeaks of the ſame Perſons ſtill, though their be a change from the third to the ſecond Perſon, as is uſual in theſe poetical and prophetical Books of Scripture. r (i. e.) Shall be greatly Refreſhed and Comforted; Life being oft put for an Happy and Comfortable Life, as 1 Kings 1. 25. Pſal. 34. 12. in which reſpect Jacobs Heart or Spirit is ſaid to have revived, Gen. 45. 27. as on the contrary Nabals Heart was ſaid to have died within him, 1 Sam. 25. 37. when it was oppreſſed with great ſadneſs. s Your Comfort ſhall be ſhort and Tranſitory, as worldly Comforts are, but everlaſting.

27 * All the ends of the world t ſhall remember u and turn unto the LORD x; and all the kindreds y of the nations ſhall worſhip before thee. * Pſal. 2. 8. & 72. 11. & 86. 9.

t (i. e.) All Nations from one end of the World to the other. So this is an evident Prophecy of the calling of the Gentiles to the knowledge of God and Chriſt by thy Goſpel, and Conſequently a clear Proof, that this Pſalm doth directly and immediately ſpeak of Chriſt; to whom alone, and not to David, this and divers other paſſages of it, do manifeſtly belong. u It is not particularly expreſſed, what they ſhould remember, becauſe there were ſeveral things, that ſhould and would be remembred by them; which were likely to occaſion their turning to the Lord. They ſhall remember their former and manifold Wickedneſs with Grief and Shame, and Fear; and particularly their ſin and folly, in worſhipping dead and impotent Idols, that never did nor could do them, either good or hurt: They ſhall remember that God who did make lively Impreſſions upon their Minds, which yet they had in great meaſure blotted out and forgotten, but now by the preaching of the Goſpel they ſhall be revived: They ſhall remember their great and manifold Obligations to God, which they had quite forgotten, his Patience and Goodneſs in ſparing them ſo long, in the midſt of all their Impieties, and in revealing his Goſpel to them, and giving his Son for them: They ſhall remember the gracious Words and glorious Works of Chriſt, and what he did, and ſuffered for them; which poſſibly divers of them had been Eye and Ear-witneſſes of in Judea (although, with the unbelieving Jews, they deſpiſed and miſconſtrued them,) and others had heard the ſame, and tydings of them. x Unto the only true God, and unto Jeſus Chriſt, to whom this Name of Jehovah is oft-times aſcribed in Scripture. y Heb. all the Families. Which is not to be underſtood ſtrictly, of every particular Perſon and Family, but of all ſorts, and of great numbers of them; as ſuch univerſal Phraſes are very frequently taken in Scripture.

28 For the kingdom is the LORDS, and he is the governour among the nations z.

z This is added as a Reaſon, why the Gentiles ſhould be converted, becauſe God is not only the God and Lord of the Jews, but alſo of the Gentiles, and of all Nations, Rom. 3. 29, 30. And therefore though for a time he thought fit to confine his Kingdom to Iſrael, yet he had reſolved in due time to enlarge his Kingdom, and to ſet up his Throne and Government in the Gentile World, which were no leſs Created and Redeemed by him, than the Jews. Compare Zech. 13. 2. and 14. 9.

29 All a they that be fat upon the earth b ſhall eat c and worſhip d; all they that go down to the duſt e ſhall bow before him, and none can keep alive his own ſoul f.

a (i. e.) Many of them, as the word all is oft uſed, as Pſal. 72. 11. Mat. 3. 5. and 17. 11. Luke 6. 26. John 3. 26. 2 Tim. 3. 9. b (i. e.) Kings and Princes, and the great Men of the World, who are oft deſcribed by this Metaphor, as Pſal. 78. 31. Iſa. 10. 16. Compare Job 15. 27. Pſal. 17. 10. and 73. 7. Whoſe Converſion to Chriſt is alſo foretold in other places, as Pſal. 45. 12. and 72. 10, 11. Iſa. 60. 3, 5, 10. 1 Tim. 2. 1, 2. Rev. 21. 24. Theſe are oppoſed to the poor and miſerable part of the World, of whom he ſpeaks in the next words, as alſo v. 26. where ſee the firſt note. So the Senſe of the place is, That both poor and rich ſhould embrace the Goſpel. But the Syriack Interpreter renders theſe words otherwiſe, the hungry of the Earth. And another, to the ſame purpoſe, thoſe that are turned to Aſhes (for which I ſhould rather ſay, they that lye down in Aſhes, which is an uſual deſcription of poor, afflicted, and humbled Perſons) on the ground. For the firſt Hebrew word, rendred fat, with the change but of one point, ſignifies Aſhes. c And be ſatisfied, as it was more fully expreſſed, v. 26. ſhall feed upon the bread of Life, Chriſt and all his benefits. d This is added to explain the former word, and to ſhew what kind of Eating he ſpoke of, not of a Carnal, but of a Spiritual Feaſt. e They that languiſh and draw nigh to Death, through Poverty or Miſery, or anguiſh of Mind and Conſcience: For ſuch are oft ſaid to go down into, or to ſit in the Duſt, as Job 30. 19. Pſal. 44. 25. and 113. 7. Iſa. 29. 4. and 47. 1. Theſe may be oppoſed to the fat ones mentioned in the firſt Clauſe of the Verſe. f This may ſeem to be a further deſcription of the ſame Perſons, and an aggravation of their miſerable Condition, from this Circumſtance that it was not in their Power to help themſelves; their Soul was going down to the Duſt, as he ſaid in the laſt foregoing Clauſe, and now he adds that none of them could ſtop it, or keep himſelf alive; ſo that their Caſe was wholly deſperate as to themſelves; and this drove them out of themſelves, to ſeek relief from God, and to receive Jeſus Chriſt and the Goſpel of Salvation gladly. Heb. and he who (the Pronoun Relative being here underſtood, as it is in very many places) doth not, or cannot quicken, or enliven his own Soul, (i. e.) himſelf, as the Soul is oft taken; and quickening may be put either for nouriſhing, as Iſa. 7. 21. or for comforting, as here v. 26. or preſerving Life, whether Temporal or Spiritual, and Eternal, as Gen. 19. 19. Ezek. 13. 19. and 18. 27. But theſe words are and may be rendred otherwiſe, and that very agreeably to the Hebrew Text, and the Scope of the place. Having ſaid that all Nations ſhould bow before him, (i. e.) before Chriſt and unto Chriſt, whom they ſhould own as their Lord and Saviour, he now adds theſe Words, Either, 1. As a Reaſon why they did receive him, or believe in him, becauſe (for ſo the Particle Vau is frequently rendred, as 1 Kings 1. 21. and 18. 3, 4. Pſal. 60. 12. Iſa. 16. 2. and 64. 5. and oft elſewhere) he did not keep alive his own Soul, as he could eaſily have done, by his divine Power in ſpight of all that his Enemies could do, but freely gave himſelf to Death for them. Becauſe he laid down his Life for ſinners, which the Father had commanded him, and he had promiſed to do, therefore God loved him, John 10. 17, 18. and glorified him, and performed his Promiſe made to him upon that Condition, that if he did make his Soul an offering for ſin, he ſhould ſee his ſeed, &c. Iſa. 53. 10. Or, 2. As an Amplification or Commendation of the Faith of the Gentiles, in coming and bowing to Chriſt, although (for ſo alſo the Hebrew Vau is oft uſed, as Pſal. 99. 8. Prov. 26. 24. Eccleſ. 9. 16.) he did not keep alive his own Soul, but laid down his own Life, and ſuffered himſelf to be killed by wicked men: Which was one principal Reaſon, why the Jews would not believe on him, as is noted, Mat. 27. 40, 42, 43. and therefore was a juſt Commendation to the Gentiles, that notwithſtanding this great ſtumbling Block, believed on him. But this I propoſe with Submiſſion. Only it may be obſerved that this laſt Clauſe of the Verſe in the Hebrew, is in the ſingular number, and therefore more likely to belong to him, immediately going before it, which is of the ſame number, than to the other preceding Clauſes, which are all expreſſed in the plural number. And though I know Enallage of numbers, be very uſual, yet they are not to be ſuppoſed without neceſſity.

30 A ſeed g ſhall ſerve him; it ſhall be accounted to the LORD for a generation h.

g Chriſt ſhall not want a ſeed or poſterity, Heb. 2. 13. For though the Jewiſh Nation ſhould generally reject and forſake him, which may ſeem to be here implied, Chriſt ſhall have many Diſciples or followers, and the Gentiles ſhall come in their ſtead. Compare this promiſe with that, he ſhall ſee his Seed, Iſa. 53. 10. Or, their Seed, (i. e.) The ſeed of the Gentile Worſhippers laſt mentioned. Chriſtian Religion ſhall not be the buſineſs of one Age, but, as the Gentiles ſhall believe in Chriſt, ſo ſhall their poſterity in ſucceeding Generations: This being Gods uſual method, to take Children into Covenant with their Parents, of which ſee Deut. 10. 15. and 30. 19. Pſal. 69. 36. Iſa. 43. 5. and 44. 3. And as when the Jews refuſed Chriſt, their Children were caſt out of Covenant with them; ſo when the Gentiles embraced the Goſpel-Covenant, their Children were admitted with them. h That believing ſeed ſhall be Reputed both by God and Men, The Generation, or Children, or People of the Lord, as the Jews formerly were. But upon the Jews Contempt of Chriſt and the Goſpel, the Gentiles ſhall come in their ſtead, and enjoy their Titles and Priviledges. Compare this place with Pſal. 87. 5.

31 They i ſhall come k, and ſhall declare his righteouſneſs l unto a people that ſhall be born m, that he hath done this n.

i. Either, the Converts and Worſhippers, v. 27. 29. Or their ſeed laſt mentioned, v. 30. Or this may be indefinitely ſpoken as ſuch Verbs are oft uſed, they ſhall come, (i. e.) Some or other ſhall come and do the Work here mentioned, to wit, the Apoſtles and Miniſters of the Goſpel. k To wit, from Judea and Jeruſalem (from whence the Goſpel was firſt to go forth) to the Gentile World, to the ſeveral parts whereof the Apoſtles went upon this Errand. l Gods Righteouſneſs: Either, 1. His wonderful grace and mercy to mankind, in giving them Chriſt and the Goſpel; for Righteouſneſs is oft put for Mercy or Kindneſs, as hath been noted again and again. Or, 2. That Righteouſneſs which God hath appointed for the juſtification of Sinners, called the Righteouſneſs of Faith, Rom. 3. 21, 22. Philip. 3. 9. which the Jews were ignorant of and would not ſubmit to, Rom. 10. 3. but the Gentiles joyfully embraced; or 3. His truth or faithfulneſs, (which is very frequently, and fitly called Righteouſneſs,) in the performance of thoſe exceeding great and precious Promiſes made, and recorded in the Old Teſtament, and eſpecially thoſe two, concerning the ſending of the Meſſias, and concerning the calling of the Gentiles. m Either, 1. Spiritually, (i. e.) Born again: for Regeneration is oft called a Birth, as Pſal. 87. 4, 5. John 1. 13. 1 Pet. 1. 23. and a Creation, Pſal. 102. 18. Or rather, 2. Naturally, (i. e.) Unto ſucceeding Generations. Whereby David gives us a Key to underſtand this Pſalm, and teacheth us that he ſpeaks not here of himſelf, or of the Occurrences of his times, but of things which were to be done in after-Ages, even of the ſpreading of the Goſpel among the Gentiles, in the time of the New Teſtament. n (i. e.) They ſhall declare that this is the work of God, and not of Man, and carried on by his only power in the World, againſt all the Wit and force of Men. Or rather, becauſe (this being added as a Proof or Demonſtration of that Righteouſneſs of God now mentioned) He (i. e. the Lord, plainly underſtood here, and expreſſed in the foregoing Verſe) hath done or wrought it, to wit, his Righteouſneſs. (i. e.) He hath executed with his Hand, what he ſpake with his Mouth; he hath demonſtrated the truth of his Promiſes by his Actions, and by the Accompliſhment of them.

PSAL. XXIII.

The ARGUMENT.

THe matter of this Pſalm, gives us ſome general Diſcovery of the time of its writing; which was when David was delivered out of his Diſtreſſes, and quietly ſettled in his Kingdom.

David deſcribeth his own Happineſs, 1. both in Temporal 2. and in Spiritual things, 3—5. His confidence in Gods Mercy, and vows to dwell in his Houſe for ever, 6.

a He hath ſhewed himſelf to be ſo by his gracious Providences towards me, and for me: and he hath taken upon him, that Office and Relation to me, by his entring into Covenant with me, whereby he hath engaged himſelf to rule, and feed, and preſerve and heal me, and do all which Shepherds do, or are oblig'd to do to their Flocks: which David very well underſtood, and had doubtleſs carefully performed his Duty to his Sheep; and therefore he ſtrengthens his Faith by this Conſideration, that God was his Shepherd; and as God was a much better Shepherd than he, or any man could be, ſo he might confidently expect more than ordinary Benefits from his Conduct. b To wit, any thing which is really neceſſary for me, either for this Life or for the next. But fooliſh man may think many things to be neceſſary for him, which the all-wiſe God knoweth to be not only unneceſſary but hurtful, and therefore mercifully denies what men ignorantly deſire to their hurt.

PSAL. XXIV.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm is generally and probably thought to have been Compoſed by David upon that ſolemn Occaſion, of bringing the Ark of God from the Houſe of Obed-Edom, into the Tabernacle which David had built for it, 2 Sam. 6. Wherein he hath a further Proſpect even to the Temple which he earneſtly deſired, and intended to build, and which he knew would be built by his Son. And when this was done, and the Ark brought into it, this Pſalm was to be ſung, and indeed to this time it ſeems chiefly directed. For Davids Pſalms were not only uſed by himſelf upon the firſt Occaſions for which he made them, but they were committed to the Prefects of ſacred Muſick, for the uſe of the Church in all ſucceeding times. And being a Prophet, he ſpeaks, as the Prophets uſed, of things to come, as if they were already preſent, and turns his Speech to the Temple, and its Gates as if they were now built. Moreover becauſe the Tabernacle and Temple and Ark were manifeſt Types of Chriſt, and of his Church, and of the place and ſtate of Heavenly Glory, David extended his thoughts to them alſo, or at leaſt the Holy Ghoſt deſigned to comprehend them under theſe Typical Expreſſions.

A Pſalm of David.

David acknowledgeth Gods Sovereignty over the World, 1, 2. A Deſcription of the Perſons that ſhall be of his Spiritual Kingdom, 3, 4. Their Bleſſing, 5, 6. An Exhortation to receive it, 7, 8, 9. Who the King of Glory is, 10.

* Ex. 9. 29. & 19. 5. Deut. 10. 14. Job 41. 11. Pſ. 50. 12. 1 Cor. 10. 26, 28.

1 THE * earth is the LORDS, and the fulneſs thereof a: the world, and they that dwell therein.

a All the Creatures, and eſpecially the Inhabitants wherewith it is repleniſhed. Gods general Dominion over, and Intereſt in all perſons and places, ſeems to be here premiſed and aſſerted, Either, 1. To ſhew his right to chuſe any Nation whom he pleaſed to be his peculiar people: Which priviledge being conferred upon the Iſraelites, was a great ſtumbling Block to the Heathen Nations. Or 2. To ſet forth the ſingular kindneſs and mercy of God to Iſrael, who choſe them out of all the Nations of the World to be near to him, and to have ſpecial acquaintance with him, although otherwiſe he had no other Relation to them, than what he had to all mankind, to wit, that of a Creator and Governour. Or, 3. To demonſtrate the Excellency of the Jewiſh Worſhip, and Religion above all others; becauſe the God whom they ſerved, was the God and Maker of the whole World, when the Gods of the Gentiles were ſorry Idols, and eſteemed by themſelves to be but local and confined Deities.

* Job 38. 6. Pſ. 104. 5. & 136. 6.

2 * For he hath founded it b upon the ſeas c, and eſtabliſhed it upon the floods c.

b Juſtly have I ſaid, that the Earth is the Lords, for he made it, and laid the Foundation of it, and that in a wonderful manner. c By the Seas and Floods, he means the whole Collection of Waters, as well the Sea and Rivers running into it, as that great Abyſs of Waters, which is contained in the Bowels of the Earth, of which ſee Gen. 7. 11. and 49. 25. 2 Pet. 3. 5. This is here mentioned as an evidence of Gods wiſe and powerful and gracious Providence, that he hath built ſo vaſt a Building upon ſo weak a foundation, as the Waters are, Mic. 6. 2. and that although the Waters are lighter than the Earth, and therefore are naturally inclined to be above it, as they were at firſt, yet God hath ſo far over ruled the inclinations of Nature, that the Waters ſhall as it were deny themſelves and run down into Channels and Caverns of the Earth, that ſo the Earth may be a convenient habitation for men and beaſts. See Gen. 1. 9. Exod. 20. 4. Pſal. 104. 6.

* Pſ. 15. 1.

3 * Who ſhall aſcend into the hill of the LORD d? and who ſhall ſtand e in his holy place f?

d To wit, Sion or Moriah, the place of Gods Sanctuary and ſpecial Preſence. This is here ſubjoyned, Either, 1. By way of Oppoſition, though God is the God of the whole World, yet he is in a peculiar manner the God of Iſrael, and to be worſhipped no where but in their holy place. Or 2. As an Inference. Having aſſerted and proved Gods Authority and Dominion over all Mankind, and conſequently their Obligations to ſerve and worſhip him, he now propoſeth a moſt neceſſary and important Queſtion, eſpecially in thoſe times, when all Nations except Iſrael, were under deep Ignorance and Errors herein, namely, where and how, and by whom God will be ſerved, and his Favour and Bleſſing may be enjoyed. The place is here deſcribed, and the qualification of the perſons in the following Verſes. e To wit, to miniſter before him, as this word is commonly uſed with reſpect either to Men, as 1 Kin. 1. 2. compared with 10. 8. Dan. 1. 5, 19. or to God, as Deut. 10. 8. and 18. 7. Dan. 7. 10. Zech. 3. 4. Standing is the poſture of Miniſters or Servants. So the Senſe is, Who ſhall ſerve God, to wit, with Gods acceptation, and to his own Advantage. f In the place which he hath ſanctified for his Service.

* Iſa. 33. 15, 16.
† Heb. the clean of Hands.

4 * † He that hath clean hands g, and a pure heart h; who hath not lift up his ſoul into vanity i, nor ſworn deceitfully k.

g Whoſe Actions and Converſations are holy and unblameable. It is here very obſervable, that the Character of a right and acceptable Worſhipper of God is not taken from his Nation and Relation to Abraham; nor from all thoſe coſtly and laborious Rites and Ceremonies of the Law, in which the generality of the Iſraelites pleaſed themſelves, but in Moral and Spiritual Duties, which moſt of them groſly neglected. h Purged from Hypocriſie, and inward Filthineſs, and careful to approve it ſelf to God, as well as to Men, ordering a Mans very Thoughts and Affections according to Gods Word. This is fitly added, becauſe a man may keep his hands clean in good meaſure, upon meer Worldly motives, or with an evil Deſign, or without any reſpect to God. i Either, 1. Who doth not worſhip Idols, which are oft called Vanities in Scripture. Or 2. Who doth not ſwear vainly or falſly, the Phraſe here being much the ſame with that in the third Commandement, of taking Gods Name in vain. But that ſeems to be a quite differing Phraſe, and the Name of God there mentioned, determines the Senſe of that general Phraſe to Oaths, which, without that addition, or ſomething equivalent is never, to my knowledge, uſed in Scripture in that ſenſe. Nor do all thoſe learned men, who ſo expound this place give one inſtance of that ſignification of this Phraſe. And for their other Argument for that Senſe, that this Clauſe is conjoyned with the next, by the Conjunction Vau, and therefore is to be explained by it, it ſeems to have no weight, becauſe the ſame Conjunction joyns the two firſt Characters together, and yet it is confeſſed that clean Hands and a pure Heart, are two diſtinct and very differing things. Or rather, 3. Who doth not immoderately value and affect, or ardently deſire (as this very Phraſe of lifting up the Soul doth oft ſignifie, as Deut. 24. 15. Pſal. 25. 1. Jer. 22. 17. and 44. 14. Ezek. 24. 25. Hoſea 4. 8.) the vain things of this preſent Life and World, ſuch as Honours, Riches, Pleaſures, and the like, which are oft called vain things, or Vanities in Scripture, as Pſal. 4. 2. and 119. 37. Eccleſ. 1. 2. and 12. 8. And this is very fitly mentioned as a Character of a truly good man, becauſe hereby he is diſtinguiſhed from all ungodly men whatſoever, whoſe inſeparable Property, this is both in the Old and New Teſtament noted to be, to love Vanity, and to ſet their Hearts chiefly upon the Good things of this Life, ſuch as Corn and Wine; Pſal. 4. 2, 6, 7. and to have their Portion in this Life, Pſal. 17. 14. and to mind Earthly things, Phil. 3. 19. and to be Friends of the World, Jam. 4. 4. and to Love the World, and the things of the World, 1 John 2. 15. Whereas good men are every where deſcribed to be ſuch as make God their Portion, Pſal. 16. 5. and prize and deſire his Favour and Service infinitely more than all the enjoyments of this Life, yea, even than Life it ſelf, Job 23. 12. Pſal. 4. 6, 7. and 63. 3. and 119. 72. and ſuch as are weaned from Earthly things, Pſal. 131. 1, 2. and have their affections ſet on things above, not on things of the Earth, Col. 3. 2. and lay not up their Treaſure in Earth, but in Heaven, Mat. 6. 19, 20. all which is directly oppoſite to this lifting up the Soul to vanity. k Heb. unto, or with deceit, (i. e.) Falſly, or with a purpoſe of deceiving or injuring others thereby. Under this Negative the contrary Affirmative is included, that he is one who when he is called to ſwear, doth ſwear in Truth, in Judgment, and in Righteouſneſs, Jer. 4. 2.

* Iſa. 45. 8.

5 He ſhall receive the bleſſing l from the LORD m, and * righteouſneſs n from the God of his ſalvation.

l (i. e.) The Bleſſings which God hath promiſed to his Church and People, to wit, Grace and Glory, and all other good things, as they are ſummed up, Pſal. 84. 11. He and he only ſhall be truly Bleſſed. m Which is added ſignificantly, by way of oppoſition to the Bleſſings, which men received either from the Prieſts or from other men, which were oftentimes given unto unworthy perſons, and in that Caſe were without any effect or benefit, whereas Gods bleſſings are given only to good men, and are always effectual for their Good. n (i. e.) The bleſſed fruit or reward of his Righteouſneſs, as the Work is oft put for the reward of it, as Levit. 19. 13. Job 7. 2. Pſal. 109. 20. Or, kindneſs or mercy, and thoſe benefits which flow from it, which are oft called by the Name of Righteouſneſs, as Judg. 5. 11. 1 Sam. 12. 7. Pſal. 48. 11. and 112. 9.

|| Or, O God of Jacob.

6 This is the generation o of them that ſeek him p, that ſeek thy face q, || O Jacob r. Selah.

o The true Progeny which God regards. Whereby he reflects upon them, who boaſted of and truſted to their carnal Generation or Deſcent from Jacob. p To wit, God, mentioned in the end of v. 5. or his Face, as it is more fully expreſſed in the next Clauſe, (i. e.) That make it their Care and Study to know him and his Mind and Will, and to pleaſe and ſerve him, as this Phraſe is uſually underſtood. q (i. e.) His Face, by a familiar change of the perſon; of which many Inſtances have been already Noted, and his Face, (i. e.) His Grace and Favour, which is oft called Gods Face, as Gen. 4. 14. Exod. 33. 14, 15. Pſal. 16. 11. and 17. 2. and 44. 3. And ſo this phraſe is uſed, 2 Chron. 7. 14. Pſal. 27. 8. Hoſ. 5. 15. r So the Senſe is, that ſeek the true Church, here called Jacob; that deſire the knowledge of it, and Converſation with it, in which Senſe many are ſaid to ſeek Solomons Face, as the phraſe is in the Hebrew, 1 Kings 10. 24. 2 Chron. 9. 23. and the Harlot to ſeek her Lovers Face, Prov. 7. 15. And ſo this is by ſome expounded of the Gentiles, who enquired after the true Chureh, and finding it in Jacob, were deſirous to become proſelytes, and to joyn themſelves to the Church of Jacob or Iſrael. But it muſt be remembred that the Pſalmiſt is not here ſpeaking of the calling of the Gentiles, but only of the character or qualification of the true Jacobites or Iſraelites, who cannot conveniently be ſaid to ſeek the Face of Jacob, (i. e.) their own. And the phraſe of ſeeking the face of Jacob or of the Church, is no where uſed in Scripture. Or, as it is in the Margent, O God of Jacob. But that ſeems to be too large a Supplement. Or, this is Jacob, the Pronoun this being eaſily underſtood out of the beginning of the Verſe. Or, the Generation (which may in the ſame manner be ſupplied) of Jacob, Jacob being here put not for the perſon, but for the poſterity of Jacob, as it is Gen. 49. 7. Numb. 23. 7, 10, 23. Deut. 32. 9. Pſal. 14. 7. or for the Church or people of God, which is oft called Jacob or Iſrael, as Iſa. 14. 1. and 41. 8. and 44. 1, 5, 21. &c. So the Senſe is, this and this only is the true Jacob or Iſrael, or Church of God, and all others are ſo only in Name and Title, although they be deſcended lineally from him. Or, in Jacob, the Particle in being here underſtood, as it is in Pſal. 2. 12. and 17. 12. and in many other places. So the Senſe of the place is, this is the true Generation of them that ſeek Gods Face in Jacob. (i. e.) Either in Jacobs Land, or Sanctuary, the only place where God was to be ſought: Or, among the Jacobites, or Iſraelites. By which he inſinuates, what is expreſſed, Rom. 9. 6. that, all are not Iſrael, that are of Iſrael, and that all were not Iſraelites indeed that were ſprung from Jacob, but only thoſe of them who were ſuch as he deſcribed, v. 4. Compare John 1. 47. Rom. 2. 28, 29.

*Pſ. 98.8. 7 * Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lift up, ye everlaſting doors s, and the King of glory t ſhall come in.

t The queſtion was put; Who ſhall aſcend into Gods Hill and Holy place, v. 3. To which Anſwer hath been given, and the Perſons deſcribed, v. 4, 5, 6. But becauſe there ſtill were impediments in the way, and there were Gates and Doors to this Holy place, to ſhut out thoſe who would aſcend thither, therefore he poetically ſpeaks to thoſe Gates, to open and let in the King of Glory, who would make way for his Subjects and followers. Here is a Repreſentation of a Triumphant entrance of a King into his Royal City and Palace; for which the Gates uſe to be enlarged, or at leaſt wide opened. He ſpeaks here of the Gates and Doors, Either, 1. Of his Royal City of Sion, through which the Ark was at this time to be brought to the Tabernacle, which David had built for it, called Everlaſting; either from the ſolidity and durableneſs of the matter, or from Davids Deſires and Hopes, that God would make them ſuch in ſome ſort, becauſe he loved the Gates of Sion, Pſal. 87. 2. Or rather, 2. Of the Temple, which by Faith and the Spirit of Prophecy, he beheld as already built, and accordingly addreſſeth his Speech to it, whoſe Doors he calls Everlaſting, not ſo much becauſe they were made of ſtrong and durable Materials, as in Oppoſition of thoſe of the Tabernacle, which were removed from place to place, whereas the Temple and its Doors were conſtantly fixed in one place; and if the ſins of Iſrael did not hinder, were to abide there for ever, (i. e.) as long as the Moſaical Diſpenſation was to laſt, or until the coming of the Meſſias, as that Phraſe is very commonly taken in the Old Teſtament. Theſe Gates he bids lift up their Heads, or Tops, either by alluſion to thoſe Gates which have a Portcullis at the top of them, which may be let down or taken up, and accordingly makes the Entrance either higher and lower: Or, that by this figurative Addreſs to the Gates, he might ſignifie the Duty of the People, to make their Gates higher and wider, to give their King a more magnificent entrance. But though this be the litteral ſenſe of the place, yet there is alſo a myſtical ſenſe of it, and that too deſigned by the Holy Ghoſt. And as the Temple was undoubtedly a Type of Chriſt, and of his Church, and of Heaven it ſelf; ſo this place may alſo contain a Repreſentation, either of Chriſts entrance into his Church, or into the Hearts of his faithful People, who are here commanded to ſet open their Hearts and Souls, which are not unfitly called Everlaſting Doors, for his Reception: Or of his Aſcenſion into Heaven, where the Saints or Angels are poetically introduced as preparing the way, and opening the Heavenly Gates to receive their Lord and King, returning to his Royal Habitation, with Triumph and Glory. Compare Pſal. 47. 5. and 68. 25. Acts 2. 33. Eph. 4. 8. t The glorious King Jehovah, who dwelt in the Temple, and between the Cherubims: Or the Meſſias, the King of Iſrael, and of his Church, called the King, or Lord of Glory, 1 Cor. 2. 8. Jam. 2. 1. both for that Glory which is inherent in him, and that which is purchaſed by him for his Members.

8 Who is the King of glory u? the LORD ſtrong and mighty, the LORD mighty in battle x.

u This ſeems to be a Prolepſis, or removal of an Objection: You will ſay, What is the cauſe of this imperious Call? and why, or for whom muſt thoſe Gates be opened, in ſo ſolemn and extraordinary a manner? x This contains an Anſwer to the Queſtion, He is no ordinary Perſon, no meaner and no other than Jehovah, who hath given ſo many Proofs of his Almightineſs, who hath ſubdued all his Enemies, and is now returned in Triumph. Here is in this, and the foregoing Verſe, a ſacred Dialogue between ſeveral Perſons. And ſome ſuppoſe that the Sacred Muſicians, which attended upon the Service of the Ark and Tabernacle, and were doubtleſs employed in this Solemnity, 2 Sam. 6. 5. were divided into two Quires, whereof one ſpake the former, and the other the latter Verſe.

9 Lift up your heads, O ye gates, even lift them up, ye everlaſting doors, and the King of glory ſhall come in y.

y The ſame Verſe is repeated again, partly to ſhame and awaken the dulneſs of mankind, who are ſo hardly brought to a ſerious preparation for ſuch Solemnities; and partly, to ſignifie the great worth and importance of the matter, contained under theſe Expreſſions.

10 Who is this King of glory? the LORD of hoſts z, he is the King of glory, Selah.

z Under whoſe Command are all the Hoſts of Heaven and Earth, Angels and Men, and all other Creatures.

PSAL. XXV.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm ſeems to have been Compoſed, when David was under ſome ſtraights and preſſures, when his outward afflictions were accompanied with inward horrors of Conſcience for his Sins, by which he had forfeited Gods favour, and procured theſe Calamities to himſelf.

David being diſtreſſed by his Enemies, taketh his refuge in God, 1—6. Prayeth for the remiſſion of the Sins of his Youth, 7. He ſheweth the Goodneſs of the Lord to the meek, to ſuch as keep his Covenant, to ſuch as fear him, 8——15. He prayeth for help in affliction, 16—18. and againſt his Enemies, 19—21. and to redeem his Church from trouble, 22.

Or, by or becauſe of thy Truth, (i. e.) Becauſe thou art Faithful, do thou lead or guide me as thou haſt promiſed to do. i (i. e.) Who haſt ſaved me formerly, and haſt engaged to ſave me, and from whom alone I expect Salvation.

6 Remember, O LORD, * † thy tender mercies, and thy loving kindneſſes k, for they have been ever of old l. * Pſ. 103. 17. & 106. 1. & 107. 1. Jer. 33. 11. † Heb. thy bowels.

k O Conſider thy own merciful Nature, and thy former manifold Favours vouchſafed to me, and to other miſerable Sinners, and do like thy ſelf. l Thou haſt been gracious to ſuch as I am, from the beginning of the World to this day, and to me in particular from my very Infancy, as he oft acknowledgeth in this Book; yea, from all Eternity thou haſt had a good Will to me, and therefore, do not now deſiſt and deſert me.

7 Remember not m * the ſins of my youth n, nor my tranſgreſſions o: according to thy mercy remember thou me, for thy goodneſs ſake p, O LORD. * Job 20. 11.

m So as to lay them to my Charge. n The ſins committed in my young and tender years, Eccleſ. 11. 9, 10. which God frequently puniſheth in riper Age, Job 13. 26. Jer. 3. 25. and therefore he now prays that God would not deal ſo with him. o Nor any of my ſucceeding or other ſins, which either have been Acted by me, or may be imputed to me. p Being a ſinner I have nothing to plead for my ſelf, but thy free Mercy and Goodneſs, which I now implore.

8 Good q and upright r is the LORD: therefore will he teach ſinners in the way s.

q (i. e.) Bountiful and gracious to ſinners, ready to do good, and delighting in it. r Or, Right, (i. e.) Holy and True, ſincere in making Promiſes, and in all his Declarations and Offers of Mercy to ſinners, and faithful in fulfilling them. s Being ſuch an one, he will not be wanting to ſuch poor ſinners as I am, but will guide them by his Word and Spirit, and gracious Providence, into the way of Life and Peace. By ſinners, he doth not underſtand all that are ſo; not ſuch as are obſtinate and Proud, and ſcornful, whom God hath declared, that he will not teach nor direct, but will leave them to the Errors and Luſts of their own Hearts, and will blind and harden them to their Ruine, as is often expreſſed in Scripture; but only ſuch as being truly ſenſible of their ſins, do humbly and earneſtly ſeek God for his Grace and Mercy, or ſuch as are Meek, as the next Verſe explains it; for theſe he will not fail to aſſiſt and Relieve.

9 The meek t will he † guide in judgment u: and the meek will he teach his way x.

† Heb. ſe to go.

t (i. e.) The humbly and lowly, ſuch as meekly ſubmit themſelves to Gods hand and word, and are willing and deſirous to be directed and governed by him. u (i. e.) In the Paths of judgment, or in the right way wherein they ſhould walk, as the next Clauſe explains this; or by the Rule of his word, which is oft called his Judgment, or Judgments. Or, with Judgment, (i. e.) with a wiſe and provident Care, and a due regard to all their Circumſtances. See Jer. 10. 25. 1 Cor. 10. 13. x Either Gods way, which God preſcribes: Or, his own way, in which he ought to walk.

10 All the paths of the LORD are mercy and truth y, unto ſuch as keep his covenant z and his teſtimonies.

y All the dealings of God with them, yea even thoſe that are afflictive, and grievous to the fleſh, are done in kindneſs and faithfulneſs to them, as being very neceſſary for them, and tending to their great advantage. z (i. e.) The Laws or Conditions required of them by his Covenant; Or, as it followes, his Teſtimonies, (i. e.) His Precepts, which are the Teſtimonies or Witneſſes of God's Will, and of mans Duty.

11 For thy names ſake a, O LORD, pardon mine iniquity: for it is great b.

a (i. e.) For the Honour of thy Goodneſs, and Truth, which is concerned herein. b And therefore none but ſuch a God can pardon it, and nothing but thy own Name can move thee to do it; and the pardoning of it, will well become ſo great and good a God, and will tend much to the Illuſtration of thy Glory, as the greatneſs and deſperateneſs of the Diſeaſe advanceth the Honour and Praiſe of the Phyſician. Or this may be urged, not as an Argument to move God, but as the Reaſon that moved him to pray ſo earneſtly, and that for God's Name ſake. Or, though (as this Particle is oft rendred, as Exod. 34. 9. Pſal. 41. 4. and elſewhere) it be great. Poſſibly he ſpeaks of his ſin againſt Uriah and Bathſheba. Or, for or though it be much or manifold: For the Hebrew word ſignifies both great and much.

12 What man is he c that feareth the LORD? him ſhall he teach in the way that he ſhall chooſe d.

c (i. e.) Whoſoever he be, whether Jew or Gentile, whether more innocent, or a greater Sinner, which is my Caſe. d (i. e.) Which God appointeth, or approveth. Or, which he, (i. e) ſuch Perſon, ſhould chuſe; for the future Tenſe is oft put Potentially, and ſo as to expreſs a Man's Duty, as Gen. 20. 9. Mal. 1. 6. and 2. 7.

The Senſe is, his Seed ſhall be Bleſſed.

His Word and Counſel, to direct and guide them in the right way, which he oft mentions here as a ſingular Bleſſing, v. 8, 9, 12. to ſhew them their Duty in all Conditions, and the way to their eternal Salvation. And ſo this may ſeem to be explained by the following Words, He will ſhew them his Covenant. And this though it was revealed, yet might be called a ſecret, becauſe of the many and deep Myſteries in it, and becauſe it is ſaid to be hid from many of them, to whom it was revealed, Mat. 11. 25. 2 Cor. 3. 13, 14, 15. and 4. 3. and it is not to be underſtood to any purpoſe, without the Illumination of their Minds, by God's Spirit, as is manifeſt from Pſal. 119. 18, 19. and many other places of Scripture. Or rather, 2. Or his gracious and fatherly Providence: Which is here ſaid to be with them, Or, as it is in the Hebrew, towards them, taking Care of them, and working for them; even then when God ſeems to frown upon them. i Or, and he will make them to know (for the Infinitive is here thought to be put for the future Tenſe of the Indicative, as it is Eccleſ. 3. 14, 15, 18. Hoſea 9. 13. and 12. 3.) his Covenant, (i. e.) He will make them clearly to underſtand it, both its Duties or Conditions, and its Bleſſings or Priviledges; neither of which ungodly Men rightly underſtand: Or, he will make them to know it by Experience, Or, by God's making it good to them; as on the contrary God threatens to make ungodly Men to know his Breach of Promiſe, Numb. 14. 34. Or, as it is in the Margent of our Bibles, and his Covenant, (is (i. e.) He hath ingaged himſelf by his Promiſe or Covenant) to make them know it, to wit, his ſecret, (i. e.) That he will manifeſt either his Word or his Favour to them.

PSAL. XXVI.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm was certainly made by David, when he was in Diſtreſs, and particularly when he was falſly accuſed, and defamed by his Adverſaries, as he frequently was by Saul, and his Courtiers: and therefore for his Vindication, he makes a ſolemn appeal to God, and a Proteſtation of his own Innocency, to which he was forced by their Clamours and Reproaches.

A Pſalm of David.

David declareth his Integrity and Innocency, 1, 2, 3. His Hatred to the Congregation of the Wicked, 4, 5. He publiſheth God's Works, 7. Loves to dwell in his Houſe, 8. He prays for Deliverance from his Enemies, 9, 10. and promiſes Thankfulneſs to God, 11, 12.

1 JUdge * a me, O LORD, for I have walked in mine integrity b: I have truſted alſo in the LORD c: therefore I ſhall not ſlide d.

* Pſal. 7. 8.

a (i. e.) Plead my Cauſe, or give Sentence for me; as this Phraſe is commonly uſed, as Pſal. 10. 18. and 43. 1. and 72. 4. Iſa. 1. 17. I can obtain no right from Men. The Supream and ſubordinate Magiſtrates, are mine implacable and reſolved Enemies. Do thou therefore do me Juſtice againſt them. b For though they accuſe me of many Crimes, they can prove none of them, and thou and mine own Conſcience, and theirs too are Witneſſes for me, that my Carriage towards them hath been innocent and unblameable. c I have committed my Cauſe and Affairs to thee, as to a juſt Judge and merciful Father, and my Hope and Truſt is fixed upon thee alone. d Therefore thou wiltſt not deceive my Truſt, but wiltſt uphold me againſt all mine Enemies. For thou haſt Promiſed to ſave thoſe that Truſt in thee. Or, that I ſhall not ſlide or fall. So this declares the matter of his Truſt.

2 * Examine me, O LORD, and prove me e; try my reins and my heart.

* Pſal. 7. 8. & 17. 3. & 66. 10. & 139. 23. Zech. 13. 9.

e Becauſe it is poſſible, that I may deceive my ſelf, and be partial in my Cauſe, or at leaſt mine Enemies will ſo judge of me, I appeal to thee, O thou Judge of Hearts, and beg that thou would ſearch and try me, by ſuch ways and means as thou ſeeſt fit, and make me known to my ſelf, and to the World, and convince mine Enemies of mine Integrity.

3 For thy loving kindneſs is before mine eyes f: and I have walked in thy truth g.

f I dare appeal to thee with this Confidence, becauſe thou knoweſt that I have a true and deep Sence of thy Loving kindneſs to me upon mine Heart, by which I have been obliged, and in a manner conſtrained to Love and Obey thee, and in all things to approve my Heart and ways to thee, and to abſtain from all ſuch evil Practices, as mine Enemies Charge me with, whereby I ſhould have forfeited thy Loving kindneſs, which I prize more than Life, Pſal. 63. 3. and expoſed my ſelf to thy juſt Diſpleaſure. My Experience of and Truſt in thy Goodneſs, doth fully ſatisfie and ſupport me, that I neither do nor need to uſe any indirect or irregular Courſes for my Relief. g (i. e.) According to thy Word, which is oft called Truth, as Pſal. 119. 142. 151. John 17. 17. 19. believing its Promiſes, and obſerving its Precepts and Directions; and not according to the Courſe of the World, as it follows.

pany, and if accidentally I came into it, yet I would not abide in it. i (i. e.) With Lyars, or falſe and deceitful Perſons, as the next Clauſe explains it. And Vanity is very frequently put for falſhood or Lying. k Into their Company, or with deſign to joyn in their Counſels or Courſes, as the ſame Word is uſed, Joſ. 23. 7. And Converſation is oft expreſſed by going out and coming in. l Heb. with ſuch as hide themſelves, covering their Crafty and wicked Deſigns with fair Pretences. I abhor ſuch Perſons and Practices; though I am accuſed to be ſuch an one.

5 I have hated the congregation of evil doers m; and will not ſit with the wicked.

m Either, 1. Their whole Ranck or Society. I have an Antipathy againſt all ſuch Perſons, without any Exception. Or, 2. To meet and joyn with them, in their Aſſemblies and Conſultations, or ſit with them, as it follows.

* Exo. 30. 20. Pſ. 73. 13. 6 I will * waſh mine hands in innocency n; ſo will I compaſs thine altar o, O LORD.

n Or, with Integrity, Or with a pure Heart and Conſcience. I will not do, as my Hypocritical Enemies do, who Content themſelves with thoſe outward waſhings of their Hands, or Bodies preſcribed in the Law, Exod. 29. 4. &c. Deut. 21. 6. Heb. 9. 10. whilſt their Hearts and Lives are filthy and abominable: But I will waſh or I have waſhed my Hands, and withal purged my Heart and Conſcience from dead Works. Compare Iſa. 1. 15, 16. 1 Tim. 2. 8. o (i. e.) Approach to thine Altar with my Sacrifices: which I could not do with any Comfort or Confidence, if I were Conſcious to my ſelf of thoſe Crimes, whereof mine Enemies accuſe me. For the Phraſe of Compaſſing the Altar, Either, 1. He alludes to ſome Levitical Cuſtom of going about the Altar, as the Prieſts did in the Oblation of their Sacrifices, and the People, eſpecially thoſe of them who were moſt devout and Zealous, who poſſibly moved from place to place, but ſtill within their own Court, that they might better diſcern what was done on the ſeveral ſides of the Altar, and ſo be the more affected with it. Or rather, 2. He implies that he would offer many Sacrifices together, which would imploy the Prieſts round about the Altar, and ſo he is ſaid to Compaſs it, becauſe the Prieſts did it in his Name, and upon his Account, as Perſons are very oft ſaid in Scripture to Offer thoſe Sacrifices, which the Prieſts offer for them.

And ſo this is the ſame thing for Subſtance, with his walking in his Integrity, expreſſed in the foregoing Verſe, as alſo v. 1. ‖ I will not only privately acknowledge, but publickly, and in the Aſſemblies of thy People celebrate thy Praiſes, both for thy Grace, inabling and inclining me to chuſe and Love, and perſevere in the ways of Holineſs and Righteouſneſs, and for thy Protection hitherto afforded to me, in the midſt of all my Dangers and Troubles, and for that well-grounded aſſurance which thou haſt given me, of thy Favour, and of my future Deliverance.

PSAL. XXVII.

The ARGUMENT.

IT is apparent from the Body of this Pſalm, that David was not yet fully delivered from the Trouble which his Enemies gave him, both by their Slaunders and other ways. But whether it belong to that Hiſtory which is recorded, 2 Sam. 21. 15, 16, 17. as the Jews conceive, whom ſome others follow, is wholly uncertain, and not neceſſary for us to know.

praiſes unto the LORD.

7 Hear, O LORD, when I cry with my voice: have mercy alſo upon me, and anſwer me.

n He will advance me above them, and give me a compleat Victory over them. o Or, of ſhouting or reſounding; (i. e.) Of Thankſgiving: Which were accompanied with the ſound of Trumpets and other Inſtruments, Numb. 10. 10. 1 Chron. 16. 41, 42. Pſal. 33. 3.

8 ‖ When thou ſaidſt p, Seek ye my face q; my heart ſaid unto thee r, thy face, LORD, will I ſeek.

‖ Or, my heart ſaid unto thee, Seek ye my face, &c.

p Either by thy Word, commanding and inviting me ſo to do: Or by thy Spirit, directing and inclining me to it. q (i. e.) Seek my Preſence and Favour, and Help, by fervent and faithful Prayer. r My heart readily and thankfully complied with the motion; and upon the incouragement of this Command, or invitation and promiſe couched in it, I reſolved I would do ſo, and do ſo at this time. But this Verſe is a little otherwiſe rendred by divers learned men. And the words lye in another Order, in the Hebrew Text, which runs thus: To thee my Heart ſaid, Thou haſt ſaid, (which Verb may well be underſtood here, as it is alſo, 1 Kings 20. 34. and as divers other Verbs are underſtood in the ſacred Text, as Levit. 24. 8. 2 Sam. 18. 12. and 23. 17. Compare with 1 Chron. 11. 19. and in many other places; which is not ſtrange in ſo conciſe and ſhort a Language, as the Hebrew is) Seek ye my Face, (This is thy great Command, ſo oft and ſo vehemently urged, as containing the very Subſtance and Foundation of all true Piety) Thy face Lord I will ſeek, I cheerfully do and will obey thy Command therein: Or the Verſe may be thus tranſlated without any Supplement, which, where it can be done, is confeſſedly the beſt way of Tranſlation, Concerning thee (as the Particle Lamed is oft uſed: Or, For; or, Inſtead of thee, as it is unqueſtionably uſed, Gen. 11. 3. Exod. 13. 16. Prov. 21. 18. (i. e.) In thy Name and Words, and according to thy Mind) My Heart ſaid, (To wit, to, or within my ſelf, as the word ſaid is frequently taken, (i. e.) I ſeriouſly conſider within my ſelf, this following Command of thine oft inculcated in thy Word, and preſs it upon my own Conſcience) Seek ye my Face; Thy Face Lord will I ſeek. Thou commandeſt it, and I will obey thee therein.

9 Hide not thy face s far from me, put not thy ſervant away t in anger: thou haſt been my help, leave me not, neither forſake me, O God of my ſalvation.

s Which I in Obedience to thy Command am now ſeeking. t To wit, from thy Face or Preſence, or from the place of thy Worſhip, from which he either now was, or formerly had been driven: Two ways God and he might be parted, either by Gods departure, or withdrawing from him, which he might do even in the place of his Worſhip; or by Gods putting him away from his Preſence. Againſt the firſt he ſeems to direct his Prayer in the firſt Clauſe, and againſt the latter in this.

10 ‖ * When my father and my mother forſake me u, ‖ then x the LORD † will take me up y.

‖ Or, for.
‖ Or, but.
* Iſa. 49. 15.
† Heb. will gather me.

u Or, left me, as being unable to help me, and rather a burden than an help to me; for which Reaſon, David deſired them to leave him, and diſpoſed of them in another place, 1 Sam. 22. Or, his Father and Mother were now Dead. Or, by his Father and Mother he may ſignifie his near Relations and Friends, which forſook him in the time of Trouble, as men uſually do. Or, the Words may be rendred, Though my Father and Mother ſhould forſake me. x Or, yet, as the Hebrew Vau frequently ſignifies. y Or, will receive me, to wit, to himſelf, as this Verb is uſed, Joſ. 20. 4. Judg. 19. 15, Mat. 23. 37.

11 * Teach me thy way z, O LORD, and lead me in † a plain path a, becauſe of † mine enemies b.

* Pſ. 25. 4. & 86. 11. & 119. 27.
† Heb. a way of plainneſs.
† Heb. thoſe which obſerve me.

z (i. e.) What Courſe I ſhall take to pleaſe thee, and to diſcharge my Duty, and to ſave my ſelf from Ruine. a Of which ſee the Note on Pſal. 26. 2. where the Hebrew words are the ſame. b That I may neither open their Mouths againſt me or Religion, by my Miſcarriages, nor fall into their Hands, by my folly, nor give them any occaſion of Triumphing over me.

12 Deliver me not over unto the will c of mine enemies: for * falſe witneſſes are riſen up againſt me, and ſuch as breath out cruelty d.

* Pſ. 35. 11.

c Or, Luſt or Deſire: Heb. Soul; which is ſo taken, Pſal. 41. 2. and 78. 18. Ezek. 16. 27. d He preſſeth his Requeſt from the quality of his Enemies, who were both falſe and cruel, and in both reſpects hateful to God and Men.

13 I had fainted e, unleſs I had believed to ſee the goodneſs of the LORD f in the land of the living g.

e Theſe words are added to compleat the Senſe: For the Speech is abrupt and imperfect, as is very uſual, not only in the Holy Scripture, but in many other Authors, in all vehement Paſſions or Commotions of Mind, ſuch as David was in at this time. Having declared what perfidious and cruel Enemies did now aſſault and encompaſs him, he now ſubjoyns what impreſſion the Thoughts thereof made upon him, and ſpeaks like one that wanted Words to expreſs, how ſad and deſperate his Condition would have been, if he had not been ſupported by Faith in Gods promiſes. f To enjoy (which is oft expreſſed by ſeeing) the Mercy which God hath promiſed me. g (i. e.) In this World, which is oft ſo called, as Job 28. 13. Pſal. 52. 5. and 116. 9. and 142. 5. Iſa. 38. 11. and 53. 8. Jer. 11. 19. Ezek. 32. 32. and is oppoſed to the Grave, which is the place of the Dead. And David was thus earneſtly deſirous of this Mercy in this Life, not becauſe he placed his Portion in theſe things, which he ſo ſolemnly diſclaims, Pſal. 17. 14. but becauſe the Truth and Glory of God, were highly concerned in making good the Promiſe of the Kingdom made to him.

14 * Wait on the LORD h: be of good courage, and ‖ he ſhall ſtrengthen thine heart i: wait, I ſay, on the LORD.

* Pſ. 31. 24. & 130. 5. Iſa. 25. 9. Hab. 2. 3.
‖ Or, let thine heart be ſtrong. [illegible] Gr.

h O my Soul: to which he now turneth his Speech; as he frequently doth in this Book. i He will uphold thee, and keep thee from fainting and ſinking under thy burdens.

PSAL. XXVIII.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm ſeems to be made upon the ſame Occaſion with the former, and is mixed, as many others of his Pſalms are, of Hopes and Fears, of Prayers and Praiſes.

David prayeth earneſtly for himſelf, 1, 2. that he might not be led away with the wicked, 3, 4. The reaſon of his Prayer, 5. He bleſſeth God for hearing him, 6—8. and prayeth for the people, 9.

A Pſalm of David.

1 UNto thee will I cry, O LORD my rock, be not ſilent a † to me: * leſt if thou be ſilent to me, I become like them that go down into the pit b.

† Heb. from me.
* Pſ. 143. 7.

a Be not deaf to my Prayers, nor dumb as to thy Anſwers to them. b (i. e.) Leſt I be in the like or ſame condition with them, (i. e.) a loſt Creature; as I ſhall certainly be, if thou doſt not ſuccour me.

2 Hear the voice of my ſupplications, when I cry unto thee: when I lift up my hands ‖ towards thy holy oracle c.

‖ Or, towards the Oracle of thy Sanctuary.

c (i. e.) Towards the Holy of Holies, which is ſo called, 1 Kin. 6. 23. Compare with 2 Chron. 3. 10. Compare alſo 1 Kings 6. 5. and 8. 6. becauſe there the Ark was; from whence God gave Oracular Anſwers to his People; and to which they accordingly directed their Prayers, not only when they drew near to it, but when they were at a diſtance from it, as Dan. 6. 10.

3 Draw me not away with the wicked d, and with the workers of iniquity: * which ſpeak peace to their neighbours, but miſchief is in their heart e.

* Pſ. 12. 2. & 55. 21. & 62. 4. Jer. 9. 8.

d The Senſe is, either 1. Do not ſuffer me to be drawn away by their Counſel or Example to imitate their evil Courſes. For God is oft ſaid to do that which he doth not effect, but only permit and order, as 2 Sam. 12. 12. Or, 2. Do not draw me into the ſame ſnares and miſchief with them; do not drag me, as thou doſt or wiltſt do all theſe Malefactors, to execution and deſtruction. Let me not dye the death of the wicked: Comp. Pſal. 26. 9. Thus drawing is uſed for drawing to death, Job 21. 33. Ezek. 32. 20. This ſeems beſt to ſuit with the following Context, wherein he imprecateth and foretelleth that deſtruction upon his Enemies, which he deprecated for himſelf. e Which are hypocritical and perfidious Perſons, whilſt I through thy Grace am upright and ſincere. Seeing then I am ſo unlike them in diſpoſition and practice, let me not be made like them in their Ruine.

4 Give them according to their deeds, and according to the wickedneſs of their endeavours f: give them after the work of their hands, render to them their deſert.

f David uſeth theſe Imprecations partly to vindicate himſelf from the ſlanders of his Enemies, who reported him to be as wicked as they were, only more cloſe and cunning therein; which if he had been, he had bitterly curſed himſelf; which it could not reaſonably be preſumed that he would do: Partly, from his great and long Experience of their implacable and incorrigible Malignity, not only againſt him, but againſt God, and his declared Will, and againſt all truly good Men, and that covered with pretences of Piety to God, and of peaceableneſs towards their Neighbours, v. 3. which made their wickedneſs more inexcuſable and deteſtable: Partly by the inſtinct and direction of Gods Spirit, by whoſe inſpiration he uttered this, as well as the reſt of the Pſalm; and partly, that hereby he might provoke them to Repentance; for this Curſe belongs only to thoſe, who ſhall obſtinately perſiſt in their wicked Courſes. Add to all this, that as Verbs of the Imperative Mood, are oft uſed by the Hebrews for Futures, ſo theſe may not be proper Imprecations, but predictions of their Deſtruction.

5 Becauſe they regard not the works of the LORD, nor the operation of his hands g, he ſhall deſtroy them, and not build them up h.

g (i. e.) The providential works of God, both for and towards his Church and People in general; the ſerious Obſervation whereof would have made them afraid of oppoſing them, and deſirous to joyn themſelves with them; and for and towards me in particular, concerning whoſe ſucceſſion to the Kingdom, God hath ſo expreſly declared his Mind and Will, and to whom he hath given ſo many, and ſuch wonderful preſervations, that they who will not acknowledge it, but continue to oppoſe it, may well be preſumed to be guilty of Rebellion againſt Gods Will, and of the Contempt of his Providence. h (i. e.) Deſtroy them utterly and irrecoverably; becauſe they wilfully ſhut their Eyes againſt the Light of Gods Word and Works.

6 Bleſſed be the LORD, becauſe he hath heard i the voice of my ſupplications.

7 The LORD is my ſtrength and my ſhield, my heart truſted in him, and I am helped: therefore my heart greatly rejoyceth, and with my ſong will I praiſe him.

i He ſpeaks of it as paſt, either becauſe God had in part heard, and anſwered him already. Or, becauſe God aſſured him by his Spirit, that he had heard and accepted his Prayers, and would aſſuredly anſwer him in due time.

8 The LORD is ‖ their ſtrength k, and he is the † ſaving ſtrength l of his anointed m.

‖ Or, his ſtrength.
† Heb. ſtrength of Salvation.

k (i. e.) The ſtrength of his people, mentioned in the next Verſe: the Relative being put before the Antecedent, which is left to be gathered out of the following matter, as it is, Numb. 24. 17. Pſal. 87. 1. Or, his ſtrength: for the Hebrew Affix Mo, which commonly is plural, is ſometimes taken ſingularly: of which ſee my Latin Synopſis here, and on Iſa. 53. 8. And his, (i. e.) Of his anointed, as the next Clauſe explains it. Or, the Words may be thus rendred, ſtrength is, or belongs to the Lord : Heb. The Lord, ſtrength is his, or to him. It is an Hebrew Pleonaſme. l Heb. The ſtrength of the Preſervations, or Deliverances, or Victories, or Salvations, (i. e.) He by whoſe ſtrength alone he hath got theſe Victories, &c. m (i. e.) Of me whom he hath anointed to be King, whom therefore he will defend, he ſpeaks of himſelf in the third Perſon, which is uſual in the Hebrew Tongue.

9 Save thy people, and bleſs thine inheritance n :
‖ Or, Rule. ‖ feed them alſo, and lift them up o for ever.

n Iſrael, for whom I pray; partly, becauſe thou haſt in ſome ſort committed them to my charge ; and partly becauſe Saul did not take due care of them. o Raiſe them out of their low and afflicted condition, in which they are, by reaſon of Sauls weakneſs and neglect, and by the prevailing power of the Philiſtins, and advance them to a ſtate of ſafety and honour, and that not for a ſeaſon, but with Conſtancy and Perpetuity, as it follows.

PSAL. XXIX.

The ARGUMENT.

IT is ſuppoſed that this Pſalm was made upon the occaſion of ſome terrible Tempeſt of Thunder and Rain; which God might poſſibly ſend in the time of Battel to aſſiſt David, and diſcomfit his Enemies; as he had done formerly upon like Occaſions. It contains an Admonition to the Potentates of the Earth, and eſpecially to thoſe who bordered upon the Land of Iſrael, that they would own and Worſhip the true God ; which he preſſeth from the great Majeſty and Power of Iſraels God above all other Gods, and particularly, from that great and glorious inſtance thereof in Thunder; which hath ſtruck the proudeſt Monarchs with the dread of that God, whom at other times they deſpiſed.

A Pſalm of David.

David exhorteth the Mighty of this World to give Glory to God, 1, 2. who manifeſteth his Power by Thunder, Lightning, and by other Creatures, 3———10. He ſheweth Gods Protection and Bleſſing of his People, 11.

*1Chr.16. 28, 29. Pſal. 96. 7, 8, 9. † Heb. ye Sons of the mighty. ‖ Or, of God.

1 GIve * unto the LORD, O † ‖ ye mighty a, give unto the LORD b glory and ſtrength c.

a Ye Potentates and Rulers of the Earth. To theſe he addreſſeth his Speech; partly, becauſe they are moſt apt to forget and contemn God, and inſolently to aſſume a kind of Deity to themſelves; and partly, becauſe their Conviction and Converſion was likely to have a great and powerful influence upon their people. b By an humble and thankful acknowledgment of it ; for other ways we can give nothing to God. c (i. e.) The glory of his ſtrength or power, which is the Attribute ſet forth in this Pſalm : Or, his glorious ſtrength.

2 Give unto the LORD † the glory due unto his name d: worſhip the LORD ‖ in the beauty of holineſs e.

d (i. e.) The Honour which he deſerves: which is to prefer him before all other Gods, and to forſake all others, and to own him as the Almighty, and the only true God. e Or, of the Sanctuary, which is commonly called by this Name; in his Holy and beautiful Houſe, as it is called, Iſa. 64. 11. the only place where he will receive Worſhip. So he exhorts them to turn Proſelytes to the Jewiſh Religion; which was their Duty and Intereſt.

3 The voice of the LORD f is upon the waters g :
‖ Or, great Waters. the God of glory thundreth, the LORD is upon ‖ many waters h.

f (i.e.) Thunder, as is manifeſt from the next Clauſe, and the following Effects : which is oft called the Lords voice, as Exod. 9. 23, 28, 29. Job 37. 21, 4, 5. Pſal. 18. 14. and 46. 6. g Either, 1. Upon the Seas; where its noiſe ſpreads far and wide, and is very terrible. But the following Verſes ſpeak of the Effects of it, upon the Earth only. Or rather, 2. Above in the Clouds, which are called Waters, Gen. 1. 7. Pſal. 18. 11. becauſe they are of a watry Subſtance. And this Circumſtance is conſiderable here, to magnifie the Divine Power, which diſplayeth it ſelf in thoſe high places, which are far above the reach of all Earthly Potentates, and from whence he can eaſily and unavoidably ſmite all that dwell upon the Earth, and will not ſubmit to him. h (i. e.) Upon the Clouds, in which there are vaſt treaſures of Water, and upon which God is ſaid to ſit or ride, Pſal. 18. 10, 11. and 104. 3.

† Heb. in Power. † Heb. in Majeſty.

4 The voice of the LORD is † powerful : the voice of the LORD is † full of majeſty i.

i Is an evident Proof of Gods Glorious Majeſty.

5 The voice of the LORD breaketh the cedars k : yea, the LORD breaketh the cedars of Lebanon l.

k By Thunder-bolts; which have oft thrown down Trees and Towers. l A place famous for ſtrong and lofty Cedars. See 2 Chron. 2. 8. Cant. 3. 9. and 5. 15.

6 He maketh them m alſo to ſkip like a calf; Lebanon
*Deut.3.9 and * Syrion n like a young unicorn o.

m The Cedars laſt mentioned; which being broken by the Thunder, the parts of them are ſuddenly and violently hurled about hither and thither. n An high Mountain beyond Jordan joyning to Lebanon : of which ſee Deut. 3. 9. and 4. 48. Lebanon and Sirion are here underſtood : Either, 1. Properly; and ſo they are ſaid to ſkip or leap, both here, and Pſal. 114. 4. by a poetical Hyperbole very uſual, both in Scripture and other Authors; which is ſo known that it is needleſs to give any Inſtances of it. Or, 2. Metonymically for the Trees or People of them, as the Wilderneſs, v. 8. may ſeem to be taken ; and as the Earth, by the ſame Figure, is frequently put for the people, which dwell in it. o Heb. Reem : Of which ſee on Numb. 23. 22. Pſal. 22. 21.

† Heb. 7 The voice of the LORD † divideth p the flames
cutteth out. of fire.

p Heb. Heweth out; (i.e.) It breaketh out of the Clouds, and thereby makes way for the Lightnings, which are ſuddenly diſperſed over the face of the Earth.

8 The voice of the LORD ſhaketh the wilderneſs q: the LORD ſhaketh the wilderneſs of Kadeſh r.

q (i. e.) Either the Trees, or rather the Beaſts of the Wilderneſs, by a Metonymy as before, v. 6. Compare this with the next Verſe. r Which he mentions as an eminent Wilderneſs, vaſt and terrible, and well known to the Iſraelites, Numb. 20. 1, 16. and wherein poſſibly they had ſeen, and obſerved ſome ſuch effects of Thunder, as are here mentioned.

9 The voice of the LORD maketh the hinds ‖ to ‖ Or, to be in part.
calve s, and diſcovereth t the foreſts : and u in his temple ‖ doth every one ſpeak of his glory. ‖ Or, every whit of it uttereth, &c.

s Through the Terror which it cauſeth, which haſtens the Birth in theſe and other places : See 1 Sam. 4. 19. He nameth the Hinds, becauſe they bring forth their young with difficulty, Job 39. 1, 2. t Heb. maketh bare, either of its Trees, which it either breaks or ſtrips off their Leaves : Or, of the Beaſts, which it forceth to run into their Dens. u Or, but. Having ſhewed the terrible effects of Gods power in other places, he now ſhews the bleſſed priviledge of Gods people, that are praiſing and glorifying God, and receiving the comfortable influences of his Grace in his Temple, when the reſt of the World are trembling under the Tokens of his Diſpleaſure. By which he ſecretly invites and perſwades the Gentiles, for their own ſafety and comfort, to own the true God, and to Worſhip him in his Sanctuary, as he did exhort them, v. 2. Or, therefore, (i. e.) Becauſe of theſe and ſuch like diſcoveries of Gods excellent Majeſty and Power, his people fear and praiſe, and adore him in his Temple.

10 The LORD ſitteth upon the flood x : yea, * the * Pſal. 10. 16.
LORD ſitteth King for ever.

x He moderateth and ruleth (which is oft ſignified by ſitting, this being the poſture of a Judge, or Ruler : of which ſee Pſal. 9. 7, 8, 9. and 47. 9. Joel 3. 12.) the moſt abundant and violent Inundations of Waters, which ſometimes fall from the Clouds upon the Earth; where they would do much miſchief if God did not prevent it. And theſe are here fitly mentioned, as being many times the Companions of great Thunders. And this may be alledged as another Reaſon, why Gods people did praiſe and worſhip him in his Temple, becauſe as he ſendeth terrible Tempeſts and Thunders, and Floods, ſo he alſo reſtrains and over-rules them. But moſt Interpreters refer this to Noahs Flood, to whom the word here uſed is elſewhere appropriated. And ſo the Words may be rendred, The Lord did ſit upon, or at the Flood, in Noahs time. When it is probable thoſe vehement Rains were accompanied with terrible Thunders. And ſo having ſpoken of the manifeſtation of Gods power, in Storms and Tempeſts in general, he takes an occaſion to run back to that antient and moſt dreadful Example of that kind, in which the Divine Power was moſt eminently ſeen. And having mentioned that inſtance, he adds, that as God ſhewed himſelf to be the King and the Judge of the World at that time, ſo he doth ſtill ſit, and will ſit as King for ever, ſending ſuch Tempeſts when it pleaſeth him. And therefore his people have great reaſon to worſhip and ſerve him.

11 The LORD will give ſtrength y unto the people ; the LORD will bleſs his people with peace z.

y To ſupport and preſerve them in the moſt dreadful Tempeſts, and conſequently in all other dangers, and againſt all their Enemies. z Though now he ſees fit to exerciſe them with ſome troubles.

PSAL. XXX.

A Pſalm and ſong a, at the dedication of the houſe of David b.

a Or, a Pſalm of Song ; (i.e.) Either, 1. A Pſalm to be ſung with the Voice to an Inſtrument. Or 2. A Pſalm of joy and praiſe: for ſo this is. And this Hebrew word, Schir, may be here taken not ſimply for a Song, but for a joyful Song, as it is, Gen. 31. 27. Exod. 15. 1. Pſal. 33. 3. and 42. 8. Prov. 25. 20. Iſa. 30. 29. Amos 8. 3, 10. b Either, 1. At the dedication of the Temple, called the Houſe, or that Houſe, eminently and emphatically. So the Chaldee Paraphraſt and the Hebrew Doctors underſtand it. And then the laſt words, of David, are to be joyned with the firſt, a Pſalm and Song. But this ſeems not probable; becauſe the Temple was not built by David, nor in his days, although he might preſcribe a Pſalm to be uſed afterwards upon that occaſion. Or, 2. At the Dedication of Davids Houſe, which was built, 2 Sam. 5. 11. and doubtleſs was dedicated, as God had commanded : See Deut. 20. 5. Nehem. 12. 27. Or, 3. At the ſecond Dedication of Davids Houſe, after it had been polluted by Abſalom and his Concubines. But there is no Law of God for any Re-Dedication of Houſes in ſuch Caſes; nor any Evidence that David did ſo. And indeed it ſeems ſtrange, if this Pſalm was made upon this occaſion ; or upon any of theſe Dedications here mentioned, that there ſhould not be one Line in it ſuitable to that occaſion. Others therefore make theſe words, the Dedication of the Houſe, not to note the Matter of this Pſalm or Song; but either, 1. The name of the Tune to which this Song was ſung, which was the ſame that David uſed at the Dedication of his Houſe : and ſo this gives us a Reaſon, why the word Song is added to that of Pſalm, and why this Pſalm was called, The Song of the Dedication. Or, 2. The time when it was ſung; which was at the Dedication of Davids Houſe. For ſuch Dedications were performed in a very ſolemn manner, with divers Rites and Prayers, and Praiſes to God, as the Nature of that Buſineſs required. And it ſeems probable from the Matter of this Pſalm, Compared with the Title, that David had about this time been delivered from ſome eminent diſtreſſes, and particularly from ſome dangerous ſickneſs : For which he here gives thanks to God, taking advantage of this publick and ſolemn occaſion.

And indeed without the Conſideration of eternal Life, the difference between the duration of the Afflictions, and of the Happineſs of God's people, were neither ſo Evident nor Conſiderable, as David here makes it. Life is oft put for a long and Happy time, as Pſal. 34. 12. and 133. 3. Prov. 3. 2. and for an Eternal and immortal Duration, 2 Tim. 1. 10. Jam. 1. 12. PSAL. XXXI.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm was Compoſed either, when David was in great Diſtreſs; Or afterwards in remembrance thereof, and of God's ſingular Goodneſs in delivering him out of it, whence it is mixed of Prayer and Praiſes, of Hopes and Fears. But what thoſe particular Troubles were, which David here ſpeaks, is only matter of Conjecture, and therefore I ſhall rather omit, than Confidently determine.

To the chief muſician, A Pſalm of David.

David prayeth for Preſervation, according to his Confidence which he putteth in God, 1———6. that he might rejoyce in his Mercy, 7, 8. He declareth what he ſuffered from his Enemies and Friends, 9—13. But Magnifieth the Care and Tenderneſs of God, 14——18. and praiſeth him for his Goodneſs to himſelf, and to the Faithful, 19———24.

1 IN thee, * O LORD, do I put my truſt, let me never be aſhamed a: * deliver me in thy righteouſneſs b.

*Pſal. 22. 5. Iſa. 49. 23. * Pſal. 143. 1.

a To wit, of my Confidence in thy Promiſes. b (i. e.) By or For: Or, according to thy Faithfulneſs and Goodneſs; both which come oft under the Name of Righteouſneſs.

2 Bow down thine ear to me, deliver me ſpeedily c: be thou † my ſtrong rock, for an houſe † of defence to ſave me.

† Heb. to me for a Rock of ſtrength. † Heb. of Fortreſſes.

c Becauſe of the greatneſs and urgency of my Danger, which is even ready to ſwallow me up.

3 For thou art my rock and my fortreſs: therefore * for thy names ſake d lead me, and guide me e.

* Pſal. 23. 3.

4 Pull me out of the net, that they have laid privily for me: for thou art my ſtrength.

d For the Glory of thy Name, (i. e.) Of thy Power and Truth, and Mercy to thy miſerable Servant. e Two words expreſſing the ſame thing with more Emphaſis: Direct me clearly, and continually in a right and ſafe Path: For without thy Conduct, I can neither diſcern the right way, or continue in it.

5 * Into thine hand f I commit my ſpirit g: thou haſt redeemed me h, O LORD God of truth i.

* Luk. 23. 46.

f (i. e.) To thy Care and Cuſtody. g (i. e.) My Soul or Life, called a Man's Spirit, as Eccleſ. 3. 21. and 12. 7. &c. Either, 1. To receive it: for my Caſe is almoſt Deſperate, and I am ready to give up the Ghoſt. Or, 2. To preſerve it from the Plots and Malice of mine Enemies. h Thou haſt delivered me formerly in great Dangers, and therefore I willingly and Cheerfully commit my ſelf to thee, for the Future. i Who haſt ſhewed thy ſelf to be ſo to me, in making good thy Promiſes.

6 I have hated them k * that regard l lying vanities m: but I truſt in the LORD.

* Jon. 2. 8.

k Their very Perſons, not ſimply, but for their Wickedneſs. Compare Pſal. 139. 21, 22. l Heb. that obſerve, to wit, with Reſpect to them, Dependence upon them, or Expectation of any good from them. m Or, moſt vain Vanities: Such as are fooliſh and deceitful, and fruitleſs. By which he underſtands, Either, 1. All Humane or Carnal Helps, any Arm of fleſh; for he that truſteth therein is pronounced Curſed, Jer. 17. 5. and therefore is hateful. Or, 2. Idols, which are oft called Vanities, as Deut. 32. 21. Jer. 2. 5. and 8. 19. &c. Or 3. Curious Arts, and all ſorts of Divinations by Stars, Or the Motions, or Inwards of living Creatures, or by the Dead: which Practices were common and prevalent among thoſe Eaſtern people, and by their Example, were too rife among the Iſraelites alſo, Iſa. 2. 6. of whom he here ſpeaks: for the Gentiles that obſerved theſe Vanities, he rather pitied than hated; but the Iſraelites that did ſo were Apoſtates from God, and profeſſed Enemies to him and his Laws, and therefore were the proper Objects of juſt hatred.

7 I will be glad, and rejoyce in thy Mercy: for thou haſt conſidered my troubles; thou haſt known n my ſoul in adverſities, n (i. e.) Loved me, and cared for me; for Words of knowledge commonly imply Affection.

8 And haſt not ſhut me up into the hand of the enemy o: * thou haſt ſet my foot in a large room p.

* Pſal. 4. 1. & 18. 19.

o Whereof I was in great and imminent Danger, if thou hadſt not delivered me. See 1 Sam. 23. 7. p Made way for me to eſcape, when I was Encompaſſed by them, and ſet me at Liberty.

9 Have mercy upon me, O LORD, for I am in trouble: mine eye is conſumed with grief q, yea, my ſoul r, and my belly s.

q With continual weeping. See on Pſal. 6. 8. r My ſorrows are not Counterfeit or ſleight, but inward and Hearty; my Mind is oppreſſed, my Heart is ready to ſink under my Burden. s (i. e.) My Bowels contained in my Belly; which are the ſeat of the Affections, and Fountains of ſupport and Nouriſhment to the whole Body. Thus the whole Man both Soul and Body, inſide and outſide, are Conſumed.

10 For my life t is ſpent with grief, and my years with ſighing: my ſtrength faileth becauſe of mine iniquity u, and my bones x are conſumed y.

t (i. e.) The time of my Life, as the next Clauſe explains it. u Either through my deep and juſt Sence of my ſins; which have provoked God to Afflict me in this manner: Or, for the puniſhment of mine iniquity, as this Word is frequently uſed. x In which my chief ſtrength lyes. y The juice and Marrow of them, being almoſt dryed up with exceſſive Grief.

* Job. 19. 13. Pſal. 38. 11. & 88. 8. 18.

11 I was a reproach z among all mine enemies, but * eſpecially among my neighbours a, and a fear b to mine acquaintance: they that did ſee me without fled from me c.

z (i. e.) The matter of their Reproaches, and Scorns. This, ſaid they, is David, anointed to be King of Iſrael, a goodly Monarch indeed, forſaken by God and Men, and in a periſhing and deſperate Condition: He pretends great Piety to God, and Loyalty to Saul, but in Truth he is a great Impoſtour, and a Traitor, and Rebel to his King. a Which aggravates their ſin, and his Miſery, Partly, becauſe they were obliged by the Laws of Neighbourhood, to perform all friendly Offices to him: and Partly, becauſe they were daily Witneſſes of his Integrity, and therefore ſinned againſt their own Knowledge. b Or, a Terror. They were afraid to give me any Countenance or Aſſiſtance, or to be ſeen in my Company; being warned by Abimelech's puniſhment for it, 1 Sam. 22. c Either, loathing me as a Monſter of men, and an unlucky Spectacle, and ſuch a Villian as mine Enemies repreſented me, and they believed me to be: Or, to prevent their own Danger and Ruine, which might be occaſioned by it.

† Heb. a Veſſel that periſheth,

12 I am forgotten d as a dead man e out of mind: I am like a † broken veſſel f.

d Whatſoever good Service I have done to the King, or Kingdom, or to any particular Perſons, Neighbours, Friends, or others, which ſometimes they have acknowledged and highly Commended, is now quite forgotten by all of them; Or, at leaſt, they carry themſelves to me, as if it were ſo. e Whoſe Name and Memory is quite loſt, within a few dayes. See Pſal. 88. 12. Eccleſ. 9. 5. f Made of Earth; which is irreparable, and uſeleſs, and therefore deſpiſed by all.

* Jer. 6. 25. & 20. 3. Lam. 2. 22.

13 For I have heard g the ſlander of many h: * fear i was on every ſide, while they took counſel together againſt me, they deviſed to take away k my life.

g Partly with my own Ears; and Partly by the Information of others. h Who reproach and defame me, as a Turbulent and ſeditious Perſon, an Enemy to the publick Peace, a Conſpirator againſt the King's Life or Dignity. i (i. e.) Juſt cauſe of Fear, even of the loſs of my Life, as appears from the next Clauſe. k To wit, unjuſtly and violently; as this Word is uſed, Gen. 34. 2. and 24. 11.

14 But I truſted in thee, O LORD: I ſaid, Thou art my God l.

l Mine by paternal Relation and Care, and Affection, and by thy Promiſe or Covenant made with me.

15 My times m are in thy hand n: deliver me from the hand of mine enemies, and from them that perſecute me.

m Either, 1. The time of my Life, how long I ſhall Live. Or, 2. My Opportunities, or fit ſeaſons, for working out my Deliverance. Or rather, 3. All the Affairs and Events of my Life: for time is oft put for things done, or Accidents happening in time, as 1 Chron. 29. 30. Job 11. 17. Pſal. 37. 18. Eccleſ. 9. 11. Dan. 2. 21. Acts 17. 26. n (i. e.) Are wholly in thy Power, to diſpoſe and Order as thou ſeeſt fit, and not at all in mine Enemies Power, who can do nothing againſt me, unleſs it be given them from above.

* Pſal. 4. 6.

16 * Make thy face to ſhine upon thy ſervant o: ſave me for thy mercies ſake.

o Manifeſt thy Love and Favour to me, by anſwering my Prayers, and ſaving me from all mine Enemies.

* Pſ. 25. 2. * 1 Sam. 2. 9. ‖ Or, let them be cut off for the Grave. † Heb. Hell.

17 * Let me not be aſhamed, O LORD, for I have called upon thee p: let the wicked be aſhamed q, and ‖ let * them be ſilent in the † grave r.

p And therefore thy Honour, will be Eclipſed in my Diſapointment, as if thou didſt not hear Prayers, nor keep Promiſe, nor make any difference between good and bad Men. q Fruſtrated in their wicked Deſigns, and Carnal Confidences. r Seeing they are implacable in their Malice and Rage againſt innocent and good Men, do thou cut them off by thy juſt Judgment; and ſince either the Righteous, or the wicked muſt be cut off, let Deſtructiou fall upon them, who moſt deſerve it.

* Pſ. 12. 3. † Heb. a hard thing.

18 * Let the lying lips s be put to ſilence t, which ſpeak † grievous things u, proudly and contemptuouſly x againſt the righteous y.

s Slanderous Tongues. t Either, by thy Vindication and diſcovery of my Integrity: Or, by ſome Eminent judgment, which may either Convince them, or cut them off. u Heb. hard Words, or Things, the ſingular Number, being put for the plural. Of this Expreſſion, See 1 Sam. 2. 3. Pſal. 60. 3. and 94. 4. Jude v. 15. He means ſuch as were grievous, and hard to be Born, as bitter Calumnies, Cruel Mockings, Terrible Threatnings, and the like. x With great Arrogancy, and Confidence of ſucceſs, and Contempt of me and mine, whom they look upon as few in number, and impotent and Fugitives, and ſuch whom they can blow away with a Breath. y Againſt us. whom thou knoweſt to be Righteous, notwithſtanding all their falſe Accuſations: and therefore for thy Love to Righteouſneſs ſave us, and ſilence our unjuſt Enemies.

* Iſa. 64. 4. 1 Cor. 2. 9.

19 * O how great is thy goodneſs z, which thou haſt laid up a for them that fear thee; which thou haſt wrought b for them that truſt in thee, before the ſons of men c.

z No words can expreſs the greatneſs of thy Love and Bleſſings. a Or, hidden, to wit, with thy ſelf, or in thy own Breaſt. The word is very Emphatical, and removes an Objection of ungodly Men, taken from the preſent Calamities of good Men. His Favour, it is true, is not always manifeſted, to or for them, but it is laid up for them in his Treaſure, whence it ſhall be drawn forth when they need it, and he ſees it fit. b Or, haſt Prepared, as Exod. 15. 17. Or, wilſt work, the paſt time being put for the Future, to note the certainty of it, as is Common in the Prophetical writings. c (i. e.) Publickly and in the view of the World, their very Enemies ſeeing and admiring, and envying it, but not being able to hinder it.

‖ Or, Perverſities, Or, Combinations. * Pſ. 27. 5.

20 Thou ſhalt hide them in the ſecret of thy preſence d from the ‖ pride of man e: thou * ſhalt keep them ſecretly in a pavilion e from the ſtrife of tongues f.

d Or, as in the ſecret of thy Preſence: Either, 1. As if they were in thy preſence Chamber, where thine own Eye and Hand guardeth them, from all the aſſaults of their Enemies; called his ſecret, Partly, becauſe the greateſt part of the World are ſtrangers to God and his Preſence: and Partly, becauſe it is a ſafe and ſecure place, ſuch as ſecret and unknown places are. Or, 2. As if they were in the ſecret of God's Tabernacle, as it is called, Pſal. 27. 5. the place of God's ſpecial Preſence, where none might enter ſave the High-prieſt. Or, 3. With thy ſecret Favour and Providence, which works mightily, yet ſecretly for them, and ſaves them by hidden and unknown Methods. This is oppoſed to thoſe Caves, or other obſcure and unſafe places, where David was forced to hide himſelf. e From their Vain-glorious Boaſts and Threats, and from their bold and inſolent Attempts. f Or, as in thy Pavilion, or Tabernacle; and ſo this Clauſe explains the former, and the Pronoun thy, is here eaſily, and aptly underſtood out of the foregoing Branch. f (i. e.) From the Miſchief of Contentious and ſlanderous Tongues.

* Pſ. 17. 7. ‖ Or, fenced City.

21 Bleſſed be the LORD; for * he hath ſhewed me his marvellous kindneſs in a ‖ ſtrong city g.

g To wit, in Keilah: Where God wonderfully preſerved me: of which ſee 1 Sam. 23. 7. Others, as in a ſtrong City. He hath kept me as ſafe in Woods and Caves, as if I had been in a fenced City.

PSAL. XXXII.

‖ Or, A Pſalm of David, giving inſtruction.

‖ A Pſalm of David, Maſchil a.

a Or, an Inſtructer. This Pſalm is moſt fitly ſo called, becauſe it was Compoſed for the information of the Church, in that moſt important Doctrine, Concerning the way to true Bleſſedneſs.

They are bleſſed whoſe ſins are forgiven, 1——2. Confeſſion of ſins giveth eaſe to the Conſcience, 3——7. God's promiſe to them, that truſt in him, 8——11.

* Rom. 4. 6. 7, 8.

1. BLeſſed is he whoſe * tranſgreſſion is forgiven, whoſe ſin is covered a.

a I did indeed ſay, that they and they only were Bleſſed, that did not walk in the Counſel of the ungodly, &c. But did delight in, and Meditate on Gods Law, Pſal. 1. 1, 2. And it is true, this is the only way to Bleſſedneſs. But if enquiry be made into the Cauſe of mans Bleſſedneſs, we muſt ſeek that elſewhere. All men having ſinned and made themſelves Guilty before God, and fallen ſhort of the Glory of God, and of that Happineſs which was Conferred upon their firſt Parents, now there is no way to recover this loſt Felicity, but by ſeeking and obtaining the Favour of God, and the pardon of our ſins. Which is the very Doctrine of the Goſpel: to the Confirmation whereof this Text is juſtly alledged, Rom. 4. 6, 7. Our ſins are Debts, and they need forgiving: they are filthy and abominable in Gods ſight, and need covering.

* Joh. 1. 47.

2 Bleſſed is the man unto whom the LORD imputeth not iniquity b, and * in whoſe ſpirit there is no guile c.

b. Whom God doth not Charge with the guilt of his ſins, as he might juſtly do, but graciouſly accepts and pardons him in Chriſt, and deals with him as if he had not ſinned. c. Who freely Confeſſeth all his ſins without Diſſembling and Concealing of them; which may ſeem to be the main thing here intended, by Comparing this with the following Verſes; and who is ſincere in his Profeſſions of Repentance, turning from ſin to God with all his Heart, and not feignedly.

3. When I kept ſilence d, my bones waxed old e through my roaring all the day long f.

d To wit, from a full and open Confeſſion of my ſins, as appears from v. 5. and from pouring out my Soul to God in ſerious and fervent Prayers for pardon and peace. Whilſt I concealed my ſins: Or, ſmothered my Fears, and ſtifled the workings of my own Conſcience. e My Spirits failed, and the ſtrength of my Body decayed. f Becauſe of the continual horrours of my Conſcience, and ſenſe of Gods wrath, wherewith I was as yet rather oppreſſed and overwhelmed, than brought to thorough Repentance.

4 For day and night thy hand g was heavy upon me: my moiſture was turned into the drought of ſummer h. Selah.

g Thy afflicting hand bringing my ſins to remembrance, and filling me with thy terrors for them. h My very radical moiſture was in a manner dryed up, and waſted through exceſſive Fears and Sorrows.

* Prov. 28. 13. Iſa. 65. 24. 1 Joh. 1. 9. 5 I acknowledged my ſin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hid: * I ſaid, I will confeſs my tranſgreſſions unto the LORD i; and thou forgaveſt the iniquity of my ſin k. Selah.

i At laſt I took up a full Reſolution, that I would no longer dally nor deal deceitfully with God, nor vainly ſeek to hide my ſins from the all-ſeeing God, but that I would openly and candidly confeſs and bewail all my ſins with all their Aggravations, and humbly implore the pardon of them. k (i. e.) The guilt of my ſin. Or, Thou didſt take away the puniſhment (as this Hebrew word oft ſignifies) of my Sin: Or, my exceeding ſinful ſin, two words ſignifying the ſame thing, being here put together by way of aggravation according to the manner of the Hebrews.

† Heb. in a time of finding. * Pſ. 69. 13. Iſa. 55. 6. * Pſal. 69. 1, 2. 6 For this l ſhall every one that is godly pray unto thee, † in a time when thou mayeſt be found m: ſurely in the * floods of great waters n, they ſhall not come nigh unto him o.

l (i. e.) Upon the incouragement of my Example, and thy great mercy vouchſafed to me, in Anſwer to my humble Confeſſion and Supplication. m Heb. in the time of finding thee; the Pronoun thee, being eaſily and fitly repeated out of the next foregoing Clauſe, (i. e.) While he may be found, as it is expreſſed Iſa. 55. 6. or while he is near, Pſal. 69. 13. in an acceptable and ſeaſonable time, while God continues to offer Grace and Mercy to Sinners, before the Decree bring forth, Zeph. 2. 2. and Sentence be paſſed or executed upon them. By which Clauſe he ſeems to intimate the difference between the Godly, who pray and cry earneſtly to God for mercy in its ſeaſon; and the Wicked, who will do ſo when it is too late, and the ſeaſon is loſt. n (i. e.) In the time of great Calamities which are frequently compared to great Waters. o To wit, ſo as to overwhelm or hurt him. Or, God will ſet him in an high and ſafe place, out of the reach of them, as he provided an Ark for Noah when the Deluge came: to which peradventure he alludes in this place.

* Pſ. 9. 9. & 27. 5. 7 * Thou art my hiding place, thou ſhalt preſerve me from trouble: thou ſhalt compaſs me about with ſongs of deliverance p. Selah.

p (i. e.) With ſuch great deliverances on all ſides, as will give juſt occaſion to ſing forth thy praiſes.

† Heb. I will counſel thee: mine eye ſhall be upon thee. 8 I will inſtruct q thee r, and teach thee in the way which thou ſhalt go s: † I will guide thee with mine eye t.

q This and the next Verſe are the words, either, 1. Of God; whom David brings in as returning this Anſwer to his Prayers, and the profeſſion of his truſt in God. Or rather, 2. Of David himſelf: who having received ſingular Favours from God, and having declared what the Godly would do upon that occaſion, v. 6. he now undertakes to inſtruct the wicked what they ſhould do. Which he doth, partly, to expreſs his thankfulneſs to God, for delivering himſelf, and his Zeal to advance the Honour and Service of God in the World; partly as an Act of Juſtice, that he might make ſome amends to thoſe whom he had injured, and provoke them to Repentance, whom by his ſins he had ſcandalized; and either drawn to ſin, or incouraged and hardened in ſin, which he was obliged and did promiſe to do, upon this, or the like occaſion, Pſal. 51. 13. and partly for the diſcharge of his Office and Duty, as he was both a King and a Prophet, and a good Man; in all which Capacities he was obliged to indeavour the Converſion and Salvation of Sinners. r Thee O ſinner, whoſoever thou art, who haſt no underſtanding, but art a wicked man, as the two following Verſes explain it. He ſpeaks this to the generality of impenitent ſinners, as the next Verſe ſhews, which begins in the plural number, Be not ye, &c. Only he expreſſeth it here ſingularly, as appealing and applying himſelf particularly to the Conſcience of every individual perſon, which he thought the moſt effectual way of proceeding, as he had found in himſelf, when Nathan applyed his indefinite Diſcourſe to him, ſaying Thou art the Man. s (i. e.) In which thou oughteſt to walk; the Future Tenſe oft noting a mans duty, as Gen. 20. 9. Mal. 1. 6. t I will lend thee the Eyes of my Mind: Or, I will be to thee inſtead of Eyes, as the Phraſe is, Numb. 10. 31. to adviſe and direct, and caution thee; which I am able to do, not only by thoſe Gifts and Graces which God hath given me, but alſo from my own Experience. I will guide thee, as the Rider doth his Horſe, to which the perſon to be guided is compared, v. 9. Or, as a Maſter doth his Scholar; or as a Guide doth him who knoweth not the right way. Or, the words may be thus rendred, I will give thee Counſel, mine Eye ſhall be upon thee, as it is more fully expreſſed, Gen. 44. 21. Jer. 24. 6. and 40. 4. (i. e.) I will watch over thee, and inſtruct or admoniſh thee, as I have occaſion.

* Pr. 26. 3. 9 Be ye not as the horſe, Or as the mule which have no underſtanding u: whoſe mouth muſt be held in with bit and bridle, leſt they come near unto thee x.

u Be not ſuch brutiſh and ſottiſh Creatures, as I have been, not having Reaſon or Grace to govern your ſelves, nor hearkening to the Counſels and Admonitions of others. x Leſt they ſhould come too near to thee, ſo as to bite or kick thee. But neither is this the common practice of Horſes or Mules, of which he ſeems to ſpeak; nor is this the proper uſe of a Bit or Bridle, to keep them from ſo doing, but rather to bring them nearer to the Rider for his uſe, and to keep them under his Conduct and Power, from whom they are otherwiſe apt to run away. The words therefore are, and may be otherwiſe rendred, becauſe they do not, or will not come near unto thee: To wit, for thy Service, unleſs they be forced to it by a Bit or Bridle. And ſo all the antient Tranſlators underſtand it.

10 Many ſorrows ſhall be to the wicked y: but he that truſteth in the LORD z, mercy ſhall compaſs him about.

11 Be glad in the LORD, and rejoyce ye righteous: and ſhout for joy all ye that are upright in heart.

y This is an Argument to enforce the foregoing Admonition, if any men will be refractory and unruly, God hath many ways to curb and chaſtiſe them, and bring them to his Will. z Who relyes upon his Providence and Promiſe for his preſervation and deliverance, and commits himſelf to Gods Care and Conduct, waiting upon him in his way, and not turning aſide to crooked or ſinful paths, for ſafety or ſatisfaction.

PSAL. XXXIII.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm contains a Celebration of God for his great and glorious Works both of Creation and Providence.

God is to be praiſed by reaſon of his Goodneſs, 1—5. of his Power, 6—11. and of his Providence, 12—15. And they that fear him ſhall find Mercy and rejoyce in him, 16—22.

1 REjoyce in the LORD a, O ye righteous, for * praiſe is comely for the upright b. * Pſ. 147. 1.

a Let his excellency diſcovered in his works, be the matter of your joy and praiſe. b It well becomes them to exerciſe themſelves in this work of praiſing and bleſſing of God; partly, becauſe they have ſuch ſingular and abundant obligations and occaſions to do ſo; and partly, becauſe they will praiſe God worthily and heartily, and with due Reverence and Thankfulneſs, as God requires, and deſerves to be praiſed; whereas ungodly men do indeed diſparage and pollute the Holy Name of God, while they pretend to praiſe it, and therefore God rejects their Praiſes and Prayers. See Pſalm 50. 16. and 109. 7. Prov. 28. 9.

2 Praiſe the LORD with harp: ſing unto him with the pſaltery, and * an inſtrument of ten ſtrings c. * Pſ. 92. 3.

c He mentions theſe Inſtruments, becauſe they were uſed in the publick Worſhip and Praiſes of God in the Tabernacle.

3 * Sing unto him a new ſong d; play skilfully with a loud noiſe. * Pſ. 96. 1. & 98. 1. 149. 1. Iſa. 42. 10.

d Either, 1. Newly Compoſed. As God gives you freſh occaſions, ſo do not you content your ſelves with the old Songs or Pſalms, made by the holy men of God, but make new ones ſuited to the occaſions. But neither had all the Righteous, to whom he ſpeaks, v. 1. the gift of compoſing Songs, nor was it of any neceſſity or importance, that they ſhould make new Songs to praiſe God, at leaſt for the works here mentioned, when there were ſo many made by David, and other Holy Prophets, for the uſe of Gods Church and People, when they had any ſuch occaſion. Or, 2. Renewed or repeated, or ſung again; in which ſenſe Job ſaith, his Glory was new, or freſh in him, Job 29. 20. (i. e.) Renewed or continued from day to day, and the command of Love is called new, John 13. 34. becauſe it was renewed and reinforced by Chriſt. So this Song is here called new, not ſo much from the matter, as from the ſinging of it; becauſe it was ſung afreſh, or again.

4 For the word of the LORD is right e; and all his works are done in truth f.

e All Gods Counſels and Commands, either contained in the Scriptures, or given forth in his Providence, for the Government of the World, are Wiſe, and Juſt, and Good, without deceit or defect. f (i. e.) All his works of Providence agree with his Word, and are no other than the accompliſhment of his Promiſes or Threatnings, or other declarations of his Mind, and Will in his Word, although ſometimes for a ſeaſon, they may ſeem contrary to it.

5 * He loveth righteouſneſs and judgment g: * the earth is full of the ‖ goodneſs of the LORD h. * Pſ. 45. 7. * Pſ. 119. 64. ‖ Or, mercy.

g (i. e.) Juſt Judgment, by a Figure called Hendyadis, as Jer. 22. 3. Or, Juſtice relates to the Sentence, and Judgment to the Execution of it. He not only doth Juſtice to all men, as was implied, v. 6. but, which is more, he loves it, and delights in it. h He not only doth no man wrong, but he is very kind and merciful to all men in the World, to whom he gives many Favours and Invitations to his love and ſervice. See Mat. 5. 45. Acts 14. 17. Rom. 1. 20, 21.

6 * By the word of the LORD i were the heavens made; and all the hoſt of them k, * by the breath of his mouth l. * Gen. 1. 6, 7. Heb. 11. 3. 2 Pet. 3. 5. * Job 26. 13.

i Either, 1. By the Hypoſtatical word, Chriſt, who is oft called Gods Word, even by the Chaldee Paraphraſt; as alſo John 1. v. 1, 2, 3. where he is ſaid to be that Word, by whom all things were made. So that which is here ſpoken more darkly and doubtedly, according to that ſtate of the Church, is more clearly declared in the New Teſtament. Or, 2. By his Will or Command, as this very phraſe is here uſed, v. 4. and as it ſeems to be explained, v. 9. And ſo it hath a great Emphaſis in it, that God made this admirable ſtructure of the Heavens, and all its glorious Stars; not with great pains and time, and help of many Artiſts and Inſtruments, as men do far meaner Works, but with one ſingle Word; which is much to the Glory of the Creator. k The Angels: or the Stars. See on Gen. 2. 1. l Either, 1. By the Holy Ghoſt, ſo called, Job

33. 4. And ſo here are all the perſons of the Trinity Jehovah, the Father, and the Word, and the Spirit; to each of which this work of Creation is elſewhere aſcribed, as was noted on Gen. 1. 26. Or, 2. By his Word, as it was expreſſed in the laſt Clauſe, which is ſo called Iſa. 11. 4. 2 Theſſ. 2. 8.

* Gen. 1. 9. Job 26. 10 & 38. 8. *Pſ. 78. 13.

7 * He gathereth m the waters of the ſea together, * as an heap n: he layeth up the depths in ſtore-houſes o.

m Or, gathered; For he ſpeaks of the firſt Creation when this was done, Gen. 1. n By which Expreſſion he brings to our minds this great work of God, that the Sea which is lighter and higher than Earth, is yet confined within its bounds, that it might not overflow the Earth. o Either in the Clouds, or in the Bowels of the Earth; whence he can draw them forth when he ſees fit.

8 Let all the earth p fear the LORD: let all the inhabitants of the world ſtand in awe of him.

p All the people of the Earth, as the next Clauſe expounds this; not only Jews, but Gentiles, who equally enjoy the Benefit of this great and glorious work of God.

*Pſ. 148. 5.

9 For * he ſpake, and it q was done; he commanded, and it ſtood faſt r.

q The work here mentioned, v. 6, 7. r Or, ſtood forth, as a Servant at his Maſters Command, or was, or did exiſt.

* Iſa. 19. 3. † Heb. maketh fruſtrate.

10 * The LORD † bringeth the counſel of the heathen s to nought: he maketh the devices of the people of none effect.

s Or, of the Nations; though Nations combine themſelves and their Counſels together, yet he defeats them when he pleaſeth. Thus he paſſeth from the work of Creation, to the works of Providence, and from the Inſtances of his Power, in ſenſleſs and unreaſonable Creatures, to manifeſt his power in over-ruling the Thoughts and Wills, and Actions of all Men, whether ſingle or united.

* Prov. 19. 21. Iſa. 46. 10. † Heb. to Generation and Generation.

11 * The counſel of the LORD ſtandeth for ever t; the thoughts of his heart † to all generations.

t All his Purpoſes and Deſigns, and eſpecially thoſe which concern his choſen people, of whom he ſpeaks in the next Verſe, are always ſucceſsful and irreſiſtible.

* Pſ. 65. 4. & 94. 14. & 144. 15.

12 * Bleſſed is the nation whoſe God is the LORD: and the people whom he hath choſen for his own inheritance u.

u Seeing the Lord is ſo great and glorious in Wiſdom, and Power, and Goodneſs, as hath been hitherto ſaid, as they muſt needs be very miſerable, who are Strangers or Enemies to him, ſo thrice happy is that people of Iſrael, who, though they be deſpiſed by the Gentiles, are choſen by this Almighty God, to be his peculiar Portion, and Friends, and Servants.

* 2 Chro. 16. 9. Job 28. 24 Pſal. 11. 4.

13 * The LORD looketh from heaven: he beholdeth all the ſons of men x.

14 From the place of his habitation he looketh upon all the inhabitants of the earth.

x Although he hath a ſpecial relation to Iſrael, yet he hath a general Care and Inſpection over all Mankind, all whoſe Hearts and Ways he diſcerns and obſerves.

15 He faſhioneth y their hearts alike z: he conſidereth all their works a.

y Or faſhioned, or made, or formeth. For this may relate either, 1. To the Work of Creation. So he proves what he ſaid, v. 13, 14. that God beheld all men, becauſe he made them; yea, even their Hearts, the moſt ſecret piece of them. Or, 2. To the Works of his Providence. Having ſaid that God ſees and obſerves all Men, he now adds that he rules and governs them; yea, even their Hearts which are moſt Maſterleſs and unmanageable, and yet he frameth and diſpoſeth and inclineth them, this way or that according to the Counſel of his Will. See Exod. 34. 24. Pſal. 105. 25. z Or, equally, one as well as another: Whether they be Jews or Gentiles, Bond or Free, Princes or Peaſants; all are alike ſubject to his Juriſdiction. a Both outward and inward, all the workings of their Minds and Affections, and all their Indeavours and Actions.

16 There is no king b ſaved by the multitude of an hoſt c: a mighty man is not delivered by much ſtrength.

b He inſtanceth in theſe, as the moſt potent and uncontrolable perſons in the World, and moſt confident of themſelves, and leaſt ſenſible of their dependance upon God. By which he ſtrongly proves his general Propoſition, of Gods powerful Providence over all Men. c But only by Gods Providence, who diſpoſeth of Victory and Succeſs, as he pleaſeth, and that frequently to the weakeſt and moſt fooliſh ſide, Eccleſ. 9. 11.

* Pſal. 147. 10. Pr. 21. 31. † Heb. a Lye.

17 * An horſe d is † a vain thing e for ſafety: neither ſhall he deliver any by his great ſtrength.

d Though he be ſtrong, Job 39. 19. &c. and fit for battle, Prov. 21. 31. or for flight, if need requires. And ſo this is put for all Warlike proviſions; of which Horſes were and are a very conſiderable part. e Heb. a Lye; becauſe it promiſeth that help and ſafety which it cannot give.

*Job 36. 7 Pſ. 34. 15. 1 Pet. 3. 12.

18 * Behold the eye of the LORD f is upon them that fear him g: upon them that hope in his mercy h.

f Whoſoever therefore would have ſafety and deliverance, muſt ſeek and expect it only from the watchful Eye, and Almighty Hand and Mercy of God. g Theſe are the chief Objects of his Care and Favour. h That place their Hope and Truſt, and Happineſs not in any Creature, but only in God, and in his Mercy and Bleſſings. The Conjunction and Order of theſe two qualifications of the Perſon whom God careth for is obſervable here, they muſt be ſuch as fear God, and ſo make Conſcience of keeping his Commands, Eccl. 12. 13. and then they may and muſt hope in, or relye upon his Mercy, for their ſafety and happineſs.

* Job 5. 20. Pſ. 37. 19.

19 To deliver their ſoul i from death, and to keep them alive * in famine.

i (i. e.) Their Life, when he ſees it to be expedient for them: ſometimes it is better for them to dye than to live, as both good and bad Men have declared, and when it is ſo, it is known to God, but not to us. And therefore the conſtant accompliſhment of this and the like promiſes in a literal ſenſe, is not to be expected, nor ſimply deſired, but with ſubmiſſion to Gods Wiſe and Gracious Will.

20 Our ſoul waiteth for the LORD: he is our help k and our ſhield.

k The help of us Iſraelites, to whom he hath made many Promiſes and glorious Diſcoveries of his Goodneſs.

21 For l our heart ſhall rejoyce in him: becauſe we have truſted in his holy name.

22 Let thy mercy, O LORD, be upon us according as we hope in thee.

l Or, therefore: For this ſeems to be an Inference, either from the foregoing, or from the following Sentence.

PSAL. XXXIV.

|| Or, Achiſh. 1 Sam. 21. 11, 13.

A Pſalm of David, when he changed a his behaviour b before || Abimelech c: who drove him away, and he departed.

a A Pſalm made upon that occaſion, though not at that time. b Or, his Habit or Poſture, or his Reaſon, as this word is taken, 1 Sam. 25. 33. Pſal. 119. 66. Prov. 11. 22. When he counterfeited madneſs. Wherein whether he ſinned or not, is matter of Diſpute; but this is undoubted, that Gods Favour, and his Deliverance at that time was very remarkable, and deſerved this ſolemn acknowledgment. c Called Achiſh, 1 Sam. 21. 10. But Abimelech ſeems to have been the common Name of the Kings of the Philiſtins, Gen. 20. 2. and 26. 1. as Pharaoh was of the Egyptians, and Cæſar of the Romans.

David praiſeth God, 1, 2. and exhorteth others thereto from his own experience of Gods kindneſs, 3——7. He ſheweth that they are bleſſed who truſt in God, 8—10. He exhorteth others to learn to fear him, 11. and ſheweth the way to Happineſs, 12—14. The priviledges of the Righteous, and the puniſhment of the Wicked, 15——22.

1 I Will bleſs the LORD at all times d: his praiſe ſhall continually be in my mouth.

d I will never forget to bleſs God for this miraculous Deliverance.

2 My ſoul ſhall make her boaſt in the LORD e: the humble f ſhall hear thereof and be glad g.

e Shall glory in this, that I have ſo powerful and ſo gracious a Lord and Maſter. f Or the meek, (i. e.) the Godly, oft called in Scripture by that Title; and particularly my Friends and Favourers in Iſrael, whom he thus calls in oppoſition to his proud and furious Adverſaries in Sauls Court and Camp. g Both for their love to me, and to the publick good of Iſrael, which they know that I deſign and ſeek above all things; and for the comfort and benefit of my example to them, in like ſtraits and difficulties.

3 O magnifie the LORD with me h, and let us exalt his name together i.

4 I ſought the LORD, and he heard me, and delivered me from all my fears.

h Joyn your Praiſes with mine, O all ye humble ones. i Not in place, for David was now baniſhed from the place of Gods publick Worſhip, but in affection and work: Let our Souls meet, and let our Praiſes meet in the Ears of the all-hearing God. Or alike, (i. e.) with equal Zeal and Fervency; let none be willing to be outſtripped by another.

Unto the Lord, expreſſed v. 4. (i. e.) They ſought and expected help from him. Or rather, 2. Unto this poor man, as it follows, v. 6. or unto David. So he ſpeaks of himſelf in the third Perſon, which is uſual. So the ſenſe is, when I was delivered, v. 4. men looked upon me with wonder and aſtoniſhment, as one ſaved in a prodigious manner. m (i. e.) Comforted and encouraged by my Example. But theſe and the foregoing Words are by the antient Interpreters, read Imperatively, as an Exhortation to others, to whom he oft addreſſeth his Speech, as v. 3. 8, 9, 11. Look unto him, (with an Eye of Faith and Prayer) and be ye inlightned, (i. e.) Take Comfort in the expectation of Mercy from him. And then the laſt Words they render thus, and your, Heb. their (But the change of Perſons is very frequent in this Book) fear ſhall not be aſhamed. n They were not diſappointed of their hope, but found relief, as I did.

p (i. e.) The Angels, the ſingular number being put for the plural, as it is Pſal. 78. 45. and 105. 33, 40. for it is both improper and unuſual to aſcribe encamping, and that round about all good men, to one created Angel. And we find many Angels employed in this work, Gen. 32. 1, 2. 2 Kings 6. 17. q Guardeth them from dangers on every ſide; to which work they are appointed by God, Heb. 1. 14.

Metaphorically ſo called, the great Potentates of the Earth, who are oft ſo called, as Jer. 2. 15. Ezek. 38. 13. Nah. 2. 13. x Which is neceſſary and truly good for them, all Circumſtances conſidered; of which God alone is a competent Judge. And therefore although God doth uſually take a ſpecial care to ſupply the wants of good Men, and hath oft done it by extraordinary ways, when ordinary have failed, yet ſometimes he knows, and it is certainly true, that Wants and Croſſes are more needful, and uſeful to them than Bread, and in ſuch Caſes it is a greater mercy of God to deny them ſupplies than to grant them.

It is here obſervable, that whereas he ſaid he would teach them the fear of the Lord, v. 11. the Leſſons he teacheth them, v. 13, 14. are only ſuch as concern men. Not that he meant to exclude Duties of piety towards God, which he every where enjoyneth and preſſeth as moſt neceſſary, but only to teach us what is oft inculcated both in the Old and New Teſtament, that ſincere Religion towards God, is always accompanied with a Conſciencious diſcharge of our Duties to men; and to convince the Hypocritical Iſraelites, and particularly his Adverſaries, that ſo long as it was their daily courſe and practice to ſpeak and act all manner of Evil againſt him, and other good men, all their pretences to Religion were but vain.

n Heb. They cry, to wit, the righteous, as is manifeſt both from the Nature of the thing, and from v. 15. where they are ſo called, and with which this Verſe is to be continued, the 16*th* Verſe coming in by way of parentheſis, as is very uſual in many places of Scripture.

† Heb. to the broken of Heart.

18 The LORD is nigh p † unto them that are of a broken heart: and ſaveth ſuch as be † of a contrite ſpirit q. † Heb. Contrite of Spirit.

19 * Many are the afflictions of the righteous: but the LORD delivereth him out of them all. *2 Tim. 3. 11, 12.

p Ready to hear and ſuccour them; though by the ſevere courſe of his Providence towards them, he ſeems to themſelves and others to ſtand afar off, as David complains, Pſal. 10. 1. q By which he underſtands, either, 1. Thoſe whoſe Spirits are oppreſſed, and even broken with the greatneſs of their Calamities. But this may be, and frequently is the lot of wicked Men. And therefore in this Senſe, and to ſuch Perſons, this propoſition and promiſe is not true: Or rather, 2. Thoſe whoſe Hearts or Spirits are truly and deeply humbled under the hand of God and the ſenſe of their ſins and Gods diſpleaſure for them, which was Davids Caſe, Pſal. 6. 1, &c. and 32. 3, 4. whoſe proud and ſelf-willed Hearts are ſubdued, and made obedient to Gods Will, and ſubmiſſive to his Providence. For to all ſuch, and to ſuch only, this promiſe is verified.

20 He keepeth all his bones r; not one of them is broken s.

r (i. e.) All the parts and members of their Bodies, which are Synecdochically expreſſed by the Bones, which are the ſtay and ſtrength of the reſt. s God will not ſuffer any miſchief to befal him: though he may be oft afflicted, yet he ſhall not be deſtroyed. But theſe words, though they are here ſpoken of the righteous men in general, of whom they are true in a Metaphorical Senſe; yet they had a further meaning in them, being deſigned by the Spirit of God (which dictated to David, not only the matter, but the very words and expreſſions) to ſignifie a great Myſtery, that none of Chriſts Bones ſhould be broken; to which purpoſe they are alledged, John 19. 36.

21 * Evil t ſhall ſlay the wicked, and they that hate the righteous u, ‖ ſhall be deſolate. *Pſ. 94. 23. ‖ Or, ſhall be guilty.

t Either, 1. The evil of ſin: his own wickedneſs, though deſigned againſt others, ſhall deſtroy himſelf. Or, 2. The evil of Miſery. When the afflictions of good men ſhall have an happy iſſue, theirs ſhall end in their total and final deſtruction. n That perſecute them, and plot their ruine; which is an evidence that they hate them, whatſoever they may pretend to the contrary.

22 * The LORD redeemeth the ſoul of his ſervants x; and none of them that truſt in him ſhall be deſolate. *Pſ. 97. 10.

x (i. e.) Their Lives or their Perſons, from the malicious Deſigns of all their Enemies, and from deſolation or utter ruine, as it follows.

PSAL. XXXV.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm was Penned by David, when he was ſlandered and perſecuted by Saul and his Servants, as is manifeſt from the whole Body of it.

A Pſalm of David.

David prayeth for his own ſafety, 1, 2. and his Enemies deſtruction, 3——10. ſheweth their falſhood, and unthankfulneſs and malice, 11——21. He prayeth for their confuſion, 22——26. but for the preſervation and joy of the godly, 27, 28.

1 PLead * my cauſe, O LORD a, with them that † ſtrive with me: fight againſt them that fight againſt me. *Pſ. 43. 1. & 119. 154. Lam. 3. 58. † Heb. implead me.

a Seeing I am unable to right my ſelf, and the Magiſtrates refuſe to do me Juſtice, be thou my patron and protector.

2 Take hold of ſhield and buckler b, and ſtand up for mine help.

b Therewith to cover and defend me. Compare Pſalm 91. 4. Prov. 2. 7.

3 Draw out alſo the ſpear c, and ſtop the way d againſt them that perſecute me: ſay unto my ſoul e, I am thy ſalvation.

c Thy offenſive Weapons. He alludes to the practice of Soldiers in Battle. d In which they are marching directly and furiouſly againſt me. But divers Interpreters, both Hebrews and others, take this Hebrew word for a Noun, and render it a Sword; or as the word may ſignifie, a cloſe Weapon: For the Pſalmiſt here repreſenting God as a Man of War, and accordingly furniſhing him with other Weapons, it ſeems not probable that he would omit this Weapon, which was moſt conſtantly and univerſally uſed. e (i. e.) Unto me; either, 1. By thy Spirit aſſuring me of it: Or 2. By thy Providence effecting it; for Gods ſaying or ſpeaking is oft meant of his doing, becauſe his Word is ſufficient for the doing of whatſoever he pleaſeth.

4 * Let them be confounded f and put to ſhame, that ſeek after my ſoul; let them * be turned back g, and brought to confuſion, that deviſe my hurt. *Pſ. 40. 15. & 70. 3. *Jer. 46. 5.

f (i. e.) Fruſtrated in their wicked deſigns and hopes againſt me. Concerning this and the like, and following Imprecations, which may ſeem ſtrange and ſevere, it muſt be conſidered, 1. That they did not proceed from any paſſionate or revengeful Spirit in David towards his Enemies (from which how free he was, appears not only from his own words here, v. 12, 13, 14. but from the whole courſe of his Life, and the frequent Inſtances mentioned in his Hiſtory, of his meek and merciful Carriage to his Enemies, when they were in his power) but from his Zeal for God, and for Piety and Juſtice, to which they ſhewed themſelves to be conſtant and implacable Adverſaries, and by the direction of the Prophetical Spirit of God wherewith he was indued, which Spirit did exactly know the condition of his Enemies, and that thoſe againſt whom they are levelled, were hardened and incurable. 2. That they contain nothing but a Prayer to God, that he would accompliſh his own Threatnings, and execute his own Law of Retaliation, of Eye for Eye, and Tooth for Tooth, and ſo bring upon them the Evils which they deſigned againſt him. Which alſo was of great and good uſe, both to glorifie Gods Juſtice, and to warn and reform other ſinners by the terror of their Example. 3. That they may be taken only for predictions, as hath been obſerved before upon the like occaſion. g Either, 1. Stopped or hindered in the execution of their wicked deſign. Or rather, 2. (which is more ſutable to the Context) diſcomfited and put to flight, as this Phraſe is frequently uſed, as Pſal. 9. 3. and 70. 2. and 78. 9. Iſa. 42. 17. Jer. 46. 5, 21.

* Job. 21. 18. Pſal. 1. 4. Iſa. 29. 5. Hoſ. 13. 3.

5 * Let them be as chaff before the wind h, and let the angel of the LORD i chaſe them.

h (i. e.) Diſperſed and chaſed from place to place, finding reſt and ſafety no where. i Whom God uſeth to defend his people, and to deſtroy their Enemies.

† Heb. darkneſs and ſlipperineſs. * Pſal. 73. 18. Jer. 23. 12

6 Let their way k be † * dark and ſlippery l, and let the angel of the LORD perſecute them.

k By which they flee, being chaſed, as was now ſaid. l So as they can neither diſcern the right path, nor be able to ſtand in it, and much leſs to run away, eſpecially from ſo ſwift a perſecutor as an Angel, whereby they muſt unavoidably fall into their Enemies hands, and be deſtroyed.

7 For without cauſe m have they hid for me their net, in a pit, which without cauſe they digged for my ſoul n.

m Out of meer malice, without any injury or provocation on my part, and without any neceſſity on their parts. They are no common, but the worſt of Enemies; and therefore I may juſtly pray againſt them, as I do. n Theſe Expreſſions aggravate their ſins, and ſignifie that their perſecution of him was not the effect of a ſudden Paſſion, but of a deep and habitual Hatred and Malice, and of an evil deſign, carried on in a conſtant and continued courſe with deliberation, and cunning, and deceit, and that againſt his Soul or Life; for nothing leſs would ſatisfie them.

† Heb. which he knoweth not of. * Pſal. 7. 15, 16. & 57. 6. Prov. 5. 22

8 Let deſtruction come upon him o † at unawares, and * let his net that he hath hid, catch himſelf: into that very deſtruction let him fall.

o (i. e.) Upon each of thine and mine implacable Enemies, of whom he hath hitherto ſpoken.

9 And my ſoul ſhall be joyful in the LORD p: it ſhall rejoyce in his ſalvation.

p In and for his Glory and Service, which ſhall be advanced by this means, and for his favour to me, otherwiſe I am far from rejoycing in their Calamities.

10 All my bones q ſhall ſay r, LORD, who is like unto thee, which delivereſt the poor from him that is too ſtrong for him, yea, the poor and the needy from him that ſpoileth him!

q (i. e.) My whole Body, by a Synecdoche, as Pſal. 34. 20. as well as my Soul, mentioned v. 9. I will glorifie thee, both with my Soul and with my Body. r Speech is aſcribed to the Bones figuratively, as elſewhere they are ſaid to fear and to rejoyce, Pſal. 6. 2. and 51. 8. and as the Loins are ſaid to bleſs, Job 31. 20. If they could ſpeak they would expreſs thy Praiſes, becauſe having been dryed up with Sorrow, they are now refreſhed by thy Mercy.

† Heb. Witneſſes of wrong. † Heb. they asked me.

11 Falſe † witneſſes did riſe up; † they laid to my charge things that I knew not s.

s They accuſed me to Saul of Treachery and Deſigns againſt his Crown and Life, and other Crimes whereof I was wholly innocent and ignorant.

* Pſ. 38. 20. & 109. 5. † Heb. depriving.

12 * They rewarded me evil for good t, to the † ſpoiling of my ſoul u.

t For the good Offices which I did to divers of them when I had Favour and Power in Sauls Court and Camp. u (i. e.) To the ſtripping of my perſon of all my Comforts and Hopes, and of my Life it ſelf.

* Job 30. 25. ‖ Or, afflicted.

13 But as for me, * when they were ſick x, my clothing was ſackcloth y: I ‖ humbled my ſoul z with faſting, and my prayer returned into mine own boſom a.

x Or in any other great miſery. y Which was the Habit of Mourners, Gen. 37. 34. Mat. 11. 21. Rev. 11. 3. z Heb. I afflicted my Soul (of which phraſe ſee Lev. 16. 29, 31. and 23. 27, 32. &c.) partly with Faſting, and partly with Compaſſion and fervent Prayers for them. a According to this Tranſlation the Senſe may be this, And, or But; Or, Although my Faſtings and Prayers did them no good, neither abated their malice, nor prevailed with God for them, ſo far as I deſired, but returned to me without ſucceſs, like a Gift ſent to an uncivil perſon, who diſdainfully rejects it, and returns it to the Giver. But, 1. This is not true, that his Prayers returned empty to him, and did them no good, for they prevailed with God for their Recovery, as appears by the following Verſes. 2. This doth not ſeem to ſuit well with the Context; for both in the foregoing and following words, he is only deſcribing what he did for them, and not what the effects of it were, which he deſcribes in the ſucceeding Verſes. Others therefore render the words otherwiſe, either, 1. Thus, And my Prayer in my Boſom returned, (i. e.) I did daily and frequently repeat my Prayers for them, and that not only in publick when I joyned with others, in a Faſt-day appointed for them, which might be done in policy or for oſtentation, but alſo in ſecret, between God and my own Soul, and that with a ſincere and hearty Affection: For what is done ſecretly and affectionately, is ſaid to be done in the Boſom, Numb. 11. 12. Pſal. 89. 50. Prov. 21. 14. although indeed there is in thoſe places another Propoſition; which may poſſibly alter the Caſe. Or, 2. (Which ſeems the trueſt Senſe) and as for my Prayer (to wit, which I joyned with my Faſting on their behalf) let it return (nothing being more frequent than for Future Verbs to be put Imperatively) into my own Boſom, (i. e.) If any ſhall think or ſay, that my Faſting for them was but counterfeit or politick, and that I did not pray for them, but rather againſt them, as I do in this Pſalm, and that under all this ſhew I ſecretly wiſhed their Death or Deſtruction; my earneſt deſire is, that the All-ſeeing and Heart-ſearching God would grant unto me, when I come into their Circumſtances, the ſame things which I begged for them, whether Good or Evil. And this ſenſe agrees with the common uſe of this phraſe in Scripture, where whatſoever is repay'd to any man, is ſaid to be render'd into his Boſom, as Pſal. 79. 12. Iſa. 65. 6, 7. Jer. 32. 18. Luke 6. 38. as elſewhere it is ſaid, to return upon his Head.

† Heb. walked. † Heb. as a Friend, as a Brother to me.

14 I † behaved my ſelf b † as though he had been my friend, or brother: I bowed down c heavily, as one that mourneth for his mother d.

b Heb. I walked, either to him, to viſit and comfort him; Or, about the Streets, whither my Occaſions led me. Though walking is oft put for a Mans Carriage or Converſation. c Went hanging down my Head, as Mourners uſed to do, Iſa. 58. 5. d He mentions the Mother rather than the Father, either, becauſe her tender Affection and Care, and Kindneſs to him, had more wone upon his Heart, and made him more ſenſible of the loſs; Or, becauſe through the depravation of Mans Nature, Children are many times leſs ſenſible of their Fathers loſs or Death, becauſe it is compenſated with ſome advantage to themſelves; which doth not uſually happen upon the Mothers death. Some render it, as a Mourning Mother, for the loſs of her Son. But this doth not ſeem to ſuit ſo well with the order of the Hebrew words.

† Heb. Halting. Pſ. 38. 17. * Job 30. 1, 8, 12.

15 But in mine † adverſity e they rejoyced, and gathered themſelves together f: * yea, the abjects g gathered themſelves together againſt me, and I knew it not h; they did tear me i, and ceaſed not k.

e Heb. in my halting, (i. e.) When I was in great danger of falling into miſchief. When I had any Sickneſs, or ill ſucceſs in my Affairs, and was almoſt loſt; for ſuch are ſaid to halt, Mich. 4. 6, 7. Zephan. 3. 10. See alſo Pſal. 38. 17. Jer. 20. 10. f To wit, againſt me, as it is expreſſed in the next Clauſe; either becauſe they were ſo full of joy at the Tydings, that they could not contain it in their own Breaſts, but ſought to communicate it to others: Or, that they might inſult over me, and pleaſe and recreate themſelves, and one another with Diſcourſes about it: Or that they might conſult how to improve the advantage which they now had againſt me, to my utter deſtruction. g Or vile Perſons, either for the meanneſs of their condition, or for their wickedneſs, for which they were worthy to be beaten, as the Phraſe is, Deut. 25. 2. Where the Hebrew word is of the ſame Root with this. Or, the lame, as this very word is rendred, 2 Sam. 4. 4. and 9. 3. to wit, of their Feet, as it is there expreſſed. The Cripples that could not walk without trouble and pain, were as forward as any to go to theſe meetings upon this occaſion. h This may be added to expreſs either their hypocriſie and pretences of reſpect and affection to him, by reaſon whereof he had no ſuſpicion of them, nor of any ſuch practices of theirs; or his own danger, that he did not know, and therefore could not prevent their Plots and Conſpiracies againſt him. Heb. and I knew not. Which is by others, and well may be rendred thus, Even they whom I knew not, they whom I was ſo far from provoking by any Injury, that I never ſaw their Faces, nor heard of their Names. i (i. e.) My good Name with Scoffs and Calumnies, and Reproaches and Curſes. k Heb. were not ſilent, (i. e.) did thus unweariedly and continually.

16 With hypocritical l mockers m in † feaſts n: they gnaſhed upon me with their teeth o.

l Or Profane, as this word ſignifies, Job 8. 13. and 13. 16. and 15. 34. and 17. 8. and as ſome add, in all other places. m Whoſe common practice it is to ſcoff at and deride others, and me in particular. n Or, of or for a Cake: Or, a Morſel of Bread, as this word ſignifies, 1 Kings 17. 12, 13. and 19. 6. By which he further ſhews what vile and worthleſs perſons theſe were, that would tranſgreſs for a Morſel of Bread, as it is ſaid Prov. 28. 21. They made themſelves Buffoons and Jeſters, and accuſtomed themſelves to mock and deride David, that thereby they might gain Admittance to the Acquaintance and Tables of great Men, where they might fill their Bellies; which was all that they ſought for, or got by it. o They uſed all expreſſions of Rage and Hatred againſt me, among which this was one, Job 16. 9. Lam. 2. 16. This they did to curry favour with my great and potent Adverſaries.

† Heb. my onely One. * Pſ. 57. 4.

17 LORD, how long wilt thou look on o? reſcue my ſoul from their deſtructions, † my darling p from * the lions.

o Like an idle Spectator, without affording me any Pity or Help? p To wit, my Soul, as it is in the former Clauſe. Heb. my onely One; which is now left alone and forſaken by my Friends, and hath none to truſt to but God. See on Pſal. 22. 21.

* Pſ. 22. 25. & 40. 9, 10. & 111. 1. † Heb. ſtrong.

18 * I will give thee thanks in the great congregation q: I will praiſe thee among † much people.

q When I ſhall be reſtored to the Liberty of the publick Aſſemblies and ſolemn Feaſts.

† Heb. falſly. * Pſ. 69. 4. & 109. 3. & 119. 161 Lam. 3. 52. Joh. 15. 25.

19 Let not them that are mine enemies † wrongfully rejoyce over me, neither let them wink with their eye r, * that hate me without a cauſe.

r (i. e.) Mock me or inſult over me, as this Phraſe ſignifies, Prov. 6. 13. and 10. 10.

20 For they ſpeak not peace s: but they deviſe deceitful matters t againſt them that are quiet in the land u.

s They are Enemies to all peaceable Counſels; they breathe out nothing but Threatnings and War. t They uſe not only open Violence but Deceit, and ſubtil Artifices. u Againſt me and my followers, who deſire nothing more than to live quietly and peaceably under Sauls Government.

21 Yea, they opened their mouth wide againſt me x, and ſaid * Aha, aha y, our eye hath ſeen it z. 40.15.

x Either, 1. To devour me. It is a Metaphor taken from wild Beaſts, when they come within reach of their prey. Or 2. To pour forth whole Floods of Scoffs and Slaunders, and Contumelies. y An Expreſſion of Joy and Triumph. See on Job 39. 25. Pſal. 40. 15. z Heb. hath ſeen, to wit, what we have long deſired and hoped for. See the ſame or like Ellipſis, Pſal. 54. 7. and 59. 10. and 112. 8.

22 This thou haſt ſeen a, O LORD, keep not ſilence b: O LORD, be not far from me c.

a As they ſay they have ſeen, ſo my Comfort is, thou alſo haſt ſeen, and doſt obſerve all their Plots and Threats, and all my Diſtreſſes and Calamities, which I ſuffer for thy ſake. b Or, be not deaf, to wit, to my Prayers. The ſame word ſignifies, both to be ſilent, and to be deaf. See on Pſal. 28. 1. c Do not withdraw thy Favour and Help from me.

23 Stir up thy ſelf and awake to my judgment, even unto my cauſe d, my God and my Lord.

d At laſt undertake to plead my Cauſe againſt mine Adverſaries.

24 Judge me, O LORD my God, according to thy righteouſneſs e, and let them not rejoyce over me.

e Whereby thou uſeſt and loveſt to defend the Innocent, and to puniſh their Oppreſſors.

25 Let them not ſay in their hearts, † Ah, ſo would we have it f: let them not ſay, we have ſwallowed him up.

f Heb. Aha, our Soul, (i.e.) Oh our Soul cryeth, Aha; an expreſſion of mirth, as before v. 21. Or, aha, we have our Wiſh or Deſire, as the Soul is taken, Pſal. 41. 2. David is now as low as we could wiſh him.

26 * Let them be aſhamed and brought to confuſion together g, that rejoyce at mine hurt: let them be clothed with ſhame and diſhonour, that magnifie themſelves h againſt me.

g As they gathered themſelves together to deride and oppoſe me, ſo do thou gather them together to deſtroy them. Or, in like manner, one as well as another: let the proud and great ones of them be diſappointed and aſhamed, as well as the meaneſt among them. h The ſame Ellipſis we have, Pſal. 38. 16. and 55. 12. Jer. 48. 26. Or, their Mouth, as it is expreſſed Obad. v. 12. So Ezek. 35. 13. That extol themſelves and their power, and look upon me with ſcorn and contempt.

27 Let them ſhout for joy, and be glad, that favour † my righteous cauſe i: yea, let them ſay continually, Let the LORD be magnified k, which hath pleaſure in the proſperity of his ſervant.

i That wiſh well to it, although they want either Strength or Courage to plead it. k (i. e.) Exalted and praiſed for his Righteouſneſs, and Truth and Goodneſs, manifeſted in my deliverance. Mine Enemies great deſign is to magnifie themſelves, v. 26. but my chief deſire is, that God may be magnified.

28 And my tongue ſhall ſpeak of thy righteouſneſs, and of thy praiſe, all the day long.

PSAL. XXXVI.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm ſeems to have been Compoſed by David, when he was perſecuted by Saul and his Courtiers. Upon which occaſion he enlargeth his Thoughts further, and contemplates the ſad ſtate and condition of the World, and of the Church at that time, in which Wickedneſs of all ſorts greatly abounded and ſeemed to proſper; and withal, he declares the great Felicity and Safety of Gods People, and gives an account of their ſupports and comforts, under the ſenſe of theſe publick Diſorders and Miſchiefs.

To the chief muſician, a Pſalm of David, the ſervant of the LORD a.

a (i. e.) One wholly and reſolvedly devoted to the Service of God, both in my private and publick Capacity. This Title is, as I remember, but twice uſed in this Book, Pſal. 18. (of which ſee there) and in this Pſalm, where it ſeems to be prefixed as a publick proteſtation of his Reſolution, to cleave unto the Lord in this time of general Corruption, of which he is now going to ſpeak.

David ſheweth the grievous ſtate of the wicked, 1—4. the excellency of Gods mercy, 5—9. and prayeth for favour to the children of God, 10—12.

1 THe tranſgreſſion of the wicked ſaith within my heart, that there is no fear of God before his eyes b.

b When I conſider the great and manifold Tranſgreſſions of ungodly Men, I conclude within my ſelf, that they have caſt off all fear and ſenſe, and ſerious belief of the divine Majeſty.

2 For c * he flattereth himſelf in his own eyes d, † until his iniquity be found to be hateful e.

* Deut. 29. 19. Pſ. 10. 3. & 49. 18.
† Heb. to find his iniquity to hate.

c So this is the Proof of that Aſſertion, v. 1. Or, although; and ſo it is an anticipation of an Objection againſt it. d He deceiveth himſelf with vain and falſe perſwaſions, either, 1. Concerning God, that he doth not ſee or mind his ſins, or that he will not puniſh them: Or, 2. Concerning himſelf and his ſins, either that they are not ſins; which a Mind bribed by Paſſion and Intereſt, can eaſily believe: Or that they are but ſmall and venial ſins: Or that they will be excuſed, if not juſtified by honeſt intentions, or by outward profeſſions and exerciſes of Religion, or by ſome good actions, wherewith he thinks to make ſome compenſation for them, or ſome other way. Oth. thus, He flattereth him (i. e. God) in his Eyes, (i. e.) Openly and publickly makes a ſhew of Religion, as if he deſigned to deceive or mock God, whilſt inwardly and ſecretly he is projecting wickedneſs. But it ſeems better to underſtand the laſt word reciprocally of his own Eyes, as the ſame word is uſed in the end of the foregoing Verſe. e (i. e) Until God by ſome dreadful Judgment undeceive him, and find, (i. e.) Diſcover or make him and others to find and feel by Experience, that it is a ſin and a very hateful one too. Or, Until his abominable iniquity be found out, (i. e.) puniſhed, as the ſame word and phraſe is uſed, Numb. 32. 23. Your ſin ſhall find you out, (i. e.) bring you to condign puniſhment. In the Hebrew it is, to find out his iniquity to hate. But Active Verbs are oft taken paſſively, of which there are plain Inſtances, Joſ. 2. 5. Eſth. 6. 6. Pſal. 32. 9. and 51. 6. comp. with Rom. 3. 4. and Pſal. 119. 4. and ſo here, to find, is put for to be found, and to hate for to be hated, or to be hateful.

3 The words of his mouth are iniquity and deceit f: he hath left off to be wiſe, and to do good g.

f (i. e.) Are wicked and deceitful. g Once he had ſome ſhadows or degrees of Wiſdom, and ſometimes did ſome things that were good in their kind, but now he hath not ſo much as the appearance of it, and is become an open Apoſtate from that which once he profeſſed.

4 * He deviſeth ‖ miſchief upon his bed h; he ſetteth himſelf i in a way that is not good k; he abhorreth not evil l.

* Mic. 2. 1.
‖ Or, Vanity.

h Which notes that he doth it, 1. Conſtantly and unweariedly preferring it before his own reſt. 2. Earneſtly and ſeriouſly, when his Mind is freed from all outward diſtractions, and wholly at leaſure to attend that buſineſs about which it is employed; compare Pſal. 4. 4. 3. Freely, from his own inclination, when none are preſent to provoke him to it. i He doth not repent of his wicked Devices, but reſolutely proceeds to execute them, and perſiſts therein. k (i. e.) Which is very bad, as this phraſe is uſed, 1 Sam. 2. 24. Prov. 20. 23. and 24. 23. and elſewhere. l Though he ſometimes pretends remorſe, and deſiſts from his violent practices againſt me, as Saul did, yet he doth not truly repent of nor abhor his ſin, and therefore is ready to return to it, when any occaſion offers it ſelf.

5 * Thy mercy m, O LORD, is in the heavens n, and thy faithfulneſs o reacheth unto the clouds p.

* Pſ. 57. 10. & 108. 4.

m Though this be the diſpoſition and carriage of mine Enemies towards me, and therefore I can expect no good from them, yet thou O Lord, bleſſed be thy Name, art of another temper; they are cruel and perfidious and unrighteous, but thou art infinite in Mercy, and Faithfulneſs, and Righteouſneſs, and Loving-kindneſs, as it here follows; and therefore though I deſpair of them, yet I truſt in thee, as other men do for theſe Reaſons, v. 7. n Or, is unto (as the prefix Beth oft ſignifies, as Gen. 11. 4. and elſewhere, and as it is here explained in the following Clauſe) the Heavens. As it is on the Earth, of which there was no queſtion, ſo it reacheth thence to the Heavens, (i. e.) it is infinite and incomprehenſible. o The truth both of thy Threatnings againſt thine and mine Enemies, and of thy promiſes made to me and other good men. p (i. e.) Is far above our reach, greater and higher than we can apprehend it.

6 Thy righteouſneſs q is like † the great mountains r; thy * judgments s are a great deep t, O LORD, * thou preſerveſt man and beaſt u.

† Heb. the Mountains of God. Pſ. 71. 19.

q In all thy Counſels and Ways in the Government of the World. r Either, 1. Stedfaſt and unmoveable. Or 2. Eminent and conſpicuous to all men: Or rather, 3. Very high and out of our reach: For ſo it agrees beſt with the foregoing and following expreſſions. s (i. e.) Thy executions of thy Counſels, or thy adminiſtrations of the Affairs of the World, and of thy Church. t (i. e.) Unſearchable, as the Ocean is in ſome parts. u The worſt of men; yea, and the Brute-beaſts have Experience of thy Care and Kindneſs, and therefore I have no Reaſon to doubt of it.

* Pſal. 103. 4.

x Or, thy Mercy: For it is the ſame word which is uſed and ſo rendred, v. 5. The ſenſe is, though all thine Attributes now reckoned, and the reſt of them be excellent and glorious, yet above all thy Mercy is moſt excellent or precious and amiable, as being moſt neceſſary and beneficial unto us, poor ſinful miſerable men. y (i. e.) Cheerfully commit themſelves to thy Care and Kindneſs, notwithſtanding their own Sinfulneſs, and the Rage and Power of their Adverſaries, againſt all which thy Mercy is a ſufficient ſecurity.

8 They z * ſhall be † abundantly ſatisfied a with the fatneſs of thy houſe b: and thou ſhalt make them drink c of the river d of thy pleaſures e.

z (i. e.) Thoſe Children of Men who truſt in thee, as he now ſaid. a Though now they are ſtraitned, oppreſſed and perſecuted, yet they ſhall not only be protected and ſupported for the preſent, but in due time ſhall have all their wants and deſires fully ſatisfied. Heb. ſhall be made drunk, (i. e.) Shall be as it were over-whelmed with the plenty of it, which they ſhall no more be able to comprehend, than a drunken man is able perfectly to underſtand and judge of things; and ſhall be free, as drunken men alſo are, from all Cares and Fears, either of not obtaining it, or of loſing it. b With thoſe rich and delightful proviſions, which thou haſt prepared for them in thy Habitation, (i. e.) either in the Tabernacle, where they uſed to feaſt upon the remainders of the Sacrifices; to which alſo he ſeems here to allude. Or rather, 2. In Heaven; which is called Gods Houſe, both in Scripture, as John 14. 2. and in divers Antient Heathen Authors. For the Expreſſions here uſed are too magnificent to be beſtowed upon thoſe Feaſts, or indeed upon any of the enjoyments of this Life, and do ill become him, who profeſſedly diſowns the having of his Portion in this Life, and declares his expectation of Happineſs in the next Life, Pſal. 17. 14, 15. And ſeeing it is apparent from Heb. 11. and from many other Scriptures both of the Old and New Teſtament, that both David and Job, and Abraham, and the reſt of the Holy Patriarchs and Prophets, had a firm belief and hope of the future Life, and their felicity therein; it ſeems moſt reaſonable to underſtand all thoſe paſſages of David, and the other Prophets of it, which naturally, and without any force may be ſo underſtood: Of which number certainly this Verſe and the following is one. c Before they had Fatneſs, (i. e.) Fat Meats; and now, Drink; to note the compleatneſs of their Feaſt. d Which notes both their plenty, and their conſtancy and perpetuity. e Which thou prepareſt, and which thou enjoyeſt; whence it is called the joy of the Lord, Mat. 25. 21. Or this notes their great eminency; for things moſt excellent in their kinds are entitled to God, as the goodlieſt Cedars, Mountains, &c. are called Cedars of God, Mountains of God, &c.

9 For with thee f is the fountain g of Life h: in thy light i ſhall we k ſee light l.

f (i. e.) In thy power to give it, and in thy preſence to be enjoyed. g Which notes, 1. Cauſality. It is in God as in a Fountain, and from him is derived to us, 2. Abundance, 3. Excellency. Water is ſweeteſt in the Fountain; and Fountains were rare and highly prized in thoſe hot Countries. h Of that glorious and bleſſed, and endleſs Life, which alone is worthy of the name of Life, this Life being only a paſſage to Death, and a theater of great and manifold Calamities. Although it be true, that God is the Fountain both of Natural and Spiritual Life. i In the light of thy Countenance or glorious preſence, which then ſhall be fully manifeſted unto us, when we ſhall ſee thee clearly, and Face to Face, and not through a Glaſs, and darkly, as we now ſee, 1 Cor. 13. 12. Comp. Pſal. 17. 15. k (i. e.) Enjoy, as ſeeing frequently ſignifies; of which ſee on Pſal. 34. 12. l The light of Life, as it is called, John 8. 12. Light in this Branch being the ſame thing with Life in the former, (i. e.) Joy and Comfort, and Happineſs, which is oft ſignified by Light, as the contrary is by Darkneſs. See Job 29. 3. Pſal. 27. 1. Iſa. 9. 2. There we ſhall have pure Light without any mixture of Darkneſs. The word Light is elegantly repeated in another ſignification; in the former Clauſe it is Light diſcovering, in this Light diſcovered or enjoyed.

*Pſ.64.10. & 125. 4.

10 O † continue m thy loving kindneſs unto them that know thee n; and thy righteouſneſs o to * the upright in heart.

m As this word ſignifies, Pſal. 85. 5. Eccleſ. 2. 3. Jer. 31. 3. As thou haſt begun, ſo continue the manifeſtation and exhibition of it, both in this Life, and to the next. Or, extend, or draw forth. Let it not be like a Fountain ſealed, but let it be drawn forth for their Comfort. n (i. e.) Sincerely love thee, as it is explained in the next Clauſe: for knowing implies Affection, as Pſal. 9. 10. and oft elſewhere. o Which will appear in giving them that protection and aſſiſtance, which thou art by thy Nature inclined, and by thy promiſe engaged to give them.

11 Let not the foot of pride p come againſt me q, and let not the hand of the wicked remove me r.

p (i. e.) Of my proud and inſolent Enemies: the Abſtract being put for the Concrete, as Jer. 50. 31, 32. From my place and Station, from the Land of my Nativity, and the place of thy Worſhip. Or, ſhake me, or caſt me down, (i. e.) Subdue and deſtroy me.

12 There s are the workers of iniquity fallen t: they are caſt down, and ſhall not be able to riſe.

Or, then, (i. e.) when they thought all ſure, and me irrecoverably loſt. t (i.e.) They ſhall certainly and ſuddenly fall; which the Prophets uſe to expreſs in the time paſt.

PSAL. XXXVII.

The ARGUMENT.

THe deſign of this Pſalm is to defend the Providence of God, and to ſatisfie the minds of Men, in that great queſtion, concerning the ſeeming inequality of Gods diſpenſations, in afflicting good Men, and giving proſperity to the worſt of Men, and to inſtruct Gods people how to demean themſelves in their preſent condition, and what ſupports and comforts they have in it.

A Pſalm of David.

The Pſalmiſt perſwadeth to Patience and Confidence in God, 1—8. And ſheweth the different ſtate of the godly and wicked in all their dealings, 9——40.

* Pſ. 73.3. Prov. 23. 17. & 24. 1. 9. 19.

1 FRet * not thy ſelf a becauſe of evil doers b; neither be thou envious c againſt the workers of iniquity.

a Give not way to immoderate Grief or Anger, or Impatience. b Becauſe they proſper in their wicked Enterprizes, whilſt thou art ſorely afflicted. c Eſteeming them happy, and ſecretly wiſhing that thou wert in their condition.

2 For they ſhall ſoon be cut down like the graſs, and wither as the green herb d.

d For their Happineſs, the matter of thy Envy is but ſhort-lived.

† Heb. in truth, or ſtableneſs.

3 Truſt in the LORD e, and do good f, ſo ſhalt thou dwell in the land g, and † verily thou ſhalt be fed h.

e Depend upon Gods Providence and Promiſe for thy protection and ſuſtentation for their Infidelity is the root of their wickedneſs. f Continue in the practice of that which is good and well-pleaſing to God. g (i. e.) Upon this condition ſhalt dwell ſafely and quietly in Canaan; as God had oft promiſed. In the Hebrew it is, dwell in the Land, as if it were a Command to abide in Canaan when Troubles come, and not to flee to the Philiſtins, or other Heathens for ſhelter, as he had fooliſhly done. But it is rather a promiſe, by comp. this with v. 27. 29. ſuch promiſes being oft expreſſed by Imperative Verbs put for Futures, as Gen. 12. 2. and 42. 18. Pſal. 128. 6. Amos 5. 4. h Heb. Thou ſhalt be fed (i. e. every way provided for) in Truth, (i. e.) truly or aſſuredly; or with, or by Faith, as this word ſignifies, (i. e.) by thy truſting in the Lord; thou ſhalt live by thy Faith, as is ſaid, Habak. 2. 4.

4 Delight thy ſelf alſo in the LORD i, and he ſhall give thee the deſires of thine heart k.

i In his Favour and Service, and in the ſtudy of his Word and Promiſes. k (i. e.) Thy juſt deſires, or whatſoever is truly deſirable and good for thee. Which limitation is neceſſarily to be underſtood, both from divers places of Scripture, and from the Nature of the things; for it is unreaſonable to imagine that God would engage himſelf to grant their ſinful and inordinate deſires, and it would alſo be a Curſe to them to have them granted.

† Heb. Ro thy way upon the LORD.
*Pſ.55.22. Prov.16.3. Mat. 6.25. Luke 12. 22. 1 Pet. 5.7.

5 † * Commit thy way l unto the LORD: truſt alſo in him, and he ſhall bring it to paſs m.

l (i. e.) All thy cares and buſineſs, thy deſires and neceſſities. Commend them to God by fervent Prayer, referring them to his good Will, and expecting an happy iſſue of all from him. m Heb. He ſhall do, or work, to wit, for thee, or what is fit to be done; or what thou deſireſt in the Senſe given on v. 4.

6 And he ſhall bring forth n thy righteouſneſs as the light o, and thy judgment p as the noon-day.

n To the view of the World; from which it hath hitherto ſeemed to be hid or eclipſed by Reproaches, and by grievous Calamities, which moſt men are apt to miſtake for Tokens and Puniſhments of great Wickedneſs. o It ſhall be as viſible to Men, as the Light of the Sun, and that at Noon-day, as it is in the next Branch. So effectually will he plead thy Cauſe. p The ſame thing with Righteouſneſs, as this word is uſed here below, v. 28. and 99. 4. and oft elſewhere.

† Heb. be ſilent to the LORD.

7 † Reſt in the LORD q, and wait patiently for him: fret not thy ſelf becauſe of him who proſpereth in his way r; becauſe of the man who bringeth wicked devices to paſs.

q Heb. Be ſilent unto, or for, or becauſe of the Lord; (i. e.) Do not murmur nor repine at his dealings, but ſilently and quietly ſubmit to his Will, and adore his Judgments, and as it follows, Wait for his Help. This Advice and Command is preſſed again and again, to teach us how hard it is, to learn and practice this Leſſon. r (i. e.) In his evil way, as it is limited in the following words.

8 Ceaſe from anger s, and forſake wrath: fret not thy ſelf in any wiſe, to do evil t.

s Either againſt the ſinner for his ſucceſs; or againſt God, for ſo diſpoſing of things, as Jonah was, ch. 4. 1. t Or, at leaſt ſo far as to do Evil. If any ſuch Anger, or Grief, do ſecretly ariſe in thee, take care that it do not tranſport thee, either to reproach or diſtruſt Gods Providence, or to the diſlike of his ways, or to an approbation or imitation of the wicked practices of thoſe Men, in hopes of the ſame ſucceſs.

9 For evil doers ſhall be cut off u: but thoſe that wait upon the LORD, they ſhall inherit the earth x.

u To wit, from the Earth, by comparing this with the next Clauſe, and with Pſal. 34. 16. Their end ſhall certainly be moſt miſerable. x According to Gods promiſe oft made to ſuch; which alſo for the moſt part was literally fulfilled in that ſtate of the Church; and if it was not, it was fulfilled with far greater advantage in Spiritual and Eternal Bleſſings.

* Job 7. 10. & 20. 9.

10 For yet a little while y and the wicked ſhall not be z: yea, * thou ſhalt diligently conſider his place a, and it ſhall not be b.

y Their Time and Proſpeity is very ſhort, and therefore no matter of Envy. z To wit, in the Land of the Living. 14 The wicked have drawn out the ſword, and have bent

bent their bow h to caſt down the poor and needy, and to ſlay † ſuch as be of upright converſation i.

h They are furniſhed with all ſorts of Arms, and are ready to give the deadly blow. i Such againſt whom they have no Quarrel, for any injury they have done them, but only for their Integrity and Righteouſneſs, or becauſe they are better than themſelves, and will not comply with their wicked Counſels and Courſes.

15 Their ſword ſhall enter into their own heart k, and their bows ſhall be broken.

k God will not onely defend the upright from their Miſchievous Deſigns, but will make them to fall upon their own Heads.

16 A little that a righteous man hath, is better than the riches of many wicked l.

l Becauſe he hath it with many great and glorious Advantages, with God's Favour and Bleſſings, with great Serenity and Satisfaction of his own Mind, which is infinitely more Deſirable and Comfortable than all Earthly Poſſeſſions, [with the Conſolations of God's Spirit, and the aſſurance of ever-laſting Felicity :] whilſt wicked mens Riches are loaded with many incumbrances, with the Warth and Curſe of God, the Torment of their own Conſciences and Paſſions, and the dreadful Expectation of an after-reckoning, and of endleſs Miſeries.

17 For * the arms of the wicked ſhall be broken : but the LORD upholdeth the righteous m.

m. This is a Proof of what he ſaid, v. 16. For what the wicked have, ſhall ſuddenly be loſt and gone, but God will maintain the righteous in their happy Eſtate.

18 The LORD * knoweth n the days of the upright o, and their inheritance ſhall be for ever p.

n Obſerveth with ſingular Care and Affection. o (i. e.) Their Condition, and all things which do or may befal them, their Dangers and Fears, and ſuffering from ungodly men ; and therefore will watch over them, and preſerve them from all the Deſigns and Attempts of their Enemies. Days or Years, or Times, are oft put for things done, or Events happening in them, as Deut. 32. 7. Pſal. 31. 15. and 77. 5. and 143 5. Iſa. 63. 11. p To them and there ſeed for ever : Comp. v. 29. And when they dye their inheritance is not loſt, but exchanged for one infinitely better.

19 They ſhall be aſhamed q in the evil time : and * in the days of famine, they ſhall be ſatisfied.

q. For the diſapointment of their Hopes, but their Hopes and Deiires ſhall be ſatisfied, as it follows.

20 But the wicked ſhall periſh, and the Enemies of the LORD ſhall be † as the fat of lambs r ; they ſhall conſume, into ſmoke s ſhall they conſume away.

r Which in an inſtant melteth before the Fire. s (i. e.) Utterly and irrecoverably.

21 The wicked borroweth, and payeth not again t : * but the righteous ſheweth mercy and giveth.

t Either through Covetouſneſs and injuſtice ; Or rather, becauſe of that great penury into which God ſhall bring him ; whilſt the righteous is not onely provided ſufficiently for himſelf, but hath abundance and to ſpare for others. For he is here comparing the wicked and the righteous, not ſo much in their Vertues or moral Qualities, as in their outward Conditions, which alſo appears from the following Verſe, which gives the reaſon of this.

22 For ſuch as be bleſſed of him u ſhall inherit the earth ; and they that be curſed of him ſhall be cut off.

u (i. e.) Of the Lord, as appears both from v. 20. where he is named, and from the Nature of the thing, this being God's Prerogative to Bleſs or to Curſe men. And this he mentions, both as the Foundation, and as the Proof of the Certainty of their future Happineſs.

23 The ſteps of a good man x are || ordered y by the LORD : and he delighteth in his way z.

x Or, of that Man, to wit, the Righteous or Bleſſed Man, expreſſed, v. 21, 22. y Or, directed or diſpoſed, (i. e.) So governed, as to attain the end and Happy iſſue at which he Aims. Or, ſtrengthned or eſtabliſhed, ſo as he ſhall not ſtumble nor fall into Miſchief. For ſtill he ſeems to be deſcribing, not their Vertue, but their Felicity. z Or, and he favoureth his way, (i. e.) Succeeds and proſpers his Counſels and Enterprizes.

24 * Though he fall a, he ſhall not be utterly caſt down b ; for the LORD upholdeth him with his hand.

a Either, 1. Into ſin, as this Word is uſed, Jer. 8. 4. 1. 1 Cor. 10. 12. Or rather, 2. Into Diſtreſs or Trouble, as Mich. 7. 8. b. (i. e.) Not totally, nor irrecoverably Ruined.

25 I have been young, and now am old, yet have I not ſeen the righteous forſaken, nor his ſeed begging bread c.

c. This aſſertion ſeeems to be Contradicted by many Experiences : nor can it be denied, that both good Men and their Children, have ſometimes been reduced to great want. Queſt. How then is this true ? Anſ. 1. Some render the laſt Clauſe thus, nor (did I ever ſee) his ſeed (to wit, forſaken, as was now laid) though begging Bread. So the Sence is, I have ſeen him brought to beggery, yet even then God did not forſake him. But this Sence agrees not with the Context, nor Scope, which is to ſhew the Plenty and Proſperity, where-with God bleſſeth him. 2. This is to be underſtood of the ſeed of the Righteous, treading in their Fathers ſteps from which if they degenerate, they loſe all their Priviledges, as many places of Scripture witneſs. 3. Some few Exceptions, do not deſtroy the Truth of a general Propoſition. 4. Theſe temporal Promiſes were more expreſs, and particular to the Jews in the times of the Old Teſtament, than to Chriſtians in the New, and therefore were more litterally fulfilled. 5. He ſpeaks not of any kind of wanting or deſiring, or receiving Relief from others, for ſo David himſelf did, 1 Sam. 21. 3. and 25. 8. but of the Cuſtomary Practiſe and Trade of begging, which was threatned as a Curſe to the diſobedient, Deut. 28. Pſal. 109. 10. 6. Not begging, to wit, in vain, Or, ſo as to be forſaken, as now expreſſed, and may very well be here underſtood, Or, ſo as to be ſuſtained or relieved by others. 7. David ſpeaks only of his own Experience, which if ſince that time it be Contradicted by other mens Experiences, it is no more than what happens in all the Concernments of humane Life.

26 * He is † ever merciful, and lendeth d, and his ſeed is bleſſed e. *Pſ. 112. 9. † Heb. all the day.

d He is ſo far from begging from others, that he hath Ability as well as Inclination, to give or lend to others, as need requires. e Not onely with Spritual, but with Temporal bleſſings. So far ſhall he be from waſting his Eſtate, and undoing himſelf, and Family by his Bounty and Charity, as Covetous Worldings objected or feared.

27 * Depart from evil, And do good f : and dwell g for evermore h. *Pſ. 34. 14.

f Having therefore theſe glorious Promiſes and Priviledges, let no man do any Evil or unjuſt thing, to enrich or ſecure himſelf, nor abſtaining from Pious and Charitable Actions, for fear of undoing himſelf by them, but let every man Live in the Conſcionable diſcharge of all his Duties to God and Men, committing himſelf and all his Affairs to God's fatherly Care and Providence, and Confidently expecting his Bleſſing thereupon. g (i. e.) Thou ſhalt dwell, as before, v. 3. to wit, in the Land, as is expreſſed, v. 3. and afterwards in Heaven. h Either Properly : Or for a long time ; of which that Word is oft uſed.

28 For the LORD loveth judgment i, and forſaketh not his Saints k ; * they are preſerved for ever : but the ſeed of the wicked ſhall be cut off. * Pſ. 102. 28.

i (i. e.) Juſt judgment, or Righteouſneſs, as that Word is oft taken, as hath been ſhewed again and again ; Either, 1. In himſelf, (i. e.) He loveth to execute Judgment upon the wicked, and for the Righteous ; which he doth in the manner expreſſed in this Pſalm. Or, 2. In the Righteous themſelves, whoſe Juſtice and Piety, and Charity he ſees and Loves, and will reward it. k Or, his Favourites, or they to whom he hath a good will : Or, his bountiful Ones, who exerciſe Benignity and Charity to others.

Having ſhewed in divers Verſes, God's ſingular Care over, and Reſpect to the Righteous, he proceeds to give a Character of them, and withal to aſſign one Reaſon of the great Difference of God's dealings with them, and with other Men. o Either, 1. For the Manner of it, with Wiſdom, and Judgment. Or, rather, 2. For the Matter of it, Heavenly Wiſdom, and God's judgment, or Word or Law, as it follows, v. 31. He doth not talk Religiouſly in Deſign, or with Oſtentation, but out of the abundance of his Heart Mat. 12. 35. q This paſſage deſcribes, Either, 1. His Safety, Conſequent upon his Piety ; God will uphold and preſerve him from falling into that Miſchief, which wicked men Plot againſt him. Or rather, 2. His Vertue or Piety : Which is evidenced by his Words, v. 30. by his Heart, in the former part of this Verſe, and by his Actions in theſe Words. His ſteps or goings (i. e. his Actions) ſhall not : (or rather, do not : For this Verb though Future, may and ſhould be rendred by the preſent, as Futures frequently are in the Hebrew Language, and as the two forgoing Future Verbs are rendred, v. 30.) ſlide or ſlip, or ſwerve, to wit, from the Rule, or from God's Law. Which is to be underſtood as that Paſſage, Pſal. 119. 3. They do no iniquity ; and ſome ſuch Expreſſions, not ſimply and abſolutely, as if all good Men were Sinleſs ; which is abundantly Confuted, both by many Scriptures and by univerſal Experience ; but Comparatively, and in Reſpect of his Deſign and Courſe, or Cuſtome. His Converſation is ordinarily Regular and unblameable. He not only begins well, but Conſtantly perſevers in God's ways, and will not be drawn to forſake God and Religion upon any Terms.

32 The wicked watcheth r the righteous, and ſeeketh to ſlay him.

r To find out a fit ſeaſon or occaſion to deſtroy him.

33 The LORD will not leave him in his hand s, nor condemn him t when he is judged.

s (i. e.) Not give him up to his Power and Rage. t (i. e.) Not give his Conſent to the Sentence of Condemnation, which the wicked have pronounced againſt him, but will juſtifie him, and Vindicate his innocency and deliver him : For ſuch Negatives do oft imply the contrary Affirmatives ; as God's not holding a man Guiltleſs, commonly implies that he will ſeverely puniſh him.

34 Wait on the LORD u, and keep his * way x, and he ſhall exhalt thee to inherit the land : * when the wicked are cut off, thou ſhalt ſee it y. * Pſ. 119. 27, 32, 33, 35. * Pſ. 91. 8.

u Seeking and truſting to him, and to him onely, for Help and Deliverance. x Continue in the Practiſe of thy Duty, or in thoſe ways, which God hath preſcribed to thee in his Word, and do not uſe indirected and irregular means to deliver thy ſelf. y Thou ſhalt not onely eſcape the Deſtruction which they Deſign for thee, but ſhalt Live to ſee their Ruine.

* Job 5. 3. || Or, a green Tree that groweth in his own ſoil.

35 * I have ſeen the wicked in great power z, and ſpreading himſelf a like a || green bay-tree b;

z Or Formidable: Not only himſelf out of Danger, as it ſeemed, but terrible to others. a And therefore firmly and deeply rooted. b Which is continually green and flouriſhing, yea even in the Winter-ſeaſon. Or, like a green Tree in its own Native ſoil; where Trees flouriſh much better than when they are tranſplanted into another Soil.

36 Yet he paſſed away c, and lo, he was not: yea, I ſought him, but he could not be found d.

c He was gone in an inſtant, like a Tree blaſted and blown down, or cut off and rooted out, and carried away in a moment. d There was no Monument nor Remainder of him left.

37 Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace e.

e Though he may meet with Troubles in his way, yet all ſhall end well with him; he ſhall be happy at laſt.

38 But the tranſgreſſours ſhall be deſtroyed together f, the end of the wicked ſhall be cut off g.

f Or, alike, one as well as another, all without any exception or reſpect of Perſons. g (i. e.) He ſhall be cut off at laſt, or in the end. His Proſperity ſhall end in Deſtruction. Or, the Poſterity (as this word ſignifies, Pſal. 109. 13. Jer. 31. 17. Ezek. 23. 25. Dan. 11. 4.) of the wicked, &c.

39 But the ſalvation of the righteous is of the LORD h; he is their ſtrength in the time of trouble.

40 And the LORD ſhall help them and deliver them: he ſhall deliver them from the wicked, and ſave them becauſe they truſt in him.

h And therefore it ſhall certainly come to them.

PSAL. XXXVIII.

The ARGUMENT.

THis is reckoned one of Davids Penitential Pſalms. It was Compoſed upon occaſion of ſome ſore Diſeaſe, or grievous Calamity; which he rightly judged to be inflicted upon him for his Sins.

* Pſal. 70. Tit.

A Pſalm of David to bring * to remembrance a.

a Either, 1. To God, that by this humble and mournful Prayer, he might prevail with God, to remember and pity him; for now he ſeemed quite to have forgotten him. Or 2. To himſelf, that by reviewing this Pſalm afterwards, he might call to Mind his former danger and miſery, and Gods wonderful mercy in delivering him from them; which we are very apt to forget. And that others alſo might remember and conſider what God had done to him, firſt in chaſtening, and then in reſtoring him, and might make uſe of his Example for their benefit.

David being viſited with Sickneſs, rehearſeth his woful condition, 1—3. by reaſon of his Sins, 4—8. Prayeth for forgiveneſs, help and favour, 9, 10. He layes before God the unfaithfulneſs of his Friends, 11—18. and the cruelty of his Enemies, 19—22.

1 O LORD, rebuke me not in thy wrath, neither chaſten me in thy hot diſpleaſure b.

b I confeſs, I both deſerve Chaſtiſement and need it, and therefore I deſire not that thou wouldſt remove it, but only moderate it. See the ſame expreſſion, Pſal. 6. 1.

* Job 6. 4.

2 For * thine arrows c ſtick faſt in me, and thy hand preſſeth me ſore d.

c (i. e.) Thy Judgments inflicted upon my outward and inward Man, oft compared to Arrows, as Deut. 32. 23. Pſal. 7. 13. and 45. 5. and 91. 5. d Or, comes down upon me, as when a ſtrong Man lifts up his Hand and Weapon, that it may fall down with greater Violence, and make the deeper Wound.

* Pſal. 6. 2. † Heb. Peace, or Health.

3 There is no ſoundneſs in my fleſh becauſe of thine anger: * neither is there any † reſt in my bones e becauſe of my ſin f.

e My diſeaſe or grief, hath ſeized upon all the parts of my Body, my very Bones not excepted, ſo that my Bed can give me no reſt. f Which hath provoked thee to deal thus ſeverely with me.

* Ezra 9. 6.

4 For mine iniquities g * are gone over my head h: as an heavy burden they are too heavy for me.

g Or, the Puniſhment of mine iniquities, as this word is frequently uſed: Which beſt agrees both with the foregoing and following Verſes, and with the Metaphor here uſed; which in other places of Scripture is generally applyed to Afflictions, and not to Sins. h Like deep Waters wherewith I am overwhelmed and almoſt drowned, Pſal. 42. 7. and 69. 2. and 124. 4, 5.

5 My wounds ſtink, and are corrupt i: becauſe of my fooliſhneſs k.

i The Bruiſes and Sores cauſed by my Diſeaſe, are not only painful but loathſome, to my ſelf and to others. k (i. e.) Sin, which really is, and is commonly called folly, as Pſal. 69. 5. Prov. 13. 16. and 14. 17. and 15. 2. &c.

† Heb. wryed. || Or, in black. Mal. 3. 14.

6 I am † troubled l, I am bowed down greatly; I go || mourning m all the day long.

l Heb. Diſtorted, or depreſſed: Or, as it is expreſſed by another word, ſignifying the ſame thing, bowed down, to wit, in my Body, as diſeaſed perſons commonly are, and withal dejected in my Mind. m Heb. In black, the ſign of Mourning, which may here ſignifie the thing, as ſigns oft do. When for my eaſe I riſe out of my Bed and walk, or rather creep about in my Chamber, I do it with a ſad Heart, and dejected Countenance. Or, if he did walk further, his Diſeaſe had ſome Intervals and Mitigations. Or going, may be here meant of his languiſhing, or going towards the Grave, as this ſame word is uſed, Gen. 15. 2. Compare with 25. 32. Joſ. 23. 14.

7 For my loins are filled with a loathſome diſeaſe n, and there is no ſoundneſs in my fleſh.

n Or, with filthineſs: Or, with ſcorching heat. The Diſeaſe might be ſome burning Feaver, being alſo Malignant or Peſtilential, either burning inwardly, or breaking forth outwardly in Carbuncles, or Boyls. It is true, this and the other Expreſſions may be taken Figuratively, of ſome grievous Calamity. But we ſhould not forſake the proper and the literal ſenſe of the Words without neceſſity, which ſeems not to be in this place.

8 I am feeble and ſore broken: I have roared o by reaſon of the diſquietneſs of my heart p.

o Like a Bear or a Lyon, through extream Pain and Miſery. p For the great Anxiety and Torment of my Mind, cauſed by the deep ſenſe of my ſins, and of Gods wrath, and of the ſad iſſue of my Diſeaſe; which being added to my bodily pains, makes them more intolerable.

9 Lord, all my deſire is before thee; and my groaning is not hid from thee q.

q I do not utter all theſe Complaints, nor roar out that thou mayſt hear and know them, for thou heareſt and knoweſt, even my loweſt Groans; yea, mine inward Deſires and all my Neceſſities. And therefore, I pray thee, pity and deliver me, as I truſt thou wiltſt do.

† Heb. is not with me.

10 My heart panteth r, my ſtrength faileth me: as for the light of mine eyes, it alſo † is gone from me s.

r Or, goes round, wanders hither and thither, as the word ſignifies: is perplexed and toſſed with many and various Thoughts, not knowing what to do, nor whither to go. s Mine Eyes are grown dim; either through grief and tears, as Pſal. 6. 7. Or through weakneſs, as 1 Sam. 14. 28, 29.

* Pſ. 31. 11. Mat. 27. 55. † Heb. ſtroke. || Or, my Neighbours.

11 * My lovers and my friends ſtand aloof t from my † ſore; and || my kinſmen ſtand afar off.

t Either through Neglect and Contempt, or diſdain of me: Or through Delicacy and Abhorrency, from loathſome and ſadding Spectacles: Or through fear of Infection, or ſome other Inconveniences.

12 They alſo that ſeek after my life, lay ſnares for me u; and they that ſeek my hurt, ſpeak miſchievous things, and imagine deceits x all the day long.

u That if my Diſeaſe do not kill me, they may deſtroy me ſome other way. x They deſign miſchief, but cover it with fair pretences.

13 But I, as a deaf man, heard not; and I was as a dumb man, that openeth not his mouth y.

y I carried my ſelf towards them, as if I had no Ears to hear, what they ſaid either to me, or for me, nor a Tongue to Anſwer, or reprove them for their Reproaches and Calumnies. Which he did not for want of juſt Anſwers to them, but to teſtifie his Humiliation for his Sins, and his patient ſubmiſſion to, and acceptation of the puniſhment which he had brought upon himſelf. Of which ſee an inſtance, 2 Sam. 16. 10, 11, 12. Wherein alſo he was an eminent Type of Chriſt, who when he was reviled, reviled not again, 1 Pet. 2. 23.

14 Thus I was as a man that heareth not, and in whoſe mouth are no reproofs z.

z Or Arguments, to convince or confute them, or to defend my ſelf.

|| Or, Thee do I wait for. || Or, Anſwer.

15 For || in thee, O LORD, do I hope a: thou wilt || hear, O LORD my God.

a I bore their Carriage ſilently and patiently, becauſe I hoped and knew that thou wouldeſt Anſwer for me, and plead my Cauſe better than my ſelf; which I would not prevent by my impatience, and avenging my ſelf. Or, But in thee do I hope, (i. e.) Though Friends forſake me, and mine Enemies plot and practice againſt me, yet I do not deſpair, becauſe I have thee on my ſide.

16 For I ſaid b Hear me, leſt otherwiſe they ſhould rejoyce over me c: when my foot ſlippeth d, they magnifie themſelves againſt me e.

b To wit, in my Heart and Prayers, I uſed this Argument which I knew was prevalent. c In my deſtruction, which alſo will reflect upon thee; who haſt undertaken to defend and ſave me, and for whoſe ſake I ſuffer ſo much from theſe wicked men, v. 20. d When I fall either into any groſs ſin, or into any miſery, or into both, as I have now done. e They triumph in the accompliſhment of their deſigns or deſires.

† Heb. for Halting. Pſ. 35. 15. Mic. 4. 7.

17 For I am ready † to halt f, and my ſorrow is continually before me g.

f Juſt falling into utter deſtruction; ſee Jer. 20. 10. and therefore if thou doſt not help me ſpeedily, it will be too late. g I am deeply and conſtantly ſenſible of thy juſt hand, and of my ſins the cauſe of it; wherewith I ſhall be overwhelmed, if thou doſt not prevent it.

18 For I will declare mine iniquity h; I will be ſorry i for my ſin k.

h Either to thee; or publickly to the World, becauſe my ſin hath been publick and ſcandalous. i Heb. I will be (or, I am: Futures being oft ſo taken) ſollicitous or anxious, full of Grief for what is paſt, and of Cares and Fears for the Future; partly, leſt I ſhould relapſe into the ſame folly upon new Temptations; and partly, leſt thou ſhouldeſt cut me off for my ſins. Therefore pity and pardon, and ſave me. k Or, by reaſon of my ſin, or upon that occaſion.

† Heb. being living are ſtrong.

19 But mine enemies † are lively l, and they are ſtrong; and they that hate me wrongfully are multiplied.

l Heb. Living, (i. e.) Thriving or flouriſhing, or proſperous, as Life is uſed, Pſal. 22. 26. and 34. 12. and elſewhere.

20 They alſo * that render evil for good m, are mine adverſaries: becauſe I follow the thing that good is n.

m They hate and perſecute me, not only without any injury or provocation on my part, but as it were in requital of the good which I have done to them. n Becauſe I love and diligently practice Juſtice and Godlineſs, which they hate, and which they take to be a reproach to them, and which I did exerciſe, as I had opportunity in the puniſhment of ſuch as they are. Compare John 15. 15. 1 John 3. 12.

21 Forſake me not, O LORD; O my God, be not far from me.

22 Make haſt † to help me, O LORD, my ſalvation.

Heb. for help.

PSAL. XXXIX.

The ARGUMENT.

This Pſalm was written by David, when his Mind was much diſcompoſed and diſquieted with the Contemplation of the proſperity of ſinners, and the afflictions of the Godly; which being exemplified in himſelf and in his Enemies, he ſpeaks of the Caſe not in general, but as in his own perſon.

1 Chro. 1.

To the chief muſician, even to * Jeduthun a, A Pſalm of David.

a One of the three chief Maſters of the Sacred Muſick: Of whom ſee 1 Chron. 16. 41, 42. 2 Chron. 5. 12.

David taketh care of his thoughts, words and works, 1—3. He conſidereth the brevity and vanity of Mans Life, 4—6. Puts his hope in God, 7. Prayeth for the forgiveneſs of his ſins, 8—11. and for favour in his pilgrimage, 12, 13.

Heb. a bridle, or muzzle for my Mouth.

1 I Said b, I will take heed to my ways c, that I ſin not with my tongue d: I will keep † my mouth as with a bridle e, while the wicked is before me f.

b I fully reſolved. c (i. e.) To order all my Actions aright, and particularly to govern my Tongue, which is very hard to do, and eſpecially under theſe provocations. d That if any evil Thoughts or Paſſions do ariſe in me, I will indeavour to ſuppreſs and mortifie them, and not ſuffer them to boyl and break forth into ſinful and ſcandalous Reflections upon God and his Providence, as they uſually do upon ſuch occaſions. e (i. e.) With all poſſible care and diligence. The Phraſe implies the great difficulty of ruling the Tongue. f Either, 1. In my Preſence. Or rather, 2. In my Thoughts, as the ſame Phraſe is underſtood, Pſal. 51. 3. (i. e.) whilſt I conſider the flouriſhing Eſtate of wicked Men.

† Heb. troubled.

2 I was dumb with ſilence g; I held my peace, even from good h, and my ſorrow was † ſtirred i.

g I was ſo long, and ſo obſtinately ſilent, that I ſeemed to my ſelf and to others to be dumb. Two words put together, expreſſing the ſame thing, to aggravate or increaſe it. Or, I was dumb with quietneſs, (i. e.) Not out of ſullenneſs, but with ſubmiſſiveneſs to Gods Diſpenſations, which is oft noted by ſilence. h I forbare to ſpeak what I juſtly might upon that occaſion, leſt the Flood-gates of Speech being once opened, and Speech ſtirring up my Paſſion, I ſhould by degrees break forth into ſome indecent and ſinful Expreſſions, to the diſhonour of God, the wounding of mine own Conſcience, and the offence of others. Or, this may be a Proverbial Speech ſignifying ſtrict ſilence; like that Gen. 31. 29. ſpeak to him neither good nor bad, (i. e.) Nothing at all, to wit, about that matter to perſwade him to return. i My ſilence did not aſſwage my Grief but increaſe it, as it naturally and commonly doth.

3 My heart was hot within me; while I was muſing k, the fire burned l: then ſpake I with my tongue m.

k (i. e.) Conſidering in my own Thoughts, the great wickedneſs and ſucceſsfulneſs of mine Enemies, and other wicked men, and withal mine own and other good Mens Integrity, attended with great troubles and miſeries in this Life. l My Thoughts kindled my Paſſions. m To wit, ſuch words as I had purpoſed not to ſpeak, v. 1. Raſh and impatient words: Either, 1. Some words not here expreſſed; which having uttered to men, he turneth his ſpeech to God, v. 4. Or, 2. Thoſe which here follow.

* Pſ. 119. 84.
|| Or, what time I have here.

4 LORD n, * make me to know o my end p, and the meaſure of my days, what it is q, that I may know † how frail I am r.

n This Verſe contains either, 1. A correction of himſelf for his impatient motions or ſpeeches, and his retirement to God for relief, under theſe perplexing and ſadding Thoughts. Or, 2. A declaration of the words which he ſpake. o Either, 1. Practically ſo as to prepare for it. Or, 2. Experimentally, as words of Knowledge are oft uſed. And ſo this is a ſecret deſire of Death, that he might be free from ſuch Torments, as made his Life a burden to him. Or, 3. By Revelation; that I may have ſome proſpect or fore-knowledge when my Calamities will be ended: Which argued impatience, and an unwillingneſs to wait long for Deliverance. p (i. e.) The end of my Life, as is evident from the following words. q How long or ſhort it is, or the utmoſt extent or period of the days of my Life. r Or, How long (Or, How little, for the word may be, and is by divers Interpreters taken both ways:) Time I have, or ſhall continue here.

† Heb. ſettled.
* Pſ. 62.9. & 144. 4.

5 Behold, thou haſt made my days as an handbreadth s, and mine age is nothing t before thee u: verily every man x † at his beſt ſtate y is altogether * vanity z. Selah.

s Which is one of the leaſt meaſures, (i. e.) very ſhort. Theſe and the following words are either, 1. A continuance of his Complaint that although his days were of themſelves very ſhort, yet God ſeemed to grudge him their natural length, and threatned to make them ſhorter, and to cut him off before his time. Or rather, 2. A Conſolation and Correction of his laſt words, as if he ſaid, Why, am I ſo greedy to know the end of my Life, ſeeing I do already know this that my Life cannot laſt very long, and therefore if my Troubles be ſharp, they will be but ſhort. t Next to nothing for ſubſtance and for continuance. u (i. e.) In thy Judgment, and therefore in Truth and Reality: Or, if compared with thee, and with thy everlaſting duration. Comp. Pſal. 90. 4. 2 Pet. 3. 8. x Prince or Peaſant, Wiſe or Fools, good or bad. y Heb. though ſettled or eſtabliſhed: When he ſtands faſteſt, and likely to continue longeſt, in regard of his Health and Strength, and all poſſible means whereby Life may be ſecured, ſupported or prolonged. z All that he is or hath, is as light and vain, and unſtable as Vanity it ſelf, there is nothing but vanity and uncertainty in all his outward enjoyments, in the Conſtitution of his Body; yea, in the very Temper and Endowments of his Mind. By which general condition of all mankind, he indeavours to quiet and compoſe his Mind to bear the common Lot.

6 Surely every man walketh a in † a vain ſhew b: ſurely they are diſquieted c in vain d: * he heapeth up e riches, and knoweth not who ſhall gather them f.

† Heb. an Image. Pſ. 73. 20.
* Job 27. 17. Eccleſ. 2. 21, 26. & 5. 14.

a (i. e.) Paſſeth the courſe of his Life; or goeth about buſily and reſtleſly hither and thither, as this Verb in this Conjugation ſignifies, and as the next Verb more plainly expreſſeth. b Heb. In a ſhadow or Image, (i. e.) In an imaginary rather than a real Life: in the purſuit of vain Imaginations, in which there is nothing ſolid or ſatisfactory. Or, as ſome read it, Like a ſhadow, to which Mans Life is compared, Job 14. 2. Man and his Life, and all his Happineſs in this World, are rather Appearances and Repreſentations and Dreams, than Truths and Realities. c Or, troubled: Heb. They make a noiſe, or Buſtling, or Tumult, with unwearied Induſtry ſeeking for Riches, as it follows, and troubling and vexing both themſelves and others in the purſuit of them, as this word implies. d To no purpoſe; or without any real or conſiderable benefit, to him or his. e For his own uſe, and for his Poſterity after him. f Whether his Children, or Strangers, or Enemies, ſhall poſſeſs and enjoy them.

7 And now LORD, what wait I for? my hope is in thee g.

g Seeing this Life and all its enjoyments are ſo vain and ſhort to all Men, and eſpecially to me, I will never expect nor ſeek for Happineſs here, from theſe Vanities, I will compoſe my ſelf patiently and contentedly to bear both my own Afflictions, and the proſperity and glory of ungodly men, for both are vaniſhing and tranſitory things, and I will ſeek for Happineſs no where but in the Love and Favour of God, in ſerving and glorifying him here, and in the hope or confident expectation of enjoying him hereafter; and in the mean time, of receiving from him thoſe ſupplies and aſſiſtances, which my preſent condition calls for.

8 Deliver me from all my tranſgreſſions h; make me not the reproach i of the fooliſh k.

h That I may not be diſappointed of my hopes of enjoying thee, and thy Favour, which is the only thing that I deſire, pardon all my ſins, which ſtand like a thick Cloud between thee and me, and fill me with Fears about my Condition both here and hereafter. i Let not their Proſperity and my Miſery give them occaſion to deride and reproach me, for my ſerving of thee, and truſting in thee, to ſo little purpoſe or advantage. k (i. e.) Of wicked men, who though they profeſs and think themſelves to be Wiſe, yet indeed are Fools, as is manifeſt from their eager purſuit of fruitleſs Vanities, v. 6. and from their groſs neglect of God, and of his Service, who only is able to make them happy.

9 * I was dumb, I opened not my mouth l; becauſe thou didſt it m.

* Job 40. 4, 5.

l To wit, in way of murmuring or repining againſt thee, or thy Providence, as I promiſe I would be, v. 1. For though when I looked only to Inſtruments, I was diſcompoſed, and did at laſt ſpeak a fooliſh word, yet when I did recollect my ſelf and looked up to thee, the firſt cauſe and ſoveraign diſpoſer of this, and all other things, I return to my former ſilence. m What? Either, 1. And particularly Abſaloms Rebellion; wherein I acknowledge thy juſt hand in puniſhing my ſins. Or, 2. And more generally, whatſoever is done in theſe matters; all the Events which befall all Men, whether good or bad: The Afflictions of the one, and the Proſperity of the other; All which are the effects of thy Counſel and Providence, in which all Men ought to acquieſce.

10 * Remove thy ſtroke away from me n: I am conſumed o by the † blow of thine hand.

* Job 9. 34.
† Heb. Conflict.

n But although I may not, I will not, open my mouth to complain of thee, yet I may open it to complain and pray to thee, that thou wouldeſt take off the Judgment, which thou haſt inflicted upon me. o Help me therefore, before I be utterly and irrecoverably loſt.

11 When thou with rebukes p doſt correct man for iniquity q, thou makeſt † his beauty r to conſume away like a moth s: * ſurely every man is vanity t. Selah.

† Heb. that which is deſired in him to melt away.

p (i. e.) With Puniſhment, which are oft ſo called. See Pſal. 6. 1. and 76. 6. q (i. e.) Doſt puniſh him as his iniquity deſerves. r Heb. his deſire, (i. e.) his deſirable things, as this word ſignifies, Lam. 1. 11. Dan. 9. 23. and 10. 3. 11, 19. His Comelineſs, Strength, Wealth and Proſperity, and all his preſent Excellencies or Felicities. s Either 1. Paſſively, as a Moth is quickly and eaſily cruſhed to pieces with a touch; as this Phraſe is uſed, Job 4. 19. Or 2. Actively, as a Moth conſumeth a Garment, as it is, Job 13. 28. Iſa. 50. 9. to which God compareth himſelf and his Judgments, ſecretly and inſenſibly conſuming a People, Iſa. 51. 8. Hoſea 5. 12. t And this confirms what I ſaid, v. 5. That every Man is Vanity. Which though men in the height of their proſperity will not believe, yet when God contendeth with them, by his Judgments they are forced to acknowledge it.

12 Hear my prayer, O LORD, and give ear unto my cry; hold not thy peace at my tears u : * for I am a ſtranger x with thee y, and a ſojourner, as all my fathers were z.

* Lev. 25. 23. 1 Chron. 29. 15. Pſ. 119. 19. Heb. 11. 13. 1 Pet. 2. 11.

u Joyned with my Prayers, Heb. 5. 7. x Though I be not only a Native, but either anointed, or actually King of this Land, yet in Truth I am but a Stranger, both in regard of my very uncertain and ſhort continuance here, where I am only in my Journey or Paſſage to my real and long Home, which is in the other World; and in reſpect of the many wants, and hardſhips, and contempts, and injuries to which I am expoſed, as men uſually are in ſtrange Lands. And therefore I greatly need and deſire thy pity and help, Oh thou who art the Patron of Strangers, whom thou haſt commended to our care and kindneſs, Exod. 12. 48. Lev. 19. 33. and 25. 35. &c. y Either 1. In thy ſight or Judgment, and therefore truly. We are apt to flatter our ſelves, and can hardly believe that we are but Strangers here, where we ſeem to have ſettled Habitations and Poſſeſſions, but thou knoweſt the Truth of the Buſineſs, that we are really ſuch. Or, 2. In thy Land or Territory, in which I ſojourn only by thy leave and favour, and during thy pleaſure, as this whole Phraſe is uſed, Levit. 25. 23. whence theſe words are taken, as alſo v. 35, 36, 39, 40, 45, 47. where that branch of it, with thee, is ſo meant. And withal this Phraſe both here and Levit. 25. 23. may have a further Emphaſis in it, implying that every Iſraelite, and particularly David himſelf, in reſpect of men, were the proprietors or owners of their portions, of which no other man might deprive or diſpoſſeſs them, and therefore Davids Enemies had done wrongfully in baniſhing him from his, and from the Lords inheritance; but yet in reſpect of God they were but ſtrangers, and God was the onely Proprietor of it. z Both in thy Judgment expreſſed, Lev. 25. 23. and in their own Opinion, Heb. 11. 13. &c. Upon which account thou didſt take a ſpecial care of them, and therefore do ſo to me alſo.

13 O ſpare me ‖ that I may recover ſtrength † before I go hence *, and be no more.

‖ Or, Ceaſe from me, (i. e.) From afflicting me, do not deſtroy me. My Life at beſt is but ſhort and miſerable, as I have ſaid, and thou knoweſt, ſufficient for it is the Evil thereof: do not add Affliction to the Afflicted. † Both in my outward and inward man, both which are much weakened and oppreſſed. Or, that I may be refreſhed, or comforted, eaſed of the burden of my ſins, and thy terrors conſequent upon them, and better prepared for a comfortable and happy diſſolution. * Heb. Before I go, to wit, unto the Grave, as this phraſe is uſed, Gen. 15. 2. and 25. 32. or the way of all the Earth, as the phraſe is compleated, Joſ. 23. 14. or whence I ſhall not return, as it is Job 10. 21. or which is all one, into that place and ſtate in which I ſhall not be, to wit, amongſt the Living, or in this World, as this Phraſe is frequently uſed, both in Scripture, as Gen. 5. 24. and 37. 30. and 42. 36. and in Heathen Authors: Of which ſee my Latin Synopſis.

PSAL. XL.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm is a Celebration of Gods great Goodneſs and Mercy vouchſafed unto him, and all his People. It is certain and evident that David ſpeaks ſome things in this Book of Pſalms, in his own Name and Perſon, and ſome things in the Name and Perſon of Chriſt, of whom he was an eminent Type; and that ſometimes he ſpeaks in both theſe Capacities in the ſame Pſalm; as hath been noted before. And this ſeems to be the Condition of this Pſalm: wherein there are ſome Paſſages which cannot belong to Chriſt, as v. 13. and ſome which do not properly belong to David, or to that time and ſtate of the Church, but only to Chriſt, and to the Times of the New Teſtament, as v. 6. 7.

To the chief muſician, A Pſalm of David.

David by his own experience ſheweth the benefit of truſting in God, 1–5. Chriſts Obedience and Sacrifice, 6—10. His ſufferings for Sin, his fervent Prayer, 11—17.

† Heb. in waiting I waited.
† Heb. a Pit of noiſe.
* Pſal. 69. 1, 2.

1 I † Waited patiently a for the LORD, and he inclined b unto me, and heard my cry.

2 He brought me up alſo out of † an horrible pit c, * out of the miery clay d, and ſet my feet upon a rock e, and eſtabliſhed my goings f.

a Heb. In waiting I waited, which doubling of the word, notes that he waited diligently and earneſtly, patiently and perſeveringly, until God ſhould pleaſe to help him. b Or, bowed, to wit, himſelf, as this very word is rendred, Judg. 16. 30. or, his Ear, as it is more fully expreſſed, Pſal. 17. 6. and 31. 2. Such ellipſes or defects are frequent in Scripture, as Pſal. 3. 6. and 10. 1. Eccleſ. 6. 3. and 7. 15. c Or, out of a ſounding Pit, ſo called, either, from the Clamours of Men, or Beaſts falling into it: Or, from the many Waters which fall down into it, not without a great Noiſe. I was not only upon the brink, but in the very bottom of the Pit, (i. e.) In deſperate Dangers and Calamities, as this Phraſe ſignifies, Pſal. 18. 16. and 69. 1, 2. d In which my feet ſtuck faſt. e A place of ſtrength and ſafety. f Or, my ſteps, (i. e). Kept me from ſtumbling or falling into Miſchief.

3 And he hath put a new ſong in my mouth g, even praiſe unto our God: many ſhall ſee it h, and fear i, and ſhall truſt in the LORD k.

g Partly, by giving me new matter or occaſion for a Song; and partly, by inſpiring me with the very words of it. h (i. e.) Shall obſerve Gods wonderful Mercies vouchſafed to me. i (i. e.) Shall ſtand in awe of that God, who by this inſtance they ſee to have ſo great Power, either to ſave or to deſtroy, and tremble at his Judgments, and give him that Reverence and Worſhip, and Obedience which he requires. k Yet their Fear ſhall not drive them from God, or bring them into Deſpair, but ſhall draw them to God, and be attended with truſting in God.

4 Bleſſed is that man that maketh the LORD his truſt l, and reſpecteth not m the proud n, nor ſuch as turn aſide o to lyes p.

l (i. e.) His only truſt or refuge, as appears from the following words, q. d. I ſaid, many ſhall truſt in the Lord, and they ſhall not be loſers by it, nor diſappointed of their hope, but they are and ſhall be Bleſſed. m Heb. Looketh not towards, to wit, with Love and Delight, and deſire to imitate them: Or, with confidence and expectation of relief from thence, as this Phraſe is oft uſed, as Pſal. 25. 15. and 69. 3. and 121. 1. and 141. 8. and as the oppoſition of this Clauſe to the foregoing, ſeems to imply. n Or, the mighty, (i. e.) The great and proud Potentates of the World, to whom moſt men are apt to look and truſt, and in whom the Pſalmiſt forbids us to put our truſt, Pſal. 146. 3. o To wit, from God, in whom alone they ought to truſt. p (i. e.) To lying Vanities, ſuch as Worldly Power, and Wiſdom, and Riches, and all other Earthly things, or perſons, in which men are prone to truſt: Which are called Lyes here, and Pſal. 4. 2. and 62. 9. Mich. 1. 14. and elſewhere, becauſe they promiſe more than they can perform. See alſo Pſal. 7. 14. and 119. 118. Hoſ. 10. 13. and 12. 1.

5 * Many, O LORD my God, are thy wonderful works q which thou haſt done, and * thy thoughts r which are to us-ward s: ‖ they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee: if I would declare and ſpeak of them t, they are more than can be numbred u.

* Job 9. 9. & 9. 10. Pſ. 71. 15. & 92. 5.
* Pſ. 139. 17, 18.
‖ Or, none can order them unto thee.

q For which I and the reſt of thy people, included in the Pronoun plural, us, have abundant cauſe to praiſe thee, and to truſt in thee, as was ſaid, v. 3. And by which it will appear, that he that truſteth in thee, is in a moſt bleſſed and ſafe condition as he ſaid v. 4. And this Verſe, wherein he paſſeth from the ſingular Number to the plural, may ſeem to be interpoſed as a Wall of Partition, between that which David ſpeaks in his own Perſon, and that which he ſpeaks in the Perſon of the Meſſias, in the following Verſes. r (i. e.) Thy gracious Counſels or Contrivances. s (i. e.) To me and to the reſt of thy People, with whom David oft joyns himſelf in this Book. But theſe words may be, and are by ſome joyned to the following words, and the place thus rendred. It is not with us, or, in our Power; (i. e.) It paſſeth our skill (and reach) to order, or to reckon them up in order unto thee, becauſe indeed they are innumerable, and therefore cannot be digeſted into any order. t So the Particle if or when is wanting, and to be ſupplied here, as it is Pſal. 39. 11. and in many other places. Heb. Yet, I will declare and ſpeak, to wit, ſome part of them; which accordingly he doth in the following Verſes. u Although I am not able to expreſs or reckon them all.

6 * Sacrifice and offering thou didſt not deſire x; * mine ears haſt thou † opened y: burnt-offering and ſin-offering haſt thou not required.

* Pſ. 50. 8. & 51. 16. Iſa. 1. 11. & 66. 3. Hoſea 6. 6. Mat. 12. 7. Heb. 10. 5.
* Iſa. 50. 5.

x Theſe and the following words, may in an improper Senſe belong to the perſon and time of David; when God might be ſaid, not to deſire or require Legal Sacrifices comparatively, as negative Expreſſions are frequently underſtood, as Mat. 9. 13. 1 Cor. 1. 17. and in this very Caſe of Sacrifices, as Pſal. 51. 16. Jer. 7. 22, 23. Hoſea 6. 6. So the Senſe is; thou didſt deſire Obedience more, or rather than Sacrifices, as was ſaid 1 Sam. 15. 22. But in a proper and literal and full ſenſe, they belong only to the perſon and times of the Meſſias, in whoſe Name David uttereth theſe words. And ſo the ſenſe of the place is, God did not deſire or require them, for the Satisfaction of his own Juſtice, and the Expiation of Mens ſins, which could not poſſibly be done by the Blood of Bulls or Goats, as is ſaid Heb. 10. 4, 5, 6. But only by the Blood of Chriſt, which was Typified by them, and which Chriſt came into the World to ſhed, in purſuance of his Fathers Will, as it here follows, v. 7, 8. So here is a prediction concerning the Ceſſation and Abolition of the Legal Sacrifices, and the ſubſtitution of a better inſtead of them. y Heb. bored. The Senſe is, either, 1. Whereas many men have no Ears to hear, as is implyed, Rev. 2. 7, 11, 17. or ſtop their Ears, as Pſal. 58. 4. Zech. 7. 11. thou haſt given me open Ears to hear and obey thy Precepts, as this Phraſe is uſed, Iſa. 50. 5. although indeed there is another Verb in that Text; which much alters the Caſe. Or 2. I have wholly devoted my ſelf to thy perpetual Service, and thou haſt accepted of me as ſuch, and ſignified ſo much by the boring of mine Ears, according to the Law and Cuſtom in that Caſe, Exod. 21. 5, 6. Deut. 15. 17. And whereas only one Ear was then bored, and here it is Ears, this may be either an Enallage of the Plural Number for the Singular; whereof divers inſtances have been given: Or elſe it may be ſo expreſſed Emphatically, to intimate that Chriſt was more ſtrictly obliged to a more univerſal Obedience, not only Active, to which the Legal Servants were bound, but Paſſive alſo, to be obedient even unto the Death, to which they were not obliged. The LXX Jewiſh Interpreters, whom the Apoſtle follows, Heb. 10. 5. tranſlate theſe words, A Body haſt thou prepared me: Wherein though the Words differ, the Senſe is the ſame; for the Ears ſuppoſe a Body to whom they belong, and the preparing of a Body, implies the preparing or diſpoſing of the Ears, and the obligation of the Perſon, for whom a Body was prepared, to ſerve him who prepared it; which the boring of the Ear ſignifies.

7 Then z ſaid I a, Lo, I come b: in the volume of the book, it is † written of me c:

z When I underſtood and conſidered thy Mind and Will therein, expreſſed v. 6. a Either within my ſelf, by a firm purpoſe: Or, unto thee by way of promiſe or engagement. b He may ſeem to ſpeak like a Servant, anſwering to the Call of his Maſter, and ſignifying his readineſs to obey him; in which ſenſe it may be accommodated to David. But the Servants Anſwer is uſually expreſſed in Scripture by another Phraſe, Here am I, and never, to my remembrance, in theſe words. Beſides this Phraſe in that ſenſe, ſeems not to be proper in this place, but rather, Lo I hear, which beſt ſuits with the foregoing words, mine Ears haſt thou opened. But theſe words do moſt Literally and truly belong to Chriſt, and the Senſe is this: Seeing thou requireſt a better Sacrifice than thoſe of the Law, Lo, I do offer my ſelf to come, and I will in due time come, to wit, from Heaven or in the Fleſh, or into the World, as this Phraſe is more fully expreſſed, and explained in divers places of Scripture, and particularly Heb. 10. 5. where this place is explained and applied to Chriſt. c Theſe two words, Volume and Book are indifferently uſed of any Writing, and both words ſeem here to expreſs the ſame thing, as may appear by comparing Jer. 36. where we have the very ſame words, and what is called the Roll or Volume of a Book, v. 2. 4. is called ſimply a Roll or Volume, v. 6. 20, 21. and the Book, v. 10. 13. it being uſual with the Hebrews to joyn two words together in like manner; of which we have an inſtance here above, v. 2. Miry Clay, Heb. Clay of Mire. Now this Volume of the Book is meant, either, 1. Of the Book of Predeſtination, in which Chriſt was written, as being fore-ordained before the Foundation of the World, 1 Pet. 1. 20. But that is a ſecret Book not to be Read by any man living, and therefore not fitly alledged as an Evidence in this matter. Or, 2. Of a Legal Inſtrument, wherein the Contract was drawn between God and him, wherein he did oblige himſelf to ſerve God, and to execute his Will in all things; it being the manner of the Hebrews to write their Contracts in a little Volume or Book. But 1. We read of no ſuch uſage among the Hebrews in the Contracts between Maſter and Servant, but only of the boring of the Servants Ear, Exod. 21. 6. So the Foundation of this Alluſion is deſtroyed. 2. At leaſt there was no ſuch contract written between God and him. And if it be ſaid, that he only ſpeaks thus by way of Alluſion, that is but a ſuppoſition without ground. And when the words may be properly underſtood as they ſound, of a thing really done, why ſhould we forſake the plain Senſe without neceſſity? 3. The Phraſe here uſed doth not agree to this Senſe; for then he ſhould have ſaid, I am written in the Volume of the Book, (i. e.) In the Catalogue of thy Servants; for in that caſe the Perſons or their Names are conſtantly ſaid to be written, as Exod. 32. 32, 33. Pſal. 69. 28. Dan. 12. 1. Luke 10. 20. Heb. 12. 23. Rev. 13. 8. and 20. 15. and 21. 27. and not any thing to be written of them, as it is here. Or, 3. Of the Holy Scriptures. In which ſomething indeed was written concerning David: Namely, that he was a man after Gods own Heart, 1 Sam. 13. 14. But it muſt be remembred, that thoſe Books were not written till after Davids Death, in whoſe time here was no other Book of Scripture extant, but the five Books of Moſes, unleſs you will except the Book of Job. And therefore this is meant of the Law of Moſes, which is commonly and emphatically called the Book, and was made up in the form of a Roll or Volume, as the Hebrew Books generally were. See Ezek. 3. 1, 2, 3. Zech. 5. 1, 2. Luke 4. 17, 20. And ſo this place manifeſtly points to Chriſt, and muſt neceſſarily be underſtood of him, and of him only, concerning whom much is ſaid in the Books of Moſes, as is evident from Luke 24. 27, 44. John 5. 46. Acts 3. 22. and 26. 22. and 28. 23. And this Senſe being plain and natural and unforced, and exactly agreeing both with the words, and with the truth of the thing, and with the belief of all Chriſtians, I ſee no reaſon why I may not acquieſce in it.

*Pſal.119. 8 * I delight to do thy will d, O my God: yea, thy Jer.31.33.

d This though in a general Senſe, it may be true of David and of all Gods people; yet if it be compared with the foregoing Verſe, and with the explication thereof in the New Teſtament, (in which thoſe Myſteries which were darkly and doubtfully expreſſed in the Old Teſtament, are fully and clearly revealed) muſt be appropriated to Chriſt, of whom it is eminently true, and is here obſerved as an Act of Heroical Obedience, that he not only reſolved to do, but delighted in doing the Will of God, or what God had commanded him, and he had promiſed to do, which was to dye, and that a moſt ſhameful and painful and curſed Death. See Luke 12. 50. John 10. 18. Heb. 10. 9, 10. e (i. e.) I do not only hear and underſtand it, but I receive it with heartieſt Love and Affection, delighting both to meditate of it, and to yield Obedience to it.

*Pſ.35.18. 9 * I have preached righteouſneſs f, in the great congregation g: lo I have not refrained my lips h, O LORD, thou knoweſt i.

f To wit, thy Righteouſneſs, as it is expreſſed in the next Verſe, (i. e.) thy faithfulneſs, as it is there explained: Or Righteouſneſs properly ſo called; for both were fully declared and demonſtrated in Chriſt, the former in ſending him into the World according to his Promiſe, Acts 13. 23. and the latter in inflicting Death upon him for Mans ſin, Rom. 3. 25, 26. g In the moſt publick and ſolemn Aſſemblies: not only to the Jews, but alſo to all other Nations; to whom Chriſt preached by his Apoſtles, as is obſerved Eph. 2. 17. h To wit, from preaching it, out of Sloth or Fear, or Self-love, but have preached it publickly, and even to the Face of mine Enemies, though I knew my Preaching would coſt me my Life. i I call thee to witneſs the Truth of what I ſay.

10 I have not hid thy righteouſneſs within my heart k; I have declared thy faithfulneſs and thy ſalvation l: I have not concealed thy loving kindneſs, and thy truth from the great congregation.

k I had it there, v. 8. but I did not ſmother or ſhut it up there, but ſpread it abroad for thy Glory, and the good of the World. l Which thou haſt wrought both for me, and by me.

11 With-hold not thou thy tender mercies from me, O LORD m: let thy loving kindneſs and thy truth continually preſerve me.

m This Prayer is uttered by David, either, 1. In the Perſon of Chriſt; to whom it may agree. Or, 2. In his own Perſon. Having been tranſported and carried forth by the Spirit of God to the Contemplation and Commemoration of the great Myſtery of the Meſſias, of whom he was an illuſtrious Type, now he ſeems to be led back by the ſame Spirit, to the Conſideration of himſelf and his own particular Caſe.

12 For innumerable evils have compaſſed me about, mine iniquities n have taken hold upon me o, ſo that I am not able * to look up p: they q are more than the hair of mine head, therefore my heart † faileth me. * Pſal. 38. 4, 10. † Heb. forſaketh.

n Either, The puniſhment of mine iniquities, as Gen. 4. 13. 1 Sam. 28. 10. Pſal. 31. 10. Or, 2. The iniquities themſelves: This Phraſe cannot be underſtood of Chriſt. For although our ſins are ſaid to be laid upon Chriſt, Iſa. 53. and upon that account he is ſaid to be made ſin for us, 2 Cor. 5. 21. yet the Scripture every where repreſents him, as one that never knew nor did any ſin, as in that place, and 1 Pet. 2. 22. and elſewhere; and even when his puniſhment is deſcribed, yet it is expreſly noted, that he did not ſuffer for himſelf, or for his own ſins, but only for us, and for our ſins, as Iſa. 53. 4, 5. Dan. 9. 26. 1 Pet. 2. 24. And therefore it is not probable that the Holy Ghoſt would uſe ſuch an Expreſſion concerning the ſinleſs Chriſt of God, as is never uſed in Scripture, but either of a Mans own ſins, or of the puniſhment deſerved by his own ſins. o Mens ſins are figuratively ſaid to follow them, 1 Tim. 5. 24. and to find them out, Numb. 32. 23. and here to take hold of them, as a Serjeant takes hold of a Man whom he Arreſts. p Unto God or Men, with any Comfort and Confidence: I am aſhamed and confounded, by reaſon of my numberleſs ſins. Or, ſo that I was not able to ſee, either, becauſe he was as it were drowned or overwhelmed with his ſins: Or becauſe his Eyes did fail, or were conſumed through Grief, as he complains Pſal. 6. 7. and 38. 11. Or he means that he could not foreſee them, the Simple Verb being put for the Compound, as it is frequently among the Hebrews. They came upon him unawares, and therefore were the more grievous to him. q To wit, mine iniquities here mentioned, properly ſo called: For Gods people are more apt to aggravate their ſins, than the puniſhments of them. See Ezra 9. 13, 14.

13 * Be pleaſed, O LORD, to deliver me r: O LORD, make haſte to help me. * Pſ. 71. 12 &c.

r From my ſins, and the puniſhments due to them.

14 * Let them be aſhamed and confounded s together, that ſeek after my ſoul t to deſtroy it: let them be driven backward, and put to ſhame that wiſh me evil. * Pſ.35.4, 26. & 70. 3. & 71. 13.

s For the diſappointment of their Hopes and Deſigns. t (i. e.) My Life, as Exod. 4. 19. 1 Sam. 20. 1.

15 Let them be deſolate u for a reward of their ſhame x, that ſay unto me, Aha, aha.

u Or amazed or diſmayed, or overthrown: Of ſuch Imprecations I have ſpoken before. x (i. e.) Their ſinful and ſhameful Actions, as Shame is put for a ſhameful Idol, Hoſea 9. 10. and as Fear is oft put for the Evil feared.

16 Let all thoſe that ſeek thee, rejoyce and be glad in thee: let ſuch as love thy ſalvation y ſay continually, The LORD be magnified z.

y Either, 1. Such as deſire and rejoyce in the Salvation and Deliverance which thou giveſt to me and to others of thy people: which was a great Eye-ſore and Grief to the wicked. Or 2. Such as expect and ſeek for their Salvation and Happineſs not from Idols, nor from their wicked Courſes, nor from any Creatures, as other men do, but from thee only, and gladly accept and embrace that Salvation which thou haſt promiſed, together with the Conditions required to it, to wit, Faith and Repentance. Or 3. Such as love thy Meſſias, upon whom both Davids and other Holy Prophets, and Saints, Thoughts and Affections were much fixed, as is evident from many places of Scripture, as John 8. 58. Acts 2. 30, 31. 1 Pet. 1. 10, 11. who is called the deſire of all Nations, Hagg. 2. 7. and the Glory and Conſolation of Iſrael, Luke 2. 25, 32. yea and, by the very Title here uſed, Gods Salvation, Iſa. 62. 11. Luke 2. 30. whoſe appearance or coming the Godly of all Ages did love and long for; and of whom David had ſo lately and clearly ſpoken, v. 6, 7. &c. All which conſidered, this cannot ſeem a forced, or very far fetched Interpretation. z Let them have continual occaſion to magnifie God for his Mercies vouchſafed to them.

17 But I am poor and needy, yet the LORD thinketh upon me: thou art my help and my deliverer, make no tarrying, O my God.

PSAL. XLI.

The ARGUMENT.

THE Occaſion of this Pſalm was manifeſtly ſome ſore Diſeaſe or Affliction which God had inflicted upon David, and which gave his Enemies Opportunity to diſcover their Hatred and Malice againſt him.

To the chief muſician; A Pſalm of David.

David ſheweth Gods care of the Poor, 1—3. He confeſſeth his Sins, and complaineth of his Enemies treachery, 4—9. But fleeth to God for ſuccour. 10—13.

1 BLeſſed is he that conſidereth a ‖ the poor b; the LORD will deliver him c † in time of trouble. ‖ Or, the Weak or Sick. † Heb. in the day of Evil.

a Or, That carries himſelf wiſely and prudently, with or towards him, not raſhly and fooliſhly Cenſures and Condemns him, as my pretended Friends dealt with me, v. 8. nor inſulteth over him, which is a fooliſh as well as wicked thing; but conſidereth that it may be his own Caſe, and therefore pitieth and helpeth him; which is the likelieſt way to obtain the like pity for himſelf in his Trouble. b Or rather, The Weak or Sick, or languiſhing Perſon, as may be gathered by comparing this with v. 3. where the Mercy which he is ſuppoſed to have afforded to him, is returned upon himſelf, and with v. 8. c Either, 1. The poor afflicted man. Though his Enemies conclude his Caſe to be deſperate, v. 8. God will confute them, and deliver him. Or, 2. The Conſiderer of the poor, of whom alſo this ſame Pronoun, him, is confeſſedly meant, v. 2, 3. And ſo it is a promiſe of Recompence, the wiſe and merciful Man ſhall find Mercy.

‖ Or, do not thou deliver.

2 The LORD will preſerve and keep him alive d, and he ſhall be bleſſed upon the earth; and ‖ thou wilt not deliver him into the † will of his enemies e.

d Heb. quicken him, (i. e.) revive and reſtore him. Either, he will preſerve him from Trouble; or if God ſee Trouble neceſſary or fit for him, and therefore ſuffer him to fall into it, he will raiſe him out of it. e (i. e.) To deſtruction, which they earneſtly deſire and indeavour to procure.

3 The LORD will ſtrengthen him upon the bed of languiſhing: thou wilt † make all his bed f in his ſickneſs.

f Either, 1. Change or overturn his bed of ſickneſs; which is done when a man is reſtored to health. Or rather, 2. Give him Eaſe and Comfort, which ſick men receive by the help of thoſe who turn and ſtir their whole Bed, to make it ſoft and eaſie for them. For the words foregoing and following theſe, ſuppoſe him to be and continue in a ſtate of ſickneſs. Thus the Lord elſewhere compares himſelf to a Servant, waiting upon his people at Table, Luke 12. 37. as here, to one that makes their Bed; Metaphors implying ſtrange condeſcenſion.

4 I ſaid, LORD, be merciful unto me; heal my ſoul g, for I have ſinned againſt thee h.

g (i. e.) Either, 1. My ſelf, to wit, my Body. So it is a double Synecdoche. And the Soul is ſo taken, Pſal. 16. 10. Or 2. My Soul properly ſo called; which is ſaid to be healed, when it is pardoned and purged, as 2 Chron. 30. 20. Iſa. 53. 5. compared with 1 Pet. 2. 24. Mat. 13. 15. comp. with Mark 4. 12. Jam. 5. 16. So he ſtrikes at the root of his miſery, and prays for the removal of the ſin of his Soul, as the Cauſe of the Diſeaſe of his Body. h This may be added either, 1. As a Reaſon or Motive to God, grant this Requeſt, for I have ſinned, and therefore thy Grace in healing me will be more glorious and admirable: Or, for I acknowledge that I have ſinned; for the Act is oft put for the Declaration of it, as Exod. 33. 13. Pſal. 51. 5. Or 2. As a Reaſon moving him thus to pray, I ſaid, Lord be merciful unto me, heal my Soul; and great Reaſon I had to ſay ſo, for I have ſinned againſt thee.

5 Mine enemies ſpeak evil of me i: When ſhall he die, and his name periſh?

i Vent their ill wiſhes againſt me, in the following words.

6 And if he come to ſee me k, he ſpeaketh vanity l: his heart gathereth iniquity to it ſelf m; when he goeth abroad he telleth it n.

k To viſit me in my ſickneſs according to the Cuſtom. l Or, falſhood, pretending ſympathy with me, and friendſhip to me, whilſt they plot miſchief in their Hearts againſt me. m Even when he is with me, and pretends hearty affection to me, his Heart cannot forbear its cuſtomary practice of meditating and deviſing Miſchief againſt me; for which he watcheth and ſeeketh for all occaſions from my Speeches, or Carriage, or the Circumſtances of my Condition, which he obſerves. n Partly to delight his Companions, and partly to encourage them to, and direct them in, their malicious deſigns againſt me.

† Heb. Evil to me.

7 All that hate me whiſper together againſt me o: againſt me do they deviſe † my hurt.

o (i. e.) Secretly defame me, and cloſely plot againſt me.

† Heb. a thing of Belial.

8 † An evil diſeaſe p, ſay they, cleaveth faſt unto him: and now that he lieth, he ſhall riſe up no more q.

p Heb. A word or thing of Belial, (i. e.) Either, 1. Some wicked Calumny which they had raiſed, and which ſtuck cloſe to him. Or, 2. His great wickedneſs, whereof this is a ſign. Or rather, 3. This ſore Diſeaſe or Miſchief, either ſent upon him in way of Vengeance for his horrid Crimes; or ſuch as God uſeth to inflict upon the Sons of Belial, to ſhew that he is in Truth ſuch an one, whatſoever he pretends to the contrary. q Seeing God hath begun to puniſh him, he will make an end of him.

* Job 19. 19.
Jer. 20. 10.
† Heb. the man of my Peace.

9 * Yea, † mine own familiar friend r in whom I truſted, which did eat of my bread, hath † lift up his heel r againſt me.

r He means either Achitophel, or ſome other perfidious Counſellor or Courtier, who was a Type of Judas, to whom therefore it is applied, John 13. 18. as David was a Type of Chriſt in being thus betrayed. So theſe words were literally fulfilled in David, and yet the Holy Ghoſt which dictated them, looked further in them, even to Chriſt and Judas, in whom they received a further and fuller accompliſhment. r A phraſe implying Injury, joyned with Inſolency and Contempt; taken from an unruly Horſe, which kicks at him that owns and feeds him.

10 But thou, O LORD, be merciful unto me s, and raiſe me up that I may requite them t.

s They cenſure me grievouſly, and conclude my Caſe to be deſperate, but, Lord, do thou vindicate me, and confute them. t Or, and I will requite them, (i. e.) puniſh them for their malicious and perfidious and wicked practices; which, being now a Magiſtrate, he was obliged to Revenge, Rom. 13. 4. although when he was a private perſon, he was ſo far from revenging evil, that he rendred good for it, as we ſee Pſal. 35. 12, 13. and elſewhere.

11 By this I know that thou favoureſt me u, becauſe mine enemy doth not triumph over me x.

u Beareſt a good Will to me, and art reſolved to make good thy promiſes to me, and wiltſt plead my righteous Cauſe againſt them. x Becauſe hitherto thou haſt helped and ſupported me, and prolonged my days to the diſappointment of their hopes, and deſigned triumphs. This Mercy I thankfully receive as a Token of further Mercy. Compare 1 Sam. 17. 37. 2 Cor. 1. 9, 10.

12 And as for me, thou upholdeſt me in mine integrity y: and ſetteſt me before thy face for ever z.

y As I have kept my Integrity, ſo thou haſt kept me, in and with it. Or, for mine Integrity, becauſe thou haſt ſeen my Innocency notwithſtanding all the Calumnies of mine Enemies; and thou haſt promiſed and uſeſt to afford thy protection to the innocent and upright. z Or, haſt confirmed, or Eſtabliſhed me in thy Preſence (i. e. Either, under thine Eye and ſpecial Care: Or, to miniſter unto thee, not only in thy Temple, but as a King over thy People, or in that Land, where thou art peculiarly preſent) for ever, either, 1. Properly: And ſo this was done to David, either in his own perſon, partly here, and partly in the next Life: Or in regard of his Poſterity, in whom the Kingdom was eſtabliſhed for ever. Or 2. For my whole Life, or for a long time, as that phraſe is commonly uſed.

13 Bleſſed be the LORD God of Iſrael, from everlaſting, and to everlaſting. ‖ Amen and amen †.

‖ Or, from Age to Age, as long as the World laſts, and to all Eternity. † Amen ſignifies an hearty Aſſent, and Approbation, and withal an earneſt Deſire and Confidence of the thing, to which it is annexed. And as the Pſalms are divided into five Books, ſo each of them is cloſed with this word; the firſt here; the ſecond Pſal. 72. the third, Pſal. 89. the fourth, Pſal. 106. the laſt in the end of Pſal. 150. the doubling of the word ſhews the fervency of his Spirit, in this work of praiſing God.

PSAL. XLII.

The ARGUMENT.

THe Penman of this Pſalm is uncertain, as not being named in the Title. It was Compoſed, either, 1. By David, when he was baniſhed from the houſe of God, either by Sauls Tyranny, or by Abſaloms Rebellion: Or 2. By the Sons of Korah, in the time of the Captivity of Babylon. Whence ſome read the words of the Title of this Pſalm, Maſchil of the Sons of Korah. But this is not uſual in this Book, to name the Author of a Pſalm ſo obſcurely and indefinitely: For the Sons of Korah were a numerous Company, and it is not likely, that either all, or divers of them did joyn in the Enditing of this and the following Pſalms ſo called. Nor is there any one Pſalm where the Author is named, but he is one certain and ſingle Perſon. And therefore it ſeems more probable that David penned this, as it is confeſſed he did ſome other Pſalms which have not his Name in the Title.

‖ Or, a Pſ. giving inſtruction of the Son &c. See 1 Chr. 25.

To the chief muſician, ‖ Maſchil for the ſons of Korah a.

a Who were an eminent Order of Singers in the Houſe of God: Of whom ſee 1 Chron. 6. 33. and 9. 19. and 26. 1.

The Pſalmiſt being deprived of Gods ſervice, ardently deſires to be in his Houſe again, 1—4. Rouzeth up his Soul unto a firm hope and confidence in God, 5—9. His Enemies reproach him, 10. His Faith in God, 11.

1 AS the hart † panteth after the water-brooks b, ſo panteth my ſoul after thee c, O God.

b The Hart is naturally hot and thirſty. And this Thirſt is increaſed; partly, by its dwelling in deſert and dry places, to which it retireth for fear of Men and Wild Beaſts; and partly, by its long and violent running, when it is purſued by the Hunters: And ſome add, by eating of Serpents. c After the enjoyment of thee in thy Sanctuary, as it appears from v. 4.

* Pſ. 63. 1. & 84. 2.

2 * My ſoul thirſteth d for God, for the living God e: when ſhall I come and appear before God f.

d Thirſt is more vehement than Hunger, and more impatient of diſſatisfaction. e This he mentions as a juſt Cauſe of his Thirſt. He did not Thirſt after vain uſeleſs Idols, but after the only true and living God, who was his Life, and the length of his Days, as is ſaid, Deut. 30. 20. and without whoſe Preſence and Favour, David accounted himſelf for a dead and loſt man, Pſal. 143. 7. f In the place of his ſpecial Preſence and publick Worſhip. See Exod. 23. 15. and 25. 30. What is called before the Lord, 1 Chron. 13. 10. is before, or with the Ark, 2 Sam. 6. 7.

* Pſ. 80. 5. & 102. 9.
* Pſ. 79. 10. & 115. 2.

3 * My tears have been my meat g day and night, while they * continually ſay unto me; Where is thy God h!

g Which notes both the great abundance and conſtant courſe of his Tears, and the ſecret ſatisfaction and eaſe which he found in giving vent to his Paſſion this way. Poſſibly his Tears and Grief took away his Appetite, and ſo were to him inſtead of Food. h Of whom thou haſt ſo often boaſted, as of one ſo able and ready to help all that truſt in him, and call upon him; and particularly, as one ingaged to thee by many great and ſpecial Promiſes. He is gone and departed from thee, and no where to be found of thee. He is either unable or unwilling to help thee, or regardleſs of thee.

4 When I remember theſe things i, I pour out my ſoul k in me l; for I had gone m with the multitude n, I went with them o to the houſe of God; with the voice of joy and praiſe, with a multitude that kept holy-day p.

i Either, 1. Which follow, to wit, my former Freedom. Or rather, 2. Laſt mentioned, my baniſhment from Gods preſence, and mine Enemies ſcoffs and triumphs upon that occaſion. k This Phraſe notes either, 1. His fervent Prayer, as it is taken, 1 Sam. 1. 15. Pſal. 62. 8. Or 2. His bitter Sorrows, whereby his very Heart was almoſt melted, or diſſolved, and his Spirits ſpent, and he was ready to faint away; as it is uſed Job 30. 16. Lam. 2. 12. Comp. Pſal. 22. 14. Or rather, 3. Both together; that he breathed out his Sorrows and ſad Complaints unto God by fervent Prayers. l (i. e.) Within my own Breaſt; between God and my own Soul; not openly, leſt mine Enemies ſhould turn it into matter of rejoycing and inſulting over me. m To wit, in the way to Jeruſalem. And my ſorrow was increaſed by the remembrance of my former Enjoyments. Comp. Lam. 1. 7. n According to the Cuſtom, and in the company of Iſraelites, who went thither in great numbers. Comp. Pſal. 84. 6, 7. o Or, I led them, encouraging them by my preſence and forwardneſs. p Or, That kept the Feaſt, to wit, the three Solemn Feſtival Solemnities, which they kept holy unto the Lord.

5 * Why art thou † caſt down q, O my ſoul! and why art thou diſquieted within me? hope thou in God, for I ſhall yet || praiſe him || for the help of his countenance r.

q With exceſſive Sorrow and Deſpair. r Heb. for the Salvations of his Face, (i. e.) For thoſe Supports, Deliverances and Comforts which I doubt not I ſhall ere long enjoy, both in his Preſence and Sanctuary, to which he will reſtore me, and from his Preſence, and the Light of his Countenance, which he will graciouſly afford to me.

6 O my God, my ſoul is caſt down within me: therefore r will I remember thee s from the land of Jordan, and of the Hermonites, from || the hill Mizar t.

r That I may revive my drooping Spirits. s I will conſider thy infinite Mercy and Power, and Faithfulneſs, and thy gracious Preſence in the Sanctuary, from whence thou doſt hear and anſwer all thoſe that call upon thee, in all the parts of the Land. t (i. e.) From all the places and parts of the Land, to which I ſhall be driven; whether from the parts about, or beyond Jordan on the Eaſt: Or the Hermonim, (i. e.) either the People inhabiting Hermon; or the Mountain of Hermon, which was in the Northern parts, Numb. 34. 7. Deut. 3. 8. Pſal. 89. 12. here called Hermonim in the plural Number, becauſe of its great largeneſs, and many tops and parts of it, which are called by ſeveral Names: Or, the Hill Miſſar, an Hill ſo called, though not mentioned elſewhere, which is ſuppoſed to have been in the Southern parts of the Land: But peradventure it was in the Eaſt and beyond Jordan: And David might mention theſe places, becauſe when he was baniſhed by Abſalom, he had been ſucceſſively at all of them, and in all of them had remembred God, and directed his Prayer to him.

7 * Deep calleth unto deep u at the noiſe of thy waterſpouts: all * thy waves and thy billows x are gone over me y.

u (i. e.) One Affliction comes immediately after another, as if it were called for, and invited by the former. Which he expreſſeth by a Metaphor taken, either, 1. From the old Flood, when the upper deep, or abyſs of Waters (in the Clouds) called for the lower deep, or Abyſs of Waters in the Sea and Rivers, that both might unite their Forces together to drown the World. And thus the Chaldee underſtands it. Or 2. From the Sea, when its Waves rage, and it is full of deep furrows, into which Ships and Paſſingers ſink down, and then riſe and ſink again, ſucceſſively and continually. But theſe Tempeſts are cauſed in the Sea by Gods mighty Winds, rather than by his Water-ſpouts. Or 3. From violent and ſucceſſive ſhowers of Rain; which frequently come down from Heaven, as it were at the Noiſe, or Call of Gods Water-ſpouts, to wit, the Clouds; which by their ratling Noiſes and terrible Thunders, do in a manner invite and call forth the Showers which are contained in their Bowels. x Thou haſt ſent one ſharp Tryal or Affliction upon me after another. y (i. e.) Are gone over my Head, as this ſame Verb is uſed, Pſal. 38. 4. They do not lightly ſprinkle me, but almoſt overwhelm me.

8 Yet the LORD will command z his loving kindneſs a in the day-time, and * in the night b his ſong ſhall be with me c, and my prayer ſhall be unto the God d of my life e.

z (i. e.) Will effectually procure or confer upon me, as this Verb is uſed, Lev. 25. 21. Pſal. 7. 6. &c. The Verb is Future, but ſome render it by the time paſt: The Lord hath commanded, making this Rehearſal of his former Experiences of Gods goodneſs, his Argument to ſupport himſelf, and to prevail with God in Prayer. Which may ſeem to ſuit beſt with the foregoing and following Verſes. But we muſt remember that Davids Hopes and Fears were ſtrangely mixed, and his Expreſſions of them are commonly interwoven in the ſame Pſalm, and ſometimes in one and the ſame Verſe, as it is here v. 5, 11. And therefore there is no neceſſity of departing from the proper ſignification of the Verb. a (i. e.) His Bleſſings, the effects of his Loving-kindneſs, which God is oft ſaid to command, as Deut. 28. 8. Pſal. 133. 3. b Both Day and Night, (i. e.) Continually. c (i. e.) I ſhall have conſtant matter of ſinging and praiſing God for his loving kindneſs. d And therefore I will boldly and believingly direct my Prayers to him, of whoſe readineſs to hear and help me, I have had ſuch ample Experience. e The giver and preſerver of my Life from time to time.

9 I will ſay unto God f my rock g, Why haſt thou forgotten me h? Why go I mourning i becauſe of the oppreſſion of the enemy?

f I will expoſtulate the Caſe with him. g Who hath formerly been a ſure Refuge to me. h Why doſt thou now ſeem quite to forget and neglect me? i Why doſt thou leave me in this mournful ſtate, and not ſuccour me ſpeedily?

10 As with a || ſword in my bones k, mine enemies reproach me: While they ſay daily unto me, Where is thy God l?

k Or, in my Body, the Bones being oft put for the Body, whereof they are a very conſiderable part. Or as a Sword, which pierceth and cutteth my Fleſh even to the Bones, and cutteth or breaketh the very Bones alſo. So painful and vexatious are their Reproaches. l Of which ſee above on v. 3.

11 Why art thou caſt down, O my ſoul? and why art thou diſquieted within me? hope thou in God, for I ſhall yet praiſe him, who is the health of my countenance m, and my God n.

m Heb. the Salvations of my Face, (i. e.) Either, 1. Which are preſent and manifeſt, being before my Face. Or 2. Which will make my Face to ſhine, and my Countenance cheerful, which ſuppoſeth the gladneſs of the Heart, and the bettering of his Condition. Or 3. Of his Perſon; as the Face ſometimes ſignifies, as 2 Sam. 17. 11. Iſa. 3. 15. As alſo the Greek word ſignifying Face, is very frequently put for the Perſon, whereof the Face is an eminent part. n As he formerly was, ſo he ſtill is, and ever will be, and will ſuddenly ſhew himſelf to be my God, although for a ſeaſon he may hide his Face, or withdraw his help from me.

PSAL. XLIII.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm ſeems to have been Compoſed by the ſame Author, and upon the ſame Occaſion, with the former.

David prayeth againſt his fierce and crafty Enemies, 1. and to be reſtored to his Temple, 2, 3. Promiſeth to ſerve him joyfully, 4. He encourageth his Soul to truſt in God, 5.

1 JUdge me a, O God, and plead my cauſe againſt an || ungodly b nation c: O deliver me † from the deceitful and unjuſt d man e. || Or, unmerciful. † Heb. from a man of deceit and iniquity.

2 For thou art the God of my ſtrength, why doſt thou caſt me off? * Why go I mourning becauſe of the oppreſſion of the enemy? * Pſ. 42. 9.

a Or, judge, or give Sentence for me, as this Phraſe is uſed Pſal. 26. 1. and elſewhere. b Or unmerciful, (i. e.) Cruel or inhumane; for it is a Meioſis. c So he calls the company of his Enemies for their great numbers, and becauſe they were the far greateſt part, and almoſt the whole Body of the Nation. d Who covereth his wicked deſigns with fair and falſe pretences: Which ſort of men are hateful to thee, and to all good men. e Either Saul: or rather, Achitophel or Abſalom. For he ſpeaks of the holy Hill of Zion, v. 3. which was not ſo till after Sauls time. Or Man may be put collectively for the men of that time.

3 O ſend out f thy light and * thy truth g; let them lead me, let them bring me unto thy holy hill h, and to thy tabernacles i. * Pſ. 57. 3.

f (i. e.) Actually impart and diſcover them; for at preſent thou ſeemeſt to conceal and with-hold them from me. g (i. e.) Thy Favour, or the Light of thy Countenance, and the Truth of thy Promiſes made to me; as Gods Mercy and Truth oft go together, as 2 Sam. 15. 20. Pſal. 61. 7. and 89. 14. &c. Or this may be a Figure called Hendiaduo, whereby Light and Truth is put either for the Light of Gods Truth; or rather, for true Light, the Illumination of Gods Spirit, and the direction of his gracious Providence, whereby he might be led (as it follows) in the right way, which would bring him to Gods holy Hill. h To wit, of Zion, the place of Gods Preſence and Worſhip. i (i. e.) Tabernacle. Which he calls Tabernacles, either, 1. Becauſe there were now two Tabernacles, one at Zion, where the Ark was; and another at Gibeon, 1 Chron. 16. 37, 39. Although he here ſeems to ſpeak but of one of them, even of that which was upon Gods holy Hill. Or 2. Becauſe of the ſeveral parts of it, the moſt Holy, and the Holy place, and the Church. Theſe indeed were in that of Gibeon, but not in that of Zion. Or rather 3. By a meer Enallage of the number, the plural for the ſingular; which is frequent as in other words, ſo in thoſe which belong to this matter, as Tabernacles, Pſal. 46. 4. and Sanctuaries, Levit. 26. 31. Pſal. 73. 17. &c. and 74. 7. Jer. 51. 51. Nay the moſt Holy place, though but one ſimple part is by the Greeks called Holies. So in other Authors, we read the Rivers of Nilus, of that one River; and Right hands, for one Right hand; and many like Phraſes.

4 Then will I go unto the altar of God k, unto God † my exceeding joy l: yea, upon the harp will I praiſe thee, O God, my God. † Heb. the gladneſs of my joy.

5 * Why art thou caſt down, O my ſoul? and why art thou diſquieted within me? hope in God, for I ſhall yet praiſe him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God. * Pſal. 42. 5, 11.

k To offer Sacrifices of Thankſgiving for my Deliverance. l The principal Author and Matter of all my Joy and Comfort.

PSAL. XLIV.

The ARGUMENT.

THere is no certainty, either concerning the Author, or the particular occaſion of this Pſalm. This is evident that it was Compoſed with reſpect unto the Calamitous Condition of the Church and People of Iſrael, whom it ſuppoſeth to be in a ſtate of Captivity and Perſecution. But whether it was made by David, who foreſaw and foretold by the Spirit of God, their future Captivity, and framed this for their uſe in that Eſtate; or by ſome other holy Man of God, when they were actually in this Condition, is not determined, nor neceſſary to know for the underſtanding of it.

To the chief muſician for the ſons of Korah Maſchil.

The Church commemorates paſt Mercies, 1, 2, The Arm of God, not the Sword of Iſrael put them in poſſeſſion of the Land, 3. Their truſt is in God, not in their Bow, 4—8. They complain of divers Troubles, 9—16. Their Sin the cauſe of their troubles, 17, 18. They profeſs their integrity, 19—22. A fervent Prayer for help, 23—26.

1 WE have heard with our ears, O God, our fathers have told us, what work thou didſt in their days a, in the times of old.

a They alledge their former Experiences, as Encouragements to their Faith, and Motives to God, to continue to be gracious to them.

* Exod. 15. 17. Pſ. 78. 55. & 80. 8. 2 How * thou didſt drive out the heathen b with thy hand, and plantedſt them c; how thou didſt afflict the people, and caſt them out d.

b The Canaanites. c To wit, our Fathers, eaſily underſtood both from the matter, and from v. 1. where they are expreſſed: The Pronoun being referred unto the remoter Antecedent, as it is Gen. 10. 12. and 19. 13. Pſal. 18. 15. and oft elſewhere. d So them muſt be the People, or Heathens. But becauſe the comparing of this branch of the Verſe with the former, Plantedſt them, to which this anſwers, and with the following, they, makes it more than probable, that this them, belongs to the Fathers, this is to be otherwiſe rendred, either, 1. Thus, ſend them out, to wit, free or manumitted out of Egypt, of which this ſame Verb is uſed, Exod. 5. 1. and 12. 33. And then the foregoing People are the Egyptians, not the Canaanites. Which yet ſeems not to agree with the foregoing and following paſſages, both which ſpeak of the Canaanites only, nor with the order of the words in this Verſe, it being improper to mention their coming out of Egypt, after their being planted in Canaan. Or rather, 2. Thus, make them ſend or ſhoot forth, to wit, Branches, as it is more fully expreſſed, Pſal. 80. 11. Ezek. 17. 6. where this Verb is uſed. And this moſt Naturally and properly follows upon and after their Planting mentioned in the former Clauſe.

* Deut. 8. 17. Joſ. 24. 12. 3 * For they got not the land in poſſeſſion by their own ſword d, neither did their own arm ſave them: but thy right hand, and thine arm, and the light of thy countenance e, becauſe thou hadſt a favour unto them.

d (i. e.) By their Arms or Valour. e (i. e.) Thy Favour, as the next words explain it; thy gracious and glorious preſence, which went along with us.

*Pſ. 74. 12. 4 * Thou art my King f, O God, command g deliverances for Jacob.

f Jacobs or Iſraels King, in a peculiar manner. The whole People ſpeak like one Man, as being united together in one Body. g (i. e.) Effectually procure by thy commanding word.

5 Through thee will we puſh down h our enemies; through thy name i will we tread them under that riſe up againſt us.

h Heb. Smite with the Horn, (i. e.) Subdue and deſtroy. The Phraſe is taken from Deut. 33. 17. and is borrowed from horned Beaſts. Comp. 1 Kings 22. 11. i (i. e.) By the help of thy power.

6 For I will not truſt in my bow k, neither ſhall my ſword ſave me.

k But in thee only, as the next Verſe implies; and therefore do not fruſtrate my Hope and Confidence fixed upon thee.

7 But thou haſt ſaved us from our enemies, and haſt put them to ſhame that hated us.

8 In God we boaſt l all the day long, and praiſe thy name for ever. Selah.

l As in a moſt ſure Rock, and our only Refuge.

* Pſal. 60. 1, 10. & 74. 1. & 89. 38. 9 But * thou haſt caſt us off m, and put us to ſhame n; and goeſt not forth with our armies o.

m But now thy Countenance and Courſe is quite changed to us. n Made us aſhamed of our boaſting, and truſt in thee, which we have oft profeſſed to the Face of our Enemies. o To lead them, and fight for them, as this Phraſe ſignifies, Judg. 4. 14. 1 Sam. 8. 20. He ſeems to allude to Gods marching with and before the Iſraelites in the Wilderneſs, and afterwards, as occaſion was offered. Comp. Pſal. 68. 7.

10 Thou makeſt us to turn back from the enemy p: and they which hate us ſpoil for themſelves q.

p By withdrawing thy Help and our Courage, according to thy Threatnings, Levit. 26. 36. q (i. e.) Take away our Eſtates to their own uſe, and for their only benefit, not in compliance with thy Will, which was to puniſh us for our Sins, nor for thy Service and Glory. They minded nothing but their own advantage.

* Rom. 8. 36. † Heb. as ſheep of Meat. 11 * Thou haſt given us † like ſheep appointed for meat, and haſt ſcattered us among the heathen r.

r Thoſe of us who were not ſlain are carried into Captivity, and diſperſed in ſeveral places.

* Jer. 15. 13. † Heb. without Riches. 12 * Thou ſelleſt thy people † for nought s, and doſt not increaſe thy wealth by their price t.

s For a thing of nought. Or without Money, and without Price, as it is ſaid Iſa. 55. 1. For a very ſmall, or for no price; for a pair of Shooes, as we read Amos 2. 6. t Thou haſt not advanced thy Honour and Service thereby; for thy Enemies do not ſerve thee more and better than thy people, nor yet ſo much.

* Deut. 28. 37. Pſal. 79. 4. 13 * Thou makeſt us a reproach to our neighbours: a ſcorn and a deriſion u to them that are round about us.

u They contemn our perſons, and ſport themſelves in our Miſeries.

*Jer. 24. 9. 14 * Thou makeſt us a by-word x among the heathen: a ſhaking of the head y among the people.

x Or a Proverb. They uſed to ſay Proverbially, More deſpicable, or miſerable than an Iſraelite. y A geſture of ſcorn and inſultation. See on Pſal. 22. 7.

15 My confuſion is continually before me z, and the ſhame of my face hath covered me a.

z Before the Eyes of my Mind and Body too. They vilifie me, not only behind my Back, but even before my Face. a (i. e.) I am filled with ſhame of my Face on every ſide, being aſhamed to ſhew my Face in any place or Company.

16 For the voice of him that reproacheth and blaſphemeth b; by reaſon of the enemy and avenger c.

b That doth not only reproach me, which I could better bear, but blaſpheme God and our Religion for our ſakes; which is intolerable to me. c Who executeth both Gods and his own Vengeance upon me, perſecuting me with a deſpightful hatred and with great cruelty.

17 All this is come upon us d; yet have we not forgotten thee, neither have we dealt falſly in thy covenant e.

d All the Evils before-mentioned. e Although we cannot excuſe our ſelves from many other ſins for which thou haſt juſtly puniſhed us, yet this we muſt ſay for our ſelves, that through thy Grace we have kept our ſelves from Apoſtacy and Idolatry, notwithſtanding all the Examples and Provocations, Rewards propoſed and promiſed, or Puniſhments threatned to induce us thereunto. Which we hope thou wilt graciouſly conſider and not ſuffer us to be tempted above what we are able to bear.

18 Our heart is not turned back f, neither have our ‖ ſteps declined from thy way g. ‖ Or, goings.

f To wit, from thee, or thy Worſhip and Service unto Idols, as it follows, v. 20. g Becauſe it is eaſie and ordinary falſly to pretend ſincerity of Heart, which men cannot diſcern nor confute; they prove it from the unblameableneſs of their Lives and Actions.

19 Though thou haſt ſore broken us in h the place of dragons i, and covered us with the ſhadow of death k.

20 If we have forgotten the name of God l, or ſtretched out our hands m to a ſtrange God.

h Or rather into, as others render it; which ſeems much more Emphatical. And ſo this Verb may be rendred, thou haſt humbled, or brought us down, as all the Antients rendred it. Or this is a pregnant Verb, as they call them, or one Verb put for two; of which there are many inſtances, as hath been ſhewed. So it may be rendred, thou haſt ſore broken us, caſting us into: Or, thou haſt by ſore breaking, brought us into. By inflicting upon us one breach after another, thou haſt at laſt brought us to this paſs. i Which ſignifies a place extremely deſolate, ſuch as Dragons love, Iſa. 13. 21, 22. and 34. 13. and 35. 7. and therefore full of horror, and danger, and miſchief. Thou haſt thrown us among People as fierce and cruel as Dragons. k (i. e.) With deadly Horrors and Miſeries. See on Job 3. 5. and Pſal. 23. 4. l (i. e.) Either God himſelf; or his Worſhip and Service; which we have denied that we have done, v. 17. m In way of Prayer or Adoration, whereof this is a Geſture, Exod. 9. 29. 1 Kings 8. 22. Pſal. 143. 6.

21 Shall not God ſearch this out? for he knoweth the ſecrets of the heart n.

n We appeal to the Heart-ſearching God, concerning the ſincerity of this Profeſſion of ours.

22 * Yea o, for thy ſake p are we killed all the day long; we are counted as ſheep for the ſlaughter. * Rom. 8. 36.

o Or, But. We do not ſuffer for our Apoſtacy, but becauſe we will not Apoſtatize from thee. p Becauſe we are thy People, and continue conſtantly and reſolutely in the profeſſion and practice of thy Worſhip, which they abhor, and from which they ſeek to draw or drive us.

23 Awake, why ſleepeſt thou, O LORD? ariſe, caſt us not off for ever.

24 Wherefore hideſt thou thy face q? and forgetteſt our affliction and our oppreſſion r?

q (i. e.) Doſt not regard our Miſeries, nor affordeſt us any Pity or Help. r When we have not forgotten thee. This ſeems not well to become thy faithfulneſs and goodneſs.

25 For * our ſoul s is bowed down to the duſt t: our belly cleaveth unto the earth u. * Pſ. 119. 25.

s (i. e.) Either our Lives, or Perſons; or rather Bodies, as it is explained in the next Clauſe, and as the ſoul is oft taken by a Synecdoche, as Numb. 11. 6. Pſal. 16. 10. and 106. 15. &c. t Either to the ground where we lye proſtrate at our Enemies Feet: Or to the Grave. u We are not only thrown down to the Earth, but we lye there like dead Carkaſſes fixed to it, without any ability or hope of riſing again.

26 Ariſe † for our help, and redeem us for thy mercies ſake x. † Heb. a help for me.

x We mentioned our ſincerity and conſtancy in thy Worſhip, only as an Argument to move thee to pity, and not as a ground of our Truſt and Confidence, or as if we merited Deliverance by it; but that we expect and implore only upon the account of thine own free and rich Mercy.

PSAL. XLV.

The ARGUMENT.

THe ſubject matter of this Pſalm is by the Conſent both of Jewiſh and Chriſtian, Antient and Modern Interpreters agreed to be the Meſſias, and his Marriage with the Church of God. Of which it Treats, Either. 1. Remotely, under the Type of Solomon and his Marriage with Pharaoh's Daughter, of which it is to be Primarily and Litterally underſtood, and then mediately and ultimately of Chriſt; Or rather, 2. Immediately and directly; although the Words be ſo ordered, that they carry a manifeſt Alluſion either to that, or ſome other royal Marriage. Which ſeems more then probable from the following Arguments; 1. From the great Congruity of the matter and Style of this Pſalm, with that of the Book of Canticles; whereof this ſeems to be a kind of Abridgement. 2. From the Magnificent preface, v. 1. which ſeems too ſublime and ſpiritual, for ſuch Carnal and Earthly Matters. 3. And eſpecially from the Matter ter of the Pſalm. For here are many things which do not agree to Solomon; ſuch as the Warlike poſture and exploits, v. 3, 4, 5. and the Title of God, v. 6. which is appropriated to Chriſt, and affirmed to be incommunicable to any meer Creature, Heb. 1. 8. Compare with v. 5. and that numerous Poſterity, and the Amplitude of their Dominion, v. 16. and divers other Paſſages, as we ſhall ſee in the Progreſs.

UMI

To the chief muſician upon Shoſhannim a, for the ſons of Korah, || Maſchil. A ſong of loves b.

a Which Title is alſo prefixed to Pſal. 69. and with ſome ſmall Addition, Pſal. 8. and with a little Variation, Pſal. 60. It ſeems to be the Name of a Song or Tune, or Inſtrument of Muſick. It properly ſignifies Lillies or Roſes; which ſome apply to the ſubject of the Pſalm, becauſe thoſe Flowers were uſed in Garlands, or otherwiſe in nuptial Solemnities, and becauſe Chriſt calls himſelf the Lilly and the Roſe, Cant. 2. 1. b To wit, of Chriſt and his Church. Or, of the beloved Ones, to wit, the Virgins, who waited upon the Bride, as ſome men did upon the Bridegroom, who thence were called his Friends, Joh. 3. 29. In whoſe Name and Perſon this Pſalm may ſeem to be uttered.

The Pſalmiſt ſingeth of the beauty of Chriſt, above that of the children of men, 1, 2. of his terribleneſs and conqueſt over his Enemies. 3—5. of his everlaſting Throne, and unction above his fellows, 6, 7, and 9, The Church is invited to forſake her Fathers houſe, that Chriſt might delight in her, 10—12. her glory and excellency by his graces, which ſhall be remembred and praiſed for ever. 13—17.

1. MY heart c † is enditing d a good matter e : I ſpeak of the things which I have made f touching the king g : my tongue is the pen h of a ready writer i.

c I am about to utter not vain or raſh, or fooliſh or falſe Words, but ſuch as proceed from my very Heart, and moſt ſerious Thoughts and cordial Affections. d Heb. Boyleth, or bubbleth up like water in a Pot over the Fire. This Phraſe notes that the workings of his Heart in this Matter, were frequent and abundant, Fervent and Vehement, free and Chearful, and withal kindled by Gods Grace, and by the Inſpiration of the Holy Ghoſt. e Either, 1. Pleaſant or Delightful, and fit for the Nuptial Solemnity here expreſſed; As a Feaſt-day is ſometimes called a Good day. Or, 2. Excellent, as this Word is oft uſed, as Numb. 24. 5. Deut. 8. 12. Or, Holy and Spiritual, as it is moſt commonly uſed. This is no Vain or Carnal, or Wanton Love-Song, but Sublime and Heavenly, and full of Majeſty, as is manifeſt from the Body of this Pſalm. f Which I by Divine Inſpiration have Compoſed. g Or rather, to the King: for to him he addreſſeth his Speech in the following Verſes: and this Hebrew prefix, Lamed, generally ſignifies, to, though ſometimes it be rendred, of or concerning. h Or, as the Pen. Whereby he intimates that he was onely the Pen or Inſtrument in uttering this Song, and that it had another and an higher Original, to wit, the Spirit of God, by whoſe hand this Pen was guided and managed. i Whereby he underſtands Either, 1. Gods Spirit, who writ or ſpoke this by the Pen, or mouth of the Pſalmiſt; Or, 2. Himſelf: whom he ſo calls, not out of vain Oſtentation, or Self-Commendation, but to teach us, that this Song was not the effect of his own deep and ſerious ſtudy, but did freely flow into him by Divine Inſpiration, and did as freely and readily flow from him.

2 Thou art fairer k than the children of men l: grace is poured into thy lips m: therefore n God hath bleſſed thee for ever.

k Or, more Beautiful, (i. e.) Lovely and amiable. He ſpeaks not here ſo much of his outward Beauty, which, though it be an Ornament both to a Bridegroom and to a King, yet is not very conſiderable in either, nor is much admired, or applauded by Wiſe men, as of the inward and glorious Endowments of his Mind or Soul, ſuch as Wiſdom, and Righteouſneſs and Meekneſs, &c. as the particulars of this Beauty are declared, ver. 4. 7. l Than all other men. Which is moſt true of Chriſt; but not of Solomon; whom many have excelled, if not in Wiſdom, yet in Holineſs and Righteouſneſs, which is the chief part of this Beauty, and moſt celebrated in this Pſalm. m God hath plentifully poured into thy mind and tongue, the gift of ſpeaking with admirable Grace, (i. e.) moſt Wiſely and Eloquently, and therefore moſt Acceptably, ſo as to find Grace with, and work Grace in thy Hearers. This was in the ſame ſort true of Solomon, but far more Eminently and Effectually in Chriſt: of which ſee Iſa. 50. 4. Luk. 4. 22. John 7. 46. The former Clauſe noted his inward perfections; and this ſignifies his Ability and Readineſs to Communicate them to others. n Which notes not the meritorious cauſe, for that Beauty and Grace now mentioned, are declared to be the free gifts of God, and were the Effects, and not the Cauſes, of Gods bleſſing him, but rather the final Cauſe, or the end for which God endowed him with thoſe excellent Qualifications; and ſo the Senſe of the place is, Becauſe God hath ſo eminently adorned and qualified thee for Rule, therefore he hath truſted and bleſſed thee with an everlaſting Kingdom. Or, becauſe, as this Particle is uſed, Gen. 38. 26. Pſal. 42. 6. and elſewhere. And ſo God's bleſſing him with ſuch ſolid and everlaſting Bleſſings, is noted as the Cauſe of this ſingular Beauty and Grace here expreſſed.

3 Gird thy ſword upon thy thigh o, O moſt mighty, with thy glory and thy majeſty p.

o Either, 1. As an Enſign of Royal Majeſty. But that is uſually and much better expreſſed in Scripture, by putting a Crown upon his head. Or rather, 2. As an Inſtrument for War and Battel, to ſmite his Enemies, as it is declared, ver. 4, 5. And the Sword is here put Synecdochically for all his Arms, as it is in many other places, as appears from ver. 5. where we read alſo of his Arrows. And this Sword of the Meſſias is nothing elſe but the Word of God coming out of his mouth; which is fitly compared to a Sword, as may appear from Iſa. 49. 2. Eph. 6. 17. Heb. 4. 12. Rev. 1. 16. which is elſewhere called the Rod of his Mouth, Iſa. 11. 4. and the Rod of his Power, Pſal. 110. 2. p Or, which is thy Glory and thy Majeſty; Or, magnificence or Beauty: For theſe Words are joyned with the Sword, by way of appoſition. Which Sword or Word is the great Inſtrument of maintaining and propagating thy Honour, and Glory, and Kingdom.

4. And in thy majeſty q † ride proſperouſly r, becauſe of truth and meekneſs, and righteouſneſs s : and thy right hand ſhall teach thee terrible things t.

q Being thus glorioully, or magnificently Girt and Armed. r March on ſpeedily (which is ſignified by Riding) and ſucceſsfully againſt thine Enemies, (i. e.) Thou ſhalt do ſo, as it is in the laſt Clauſe, ſhall teach thee. So Imperatives are oft put for Futures, and Predictions are expreſſed in the form of Commands or Exhortations. s Or, becauſe of thy Truth, &c. (i. e.) Becauſe thou art worthy of this Dominion and Succeſs; for thou neither didſt obtain nor wilt manage thy Kingdom, by Deceit or Violence and unrighteouſneſs, as the Princes of the Earth frequently do, but with Truth and Faithfulneſs, with meekneſs and gentleneſs towards thy People, and to all that ſhall ſubmit to thee; with impartial Juſtice and Equity, whereby thy Throne will be eſtabliſhed, Prov. 16. 12. and 20. 28. Or, as it is in the Hebrew, Word for Word, upon the Word of Truth, &c. which may ſeem beſt to ſuit with the foregoing Words, which according to the Hebrew are, Proſper thou, Ride thou, and then immediately follows; upon the Word of Truth, &c. To wit, the Goſpel; which is oft called Truth, as Joh. 8. 32. Col. 1. 5. &c. and the Word of Truth, Eph. 1. 13. and may no leſs truly be called the Word of Meekneſs, becauſe it is not delivered with Terror, as the Law was at Sinai, but meekly and ſweetly by Chriſt, and by his Miniſters, Mat. 21. 5. 2 Tim. 2. 25. and the Word of Righteouſneſs, becauſe it brings in everlaſting Righteouſneſs, Dan. 9. 24. and ſtrongly obligeth and exciteth all men, to the practiſe of Righteouſneſs and Holineſs. And ſo the Goſpel is Compared, to an Horſe or Chariot, upon which Chriſt is ſaid to ride, when the Goſpel is Preached, and carried about from place to place, Rev. 19. 11. And this may be here added, to ſhew the great difference between the Kingdoms of the World, that are managed with outward Pomp and Glory, and the Kingdom of Chriſt, which is a ſpiritual Kingdom and like a Spouſe, ver. 13. all Glorious within, as Conſiſting in ſpiritual Vertues and Graces, Truth, Meekneſs and Righteouſneſs. t (i.e.) Thou ſhalt do great and glorious Exploits, which ſhall be Grievous and Terrible to thine Enemies, as the next Verſe explains it, and this not by great Forces, and the Aſſiſtance of others, but by thine own ſingle power. Compare Iſa. 63. 3. Which doth by no means agree to Solomon, who was a man of Peace, and not ingaged in any martial Actions againſt his Enemies; and, if he had done any thing Conſiderable in that kind, he could not do it by his own Right hand, but by the help of his Souldiers. But this doth excellently agree to the Meſſias, and to him onely. Obj. The things which were done by the Meſſias at his firſt Coming, were rather Comfortable than Terrible. Anſ. They were indeed comfortable to all good Men, but withal they were Terrible to the ungodly, and particularly to the Body of the Jewiſh Nation, to whom Chriſt was a Stone of ſtumbling, and Rock of offence, and an occaſion of their utter Deſtruction. And upon that and other Accounts, not onely Chriſt's ſecond, but even his firſt Coming, is repreſented as dreadful, as Joel 2. 30. Mal. 3. 2. and elſewhere. For the Phraſe, thy Right hand ſhall teach thee, it is not to be taken Properly, for ſo he taught his Hand, and not his Hand him, but the meaning is, that his Hand ſhould ſhow him, (i. e.) Diſcover and work before him: for Verbal words are oft underſtood Really, as Calling is put for Being, as Iſa. 1. 26. and 9. 6. ſo teaching or ſhewing, is put for doing, as Pſal. 16. laſt, and 60. 3.

5 Thine arrows u are ſharp in the heart of the kings enemies x, whereby the people fall under thee y.

u The ſame thing, for Subſtance with the Sword, v. 3. both noting the Inſtruments by which he Conquers his Enemies; which is no other than his Word, which is ſharp and powerful, and pierceth the Hearts of Men, Heb. 4. 12. which alſo firſt wounds Sinners, and then heals them; and which is for the Fall, as well as for the Riſing of many, Luke 2. 34. and for Judgment, as well as for Mercy, John 9. 39. to ſome a Savour of Death, and to others a Savour of Life, 2 Cor. 2. 16. and therefore is fitly Compared to Arrows; which Title is ſometimes given to words, as Pſal. 64. 4. and frequently to God's Plagues or Judgments, Deut. 32. 23. Pſal. 18. 14. and 64. 7. ſuch as the Word becomes to ungodly Men by their own Fault. And theſe Metaphorical Weapons are oft aſcribed to Chriſt; who hath a Bow, Revel. 6. 2. and Weapons of Warfare, 2 Cor. 10. 4. and whoſe Mouth God is ſaid to make a Sword, and an Arrow, Iſa. 49. 2. x (i. e.) Of thine Enemies; the third Perſon being put for the ſecond, as is uſual in Prophetical Writings; which here may ſeem to have ſome Emphaſis, as deſcribing the Perſons againſt whom he ſhot his Arrows, and the Reaſon why he did ſo, becauſe they were the Enemies of his Kingdom, and would not have him to Reign over them, Luke 19. 27. y Either, as ſlain by thine Arrows; Or, as proſtrate at thy Feet, after the manner of Conquered Perſons, Pſal. 18. 38. and 20. 8. According to this and many other Tranſlations, the Words are Tranſplaced, which in the Hebrew lye thus, Thine Arrows are ſharp, whereby the People do fall under thee, in the Heart, (i. e. in the midſt, which is oft called the Heart, as Exod. 15. 8. Deut. 4. 11. And ſo it may be here; for the Army, as ſuch, hath no Heart, Properly ſo called. And ſo this is fitly alledged, as a Proof of the ſharpneſs and force of his Arrows, that they not onely wound thoſe who march in the Front, but even thoſe who are in the midſt of the Army, where they may ſeem ſecure, and out of their Reach) of the Kings Enemies. But the middle Words may be, and are by many included within a Parentheſis, and ſo they may agree with our Tranſlation thus, Thine Arrows are ſharp (for the People fall under thee, which is an Evidence of their ſharpneſs) in the Heart (or againſt the Heart; Or, piercing into the Heart. Which is an eaſie and uſual Ellipſis) of the Kings Enemies.

* Pſ.93.2. Heb. 1. 8.

6 * Thy throne, O God z, is for ever and ever a: the ſcepter of thy kingdom is a right ſcepter b.

z It is moſt Evident, that the Speech is ſtill continued to the ſame Perſon, whom he calls King, v. 1. 11. and here God, Which change of the Title was very expedient, and in ſome ſort neceſſary to give us a true underſtanding of this Pſalm, and to aſſure us that he doth not ſpeak of Solomon (to whom neither theſe nor the foregoing nor the following Words agree, becauſe his Reign was peaceable and ſhort, and ſtained with many and great iniquities) but a far greater King, even of the Meſſias, who is not onely a Man, but alſo the mighty God, as he is called, Iſa. 9. 6. and as the Apoſtle ſolidly proves from this place, Heb. 1. 8. For though the Name of Elohim, or God, be ſometimes given in Scripture to ſome Creatures, yet in thoſe Caſes it is always Clogged with ſome diminiſhing Expreſſion, ſignifying that they are onely made or called Gods, and that onely for a certain Time and Purpoſe, as is manifeſt from Exod. 4. 16. and 7. 1. Pſal. 82. 6. and it is no where put ſimply and abſolutely for any Perſon, but him, who is God bleſſed for ever, Rom. 9. 5. a To wit, Properly and in thine own Perſon, in which as he Lives for ever, ſo he muſt neceſſarily Reign for ever: whereas David, whoſe Throne is ſaid to be Eſtabliſhed for ever: 2 Sam. 7.16. was a Mortal man, and therefore that Promiſe was not intended of, nor could be fulfilled in, his Perſon, without including his Poſterity. And as he here gives to the Meſſias, the Name of God, which was never given to David nor Solomon, ſo he aſcribes an everlaſting Kingdom to him, in ſuch a Sence as it was never given to them. So Dan. 2. 44. and 7. 14. b It is not ſtrange that thy Throne is not liable to the ſame uncertainties, and Caſualties with the Thrones of earthly Princes, becauſe their Scepters are commonly managed with great injuſtice and manifold iniquities, which lay the Foundation of their overthrow; whereas thou ruleſt with exact Righteouſneſs and Equity, whereby thy Throne is Eſtabliſhed, Prov. 16.12.

7 Thou loveſt righteouſneſs, and hateſt wickedneſs c: therefore d God, thy God e hath anointed thee with the oyl of gladneſs f above thy fellows g.

c Thou doſt not onely do that which is good, and avoid that which is Evil; Which even bad Princes and Men may do, and ſometimes Actually do for Politick, or Prudential Reaſons, but thou doſt this ſincerely, and from an inward Principle, even from a true Love to God, and Goodneſs, and from an implacable Hatred againſt all Wickedneſs. d So this Particle is commonly uſed. And ſo it denoteth, Either, 1. The reward of Chriſt's righteous Adminiſtration of his Kingdom. So the Sence is: Becauſe thou haſt given ſo many and great Proofs of thy Love to Righteouſneſs, and of thy Hatred of ſin, and that not onely by the conſtant Courſe of thy Life, but alſo by thy Death and Paſſion, therefore God hath raiſed and exalted thee far above all Men and Angels, to a ſtate of Joy and endleſs Glory at his right Hand; which is fitly expreſſed by the Oyl of Gladneſs. For anointing doth not always ſignifie the Conferring of inward Gifts or Endowments, but ſometimes onely notes the Deſignation or inauguration of a Perſon, to ſome high Dignity or Employment, as Ezek. 28. 14. and elſewhere: Or, 2. The final Cauſe, or end of Chriſt's Unction. So the Sence is; To that end, (i. e.) That thou mighteſt love Righteouſneſs, and hate Wickedneſs and govern thy ſelf, and thy Kingdom accordingly, God hath anointed thee, &c. (i. e.) Hath endowed thee with all the Gifts, and Graces of thy Holy Spirit, Acts 10. 38. in an Eminent and peculiar manner, to the Comfort and Refreſhment of thine own, and all thy Peoples Hearts; and hath Solemnly called thee to be the Prieſt and Prophet and King of all his People. But the former Sence ſeems to be the trueſt, and is for Subſtance the ſame thing, which is ſaid in other Words, Phil. 2. 8, 9, 10. e According to thy humane Nature, John 20. 17. though in reſpect of thy divine Nature, thou art his Fellow, Zech. 13. 7. and his Equal, Phil. 2. 6. and one with him, John 10. 30. f So called here, as alſo Iſa. 61. 3. Partly, becauſe it not onely makes the Countenance freſh and pleaſant, Pſal. 104. 15. but alſo rejoyceth the Heart, Prov. 27. 9. and Partly, becauſe it was a Token of gladneſs, and uſed in Feaſts, and other Solemn occaſions of Rejoycing: Of which ſee Pſal. 23.5. Dan. 10.3. Amos 6. 6. g (i. e.) Above all them who partake with thee in this Unction: Either, 1. Above all that ever were anointed for Prieſts or Prophets, or Kings. Or, 2. Above all Believers, who alſo have received this ſame Unction, 1 John 2. 20. 27. and are made Prieſts and Kings unto God, Rev. 1. 6.

8 All thy garments ſmell of myrrhe, and aloes, and caſſia h: out of the ivory palaces i, whereby k they have made thee glad l.

h Wherewith they uſed to Perfume their Garments; See Gen. 27. 27. This may denote thoſe glorious and ſweet ſmelling Vertues, which as they were Treaſured up inwardly in Chriſts Heart, ſo did they manifeſt themſelves outwardly and viſibly, and give forth a grateful Smell, in the whole Courſe of his Life and Actions; his Doctrine alſo was a ſweet Savour unto God and Men, 2 Cor. 2. 14, 15. i Which may be referred; Either, 1. To the Garments, which were uſually kept in, and now upon this extraordinary Solemnity were brought out of, Palaces, or Houſes, or Wardrobes of Ivory, ſo called here, as alſo, Amos 3. 15. not becauſe they were wholly made of Ivory, but becauſe they were adorned, or covered here and there with it. Or rather, 2. To the King himſelf, who is here ſuppoſed to reſide in his ivory Palaces, and his Garments are ſo fragrant, that they do not onely Perfume the whole Palaces in which he is; but the ſweet Savour thereof is perceived by thoſe that paſs by them, or are at ſome diſtance from them. All which is poetically ſaid, and with a manifeſt Alluſion to Solomon's glorious Garments and Palaces. By theſe ivory Palaces, he may mean either, 1. His humane Nature, in which Chriſt dwelt, as in a Tabernacle, as the Greek word ſignifies, John 1. 14. in which all theſe fragrant Vertues were, and from whence they were diffuſed every where. Indeed the Body is called a Temple, John 2. 19. and an Houſe or Tabernacle, 2 Cor. 5. 1, 2. and ſo it might be called a Palace. But why it ſhould be called Palaces, and that of Ivory, ſeems not ſo plain. Or rather, 2. Thoſe glorious and heavenly Manſions, John 14. 2. which may not unfitly be called ivory Palaces, as elſewhere in the ſame figurative manner they are ſaid to be made of, or adorned with Gold and Precious ſtones, Revel. 21. 18, 19. from which Manſions Chriſt came into the World, John 3. 13. and into which Chriſt went, and where he ſetled his abode after he went out of the World, John 13. 1. Acts 1. 11. and from whence Chriſt poured forth all the fragrant Gifts and Graces of his Spirit, into the World and Church, Acts 2. 33. Although there is no neceſſity to ſtrain every particular Circumſtance in ſuch poetical Deſcriptions, nor to find out ſome particular thing in Chriſt to which it agrees; for ſome Expreſſions may be uſed, onely as Ornaments in ſuch Caſes, as they are in Parables; and it may ſuffice to know and ſay, that the Glories and Excellencies of the King Chriſt are deſcribed by ſuch things in which earthly potentates do place their Glory. k Or from which: Either, 1. From which place or Palaces. Or rather, 2. From which thing, (i. e.) From the ſweet ſmell of thy Garments out of thoſe ivory Palaces, or from the Effuſion of the Gifts and Graces of thy Spirit from thy Fathers right hand in Heaven; which as it is a great Bleſſing and Comfort to thoſe who receive them, ſo doth it rejoyce the Heart of Chriſt, both as it is a Demonſtration of his own Power and Glory, and as it is the happy Inſtrument of doing much good in the World, and of bringing Souls to God, which is Chriſts great work and delight. l (i. e.) Thou art made glad; ſuch Phraſes being oft uſed indefinitely and impersonally, as Luke 15. 32. and in many other places.

9. Kings daughters were among thy honourable women m: upon thy right hand n did ſtand o the queen in gold of Ophir p.

m (i. e.) Amongſt them that attend upon thy Spouſe, as the manner was in Nuptial Solemnities; as men attended upon the Bridegroom, whence they were called Friends, Joh. 3. 29. In reference to Chriſt, as the Spouſe or Queen is the Church in general, ſo theſe honourable Women are particular Believers, who are daily added to the Church, Acts 2. 47. and ſubmit themſelves to it. And although the Church is made up of particular Believers, yet ſhe is diſtinguiſhed from them, for the Decency of the Parable, as the whole is oft diſtinguiſhed by our Minds, from the parts of which it Conſiſts, and as the Daughters of Jeruſalem are diſtinguiſhed from the Spouſe in the Book of the Canticles, though the Spouſe be wholly made up of them. And theſe Believers may be ſaid to be Kings Daughters, Either, becauſe amongſt others many perſons of Royal or princely Races did embrace the Faith, as was propheſied of them, Iſa. 49. 7. and 60. 10, 11. &c. or becauſe they are in a ſpiritual Sence, King's unto God, Revel. 1. 6. n The moſt honourable place next to the Kings. See 1 Kings 2. 19. Mat. 26. 64. o Which is the poſture of a Servant: to ſhew that as ſhe is a Queen, ſhe is alſo his Subject to ſerve and obey him. Or, is placed or ſeated: Which ſeems more agreeable to the perſon of a Queen, 1 Kings 2. 19. and of a Spouſe at the Nuptial Solemnity. p Clothed in the richeſt Garments made of the choiceſt Gold. By which he deſigns the Graces wherewith the Church is accompliſhed.

10 Hearken q, O daughter r, and conſider, and incline thine ears s: forget alſo thine own people, and thy fathers houſe t.

q Theſe Words are ſpoken; Either, 1. In the perſon of the Attendants upon the Bride or Bridegroom. Or, 2. Of the Bridegroom. Or rather, 3. By the Prophet himſelf: who having hitherto ſpoken to the Bridegroom, or King, now addreſſeth his Speech to the Bride or Queen. r So he calls her, partly, in token of his Reſpect and Affection to her, and partly, becauſe ſhe is ſuppoſed to be young and beautiful, and therefore the Prophet ſpeaks like and Elder and graver perſon, and as her ſpiritual Father and Counſellor. s He uſeth ſeveral Words, ſignifying the ſame thing, to ſhew his ſerious and Vehement deſire of her good, and the great importance and difficulty of practiſing the following Counſel. t Not ſimply, but Comparatively, ſo far as they oppoſe or hinder the diſcharge of thy Duty to thy Husband; or ſo far as they are Corrupted in Doctrine or Worſhip, or practice. He alludes to the Law of Matrimony, Gen. 2. 24. and to what Solomon did ſay, or ſhould have ſaid to Pharaohs Daughter, to wean her from the Idolatry and other Vices of her Fathers houſe. But this, as well as the reſt of the Pſalm, reſpects Chriſt, and is a ſeaſonable and neceſſary Advice, and command to all perſons that deſire to come to Chriſt, whether Jews or Gentiles, that they would caſt off all their inveterate Errors and prejudices, all thoſe Superſtitious or Idolatrous or wicked Opinions or practices, which they had received by long and antient, and therefore venerable Tradition from their Fathers, and intirely give up themſelves to Chriſt to be inſtructed by him, and to receive his Doctrine, though it would ſeem new to them. And by theſe Words he ſeems to intimate and tacitly to foretel that not onely the Superſtitious inventions and Traditions of Men, but even the legal Worſhip appointed by Moſes, and delivered to them from their Parents, ſucceſſively for many Generations ſhould be relinquiſhed by the believing Jews, and aboliſhed by Chriſt's coming.

11 So ſhall the King greatly deſire thy beauty u: for he is thy Lord x, and worſhip thou him y.

u So doing thou ſhalt be amiable and acceptable to thy Husband; which will abundantly recompence thee, for the loſs of thy Fathers houſe. x As he is thy Husband, and alſo as he is thy King, and God, as he was called, v. 6. And this is added, as a Reaſon not of the laſt Words, why the King would deſire her Beauty; but of the Advice given to her, v. 10. y By which he implies that her Husband was no meer Man, but God alſo, and therefore might be adored without any Violation of that known and immutable Precept of worſhipping God onely.

* Pſ.72.10. † Heb. thy Face.

12 And the daughter of Tyre z ſhall be there with a gift a, even * the rich amongſt the people b ſhall intreat † thy favour.

z (i. e.) The people or Citizens of Tyre; as the Daughter of Zion, or Jeruſalem, or Babel, &c, are put for their Inhabitants, 2 Kings 19. 21. Pſal. 137. 8. Zech. 9. 9. He mentioneth the Tyrians; partly, becauſe they did give Preſents to Solomon, 1 Kings 5. 1. &c. to whom here is a continued alluſion through the whole Pſalm; and partly, becauſe they among others, and before many others, were to be converted to Chriſt, as they were. See Mat. 11. 21, 22. Mark 3. 8. and 7. 24. Acts 21. 3, 4, 5. But they are here put Synecdochically for all the Gentiles, whom that City fitly repreſents, as being the Mart of the Nations, as ſhe is called, Iſa. 23. 3. And being a very rich and proud, and therefore a ſelf-conceited, and a ſtiff-necked people; their Merchants being Princes, Iſa. 23. 8. they may in a particular manner repreſent all thoſe great and proud Princes and ſtubborn people of the Gentile-World, which ſhould be ſubdued to Chriſt by the preaching of the Goſpel. a Partly to teſtifie their Homage, which was done by Gifts or Preſents, as appears from 1 Sam. 10. 27. 2 Sam. 8. 2. &c. and partly to procure thine, and conſequently thy Husbands Favour, as it here follows. b Of other Nations.

13 The kings daughter c is all glorious within d; her clothing is of wrought gold e.

c (i. e.) The Spouſe; ſo called, either, becauſe ſhe was the Daughter of one King, and the Wife of another: Or becauſe the Spouſe or Wife is ſometimes called the Husbands Daughter; partly, becauſe ſhe is ſuppoſed to be younger than he; and partly, becauſe of that reſpect and ſubjection which ſhe oweth to him, and that Fatherly Care and Affection which he oweth to her. See 2 Sam. 12. 3. Jer. 3. 4. So the Bridegroom calls his Spouſe his Siſter, Cant. 4. 19. Thus Livia, the Wife of Auguſtus is called his Siſter in antient Coins. d Either, 1. Even in her retiring Chambers in the Kings Palace, and not only when ſhe ſheweth her ſelf abroad. Or rather, 2. In her Mind and Soul, or in ſpiritual Endowments, the excellent Vertues and Graces wherewith ſhe is accompliſhed. For 1. This is oppoſed to her outward Clothing. 2. This being ſo great and ſo neceſſary a qualification of a worthy Spouſe, it is not likely it ſhould be omitted in her deſcription and commendation, eſpecially when the Bridegroom is commended for his inward Accompliſhments, as well as for his outward Glory, v. 4, 7. 3. The Church is this Bride, as hath been ſaid and proved before, whoſe true and chief Beauty is inward and ſpiritual, and not conſiſting in outward pomp and glory. e Her inward Perfections do not reſt within her, but break forth into vertuous and honourable Actions, wherewith ſhe is adorned in the view of the World. This ſuits well with the ſtyle of the Holy Scriptures, wherein the Saints are oft ſaid to be cloathed with Vertues and Vertuous Actions. See Pſal. 132. 9. 1 Pet. 5. 5.

14 She ſhall be brought unto the king f in raiment of needle-work: the virgins her companions g that follow her ſhall be brought unto thee.

f He alludes to the Cuſtom of conducting the Bride to the Bridegrooms Houſe. g (i. e.) Her Bride-maidens attending upon her, called her honourable Women, v. 9. (where ſee the Notes) and here Virgins, becauſe of their Spiritual Purity and Chaſtity, 2 Cor. 11. 2.

15 With gladneſs and rejoycing h ſhall they be brought: they ſhall enter into the Kings palace.

h Full of Joy for the Glory and Felicity of the Bride and Bridegroom, and for the comfort and benefit which redoundeth to themſelves from it.

16 In ſtead of thy fathers ſhall be thy children, * whom thou mayeſt make princes in all the earth i.

* 1 Pet. 2. 9. Rev. 1. 6. & 5. 10. & 20. 6.

i Having directed his Speech to the Bride, he now returns to the Bridegroom, as may be gathered both from the Hebrew words, which are of the Maſculine Gender; and from the next Verſe, which unqueſtionably belongs unto him: Yet ſo that he ſuppoſeth the Bride to be concerned, and partakes with him in the priviledge here mentioned, and the Children to be common to them both. And therefore this Verſe and Pſalm cannot be underſtood of Solomon, and his Marriage with Pharaohs Daughter, becauſe he had no Children by her, and but very few by all his Wives and Concubines; and his Children were ſo far from exceeding their Parents in the largeneſs of their Dominions, or being made Princes in all the Earth, as is here ſaid, that they enjoyed but a ſmall part of their Fathers Dominions, and that with many Tribulations and but for a ſhort time. But this was moſt truly and fully accompliſhed in Chriſt: who inſtead of his Fathers of the Jewiſh Nation, from whom he deſcended, and by whom he was forſaken and rejected (which here ſeems to be implyed, and elſewhere is expreſly affirmed) had a numerous Poſterity of Gentile Chriſtians of all the Nations of the Earth, which here and elſewhere are called Princes and Kings, becauſe of their great Power with God and with Men, becauſe they ſubdued a very great part of the World to the Obedience of Chriſt, and ruled them in his Name and ſtead.

17 I will make thy name to be remembred in all generations k: therefore ſhall the people praiſe thee for ever and ever.

k As he began the Pſalm with the Celebration of the Kings Praiſes, ſo now he endeth with it, and adds this important Circumſtance, that this Nuptial Song ſhould not only ſerve for the preſent Solemnity, as others of that kind do, but that it ſhould be remembred and ſung in all ſucceſſive Generations. Which plainly ſheweth that it was not Compoſed upon ſuch a ſleight and tranſitory occaſion, as that of Solomons Marriage with Pharaohs Daughter, which was ſoon forgotten, and the Iſraelites had little cauſe to remember it with any ſatisfaction; but upon that great and glorious and everlaſting Marriage between Chriſt and his Church; of which this is moſt properly and literally verified.

The ARGUMENT.

He inſinuates the weak condition of Gods Church as to outward advantages, that they had not one Sea to oppoſe to another, but only a ſmall River; which though in it ſelf deſpicable, yet was ſufficient to refreſh and defend them in ſpight of all their Enemies. And as the Sea and Waters thereof, v. 2, 3. are to be underſtood Metaphorically, as all agree, ſo alſo in all probability, are this River and Streams: Which therefore may deſign the gracious Preſence and Aſſiſtance, and Bleſſing of the Lord, (which is very frequently deſcribed under the Name of Waters, as Iſa. 11. 9. and 12. 3. Zech. 14. 8. &c.) or the Lord himſelf, who is expreſly ſaid to be unto the City of Zion for its defence, a place of broad Rivers and Streams, Iſa. 33. 20, 21. which probably alludes to this Text, or at leaſt explains it. g (i. e.) Shall not barely defend it from utter ruin, but preſerve it from danger, and give great occaſion for rejoycing and thanksgiving. h (i. e.) Zion or Jeruſalem ſo called, alſo Pſal. 48. 1. Iſa. 60. 14. i (i. e.) Of the Tabernacle, the plural Number for the ſingular, as Pſal. 43. 3. P S A L. XLVII.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm may ſeem to have been Compoſed upon the occaſion of that great Solemnity of carrying the Ark from the Houſe of Obed-Edom into the City of Zion; of which ſee 2 Sam. 6.

and 1 Chron. 13. and 16. But as Zion was a Type of the Church, and the Ark a Type of Chriſt, ſo this hath a further reference, even to Chriſts Aſcenſion into Heaven, and as conſequent thereunto, to the ſpreading of his Kingdom in all the Parts and Nations of the World. Which is the chief Scope and Deſign of the Pſalmiſt, or at leaſt of the Holy Ghoſt, in this Pſalm; as will plainly appear from the words and matter of it.

‖ Or, of. To the chief muſician, a Pſalm ‖ for the ſons of Korah.

The Church is exhorted to praiſe God, who ſubdueth her Enemies, 1—3. and give her an excellent inheritance, 4—7. A promiſe of calling and gathering the Gentiles, 8—9.

1 O Clap your hands all ye people a; ſhout unto God b with the voyce of triumph.

a Either, 1. All the Tribes of Iſrael: For the ſeveral Tribes are ſometimes called ſeveral People. See Judg. 5. 14. Ezek. 2. 3. Acts 4. 27. Or 2. All Nations, not only Jews, but Gentiles; for all of them either had or might have benefit by the Ark, upon their Addreſſes to God there, and eſpecially by Chriſt and his Aſcenſion. b In the Worſhip, and unto the Glory of the God of Iſrael.

2 For the LORD moſt high is terrible c; he is a great King over all the earth d.

c Or, is moſt high (in himſelf, above all Gods) and (which Conjunction is oft underſtood) terrible, to all his Enemies. d The univerſal Monarch of the whole World, and not of only Iſrael.

3 He ſhall ſubdue e the people under us f, and the nations under our feet.

e Or, lead like Sheep; or bring into the Fold; as divers render the word, by comparing Iſa. 5. 17. Mich. 2. 12. He ſeems to ſpeak of ſuch a ſubjugation of them, as was for the good of the people ſubdued, becauſe this is matter of rejoycing to them, v. 1. Which is true both of thoſe people whom David ſubdued, who thereby had Opportunities, Obligations and Encouragements, to own and worſhip the true God, which was the only way to their true and laſting Happineſs; and eſpecially of thoſe Gentiles who were ſubdued to Chriſt by the preaching of the Goſpel. f The Gentile-Converts were in ſome ſort brought under the Jews, becauſe they were ſubjected to Chriſt, and to his Apoſtles, and to the primitive Church, which were Jews. Or the Pſalmiſt may ſpeak this in the Name of the whole Church, which then were Iſraelites only, but afterwards were made up of Jews and Gentiles, unto which all particular Believers were to ſubmit themſelves in and for the Lord.

4 He ſhall chooſe g our inheritance h for us, the excellency i of Jacob k whom he loved l. Selah.

g (i. e.) He will appoint and beſtow upon us. This Verb of the Future Tenſe may ſeem to agree well with the Gentiles, becauſe this Bleſſing was not now preſent but future, and ſo the Senſe deſigned by the Holy Ghoſt may be this: Though at preſent we are wicked and wretched Creatures, and Strangers to the Commonwealth of Iſrael, yet there is a time coming wherein God will chuſe or take us into the number of his Children by gracious Adoption. But Futures are variouſly rendred; and accordingly the Vulgar Latin, Syriack and Arabick render this word, He hath choſen. The Chaldee renders this and the following words, He will take Pleaſure in us, ſo as to give us our Inheritance. h Either the Land of Canaan: Or Heaven; which was typified by that Land: Or rather, God himſelf who is called his peoples Portion or Inheritance, as Pſal. 16. 5. and 73. 26. and elſewhere, or the Preſence and Worſhip, and Bleſſing of God. This God had choſen for the Iſraelites, and reſolved to chuſe or ſet apart for the Gentiles. i Or, Glory; wherein Jacob gloryed and excelled all other people. See Ezek. 24. 21. Amos 6. 8. and 8. 7. k Either 1. Of the perſon of Jacob; who, though he never had the poſſeſſion of the Land of Canaan, yet had the Lord and his Preſence, and Bleſſing for his Inheritance. Or rather, 2. Of the people of Jacob or Iſrael, who are frequently called Jacob, as Numb. 23. 7, 10, 23. Pſal. 14. 7. and 44. 4. &c. for theſe did actually enjoy the promiſed Inheritance of Canaan, and the preſence of God in his Sanctuary. l This he adds; partly as the reaſon why he choſe ſuch a noble Inheritance for them, not for any peculiar worth in them more than in other people, but only for his free love to them, as he declareth, Deut. 7. 7, 8. and 9. 5. and partly, as an evidence of the excellency of this Inheritance, becauſe it was choſen for his beloved people.

* Pſal. 68. 24, 25. 5 * God is gone up m with a ſhout; the LORD with the ſound of a trumpet.

m This is meant litterally of the Ark, wherein God was preſent, which went or was carried up to the Hill of Zion, where the Tabernacle was erected for it, and afterwards to the Hill of Moriah into the Temple; which Solemnity was accompanied with the ſhouts and acclamations of the People, and with the ſound of Trumpets: but Myſtically it reſpects Chriſts Aſcenſion in Heaven, as may be gathered by comparing this with Eph. 4. 8. where the like words uttered concerning the Ark upon the ſame occaſion, Pſal. 68. 18. are directly applied to Chriſts Aſcenſion.

6 Sing praiſes n to God, ſing praiſes: ſing praiſes unto our King o, ſing praiſes.

n Theſe words are repeated four times in this Verſe, to ſhew how vehemently deſirous the Pſalmiſt was, that God might have his due Praiſe and Glory; and of how great neceſſity and importance it was to men to perform this great, though much neglected, Duty. o For ſo he is in a ſpecial manner.

‖ Or, every one that hath underſtanding, or, ſing Maſchil. Pſal. 45. 7 For God is the King of all the earth p, ſing ye praiſes ‖ with underſtanding q.

p Not only ours, as I now ſaid, but alſo of all the Nations of the World; and therefore he may well require, and doth highly deſerve all our praiſes. q Not raſhly, or formally and careleſly, but ſeriouſly, conſidering the greatneſs of this King whom you praiſe, and what abundant cauſe you have to praiſe and admire him. Which is an intimation that the matter of this Pſalm is more ſublime and important than ordinary.

8 God reigneth over the heathen r: God ſitteth upon the throne s of his holineſs.

r (i. e.) Over all heathen Nations, as being the King of all the Earth, v. 7. Which was not true in Davids time, but was fulfilled by Chriſt. s To wit, as Judge and King, exerciſing Dominion, or Reigning, as he now ſaid; this being only another expreſſion of the ſame thing. And this Holy Throne is either, 1. The Ark, upon which God was ſaid to ſit to govern the Iſraelites. Or rather, 2. Heaven; which is oft called Gods Throne, Pſal. 11. 4. Iſa. 66. 1. whence God is ſaid to behold and to rule all Nations; of which general Dominion of God he here ſpeaks. And here Chriſt ſits at his Fathers Right-hand, for that purpoſe.

9 ‖ The princes of the people t are gathered together, even the people of the God of Abraham u: for the ſhields of the earth x belong unto God: he is greatly exalted y. ‖ Or, the voluntary of the People are gathered unto the people of the God of Abraham.

t Either, 1. The heads of the Tribes of Iſrael who were gathered together to the Tabernacle, or Temple upon ſolemn Feaſts. Or rather 2. The Princes (or the voluntary or willing ones, as this word is rendred, Pſal. 110. 3.) of the Gentiles, who are here known by the Name of the People, v. 1, 3. who were divided in their Principles, and Intereſts, and Religions, but are now united and gathered together unto Chriſt, laying their Scepters at his Feet, and joyntly owning and promoting his Worſhip and Service. So he ſpeaks of the Converſion of the Gentiles; although he mentions only their Princes, becauſe their Converſion might ſeem to be moſt difficult in ſundry reſpects, and therefore that being affirmed, the converſion of their people, with or after them, might very reaſonably be ſuppoſed. u So he explains the former Clauſe, and ſhews what people he ſpake of; and it is obſervable, he doth not ſay the People of Abraham, leſt this ſhould be appropriated to the Iſraelites; but the People of the God of Abraham; (i. e.) which Worſhip the God of Abraham, whether they be Jews or Gentiles. So this is a Prophecy of the Converſion of the Gentiles; which alſo is intimated by the Name here uſed, which is not his Old and firſt Name, Abram, but his new Name, Abraham, given to him to ſignifie, that he ſhould be the Father of many Nations, Gen. 17. 5. Or theſe words with the former, may be, and are by divers learned Interpreters rendred thus: The Princes of the People, (i. e. Of the Gentiles) are (i. e. Shall be, as is uſual in Prophetick ſtyle) gathered unto (which Particle is ſometimes underſtood, as Pſal. 5. 8. Jer. 26. 10. Hoſea 2. 14.) the people of the God of Abraham, (i. e.) Unto the Jews, and ſo both Jews and Gentiles ſhall be united in one Religion; and ſo God ſhall reign over the Heathen, and be King of all the Earth, as is here ſaid v. 7, 8. and all people ſhall clap their hands for joy, as it is v. 1. x Either 1. The protection of the people of all the Earth. Or rather 2. Their Princes or Rulers, who are fitly called Shields, Hoſea 4. 18. becauſe by their Office they are or ſhould be the common Parents and Protectors of all their people, to defend them from all Oppreſſions and Injuries. Theſe, ſaith he, are the Lords, (i. e.) At his diſpoſal, or ſubject to his dominion, both as to their Hearts and Kingdoms. And ſo this is here conveniently added, as the Reaſon of that great and improbable Event, foretold in the foregoing words, that the Princes of the People (which of all others were moſt lofty and wilful, and incorrigible) ſhould joyn and ſubject themſelves to the Lord, and to his Church. y By this means God ſhall be greatly Glorified, and appear to be far above all the Princes of the World, and above all other Gods.

PSAL. XLVIII.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm was Compoſed upon the Occaſion of ſome eminent Deliverance vouchſafed by God to the City of Jeruſalem, from ſome potent Enemy, and dreadful Danger; either that in Jehoſhaphats time, 2 Chron. 20. or that under Hezekiah, 2 Kings 18. and 19. In both which times there were Holy Prophets, by ſome of whom this Pſalm might be made.

‖ Or, of. A ſong and pſalm a ‖ for the ſons of Korah.

a Of which ſee on Pſal. 30. which hath the ſame Title.

The Prophet deſcribeth the glory and excellency of the Church, 1—3. preſerved from her potent Enemies, 4—8. For which God is glorified, 9, 10. and the faithful invited to take notice of its beauty and firmneſs, to tranſmit it to following generations, 11—13.

1 GReat is the LORD, and greatly to be praiſed in the city of our God b, in the mountain of his holineſs c.

b In Jeruſalem, which he hath choſen for his dwelling place. c (i. e.) In his holy Mountain, either Zion where the Ark and Tabernacle was: Or rather Moriah; where the Temple now was. Although both of them are ſuppoſed by ſome to be but one Mountain, having two tops; and it is certain that both are frequently called by one Name, to wit, Zion.

* Pſ. 50. 2. Ezek. 20. 6 Dan. 8. 9. & 11. 16. * Mat. 5. 35. 2 * Beautiful for ſituation, the joy of the whole earth d is mount Zion, on the ſides of the north e, * the city of the great king f.

d Jeruſalem may be ſo called here, as it is alſo Lament. 2. 15. not actually, as if all people did rejoyce in it, or for it; but Fundamentally or Cauſally, becauſe here was very great cauſe or ground of rejoycing for the Gentile World, if they had underſtood themſelves, or their true Intereſt; becauſe here God was graciouſly preſent and ready to hear and anſwer the juſt Deſires and Prayers, not only of the Iſraelites, but of any ſtranger of what Nation ſoever, according to Solomons Prayer, 1 Kings 8. 41. &c. and here the Gentiles might find That God, whom like blind Men they groped for, as the Greek Phraſe implies, Acts 17. 27. and here they might be informed of the Nature and Properties, as alſo of the Mind and Will of the Almighty and Everlaſting God, of which they were ſo groſly ignorant, and of that Meſſias, who was the deſire of (and conſequently matter of great Joy unto) all Nations, Hagg. 2. 7. And 2. Prophetically, becauſe the joyful Doctrine of the Goſpel was to go from thence unto all Nations: of which ſee Iſa. 2. 2, 3. Mich. 4. 1, 2. Yet theſe words may be and are by others rendred and underſtood thus, the Joy of the or this (for here is an Emphatical Article) whole Land. e (i. e.) Which is on the Northern part of Jeruſalem. But becauſe Joſephus and ſome others affirm, that Mount Zion ſtood Southward from Jeruſalem, this Clauſe poſſibly may be added to ſignifie that Zion is not here to be underſtood ſtrictly and properly for that Mountain, or part of the Mountain ſo called, but for that other Mountain, or part of the ſame Mountain upon which the Temple was built, which was ſtrictly called Moriah, but is here called Zion, becauſe that Name was far better known in Scripture, as being oft put for the Temple, as Pſal. 137. 3. Iſa. 18. 7. Jer. 51. 10. Lam. 5. 18. and for the whole City, and for the Church of God, in a multitude of places of Scripture. f (i. e.) The City of God, as it was now called, v. 1. who juſtly calls himſelf a great King, Mal. 1. 14. as being King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, Rev. 19. 16.

3 God is known g in her palaces h for a refuge i.

g To his people by ſenſible and long Experience, and to all neighbouring Nations, by their own obſervation. h (i. e.) In the Habitations, or to the Inhabitants of that City. Poſſibly he may here point at the Kings Palace and the Temple, which was the Palace of the King of Heaven; which two Palaces God did in a ſingular manner protect, and by protecting them, he protected the whole City and People. i Under whoſe ſhadow we are more ſafe and ſecure, than other Cities are with their great Rivers and impregnable Fortifications.

4 For lo, the kings i were aſſembled, they paſſed by k together.

i Either thoſe Kings Confederate againſt Jehoſhaphat, 2 Chron. 20. or the Aſſyrian Princes; whom they vain-gloriouſly called Kings, Iſa. 10. 8. k In their march towards Jeruſalem. Or, they paſſed away, (i. e.) Departed without the Succeſs, which they deſired and confidently expected.

5 They ſaw it l, and ſo they marvelled m; they were troubled and haſted away n.

l They did only look upon it, but not come into it, nor ſhoot an Arrow there, —nor caſt a Bank againſt it, as is ſaid upon this or the like occaſion, 2 Kings 19. 32. m Not ſo much at the ſtructure or ſtrength of the City, as at the wonderful Works wrought by God on their behalf. n See 2 Kings 19. 35.

6 Fear took hold upon them there, and pain o, as of a woman in travail.

o Partly, at the Tidings of Tirhakahs coming againſt them, 2 Kings 19. 9. and partly for that terrible ſlaughter of their Army, there v. 35.

7 Thou breakeſt the ſhips of Tarſhiſh with an eaſt-wind p.

p This is not reported as a matter of Fact, for we read of no Ships in thoſe Expeditions to which this Pſalm relates, nor did any Ships come near Jeruſalem, becauſe that was at a great diſtance from the Sea, and from any Navigable River running into the Sea; but only added by way of illuſtration, or alluſion. The Senſe is, Thou didſt no leſs violently and ſuddenly deſtroy theſe proud and raging Enemies of Jeruſalem, than ſometimes thou deſtroyeſt the Ships at Sea with a fierce and vehement Wind, ſuch as the Eaſtern Winds were in thoſe parts, Exod. 14. 21. Job 27. 21. Jer. 18. 17. Ezek. 27. 26. The Words are and may be rendred thus: Thou didſt break them as (ſuch Ellipſis of the Pronoun, and of the note of ſimilitude being very frequent; as I have again and again ſhewed) the Ships of the Sea (for Tarſhiſh, though properly the Name of a Maritine place in Cilicia, Ezek. 27. 25. Jonah 1. 3. is uſually put for the Sea, as 1 Kings 10. 22. 2 Chron. 9. 21. Pſal. 72. 10. Iſa. 2. 16. Jer. 10. 9.) are broken with an Eaſt-wind. Albeit the Enemies of Jeruſalem, which are compared to the raging Waters of the Sea, in Pſal. 46. 2, 3. may as fitly be compared to Ships upon the Sea.

8 As we have heard, ſo have we ſeen q in the city of the LORD of hoſts, in the city of our God: God will eſtabliſh it for ever r. Selah.

q The predictions of the Prophets, either 2 Chron. 20. 14. or 2 Kings 19. 20. &c. have been verified by the Events. Or we have had late and freſh experiences of ſuch wonderful works of God, as before we only heard of by the Report of our Fathers. r From this miraculous deliverance we plainly ſee that God hath a ſingular love to it, and care of it, and therefore will defend her in all ſucceeding Ages, againſt all her Enemies. And ſo God would have done, if Jeruſalem had not forſaken God, and forfeited his favour and protection.

9 We have thought of s thy loving kindneſs, O God, in the midſt of thy temple.

s It hath been the matter of our ſerious and deep Meditation, when we have been Worſhipping there in thy Temple. For when the Prieſts were offering Incenſe or Sacrifice, the Religious People exerciſed themſelves in holy Meditation, or ſecret Prayer to God, as may be gathered from Luke 1. 10. and many other places of Scripture, and from the Nature of the thing. Or, We have ſilently or patiently waited for, as ſome Antient and other Interpreters render it.

10 According to thy name, O God, ſo is thy praiſe t unto the ends of the earth: thy right hand is full of righteouſneſs u.

t For this and ſuch like glorious Actions, thou art praiſed and acknowledged, and evidently proved to be ſuch an one as thou haſt affirmed thy ſelf to be in thy Word, God Almighty or All-ſufficient, the Lord of Hoſts, the King of thy Church and People, and a ſtrong Tower to all that truſt in thee, and all other things which thou art called in Scripture. Thy Name is not an empty Title, but is filled up with honourable and praiſe-worthy Works anſwerable to it. u (i. e.) Of righteous Actions; by which thou diſcovereſt thy Juſtice and Holineſs in deſtroying the Wicked, and incorrigible Enemies of thy People, and in fulfilling thy promiſes made to thy Church.

11 Let mount x Zion rejoyce, let the daughters of Judah y be glad, becauſe of thy judgments z.

x Synecdochically put for Jeruſalem. y (i. e.) The other and leſſer Cities, and Towns or Villages (i. e. all the People) of Judah: for ſuch are commonly called Daughters in reſpect of the Mother City, to which they are Subjects: See Joſ. 15. 45. and 17. 16. Pſal. 45. 12. and 137. 8. He mentions Judah only, and not all Iſrael; partly becauſe they were more immediately and eminently concerned in Jeruſalems deliverance; and principally becauſe ten of the Tribes of Iſrael were now cut off from Jeruſalem, and from the Kingdom of Davids Houſe, and poſſibly carried away captive, 2 Kings 18. 9, 10, 11. z Upon thine and their Enemies. At which they were glad not ſimply, but becauſe it was highly conducible to Gods Honour, and to the preſervation and enlargement of Gods Church in the World.

12 Walk about Zion, and go round about her a: tell the towers thereof b.

a He ſpeaketh, either, 1. To the Enemies, as triumphing over them. Or rather 2. To the People of that City and Kingdom, who had been Eye-Witneſſes of this glorious work of God, as appears from the following Verſes. b He bids them mark well her Towers, Bulwarks and Palaces, here and v. 13. not with vain oſtentation, or carnal confidence, for he had ſaid that God only was their Refuge, v. 3. but with thankfulneſs to God, when they ſhould find upon enquiry, that not one of them was demoliſhed, or any way defaced by ſo potent an Enemy.

13 † Mark ye well her bulwarks, || conſider c her palaces: that ye may tell it to the generation following d.

† Heb. ſet your heart to her Bulwarks.

c Or Exalt, or admire. d That they may be excited to continue their Praiſes to God for this Mercy, by which they hold and enjoy all their Bleſſings, and to truſt in God in the like difficulties for the future.

14 For this God e is our God for ever and ever; he will be our guide even unto death f.

e Who hath done this great Work. f (i. e.) Whilſt we have a Being. Birth and Life, and the ſeveral Ages of Life and Death, are oft aſcribed to Churches and Commonwealths, both in Scripture and in other Authors. This Promiſe was made to the Old and Earthly Jeruſalem, upon condition of their Obedience, wherein they failing ſo groſly, loſt the benefit of it, but it is abſolutely made good to the New and Heavenly Jeruſalem, the Church of Chriſt.

PSAL. XLIX.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Pſalm is penned upon the ſame occaſion with Pſal. 39. and 73. to wit, upon the Contemplation of the Afflictions of Gods people, and of the proſperity and glory of ungodly men. The deſign is to juſtifie Gods Providence in this dark Diſpenſation, and to ſhew that all things being conſidered, good men have no cauſe for immoderate dejection of Spirit, nor wicked men for glorying in their preſent Felicities.

To the chief muſician; a Pſalm || for the ſons of Korah.

|| Or, of.

The Pſalmiſt having ſtirred up all Men to attention, 1—5. ſheweth their vain truſt in Riches, 6—14. and the contrary truſt of the faithful in God, 15. Exhorteth them not to fear the proſperity of the wicked, for it cannot deliver him from the Grave, 16—20.

1 HEar this, all ye people a, give ear all ye inhabitants of the world:

2 Both * low and high, rich and poor together.

* Pſ. 62. 9.

a Heb. All People; Jews or Gentiles: For all are concerned in this matter, as being apt to ſtumble and murmur at it.

3 My mouth ſhall ſpeak of wiſdom, and the meditation of my heart ſhall be of underſtanding b.

b It concerns you diligently to attend to me, for I am about to ſpeak not of vulgar and trivial things, or ſuch as come ſuddenly into my Mind, and ruſh as haſtily out of my Mouth, but of ſuch things as are the reſult of my moſt ſerious and conſiderate thoughts, and ſuch as, if you obſerve them and lay them to Heart, will make you truly wiſe, and keep you from thoſe Errors and Follies and Miſchiefs, which the generality of Mankind for want of a right underſtanding do run into.

4 * I will incline mine ear c to a parable d; I will open e my dark ſaying f upon the harp,

* Pſ. 78. 2. Mat. 13. 35.

c This is another Argument to perſwade them to hearken to him: I will hearken what God by his Spirit ſpeaks to me, and that and nothing elſe will I now ſpeak to you: and therefore it is well worth your hearing. I alſo ſhall joyn with you in attending to it, that whilſt I teach you, I my ſelf may learn the ſame Leſſon. For as Miniſters now teach themſelves whilſt they teach others, ſo the Holy Prophets did oft times ſearch into, and ſtudy to find out the meaning of their own Prophecies, as appears plainly from 1 Pet. 1. 10, 11. The Phraſe is thought to be taken from the Muſicians, who lay their Ear cloſe to the Inſtrument when they tune it, and by their Ear try how the Voice and Inſtrument agree. d Which properly is a Figurative and Allegorical Speech, but is oft more largely taken for any excellent and important, and withal dark or difficult, Doctrine or Sentence, ſee Numb. 23. 7. and 24. 3, 15. Pſal. 78. 2. comp. with Mat. 13. 35. e (i. e.) I will not ſmother it in my own Breaſt, but publiſh it to the World. f So he juſtly calls the following Diſcourſe, becauſe the thing in queſtion is and ever hath been thought difficult, and hard to be underſtood.

5 Wherefore ſhould I fear g in the days of evil h, when the iniquity of my heels i ſhall * compaſs me about? * Hoſ. 7. 2.

g He ſpeaks in his own perſon, becauſe he had now ſaid that he would incline his Ear, v. 4. (i. e.) Learn and practice what he was teaching others; but his meaning is more general, that there is no ſufficient cauſe, why he or any good man ſhould fear. Which is to be underſtood of exceſſive or immoderate and prevailing Fear, cauſing dejection or deſpondency, or diſtruſt of Gods Providence and Goodneſs, or diſcontent with his Condition. In which Senſe men are bid not to fear, Gen. 50. 19. Mat. 28. 5., comp. with Mark 16. 6. Thus Gen. 45. 5. Be not grieved, to wit, inordinately: for otherwiſe they ought, and he would have had them to grieve for their ſin. Thus to lead a man into temptation, Mat. 6. 13. is to ſuffer him to be overcome by it, by comparing 1 Cor. 10. 13. And the object or cauſe of this forbidden Fear is double, the one, the afflictions of good men, here following; the other, the proſperity of the ungodly, as it is declared v. 16. and of which he begins to treat in the very next Verſe, and continues the Diſcourſe of it to the end of the Pſalm. h Either, 1. Of ſin: when iniquity of all ſorts abounds; which is many ways grievous and vexatious to every good man. Or 2. Of miſery; in times of great Diſtreſs and Calamity, either publick or private, when wicked men flouriſh, (of which he ſpeaks in all the reſt of the Pſalm) and good men are oppreſſed and perſecuted. i By which he underſtands either, 1. His afflictions: which he might juſtly call the puniſhment of his ſinful actions; for iniquity is commonly put for the puniſhment of it, and the Heels are put for a Mans Foot-ſteps, and Metaphorically, for ones ways or actions, as Pſal. 56. 6. and 89. 51. Or 2. The iniquity, (i. e.) The violent and injurious deſigns and practices of his ungodly and malicious Enemies, who, as he here ſaith, did compaſs him about. Whereby he notes their proſperous ſucceſs againſt him, and his being indangered and vexed by them, as this Phraſe implies, Job 16. 13. Pſal. 17. 9, 11. and 22. 12. and 140. 9. Habak. 1. 4. and withal their intention and endeavour to vex and perſecute and deſtroy him, as this Phraſe is uſed, Pſal. 17. 9. and 22. 12, 16. and in many other places. This Senſe is favoured both by the Syriack and Arabick Interpreters: whereof the former renders the words thus, the iniquity of mine Enemies hath compaſſed me, and the latter thus, When mine Enemies ſhall compaſs me about: And by the main ſcope of the Pſalm, which is to comfort himſelf and other good men, againſt that great ſcandal of the proſperity of the Wicked, and the oppreſſions and miſeries of the Righteous. But all the difficulty is, why or how he calls this, the iniquity of his Heels. For the clearing whereof, it is humbly propoſed to Conſideration, that this Genitive Caſe, of my Heels, ſeems to note not the efficient or meritorious cauſe of this iniquity, or puniſhment of it, but the Object about which this iniquity is exerciſed; as Nouns in the Genitive Caſe are frequently taken. Thus the ſpoil of the Poor, Iſa. 3. 14. is not that ſpoil which was made by them, but upon them: and the violence of the Children of Judah, as it is in the Hebrew Text, Joel 3. 19. is that which was done againſt them, as we truly tranſlate it. See alſo Dan. 4. 27. Mat. 10. 1. Acts 4. 9. In like manner here, the iniquity of my Heels, is the iniquity wherewith they compaſs and ſeek to trip up my Heels; for we ſhall find David oft ſpeaking of the malicious practices of his Enemies, with reſpect to his Heels or Feet, or Steps. So he tells us they pierced his Hands and Feet, Pſal. 22. 16. they compaſſed and marked, and prepared a Net for his Steps, Pſal. 17. 11. and 56. 6. and 57. 6. as Jeremy alſo complains of his Enemies, that they hid Snares for his Feet, ch. 18. 22. And therefore it is not ſtrange that the iniquity of his Enemies is here noted to be exerciſed about his Heels or Footſteps, as this word ſignifies, either becauſe they did malignantly obſerve all his ſteps or ways, that they might find occaſion to load him with reproaches in order to his Ruin; or becauſe they purpoſed to trip up his Heels, or to overthrow his goings, as he complains Pſal. 140. 4. Beſides the words may be rendred, the iniquity of my Supplanters; for the Hebrew word rendred Heels, may be, and is by ſome learned Interpreters, taken for a Particle of that Verb, which ſignifies to ſupplant or trip up the Heels or circumvent, from whence Jacob had his Name. And this Character fitly agrees to Davids Enemies, who were not only moſt malicious, but alſo very deceitful and treacherous, as he every where complains.

* Job 31. 24. Pſ. 62. 10. Mark 10. 24. 1 Tim. 6. 17.

6 They that * truſt in their wealth k, and boaſt themſelves in the multitude of their riches, k As that which can and will ſecure them, from Gods Judgments and from the Calamities of humane Life. The Pſalmiſt having ſaid that he and other good men, had no ſufficient cauſe of Fear, from their preſent ſufferings from ungodly men, now he proceeds on the contrary to ſhew, that his ungodly Enemies had no reaſon to be ſecure and confident, becauſe of their preſent Riches and proſperous ſucceſs.

7 None of them can by any means redeem l his brother m, nor give to God n a ranſom for him.

l To wit, from Death, as appears from v. 9, 10. &c. neither from the firſt Death, nor from the ſecond, which he points at ver. 14, 19. m Whom he would do his utmoſt to preſerve in Life: and conſequently not himſelf. But he ſeems to mention his Brother rather than himſelf, becauſe when his Brother is ſick, he being in Health hath the full command and free uſe of all his Wealth, and Strength, and Wit, and all other means of redeeming his Brother; which he hath not, when he himſelf is dangerouſly or deſperately ſick. n The only Lord of Life, and the Judge who hath paſſed upon him the Sentence of Death.

* Job 36. 18, 19.

8 (For * the redemption of their ſoul o is precious p, and it ceaſeth for ever q.)

o (i. e.) Of their Life, as Soul is commonly uſed. p (i. e.) Rare, as the word is uſed, 1 Sam. 3. 1. Dan. 2. 11. hard to be obtained. But he doth not call it ſimply impoſſible, becauſe Chriſt hath purchaſed this priviledge for his true Diſciples, that in ſome ſenſe they ſhall not ſee Death, John 8. 51. q (i. e.) It is never to be accompliſhed, to wit, by any meer man, for himſelf or for his Brother.

9 That he ſhould ſtill live for ever, and * not ſee corruption r. * Pſ. 89. 48.

r Or the Pit, or the Grave, (i. e.) Not dye, as that Phraſe is oft uſed, as hath been noted before.

10 For he ſeeth s that * wiſe men die, likewiſe the fool and the brutiſh perſon periſh t, and leave their wealth to others u. * Eccl. 2. 16.

s An imperſonal expreſſion: Every man ſees and knows it; it is viſible and evident, both from Reaſon and from univerſal Experience. t All men die without any difference between wiſe and fools, good and bad. u He ſaith not, to Sons or Kindred; but indefinitely, to others, becauſe he is wholly uncertain to whom he ſhall leave them, to Friends, or Strangers, or Enemies; which he mentions as a great Vanity in Riches. They neither can ſave them from Death, nor will accompany him in and after Death, and after his Death will be diſpoſed, he knows not how nor to whom.

11 Their inward thought is x, that their houſes y ſhall continue for ever z, and their dwelling places † to all generations; they call their lands after their own names a. † Heb. to Generation and Generation.

x Though they are aſhamed to expreſs it, yet it is their ſecret opinion and hope, and wiſh. y Either, 1. Their poſterity, oft called mens Houſes, as 2 Sam. 7. 11. &c. Pſal. 113. 9. and 115. 12. Or 2. Their Manſion-Houſes, as it is explained in the next Clauſe, which alſo ſerve for this purpoſe, to preſerve a mans name for ever. z Not to them in their own perſons, but to them and theirs in ſucceeding Generations, as it follows. a Fondly dreaming by this means to immortalize their Names and Memories.

12 Nevertheleſs b * man being in honour c abideth not d: he is like the beaſts that periſh e. * Pſ. 82. 7.

b Notwithſtanding all theſe fine fancies and devices. c Living in all the ſplendour and glory above mentioned. d The Hebrew word properly ſignifies to lodge for a Night, as Gen. 32. 21. Judg. 19. 10. and thence to abide for a long or conſiderable time, as Pſal. 25. 13. and 55. 7. Prov. 15. 31. All his Dreams of perpetuating his Name and Eſtate, ſhall vaniſh and be confuted by Experience. e (i. e.) That are utterly loſt and extinct. So he is in reference to all his Wealth and Honour, of which he here ſpeaks.

13 This their way f is their folly g; yet their poſterity † approve their ſayings h. Selah. † Heb. delight in their mouth.

f (i. e.) Their Counſel and Contrivance to immortalize themſelves. g Though to themſelves and ſome others it ſeem to be wiſdom, yet in truth it is apparent folly and madneſs. For they neither obtain that immortal Name which they ſeek and hope for: Nor, if they do, doth it yield them any comfort or benefit. h Heb. their Mouth, (i. e.) their Counſels and Suggeſtions which they gave them concerning theſe matters. The Mouth is oft put for the words which come out of it, as Numb. 35. 30. Job 7. 11.

14 Like ſheep i they are laid in † the grave k; death ſhall feed on them l, and the * upright m ſhall have dominion over them in the morning n, and their ‖ beauty o ſhall conſume p ‖ in the grave, from their dwelling q.

† Heb. Hell. * Dan. 7. 22. Mal. 4. 3. Luke 22. 30. 1 Cor. 6. 2. Rev. 2. 26. & 20. 4. ‖ Or, Strength. ‖ Or, the Grace being an habitation to every one of them.

i Which for a ſeaſon are fed in large and ſweet Paſtures, but at the Owners pleaſure are put together in cloſe and comfortleſs Folds, and led away to the Slaughters, not knowing nor conſidering whither they are going. k Or in Hell: For the Hebrew word ſignifies both. l The firſt Death ſhall conſume their Bodies in the Grave, and the ſecond Death ſhall devour their Souls. m Good men whom here they oppreſſed and abuſed at their pleaſure. n Either 1. Suddenly, or within a very little time, as this phraſe is oft uſed, as Pſal. 30. 5. and 46. 5. and 101. 8. and 143. 8. &c. Or 2. In the day of general Judgment, and the Reſurrection of the Dead. For Death being called the night, John 9. 4. and ſleep in many places, that day is fitly compared to the morning, when men awake out of ſleep, and enter upon that everlaſting day. But whether this or the former be the true meaning of the Phraſe, it is ſufficiently evident the thing here ſpoken of is not done in this Life, but in the next: For 1. This propoſition and priviledge being general, and common to all upright perſons is not verified here, it being the lot of many good men to be oppreſſed and killed by the wicked, as is manifeſt both from Scripture, as Pſal. 44. 22. Eccleſ. 8. 14. and 9. 2. and from the Experience of all Ages of the Church. 2. This dominion of the juſt over the wicked happens after the wicked are laid in their Grave, as is here expreſſed, and conſequently ſuppoſeth their future Life and Reſurrection: For when one perſon rules over another, both are ſuppoſed to exiſt or have a being. Nor is there any Argument againſt this Senſe, but from a vain and abſurd conceit which ſome men have entertained, that the Saints in the Old Teſtament had no firm belief nor expectation of the recompences of the Life to come. Which is againſt evident Reaſon; and againſt many clear places of the Old Teſtament, that cannot without force be wreſted to any other Senſe; and againſt the expreſs teſtimony of the New Teſtament concerning them, Heb. 11. and in many other places. o Or their Form, or Figure, or Image, all which come to one, and ſeems to intimate that all their Glory and Felicity which they had in this Life, was rather imaginary than real, and indeed but a ſhadow, as it is called Eccleſ. 6. 12. and 8. 13. p Heb. is to conſume, or to be conſumed, (i. e.) ſhall be conſumed: the Infinitive Verb being here put for the Future, as it is Pſal. 32. 8. Zech. 3. 4. and 12. 10. q (i. e.) They ſhall be hurried from their large and ſtately and pleaſant Manſions, into a cloſe and dark Grave. But thoſe words are by divers Interpreters rendred otherwiſe, and that peradventure more truly and fitly, to this purpoſe, word for word, the Grave (or rather Hell, as before, and as this word Sheol is confeſſedly oft uſed in the Old Teſtament, but no where more conveniently than here) ſhall be a dwelling, or for a dwelling unto him, or them, or every one of them. Which in the Prophets phraſe is called dwelling with everlaſting burnings, Iſa. 33. 14. and in the Phraſe of the New Teſtament, to be caſt into and abide in the lake of Fire and Brimſtone, Rev. 20. 10.

is

† Heb. from the hand of the Grave. || Or, Hell.

15 But God will redeem r my ſoul s † from the power of || the grave t; for he ſhall receive me u. Selah.

r Though no man can find out a Ranſom to redeem himſelf or his Brother, yet God can and will redeem me. s Either properly: Or my ſelf or Life; for all comes to one. t Or of Hell: for he ſpeaks of that Sheol in which the wicked are left. The Grave ſhall not have power to retain me, but ſhall be forced to give me up into my Fathers hands; and Hell ſhall have no power to ſeize upon me. u Or take me, out of this vain, mortal and miſerable Life, unto himſelf, or into Heaven, as this Phraſe is uſed, Gen. 5. 24. Pſal. 73. 24. Acts 7. 59.

16 Be not thou afraid x when one is made rich, when the glory of his houſe is increaſed;

x (i. e.) Diſcouraged or dejected. The proſperity of the Sinners is oft matter of fear and dread to good men; partly, becauſe it enables them to do more miſchief; and partly, becauſe it ſhakes their Faith in Gods Providence and Promiſes, and is apt to engender ſuſpicions in Mens minds, as if God did not regard the actions and affairs of men, and made no difference between the good and the bad, and conſequently all Religion were vain and unprofitable. See Pſal. 73. 12, 13.

* Job 27. 19.

17 * For when he dieth, he ſhall carry nothing away y: his glory ſhall not deſcend after him.

y For as he will ſhortly die, ſo all his Wealth and Power, and Glory will die with him, and thou wiltſt have no cauſe either to envy or fear him.

† Heb. in his Life.

z (i. e.) He applauded himſelf as a wiſe and happy Man, comp. Luke 12. 19. a And as he pleaſeth and flattereth himſelf, ſo he meets with Paraſites, that applaud and flatter him for their own advantage. For he ſtill ſpeaks of the ſame man, as is manifeſt from the foregoing and following words, though there be a ſudden change of the third into the ſecond Perſon; which is moſt frequent in theſe Books. b When thou doſt indulge and pleaſe thy ſelf, and advance thy own Worldly Intereſt. For the Name of good in Scripture is oft aſcribed unto the pleaſures and profits of this Life, as Job 21. 13. Pſalm 4. 6. Eccleſ. 2. 24. and 4. 8. and 11. 9.

19 † He ſhall go c to the generation of his fathers d; they ſhall never ſee e light f.

c Now he returns again to the third Perſon. Such ſudden and repeated Changes are frequent in this Book. d (i. e.) To the Grave and Hell, where he ſhall meet with his wicked Parents, who by their Counſel and Example, led him into his evil Courſes; as the Godly alſo are ſaid to be gathered to their Fathers, Gen. 15. 15. Deut. 32. 50. Judg. 2. 10. e (i. e.) Never enjoy, as ſeeing is oft taken. f Neither the Light of the Living, as it is called Job 33. 30. Pſal. 56. 13. or of this Life, to which they ſhall never return: Nor of the next Life, to which they ſhall never be admitted, but they ſhall be caſt into utter darkneſs, Mat. 8. 12.

* Ver. 12. * Eccl. 3. 19.

20 * Man that is in honour and underſtandeth not g, is * like the beaſts that periſh h.

g (i. e.) Hath not true Wiſdom, to know and conſider what he is, and what his true buſineſs and intereſt in this World is, and what uſe he ſhould make of his Life, and of all his Riches and Honour, and Power, and whither he is going, and what courſe to take for the attainment of true and laſting Happineſs. h Though he hath the outward ſhape of a Man, yet in truth he is a Beaſt, or a brutiſh, ſtupid, and unreaſonable Creature, and he ſhall periſh like a brute Beaſt made to be deſtroyed, 2 Pet. 2. 12.

PSAL. L.

The ARGUMENT.

THE deſign of this Pſalm is partly to reprove and proteſt againſt the common Miſcarriages of many Profeſſors of Religion, who ſatisfied their own Conſciences, and fancied that they pleaſed God with their External and Ceremonial Performances, notwithſtanding their groſs neglect of thoſe more neceſſary and Fundamental Duties of Piety, and Juſtice, and Charity: Partly to inſtruct Men concerning the Nature of the true and acceptable Worſhip of God; and partly to prepare the Iſraelites for, and tacitly warn them of, that Change which would be made in the outward form and way of Gods Worſhip, under and by the Meſſias, and of the abolition of the Legal Sacrifices, which God did not appoint for his own need, nor for his Peoples perpetual uſe.

A pſalm || of Aſaph a.

a Who was not only the chief of the ſacred Singers, 1 Chron. 15. and 16. and 25. 2. but alſo a Prophet, 1 Chron. 25. 1. and a Compoſer of ſome Pſalms, as it is apparent from 2 Chron. 29. 30. and therefore, as is moſt probable, of thoſe that go under his Name.

God cometh with great Majeſty into his Church, 1—4. and gathereth together his Saints, 5, 6. Teſtifieth he has no pleaſure in Ceremonies, 7—13. but in ſincerity of Obedience, 14—15. Threatneth the wicked for contemning his Word, 16—22. and ſheweth who it is that glorifieth him, 23.

|| Or, for Aſaph. † Heb. God of Gods. So Gr.

1 THe † mighty God, even the LORD hath ſpoken, and called the earth from the riſing of the ſun, unto the going down thereof b.

b (i. e.) All the Inhabitants of the Earth, from one end to the other. Whom he here ſummons to be Witneſſes of his proceedings in this ſolemn Judgment, between him and his people, which is here poetically repreſented. For here is a Tribunal erected, the Judge coming to it, the Witneſſes and Delinquents ſummoned, and at laſt the Sentence given, and Cauſe determined.

2 Out of Zion c the perfection of beauty d, God hath ſhined e.

c The place where he was ſuppoſed to reſide, and where he would now ſit in Judgment. Or from whence he would come to a more publick and conſpicuous place, where all the World might ſee and hear the Tranſactions. d The moſt beautiful and amiable place of the whole World, becauſe of the Preſence and Worſhip, and Bleſſing of God, which was there and there only. e (i. e.) Hath appeared or manifeſted himſelf in a glorious manner, as Judges do when they come to the Judgment-ſeat.

* Pſ. 97. 3.

3 Our God f ſhall come g, and ſhall not keep ſilence h: * a fire ſhall devour before him, and it ſhall be very tempeſtuous round about him i.

f Theſe words are uſed here, as they are alſo Heb. 12. 29. emphatically. The Prophet ſpeaks this in the perſon of the Iſraelites and Worſhippers of God, whereof he was one, and thereby takes off their fond pretence, as if becauſe God was their God, in Covenant with them, and nearly related to them, by Abraham his Friend for ever, he would bear with their Miſcarriages, and would not deal ſo ſeverely with them, as ſome fancied; which alſo was their conceit, Jer. 7. 4. &c. Mat. 3. 9, 10. No, ſaith he, though he be our God, yet he will come to execute Judgment upon us. g Either 1. From Heaven, his dwelling place, to Zion, to ſit in Judgment there. Or 2. Out of Zion to ſome other place, as was ſaid on v. 2. h So the Senſe is, he will no longer forbear or connive at the hypocriſie and profaneneſs of the Profeſſors of the true Religion, but will now ſpeak to them in his Wrath, and will effectually reprove and chaſtiſe them. But becauſe the Pſalmiſt is not now deſcribing what God did, or would ſay againſt them, which he doth below, v. 7. &c. but as yet continues in his deſcription of the preparation or coming of the Judge to his Throne, it ſeems more proper to tranſlate the Words, as ſome do, he will not ceaſe (for this Verb ſignifies not only a ceſſation from Speech, but from Motion or Action, as it doth 2 Sam. 19. 11. Pſal. 83. 1. Iſa. 42. 14, 15.) (i. e.) Not neglect or delay to come. So here is the ſame thing expreſſed, both affirmatively and negatively (as is frequent in Scripture, whereof divers inſtances have been formerly given) for the greater aſſurance of the truth of the thing. i This is a farther deſcription of that terrible Majeſty, wherewith God clothed himſelf when he came to his Tribunal, in token of that juſt ſeverity which he would uſe in his proceedings with them. He alludes to the manner of Gods appearance at Sinai, Exod. 19. and intimates to them, that although Zion was a place of Grace and Bleſſing to all true Iſraelites, yet God would be as dreadful there, to the Hypocrites among them, as ever he was at Sinai. See Iſa. 33. 14.

4 He ſhall call to the heavens from above, and to the earth k, that he may judge his people l.

k Either to the places themſelves, and ſo it is a Figure called Proſopopæia: Or to the Inhabitants of them, all Angels and Men, whom he calls in for Witneſſes and Judges of the Equity of his preſent proceedings. Comp. Deut. 4. 26. and 31. 28. and 32. 1. l To wit, in their preſence and hearing.

5 Gather m my ſaints n together unto me: thoſe that have made a covenant with me by ſacrifice o.

m O ye Angels, ſummon and fetch them to my Tribunal. Which is poetically ſpoken; not as if they were actually to do ſo; but only to continue the Metaphor, and repreſentation of the Judgment here mentioned. n The Delinquents, the Iſraelites, whom he calls Saints; partly becauſe they were all by profeſſion an holy People, as they are called Deut. 14. 2. partly by an Irony, intimating how unworthy they were of that Name: and partly as an Argument or Evidence againſt them, becauſe God had choſen and ſeparated them from all the Nations of the Earth, to be an holy and peculiar people to himſelf, and they alſo had ſolemnly and frequently conſecrated and devoted themſelves to God, and to his faithful Service; all which did greatly aggravate their preſent Apoſtacy. o (i. e.) Which have entred into Covenant with me, and have ratified that Covenant with me by Sacrifice, not only in their Parents, Exod. 24. 4. &c. but alſo in their own perſons from time to time, even as oft as they offer Sacrifices to me. This Clauſe ſeems to be added here, to acquaint them with the proper Nature, uſe and end of Sacrifices, which were principally appointed to be Signs and Seals of the Covenant made between God and his people; and conſequently to convince them of their great miſtake and wickedneſs in truſting to their outward Sacrifices, when they neglect the very Life and Soul of them, which was the keeping of their Covenant with God; and withal to diminiſh that overweening Conceit which they had of Sacrifices, and to prepare the way for the abolition of them, as being only neceſſary to confirm the Covenant; which being once for all confirmed by the Blood of Chriſt, they might without any inconvenience be laid aſide and abrogated.

* Pſ. 97. 6.

6 And * the heavens ſhall declare his righteouſneſs p: for God is judge himſelf. Selah q.

p Which they were called to witneſs, v. 4. So was the Earth alſo. But here he mentions the Heavens only, as I humbly conceive, becauſe they were the moſt impartial and conſiderable Witneſs in the caſe; for men upon Earth might be falſe Witneſſes, either through Ignorance and Miſtake, or through Prejudice and Partiality, and Paſſion: But the Angels underſtand things more thoroughly and certainly, and are ſo exactly pure and ſinleſs, that they neither can nor will tell a lye for God; and therefore their teſtimony is more valuable. Or the meaning is, that God would convince the people of his Righteouſneſs, and of their own Wickedneſs, by terrible Thunders and Lightnings, and Storms or other dreadful Signs wrought by him in the Heaven or the Air: by which he did convince his people in two like Caſes, Deut. 5. 22, 23. &c. 1 Sam. 12. 17, 18, 19. q In his own perſon, or immediately. God will not now reprove them, or contend with them by his Prieſts or Prophets, with whom they may eaſily ſtrive, as they uſed to do, but he will do it in an immediate and extraordinary manner from Heaven; and therefore they ſhall be forced to acknowledge his Righteouſneſs, and their own unrighteouſneſs; as they muſt needs do, when the Conteſt is between them and that God who is the great Judge of the World, and cannot poſſibly do any unrighteous thing, Job 34. 13. Rom. 3. 6. who exactly knows all their Hearts, and Works, and cannot be deceived nor contradicted.

* Pſ. 81.8. 7 * Hear, O my people, and I will ſpeak r; O Iſrael, and I will teſtifie againſt thee s: I am God, even thy God t.

r Having brought in God, as coming to Judgment with them, he now gives an account of the proceſs and of the ſentence of the Judge, whoſe words are contained in this and the following Verſes. s I will plead with thee, and declare my Charge or Inditement againſt thee. t Not only in general, as thou art my Creature, but in a ſpecial manner, by many ſingular Favours and Obligations, and by that ſolemn Covenant made at Sinai; whereby I avouched thee to be my peculiar people, and thou didſt avouch me to be thy God, Deut. 26. 17, 18.

* Hoſ. 6.6. 8 I will not reprove thee * for thy ſacrifices, or thy burnt-offerings u, to have been x continually before me.

u I do not charge thee, or at leaſt this is not the principal matter of my Charge, that thou haſt neglected Sacrifices which thou ſhouldeſt have offered; for although thou haſt many times omitted thy Duty in that kind, yet I have greater things than theſe to charge thee with. x Or they have been. I confeſs thou haſt been frequent in that work, and haſt laid too great a ſtreſs upon it, and ſatisfied thy Conſcience with it, as if thereby thou hadſt made me amends for the Errors of thy Life.

* Mic.6.6. Acts 17. 25. 9 * I will take no bullock out of thy houſe, nor he-goats out of thy folds y

y But be not ſo vain and fooliſh, as to imagine that thou doſt lay any obligations upon me by thy Sacrifices; or that I required them, becauſe I had need of them, or took any pleaſure in them for themſelves, or for my own ſatisfaction by them.

10 For every beaſt of the forreſt is mine z, and the cattle upon a thouſand hills a.

z I would command or diſpoſe them at my pleaſure, without thy leave or aſſiſtance. a Which feed upon innumerable Hills, or in Valleys and Fields.

11 I know b all the fowls of the mountains c: and the † Heb. with me. wild beaſts of the field are † mine.

b Where they are, and whence I can eaſily fetch them when I think good. c Not only tame and domeſtick Fowls, but even ſuch as are wild and fly up and down upon Mountains; which though out of mans reach, are at Gods command.

* Exod. 19. 5. Deut. 10. 14. Job41.11. Pſal. 24.1. 1 Cor. 10. 26, 28. 12 If I were hungry d, I would not tell thee e, * for the world is mine, and the fulneſs thereof f.

d If I wanted or deſired any thing, as I do not, being the All-ſufficient God. e That thou mighteſt ſupply my wants. f (i. e.) All thoſe Creatures wherewith it is repleniſhed.

13 Will I eat the fleſh of bulls, or drink the blood of goats g?

g If I did want any thing, haſt thou ſuch carnal and groſs conceptions of me, that I need or delight in the Blood of Brute-Creatures.

*Hoſ. 14.2 Heb. 13. 15. 14 * Offer unto God thankſgiving h, and pay thy vows i unto the moſt High.

h If thou wouldeſt know what Sacrifices I moſt prize, and indiſpenſably require, in the firſt place, it is that of Thankfulneſs and Praiſe proportionable to my great and glorious and numberleſs Favours; which doth not conſiſt barely in Verbal acknowledgments, but proceeds from an Heart truly and deeply affected with Gods mercies, and is accompanied with ſuch a Courſe of Life, as is grateful or well-pleaſing to God; all which is plainly comprehended in Thankſgiving, as that Duty is explained in other Scriptures. i Either 1. Ceremonial Vows, the Sacrifices which thou haſt vowed to God. Or rather, 2. Moral Vows: for the things here mentioned are directly oppoſed unto Sacrifices, and preferred before them: for having diſparaged, and in ſome ſort rejected their Sacrifices and Burnt-Offerings, v. 8. it is not likely that he ſhould have a better opinion of, or value for their vowed Sacrifices; which were of an inferiour ſort. He ſeems therefore to underſtand thoſe ſubſtantial Vows and Promiſes, and Covenants, which were the very Soul of their Sacrifices, and to which their Sacrifices were but Appurtenances and Seals, as was noted above, on ver. 5. whereby they did avouch the Lord to be their God, and to walk in his ways, &c. as it is expreſſed Deut. 26. 17. and engaged themſelves to love, and ſerve and obey the Lord according to that ſolemn Vow and Covenant which they entred into at Sinai, Exod. 24. 3, 7, 8. which they oft renewed, and indeed did implicitly repeat in all their Sacrifices, which were appointed for this very end to confirm this Covenant.

* Job 22. 27. 15 And * call upon me k in the day of trouble l; I will deliver thee, and thou ſhalt glorifie me m.

k And make Conſcience of that great Duty of conſtant and fervent Prayer to me; which is an acknowledgment of thy ſubjection to me, and of thy truſt and dependance upon me, and therefore is pleaſing to me. l When trouble comes, do not avoid it by ſinful ſhifts, nor truſt to Creatures for relief, as Hypocrites generally do, but give Glory to me, by relying upon my Promiſes, and expect help from me by hearty and unfeigned Prayer. m This is mentioned; either, 1. As a priviledge; thou ſhalt have occaſion to praiſe and glorifie me for thy Deliverance. Or 2. As a further Duty; thou ſhalt give me the Glory of thy Deliverance, by praiſing me for it, and improving it to my Service and Glory.

16 But unto the wicked n God ſaith o, What haſt thou to do to declare my ſtatutes, or that thou ſhouldeſt take my covenant in thy mouth p?

n (i. e.) The ſame ungodly and hypocritical Profeſſors, whom he calleth Saints, v. 5. in regard of their profeſſion, and here wicked in reſpect of their practice, and the truth of the thing. o He told them what he would not reprove them for, v. 8. and why, v. 9. 10. &c. now he tells them for what he did reprove and condemn them, even for a vain and falſe profeſſion of Religion. p With what confidence dareſt thou make mention of, or boaſt of Gods Grace and Favour vouchſafed unto thee, in giving thee ſuch a Covenant and Statutes, pretending to embrace them, and to give up thy ſelf to the obſervation of them? This concerns not only the Teachers (of whom ſome underſtand theſe words) but all the Iſraelites in general: Of whom he rather ſeems to ſpeak.

17 * Seeing thou hateſt inſtruction q, and caſteſt my words behind thee r. * Rom. 2. 21, 22.

q Seeing thy practice contradicts thy profeſſion, and makes thee a notorious and impudent Lyar. Though with thy mouth thou ſheweſt much love (as is ſaid of them, Ezek. 33. 31.) to my Statutes and Counſels, yet in Truth thou hateſt them, as they are Curbs to thy beloved Luſts, and Inſtruments of thy juſt Condemnation, and a manifeſt reproach to thy Converſation. Or ſeeing thou hateſt Reproof, as this word is oft rendred. And this above all other parts of Gods Word, is moſt hateful to ungodly men, Prov. 9. 8. and 12. 1. and 15. 10, 12. Amos 5. 10. And therefore this is fitly alledged as an evidence of their wickedneſs. r As men do things which they abhor or deſpiſe.

18 When thou saweſt s a thief, then thou conſentedeſt with him t, and † haſt been partaker with adulterers u. † Heb. thy portion was with Adulterers.

s Or, didſt obſerve, or conſider: When he came into thy preſence and company, and thou didſt underſtand and conſider his ways and his ſucceſs and impunity, and he invited thee to a participation of his profit. t Or, as many render it, then thou didſt run with him, thou didſt readily and greedily aſſociate thy ſelf with him, in his unrighteous Courſes. Thou didſt yield to his motions, and that with great complacency and diligence. u By joyning with them, in their lewd and filthy practices.

19 Thou † giveſt x thy mouth to evil y, and thy tongue frameth deceit z. † Heb. ſendeſt.

x Heb. thou ſendeſt forth, to wit, free; for the word is uſed of Mens diſmiſſing their Wives, or their Servants; whom they left to their Freedom. Thou haſt an unbridled Tongue, and caſteſt off all reſtraints of Gods Law, and of thy own Conſcience, and giveſt thy Tongue liberty to ſpeak what thou pleaſeſt, though it be offenſive and diſhonourable to God, and injurious to thy Neighbour, or to thy own Soul. Which is juſtly produced as an evidence of their Hypocriſie. y Either to ſinful or miſchievous Speeches. z (i. e.) Uttereth Lyes or fair Words, wherewith to circumvent thoſe who deal with them.

20 Thou ſitteſt and ſpeakeſt a againſt thy brother b; thou ſlandereſt c thine own mothers ſon.

a Thou doſt not only ſpeak evil in a ſudden Paſſion, or upon ſome great provocation, but this is thy conſtant and deliberate practice and buſineſs, which thou doſt purſue with great facility and complacency: all which this phraſe implies. b Strictly ſo called, as the next Clauſe explains it. Which is a great aggravation of the ſin, and a proof of his inveterate and obſtinate wickedneſs. c Takeſt away his good Name, which is better than all Riches; yea, than Life it ſelf. Which is contrary to my expreſs and oft repeated commands.

21 Theſe things haſt thou done, and I kept ſilence d: thou thoughteſt that I was altogether ſuch a one as thy ſelf †: but I will reprove thee e, and ſet them in order before thine eyes f.

d I did not expreſs my diſpleaſure againſt thee in ſuch grievous Judgments as thou didſt deſerve. Or, I was deaf: I carried my ſelf like one that did not hear thy ſinful Speeches, nor ſee or take any notice of thy wicked Actions. † Thou didſt miſconſtrue and abuſe this my patience and long-ſuffering, as if it had proceeded from my Ignorance, or regardleſneſs, or approbation of thy evil Courſes, which I ſeemed by my connivance to juſtifie or allow; and thereupon didſt grow more audacious and impudent in ſin. See Eccleſ. 11. 9. Iſa. 26. 10. Rom. 2. 4, 5. e Not with verbal, but real Reproofs, (i. e.) By ſevere puniſhments, as this word is uſed Job 13. 10. Pſal. 6. 1. and 38. 1. and 39. 71. and oft elſewhere. I will quickly undeceive and convince thee of the contrary to thy coſt. f I will bring to thy remembrance, and lay upon thy Conſcience all thy ſins, in full number and in their order, with all their circumſtances; and thou ſhalt then ſee and know that I diligently obſerved and hated them all, and that none of them ſhall go unpuniſhed.

22 Now conſider this, ye that forget God g, leſt I tear you in pieces h, and there be none to deliver i.

g Ye hypocritical and ungodly Iſraelites, who have forgotten (as Moſes foretold you would do, Deut. 32. 18.) the God that formed you, and made you his People, and forgotten his Mercies and Judgments, by which you ſhould have been inſtructed, and the Covenant which you made with him, and by which you ſtand obliged to him. h Leſt my patience be turned into fury, and I proceed to take Vengeance on you. i Or, for (as the Hebrew Particle is oft rendred) there is none that can, or will deliver you. None can reſcue you from the power of mine Anger.

* Pſal. 69. 30, 31. 23 Whoſo * offereth praiſe k, glorifieth me l: and to † Heb. that diſpoſeth his way. him † that ordereth his converſation aright m, will I ſhew n the ſalvation of God o.

k Or, Thankſgiving, as this word is rendred, v. 14. See the note there. l He and he onely gives me the Honour that I require and prize, and not he who loads my Altar with a multitude of Sacrifices; whereby you vainly and falſly Conceit that you pleaſe and glorifie me, although in the mean time you live in the groſs neglect of the more important Duties of Piety and Juſtice, and Charity: whereas in truth you greatly diſhonour me, and my Worſhip and Service by your infamous Lives. m Heb. that Compoſeth, or diſpoſeth the Way, or manner of his (which Pronoun is frequently underſtood) Life, (i. e.) That lives orderly, and according to Rule: for Sinners are ſaid to walk diſorderly, 2 Theſ. 3. 6, 7. 11. and by Chance, as it is in the Hebrew Text, Levit. 26. 21. 23. which is oppoſed to Order: and the Scripture owns no Order, but what God preſcribes or approves; and therefore this Word, aright, is juſtly added in our Tranſlation. n Heb. I will make him to ſee, (i. e.) To enjoy, as that Verb is oft uſed, as we have ſhewed again and again. o (i. e.) My Salvation; that true and everlaſting Happineſs, which I have prepared for all my faithful Friends and Servants, and for them onely. So falſe is that Poſition of ſome of the Jewiſh Rabbins, that every Iſraelite hath a Portion in the World to come.

PSAL. LI.

Sam. 1. 11. 2.

To the chief muſician a, a Pſalm of David, * when Nathan the prophet came unto him b, after he * had gone into Bathſheba.

a To be ſung by him, and other ſacred Muſicians publickly in the Temple through all Ages; that his Repentance might be as maniſeſt and publick as his Crime and Scandal was. b After his Conſcience was awakened by Nathan's Words, 2 Sam. 12. and Nathan was gone, David falls very ſeriouſly upon the Practice of ſincere Repentance, and digeſted his Meditations into this Pſalm.

David prayeth to God for the remiſſion of his Original and Actual Sins, 1, 2. whereof he maketh a deep Confeſſion, 3—5. and for the renovation of his Holy Spirit, to ſupport himſelf, and inſtruct others, 6———14. promiſing him alſo unfeigned, and ſincere Thankfulneſs, 15—17. with a Prayer for the good of the whole Church, 18, 19.

1 HAve mercy upon me c, O God, according to thy loving kindneſs d: according unto the multitude of thy tender mercies e, blot out f my tranſgreſſions.

c Pity and Help and Anſwer me, in the Deſires I am now ſpreading before thee. d I pretend to no merit, but humbly implore thy free Grace and Mercy. e Thy mercies are infinite, and therefore ſufficient for my Relief, and ſuch indeed do I need. f Either, 1. Out of my Conſcience and Soul, where it hath left a ſtain and filthy Character. Or, Out of thy Book of Remembrance, and Accounts, in which all mens ſins are written, and out of which all men ſhall be judged hereafter, Revel. 20. 12. Which is ſpoken of God after the manner of men. See of this Phraſe Iſa. 43. 25. and 44. 22.

2 Waſh me throughly g from mine iniquity, and cleanſe me from my ſin.

g Heb. Multiply to waſh me. By which Phraſe he implies the greatneſs of his guilt; and the inſufficiency of all legal Waſhings, and the abſolute neceſſity of ſome other and better thing to waſh him, even of Gods Grace and the Blood of Chriſt; which as Abraham ſaw by Faith, John 8. 56. ſo did David, as is ſufficiently evident (allowing for the darkneſs of the Diſpenſation and Expreſſions of the Old Teſtament) from divers paſſages of the Pſalms; of which I have ſpoken in their proper places; and his earneſt and paſſionate deſire of Pardon; which he deſires above all other things. Wherein he ſheweth himſelf to be a true Penitent, becauſe his chief Care and deſire was to obtain God's Favour, and the forgiveneſs of his ſins, and not the Prevention of thoſe external ſore Judgments, which God by Nathan threatned to bring upon him and his Houſe, 2 Sam. 7. 10, 11. about which here is not one Word in this Pſalm; whereas the Cares and Deſires of Hypocrites, chiefly are bent towards Worldly things, as we ſee in Cain, Gen. 4. 13, 16, 17. and Saul, 1 Sam. 15. 30. and others, Hoſ. 7. 14.

3 For I acknowledge h my tranſgreſſions i: and my ſin is ever before me k.

h With Grief and Shame, and abhorrency of my ſelf and of my ſins; which hitherto I have diſſembled and covered. And being thus truly penitent, I hope and beg that I may find Mercy with thee. i For it was not a ſingle, but a Complicated, Wickedneſs, Adultery, Murder, Injuſtice, Perfidiouſneſs; and frequent Repetition of, and long and ſtupid Continuance in abominable filthineſs, and that with publick Scandal. k That which I had caſt behind my Back, is now Conſtantly in my view, and fixed in my Thoughts and Memory.

m. 3. 4.

4 Againſt thee, thee onely l have I ſinned, and done this evil in thy ſight m: * that thou mighteſt be juſtified n when thou ſpeakeſt o; and be clear when thou judgeſt p.

l Which is not to be underſtood ſimply and abſolutely, becauſe he had unqueſtionably ſinned againſt Bathſheba and Uriah, and many others who were either injured by it, or ſcandalized at it, but Comparatively. So the Sence is this, though I have ſinned againſt my own Body and Conſcience, and againſt others; yet nothing is more grievous and Terrible to me, than to conſider that I have ſinned againſt thee; Partly, upon a general Accouut, becauſe this is the chief Malignity, and ſiufulneſs of ſin, that it offends and injures the Glorious and Bleſſed God; and partly, upon particular Reaſons; Becauſe I ſet thee at Defiance, and having uſed all wicked Arts to conceal my ſins from Men, and being free from Fear of puniſhment from them, I went on boldly in ſin, caſting off all Reverence to thy Holy and Omniſcient Majeſty, and all dread of thy Judgments, and becauſe I ſinned againſt thee, to whom I had ſuch numerous and peculiar and eminent Obligations, as thy Prophet Nathan truly ſuggeſted to me, 2 Sam. 12. 7, 8. m With groſs Contempt of God, whom I well knew to be a Spectator of my moſt ſecret Actions. n The Particle, that, is not taken Cauſally, or Intentionally, as if this was David's Deſign, but Eventually, as it is Exod. 11. 9. Pſal. 30. 12. Hoſ. 8. 4. This will be the Fruit or Conſequent of my ſin, that whatſoever ſeverities thou ſhalt uſe towards me and mine, it will be no blemiſh to thy Benignity, or Righteouſneſs, or Fidelity, but the blame of all will reſt upon my Head, as I deſire it may, and thy juſtice will be Glorified by all Men. o Heb. In thy Words, (i. e.) In all thy Threatnings denounced againſt me by Nathan; and in any further Sentence which thou ſhalt ſee fit to paſs upon me. p When thou doſt plead or contend with me, or execute thy Sentence or Judgment upon me. Or, when thou art judged, as it is rendred, Rom. 3. 4. for the Word may be taken Paſſively, as well as Actively. When any man ſhall preſume to Cenſure thee, as not keeping thy Covenant and Mercy promiſed to David.

5 Behold, I was ſhapen in iniquity q; and in ſin did my mother † conceive me r.

† Heb. Warm me.

q This Verſe is both by Jewiſh and Chriſtian, by Antient and Latter Interpreters, generally and moſt truly underſtood of Original ſin: Which he here mentions, as an Aggravation of his Crime: and the Sence of the place is this, Nor is this the onely ſin which I have Reaſon to acknowledge and bewail before thee; for this filthy ſtream leads me to a corrupt Fountain: and upon a ſerious Review of my Heart, and Life I find, that I am guilty of innumerable other ſins, and that this Hainous Crime, though drawn forth by external Temptations, yet was indeed the proper Fruit of my own filthy and vile Nature, which, without the reſtraints of thy Providence or Grace, ever was, and ſtill is like to be, inclinable and ready to commit theſe and ten Thouſand other ſins, as occaſion offers it ſelf. For which Contrariety of my very Nature to thine, thou mayſt juſtly loath and Condemn me; and for which I humbly beg thy Pardon and Grace. r Heb. Warm, or Cheriſh me, in the Womb, before I was ſhapen, or formed there.

6 Behold, thou deſireſt s truth t in † the inward parts: and in the hidden part u thou ſhalt make me to know x wiſdom y.

† Heb. the Reins.
